The conflict between the powers of darkness and the heavenly forces is constantly going on. Before you commence your discourse, ask those of the congregation who have faith to pray that the Holy Spirit will make the Word effectual, convicting souls as to what is truth. At the close of your sermon, ask if there are any present who have friends for whom they desire the prayers of those who believe in the prayer of faith. 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 4

We do not value the power and efficacy of prayer as we should. Do you feel weak and unworthy? "The Spirit also helpeth our infirmities; for we know not what we should pray for as we ought: for the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings that cannot be uttered. And he that searcheth the heart knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, because he maketh intercession for the saints according to the will of God." [Romans 8:26, 27.] "But ye, beloved, building up yourselves in your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Ghost, keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life." [Jude 20, 21.] Let us make God our trust. He can and will help all who put their trust in Him. 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 5

This word of the Lord came to me last night: "God will give victories to those who rely upon Him." Prayer is altogether too much neglected. The Lord wants us to ask Him, that He may enlighten the mind, and that souls may understand the truth. God alone can give clear conceptions of truth. God alone can soften and subdue the heart. He can quicken the understanding to discern truth from error.

The Lord can establish the wavering mind, and give it a knowledge and faith that will stand the test. Pray then; pray without ceasing. The God who heard Daniel's prayers will hear your prayers if you will approach Him as did Daniel. We need to have our own souls in communion with God. The Christian's joy arises from a sense of Christ's love and care for us, and the assurance that He will not leave us in our weakness. 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 6

Let us not try to work ourselves or others, but let us depend upon the Holy Spirit. Deal gently with human beings. With hearts full of spiritual tenderness, melt your way into convicted hearts. Let your words be dipped in the heavenly oil from the two olive branches. We need the golden oil emptied into prepared vessels, that it may be communicated to those who are seeking for the truth. Ever remember that it is "not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts." [Zechariah 4:6.] 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par.

To the woman of Samaria Christ said, "If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink, thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water. The woman said unto him, Sir, thou hast nothing to draw with, and the well is deep: from when then hast thou that living water? ... Jesus answered and said unto her, Whosoever shall drink of this water shall thirst again, but whosoever shall drink of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst: but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water, springing up unto everlasting life." [John 4:10, 11, 13, 14.] 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 8

Brethren and sisters, you are united in a most solemn, sacred work. Souls for whom Christ had died, souls who may have that life that measures with the life of God, are in the valley of decision. Now is the most critical time. Before you present any subject to the people, first talk with God in prayer. Hide self in Jesus. Receive the Holy Spirit from God, and then in the power of the Holy Spirit speak to the people. Be sure that you are in the place where you can be worked by the Holy Spirit, "that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and of revelation in the knowledge of him: the eyes of your understanding being enlightened, that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints, and what is the exceeding greatness of his power to usward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power.” [Ephesians 1:17-19.]14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 9

Our only hope for victory is in God; therefore our power and efficiency must come from God. He alone can do the work that is essential for the saving of the soul, and “make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ: to the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be known by the church the manifold wisdom of God.” [Ephesians 3:9, 10.]14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 10

What is “the fellowship of the mystery”? [Verse 9.] We want clear, sharp, critical spiritual intelligence, that we may comprehend this mystery, which words cannot possibly explain. Through faith in Christ, Gentiles and Jews were to be united in the bonds of Christian fellowship and communion. The foundation principles of this mystery are the love and wisdom which through belief of the truth make those who are at variance one in Christ, hid with Him in God. “Sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth. ... Neither pray I for these alone; but for them also which shall believe on me through their word, that they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one; I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.” [John 17:17, 20-23.]14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 11

O what hope, what wonderful possibilities are before all who will surrender themselves to God and open their hearts by faith to receive an abiding Christ! What heights, what greatness, we may reach! Then, I inquire, why do we not reach the standard set for us? The Lord Jesus is our assurance. Let no obstacles, created by un sanctified self, interpose between our souls and our eternal interest. God calls to every soul, Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. God’s dealing with His church is to bring a convincing power to the rulers of the darkness of this world. 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 12

The angelic host in their loyalty to God are looking with intense interest upon us, and in their appointed orders of ministration are studying with the deepest interest the workings of God and His dealings with the fallen race. They think of the immense sacrifice made that men might be partakers of the divine nature, for it is Christ's death alone that makes it possible for a man to carry out God's purpose for him. Every soul elected to salvation is elected to obedience to all the laws of Christ's kingdom. This means purification from all disloyalty. Through the power of the Holy Spirit men and women appropriate the efficacy of Christ's blood, called the blood of sprinkling because it cleanses from all defilement and guiltiness. 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 13

"Father," Christ prayed, "I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am, that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me; for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world. O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee, but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me. And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it; that the love where with thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them." [Verses 24-26.] 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 14

Is it not true that we do not receive and believe these grand, elevating, sanctifying, ennobling truths? Why are we so powerless? Because we have not that faith which works by love and purifies the soul. The joy of the Lord is your strength. We are living very near the end of this world's history. Let us individually take an active part in the work of co-operating with Jesus Christ. This work gives life and vigor to all our mental powers and to all our spiritual exercises. Light shines from Christ into the chambers of the mind, because the heart has received the precious Saviour. He abides in the heart, and light is shed upon all the objects which we contemplate. We see correctly the things which are invisible. The Lord Jesus Christ is received by faith, and the language of the soul is not doleful or gloomy, but like the language found in 1 Peter 1:3-9. 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 15

“Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead, to an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you who are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation, ready to be revealed in the last time. Wherein ye greatly rejoice, though now for a season, if need be, ye are in heaviness through manifold temptations; that the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold that perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ, whom having not seen, ye love; in whom, though now ye see him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory; receiving the end of your faith, even the salvation of your souls.” [Verses 3-9.] 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 16

I now ask you to pray most earnestly that God will work by His own great power to melt and subdue human hearts. Let not your words show a shade of unbelief. You have a work to do for all classes. You must find access to the minds of the people living in the settlements round where you are working. You must meet the people where you are. There is to be no stretching up for words that are of the highest order. Use words of Christlike simplicity. The Lord Jesus is the one who works. He waters the seed sown. He gives words that will reach the heart. Expect that God will sustain the consecrated, unselfish worker. 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 17

The Holy Spirit is to God’s work as the oil to the wheels of well-regulated machinery. Obedience, childlike faith and trust in God bring peace, bring joy. Cultivate thankfulness of heart. “Let the peace of God rule in your hearts, ... and be ye thankful.” [Colossians 3:15.] Work interestedly, lovingly, patiently, for all with whom you are brought in contact. Show no impatience. Utter not one unkind word. Let the love of Christ be in your heart, the law of kindness upon your lips. This will enable you to achieve almost every good and noble thing. 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 18

Carry the sunshine of peace and joy with you. The servant of God must be a representative of Christ. Work joyfully, feeling that you have One by your side who can do anything. Feel that you are highly honored in being permitted to labor for God. Labor you must, in faith, perseverance, and self-denial, but ever let your heart be bright with the sunshine of Christ's righteousness. Carry the joy of the Lord with you into your work. This joy is as far above all other joy as holiness is above all other excellence. Be determined that you will see Christ by faith in all His glorious perfection. Then through you the Lord will attract souls who will behold Him. The Sun of Righteousness is to go before us; the glory of the Lord is to be our rearward. 14LtMs, Lt 200, 1899, par. 19

Ministering Brethren

NP

December 5, 1899

This letter is published in entirety in 11MR 98-104.

To Our Ministering Brethren:

I am assured again and again that the Lord has a great work to be done in this country. He has laid upon me a burden that I dare not refuse to carry. We have greatly needed a sanitarium in this country. The medical missionary work is to be as the hand and arm of the gospel message to be borne in this new world. We needed a sanitarium to give influence and character to the work, to accomplish the reforms so much needed! The ministry of the Word and medical missionary work, properly combined, would have exerted a much greater influence for good than working alone. 14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 1

Never was there a place where medical missionary work would have told with more power than in Australia. But in our efforts to do this work we have been handicapped for want of means. The money we should have had to invest in a sanitarium has been used in erecting sanitariums in places where they were not so much needed. The Lord Jesus Christ was the greatest Physician this world has ever known. We cannot in the full sense of the word call Him a medical missionary. He was the divine Healer. He was imbued with power to heal all manner of diseases without resorting to drugs. 14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 2

Daniel's experience is of great value to all who would be Christians. When Daniel was brought in before Belshazzar, as the king and his nobles sat at their sacrilegious feast, he plainly told the king that the calamity to come upon Babylon was the result of a disregard of heaven-sent light. 14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 3

He disregarded the light given to Nebuchadnezzar, and thereby lost the benefits he might have received had he been obedient to the light. God gives His people lessons to instruct them and lead them to reform. If they do not receive and practice these lessons, their neglect will surely bring judgments upon them.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 4

We read again in Daniel, "Then said he unto me, Fear not, Daniel, for from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand, and to hasten thyself before thy God, thy words were heard, and I am come for thy words. But the prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me one and twenty days; but lo, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me; and I remained there with the kings of Persia." [Daniel 10:12, 13.] By this we see that heavenly agencies have to contend with hindrances before the purpose of God is fulfilled in its time.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 5

The king of Persia was controlled by the highest of all evil angels. He refused, as did Pharaoh, to obey the word of the Lord. Gabriel declared, He withstood me twenty-one days by his representations against the Jews. But Michael came to his help, and then he remained with the kings of Persia, holding the powers in check, giving right counsel against evil counsel. Good and evil angels are taking a part in the planning of God in His earthly kingdom. It is God's purpose to carry forward His work in correct lines, in ways that will advance His glory. But Satan is ever trying to counterwork God's purpose. Only by humbling themselves before God can God's servants advance His work. Never are they to depend on their own efforts or on outward display for success.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 6

I call upon those who believe the truth for this time to reform, to purify the heart and humble self. Sincere belief of the truth and earnest prayer are our weapons of warfare. The exercise of all the musical talent among us will not change the hearts of the church members or increase their spirituality. Humiliation, confession, and most earnest prayer will bring about that which all the devising of men, be they high or low, cannot accomplish. Let us remember that it is Satan's purpose to set at work forces which will obscure the testing message for this time. If ever there was a time when self-sacrifice must be made, when earnest sincere prayer must be offered, when diligent work must be done, it is now. Satan has come down with great power to work with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 7

God looks with contempt upon the large assemblies at Battle Creek Tabernacle, while the hearts of those present are lifted up unto vanity. Their numbers displease Him. Is there not a world to be warned? Why then are there those assembled in the Tabernacle whose hearts swell with vanity because of their large assembly and their music? Let there be a humiliation of soul before God, that He may remove the discipline He has placed upon His people because they have departed from God.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 8

The simplicity and integrity that God requires His people to show is the line of demarkation between those who serve God and those who serve Him not. At the very heart of the work there is necessity for sincere, true humiliation, which has not yet been seen. God will vindicate every message He has given to His people. He will justify all His dealings with them. They have departed out of the way, and the only course that can bring relief and hope and success in bearing the solemn message for this time is for them to humble themselves under the mighty hand of God.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 9

There is a careless, venturesome spirit, which needs to be guarded. It is humiliating for us to acknowledge that we have done wrong, but this is often necessary. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much. Prayer will draw down from heaven great blessings, when those who claim to believe the truth shall come down from their stilts of self-exaltation, and afflict their souls, even as Daniel afflicted his soul.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 10

The Lord is not pleased with the spirit or the principles that have a controlling power in the Review and Herald office—the strong spirit of man rules; not the spirit of God. God will not work with their devising. When men get out of the Lord’s way, and let Him work upon hearts and minds, blessings will come to them. The fervent prayers, the sincere humiliation, the self-denial and self-sacrifice which blends with the supplications made, will bring down rich blessings.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 11

Through His chosen agencies God will graciously make known His purposes. Then the grand work of redemption will go forward. Men will learn of the reconciliation for iniquity and of the everlasting righteousness which the Messiah has brought in through His sacrifice. The cross of Calvary is the great center. This truth acted upon will make Christ's sacrifice effectual. This is that which Gabriel revealed to Daniel in answer to fervent prayer. It was of this that Moses and Elijah and Christ talked at His transfiguration. By the humiliation of the cross He was to bring everlasting deliverance to all who would walk after Him, giving positive evidence that they are separated from the world. All who will endure to the end will be saved. All who will hold the beginning of their confidence firm unto the end will have eternal righteousness. But those who depart from the principles which give character to the truth need converting as verily as does the hardened sinner. 14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 12

“You hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins: wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit which now worketh in the children of disobedience: among whom also we all had our conversation in times past in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind: and were by nature the children of wrath, even as others. But God, who is rich in mercy, for the great love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by grace are ye saved): and hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus: that in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Jesus Christ. 14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par.

“For by grace are ye saved, through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast. For we are his workman[ship], created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.” “Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand." [Ephesians 6:1-13.]14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 14

God is represented as weighing the characters, actions, and motives of men. Christ said to Nicodemus, "Ye must be born again." [John 3:7.] He is speaking the same words to those who know not the spirit that moves them to action. Under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, Hannah, the mother of Samuel, said, "The Lord is a God of knowledge, and by him actions are weighed." [1 Samuel 2:3.] David says, "Men of low degree are vanity, and men of high degree are a lie; to be laid in the balance, they are altogether vanity." [Psalms 62:9.] Isaiah declares, "Thou most upright, dost weigh the path of the Just." [Isaiah 26:7.] And Solomon writes, "All the ways of a man are clean in his own eyes; but the Lord weigheth the spirit." [Proverbs 16:2.]14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 15

There is not a motive in the heart that the Lord does not read. He reads every purpose, every thought of the heart. It is not an increase of light that is needed; it is the surrendering of the soul to God, that by the power of His grace He may make the light He has caused to shine into the heart a living principle of action. When a man who has had great light, who is supposed to be led and taught by God, turns out of the way because of self-confidence, he makes false paths for his feet. He follows crooked practices, and many who have admired the supposed nobility and integrity of his character follow his example, thinking that the Lord is leading him. The false step he took resulted in thousands of false steps.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 16

The great worker of evil is on the track of every soul. Unfair dealings, the misappropriation of the Lord's funds, the investing of money in worldly projects, is holding back a work which the Lord designs shall be done. Thus Satan inspires men to block the way of the advancement of God's kingdom. God sees every deed done, and He sees also the outcome of that deed. Those who have done deeds, which have hedged up the way of the work of salvation, are weighed in the balances and found wanting.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 17

We have before us in the Word of God instances of heavenly agencies working on the minds of kings and rulers, while at the same time satanic agencies were also at work on their minds. No human eloquence, in strongly set forth human opinions can change the working of satanic agencies. Satan seeks continually to block the way, so that the truth shall be bound about by human devising; and those who have light and knowledge are in the greatest danger unless they constantly consecrate themselves to God, humiliating self, and realizing the peril of the times. 14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 18

Heavenly beings are appointed to answer the prayers of those who are working unselfishly for the interests of the cause of God. The very highest angels in the heavenly courts are appointed to work out the prayers which ascend to God for the advancement of the cause of God. Each angel has his particular post of duty, which he is not permitted to leave for any other place. If he should leave, the powers of darkness would gain an advantage. 14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 19

In the record of Daniel's experience we read, "Behold one like the similitude of the sons of men touched my lips, then I opened my mouth, and spake, and said unto him that stood before me, O my lord, by the vision my sorrows are turned upon me, and I have retained no strength. For how can the servant of this my lord talk with this my lord? For as for me, straightway there remained no strength in me, neither is there breath left in me." 14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 20

"Then there came again and touched me one like the appearance of a man, and he strengthened me, and said, O man greatly beloved, fear not: peace be unto thee, be strong, yea, be strong. And when he had spoken unto me, I was strengthened, and said, Let my lord speak, for thou hast strengthened me. Then said he, Knowest thou wherefore I come unto thee? And now will I return to fight with the Prince of Persia: and when I am gone forth, lo, the prince of Grecia shall come. But I will show thee that which is noted in the Scriptures of truth: and there is none that holdeth with me in these things, but Michael your prince." [Daniel 10:16-21.] 14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 21

Day by day the conflict between good and evil is going on. Why is it that those who have had many opportunities and advantages do not realize the intensity of this work? They should be intelligent in regard to this. God is the Ruler. By His supreme power He holds in check and control earthly potentates. Through His agencies He does the work which was ordained before the foundation of the world.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 22

As a people we do not understand as we should the great conflict going on between invisible agencies, the controversy between loyal and disloyal angels. Evil angels are constantly at work, planning their line of attack, controlling as commanders, kings, and rulers, the disloyal human forces.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 23

I call upon you who are not ready for the last great controversy to wake up. You are not watching for that which is soon coming upon the earth. Human instrumentalities under the control of fallen angels are seeking to gather in their harvest. Those who would find themselves under the protection of the angels of God must live wholly for God's glory, prepared to stand in their lot and in their place. They are to be faithful and true, even as Daniel was, a man called by the Lord, "greatly beloved," a man who felt the need of praying and confessing his sins. Those who do as Daniel did are not asleep, but are keenly alive to their exposure to the enemy's malignant devices. They see that their only safety is in keeping the commandments of God. They pray as Daniel prayed, confessing their sins and finding pardon.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 24

Over every man good and evil angels strive. It is the man himself who determines which shall win. I call upon the ministers of Christ to press home upon the understanding of all who come within the reach of their voice, the truth of the ministration of angels. Do not indulge in fanciful speculations. The written Word is our only safety. We must pray as did Daniel, that we may be guarded by heavenly intelligences. As ministering spirits angels are sent forth to minister to those who shall be heirs of salvation. Pray, my brethren, pray as you have never prayed before. We are not prepared for the Lord's coming. We need to make thorough work for eternity.14LtMs, Lt 201, 1899, par. 25

Previously unpublished.

Dear Brother C. H. Jones:

I have received your letter in reference to the Sentinel. I have nothing definite to write. Circumstances have changed materially since the light was given, and your only course is to take the matter to the Lord in earnest prayer, putting yourself entirely out of sight. Unite in seeking to know the will of God. That action should be taken which will best serve the general interests of the cause at large. The Lord would have every soul seeking for unity and preserving harmony of action. Not one thread of selfishness is to be drawn into the work. 14LtMs, Lt 202, 1899, par. 1

One thing I know, there is such a thing as wearing out the patience of God by a selfish, perverse course of action. This course has been followed by a people whom the Lord has blessed with great light, great opportunities. The heavenly intelligences commissioned to do a great work through human channels find so much of self that the work that needs to be done cannot be done unless the channels are purified from every species of dishonesty and defilement. 14LtMs, Lt 202, 1899, par. 2

There is a claiming to keep the commandments of God, when they are only kept in the way in which the rich young ruler kept them. He honestly thought himself a perfect man, blameless as far as the law was concerned. Christ asked him to use the means entrusted to him in doing the work God designed should be done. “Sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me,” He said. [Matthew 19:21.] But the ruler could not make up his mind to part with his earthly treasure, and he turned sorrowfully away. 14LtMs, Lt 202, 1899, par. 3

The Lord would have us estimate the gift of His Son as of the highest value to every soul. Those who make reservations, who do not estimate the eternal above the earthly, will lose both worlds. 14LtMs, Lt 202, 1899, par. 4

My brother, I cannot decide for you the matter referred to in your letter, but the Lord is very nigh you, and will lead and guide you. I have stated that if the cause of God can be better served by removing the Sentinel to a more central place, then I cannot see anything objectionable in letting it go. You must obtain light upon these things by taking them to God. In harmonious action do as the Spirit of the Lord signifies. 14LtMs, Lt 202, 1899, par. 5

We must have larger and more persevering faith, faith that the Lord will hear and answer all that we call upon Him for, if we seek to understand His will and then do it without murmuring or discontent. Certainly, every effort should be made to obtain harmony. Unless we do this, we shall not be doers of the Word. The Lord help us to pray more fervently that we may understand the great events about to take place. There can be no safety in careless indifference. We must work under the Holy Spirit's guidance. Truth and righteousness are the attributes of God's throne. The Lord teach and guide you all, is my prayer. 14LtMs, Lt 202, 1899, par. 6

Portions of this letter are published in DG 226-227.

Dear children Edson and Emma:

I have not been able to write you much lately. I have sent you copies, but I have not had time to write as much as I would like to write. At this date we are still engaged in the work at Maitland, a town twenty-seven miles from Cooranbong. When we wish to go to Maitland, we harness Jessie White and Jasper Haskell in the surrey, and drive over. We start early to avoid the heat of the day, taking our breakfast with us, and eating it by the way.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 1

What shall I tell you of Maitland? We felt much anxiety about holding a camp meeting in this place, because not many weeks before it had been flooded. But light came to me so decidedly that this field was all ripe for the harvest that we dared not delay. It was reported that there was no place favorable for pitching the tents. Brother Starr went to Maitland, and visiting the mayor and the Town clerk, asked them for the use of the city park, a most beautiful park in the center of the city. These officials treated Brother Starr courteously, and said that they would consider the matter favorably.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 2

Soon word came that we could have the use of the park for two weeks free of charge. The businessmen in Maitland did everything they could to accommodate us. We shall certainly always respect and feel grateful to those who from first to last were so kind to us. I made the mayor a present of The Desire of Ages, in the best binding. Brother Starr gave one to the town clerk. I received from the mayor a very politely written acknowledgement, thanking me for my present.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 3

Our meeting opened Thursday evening. The attendance was good. Elder Daniells spoke to a tent well-filled with people. On Sabbath the attendance was good. I spoke with much freedom in the afternoon. I felt so thankful that after so much anxiety we were just where we hoped to be able to plant the standard of truth. On Sunday the large tent was full to overflowing. The children met in tents prepared for them, where they were taught in classes by excellent teachers. I understand that the ministers warned their people not to let their children go to the tent meetings under any consideration, but nevertheless, every Sabbath and Sunday afternoon the children came, and were much interested in the meetings held for them. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 4

The Lord gave me freedom in speaking, and I beheld before me the faces of many of those presented to me in a dream, calling, "Come over and help us." [Acts 16:9.] Before Christ left His disciples, He commissioned them to preach the gospel to all nations, tongues, and peoples. He knew that the gospel was the hope of mankind. He died to relieve the spiritual necessities of the fallen race. He hears their every sigh, knows their every longing for salvation. He declared, "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." [John 12:32.] For the joy that was set before Him, He died on the cross. The Son of the living God became a sin-offering for the world. In that act the heart of Christ was given to the world. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 5

As I spoke to the people, I had great freedom. The people listened as if for their lives, and I know that the Word of God made an impression on human minds. I have now spoken four Sabbath and Sunday afternoons in succession. The work is still going forward. The Tuesday after the meeting started, a terrible cyclone struck the campground, and all but five of the tents were blown down. Seven of the small tents were torn into shreds. Great holes were made in the large meeting tent. At this time, in our great necessity, the citizens of Maitland came forward and showed themselves our friends. The people opened their houses and invited the campers in. They inconvenienced themselves to make room for the wet bedding to be dried. They could not possibly have done more than they did do. This has endeared the people of Maitland to me. The Lord will bless them for their kindly deeds. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899,

We believe that this storm will be for the glory of God. After it was over, the people, deeply solicitous, came on the ground, saying, "Will you go away because of this? We do not want you to go. We have only just begun to receive the good things you have for us." When they saw that all were cheerful, and when they were assured that we would not leave, they were happy and cheerful themselves. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 7

The meetings have been excellent. Our ministers have carried out Paul's charge to Timothy, "I charge thee therefore before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom, Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and doctrine." [2 Timothy 4:1, 2.] The Word has been preached, and many people have heard it. Grey haired men say, "I never knew before I came to this tent that such things were in the Bible. I never read my Bible so much before." 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 8

I have scarcely been able to restrain my tears as I have seen the eagerness of the people to take in the words of truth. I know these are some of the people presented to me as reaching out their hands, and saying, "Come over and help us; we want spiritual food." My Guide said, "They are as sheep without a shepherd." [Mark 6:34.] As I stood before the people in the tent, I thought how earnestly the heavenly angels were looking down upon us as we opened the Word of life to this people. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 9

On this very ground is to be fought out the struggle between good and evil, between a "Thus saith the Lord" and the sophistries of Satan, between truth and error. Here the cross of Christ is to be uplifted, challenging every power arrayed against the truth. Who is not anxious to know the plan of the contest? Let us study the plans of God in the work of redemption. God uses human instrumentalities in the ministry of His Word for the conversion of souls. The cross is to be established between earth and heaven, to draw all men. All will not come, but some will. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 10

The work in Maitland is a very important work. The ministers of other denominations are doing all they can with falsehoods and mischievous reports to hinder the work, but the sound has gone forth throughout all the settlements about Maitland. Our prayer to God is that the truth shall bear away the victory in such a convincing manner that many souls shall be added to the church of such as shall be saved. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 11

The people who live on farms and in the mining districts come to hear, for never before has the standard of present truth been uplifted in this locality, and everything is new to them. We do not always consider this. The same truths have to be repeated over and over again. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 12

I spoke on Sunday afternoon to an interested audience. There were present many of the members of other churches. All seem to prefer the tent to a hall, for they say that they have more air in a tent. I spoke earnestly, and prayed that the Lord would send home the truth to the hearts of the hearers. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 13

One evening twenty men and women walked from a town three miles off to attend the meeting, and these are now asking that meetings be held in the place where they live. Brother and Sister Starr visited them, and talked with them about the truth. I may not be able to speak in this place, but I shall try to do so. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 14

On Monday morning Sara and I were up at one o'clock. The horses were fed, and at three o'clock we were on our way home. At eight o'clock a.m. we entered our gates at Sunnyside. We make our journey thus early in the day that we may escape the heat, which is very strong in the middle of the day. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 15

We have had a consultation with our brethren regarding our workers. We need more workers. We do not know how to divide the few we have among the different localities where work is needed to be done. We have decided to make some changes. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 16

On Sabbath I spoke in the church at Cooranbong. I felt deeply the needs of our work in Maitland, and I asked that earnest prayer be made to our heavenly Father for the Holy Spirit to work in our midst, that the people now in error might be converted to the truth. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 17

On Sunday I had a very busy day. The heat wave had passed off, and beautiful, refreshing showers were gladdening everything in nature. This brought us great relief. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 18

On Sabbath Brother and Sister Gates and Brother Gates' sister took dinner at Willie's. They have just come up from Sydney. They report an excellent passage from America. On Sunday we had a counsel meeting in the Health Retreat. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 19

On Monday morning I thought my family appeared unnatural. Some strange shadow seemed to hang over them. In the morning Sara and I drove to the station for Willie, but he did not come. Elder Gates, who had spoken to the people in Wallsend Sunday evening, drove up with us from the station, and Sara took him to the school, bringing back with her Elder Daniells and Brother Hare. Sara told me that these brethren would like to speak with me. I had a few words with Elder Daniells about the work in Maitland, and then Brother Hare drew his chair up close to mine, and said he had something to tell me. Then he told me that the evening before an accident had occurred near the school. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 20

Sister Peck, Miss Gates, and Sister Boyd's daughter were driving from Sunnyside to the school with a horse which we have always considered safe and manageable, though awkward. If we did not watch her while driving, she would turn to one side. The road to the school is not a permanent one, but is laid out for present use until a better can be made. Under the management of Elder Haskell, the school boys made a log bridge over the creek. As the trap neared this bridge, those in it saw that a tree had fallen across the road, and Sister Peck, who had the lines, thought she would get out and lead the horse round it. But instead of standing still, the horse began to back, and tried to turn round toward home again. 14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 21

No one anticipated any danger. But they were nearer to the edge of the creek than they supposed, and in a few seconds, the carriage and those who were in it, except Miss Peck, were in the river, which at that place, is about fifteen feet deep. Sister Peck was thrown out on the bank, and the carriage in its descent passed over her. But she was not much hurt. She helped Ella Boyd out of the water, but Miss Gates was beyond their reach. Ella Boyd ran to the school and called out the men, and in about three minutes they had the body of Miss Gates out of the water. They carried her to the school, and did everything possible to restore her, but without success. She was dead. It is believed by all that she did not die from drowning, for she made no struggle to save herself. We think that the shock killed her. She was buried on Monday afternoon.14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 22

This, of course, has delayed our preparation for the American mail, and we cannot answer all the letters we have received. Sara, with other of my workers, was up all Sunday night, and so, you see, they have not had a fair chance to work. The mail leaves at nine o'clock this morning, and I am writing at one o'clock.14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 23

We feel so thankful that Miss Peck and Sister Boyd's daughter were uninjured. The angel of God must have worked their deliverance. Sister Gates was in delicate health.14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 24

She has suffered much from lung difficulty. Only the day before her death, she spoke to Sister Hughes in reference to her case. She said that her lung difficulty had returned to her, and that she knew a long illness was before her. To her the future was a terrible dread, for her brother and his wife are both struggling with ill health, and she could not endure the thought of being a burden to them. Her father and mother, brothers and sisters, are all dead except this brother. We feel that it is well that she did not have to suffer from a lingering disease, and we have laid her away for a little while, till she shall be called forth to a glorious immortality.14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 25

Brother and Sister Gates regard this matter as one of the remarkable providences of God. They are thankful that all did not sink beneath the water, for then help could not have been brought to them.14LtMs, Lt 203, 1899, par. 26

Dear Brother:

I would help you if I could, but I do not know how to help you. The dangers of your plan of operations in connection with the conference held in South Lancaster were presented before me. I saw that you could not plan and devise as you had been doing, or carry out your ideas, without injury to yourself and to the cause of God. I was instructed by the Lord that your temptation would be to make your medical missionary work stand <above every other work,> independent of the conference. But this plan was not right. You were tempted by the enemy, and I hasten to write to you. I sent a copy of the letter to Elder Irwin, for it was necessary that some one besides yourself should know your danger, that efforts might be made to save you from the course of action you had premeditated. 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 1

You needed the counsel of others then your colleagues. Fresh, new ideas were needed in your councils, for all your ideas did not bear the divine credentials. You had been swaying the minds of those connected with the medical missionary work, until you that others were becoming like men lost in a fog of uncertainty. 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 2

You had your work, to which God appointed you. You were to be a faithful physician of the souls as well as of the bodies of those under your charge. Had you fulfilled this responsibility with all the keen talent God gave you in trust, you would not have worked alone. One who never makes a mistake was presiding. Only the Holy Spirit's power can keep your spirit sweet and fragrant, soft and subdued, ever trusting in God, ever speaking the right words at the right time. 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 3

The Lord Jesus has said, "He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." [Mark 8:34.] Christ's words made an impression on the minds of His hearers. Many of them, though not clearly comprehending His instruction, were moved by deep conviction to say decidedly, "Never man spake like this man." [John 7:46.] The disciples did not always understand the lessons Christ wished to convey by parables, and when the multitude had gone away, they would ask Him to explain His words. He was ever ready to lead them to a perfect understanding of His word and His will; for from them, in clear, distinct lines, truth was to go forth to the world. 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 4

At times Christ reproached the disciples with the slowness of their comprehension. He placed in their possession truths of which they little suspected the value. He had been with them a long time, giving them lessons in clear lines, but their previous religious education, the erroneous interpretation which they had heard the Jewish teachers place on the Scriptures, kept their minds clouded. Christ promised them that He would send His Spirit, who would recall His words to their minds as forgotten truths. "He shall teach you all things," Christ said, "and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you." [John 14:26.] 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 5

The way in which the Jewish teachers explained the Scriptures, their endless repetition of maxims and fictions, called forth from Christ the words, "This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me." [Matthew 15:8.] They performed in the temple courts their round of service. They offered sacrifices typifying the great Sacrifice, saying by their ceremonies, "Come, my Saviour." Yet Christ, the One whom all these ceremonies represented, was among them, and they would not recognize or receive Him. The Saviour declared, "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men." [Mark 7:7.] 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 6

In Colossians we read, "The body is of Christ. Let no man beguile you of your reward in a voluntary humility and worshipping of angels, intruding into those things which he hath not seen, vainly puffed up by his fleshly mind, and not holding the Head, from which all the body, by joints and bands having nourishment ministered, and knit together, increaseth with the increase of God.” [Colossians 2:17-19.] The gospel ministry is to demonstrate the influence of the cross. The work of God in the plan of salvation is not to be done in any disjointed way; it is not to operate at random. The plan which provided the influence of the cross provided also the method of its diffusion. This method is simple in its principles and comprehensive in its plain, distinct lines. Part is connected with part in perfect order and relation. 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 7

God has brought His people together in church capacity in order that they may reveal to the world the wisdom of Him who formed this organization. God knew what plans to outline for the efficiency and success of His people. Adherence to these plans will enable them to testify of the divine authorship of God’s great plan for the restoration of the world. 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 8

Those who, through an intelligent understanding of the Scriptures, view the cross aright, those who truly believe in Jesus, have a sure foundation for their faith. They have that faith which works by love and purifies the soul from all its hereditary and cultivated imperfections. 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 9

God has united believers in church capacity in order that one may strengthen the other in good and righteous endeavor. The church on earth would indeed be a symbol of the church in heaven if the members were of one mind and one faith. It is those who are not worked by the Holy Spirit who mar God’s plan. Another spirit takes possession of them, and they help to strengthen the forces of darkness. Those who are sanctified by the precious blood of Christ will not become the means of counterworking the great plan God Himself has devised. They will not bring human depravity into things small or great. They will not do anything to perpetuate division in the church. But because there are always tares among the wheat, because in the body of Sabbathkeepers evils are seen, shall we demerit the church? Shall not the managers of every institution, the leaders of every church, take up the work of purification in such a way that the transformation in the church will not be a secret, a say-so, but a bright light in a dark place? 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 10

What may not one believer do in the exercise of pure, heavenly principles, if he refuses to be contaminated, if he will stand as firm as a rock to a "Thus saith the Lord." Angels of God will come to his help, preparing the way before him. 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 11

Paul wrote to the Romans, "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." [Romans 12:1, 2.] This entire chapter is a lesson which I entreat all who claim to be members of the body of Christ to study. 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 12

Paul writes also, "If the firstfruits be holy, the lump is also holy; and if the fruit be holy, so are the branches. And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, were grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree, boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee. Thou wilt say then, The branches were broken off, that I might be grafted in. Well, because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not highminded, but fear: for if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee. Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God, on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off." [Romans 11:16-22.] There is to be no demeriting of the agencies God has placed in the church. 14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 13

The fourth chapter of Ephesians contains lessons given us by God. In this chapter one speaks under the inspiration of God, one who in holy vision has been instructed by God. Here we are shown that one man cannot manage everything. God never designed that one man should shoulder so many responsibilities that his mind and body would become worn out. And it is for me to say, Dr. Kellogg, that you have not kept to your appointed work. You can serve the Lord best by giving the Sanitarium the benefits of the talents He had given you. He desires you to co-operate with Him in making this institution a lessonbook to the world. All are to see that it is under the management of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 14

The third chapter of Ephesians also contains most important lessons for every one of our institutions. Paul writes, “Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ; and to make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ, to the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be known by the church the manifold wisdom of God.” [Verses 8-10.] Sanctified ministry calls for self-denial. The cross must be uplifted, and its place in the gospel work shown. Human influence is to draw its efficacy from the One who is able to save and keep saved all who recognize their dependence on Him. By the union of church members with Christ and with each other the transforming power of the gospel is to be diffused throughout the world.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 15

Never, never should a sanitarium be established to become an interest independent of the church. Genuine medical missionary work is in no case to become divorced from the gospel ministry. The cross is the center of all religious institutions. These institutions are to be under the control of the Spirit of God, and no one man is to be the sole head in these institutions. The divine mind has men for every place.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 16

Those who take part in God’s work are to be led and guided by God. Every human ambition is to be submerged in Jesus Christ, who is the head over all the institutions God has established. He knows how to set in operation and keep in operation His own agencies. He knows that the cross must occupy the central place, because it is the means of man’s atonement, and because of the influence it exerts on every part of divine government. The Lord Jesus, who has been through all the history of our world, understands the methods that should be invested with a power over human minds. He knows the importance of every agency, and understands how the varied agencies should be related to one another.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 17

Through the power of the Holy Spirit, every work of God's appointment is to be elevated and ennobled, and made to witness for the Lord. The human mind needs to be uplifted. Man must place himself under the eternal Mind, whose dictates he is to obey in every particular. Let us seek to understand our privilege of walking and working with God. The gospel, though it contains God's expressed will, is of no value to men, high or low, rich or poor, unless they place themselves in subjection to the divine will. He who bears to his fellow men the remedy for sin must first be worked himself by the Spirit of God. He must not ply the oar unless he is under divine direction. He cannot work effectually, he cannot carry out the will of God in harmony with the divine mind, unless he finds out, not from human sources, but from infinite wisdom, that God approves of his plan, of his investment of means.14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 18

Christ stood forth in our world, and speaking with the authority which belongs solely to Him, said, "No man liveth to himself." [Romans 14:7.] After Adam fell, men broke away from the heaven-ordained center. Who could bring in the principles ordained by God in His rule and government to counterwork the plans of Satan, to bring the world back to its loyalty? God said, I will send My Son. He "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.] This is the remedy for sin. Christ alone could stand in this world of selfishness, where men would destroy a friend or a brother in order to accomplish a scheme put into their minds by Satan.14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 19

Christ came to our world, clothing His divinity with humanity, that humanity might touch humanity and divinity grasp divinity. Amid the din of selfishness, He could say to men, Return to your center—God. He Himself made it possible for man to do this by carrying out in this world the principles of heaven. In humanity He lived the law of God. To men in every nation, every country, every clime, He will give heaven's choicest gifts if they will accept God as their Creator and Christ as their Redeemer.14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 20

Christ alone can do this. His gospel, in the hearts and hands of His followers, is the power which is to accomplish this great work. "O the depths of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God.” [Romans 11:33.] Christ made it possible for the work of redemption to be accomplished by Himself becoming subject to Satan’s misrepresentations. Thus was Satan to show himself to be the cause of disloyalty in God’s universe. Thus was to be forever settled the great controversy between Christ and Satan.14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 21

Satan strengthens the destructive tendencies of man’s nature. He brings in envy, jealousy, selfishness, covetousness, calculation, and strife for the highest place. Evil agencies act their part through the devising of Satan. Thus the enemy’s plans, with their destructive tendencies, have been brought into the church. Christ comes with His own redeeming influence, proposing through the agency of His Spirit to impart His efficiency to men, and employ them as His instrumentalities, as laborers together with Him, united with Him in seeking to draw the world back to its loyalty.14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 22

Men are bound in mutual fellowship, in mutual dependence, to one another. They are to be bound by the golden links of the chain of love fast to the throne of God. This can only be done by Christ imparting to finite man the attributes which man would ever have possessed had he remained loyal and true to God.14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 23

Through Christ God works to bring man back to his first relation to his Creator, and to correct the disorganizing influences brought in by Satan. Christ says, “I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me.” [John 12:32.] He saw that a demon was the central power in the world. Where God’s throne should have been, Satan had placed his throne. The world was laying its homage, as a willing offering, at the feet of the enemy. Christ says, “There shall stand the cross. Satan shall be cast out, and I will be lifted up to draw all men unto Me. I will become the center of the redeemed world. Those now controlled by human ambition, human passions, shall be workers of Me. The Lord God shall be exalted. No compulsion shall be exercised. I will set every heavenly agency at work. My army shall meet in conflict with the satanic force.14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 24

“I will engage every sanctified human agency in the universe. Evil influences have conspired to counterwork all good. They have confederated to make men think it righteous to oppose the law of Jehovah. But My Spirit will combine with every heavenly agency to oppose them. I have a work for all who love Me. I have employment for every soul who will work under My direction. The activity of Satan’s army, the dangers that surround the human soul, call for all the energies of every worker. None of My agencies are to be absent. Man’s depravity is to be met by the love, the patience, the long-suffering of God. My work is to save those under Satan’s rule.”14LtMs, Lt 204, 1899, par. 25

Dear Brother:

The Lord gave me special light in regard to the establishment of a health reform institution, where treatment of the sick could be carried on on altogether different lines from those existing in any institution in our world. It must be founded and conducted on Bible principles, and the institution must be the Lord’s instrumentality, not to cure with drugs, but to use nature’s remedies. Those who have any connection with this institution must be educated in health restoring principles. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 1

The human family is suffering because of the transgressions of the laws of God. Satan is constantly weaving in his principles, and thus seeking to counterwork the work of God. He is constantly representing the chosen people of God as a deluded people. He is an accuser of the brethren, and his power of accusing he is using constantly against those who work righteousness. The Lord would have His people stand out from the customs and practices of the world. Still greater truths are unfolding for this people as they near the end of time, and God designs that those see the light and believe the truth of the third angel’s message shall establish institutions where those who are in darkness in regard to the needs of the human organism may be educated, that they may in their turn lead others into the light of health reform. The blind leaders of the blind must learn the truth of healthful living as taught in the Scriptures. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 2

Every physician in our ranks should be a Christian. God says,

There shall be an institution established under the supervision of men who have been healed through a belief in God's Word, and who have overcome their defects of character. In the world all kinds of provisions have been made for the relief of suffering humanity, but the truth in its simplicity is also to be brought to these suffering ones through the agency of men and women who are loyal to the commandments of God. Therefore sanitariums are to be established all through our world, and managed by a people who are in harmony with God's laws, a people who will co-operate with God in advocating the truth which determines the case of every soul for whom Christ has died. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 3

“God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” [John 3:16.] The institutions established must be conducted on lifesaving principles. The souls who are suffering because of transgression of the laws which govern their bodies are to be taught that transgression of the laws of nature is transgression of the laws of God. “If ye would enter into life,” He says, “keep the commandments. Live out the law as the apple of thine eye.” [Matthew 19:17; Proverbs 7:2.] 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 4

The Lord will work with the people who will honor Him. A power from God will go with the physician who is a physician not merely to heal the maladies of the body, but who seeks to heal the disorders of the soul. Physicians, nurses, and helpers are to work in harmony. The truth is to be lived out by everyone who has any connection with the work. All the light of the past, which shineth unto the present, and stretcheth forth into the future, as revealed in the Word of God, is for every soul who comes to these institutions. The Lord designs that the sanitariums established among Seventh-day Adventists shall be symbols of what can be done for the world, types of the saving power of the truth of the gospel. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 5

The God who gives mental capabilities, and who entrusts talents to the men and women who are His by creation and by redemption, expects that these talents and these capabilities will be increased by use. But when men glory in their capabilities and cause the praise of them to flow to finite beings, they dishonor God, and He will remove that in which they glory. When the physician is tempted to feel that he has methods which he can carry independent of the gospel of Christ, independent of the people for whom God has wrought that He might place them above every other people on the face of the earth, and he attempts to carry his plans, he will not meet with success. God establishes His instrumentalities among a people who recognize the laws of the divine government. The sick are to be healed through the combined efforts of the human and the divine. Every gift, every power, that Christ promised to His disciples, He bestows upon those who will serve Him faithfully.14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 6

The style of a doctor's dress, his equipage, his furniture, weigh not one jot with God. He says, "He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up the cross, and follow me." [Mark 8:34.] The physicians who unite with the work of God are to co-operate with God as His appointed instrumentalities; they are to give all their power and efficiency to magnifying the work of God's commandment-keeping people. But physicians have been led to suppose that their capabilities were their own individual property, and they have used the powers given them to do God's work in branching out into lines of work to which God has not appointed them.14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 7

These men are not to suppose that they can compass the world, for God has not set them to embrace so much with their own labors merely. The man who invests all his powers in many lines of work cannot take in hand the management of a sanitarium and do it justice. Satan is working every moment to find an opportunity to steal in. He tells the physician that his talents are too valuable to be bound up among Seventh-day Adventists, that if he were free he could do a very large work. But the Lord has bound the physician to this people whom He has commanded to be a light in the world, and his work is to give all that the Lord has given him—to give, not as one influence among many, but as the influence through God to make effective the truth for this time.14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 8

A work of reformation is to be carried on in our institutions. Physicians, workers, nurses, are to realize that they are on probation, on trial for their present life, and for that life which measures with the life of God. We are to put to the stretch every faculty, every nerve and muscle, to bring saving truths to the attention of suffering human beings. This work must be carried on in connection with the work of restoring the sick. Then the work will stand forth before the world in the strength which God designs it shall have. The truth will be magnified through the influence of sanctified workers. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 9

Our physicians are to unite with the work of the ministry of the gospel. Souls are to be saved, that the name of God may be magnified, and the physician is not to feel, when brought in contact with the higher classes of society, that he must hide the peculiar characteristics which sanctification through the truth give him. The greatest respect will ever be shown to the physician who reveals that he takes his orders from God. Therefore he is not to take himself into his own hands, but be in every respect a representative of Christ. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 10

Physicians in our institutions should not engage in numerous enterprises, and thus allow the work, which should stand upon right principles and exert a worldwide influence, to flag. God has not set His co-laborers to embrace so many things, to make such large plans, that they fail to accomplish the great good He expects them to do in diffusing light to the world, in drawing men and women to where He is leading by His supreme wisdom. Men of wealth and talent are to be turned from the cheapness of material things to lay hold on eternal realities. Every medical practitioner may through faith in Christ have in his possession a cure of the highest value—a remedy for the sinsick soul. The physician who is converted and sanctified through the truth is registered in heaven as a laborer together with God, a follower of Jesus Christ. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 11

Through the sanctification of the truth, God makes physicians and nurses skillful in a knowledge of how to treat the sick, and this work is opening the fast-closed doors of many hearts. Men and women are led to see and understand the truth which is needed to save the soul as well as the body. This is an element that give character to the work for this time. The medical missionary work is as the right hand and arm to the third angel's message which must be proclaimed to a fallen world, and physicians, managers, and workers in any line, in acting faithfully their part, are doing the work of the message. From them the sound of the truth will go forth to every nation and kindred and tongue and people. In this work the heavenly angels bear a part. They awaken spiritual joy and melody in the hearts of those who have been freed from suffering, and joy and thanksgiving to God arise from many hearts that have received the precious truth. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 12

The enemy has determined to counterwork the designs of God to benefit humanity by revealing to them what constitutes true medical missionary work. So many interests have been brought in that the workers cannot do all things according to the pattern shown them in the mount. I have been shown that the work God has appointed to physicians is enough for them to do, and what the Lord required of them was to link up closely with the gospel missionaries and do their work with faithfulness. He did not ask Dr. Kellogg, or any another physician to embrace so much. He has not made it the special work of Dr. Kellogg to go into the worst dens of iniquity in the large cities. The Lord does not require impossibilities of men. He gives to every man his work. The work which He gave to Dr. Kellogg was to symbolize to the world the ministry of the gospel in medical missionary work. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 13

The Lord does not lay upon His people the largeness of the work of laboring for a class that cannot be benefited themselves or benefit others by their professed belief of the truth. Today the <nominal> churches are full of every foul spirit, the cage of every unclean and hateful bird. The work is becoming confusing because the converted and the unconverted have united in them. If there are men who will take up the work of laboring for the most degraded, men upon whom God has laid the burden to labor for the masses in a variety of ways, let these converted ones go forth and gather from the world the means required to do this work. Let them not depend on the means which God intends shall sustain the work of the gospel. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 14

The sanitarium in Battle Creek needs the brains and heart of which it is being robbed by another line of work. Misunderstandings have arisen because the ministerial branch of the work did not give its whole strength to other work. Everything that Satan can do he will do to multiply the responsibilities of Dr. Kellogg; for he knows that this means weakness instead of strength to the institution. Great consideration must be exercised. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 15

There are other institutions to take the babies and <abandoned women to> care for them. This work is being done by <other parties.> There is a special work to be done for the children more advanced in years. Let families <of our faith in the churches> who can do so adopt these little ones, and they will receive a blessing in so doing. But there is a higher and more important work to engage the attention of educated physicians in teaching those who have grown up with deformed characters. The principles of health reform must be brought before parents. They must be converted, that they may work as missionaries in their own homes. This work Dr. Kellogg has done and can still do, if he will not sacrifice himself by carrying large responsibilities. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 16

The physician will find that it is for his present and eternal good to follow the Lord's way with suffering humanity. The mind that God has made, He can mold without the power of man, but He honors men by asking them to co-operate with Him in this great work. When the spirit of God works on the mind of the afflicted one, and he inquires for truth, let the physician work for the precious soul as Christ would work for it. Do not urge upon them any special doctrine, but point them to Jesus as a sin-pardoning Saviour. Angels of God will make impressions on the human mind. Some will refuse to be illuminated by the light which God would let shine into the chambers of the mind and into the soul temple, but many will respond to the light, and from these minds every form of deception and error will be swept away. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 17

The head physician in any institution holds a difficult position, and he should keep himself free from smaller responsibilities, for these leave him no time for rest. He must not gather to himself work that he should not do. He should have sufficient reliable help, for he has trying work to perform. He must bow in prayer with the suffering ones and lead his patients to the great Physician. If as a humble suppliant he seeks his God for wisdom to deal with each case, his strength and influence will be greatly increased. With a sense of

God's pure truth in his heart and mind, he is better qualified to perform critical operations, which mean life or death to the afflicted ones. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 18

A personal religion is essential for every physician if he would be successful in watching the diseased. He needs a power greater than his own intuition and skill. God would have physicians link up with Him, and know that every soul is precious in His sight. He who depends upon God, realizing that He alone who made man knows how to direct, will not fail as a healer of bodily infirmities. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 19

A physician who bears these heavy responsibilities needs the prayers of the gospel minister, and he should be linked soul, mind, and body, with the truth of God. Then he can speak a word in season to the afflicted, he can watch for souls as one who must give an account. Jesus Christ is the Way, the Truth, and the Life to him. The Scriptures come clearly to his mind, and he speaks as one who understands the value of the soul with whom he is dealing. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 20

Never should familiarity with suffering make the physician careless or unsympathetic. When the crisis is over, and success is apparent, be he believer or unbeliever, spend a few moments in prayer with the patient. Give expression to your thankfulness for the life that has been spared. The physician who follows such a course as this carries his patient to the One upon whom he is dependent for life. Words of gratitude may flow from the patient to the physician, for through God he has bound this life up with his own. But let the praise and thanksgiving be given to God as to One who is present, though invisible. The afflicted one is at the mercy of the Physician. He looks to that physician as his only hope, and the physician should ever point the trembling soul to One greater than himself, even the Son of God, who gave His life to save him from death, who pities the sufferer, and who by His divine power will give skill and wisdom to all who will ask Him. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 21

In sickness, when the patient knows not how his case will be decided, is the time for the physician to impress the human mind. He should not do this with the desire to distinguish himself, but that he may point the soul to Christ as a personal Saviour. The physician who loves and fears God will not need to make any outward display in order to distinguish himself, for the Sun of Righteousness is shining in his heart and is revealed in his life, and this distinguishes him. If the life is spared, there is a soul for that physician to watch for. The patient feels as though his physician were the very life of his life. And to what purpose should all this weight of confidence be employed? Always to win a soul to Christ and magnify the power of God. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 22

Let not the physicians who are connected with the work of God follow the example of worldlings. Strict justice and judgment must appear <in every line of the work> on every record book in our institutions. Men and angels must see that we are representatives of the principles of the gospel of Christ. Let no advantage be taken of any man, for we are laborers together with God. Christ's character must be seen in every line of work, every hospital, every sanitarium. The physician who has a love for souls will present an example to the world that he will not be ashamed to meet at the judgment bar of God. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 23

Often an exorbitant price is charged for small services, because physicians are supposed to charge according to the charges of the worldly physicians. My Teacher said, "The institution that shall depend upon God and receive His co-operation must ever work according to the principles of the law of God. To charge a large sum for a few moments' work is not just and right. Physicians who are under the discipline of the greatest Physician the world ever knew must let the principles of the gospel regulate every fee. Let mercy and the love of God be written on every dollar received." 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 24

When our sanitariums are conducted as they should be, a large medical missionary work will be done. Every worker will do his work with such exactitude that he will shine as a light in the world. 14LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 25

The Lord will do wondrous things for the truth's sake, and that His name may be glorified. But He requires that the people who engage in His service shall keep their minds ever directed to Him. Every day they should have time for prayer, for every officer and soldier under the command of the God of Israel needs time in which to consult with God, and seek His blessing. If the worker allows himself to be drawn away from this, he will lose his spiritual power. Individually we are to walk and talk with God; then the sacred influence of the gospel of Christ will appear in all its preciousness, and the truth will go forth as a lamp that burneth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 205, 1899, par. 26

My Dear Brother:

You speak as though you had no friends. But God is your Friend and Sister White is your friend. You have thought that I had lost confidence in you; but, my dear brother, as I have before written to you, I know that the Lord had placed you in a very responsible position, standing as you do as the greatest physician in our world, a man to whom the Lord has given understanding and knowledge, that you may do justice and judgment, and reveal the true missionary spirit in the institution which is to represent truth in contrast with error. 14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 1

My brother, the Lord has not left you to go on a warfare at your own charges. He has given you wisdom, and favor with God and man. He has been your helper. He has chosen you as His agency to exalt the truth in the Battle Creek Sanitarium as it is not represented in other medical institutions. The Battle Creek Sanitarium was to be known as an institution where the Lord was daily acknowledged as the Monarch of the universe. "He doeth according to his will in the armies of heaven, and also among the inhabitants of earth, and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou?" [Daniel 4:35.]14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 2

The Lord designs that the proclamation of the third angel's message shall be the highest, greatest work carried on in our world at this time. He honored you by placing you in a very responsible position. You were not to separate your influence from the ministry of the gospel. In every line of your work you were to understand and practice the truth. You were to make God first, and ever obey His Word. In this would be your strength.14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 3

You were not faultless. Often you lost control of yourself. Then your words were not what they should have been. At times you were arbitrary and exacting. But you were striving for the mastery over self, and angels of God co-operated with you, because through you God was to work to exalt His truth, and cause it to receive honored recognition in the world. God gave you wisdom, not that your name should be magnified, but that those coming to the sanitarium in Battle Creek might carry away with them favorable impressions of Seventh-day Adventists. The honor given you did not come to you because you were righteous above all men, but because God desired to use you as His instrument.14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 4

In His providence the Lord has drawn many to the sanitarium, that they may become acquainted with the truth and be converted, and then carry away with them the evidence of the miraculous power of God on body and soul. This has stirred the ire of Satan. It does not please him that it should be shown that God is working to magnify the truth.14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 5

It was God's purpose that the missionaries, teachers, and physicians in the sanitarium should become acquainted with the third angel's message, which embraces so much. Angels of God were to be your strength in the work that was to be done in order that the Battle Creek Sanitarium might be known as an institution under the special supervision of God. The missionary feeling and the sympathy that prevailed in this institution was a result of the work of invisible heavenly agencies there. God said, "I thought it good to show signs and wonders. In My might I wrought to glorify My name." Many have gone away from the sanitarium with new hearts. The change has been decided. These, returning to their homes, have been as lights in the world. Their voices have been heard saying, "Come, all ye that fear God, and I will make known to you what He hath done for my soul. I have seen His greatness. I have tasted His goodness." [See Psalms 66:16.]14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 6

The medical fraternity has made many reforms, and they should rise still higher. Those who hold the lives of human beings in their hands should be educated, elevated, and sanctified. The work done in the Battle Creek Sanitarium is a great work, because there the Lord is the Master-worker. His power will accomplish the very thing whereunto it is sent. 14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 7

The Lord has appointed the physicians in the sanitarium to stand as faithful sentinels. Through them God desires to do the work that must be done. Through them impressions are to be made regarding the work of relieving suffering humanity. In the sanitarium the attributes of God are to be unfolded, and the glory and excellence of the truth are to be made more vivid. While doctrinal subjects are not to be presented to the sick, if these truths are lived out, the Spirit of God will bring conviction to hearts, and the faithful guardian of souls will understand when the time has come to present the seventh day as the seal of God, to show what has been done by priests and rulers to place a false rest day where the seventh day should be. 14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 8

Dr. Kellogg, you have not in all things been following the Lord's plan. The medical missionary work should be as the right arm of the body of truth, but this work has been made to absorb so much that to all intents and purposes it has become the body. God did not design that this work should eclipse the work of the third angel's message. This message is the gospel message for these last days, and in no case is it to be overshadowed by other interests and made to appear an unessential consideration. When in the sanitarium anything is placed before the third angel's message, the gospel is not there the great, leading power. 14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 9

Because of sin the atmosphere of the world has become as the atmosphere of a pesthouse. Sin is the transgression of the law. "No man liveth to himself." [Romans 14:7.] This is a law of God, in heaven and on earth. The gospel is the means ordained by God to restore His moral image in man, and to stem the tide of hostility against His law. It is His remedy for universal disorganization; it is the power which draws men together in unity. In the gospel the Lord uses different instrumentalities, and nothing is to be allowed to separate these instrumentalities. Selfishness introduced in any degree into ministerial or medical work is an infraction of the law of God.14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 10

God's benevolent designs embrace every branch of His work. The law of reciprocal dependence and influence is to be recognized and obeyed. No man liveth unto himself. The enemy has used the chain of dependence to draw men together. They have united to destroy God's image in man, to counterwork the gospel by perverting its principles. They are represented in God's Word as being bound up in bundles to be burned. Satan is uniting his forces for perdition.14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 11

The unity of God's chosen people has been terribly shaken. God presents a remedy. This remedy is not an influence among many influences, and on the same level with them, but an influence above all influences upon the face of the earth, corrective in its power, uplifting and ennobling. Those who work in the gospel should be elevated and sanctified, for they are dealing with God's great principles. Yoked up with Christ, they are laborers together with God. Thus the Lord would bind His followers together, that they may be a power for good, each acting his part, yet all cherishing the sacred principle of mutual dependence on the great Head.14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 12

Of himself, what can man accomplish in the great work set forth by the infinite God? Christ says, "Without me ye can do nothing." [John 15:5.] He came to our world to show men how to do the work given them by God, and He says to us, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." [Matthew 11:28-30.] Why is Christ's yoke easy and His burden light? Because He bore the weight of it upon the cross of Calvary.14LtMs, Lt 206, 1899, par. 13

Haskell, S. N.; Irwin, G. A.

NP

December 15, 1899

This letter is published in entirety in 14MR 55-65.

Dear Brethren Haskell and Irwin:

I have just read your letters, and I will now try to write to you. The things of which you write are simply foolish imaginings which are presented to the people. The teachers who cherish them need to learn anew the principles of our faith. They need to be thoroughly converted. To make the statements they make, and hold the notions they hold, is like descending from the highest elevation to which the truth of the Word takes men, to the lowest level. God is not working with such men. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 1

Having lost the grand truths of the Word of God, which center in the third angel's message, they have supplied their place with fables. When they sink the shaft deeper into the quarries of truth, their lips will not utter the statements they have uttered in the past, statements which have no foundation in the Word of God. The Lord has declared what is truth. He has made plain the difference between truth and error. Truth is sensible, genuine; it bears the signature of heaven. Those who sow tares among the wheat are not true workers, and they should leave the work for sensible men. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 2

My brethren, there is need of encouraging elevated principles. Those who cherish and advocate fanciful ideas need to be taught what is truth before they attempt to teach others. Man-made theories and suppositions are not to be allowed to enter the work. But do not give the impression that there are many who are going to foolish extremes. There are a few ill-balanced minds that are ready to catch at anything of a sensational character. But I tell you that there are many in America who are as true as steel to principle, and these will be helped and blessed; for they are weeping between the porch and the altar, saying, "Spare thy people, O Lord, and give not thine heritage to reproach." [Joel 2:17.] We must let the great principles of the third angel's message stand out clear and distinct. The great pillars of our faith will hold all the weight that can be placed upon them. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 3

Those who in this age of the world carry forward God's work are to sink the shaft deep into the mines of truth, that they may find the precious, imperishable jewels. All must be careful what they present to the people as truth. Do not present your own imaginations as Bible truth. The enemy tries to warp and twist human minds. To the one who will listen to him, he presents ideas which are odd and peculiar, which will create a sensation. These he leads him to present to others, with a test which he has imagined. Thus Satan sets minds thinking in wrong channels, diverting them from the genuine tests which God has made in His Word. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 4

Those who present the idea that the blind, the deaf, the lame, the deformed, will not receive the seal of God, are not speaking words given them by the Holy Spirit. There is much suffering in our world. To some, suffering and disease have been transmitted as an inheritance. Others suffer because of accidents. Cause and effect are always in operation in our world, and always will be. The Lord has afflicted ones, dearly beloved in His sight, who bear the suffering of bodily infirmities. To them special care and grace is promised. Their trials will not be greater than they can endure. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 5

Paul had a bodily affliction; his eyesight was bad. He thought that by earnest prayer the difficulty might be removed. But the Lord had His own purpose, and He said to Paul, "Speak to Me no more of this matter. My grace is sufficient. It will enable you to bear the infirmity." [2 Corinthians 12:9.] The Lord Jesus has bound up His interests with the interests of the whole world. His influence is an ever-widening, shoreless influence. Although unseen, it is intensely active. Wielded by the Father Himself, it is the element which is used in restoring the moral image of God in man. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 6

The parable of the wealthy nobleman and Lazarus, who lay outside his gate, is a lesson to all. To the nobleman had been entrusted the talent of means. He enjoyed great blessings. But he was unfaithful to the One who had given him goods upon which to trade. The beggar lay outside his gate and entreated pity and help, but the nobleman neglected to do the very thing he might have done. The history of these two men shows how God will deal with His believing, suffering ones, and how with those who are spending for self-gratification that which they should impart to the poor. God chose not the rich nobleman. It is Lazarus whom He is represented as blessing and commanding. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 7

There are living upon our earth, men who have passed the age of four score and ten. The natural results of old age are seen in their feebleness. But they believe God, and God loves them. The seal of God is upon them, and they will be among the number of whom the Lord has said, "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." [Revelation 14:13.] With Paul they can say, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." [2 Timothy 4:7, 8.] There are many whose gray hairs God honors because they have fought a good fight and kept the faith. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 8

There is no need of entering into controversy with the poor souls who think they are doing God's service when they are believing the devil's fables. When our young ministers hurt themselves and bring reproach upon God's cause by placing solemn, sacred truth on a level with fables, let them be advised to become converted by closely studying the Word with men of experience, who for years have understood the truth. Let them turn from romance, from the fanciful interpretations which have no foundation in God's Word. "What is the chaff to the wheat?" [Jeremiah 23:28.] We need, in this age of error, of day-dreaming and reverie, to learn the first principles of the doctrine of Christ. Let us strive to be able to say with the apostle, "We have not followed cunningly devised fables when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." [2 Peter 1:16.] The Lord calls upon us to follow high and noble principles. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 9

I have been shown that there are those to whom the words apply, "When for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat. For every one that useth milk is unskillful in the word of righteousness; for he is a babe. But strong meat belongeth to them that are of full age, even those who by reason of use have their senses exercised to discern both good and evil." [Hebrews 5:12-14.]14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 10

If ever any one needed such instruction as this, it is those who, while claiming to labor in the ministry, are preaching the productions of perverted imagination. Today, as in Christ's day, odd, strange ideas are springing up. The truth Christ taught was grand and high and exalted. But though the Jewish people had been given great light, they did not bring into the practical life the great principles of love to God and man.14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 11

For a long time before the first advent of Christ, the rabbis had been working to make the truth of none effect. They seemed to have lost their common sense, and they labored to construct something original to preserve their influence. They made a show of victory by an endless repetition of fables and childish traditions. They manufactured cheap, inconsistent, frivolous sayings, and trivial forms, construing the truth into falsehood. Their minds became darkened. Unpracticed, the sacred truths lost their luster. Fabrications were made up, unnecessary duties enjoined, false tests made and presented. Sacred truth was dishonored by being brought into companionship with error.14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 12

Christ came to bring light and immortality to light. But the narrow, limited comprehension of the disciples led them to look up to the fables of the Jewish teachers as wisdom, and this imposed a restraint upon Christ's teaching. He could not teach them as He would like to have done, because they mingled subjects of eternal interest with the traditions of men. Their imaginations were not sanctified. This determined the measure of the divine communication. Christ left unrevealed many things, saying, "Ye cannot bear them now." [John 16:12.]14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 13

The Lord Jesus did not bring forth any of the cheap suppositions that some who claim to be teachers are manufacturing. There can be no value in the fables that are composed by guess work to make an impression on minds. Young men must be educated to keep within the bounds of "It is written." Paul writes, "I charge thee therefore before God and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; Preach the word, be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine. For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine, but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers having itching ears. And they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned to fables." That time has come. I present the word of warning: "Watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry." [2 Timothy 4:1-5.]14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 14

No one is to put truth to the torture by cheap imaginings, by putting a forced, mystical construction upon the Word. Thus they are in danger of turning the truth of God into a lie. There are those who need in their hearts the touch of the divine Spirit. Then the message for this time will be their burden. They will not search for human tests, for something new and strange. The Sabbath of the fourth commandment is the test for this time, and therefore all connected with this great memorial is to be kept before the people.14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 15

I am pained beyond what any language can express. Irreverence is coming in apace. I have words to speak to the young men who have been teaching the truth: Preach the Word. You may have inventive minds. You may be expert, as were the Jewish teachers, in getting up new theories; but Christ said of them, "In vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men." [Matthew 15:9.] They presented traditions, suppositions, and fables of all kinds to the people. The forms and ceremonies they enjoined made it simply impossible for the people to know whether they were keeping the Word of God or following the imaginations of men.14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 16

Satan is well pleased when he can thus confuse the mind. Let not ministers preach their own suppositions. Let them search the Scriptures earnestly, with a solemn realization that if they teach for doctrine the things that are not contained in God's Word, they will be as those represented in the last chapter of Revelation. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 17

Truth, present truth, is all that the Word of God represents it to be. The Lord would have His people keep themselves from all superfluities, from all that would destroy their influence and bring a reproach upon the truth. Will our brethren teach that which is not truth, which never will be truth? The gates of heavenly counsel are thrown open to all. Those who would be teachers must first be learners. Let those who are tempted to indulge in fanciful, imaginary doctrines sink the shaft deep into the quarries of heavenly truth, and secure the treasure which means life eternal to the receiver. In the Word there are the most precious ideas. These will be secured by those who study with earnestness; for heavenly angels will direct the search; but the angels never lead the mind to dwell upon cheap nonsense, as though it were the Word of God. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 18

Let men humble their hearts before the Lord. Let teachers heed the Word of the greatest Teacher the world has ever known: "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." [Matthew 11:29, 30.] Manufacture not yokes for your own necks or for the necks of God's people. Let no one struggle against natural claims, but against sin, which must be met and repulsed at every step. The way is plainly marked out. He that "will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." [Luke 9:23.]14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 19

"The light of the body is the eye; if therefore thine eye be single"—if special care is taken to keep every organ of the body pure and healthy, if temperance in all things is observed, if the physical and mental powers are exercised in accordance with an enlightened conscience—"thy whole body shall be full of light." [Matthew 6:22.] Paul writes, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." [Romans

12:1.]14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 20

It is not our service to pray that colored hair shall become black, or that gray hair, which God pronounces honorable, shall become black. Those who set their minds laboring in this direction are not following on to know the Lord. They are starting in a course which will lead to the greatest, most God-dishonoring fanaticism. Our work is to form new habits of thought. Through faith in Christ we can do this. Natural propensities are to be controlled. Selfish inclinations are to be denied. Again and again some things hostile to grace and reform will start into life. Again and again we shall be called into the conflict to fight against hereditary tendencies to wrong.14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 21

What shall ministers teach the people? Certainly not fables. Certainly not their own foolish imaginings, which would put a yoke grievous to be borne upon the necks of poor souls. Such a yoke Christ has not formed. It galls; it brings unrest, disquietude, and discouragement. Bearing Christ's yoke brings rest, peace, obedience; for His yoke is easy and His burden is light. "Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace which is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ; as obedient children, not fashioning yourselves according to the former lusts in your ignorance: but as he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation, as it is written, Be ye holy; for I am holy." [1 Peter 1:13-16.]14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 22

There is among young men a burning desire to get hold of something new, even though it be of the cheapest quality. The Lord would not have the mind dwell on unprofitable nothings, seeking for what it will never find. He desires us to seek for a pure, clean soul, a soul washed and made white in the blood of the Lamb. It is the white robe of Christ's righteousness that gives the sinner admittance into the presence of the heavenly angels. Not the color of his hair, but his perfect obedience to all God's commandments, opens to him the gates of the holy city.14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 23

No one in this world is exempt from calamity, from misfortune and affliction. But if our hearts are washed in the blood of the Lamb, however poor and afflicted we may be, we are privileged to see in anticipation the joy that will be ours in heaven. Then let God's promises be received and enjoyed by faith. Let none of God's people believe the fables advanced by some regarding the color of the hair. The idea that persons who are deformed must be healed in order to be saved is a fable originated by someone who needs inward cleansing before he can receive the seal of God. In the great day of God, all who are faithful and true will receive the healing touch of the divine Restorer. The Lifegiver will remove every deformity, and will give them eternal life. 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 24

In God's Word, the question is not, What is the color of the hair or the form of the body? but, Has the heart been purified, made white, and tried? 14LtMs, Lt 207, 1899, par. 25

Members of the Book Committee

NP

December 18, 1899

Portions of this letter are published in CW 160-161.

Dear Brethren:

I have some things to say in reference to the making of books. There are dangers which our book committee needs to guard against. Men who have any part to act in the service of God should be careful, lest they use the common fire in the place of the sacred. They should watch and pray, and be careful that their own hearts are under the control of the Spirit of God. If, like Daniel, they are men of earnest prayer, they will be careful of their words and deportment. They will not exalt self, but they will love and fear God, and respect their brethren. They will pray for grace to keep themselves faithful and true and untainted with selfishness in their connection with the work of God. No neglect will be seen, no complaints will be heard, no unjust course will be taken toward any man whom God has used in His work. 14LtMs, Lt 208, 1899, par. 1

When Elder Littlejohn's book was published at the office at Battle Creek, he was not fairly treated. An arbitrary spirit, which was not of God, was exercised against this brother. Brother Littlejohn was a man of intelligent perceptions, a man who as far as his intellect was concerned was far in advance of those who composed the book committee. The men who passed judgment on the book revealed in their decisions the spirit that controlled them. Justice and equity, and the sound, pure principles of the gospel were not brought in, and this led to the corruption of principle. The members of the book committee did not take into consideration the results of their methods. They did not consider that God was working upon other minds than those which constituted the book committee. 14LtMs, Lt 208, 1899, par. 2

of publication should be few and well chosen. Men who have never written a book themselves, or had any experience in this line, cannot be expected to have clear perceptions in these matters, and they should never be placed on a committee to pass their judgment or estimate the value of a book. They may speak of these matters as though they were competent to judge, but they are ignorant of the subject brought before them. 14LtMs, Lt 208, 1899, par. 3

The Lord reproves these men who have been placed in positions of trust, for they are not under the control of God's Spirit. The outworking of their decisions has led to the promulgation of error. Many books have been issued, not for the glory of God, but simply because the authors desired to make a book. Men have considered it their right to put books into circulation which were not at all needed, that they might make a little money for themselves. Other persons feel that their productions are needed, and are great offended when they are not recognized as authors. There is not safety for these supposedly wise men and women, unless they humble themselves before God and seek Him with heart and mind and soul. 14LtMs, Lt 208, 1899, par. 4

The Lord would have men of solid judgment in connection with His work, else the world will be flooded with a class of literature that it might better be without. And His people are to learn to deal justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with their God. 14LtMs, Lt 208, 1899, par. 5

Daniells, A. G.; Farnsworth, Brother

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

December 19, 1899

Portions of this letter are published in VSS 329-330; Ev 230; 3MR 344; 8MR 191-192.

Dear Brethren Daniells and Farnsworth:

I wrote a few lines to send to you by the Wellington boat, but Maggie said that you would not receive it any sooner than if I waited till now. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 1

This morning we sent off the American mail, and I make a resolution that my letter-writing will not continue. I am now fully determined to give myself to the work of completing my books, which are ever in the process of coming out, but never appear. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 2

I write this letter to say a few things to my ministering brethren. When you have a congregation before you for only two weeks, do not defer the presentation of the Sabbath question, the real genuine matter, until everything else is presented, supposing that you are paving the way for it. Thus a mistake was made at Ballarat and at Maitland. The Sabbath was touched upon, but was not made the great question, the test for this time. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 3

Lift up the standard—the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus. Make this everything, and then by your strong arguments wall it in, and make it of still greater force. We are, as a people, in danger of giving the third angel’s message in such an indefinite manner that it does not impress the people. It is our privilege to expect large things, even the demonstration of the Spirit of God. This is a power which will convict and convert the soul. Our message is a life and death message, and we must let this message appear as it is—the great power of God. Then the Lord will make it effectual. We are to present it in all its telling

The first and second angels' messages are bound up with the third angel's message. The power of the proclamation of the first and second angels' messages are to be concentrated in the third. We read, "And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand, the same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb." [Revelation 14:9, 10.] 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 5

"After these things I saw another angel come down from heaven, having great power, and the earth was lightened with his glory. And he cried mightily with a strong voice, saying, Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and the cage of every unclean and hateful bird. For all nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich through the abundance of her delicacies. And I heard another voice in heaven saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. For her sins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities." [Revelation 18:1-5.] 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 6

Dwell more on the Revelation. Read, explain, and enforce its teachings. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 7

Our warfare is aggressive. But at the very time when the third angel's message should be given with power, so many other interests are brought in that the very messages which should be proclaimed become tame and voiceless. Tremendous issues are before us, yea, and right upon us. Let our prayers ascend to God that the four angels shall be commissioned to hold the four winds, that they may not blow to injure or destroy. The call is to be made. The truth for this time is to do its work of separating from the churches a people who will take their position upon the platform of eternal truth. A great work is to be done. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par.

Our sanitariums are to be planted in suitable places, and then the physicians, imbued with the Spirit of God, are to show their faith by their works. There is to be nothing in any of our institutions that will lessen the force of the truth for this time. Present truth is to be our burden. Those who have charge of our sanitarium in this country are not to gather in their arms burdens which the Lord has not given them, so that the very work to which they are appointed cannot be done solidly and perfectly. The sanitarium is God's instrumentality, and it is to stand out firmly in defense of the truth, till its weight of influence enables it to do its important work. It is to be as the living demonstration of the gospel. The power is to be placed in the sanitarium itself. Make it that which it should be in God's great plan—elevated, pure, holy, carrying forward the work of God in reformatory lines. If the physician will give his talents to the work so essential to be done in the institution, if he will labor for the saving of the soul as well as of the body, the power of God will be manifested. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 9

There is to be an impression made upon all who shall come to the sanitarium that Christianity, under a large communication of the Holy Spirit, is doing its work in the highways as well as in the hedges. This is a work of the highest importance, because it reaches a class of people who have an opportunity to see the influence of the truth upon human minds. All connected with the sanitarium, physicians, managers, helpers, nurses, are to be living channels of light. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 10

How strong is the need for intense diligence and entire consecration on the part of physicians and managers! Nothing will work so powerfully for the advancement of God's instrumentality as a standing, as faithful servants of God on the part of those connected with it. Never let the idea be entertained that it is essential to put on an appearance of being wealthy. God cannot work by His Holy Spirit with those who ape other physicians in dress or in display. God recognizes every physician who practices the self-denial and self-sacrifice which He has enjoined upon them. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 11

I am instructed to say that efforts made to put on an appearance, with the thought that this will give influence, will have just the opposite effect. There must be no conformity to the world. All who dishonor God by lifting up themselves set an example to others that is misleading. Physicians are to understand that their power lies in their meekness and lowliness of heart. God will work with those who make Him their dependence. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 12

The physicians who connect with the sanitarium should feel that as physicians they can do nothing without the help of the great Master-worker. They are to practice the truth for this time, binding up their work with the gospel ministry. God has given His physicians the work of drawing the people to Christ through the various influences by which they are brought in contact with the great and testing truth for this time. Let no physician suppose that his influence would increase if he should separate himself from this work. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 13

It is the Lord's plan that men and women of wealth and influence shall feel a safety in a sanitarium where prayer is offered up to God. They are to see that there is a people in the world having talent and knowledge who are not vain and self-exalted, who follow the pattern Christ has given. Seventh-day Adventists are to be represented in our world by the advanced principles of health reform which God has given to us. In all places the work is to be in harmony with the meekness and lowliness of Christ. Truth is refining, cleansing, sanctifying in its work, and those who believe the truth will not be like a steam engine working at low pressure. The breath of God, the Holy Spirit, will be upon the workers. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 14

Divine power is needed to give force and intensity to the living agencies who are to be representatives of the great Worker. Christ calls for unequaled growth in spiritual power, that Satan shall not work his will to mold men and women after his similitude. He is already sowing his tares among the wheat. By selfishness, pride, and self-indulgence people will testify that he has sown his seed in their hearts. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 15

Diversions from the straightforward path marked out by Christ have and will turn aside the current that is set flowing earthward for the purpose of accomplishing a work that no other people outside of Seventh-day Adventists can do. But these reactions need not be. God will not give mental strength and physical power to those who gather burdens that He has not appointed. They try to do a work which they have not sufficient force to carry. They spoil God's great plan by gathering so many responsibilities that they cannot do their appointed work. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 16

God wants those who preach the gospel to show to the world a pattern of a Christlike life. He calls for men who can act as physicians of the soul as well as of the body. But men set God aside as not sufficient for them. They must resort to worldly men for recognition. They think that by the influence gained from the world they will do some great thing. But they make a mistake. By leaning on the arm of the world instead of on the arm of the Lord, they turn aside the work God desires to accomplish through His chosen people. Those who try to destroy the peculiarities of God's people by their human ideas will lose their spiritual life, and will be no more upheld by God. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 17

We are either standing under the bloodstained banner of Prince Emmanuel or under the black banner of Satan. Whom will we choose? Truth as it is in Jesus will distinguish us from worldly policies. Have we not a strength from above? Need we plan how we can bind ourselves up with worldly confederacies? The Lord does not require of finite men the work which God must do. He asks that each shall do his appointed work. "We are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] Man is not to work the Holy Spirit; the Holy Spirit is to work man. The Word made heaven and earth and all things that are therein; and the Word will do its cleansing work with human beings, sanctifying them through Christ. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 18

We cannot put confidence in any man, however learned, however elevated he may be, unless he holds the beginning of his confidence firm unto the end. What must have been the power of the enemy upon Solomon, a man whom God has thrice called the beloved of God, and to whom He committed the great work of building the temple. In that very work Solomon made an alliance with idolatrous nations. He bound himself up with women of heathen education, and forsook the temple of God to erect groves to their idols.14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 19

Men suppose they know how to fix up matters, and they arrange things after their own minds, thinking to bring about wonderful results. But if they would depend on God, and not on themselves, if they would feel that the time spent in prayer is not lost, but is uniting the human agency with the divine, they would receive heavenly wisdom. Those who are so engrossed in their work that they cannot find time to press themselves to the throne of grace and obtain divine counsel, will sway the work in wrong channels. Men need to pray more, to lean upon God, else self, which cannot be depended upon, will become all sufficient. Let this fact be ever before the mind. The Lord He is God, and beside Him there is none else. He reads every motive of the mind, and knows every impulse of the human heart.14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 20

When the Lord signified that there should be medical missionary institutions in our ranks, He designed that these institutions should stand as witnesses to the truth, to give character to the work which must be carried forward in these last days in restoring man through a reformation in the habits, appetites, and passions. All the reformatory work is to be connected with the message of salvation which is to prepare a people to stand in this day of trial and temptation.14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 21

Under the supposed wisdom of men, nature is placed where she becomes a destructive agency. The good things which were given to man only to bless him are converted into a curse. By the use of wine and liquor men become slaves to appetite. God does not interpose and work a miracle to convert evil into good, for He has laid all nature under His eternal laws. Let there be no peace to the wicked, He says. Let everything be at war with him. And nature responds, "There shall be none." [Ezekiel 7:25.] If man takes himself in his own hands, to do with himself as he pleases, if he works against God and nature, his indulgences will become to him the instruments of death.14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 22

Under the hand of God, nature ministers against the transgressors of God's law. She holds her destructive elements in her bosom till the time when they shall break forth to destroy man and purify the earth. When Pharaoh defied God through Moses and Aaron, saying, "Who is the Lord that I should obey his voice? I know not the Lord, neither will I let Israel go" [Exodus 5:2], nature expressed her sympathy with her injured Maker, and co-operated with God to avenge the insult to Jehovah. All Egypt was laid desolate because of the stubborn resistance of Pharaoh. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 23

Herod exalted himself as a god, and denied not the adulation given him when the admiring throng declared, "It is the voice of a god and not of a man." [Acts 12:22.] But an avenging angel, jealous of Jehovah's honor, smote the blasphemous king, and he was eaten of worms while life was in him. "Thou shalt have no other gods before me," the Lord declares. [Exodus 20:3.] 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 24

The Lord has a special message for us to bear to the world, even the third angel's message. "Lift up thy voice like a trumpet," He says, "and show my people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sins." [Isaiah 58:1.] The trumpet is to give a certain sound. While the churches profess to believe in Christ, they are violating the law of God, which Christ proclaimed from Sinai. Our condition through sin has become preternatural, and the wisdom which must restore to man that which he has lost must be supernatural, else it is a physician of no account. Said Christ, "O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee; but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me." [John 17:25.] "I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world." [Verse 6.] This is our work in the world. We are to reveal Christ in spirit and action. The knowledge of God is the peculiar gift of Jesus Christ, and this gift He gives to His followers, to be communicated by them to the world. 14LtMs, Lt 209, 1899, par. 25

Brethren in the Work of God

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

December 20, 1899

Portions of this letter are published in 5BC 1139.

Dear Brethren in the Work of God:

I have been very much burdened in regard to the future of the work. Our camp meetings should be made all that God designed they should be. The spiritual necessities of those who attend should not be neglected. From the very commencement of the meeting, social meetings for prayer, confession, and spiritual awakening should be held. 14LtMs, Lt 210, 1899, par. 1

Let all seek to understand the meaning of the words, “Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart and ye shall find rest unto your souls.” [Matthew 11:28, 29.] There is the giving and there is the finding of the rest that Jesus longs to have every one of His children find. 14LtMs, Lt 210, 1899, par. 2

“Jesus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hand, and that he was come from God, and went to God; he riseth from supper, and laid aside his garments; and took a towel, and girded himself. After that he poureth water into a basin, and began to wash the disciples feet, and to wipe them with the tower wherewith he was girded.” [John 13:3-5.] This humiliation was Christ’s exaltation. There are lessons of humility for us to learn. Those who are in the most exalted positions are the ones who should practice humility and walk in humbleness of mind. They should speak in simple language, that even the children may understand them. 14LtMs, Lt 210, 1899, par. 3

Let none who do not have humility talk humility. Humility talked may become inrooted vanity. We have no need any of us to claim humility, but we are to be in reality humble. 14LtMs, Lt 210, 1899, par. 4

Humility is an active principle growing out of a thorough consciousness of God's great love, and will always show itself by the way in which it works. By taking part in the ordinance of feet washing, we show that we are willing to perform this act of humility. We are doing the very thing Christ did, but this is not to be talked of as an act of humiliation. It is an act which symbolizes the condition of the mind and heart. 14LtMs, Lt 210, 1899, par. 5

"All ye are brethren." [Matthew 23:8.] As brethren we are identified with Christ and with one another. As brethren we are identical with Christ, and through His grace identical with one another. And as we wash the feet of Christ's followers, it is as though we were indeed touching the Son of God. We do this act because Christ told us to do it, and Christ Himself is among us. His Holy Spirit does the work of uniting our hearts. To become one with Christ requires self-denial and self-sacrifice at every step. 14LtMs, Lt 210, 1899, par. 6

The performance of the ordinance of humility calls for self-examination. The noble principles of the soul are strengthened on every such occasion. Christ lives in us, and this draws heart to heart. We are led to love as brethren, to be kind, tender, courteous in daily service, having hearts that can feel another's woe. 14LtMs, Lt 210, 1899, par. 7

It is having the living breath of the Holy Spirit that makes the humble man's human life noble, pure, and after the likeness of Christ's life. Much knowledge does not elevate a man in the sight of God. To be daily crucified with Christ, daily a partaker of His sufferings, is what wins souls to the truth. He who manifests childlike simplicity and Christlike humility is great in God's sight. He who is most nearly a child in faith and trust and devotion is highest in God's kingdom. 14LtMs, Lt 210, 1899, par. 8

To Dr. Rand and those who are interested in the work of finding a place in Newcastle where medical missionary work can be carried forward. 14LtMs, Lt 211, 1899, par. 1

Dear Brethren:

Yesterday we visited Newcastle for the special purpose of seeing the places which were regarded as having favorable accommodations for giving treatment to the sick and suffering. We looked at the place opposite the office which Dr. Rand now occupies. After careful consideration, we can see no light in taking this place, with all that it involves. The money that would be necessary to fit it up for use would be more than we would feel justified in spending. 14LtMs, Lt 211, 1899, par. 2

Then there are other considerations. The relation which Dr. Rand sustains to the work and cause of God at this time should connect him with his work. He needs all the help possible to give solidity to his spiritual strength, and to keep him wide-awake to the great and solemn subjects which have a bearing upon the mind and conscience at this time. He must place himself in right relation to the church. He must link himself up with the church. Then, standing on the platform of eternal truth, he must shape his course of action with reference to his present and eternal interests. This is of far greater moment to him than any other problem that he can entertain. Everything that he does must be done with reference to solid connection with the truth. In all his arrangements he is to represent the truth. This is not to become a matter of secondary consequence, but is to be made the very first interest. 14LtMs, Lt

Dr. Rand, you need to bind up with the people of God, for you are surely in peril if you do not do this. The fight of faith will be harder for you if you do not, because you have been under serious temptation, and are still under the attacks of Satan. All this needs to be carefully considered. 14LtMs, Lt 211, 1899, par. 4

The place [is] in the heart of the city, but [there are] many more disadvantages. You need to have connected with you persons who can be a help to you in giving treatment, and you need a place furnished with facilities with which to give treatment. The building we looked at in Hamilton will be much better in many respects than the one in the city. To give treatment is not the whole of the matter. Your work should give character to the work of God and the work of God give character to your work. In whatever work may be done in medical missionary lines, there should be a connection with those who are standing on the platform of eternal truth. The last building we looked at is not far from the church. The patients you shall have under your care should have the privilege of attending our meetings. Their salvation is one great object God would have us consider. If one soul is of such value that the world sinks into insignificance in comparison with it, should not medical missionary work be placed in close connection with ministerial work? 14LtMs, Lt 211, 1899, par. 5

This matter has come so vividly to my mind that I dare not hold my peace. Every effort made in medical missionary work should be made with reference to drawing souls into connection with the truth. If our medical missionary work is carried on after worldly policy plans, separation from God will result. If the world or the denominational churches are to be our strength, and give influence to our medical work, then we must act in accordance with this, and let the medical missionaries take their position with the world and serve the world. When physicians feel that they must conceal their colors in order to obtain influence, they should stop to consider. We cannot afford to maintain sanitariums at such an expense as this, for we should gain nothing in the way of declaring the truth. 14LtMs, Lt 211, 1899, par. 6

This matter must be considered. Newcastle is an important center, and therefore the medical missionary work there must be bound up with the work of the message for this time. The Hamilton church needs all the strength that every soul can give it. I am deeply concerned for this church. These are serious matters we are settling. Satan will come in with all his sophistry if we give him opportunity. May the Lord help us to stand firmly on the platform of eternal truth. 14LtMs, Lt 211, 1899, par. 7

Again, from the light the Lord has given me, our sick should be cared for out of the bustle of the city. The noise of trams and carts and carriages is very annoying to people who have come from their homes in the country. And in retirement from the bustle and confusion of the city, the patients will be more favorably impressed. Their minds will be more easily influenced by the Spirit of God. This reason was urged upon me so strongly yesterday that I felt I must see you or write to you. The place shown us yesterday in Hamilton, with its facilities for work, its city water and tank water, can be set in operation very soon. Some changes may have to be made, but these will not cost a large sum of money. Then, our church is quite near, and the Lord would have Dr. Rand arise and come to God in faith, uniting all his strength to help the church. 14LtMs, Lt 211, 1899, par. 8

I have presented this matter in brief. May the Lord strengthen you and help you to get away from the bustle of the city. Away from this bustle, the Lord would have His medical missionary workers carry on decided lines of work. My brother, have faith in God. Do not be discouraged. This idea that you must be confined to small premises and do very little work is not to be entertained. Harness up your powers and do all that you possibly can. Come into close relation to God. I ask the Lord to put courage into your heart. If God holds you up, you will stand. When once you have the facilities, you will have patients, and we will stand by you. But you must stand under Christ's banner. 14LtMs, Lt 211, 1899, par. 9

I felt so much impressed with this matter that I could not forbear writing to you. May God give you wisdom. When you have the facilities for work, the workers in Maitland can say that you are now prepared to take patients. You will have patronage. This is my faith. 14LtMs, Lt 211, 1899, par. 10

With respect. 14LtMs, Lt 211, 1899, par. 11

Lacey, Brother and Sister [H. C.]

Sunnyside, Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

December 22, 1899

Previously unpublished.

Dear Brother and Sister Lacey:

I know a letter is due you from me, but so many things have been crowding upon us that we have scarcely known what to do or what to leave undone. There are so many things that have to be done that it is impossible to enumerate them. I am up nearly every morning at two o'clock. Sara and I have travelled over the road to Maitland so often that we have neglected our letter writing and other necessary things. We have driven four times to Maitland and back again with our horse and carriage. This is a journey of twenty-seven miles. This drive is always a rest to me if the weather is not too hot. But I become quite tired riding in the heat. Therefore we commence our journey at an early hour, three o'clock in the morning. The last time we drove from Maitland, we rose at one o'clock, entered our gates at Sunnyside at seven o'clock, and took breakfast with our family.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 1

We are thankful to state that we are all keeping well. We have had some exceedingly hot weather, but the last few days have been much cooler, and we enjoy it.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 2

We are all endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bonds of peace. How are you progressing? We are desirous of hearing from you. Are you obtaining a precious experience in the work of the Lord? I am anxious to learn what progress you are making in winning souls for Jesus Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 3

The Lord is still on the giving hand. Whosoever will may come and partake of the water of life freely. And we must invite, instruct, and draw souls to Jesus. We will have to urge upon them the matter of their salvation. Men and women are in peril, and God will bless every effort we shall make for their recovery from sin. If they refuse the heavenly invitation, the accountability rests upon them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 4

We must wrestle with the Lord in prayer, asking that for Christ's sake He will give us souls. Urge upon the people their peril. We have too little faith. We shall find great comfort in appropriating the promises of God to ourselves. If we encourage the meekness and lowliness of Christ, it is our privilege to appropriate God's promises by faith. There is no true faith that is not personal, no true faith that does not appropriate God's words. We are to believe in Christ as our personal Saviour, believe that He died for us personally. What rich and full promises are ours if we will accept them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 5

But let us never lose sight of this fact—that we are to receive to impart. We can only reach the people through God. They are dead in trespasses and sins, and we must carry with us the remedy for the sin-sick soul. You can both be a blessing where you are, but you must increase in faith, and in the knowledge of God and Jesus Christ the Sent of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 6

There is a great and solemn work to be done for the very ones who claim to believe the truth. There is need that they be converted to real, practical Christianity. They must be transformed into the likeness [of] Christ. Their words and deportment are not the most pleasing to God. Had they been, an altogether different impression would have been made upon their neighbors and those with whom they associate. Self must be crucified. Christ must become the life, the hope, the strength of the soul. Then, with an abiding Christ in the heart, believers can be living representatives of Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 7

Had the believers in Toowoomba exerted the influence they should have exerted, the Lord would have made them channels of light, blessings to those who do not know the truth. It is the duty of believers to manifest the Spirit of Christ in all they do and in all they say. The Bible reveals the duty of the church, and when those who claim to believe the truth practice this truth, a power will go forth from them. It is right actions that are needed to make the correct impression on the world. Every true Christian will reveal the simplicity of true godliness. 14LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 8

Do the believers in Toowoomba really believe present truth? Have they that faith which works by love and purifies the soul? Truth in the soul will control the conscience. O, let us all realize the solemn responsibilities that rest upon us individually. Let there be a close inspection of the motives that prompt us to action. Believers are to be cleansed by the blood of Jesus Christ. They are to put on His character, represented by the white linen, which is the righteousness of the saints. 14LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 9

Has not Christ left His gospel to the piety of His followers? He has done this. He has presented no other plan. He has provided no other agency. He says, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." [Mark 16:15.] "And, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." [Matthew 28:20.] It is the human agent who must be a channel of light to others. This is the gospel commission. And entire surrender to God, entire dependence upon Him, to work with Him and for Him, will be recognized by the world. But many keep the truth in the outer court. They give only a superficial consent to it. There are souls whom the Lord loves, who know the truth, but who do not honor the God of truth by daily practicing the truth. 14LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 10

When the few believers in Toowoomba shall see the need of practicing the truth in word and in deed, they will be witnesses for the truth, and the truth will make them free. The Lord is soon coming, and who shall stand when He appeareth? All those who have been born again have a sacred, holy ministry to perform. If the believers in Toowoomba have not received the new birth, let them open the door of the heart to the Holy Spirit, and be converted. Every soul is to be wide-awake now. Every soul is to be daily converted anew to God, cleansed from every habit, every practice, that is a hindrance to his influence. "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." [Matthew 5:16.] 14LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 11

My brethren and sisters in Toowoomba, look, O look your responsibilities full in the face. See where your delinquencies have been, and make improvement. God holds those who know the truth responsible for the souls with whom they associate. You need now to draw nigh unto God. God made the Jewish nation a depository of sacred trust. To this people were committed the oracles of God. But they were not faithful, and the Lord committed to the Gentiles the work which it was their privilege to do, but which they did not do.14LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 12

Upon the disciples of Christ rests a precious, sacred charge. As Christ's followers they are the depositories of His truth and His grace, which they hold in trust to communicate to others. In the highest sense we are our brother's keeper, and if our duties are left undone, his blood will be required at our hand.14LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 13

My brother, my sister, those around you may be insensible to the peril of their souls, but because of this, do not neglect your duties. Be instant in season, out of season. We must stand side by side around the throne of God, to give account of the use we have made of the blessings bestowed upon us. At that day shall we see souls unsaved that might have been saved if our hearts had been worked by the Holy Spirit?14LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 14

God help you to awaken the believers and unbelievers in Toowoomba to their peril. Will souls prove inaccessible to the Holy Spirit's working? God help you and the other workers, that souls may be saved as the result of your labors.14LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 15

Please write to us. I am anxious to know in reference to your work. With much love to yourselves and all connected with you in the work.14LtMs, Lt 212, 1899, par. 16

Wilson, Sister [G. T.]

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

December 22, 1899

Previously unpublished.

Dear Sister Wilson:

I thought I might go up to Maitland this week, but I do not see how we can do this. We feel a deep interest in the work there, and we are determined to do all we can to make it a success. I want to hear from you. I think the weather has been more favorable for several days for your work of visiting. I am glad that both you and Sister Robertson are both to work in Maitland. I had not a ray of light for Sister Robertson to go to Melbourne. When you have all that you can do, and a field all white for the harvest, how then can you leave that field unless the Lord specifies it to be your duty. 14LtMs, Lt 213, 1899, par. 1

I am very glad that Brother and Sister Colcord are in Maitland. We hope that many souls will come to a knowledge of the truth. If we can help in any way, we shall be glad to do so. Many souls are inaccessible to the efforts made in their behalf, but the Macedonian cry will come from all the settlements from Cooranbong to Queensland. My heart yearns after souls. We cannot call our missionaries from the work because of the dearth of means. No; we will keep them in the field, and we will trust in God, who holds in His hands all the resources. If the men who ought to help will not help, there will be others who will help. The silver and the gold are the Lord's. The church is never the poorer for the multitude and costliness of its offerings. Self-denial and self-sacrifice was constantly seen in the life of Jesus Christ. 14LtMs, Lt 213, 1899, par. 2

We will work, we will watch, and we will pray. We remember you in our prayers morning and evening. O, if we would only arouse to our God-given responsibilities, I know that we would see a great work done. I have seen before me in the congregation those to whom God has given talents. If they would give themselves, soul, body, and spirit, to God, the Holy Spirit would impress their minds and set them to meditating on the great truths of salvation. They would be led to lay comprehensive plans for helping their fellow men to see the uplifted Saviour. They would accomplish a work for the Master that would be as enduring as eternity. Insensibly to themselves they would acquire an expansion and a practical cast of mind well adapted to the great work of saving souls ready to perish. 14LtMs, Lt 213, 1899, par. 3

I long for souls because I want them to be saved. Souls saved to Jesus Christ will certainly work earnestly to save other souls ready to perish. The Lord will make every man's business a test and trial. Every one will be called upon to settle the question, "How much owest thou unto my Lord?" [Luke 16:5.] Christian enterprises are presented before the human beings for whom Christ gave His life, to test the soundness of their conversion, the soundness of their religious principles, and the strength of their loyalty to God. Let us work earnestly, but do not overdo. 14LtMs, Lt 213, 1899, par. 4

Sister Wilson, will you and Sister Robertson visit Mrs. Winters and talk with her? 14LtMs, Lt 213, 1899, par. 5

Dear Brother and Sister Tenney:

I long very much to see you and converse with you, but as this does not seem possible, I will write and ask you how you are prospering healthwise and in your work. We hope that you are of good courage in the Lord. We have in Maitland a very promising field. No less than twelve have decided to keep the Sabbath. Elder Colcord now takes the place of Brother Starr, who is to labor for a time in Melbourne. Elder Robinson and his wife will connect with the school here.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 1

I feel somewhat anxious in regard to your health, my brother and sister. We have had very great heat in this colony. It has been cooler for a few days, and cloudy, which is a great relief. But although the atmosphere has seemed like a blast from a furnace, none of us have become sick under it. What has been your experience? Has the heat been severe? I fear that it has.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 2

Nearly every week since camp meeting, I have gone to spend the Sabbath and Sunday in Maitland. There is an interest far and near in the settlements round about Maitland, extending from Maitland to Cooranbong. East Maitland is yet to be entered and worked, and in many places the people are calling for help. Brother Hickox and his wife are working in Maitland and the settlements around.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 3

There is a mining district near Maitland, and the work there and in the farming settlements is very promising. All the people seem so courteous, so kind, and so sociable. If the truth can gain a foothold in these places, the objections that arise in many places will not be nearly as strong here, because there are so many families who do not depend upon employers who can give them work or throw them out of work as they please.14LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 4

Sisters Wilson and Robertson are most earnest workers, and are doing much good. We are pleased with the souls that have taken their stand. We feel deeply over the many who have heard the truth, and who know the truth, but who do not take their stand upon the truth. There are three brothers, merchants in the drapery business, who have manifested a deep interest in the meetings, but they do not decide. Ministers are doing their very best to circulate falsehoods and misinterpret the Scriptures. As in Christ's day, they teach for doctrine the commandments of men.14LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 5

Sara and I have driven four times with horse and carriage to Maitland and back again. I have spoken five Sabbaths and five Sundays. I have not been there for the past two weeks.14LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 6

We were in Newcastle on Wednesday, to see if a place could be selected for Dr. Rand, where he can receive patients for treatment. His mind is upon a small place across the road from where he is now, but it needs an investment of three hundred pounds to fit it up, and then it is right in the heart of the city, amid the noise and bustle and confusion. I wrote him a few lines last evening in regard to this matter. Will send you a copy.14LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 7

We hope you are pleasantly situated. I would say, Keep up good courage. The Lord is on our side, and we are sure of helpers in the heavenly intelligences. I am so very thankful that we have One who knows all our infirmities, and who healeth all our diseases; One who is our very best friend, our Counsellor and Guide. He will never leave us nor forsake us while we cling to Him. Be hopeful and courageous in the Lord. Our work is a grand and elevated work.14LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 8

I often praise God for the privilege of acting a part in this work. And when we know that our precious Saviour had so many discouragements because of the wicked spirit of the Jewish nation, and because so few responded to His message and His ministry in their behalf, can we not consent to be partakers with Him in His sufferings? We can understand Christ's sorrow as He searched for fruit on the flourishing, pretentious fig tree, and found none to satisfy His soul hunger. We must never forget that our blessed Saviour, with hunger of soul, said to those for whom He had done so much, "Ye will not come unto me, that ye might have life." [John 5:40.]14LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 9

It is our work, with faith and hope and earnest, persevering entreaties to see to draw souls to the Lord Jesus. But after we have done all that is possible, then we must not worry and fret because we are often disappointed. The resting and trusting and believing is our part. The Holy Spirit will work with the souls for whom we labor. I thank the Lord that we can approach Him in prayer, and know that He hears us and loves us.14LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 10

We hope that you are all happy and cheerful, hopeful and thankful, because we are the Lord's purchased possession, and our rest is coming soon. We know not how soon, but we must be ready for the Master's call at any time. What a privilege to contemplate, that we shall see His face. I want to be indeed a member of the family of the saints in light. I want to bring all the peace and confidence and assurance and love into my life here, so that I can be a blessing by letting my light shine to others.14LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 11

May the Lord bless your mother and daughter, and your son and his family. Be of good courage in the Lord. In love.14LtMs, Lt 214, 1899, par. 12

My Dear Brother:

You speak as though you had no friends. But God is your Friend, and Sister White is your friend. You have thought that I had lost confidence in you; but, my dear brother, as I have before written to you, I know that the Lord has placed you in a very responsible position, standing as you do, as the greatest physician in our world, a man to whom the Lord has given understanding and knowledge, that you may do justice and judgment, and reveal the true missionary spirit in the institution which is to represent truth in contrast with error. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 1

My brother, the Lord has not left you to go on a warfare at your own charges. He has given you wisdom, and favor with God and man. He has been your helper. He has chosen you as His agency to exalt the truth in the Battle Creek Sanitarium, as it is not represented in other medical institutions. The Battle Creek Sanitarium was to be known as an institution where the Lord was daily acknowledged as the monarch of the universe. “He doeth according to his will in the armies of heaven, and also among the inhabitants of earth, and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou?” [Daniel 4:35.]14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 2

The Lord designs that the proclamation of the third angel’s message shall be the highest, greatest work carried on in our world at this time. He honored you by placing you in a very responsible position. You were not to separate your influence from the ministry of the gospel. In every line of your work you were to understand and practice the truth. You were to make God first and ever obey His Word. In this would be your strength.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 3

You were to be a faithful physician of the souls as well as of the bodies of those under your charge. Had you fulfilled this responsibility with all the keen talent God gave you in trust, you would not have worked alone. One who never makes a mistake was presiding. Only the Holy Spirit's power can keep your spirit sweet and fragrant, soft and subdued, ever trusting in God, ever speaking the right words at the right time.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par.

You were not faultless. Often you lost control of yourself. Then your words were not what they should have been. At times you were arbitrary and exacting. But you were striving for the mastery over self, and angels of God co-operated with you, because, through you, God was to work to exalt His truth and cause it to receive honored recognition in the world. God gave you wisdom, not that your name should be magnified, but that those coming to the sanitarium in Battle Creek might carry away with them favorable impressions of Seventh-day Adventists. The honor given you did not come to you because you were righteous above all men, but because God desired to use you as His instrument.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 5

In His providence the Lord has drawn many to the Sanitarium, that they may become acquainted with the truth, and be converted, and then carry away with them the evidence of the miraculous power of God on body and soul. This has stirred the ire of Satan. It does not please him that it should be shown that God is working to magnify the truth.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 6

It was God's purpose that, in the Sanitarium, missionaries, teachers, and physicians should become acquainted with the third angel's message, which embraces so much. Angels of God were to be your strength in the work that was to be done in order that the Battle Creek Sanitarium might be known as an institution under the special supervision of God. The missionary feeling and sympathy that prevailed in this institution was a result of the work of invisible heavenly agencies there. God said, "I thought it good to show signs and wonders. In My might I wrought to glorify My name.” Many have gone away from the Sanitarium with new hearts. The change has been decided. Those, returning to their homes, have been as lights in the world. Their voices have been heard saying, “Come, all ye that fear God, and I will make known to you what He hath done for my soul. I have seen His greatness; I have tasted His goodness.”14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 7

The Lord has appointed the physicians in the sanitarium to stand me faithful sentinels. Through them God desires to do the work that must be done. Through them impressions are to be made in regard is the work of relieving suffering humanity.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 8

But you needed the counsel of others than your colleagues. Fresh, new ideas were needed in your councils, for not all your ideas bore the divine credentials. You have been swaying the minds of those connected with the medical missionary work, until you and others became like men lost in the fog of uncertainty.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 9

The dangers of your plan of operation in connection with the conference held in South Lancaster were presented before me. I saw that you could not plan and devise as you had been doing, or carry out your ideas, without injury to yourself and to the cause of God. I was instructed by the Lord that your temptation would be to make your medical missionary work stand independent of the conference. But this plan was not right. You were tempted by the enemy, and I hastened to write to you. I sent a copy of the letter to Elder Irwin, for it was necessary that some one besides yourself should know your danger, that efforts might be made to save you from the course of action you had premeditated.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 10

I would help you if I could, but I do not know how to help you. I write to you as a mother would to her son. I would go to see you if I could feel it my duty to leave the work here, but I dare not do this. You have built up hopes and nurtured plans without due consideration of how the tower is to be finished and supported. As one who knows, as one who has been permitted to have an insight into the future and results of the work you have taken upon you, I call upon you to stop and consider. God knows your frame. He knows that you are but dust, even the small dust of the balance. You will certainly need the counsel, not of those who have permitted you to go on in the work which you deem so important, but the counsel of men who at the present time are able to see more clearly than you do the results that will follow various undertakings.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 11

I wish to state, Dr. Kellogg, that if you will receive the messages of warning given you, it will save you from great trial and mortification, and will be to the saving of your soul. Cast not behind you as of no consequence the warnings which as yet you do not understand. I tell you plainly that you are carrying forward that which you call missionary work according to misconceived judgment and opinions. The sanitarium will suffer because you have given yourself up to do a work for which God will call you into account. I have been instructed that you have been doing a work which the Lord never appointed you to do.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 12

Means <must not be> drawn <away> from the Sanitarium to erect buildings for the care of people who can never be relied on to fill places in the ministry or on councils. They have not a knowledge of the work of character building, and they cannot be relied on as men of forethought. They have ruined their mental powers and nearly destroyed their spiritual discernment by the indulgence of appetite and passion, and this makes them weak. They are fickle and changeable.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 13

The Lord has shown me that if the enemy can by any means divert the work into wrong channels, and thus hinder its advancement, he will do so. The place assigned you by the Lord was under Him in the divine Theocracy. You were to learn of Jesus, the great Teacher. You were to be and do after His character and example.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 14

I have been forced to inquire why several of our canvassers in this field, who were canvassing for The Home Hand-Book have left the field having only paid their expenses. Some did not even do this. They stated that when the time came for them to deliver their books, they could not obtain copies to deliver. They were themselves greatly disappointed, and the people who were expecting the book were also disappointed. What shall we do about this? I have talked to the men in the Echo office about it, and they say that they cannot obtain copies of The Home Hand-Book.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 15

At every camp meeting we make special efforts to get before the people the light upon health reform as contained in your publications. But while you have been consuming, you have not been producing. Never was there a time when a greater interest was shown in regard to questions relating to health. What is it that hinders your books from being supplied to our offices, to be furnished to the canvassers? Shall this delay continue? Shall the people still be disappointed?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 16

I have been instructed to say that you have drawn your time and strength and money away from enterprises which, if they had been advanced, would have done tenfold more good than the enterprises that you have carried forward. Invention after invention has taken your time and means. Your money has been used in a way which has done more harm than good. The setting of men to work in various ways in what is called medical missionary work has consumed much time and money, but has produced next to nothing. The Lord entrusted capital to you, to be used in advancing His kingdom in our world, and if you misuse this capital, you must settle with Him.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 17

Investments have been made without sitting down and counting the cost, without finding out whether there was enough money to carry forward the work started. A shortsightedness has been shown. Men have failed to see that the Lord's vineyard embraces the world. There is such a thing as investing money in that which it is hard to say is not a good work, because explanation cannot always be made to the one whose brain has been constantly at work to create and invent, but who has not the income to sustain the enterprises started.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 18

The income of the sanitariums that have been established must not be drawn upon to sustain the work called medical missionary work.

The means that has been used to sustain this large and ever-increasing work should, by the Lord's order, have been used in making plants in other countries, where the light of health reform has not shone. Sanitariums, less costly than the large ones erected in America, should have been built. Thus plants would have been made which would have produced fruit and, when strong, would have established plants in other localities.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 19

The Lord is not partial. But He has been misrepresented. The work that should have been done in the different parts of His vineyard has been hindered because men have failed to see how the work could be advanced in these parts of the vineyard. In some parts the work has been overdone. In this way money has been absorbed that should have been used to enable workers on other parts of the vineyard to move forward without hindrance in the work of elevation the standard of truth. Some portions of the vineyard are not to be robbed in order that the means may be absorbed in one spot.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 20

Man judges in accordance with his finite judgment. God looks at the character of the fruit borne and then judges the tree. In the name of the Lord, I call upon all to think of the work we are required to do and how this work is to be sustained. The world is the Lord's vineyard, and it is to be worked. Suppose in every place where there is a large center, the work which has been done in America should be made the pattern. Where would be our memorials of truth, which are to make a proper impression on the world?14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 21

There are those who are in danger of bringing into the work the objectionable sentiments received in former education. They need to practice the principles laid down in the Word, else the work will be marred and spoiled by their preconceived ideas. When we work with all the sanctified ability God has given us, when we put aside our will for the will of God, when self is crucified day by day, then actual results are seen. We move forward in faith, knowing that our Lord has promised to undertake the work entrusted to Him, and that He will accomplish it, for He never makes a failure.14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 22

The Lord's servants are merely stewards. The Lord will work through them when they surrender themselves to Him to be worked by the Holy Spirit. When by faith men place themselves in the Lord's hands, saying, "Here am I; send me" [isaiah 6:8], He undertakes this work. But men must get out of the Lord's way. They must not hinder His purposes by their devising. For years the Lord has had a controversy with His people, because they have followed their own judgment and have not relied on divine wisdom. If the workers get in God's way, hindering the advancement of the work, thinking that their brain power is sufficient for the planning and carrying forward of the work, the Lord will correct their error. By His divine Spirit He enlightens and trains every worker. He shapes His own providences to carry forward His work according to His mind and judgment. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 23

If men would only humble themselves before God, if they would not exalt their judgment as the all-controlling influence, if they would make room for the Lord to plan and work, the Lord would use the qualifications He has given them in a way which would glorify His name. He will purify His workers from all selfishness, trimming down their superfluous plans, cutting off the branches that would entwine around this and that undesirable object, pruning the vine so that it will produce fruit. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 24

God is the great Husbandman. He will make everything in the lives of those who are laborers together with Jesus Christ subservient to His great purpose of growth and fruit-bearing. It is His plan, by conforming His servants day by day to the image of Christ, by making them partakers of the divine nature, to cause them to bear fruit abundantly. He desires His people, through actual experience in the truth of the gospel, to become true, solid, trustworthy, experimental missionaries. He would have them show results far higher, holier, and more definite than have been revealed in the last fifteen years. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 25

The potter takes the clay in his hands, and molds and fashions it according to his own will. He kneads it and works it. He tears it apart and then presses it together. He wets it and then dries it. He lets it lie for a while without touching it. When it is perfectly pliable, he continues the work of making from it a vessel. He forms it into shape, and on the wheel trims and polishes it. He dries it in the sun and bakes it in the oven. Thus it becomes a vessel unto honor, fit for his use. So the great Master desires to mold and fashion us. And as the clay is in the hands of the potter, so we are to be in His hands. We are not to try to do the work of the Potter. Our part is to yield ourselves to the molding of the Master-worker. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 26

It is not a great number of institutions, large buildings, and wonderful display that God requires, but the harmonious action of a peculiar people, a people chosen by God and precious, united with one another, their life hid with Christ in God. The Lord will never place one man as a controlling power over another man. Every man is to stand in his lot and in his place, exerting a right influence in thought, word, and judgment. When all God's workers do this, and not till then, will the work be a complete, symmetrical whole. Individually we need a solid faith, which is in perfect harmony with the first declaration of the first, second, and third angels' messages. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 27

The work that the gospel embraces as missionary work is a straightforward, substantial work, which will shine brighter and brighter unto the perfect day. God does not want the faith of His peculiar people to take on the features or appearance of the work now called medical missionary work. The means and talents of His people are not to be buried in the slums of New York or Chicago. God's work is to be carried on in right lines. Self-denial, self-sacrifice, and the true missionary spirit are to be shown. We are to work as Christ worked, in simplicity and meekness, in lowliness and sanctified moral elevation. Thus we can do a work distinct from all other missionary work in our world. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 28

My brother, you have not as much firmness and assurance as you have had. You have the most critical cases to handle, and at times a dread comes upon you. To perform these difficult duties, you know that rapid work must be done, that no false moves must be made. Again and again you have had to pass swiftly from task to task. Who has been by your side during these critical operations? Who has kept you calm and self-possessed in the crisis, giving you quick, sharp discernment, clear eyesight, steady nerves, and skillful precision? The Lord Jesus has sent His angel to your side to tell you what to do. A hand has been laid upon your hand. Jesus, and not you, has guided the movements of your hand. At times you have realized this, and a wonderful calmness has come over you. You dared not hurry, and yet you worked rapidly, knowing that there was not a second to waste. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 29

The Lord has greatly blessed you. Others who knew not of the presiding Presence working with you gave you, <Dr. Kellogg,> all the glory. Eminent physicians have witnessed your operations and praised your skill. This has been pleasant to you. You have not always been able to endure the seeing of the Invisible by faith. You have been under divine guidance. You have been greatly honored by God, that His name, and not yours, should be magnified. But you have had a great desire to distinguish yourself. You have not placed your entire dependence upon God. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 30

You have not been willing to heed the counsel of the Lord's servants. With your own brain you have planned many things. The Lord would have you respect the gospel ministry. At the very time you needed discerning eyes, that you might see, not only one side of the work, but all sides, you chose for counsellors men under the reproof of God, as did Elder Olsen. If they would second your propositions, you would link up with them, to start enterprises that the Lord placed no burden on you to start. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 31

The Lord gave you your work, not to be done in a rush, but in a calm, considerate manner. The Lord never compels hurried, complicated movements. But you have gathered to yourself responsibilities that the Lord, the merciful Father, did not place upon you. Duties He has never ordained chase each other wildly. Never are His servants to leave one given duty marred or incomplete in order to seize hold of another. He who labors in the calmness of the fear of God does not work in a haphazard manner, for fear something will hinder an anticipated plan. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 32

Praying and seeking the Lord, the surrender of yourself to the guidance of God, would have prevented the creating of many things which have been born, not of the will of God, but of the will of man. You were given your appointed work. But you have neglected things of great importance to take up, with impulsive spirit, unadvised of the Lord or by your brethren, things of minor importance. Your brethren could have given you counsel, but you despised any word that interfered with your schemes, which have placed you in an intricate position. Had you done your appointed work, God would have made you more and more a laborer together with Him. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 33

The Lord wants your mind to blend with other minds. His servants have sometimes attempted to differ with you. This was the very thing God required them to do. But you treated their advice in such a way that they remained silent when they should have spoken. God desires those He has placed in positions of trust as stewards not to use your brains, but the talents He has given them personally. They are to do justice and judgment in all wisdom. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 34

You do not allow men to think and act on their individual responsibility. You and Brother Haskell and Brother Butler saw the difficulties in Elder James White and the necessity of uniting together to remove responsibilities from him. If he needed this, you have come to the place where you need it tenfold more. And yet no one associated with you dares to tell you this truth. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 35

If you are determined to carry on the same kind of warfare that you have been carrying on, straining nerve, brain, and muscle to come out ahead and prove that the message the Lord sent was not true, you will find that your plans will be counterworked by Him who for years has been giving you warnings. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 36

The Lord has not laid upon you the burden you have been carrying. The result of your carrying these burdens is felt all through the vineyard of the Lord. God has not called His people to ignore present truth for these last days, and take up a work that so absorbs workers and means that the Lord is not represented as He would otherwise be. Never would a rival sanitarium have been, through Satan's devising, planted close to the Lord's institution, if you had kept at your work for the class of people whom the Lord desires to become, through the Sanitarium, acquainted with present truth, with the message God has given to those who follow Him, to be communicated to the world. The Sanitarium in Battle Creek was to bring the chosen people of God before men of high standing, to represent the ways, and works, and power of God. It was to be His witness in behalf of truth, elevated, sanctifying truth. The Lord made you, my brother, His honored instrument. He has never required from you one task that would crowd out your work in connection with the institution that was to stand for the truth, to do a certain work for God, flashing light upon the pathway of thousands. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 37

The Lord would have kept the Sanitarium pure and true, to represent the truth for these last days. But the very ones who could have helped you do this work, you have despised and turned from as unworthy of your notice. God sees that His work is being lowered into the slums, as Satan wants it to be; that the elevated sanctification of the truth will become so mingled with tares that its peculiar, holy character will sink out of sight. The Lord saw how this would be, and He has been sending you warnings. Yet you are tempted to go right on in your own way and pick flaws in the message, just as others have done before you. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 38

You have a great and sacred work to do. If you hold faithfully to the work God has assigned you, through the skill given you you will be enabled to work swiftly, though never appearing to be in haste. When your eyes are opened, you will see too deep poverty of the mission fields. You will see that the workers there are hampered at every step, while the Lord's money is being used to sustain other inventions and institutions, so that the message which should be given to the world, the first, second, and third angels' message, are lost sight of. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 39

God impresses different men to be laborers together with Him. One man is not authorized to gather too many responsibilities upon himself. The Lord would have the physician, upon whom so much depends, so closely connected with Him that the spirit will not be stirred by little things. The Lord desires Dr. Kellogg to be one of the most efficient workers in the medical profession, slurring nothing, marring nothing, knowing that he has a Counsellor close by his side, to sustain, to strengthen, to impart a quietness and calm to the soul. Feverishness of spirit and uncertainty will make the hand unskillful. The touch of Christ upon the physician's hand brings vitality, restfulness, confidence, and power. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 40

God desires His institutions and His chosen and adopted children to do Him honor by representing the attributes of Christian character. Many of those who are supposed to be rescued from the pit into which they have fallen cannot be relied upon as counsellors, as those who can be trusted to engage in the sacred work done in these last days. The enemy is determined to mix error with truth. To do this, he uses the opportunity given him by the debased class for whom so much money is expended, whose appetites have been perverted through indulgence, whose souls have been abused, whose characters are misshapen and deformed, and whose habits and desires are grovelling, who think habitually upon evil. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 41

Such ones can be transformed in character, but few ever are. Many make a superficial change in their habits and practices, and then suppose that they are Christians. They are received into church fellowship, but they are a great trouble and a great care. Through them Satan tries to sow in the church the seeds of jealousy, dishonesty, criticism, and accusing. Thus he tries to corrupt the other members of the church. 14LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 42

The same disposition that mastered the man from childhood led him to break away from all restraint, and brought him into the place where he was found. He is reported to be rescued. But time shows that the work done for him did not make him a submissive child of God. Resentful feelings rise at every supposed slight. He cherishes bitterness, wrath, malice. By his words and spirit he shows that he has not been born again. His tendencies are downward, tending to sensuality. He is untrustworthy, unthankful, and unholy. Thus it is with all the debased who have not been soundly converted. Every one of these marred characters, untransformed, becomes an efficient worker for Satan, creating dissension and strife. 14LtMs, Lt

The Lord has marked but His way of working. As a people we are not to imitate and fall in with the Salvation Army methods. This is not the work the Lord has given us to do. Neither is it our work to condemn them and speak harsh words against them. There are precious, self-sacrificing souls in the Salvation Army. We are to treat them kindly. There are in the [Salvation] Army honest souls, sincerely serving the Lord, who will see greater light, and advance to the acceptance of all truth. Those in the Salvation Army are trying to save the neglected, downtrodden ones. Discourage them not. Let them do that class of work by their own methods and in their own way.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 44

The Lord has plainly stated what Seventh-day Adventists are to do. Camp meetings are to be appointed and a series of tent meetings held. All who can should work in connection with the camp meeting. There should be no hesitancy in preaching the truth applicable for this time. A decided testimony is to be borne. The discourses given should be so simple that children can understand them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 215, 1899, par. 45

Dr. J. H. Kellogg:

I write to you as a mother would to her son. I would go to see you if I could feel it my duty to leave the work here, but I dare not do this. You have built up hopes and nurtured plans without due consideration of how the tower is to be finished and supported. As one who knows, as one who has been permitted to have an insight into the future and result of the work you have taken upon you, I call upon you to stop and consider. God knows your frame. He knows that you are but dust, even the small dust of the balance. You will certainly need the counsel, not of those who have permitted you to go on in the work that you deemed so important, but the counsel of men who at the present time are more levelheaded than even J. H. Kellogg. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 1

I wish to state, Dr. Kellogg, that if you will receive the messages of warning given you, it will save you from great trial and mortification, and will be to the saving of your soul. Cast not behind you as of no consequence the warnings which as yet you do not understand. I tell you plainly that you are carrying forward that which you call missionary work according to misconceived judgment and opinions. The Sanitarium will <be weakened and> suffer because you have given yourself up to do a work for which God will call you into account. I have been instructed that you have been doing a work which the Lord never appointed you to do. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 2

Means have been drawn from the Sanitarium to erect buildings for the care of people who can never be relied on to fill places in the ministry or on councils. They have not a knowledge of the work of character building, and they cannot be relied on as men of forethought. They have ruined their mental powers and nearly destroyed their spiritual discernment by the indulgence of appetite and passion, and this makes them weak. They are fickle and changeable. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 3

Who has been by your side during these critical operations? Who has kept you calm and self-possessed in the crisis, giving you quick, sharp discernment, clear eyesight, steady nerves, and skillful precision? The Lord Jesus has sent His angel to your side to tell you what to do. A hand has been laid upon your hand. Jesus, and not you, has guided the movements of your hand. At times you have realized this, and a wonderful calmness has come over you. You dared not hurry, and yet you worked rapidly, knowing that there was not a second to waste. The Lord has greatly blessed you. Others who knew not of the presiding Presence working with you gave you all the glory. Eminent physicians have witnessed your operations and praised your skill. This has been pleasant to you. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 19

You have not always been able to endure the seeing of the Invisible by faith. You have been under divine guidance. You have been greatly honored by God, that His name, and not yours, should be magnified. But you have had a great desire to distinguish yourself. You have not placed your entire dependence upon God. You have not been willing to heed the counsel of the Lord's servants. With your own brain you have planned many things. The Lord would have you respect the gospel ministry. At the very time you needed discerning eyes, that you might see, not only one side of the work, but all sides, you chose for counselors men under the reproof of God, as did Elder Olsen. If they would second your propositions, you would link up with them, to start enterprises that the Lord placed no burden on you to start. <The Lord has given you your work which you have strangely neglected.>14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 20

The Lord gave you your work, not to be done in a rush, but in a calm, considerate manner. The Lord never compels hurried, complicated movements. But you have gathered to yourself responsibilities that the Lord, the merciful Father, did not place upon you. Duties He has never ordained chase each other wildly. Never are His servants to leave one given duty marred or incomplete in order to seize hold of another. He who labors in the calmness of the fear of God does not work in a haphazard manner, for fear something will hinder an anticipated plan <if he does not rush it through.>14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 21

Praying and seeking the Lord, the surrender of the man J. H. Kellogg to the guidance of God, would have prevented the creating of many things which have been born, not of the will of God, but of the will of man. You were given your appointed work. But you have neglected things of great importance to take up, with <your own> impulsive spirit, unadvised by the Lord or by your brethren, things of minor importance. Your brethren could have given you counsel, but you despised any word that interfered with your schemes, which have placed you in an intricate position. Had you done your appointed work, God would have made you a laborer together with Him.14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 22

The Lord wants your mind to blend with other minds. His servants have sometimes attempted to differ with you. This was the very thing God required them to do. But you treated their advice in such a way that they remained silent when they should have spoken. God desires those He has placed in positions of trust as stewards not to use your brains, but the talents he has given them personally. They are to do justice and judgment in all wisdom, because they see the necessity of your changing your course of action.14LtMs, Lt

You do not allow men to think and act on their individual responsibility. You and Brother Haskell and Brother Butler saw the difficulties in Elder James White and the necessity of blending together to remove responsibilities from him. If he needed this, you have come to the place where you need it tenfold more. And yet no one associated with you dares to tell you the truth.14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 24

I bore the testimony given me by the Lord, and you, J. H. Kellogg, declared that it was not true. You took the message in such a way that the effect of it nearly unbalanced your mind. Every word that was written to you was true, and some time you will see that the message was sent you in mercy, to save you from dishonoring yourself and dishonoring God. If you had received the light, in the place of trying to pick flaws in the words given, the Lord would have blessed you. But your course of action cast a reflection on me; and you are still trying to criticize and prove, if possible, that the warning was not from God, but was the report of some one who had written to me. You are going over the ground gone over by every other man who has not wanted to be interfered with by counsel or reproof. You are showing that the testimony of warning was not premature, and was sent at the right time.14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 25

If you are determined to carry on the same kind of warfare that you have been carrying on, straining nerve, brain, and muscle to come out ahead and prove that the message the Lord sent was not true, you will find that your plans will be counterworked by Him who for years has been giving you warnings.14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 26

The Lord has not laid upon you the burdens you have been carrying. The result of your carrying thee burdens is felt all through the vineyard of the Lord. God has not called His people to ignore present truth for these last days, and take up a work that so absorbs workers and means that the Lord is not represented as he would otherwise be. Never would a rival sanitarium have been, through Satan's devising, planted close to the Lord's institution if you had kept at your work for the class of people whom the Lord desires to become acquainted with present truth, the message God has given to those who follow Him to be communicated to the world. The Sanitarium in Battle Creek was to bring the chosen people of God before men of high standing, to represent the ways and works and power of God. It was to be His witness in behalf of truth, elevated, sanctifying truth. The Lord made you, my brother, His honored instrument. He has never require from you one task that would crowd out your work in connection with the institution that was to stand for the truth, to do a certain work for God, flashing light upon the pathway of thousands. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 27

The Lord would have kept the Sanitarium pure and true, to represent the truth for these last days. But the very ones who could have helped you do this work, you have despised, and turned from as unworthy of your notice. God sees that His work is being lowered into the slums, as Satan wants it to be; that the elevated sanctification of the truth will become so mingled with tares that its peculiar, holy character will sink out of sight. The Lord saw how this would be, and He has been sending you warnings. Yet your study is to go right on in your own way and pick flaws in the message, just as others have done before you. I dare not trust the messages in your hands. You read that portion that sustains you, but the portions which warn and caution and give the note of alarm you do not bring before those who should hear them. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 28

You have had a great and sacred work to do. If you hold faithfully to the work God has assigned you, through the skill given you you will be enabled to work swiftly, though never appearing to be in haste. When your eyes are opened, you will see the deep poverty of the mission fields. You will see that the workers there are hampered at every step, while the Lord's money is being used to sustain other inventions and institutions, so that the message which should be given to the world, the first, second, and third angels' messages, are lost sight of. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 29

Faith and works are closely united. Men must be taught, not only by words but in practice, that they are not to defer in everything to you. Elder Butler thought that everybody must yield to him. He came to think that he must command nearly everything. This destroyed his brain power. He was only a finite instrument. He could not impart what he had not received. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 30

God impresses different men to be laborers together with Him. One man is not authorized to gather too many responsibilities upon himself. The Lord would have the physician, upon whom so much depends, so closely connected with Him that his spirit will not be stirred by little items which common sense would teach people how to deal with. The Lord desires Dr. Kellogg to be one of the most efficient workers in the medical profession, slighting nothing, marring nothing, knowing that he has a Counsellor close by his side, to sustain, to strengthen, to impart a quietness and calm to the soul. Feverishness of spirit and uncertainty will make the hand unskillful. The touch of Christ upon the physician's hand brings <steady nerves,> vitality, restfulness, confidence, and power. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 31

God desires His institutions and His chosen and adopted children to do Him honor by representing the attributes of Christian character. Those who are supposed to be rescued from the pit into which they have fallen cannot be relied upon as counsellors, as those who can be trusted to engage in the sacred work done in these last days. The enemy is determined to mix error with truth. To do this, he uses the opportunity given him by the debased class for whom so much money is expended, whose appetites have been perverted through indulgence, whose souls have been abused, whose characters are misshapen and deformed, whose habits and desires are grovelling, who think habitually upon evil. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 32

Such ones can be transformed in character, but few ever are. Many make a superficial change in their habits and practices, and then suppose that they are Christians. They are received into church fellowship, but they are a great trouble and a great care. Through them Satan tries to sow in the church the seeds of jealousy, dishonesty, criticism, and accusing. Thus he tries to corrupt the other members of the church. 14LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 33

The same disposition that mastered the man from childhood led him to break away from all restraint, and brought him into the place where he was found. He is reported to be rescued. But time shows that the work done for him did not make him a submissive child of

God. Resentful feelings rise at every supposed slight. He cherishes bitterness, wrath, malice. By his words and spirit he shows that he has not been born again. His tendencies are downward, tending to sensuality. He is untrustworthy, unthankful, and unholy. Thus it is with all the debased who have not been soundly converted. Every one of these marred characters, untransformed, becomes an efficient worker for Satan, creating dissension and strife.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 34

The Lord has marked out His way of working. As a people we are not to imitate and fall in with the Salvation Army methods. This is not the work the Lord has given us to do. Neither is it our work to condemn them and speak harsh words against them. There are precious, self-sacrificing souls in the Salvation Army. We are to treat them kindly. There are in the [Salvation] Army honest souls, sincerely serving the Lord, who will see greater light, and advance to the acceptance of all truth. Those in the Salvation Army are trying to save the neglected, downtrodden ones. Discourage them not. Let them do that class of work by their own methods and in their own way.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 35

The Lord has plainly stated what Seventh-day Adventists are to do. Camp meetings are to be appointed and a series of tent meetings held. All who can should work in connection with the camp meeting. There should be no hesitancy in preaching the truth applicable for this time. A decided testimony is to be borne. The discourses given should be so simple that children can understand them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 215b, 1899, par. 36

Previously unpublished.

Dear Brother Irwin:

I have a few moments time, and will write a few lines. I have sent some things in regard to canvassers for our books. I have more matters to search up which I am entirely unable to do for this mail.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 1

We are yet greatly in need of money to carry forward the work. The statement was made in the Bulletin by the president of the California Conference that the California Conference has sent to Sister White fourteen hundred dollars. He should not have made that statement, as if it was a bonafide gift. This was not so. It was money that was owed me by Mrs. Scott for a place she had purchased of me, and the principle and interest had accumulated to fourteen hundred dollars. Brother Jones had thought Mrs. Scott was planning to make the Healdsburg people trouble because of gifts she had made to the school—putting the case in law. [He] asked if I would purchase of the Healdsburg College shares to the amount of her indebtedness to me, and that might pacify the woman. And they would, at the next general meeting, make the effort to have these shares divided among our brethren in California. He thought this could be done. I responded [that] he could follow out his plan which he did, and closed up my accounts, for which I am very grateful.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 2

I should not have called for this money, but we were very severely pressed. The providence of God was opening the way for us to work, and we had no means to work with. Distress and complications were on every hand. I begged of them to help me in this matter, and to interest the many families in California to each take one share. I think this might have been done if they had taken hold of it interestedly and set it before the people, but they did not do this, which they might have done. They did not respond to my solicitations, which should not have been disregarded. Their doing nothing compelled me to humiliate myself to keep pressing the matter until the money was sent me. And if that money came from the conference as a gift, it was because those who had a duty to do did not do it—seeking to have families take shares, as they should have done, to release me from the pressure that was upon me.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 3

When the money came we were in dire necessity and I handed over two hundred pounds at once to the union conference to appropriate to the most pressing needs. I was never more thankful for the means than at that time. Every dollar of that which I considered mine was invested at once. Gladly was it invested, for we had nothing to use in the line of money.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 4

The doctors of the Summer Hill Sanitarium talked with me and could scarcely speak without having tears in their voice. I was not pleased with that statement in the Bulletin. The conference need not lie out of that money, and should not lie out of that money, if the proper effort had been made to share the matter. Many taking one share would cancel the whole matter. Another statement was made that they had decided, or ordered, one thousand dollars to be sent to Sister White. Was it sent? I have not received it. What about this matter? Certainly nothing has come to us from California, [nor] from the conference. We have been called upon by our workers and referred to the Bulletin that the statement was thus and so. The workmen were really in suffering need for their wages, which they had patiently waited for, and now expected to receive. This places us here in a very unpleasant situation. Some donations of small sums have been received and appropriated, but it was from individuals, not the General Conference. There was five hundred dollars loaned me by Elder Loughborough, but it had to come to us through the Echo office, and they had no money, so there it hung. This has often occurred.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 5

We must have money, I think, sent to us direct, for we are constantly in need of money to advance the work. Every church organized means so much more revenue eventually to carry forward the work. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 6

Dr. Kellogg says that he sent half of the five thousand dollars to help. This has been received in the medical work. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 7

If our brethren would be careful in their statements made, it might help our case some. At least, it would not leave impressions upon the mind that we have abundance of means to relieve present necessities. It is here in Cooranbong that we need money to work with. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 8

Brother Irwin, will you please consider these things? I hope you will not drop your good resolutions to visit the churches and awaken them to a sense of their responsibility to God, to set us at work and keep us at work, to set the standard of truth in new places. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 9

There are new localities in the widespread city of Newcastle, that are now to be worked. One new meetinghouse is to be erected in Hamilton. There is an old stone church, [needing] to be repaired at Wallsend, which can be purchased for fifty pounds; and it will take one hundred pounds to put it in order. This place is ten miles from Hamilton, and in a suburb that has not been worked. I spoke in the hall one week ago last Sunday to a good class of people. If we had another tent we could draw the crowd, but it is getting too late for the meetings to be held in the cool nights. We will use the hall and then, if we think best to use the stone church, we will go to work at once to fit it up. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 10

The work is only begun at Newcastle, and we are very grateful that there are men who have means, who will donate and loan us money to build in Hamilton. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 11

In Wallsend, we will have some donations. The scattered sheep without a shepherd must be gathered in. All the churches that are reared up will bring in the tithe which will help to build up the work and cause it to be self-sustaining. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 12

We now have Elder Haskell and his wife, who have worked hard in Brisbane. They are now in Newcastle. Elder Starr will devote his time partially in Stanmore and partially in Newcastle. We have a dearth of laborers to labor in new localities, which we wish to work without delay.14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 13

I am speaking in the open air at Dora Creek and Martinsville. I spoke one week ago last Sabbath and Sunday at Newcastle, and last Sunday at Dora Creek had an assembly of some who had never been out before. This is the class we are trying to interest.14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 14

Three Sundays ago I spoke at Martinsville in the open air to a congregation of sixty. A small church must be built at Dora Creek and at Martinsville. There are some deeply interested, noble men and women, [who are] intelligent and will make good workers when they take their stand for the truth.14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 15

We have Maitland in view that must be worked in connection with Newcastle. Twenty miles from Newcastle I am invited to speak at Mt. Vincent, between Cooranbong and Newcastle. There is Toronto, a place where there is a large hall in which meetings are held. This we can use, in which to speak the words of truth. We seem to lie in a center where towns and stations are to be worked close by us. We see souls embracing the truth right along, and we want to work these places right now.14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 16

Brother Irwin, do not, I beg of you, because donations have been made, give up, the matter of raising money for our people to press the work in new places. The fifteen thousand dollars will all be consumed in establishing a sanitarium which we are in suffering need of, as soon as it can be built and more means will be required than the fifteen thousand to get the sanitarium in working order. There will have to be a branch of the sanitarium in Newcastle.14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 17

Brother Rand has had wonderful success in treating several cases that have been given up by all the physicians, and he has had complete success and this is having an influence upon the people, preparing the way to reach souls with the truth.14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 18

We see that we must make haste slowly, for want of workers and means to carry forward the work in the name of the Lord. Your plans to visit the churches and raise means are good. We see the need of more means to advance the work in the openings nigh and the regions afar off. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 19

The churches in America need to be aroused; let not there be a dead calm after the great arousing you have had. I feel deeply over this matter. Truth must triumph. Truth will bear away the victory if we will be faithful and true whole-souled workers. The Lord has manifested that He is turning His face toward His people. Press onward. Call for donations for there must be more to come to this field for us to carry forward the work. I state the matter as it is. This is our time to work. We have had some remarkable conversions to the truth, and we want more souls. We cry for all to come. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 20

“I Jesus have sent Mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David and the bright and Morning Star. And the Spirit and the Bride say Come, and let him that heareth say, Come.” Yes, those who hear and receive the message will voice the messengers, saying, “Come.” “And let him that is athirst come, and whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely.” [Revelation 22:16, 17.] The work must go, the call must be made. “Come.” “Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path.” [Psalms 119:105.] The sunlight of heaven must come to the dark places of earth. We want everybody to hear the message of warning. We want consecrated men and women who will work to present the truth as it is in Jesus, that those they shall win to the truth may converse with Jesus through the medium of His Word, and the receiver of the truth will be sanctified and his whole nature ennobled. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 21

I send you these words. May the Lord lead you to understand them. 14LtMs, Lt 216, 1899, par. 22

Portions of this letter are published in Ev 259-260; 9MR 307.

Dear Brother Irwin:

I have written these few lines in reference to our school in Battle Creek, and I feel deeply over these things. This Australian work is to go forward and not retrograde. We want proper helpers. We need strength and individuality sanctified. I would desire the very best gifts. If Sister Andre is the person that can carry forward a good work in our school, will you withhold her from us? We are most deeply disappointed that Dr. Lindsay did not come, and others who were expected did not come; but in the name of the Lord we advance. I do not feel very much flattered in regard to Elder Robinson, but I do hope he will be where he can be a helper and not a hindrance. The Lord give wisdom, is my prayer.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 217, 1899, par. 1

The school here must be no second school. God helping it must be the best of schools.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 217, 1899, par. 2

I began to write you a letter about Maitland. It would do your soul good to see [the] earnest faces of hundreds intently listening in eager expectation—merchants, three brothers, have their stores in the drapery [business] in one row. There are other merchants, the mayor, and the town clerk, and businessmen, who seem to feel our intense interest that we should keep the meetings up. We have had three weeks' meetings, then moved the tent into a paddock close by the house where Brother Starr is living. There is a large clubroom [near]. If it rains, or [the wind] tears down the tent, we can occupy that large room. The tent was moved yesterday.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 217, 1899, par. 3

[One of the] Kerr brothers—the eldest—said to us as we were sitting in the carriage, "I heard you thought of opening the work in East Maitland." Said he, "I thought that would be a mistake, to divide the interest. Keep a live interest. Do not divide. The singing must be kept up. All enjoy the singing." This sounds very pleasant. But the ministers are opening up their tirade, and against Mrs. White in particular. But this is only hurting themselves. We are more rejoiced than we can express. We begin to think we are not quite out of the world. To have such congregations of people in Maitland is marvelous. It is the Lord who is drawing the people.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 217, 1899, par. 4

I have spoken three Sabbaths and three Sundays in succession, and go again with my Jessie and Brother Haskell's Jasper horses twenty-seven miles, crossing Mt. Vincent. May the Lord give me the word to speak to the people. The people, one and another, are asking, "When is that old lady to speak again?" Brother Caro follows me Sabbath and Sunday, and he takes wonderfully with the people. They seem to believe that which we tell them. I am placing Desire of Ages, Great Controversy, Patriarchs and Prophets, and Christ Our Saviour in families; so while the ministers are working against me, I will speak in my writings to the people. I believe souls will be converted to the truth. We are now turning them to the law and to the testimonies. If they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 217, 1899, par. 5

An excellent spirit is in our meetings. Sundays there are one or two hundred children being educated in a large childrens' tent. If we organize a church here in Maitland, we shall be strengthening our outposts. We inquire, Who will be found tenderly, yet earnestly and faithfully, lifting up their voice and proclaiming the third angel's message? "And Jesus spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me, in heaven and in earth. Go ye therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." [Matthew 28:18-20.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 217, 1899, par. 6

We shall commence work at Wallsend and Lambton; but while the interest is kept good, we must not divide our forces. Brother Hilliard and Brother Gates will labor with us anywhere it seems he is most needed. He will settle his family in the large home rented by Brother Haskell. 14LtMs, Lt 217, 1899, par. 7

I will say to you and Brother Haskell, Keep your souls in the love of God, whatever happens. Keep joyful in God. Talk faith, courage, and do not fail nor be discouraged. Let the young men be encouraged to labor. The Lord wants men to go forth preaching everywhere. Do not remain in Battle Creek until your heart loses its soft, subduing, winning [influence]. Do all you can in speaking the Word of God with all boldness and clear, intelligent, straightforward truth. Let a man so account of us, the ministers of Christ and stewards of the mysteries of God. O, that all that minister in word and doctrine would show that they have the high commission which no man, no body of men, can confer. Every minister of the gospel whom the Holy Spirit has called to the work bears the divine credentials—not self-willed, not soon angry, not given to wine, not given to filthy lucre. 14LtMs, Lt 217, 1899, par. 8

But the word comes: “Must close.” God bless you and your wife. 14LtMs, Lt 217, 1899, par. 9

Haskell, Brother and Sister [S. N.]

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

November 29, 1899

Portions of this letter are published in PM 344; 3MR 275; 7MR 391.

Dear Brother Haskell and Sister Haskell:

I have been visiting Maitland since the camp meeting. There are some of the very best people interested, and I am placing my books in these families. I gave the mayor [a] best-bound volume of Desire of Ages; and the Kerr brothers, three in number, each have one of my books, and can interchange one with another. I have placed my books into the hands of several others, and this, I think, is the very best way I can do to leave with them the light God has given me. This has been, all along, under the direction of God. A gift in this line is letting the light shine forth in many families, and the message is appealing to the whole family. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 1

The great desire I have had is that Maitland shall be thoroughly worked. It is in so close touch with Cooranbong that it is our neighbor as decidedly as Newcastle. I have spoken on five sabbaths and Sundays in Maitland, and we see a large field to be worked. There are all kinds of material—wealthy farmers. Another class is composed of men and women, well-to-do, owning their own farms, and there is not that objection that is looming up before them that presents itself to people who have to work for those who employ them. Being their own masters, they are not dependent upon their employers. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 2

We can appreciate the words of Christ as entirely applicable to Maitland: “Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest. ... And herein is that saying true, One soweth, and another reapeth.” [John 4:35, 37.] This representation is true to the letter. The sowing and the reaping are going forward at the same time. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 3

Elder Colcord is made president of the New South Wales Conference. Elder Starr is called to Melbourne. He will serve for one year serve as president of that conference, because they chose him to be thus. As Brother Robinson was coming to Cooranbong, that himself and wife should help in the school and in the church, all [thought] it a wise plan to connect him with us, and this pleases him; therefore we hope to be some help to Brother Robinson, and he [will] help us. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 4

We are in for a continuous labor here in these fields, all new, but white for the harvest. We are now planning how to enter East Maitland. The work is only just entered upon in West Maitland. The old tent will serve as their place of meeting for a time, but it is now rotten and old, and we must, as soon as we can get means, replace it with [a] new tent. A smaller tent will be used in the settlement about ten miles between Newcastle and Maitland. This is a large place, and the higher classes are located in that place. But the soul of the big camp meeting has extended everywhere. Telegrams came to the people of Maitland from Singleton when the storm came upon the encampment, to know if the tents were damaged. That place is all white for the harvest. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 5

Then there is the mining distinct, quite a settlement, but much improved from the miners in Newcastle. Twenty from one town came to the meeting one evening, and made a request for the ministers to come and speak to them, three miles away. They are at their mines all day, but they want evening meetings. Brother Hickox and wife will make that place their missionary ground, in connection with Maitland. Several meetings have been held there, with promising results. My word to the ministers and workers is, Hold fast with persevering effort Newcastle, Maitland, and the surrounding settlements. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 6

Maitland is altogether the most favorable field to be worked, and we must, I tell them, surrender themselves without reserve to God. Once a fortnight we shall drive with our own team to those places, and I shall not confine myself to Maitland proper, but shall go out into the settlements. We never came across a people more kind and courteous, and more willing and anxious to be instructed—starving sheep. They are exactly as it has been represented to me.

My soul hungers and thirsts to see decided fruit from all the efforts we are trying to make. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 7

Elder Daniells is in New Zealand attending their camp meetings. He says he sees now why the Lord designated Cooranbong as the place for the school; for we are placed in one section of His great moral vineyard. Maitland is only twenty-seven miles from Cooranbong. This is a thriving city, and [the] farmers [are] independent. [They] can keep the Sabbath if they see the truth, and we mean to leave no stone unturned. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 8

We must have a people and a strong church. A building must go up in Maitland as soon as possible. This is a city of churches, and this is a church-going people; and the people who have the breath of spiritual life in them are not satisfied. They say the shepherds do not feed the flock. Ministers are paid five hundred pounds per year, and they take their text and preach war sermons and politics. We, say they, are ignorant of the Bible and are ashamed that we know so little. Merchants purchased Bibles at our book stands, that they might mark the passages and study them in their homes. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 9

We miss you in your labors. We oft wish you were here, for it would be in some respects a new chapter in your experience to see the sheep hunting for the shepherds to get the pure provender they needed. But I am glad you are where you are. Do not become discouraged. Meet the people with a courageous front. Keep the eye steadfastly fixed on your Leader. Dark and cloudy faces will confront you, but the bright beams of the Sun of Righteousness will melt away this feature, and you will have the victory in God. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 10

The Lord has a people in our churches in America, and they have become, some of them, discouraged and confused. But talk the truth. The third angel's message is to go forth with power, and [it] will pierce the moral darkness black as velvet. Expect everything possible that God can give. Do not talk doubts; do not ponder doubts. God has a people true as steel to principle, but they are confused. They are walking like blind men. Help them, for Christ's sake, help them. Walk with Jesus, talk with Jesus, and then you have light and comfort and love and power from your best Friend. O, it is such a privilege! “Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing into everlasting life.” [Verse 14.] We need more faith. The bright beams of the Sun of Righteousness will disperse every dark cloud. May the Lord Jesus abundantly bless you, my brother and my sister. I miss you very much, but remain until your work is done. Then we welcome you back again, for there is a large work for you to do. How comforting it is to know that we do not need to stumble our way along in midnight darkness. Light is sown for the righteous, and truth and gladness for the upright in heart. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 11

Now I am going to tell you what I am going to do—stop writing long letters after this mail goes. You may say to my friends [that] I have a work to do which forbids my writing letters. Sister Peck and I take right hold of my writings that have been accumulating for years—we are now determined to wait for no one to take up this work, and make our own books. I have waited for others to help, and delay, delay, delay is the result. Now the Testimonies are to come out. [A] book on education [is] to be brought out, and if it is not a perfect work, it shall be brought [out] to be criticized and improved. Better have it, if it is not perfect, than to keep the light in a napkin, hid away in the drawers and boxes. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 12

No more, or very little, letter writing comes from me after this. My articles will be continued in the papers, and that is nearly all I can do. Now I will say, God bless you both. Pray for me; for I need your prayers. 14LtMs, Lt 218, 1899, par. 13

Previously unpublished.

Dear Brethren Irwin and Haskell:

W. C. White has brought me the letter written to you in which [the] statement is made that the neglect of the men in responsible positions to heed the appeals that have been made for the Southern Field, and closing their senses [so] that they should not do the very work of God that they should do, left the burden upon the workers to feel free to go anywhere, in any part of the American field, and call directly upon the people and ask them to help—their means not to pass through any office or society. [Also] those who are workers in these destitute fields, if those who are as stewards over the works which should demand their interest and their help [neglect their responsibility]—[then] those who understand the necessities of the field have a perfect right to bring their case before the hearts of those who are not sealed and solicit help. I am sorry to have to say this, but the Lord's work in His vineyard must be done. And if the men in responsible positions make no special effort to prepare the way for the workers, they must devise and plan to prepare their own way. 14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 1

I am so sorry the wonderful liberality that expressed itself in the General Conference has been, after a limited donation, as disappointing as was acted in the Norman case. I think our people have had a representation, in the providence of God, of the depth of their repentance. God pity His cause, is my prayer. When the Conference show themselves as zealous as in their prayers and in their confessions at the General Conference, and bear the fruit that testifies of the character of a good tree, then the Lord will work, giving them that repentance that needeth not to be repented of. 14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 2

I am very anxious to learn how Dr. Kellogg is conducting the work. His letter to Dr. Caro was read to me by the Doctor; and this letter expressed the same determination to not try to be connected with Seventh-day Adventists. He expressed his great disappointment in his feelings that they were not enthused with the meeting. He spoke of it as a grand meeting, appreciated by all but the ministers in our denomination. And he said this meeting at Gull Lake [?] had convinced him it was no use to expect co-operation from the Seventh-day Adventists. I have not directed any recently written letter to the Dr. Kellogg. This mail bears letters that may surprise you, but I dare withhold nothing. I wish I could see you and converse with you. Last Sunday we were looking around for a location for the sanitarium. We mean to begin as soon as we can find a location. 14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 3

We were looking last Wednesday at Maitland for a place for camp meeting. We rode twenty-seven miles with the two Jessie's. It was a hilly road, and we could not drive fast. We ate our lunches by the wayside; then in East Maitland stepped into our carriage with our tired horses to visit West Maitland. This had been, during the last rains, under water. The water came up fifteen feet, and Hunter River was as high as eighteen feet above its usual rise. The water did not do much damage, but not a bit of land could we find that was safe to have our camp meeting. The small fair grounds that had been flooded, were very sickening. This was [an] extra eight miles farther. Then we returned to East Maitland, and here are two desirable places I think we can obtain. There has been a large, roomy house secured on a high rise of ground, a beautiful flower garden and chicken house and outbuildings in excellent order, for the sum of fourteen shillings. It was thought best for Sarah and Elder Daniells and myself to take the cars directly to Newcastle and on to Sydney. We had just time to run from the wagon to the cars and just step on the train, and we were off. 14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 4

Sabbath, I spoke at Ashfield. Expected to speak at Stanmore, but after all the journeying I was sick. We had an excellent meeting at Ashfield. Good meeting reported from Stanmore. Sunday Brother Starr met with church officers in Parramatta. He was much gratified with the meeting. Sunday evening Brother Daniells spoke in the hall at Leichhart. About three hundred were present. All listened with deep interest. These meetings are to be kept up, not lecturing or preaching in the little churches, but in securing halls and getting at the people. A collection was taken, which paid for hall and sixteen shillings beside. This effort is helping our people to see that it is not the will of God [for us] to be shut in so much with our own people in our labor, but take meetings to halls and make earnest efforts to let our light shine forth to those who are in darkness. The matter is urged upon me that we must press out in new places and arouse and educate the people. We must possess active energy to seek and to save the lost. Cast in the seed, and there is another powerful agency that works with our human effort through speech to communicate the Word and to sow the seed of truth. 14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 5

The sleepless, ever-active, unseen agencies are at work to secure the great results, the saving of the soul. We must pray in faith, and trust, committing all to God after we have done our best. Man is not the mighty power of God, which takes care of the seed sown. We must pray and work and wait patiently, and watch unto prayer. Our work is aggressive. 14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 6

[The] Sunday after, we took the nine o'clock morning train for Pennant Hills, and were out until the five o'clock train—Brethren John Wessels, Morse, Sharp, Sarah and I. Brother Radley met us with his team, and Brother Schowie's son with his father's team. Doctors Caro and Reekie joined us afterwards, and we rode all around to see what places would be favorable. There are some very beautiful places, but land is beyond our reach, I fear. O, if some good, liberal soul would only give us the land in some desirable location! Land is two, three, and five pounds a foot. We returned to Strathfield. I could not sleep after eleven o'clock, and commenced writing most earnestly in regard to the completion of an article on the overdoing of the picture making. 14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 7

We had important meetings on Monday again. Monday afternoon we went in the two-wheel trap to Ryde—beautiful location for an institution; but we are to look again in a day or two. Returned home in evening train Monday evening. 14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 8

Sister Wilson writes for me to come Sunday to Wallsend to speak in the tent Sunday afternoon. I must get off this mail matter before I can tell what to do. Elder Haskell, you may be interested to hear [that] several have embraced the truth in Wallsend. Sister Wilson is quite encouraged.14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 9

Elder Starr says the wife of a sea captain has embraced the Sabbath. Her sister also is on the point of deciding in Hamilton. This lady gave one pound before she embraced the Sabbath; then, after she embraced the Sabbath, she gave two pounds, and says she will have more money soon to give. This woman (wife of a captain) is an intelligent woman. O, how it makes my heart rejoice to have one soul turn unto the Lord.14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 10

In four weeks our school closes. Then the camp meeting commences in Toowoomba. I pledged myself to go last year, and I do not dare to disappoint them. After this there will be two weeks. Then the tents will be pitched, the Lord willing, in East Maitland. If we can see the Lord at work to create an interest in this place, and a church shall be raised up, it will be wonderfully strengthening to our forces. We are made very accountable and responsible in receiving the precious seed, for God requires every one to bring forth the fruit of the seed sown. We see a great work to be done. But I have been up since one o'clock, and I must stop. The Lord bless you. The meetinghouse in Hamilton we hope may be finished for dedication before we leave for Toowoomba. It may be that it will not be completed.14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 11

I cannot get this copied. It must go without copying.14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 12

Yours in love.14LtMs, Lt 219, 1899, par. 13

Haskell, Brother and Sister [S. N.]

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

October 24, 1899

Portions of this letter are published in PH139 17-18.

Dear Brother and Sister Haskell:

Home again. We had a pleasant meeting for all our people who attended this camp meeting. The tents, new and clean, were pitched in a most beautiful park, which was secured for ten pounds. More than this would have been consumed in the outlay of timber to create the buildings essential for a campground. But we were much disappointed that so few people not of our faith attended this meeting. Everything was done that could be done to draw them. Thousands of Echoes were received and paid for by the people, with the notices also of the meeting, but very few came to the tent. They would promise to come but did not come. The brethren spoke well, and the Spirit of the Lord was in the meeting. But the very ones who ought to have heard this last message of warning to our world, did not attend. 14LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 1

Our people from Brisbane came to the meeting, and the congregation was small, but interested. I spoke six times. The last Sabbath and Sunday my message was upon practical godliness. I had much freedom as I tried to present what constituted true faith in God, irrespective of feeling. I related on Sabbath afternoon the experience I had in Basel, Switzerland—the dream for Sister Martha Bourdeau, in regard to gathering the roses and the lilies and the pinks, and not grasping the thistles which wounded and bruised her hands. You know, I think, all about this. Together with it I presented before them the necessity of keeping head and heart uplifted to God in living, active faith. 14LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 2

We must be laborers together with God, and act as faithful soldiers in this warfare against error and evil. All can do something. We must all be lightbearers to the world. Throw the whole soul and being into the masses, where there are the most souls who need to be won and saved.14LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 3

After I had spoken above one hour, I left the meeting for others to carry on. I was informed by Brother Daniells that many testimonies were borne, all making reference to the instruction given. Gather the roses, the lilies, and the pinks. They said they were determined from henceforth to engage in this kind of work, for they could glorify God much better than to be troubling themselves in regard to thistles. They would let these alone.14LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 4

For two or three days there were successful, satisfactory meetings in organizing Queensland believers into a conference. This was their wish.14LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 5

Friday morning, as I was up before daylight writing, I decided to speak Sunday forenoon rather than afternoon, and then leave on the train for Sydney a quarter before one o'clock. Sabbath I told our brethren my purpose. I had received important letters that needed answering, but no mail was to go on the Sunday train. I could be in Cooranbong Monday at twelve o'clock and consult with Willie in regard to this matter so important to be settled right. Brethren Tenney and Daniells thought it the right thing to do, and so I spoke Sunday forenoon. The Lord gave His Spirit and power.14LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 6

Sabbath I could not speak well. For half an hour the rain poured down in torrents. Many hymns were sung, and the singing could scarcely be heard. As soon as there was a little lull, and the thunder and lightning stopped, I commenced speaking. Then we had prayer and social meeting. Then without our dinner, we hastened on to the station. Sara had done all the packing when I was in the meeting. There was to be a baptism on Sunday. Sixteen were to be baptized. We had a safe journey. The brethren insisted that I should take the sleeper at six o'clock. Sara and I thought we would save the conference six dollars by not taking the sleeper, so we did not, and obtained [we] some rest during the night.14LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 7

I have had conversation with W. C. White and made a proposition to him that I would give the royalty on my coming book, The Parables, if the Review and Herald and the Pacific Press would donate their press work, and making of the books in neat, saleable style, and let all the avails be used to help relieve the debts upon our schools. This book will never grow old, and the avails shall go to the schools everywhere to help them. I thought this movement on my part would provoke others to self-denial and to benevolence and mercy, to take right hold of this matter and get out The Parables to do this work. Well, the Lord is, I believe, willing to help us in this work. I shall only draw upon the books to give some to the poor that cannot buy. W. C. White enters into this plan with great satisfaction. Of course, we have not the time to get this all before you in definiteness as we will when we have time.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 8

Brother Tenney and his wife came from Brisbane with horse and two-wheeled trap, and visited our people on the way. They are both pleased with the field, and mean to work as earnestly as possible. Quite a number have been converted to the truth—farmers living a few miles out of Toowoomba—through visiting in their homes. This work is to be carried on. Brother and Sister Herbert Lacey will remain and pitch the tent nearer the center of the city. Brother Tadish and wife will be his helpers, and several women will help in the work. Brother Herbert Lacey will speak in the tent, and then visit—both himself and wife—from house to house, laboring. Brethren Daniells and Tenney, with Brother Salisbury and Sister Graham, will complete the work of creating a conference in Queensland of itself. This is well, and as it should be.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 9

Here I was a little sleepy; about daylight my pen would not go. I have slept a little. It is now daylight. I cannot get this copied, for I have other matters I must speak of with W. C. White. I do hope to be able to write you some real good news, and will try to let the thistles alone, and gather the roses and the lilies and the pinks. I feel somewhat weary after my journey. I hope to hear that you are well, and are doing the people a great deal of good. Brother Tenney is now thoroughly convinced of the truth of the testimonies given him, in regard to his not undertaking editorial work, and keeping active. He says he is thoroughly satisfied on that point. We feel that he will do good in visiting from house to house.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 10

We shall expect you to return in one year from the time you left. I hope your visit will be a great blessing to our brethren and sisters in America.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 220, 1899, par. 11

Haskell, Brother and Sister [S. N.]

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

August, 1899

Portions of this letter are published in 13MR 135-136.

Dear Brother and Sister Haskell:

I have not slept well during the past night; but I am thankful that I am able to write a little, yes, considerable. I think of you, but it is with pleasure, because you are, I believe, and am assured, in your going to America at this time, doing the will of God. May the Lord sustain and bless you at every step. 14LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 1

I have things to send to you in writing that I deem very important, and I think it will be prepared in a form so that many may be benefited by it. I should oft be so pleased to have talks with you upon matters that are intensely interesting to me, that I am trying to write out, in reference to the specifications in Scriptural injunctions in regard to the duties one to another in Leviticus and Deuteronomy. We must just call to our minds those [precepts on] actual, practical missionary work, and work intelligently, and do the very principles of Christianity, the gospel of the Old Testament. 14LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 2

And this some call the Dark Ages. If so, it is not because they had no communication from heaven. [See] Leviticus 25. The Lord was over the whole earth. Every seventh year was a sabbatical year. This would be a wonderful arrangement down in this age of great light. Not only the agricultural processes were to be intermitted, but the cultivation of the soil was not permitted. It lay in its spontaneous growth for the benefit of the poor. All had free access to it—the strangers and the flocks and the herds. This was to invigorate the productive, worn-out soil, and to teach the Hebrew nation that God was the Householder, and the people were His tenants. The land had a sabbath, or yearly sabbath. 14LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 3

Then the jubilee, the fiftieth. The lessons given were to encourage liberality and overcome all stinginess, and to give lessons to all that it was the Lord's land. He was to be regarded as its owner, that He would make it productive, if they were obedient, by giving them His blessing upon their lands. The lesson given was that the Lord was taking care of the poor, and that He had made provision for them; and every seventh year the spontaneous crops were for them. This is the principle of liberality; a provision was made by special interposition of God. The sixth year, under God's supervision, the land yielded provision for three years; and it was a constant lesson that God was the Householder, and the land was His.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 4

I cannot write out all that is contained in Leviticus and Deuteronomy. But I think our people in this enlightened age of 1899, if they would go back to the period they call the "Dark Ages" and bring into their practical life the lessons that Christ gave to the Hebrews, they would act out the obedience God required of them. Their hearts would not be so full of selfish principles that when His brethren working in hard fields should ask a favor, that they would close the door of their heart and say, No.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 5

This has been done. I have seen individuals, (I might call by name, but forbear) who asked simple advantages. Seeing they would not help, they would not express their sympathy in the work, or co-operate, only so far as wages was concerned—in a poverty-stricken field, where the poor must be helped in order to help themselves. But they were exactly like those who knew the dire necessities of the case, but passed by on the other side. The people have, when called upon, sent in barrels of goods in cast-off clothing.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 6

Now, the way this matter has been treated has made it a duty for the workers in the Southern Field, [those] cultivating the very hardest part of the Lord's vineyard (and yet so little bowels of mercy, so little compassion, so little help given the Lord, who has appointed them to this work), are to call direct upon the people who have hearts of compassion, who have evidenced they could feel, in that they gave them money to help the Southern Field—eleven thousand dollars which they have not yet received. I have myself given several hundred dollars of money to that portion where Edson has been working, to relieve the destitute in that field, when every dollar of the means should have been expended in this field where there is so much to be done. 14LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 7

But I am reminded I must close up this matter. I was, a few nights since, presented with some illustration of the Norman great generosity. And it has come out that there are those that may study this as an object lesson and inquire are they disappointing the Lord, as that man has disappointed the General Conference. Is there not something to do in considering these things? We want hearts of flesh; tender hearts; kind, courteous hearts, that will feel the woes of others, and not be blind and deaf and dumb on this subject. 14LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 8

But you will excuse me from writing more, for I am very tried and must rest. Write me (I know you will) from America. Will you, my brother, ask Brother Irwin to let you see his letter, and then you will understand better about the matter. 14LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 9

In love. 14LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 10

[P.S.] I want in the next shipment of books that ten copies of The Review and Herald shall be sent to my address, to be sent to different churches that seldom have a minister. Charge to my account. 14LtMs, Lt 221, 1899, par. 11

White, J. E.; White, Emma

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

August 22, 1899

Previously unpublished.

Dear children Edson and Emma White:

We have just received your letters. Thank you for writing. I enter into the pith of the matter at once. After reading your letter, Edson, I have no urging to do. I leave it in this way; When you have light from the Lord, come, and our hearts are open to receive you. You could be a great help to me in my preparation of books. You are going to right way to work. The Lord has worked with you, for you are in a hard field, but He gives you success. If it is His will, you should continue in the field still. He will work with your efforts if you trust in Him, and He has not left you to toil and struggle alone. Angels of God have been your defense, and will work with you if you will keep meek and lowly of heart. He is your defense.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 222, 1899, par. 1

When I was brought to see the principles that were controlling the minds and some hearts of those who are in important positions of trust, that there was so great absence of the love of Christ, and of His kindness and courtesy and genuine Christian politeness, I wrote a letter to them and one to you. As soon as they thought they had an excuse, because you made a mistake in the investing of means in the boat as you did, then the enemy came in to take possession of their hearts, to close them, to drive you into disagreeable positions, just as the enemy wanted they should. They felt they would not trust you whatever your position might be; not a favor would you have from them. While the Lord accepted your repentance, there were those who were as set as steel, but they knew not what spirit was controlling them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 222, 1899, par. 2

done that, in cooperating with you, that no human power could do. And when they see the evidence by the fruit born (Ye shall know them by their fruit), they closed their eyes and senses to the evidence. But it is not the spirit that God would sanction in you or in them that has been exercised. They will need your pity rather than your blame, for they are greatly deceived and knew not, [that] while they have taken a course of vigor it is in Satan's lines they are working. Christ is not in it, therefore never follow their example, for just as surely will the Lord bring every soul of them over the strait places they have allowed yourself and others in like circumstances to come in [to], when they made no effort to release you and others who were doing the very hardest kind of work. 14LtMs, Lt 222, 1899, par. 3

The Lord will not, cannot, bless any who go so contrary to His word and so contrary to the Spirit of Christ, who has sent His angels to work with you, and to bless you and your associate workers. I write you these things that you may never suppose that God has not had compassion, that God has not favored you. He has upheld you, and to His holy name be all the glory. But you must not, although some are working in wrong lines and have dropped the love of God and their brethren out of their hearts when it was needed so much, have the feelings of retaliation. It is because they need melting over. But you must not do after the same principles. They grieve the heart of Christ and must make thorough work for repentance. I should not vindicate their course for one moment, and yet I am so sorry for these men because they have not heeded reproofs and warnings to deal justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with God. The Lord will bring them over the same ground, every one of them, to realize what it means to have to pass through such hard places as you have without sympathy and love. 14LtMs, Lt 222, 1899, par. 4

Keep your eyes fixed on Jesus. He will never disappoint you. Do not mind what others say or others do. Be free to love your brethren and do all the good you can, for we go through this world but once, and how much more pleasing to God and the heavenly universe to leave a fragrant influence behind you. Crowd all the good works into your life that is possible. Be cheerful, be pitiful, be courteous, help everyone you can help. You will see the charge of the Lord to His church in the wilderness, that they must love even the stranger who chose to dwell with them, and treat him tenderly and, if in need, help him.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 222, 1899, par. 5

I have written an article on this subject for the papers. I hope it will do good, because the Lord is not now pleased with those in responsible places who are not searching and studying what the will of the Lord is, [and] fearing greatly lest they shall not do the things pleasing in His sight. Bear in mind: you are a servant of the heavenly King, and you must honor and glorify His name. You can make your speech eloquent with kind words coming from the heart. Catch the bright beams from the face of Jesus and live Christ. Let nothing discourage you. I will no longer urge you to come to Australia, but will help you, all [that is] in my power where you are. I am glad Brother Smouse is engaged in this work. I meant to have written him a letter in this mail. I cannot get this copied, but will send it to you, imperfect as it is, not being able to take the time to correct mistakes. I commit this to you, assuring you that we will keep your interest before us and with us, and do our best to help you in the Southern Field. This disjointed letter I am sorry to send, but the Lord knows I would do better if I had the time. I must close. God bless you.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 222, 1899, par. 6

This letter is published in entirety in 20MR 85-86.

Dear Children Edson and Emma:

I feel a great desire to see you and to have you connect with me in my work. I have been unwilling to write you, hoping and praying the Lord would send you. But the Southern Field has been presented to me as a difficult field to work, because of the white people who have the slave master’s spirit with the slave master’s cruelty in exercising the same, as if the blacks were not more than beasts; and to be treated worse than the dumb animals because they are in the form of man, having the marks of the black—Negro—race.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 223, 1899, par. 1

As you have had so little cooperation in your work by those who should have helped you in all their power, and as there has been so little interest in your work, the Lord would not have you work to such disadvantage, for health and strength are failing, and there are places where you could do a good work for the Master. Some things were presented before me of a determination of men who, under their general, Satan, were full of hatred to you and to your work. This is the best evidence you can have that the work was of the Lord, that Satan stirred up the people as he did against Paul the Apostle.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 223, 1899, par. 2

The Lord has preserved you, that they could not do you harm, but you now know what you will meet. It is enough to meet this against the enemies of the truth, but when those of our own faith show so little interest and their hearts are as selfish and unsympathizing as a stone, the Lord would not have you exposed to perils without and unsanctified, unconsecrated elements in responsible positions of trust. They have not yet hearts that have been worked by the Holy Spirit. I am so sorry, I am so sad for these brethren who have manifested the selfish, unsympathizing spirit, for in every case these individuals will be brought over the ground, the very same trials will come upon them, when they will be brought into positions where they will remember that their hearts were destitute of the love of Jesus Christ, and therefore they had none to flow out in free, rich currents toward their brethren in hard places.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 223, 1899, par. 3

There is a work to be done for those who claim to be servants of God. The softening, subduing power of God is to come into their lives, but never will it be until they have humility. The Spirit cannot work with them until they are learners in the school of Christ. I was in an assembly where there were the responsible men in the publishing institutions. I was bearing a message from God; I was greatly burdened. I stood up in the power of God and read to them 1 Corinthians 13 [and] Hebrews 12:12-15.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 223, 1899, par. 4

Brethren Jones and Sisley, Tait and Belden:

Some matters have been presented to me of which I will speak. The question regarding the duty of the publishing houses has been brought before my mind. My attention was called to The Gospel Primer, which was prepared for the benefit of the people and the work in the Southern Field. The management of that little book has not been on correct lines, and those whose eyes are opened can better understand, now, the curious ways in which it has been handled.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 225, 1899, par. 1

The Gospel Primer was a cheap, simple book, which was prepared for a special purpose. Its large sale has proved that it is acceptable to many besides the people in the Southern Field. The profits from these sales should have been given to the work in the Southern Field. The work in that field needs all that can be brought to it from this source.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 225, 1899, par. 2

In the dealings with The Gospel Primer, justice and righteousness were disregarded, and the judgment of men was confused. Another book was brought in to crowd out the Primer, but it could not take its place, for the Primer had the A B C of gospel instruction to ignorant, benighted souls. A strange work has been done in regard to this little book, and this work stands recorded in the books of heaven, revealing the character of those who turned from its rightful place the means which should have gone to the South for the advancement of a worthy and needy work.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 225, 1899, par. 3

Another book has been published, in the hope that its sale would furnish means to help in the upbuilding of the work among the colored people of the South. But hardly had its work begun, when another book was brought out by Pacific Press, which will call the attention of the people away from The Coming King. I have not seen this new book, but from the light given me, I know that it will cut directly across the path of the book preceding it, because it covers almost the same ground and speaks almost the same things. I have been shown that evils which have existed in the past will press themselves into the work again. This new book cannot fail to get in the way of the other book which it is so much like. 14LtMs, Lt 225, 1899, par. 4

These movements bear not the marks of the Spirit of God. They plainly reveal the devisings of men. Both authors and publishers should have foresight, and carefully weigh the results upon other books and other enterprises, before bringing out new works. These things are not regarded as they should be. Greater discretion is required in the management of these matters, if our work shall redound to the glory of God. Those appointed to responsible positions in the publishing work must now give careful consideration to these important matters. They must carefully discriminate between right and wrong, justice and injustice, that they may discern what is equality and fair dealing. Means which should have been used in the Southern Field have been diverted to other channels. 14LtMs, Lt 225, 1899, par. 5

Fairness must be observed in the publishing work. Our brethren must not move in a haphazard manner, else they may do injustice to a brother who has worked hard and borrowed money to invest in a book. 14LtMs, Lt 225, 1899, par. 6

There is danger of a recklessness coming into the publishing work, which will place it where it requires readjustment. The rule should be followed that a second book on any subject is not to be crowded into the market till the one preceding it has had a fair chance. I now leave with you these words of admonition and caution. 14LtMs, Lt 225, 1899, par. 7

Dear Brother and Sister Haskell:

I have had a long hard pull of writing to the Conference in America. The burden has been great and has swallowed up every other matter. I dared not give strength or writing to anything else, and I fear we are now just two mails behind, but they must have the matter. I will, in this morning's mail, send you copies so you can understand the matters we are treating. Our mail went last evening to Newcastle, to go down on the night train and catch the boat that leaves in the morning. 14LtMs, Lt 226, 1899, par. 1

I have been up morning after morning at one and half-past one, and [have] written all the day. Yesterday was a most trying day for me, to complete the writings I had on hand, and I did not get nervous. All tried to help me quickly. The past two days have been earnest working days for me. Now I rest until Friday, and then go to Newcastle to attend Sabbath and Sunday meetings. If Brisbane were as near as Newcastle or Sydney, be assured I should be seen in your midst. 14LtMs, Lt 226, 1899, par. 2

I am pleased that your meetinghouse is nearly finished. It is that which was a necessity, and we must arise and build in Newcastle. The dearth of means is at the present time felt, possibly, by us all; but the Lord understands this, and if we walk humbly with God, He will safely bless. But if we lift up our souls unto vanity and self-sufficiency, then we stand in our own finite strength. We each have our work to do, and we must trade on our talents and be faithful stewards. Work! There is plenty of work to do! Now is our day of trust. The Lord Jesus in His great mercy has allotted to every individual a special work to do, and He will assist every worker who will labor with his eye single to the glory of God. 14LtMs, Lt 226,

You speak of Judge being dismissed from the school. It was a right thing to do; unless it was done, his sly, deceptive practice would leaven the whole school. He was writing letters to Millie Edwards and trying to convey communications with her, notwithstanding he was making pretensions of having had a wonderful experience. He was a great perplexity in his case, and he was cautioned and warned. But while he made fair promises, he did not keep his word. You must understand we have altogether a different class of students than when you were in the school. Those were older, and were Christians not merely in name but in character, but are not attending the school this year.14LtMs, Lt 226, 1899, par. 4

[The] girls and boys—a large number came from farms, where they have never been confined in schools and are wild and ignorant—are undisciplined, more like wild colts, both girls and boys. The little Miss Christabel McCullagh is here and a handful to manage. She has to be watched vigilantly. She is wise to do evil, and ready to cut up any capers she can if she can do it on the sly. We wish we had more of the students as we had the first and second terms. I have only spoken twice in the school, but I shall hope to be able to talk to them oftener. There is a larger number of students than the two former terms.14LtMs, Lt 226, 1899, par. 5

There has been much carefulness, and there has been much labor to organize, which would bring things into order indoors. This light has been given me very decidedly as a thing that must be done: [that] everything indoors and out-of-doors must work by well-devised plans, that the Lord was looking down upon the school at this disorderly ways. Much time was lost hunting for working tools that were left scattered in any place. All these things have cost much care and much hard work to bring about system and school regulations out-of-doors and indoors. We think that the Lord presides and makes things felt, and the school will be handled more easily.14LtMs, Lt 226, 1899, par. 6

We ask: Can you come this way? And can you spend some labor in Ballarat? Just now you would be a great blessing to them there.14LtMs, Lt 226, 1899, par. 7

I have written very plainly to McCullagh and have not daubed with untempered mortar. I do not want [that] he should be put in trust as a shepherd of the flock until he has an opportunity to be enlightened in the Scriptures. 14LtMs, Lt 226, 1899, par. 8

If you could not now visit us here, and especially at Newcastle, then visit Melbourne or, rather, Ballarat. It would do, I think, a great amount of good. Your Bible instruction would come in nicely. I have this in mind considerably, and if you can rest here a little, we will do all we can to make you comfortable. You can have our parlor, and we will put a bed in it, and then you can just go to Newcastle. Stay as long as you please. Just at this point your help would be greatly appreciated. But if you see no light in this, tell me so. I see light in it, and Elders Daniells, Starr, W. C. White, and myself have harmonious ideas on this point. Take the matter to the Lord, and come if you can. 14LtMs, Lt 226, 1899, par. 9

If McCullagh could now have the lessons you give on Bible subjects, I believe it would now help him to rivet to the divine Book. 14LtMs, Lt 226, 1899, par. 10

I am anxious for this to be. Just tell us quick as you can about it. This must go to the mail. 14LtMs, Lt 226, 1899, par. 11

Dear Brother Haskell:

The past day has been one of deep interest. This has been the most interesting and promising camp meeting we have ever attended. The outside interest has been excellent from the first. There has been a variety in the meetings, and the outside attendance has exceeded all our expectations. Night after night during the week, even on the holidays, the large tent has been full. The attendance has been estimated at fifteen hundred—sometimes in the week days as high as twelve hundred. And Sunday afternoons and evenings, from fifteen hundred to two thousand have been in attendance. The earnest, interested faces turned toward the speakers with intense interest, has given us the expectation that this field is right for the harvest. 14LtMs, Lt 227, 1899, par. 1

The three Sabbath meetings now past have been deeply interesting. In the afternoon there was a sea of heads intently listening to catch every word. After the words were spoken from the living oracles of God, then came the social meeting, giving all an opportunity to speak. Many church members arose, and said that they did not find food in the ministry of the churches. 14LtMs, Lt 227, 1899, par. 2

But I have time to write only a few lines. Last Sabbath night Dr. Caro gave a lecture to three thousand people, with views showing the results of intemperance. These representations, with his very solemn remarks, were very impressive. Although the tent was crowded to its utmost capacity, the people were as orderly as in a church. God's Spirit was in the meeting, making impressions of these object lessons. O what a crowd! Many were outside of the tent, but the pictures were so arranged that nearly all could see. They cheered the Doctor, but he quelled the demonstration.14LtMs, Lt 227, 1899, par. 3

Sunday afternoon I spoke to two thousand people, and God gave me liberty. I had dreaded this large gathering, but the Lord helped me. W. C. White called me to see the crowd leaving the tent. What a sight! I never expected to see such a sight in Newcastle.14LtMs, Lt 227, 1899, par. 4

Last night Elder Daniells spoke to more than were in attendance in the afternoon. I cannot now remember his subject, but the most intense interest was manifested. This closed the camp meeting proper. Now comes the after working.14LtMs, Lt 227, 1899, par. 5

I have written you a letter, but I cannot now find it. I think it must have been packed, with the supposition that my writing was over.14LtMs, Lt 227, 1899, par. 6

We thank God for this meeting. It has closed with a full tide of interest. Now the tent will be retained one week longer, and by that time the new tent will be ready to set up. The tent is to be moved now to a new place, easy of access and near which Elder Starr will find rooms, which are not desirable, but the very best they can obtain. Just across the road from [the] tent, Brother and Sister Lacey are also located.14LtMs, Lt 227, 1899, par. 7

We must now work as never before. The country is stirred as far as Maitland, and in the suburbs all around here. The Lord is certainly at work, and we must do our very best. I do not see how I can go to Ballarat. The people will come to hear Mrs. White, and seem to be delighted with what I call my poor labor. Work is opened here, and a great circumference is to be worked. Newcastle is extended over a large district, and the Lord has a work to be done here for which we shall need much of His Holy Spirit, that we may teach line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little. We know not which shall prosper, whether this or that. 14LtMs, Lt 227, 1899, par. 8

We believe that God will work with your efforts in Brisbane. He alone can give success in the battle, whether there be many or few.

I would be glad to labor right here at this time, and I cannot see why it is not my duty to do this. When the Sabbath question is brought home more closely than it is possible to do in a large crowd, then the test comes. Then decisions will be made. O my soul, what a work is before us! I fear; I tremble before God, lest we should make mistakes. But the Lord's presence has been on this ground, and He is working through His human agents. Truth will triumph and bear away the victory. We will watch, we will pray, we will move forward, step by step, in His name, glorifying God. I must stop here.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 227, 1899, par. 9

In love.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 227, 1899, par. 10

Dear Brother Haskell:

Your telegram came yesterday afternoon. I have thought the matter over, and cannot possibly leave my work and workers. We are called upon for advice and for the adjusting of the workers, finding places for them where they can be boarded and where they can room, and be kept in the best possible good feeling and spirit to do the work. But this is only one little item. Colcord has had to go to Sydney to have a tooth fixed. Elder Daniells is there now. There is not the least need of me, and I think they have all the preaching that will do them any good.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 228, 1899, par. 1

But aside from all this, I must attend to my work. The cold is still upon me, but I am improving. But it is not that that would hinder my going. I am pressed with burdens that none can do but myself. I am to use my pen, and keep a clear, well-balanced mind to do the work on hand. I cannot leave this work for another to do, for it would not be done. I want every jot of strength and power now to cast out the net and draw in [the] fishes it may take. I speak next Sunday at Martinsville in the grassy paddock, then can come directly home; and that without confusion will be no tax. They need me here, and I am not needed in Sydney. The boat will be in from Auckland next Monday. It was at Auckland Tuesday night. That brings another mail for me to read, and answer letters.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 228, 1899, par. 2

I feel no special burden for Sydney now, but I do feel a burden that souls nigh shall have the words of truth and efforts be made to bring them in. Cooranbong and stations between here and Cooranbong must be visited, and the truth must be preached. They have as yet had scarcely any labor. We must now work as we have never done before. I ask you to look at the fields just within reach of our arms, to see and understand their necessity. This must go to the mail.14LtMs, Lt 228, 1899, par. 3

Dear Brother Starr:

I gave a little talk to the church last Sabbath, telling them of the commission Christ gave to His disciples to labor for all people, tongues, and nations. There is no limit to our work, but we have a limited faith. I solicited out brethren and sisters to call upon the name of the Lord and pray most earnestly in genuine faith for the work and for the people for whom we work. If we obtain the victory we must be earnest ourselves and plead with God for His Holy Spirit. We must talk and pray in faith that we may have the precious anointment of the Holy Spirit. Brethren Hickox and Colcord and Starr, bear in mind the promise of divine agencies to work with our efforts, for this is needed, we know, when we have not to wrestle against flesh and blood, but “against principalities, and against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand.” [Ephesians 6:12, 13.] We must pray. We cannot depend upon our own finite strength. Be instant in prayer. 14LtMs, Lt 230, 1899, par. 1

We do not exercise that faith, perseveringly claiming the Holy Spirit. I tell you, we must have the baptism of the Holy Spirit. It is for us, and we must have it. We are living in that time of this earth’s history when we must meet to pray for the special blessing upon us individually, and then we shall be in Christ, and through Christ victorious. We are too easily satisfied with limited, special, far-between blessings. We are to lay hold of God by faith and labor to bring souls [to Christ]. We are to dwell in our doctrinal discourses upon the truth as it is in Jesus. 14LtMs, Lt 230, 1899, par. 2

Present the truth for this time as an important message, from another world. Lift Him up, the Man of Calvary. Come in consecration to holier ground, and still holier. Preach the truth with the power of God sent down from heaven. Let the truth take hold of the spiritual part of our own nature, and then the current of divine power will be communicated to those whom we address. Bear in mind we must have increased faith. Our faith is too small. What can give us the aid the crisis demands as [like] the intelligent knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus? We want His nature—all our faculties and powers strengthened and vitalized by the Spirit of Christ.14LtMs, Lt 230, 1899, par. 3

The Lord means that we shall have feeling—our whole soul and being brought in complete unity with Jesus Christ. This present place and opportunity will turn with the best results for the future of our work, and will be placing the work on vantage ground if we will seek the blessings which Christ has promised [in order] to make our work a decided victory. Ever bear the message as Christ's witnesses. Unless we do have the Holy Spirit in a decided manner in this effort, we shall meet with a great loss. Keep the work moving in simplicity, and this you will if the melting love of Christ breaks up the fallow ground of our own hearts. But have faith in God; take hold of the promise and never let go. W. C. White has come. Can write no more.14LtMs, Lt 230, 1899, par. 4

Henry, S. M. I.

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

December, 1899

Portions of this letter are published in 7MR 165-167.

Dear Sister Henry:

I am not able to write much, but I desire to say that I was greatly pleased with your letter, in which you gave me the history of your experience with the W.C.T.U. When I read it, I said, “Thank the Lord. That is seed sowing which is of value.” I am pleased, so much pleased. The Lord has certainly opened your way. Keep it open if possible. A work can be accomplished by you. Preserve your strength for such efforts. Attend important gatherings when you can. These occasions will be very trying seasons, but when the Lord gives His ones a special work to do, He sends His angels to be round about them. 14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 1

There are very many precious souls whom the Lord would have reached by the light of truth. Labor is to be put forth to help them to understand the Scriptures. I have felt an intense interest in the W.C.T.U. workers. These heroic women know what it means to have an individuality of their own. I desire so much that they shall triumph with the redeemed around the great white throne. My prayers shall rise in your behalf that you may be given special opportunities to attend their large gatherings, and that your voice may be heard in defense of the truth. 14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 2

I dare not give you advice in this important matter. You are on the ground and Christ is on the ground. Be assured that He will work with you and through you and by you. 14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 3

My heart is made very tender as I read of the interest manifested by the Lord in Cornelius. He sent a special message from heaven to Cornelius, and instructed His angel to tell Peter to visit Cornelius and give him light. It ought to be a great encouragement to you in your work to think of the compassion and tender love of God for those who are seeking and praying for light. We should hold convocations for prayer to ask the Lord to open the way, that the truth may enter the strongholds where Satan has set up his throne, and dispel the shadow which he has cast athwart the pathway of those he is seeking to deceive and to destroy. We have the promise, or rather, the assurance, "The effectual, fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." [James 5:16.]14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 4

We need not any vision to make more sure the substantial truth of this representation. Jesus ever liveth to make intercession for us. No sooner does the child of God approach the mercy seat than he becomes the client of the great Advocate. At his first utterance of penitence and appeal for pardon, Christ espouses his case, makes it His own, and presents the supplication before His Father as His own request.14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 5

Can any one doubt Christ's love? The Saviour presents the virtue of His mediation before the Father, and pledges Himself to the office of personal Intercessor. By proclaiming Himself as our Intercessor, He desires us to know that He places in the golden censor His merits and efficiency, that He may offer them with the sincere prayers of His people. How essential, then, that we pray much, for as our prayers ascend to the throne of God, they are mingled with the fragrance of Christ's righteousness. Our voice is not the only voice heard. Before it reaches the ear of God, it blends with the voice of Christ, whom the Father always hears.14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 6

Christ assures us that He is pledged to intercede in our behalf. Thus He would encourage our faith and our belief in success. He said to His disciples, and the Word is for us, "If ye shall ask anything in my name, I will do it, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. I am beloved by my Father, and for my sake He will refuse you nothing." [See John 14:13, 14.] Let us not cease to pray. Let us believe the assurance of the Word of God. Let us receive the promise, and say, "I thank thee, my heavenly Father, that I receive the things I ask of thee."14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 7

The work in Maitland is still moving forward. I have now spoken to the people there five Sabbath and Sunday afternoons. Last Sabbath and Sunday, one week ago, the heat was intense. Few adults, only about thirty, were out. But soon there came in about forty children, as though the meeting were for their special benefit. They were neatly and nicely dressed, and their behavior was perfect. I determined to talk to them, and we had an excellent meeting. I never disappoint a company of children if I can possibly speak to them. I believe that some of these children, if labored for, will be converted.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 8

I am so thankful to my heavenly Father that in Maitland several people have embraced the truth. They are most excellent people. Notwithstanding the intense heat, our workers have often walked three miles and back to give Bible readings. There are openings everywhere. Surely this field is white unto the harvest. Ministers are warning their congregations not to allow their children to go to the tent. But, nevertheless, the children come every Sunday, and all that come receive instruction. This is the seed-sowing. The future will reveal the harvest. We must sow in faith. A Paul may plant, and an Apollos water, but God giveth the increase.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 9

As I look at the cities of Newcastle and Maitland and all the settlements which these cities embrace, and know, as has been represented to me, that they are as sheep without a shepherd, as I think of the pitiful sight of companies of people who with hands outstretched were saying, "Come and help us, open to us the Scriptures; we want the bread of life," I long to do more to help. The words were spoken by my Instructor, "They are as sheep without a shepherd. To them the Word must be presented in the simplest way, in the beauty of holiness. Draw them, draw them by the cords of love."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 10

I cannot get this people off my mind. I fear so much that our faith will not be as strong as it should be. Every soul is of such value in God's sight that we must entreat men and women to receive the truth as it is in Jesus. We must watch, we must pray, we must believe, and never must our efforts relax. Life and death are before those for whom we are working, and if we can only arouse them to realize the danger of their true condition, as they trample upon the Sabbath of the Lord and exalt an institution of the Papacy, they will certainly take hold of the hope set before them in the gospel. Men may claim to be Christians, but are they Christians if they do not follow on to know the Lord? Christ says, "If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father's commandments and abide in his love." [John 15:10.]14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 11

I carry this people on my heart day and night. God is calling for them. "The Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my Sabbaths ye shall keep; for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations: that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. Ye shall keep my Sabbaths, therefore; for it is holy unto you." [Exodus 31:12-14.] How can we open the eyes that have so long been blinded? Shall Christ give this plain requirement in vain? Shall He be compelled to say to the people in Maitland and Newcastle, "Ye would not come unto me that ye might have life"? [John 5:40.] What is the life of which He speaks? A life that measures with the life of God. A treasure in the heavens that faileth not.14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 12

"If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord honorable; and shalt honor him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words; then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." [Isaiah 58:13, 14.]14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 13

These truths should be urged upon the people. We know this answer means life or death to them, life to the receiver and death to the rejecter. Then shall we not urge it upon them. When we know that the salvation of the soul is at stake, shall we not be terribly in earnest? <We know that there is no second probation. Now is the accepted time, now is the day of our salvation.>14LtMs, Lt 231, 1899, par. 14

Dear Brother:

My spirit is not at rest. I am troubled on your account. The letters I have written to you have seemed to have such an effect that I scarcely know how to approach you. You have requested me to tell you all. This I cannot do; for you are not in a fit condition, spiritually or physically, to hear it. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 1

I have been shown that you are in danger, in great peril, of becoming just what the enemy desires you to be—unbalanced in mind. It is not pleasant for me to speak of this by letter, but the Lord has used me to do this work, and I dare not keep silent. If I did, I should be as one who saw your danger, and lifted not up his voice to warn you. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 2

Light has been given me that you have carried so-called medical missionary work altogether too far. For a long time warnings and cautions have been sent to you. You have made this work not the arm, but the body. God has instructed me that the work you have set yourself to do is not the work He has given you to do. The Lord has presented some things to me which, if I feel free, I shall send to you. If this matter has an influence over you similar to the influence of the letter sent to you at the time of the General Conference, it will be because you have set aside the warnings and have not heeded them, but have carried out your own plans and devising, irrespective of cautions and warnings. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 3

By One who has authority, the question was asked, “Who has required this at your hands?" [Isaiah 1:12.] You do not see that you have become ambitious to carry forward a line of work which would result in great hindrance to the general work God would have you do. To you and those connected with you was given the work of making the Battle Creek Sanitarium a memorial of the truth to those in the highways of the world. Your power to devise, your ability to perform operations, were to be used in this line. Your standing among medical men God designed to be a witness for Him in higher circles. This work and the various lines it embraced was all you could carry. The work of embracing so much must be limited, else men will become unfitted to do thoroughly their part of the work which God designs should be done. If you fail it is because you would not heed the warnings God has been giving you.14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 4

When you dipped so deeply into work in the slums, to lift up the most degraded, you were not gathering with Christ as you supposed. To you was given the special work of standing at your post of duty in the Sanitarium as its manager, in connection with God's appointed agencies. But you took so many responsibilities upon yourself that it was as though one man's brain, and that your own, was brain for all the others. If your course was questioned, you did not receive the criticism offered, that plainly revealed that your judgment was not to be differed from, till finally no one dared to say, "Why do ye so?" Their silence has been registered in heaven as unfaithfulness. Many have viewed matters in the same light in which you have viewed them.14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 5

In the past I have not dared to hold my peace, and all I can do now is to enforce what I have already said to you. I know that you may class me with your enemies because I tell you the truth. This truth may conflict with your ideas, but nevertheless, it is the truth. The principles upon which you are working will not stand the test. The Lord does not call upon you to create interests which will not show the best results or accomplish the work that is to be done in proclaiming the last message of mercy to a deceived, perishing world. The Lord would not have any enterprise started which would not be for the healthfulness and solidity of the work which is to perfect a people to prepare the way of the Lord.14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 6

The Lord has not led you to take upon yourself such large responsibilities. I was made to understand that all available resources had been drawn upon to sustain the many interests you have set in operation. This hinders the advancement of the work. When accomplished, the work you have started would not have the best results, if carried forward in the way in which it is being carried. Had a portion of the means thus used been used in holding camp meetings, in lifting the banner of truth, in educating workers in regard to carrying on the work after the camp meetings, God would have been glorified. We are following the direction of God as to how the work shall be done. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 7

In every place where the standard of truth is lifted, the missionary work needing to be done is to be advanced. But medical missionary work is not to be made the body. I say to you, in the name of the Lord, you are carrying forward this line of work in a way that is retarding the all-round work that is to be done. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 8

Your students are not receiving an all-round education. The minds of men and women must be disciplined in such a way that they can carry forward the work solidly. The work in all parts of the Lord's vineyard is to be built up. In every gathering of our people there should be those who can plan and devise how to build up the work upon a sure foundation. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 9

The enemy has been working and will continue to work to take advantage of circumstances. Thus he tried to create an emotional experience. He has tried to bring about a condition of things which would lead men to belittle the ministers of the gospel and criticize their work. This has already been done. A wild spirit of speculation and adventure will hurt the very work which should be regarded as most sacred. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 10

The work done for outcasts may be so managed that it will not bear the very best aspect. Unless those rescued are taught that sin is the transgression of the law, unless they are educated to know what is truth, what will the work done for them amount to? It will be work done with very little result. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 11

What gave the leaders of the Reformation their power over erroneous theories? It was the truth of the Word of God. Human nature needs a strong, solid foundation upon which to stand. It is not superstition but living faith in a living God that brings real results.14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 12

Some of the work that has been done is represented as being like men rolling large stones up a hill with great effort. When nearly at the top of the hill, the stones rolled again to the bottom. The men only succeeded in taking a few to the top. In the work done for the degraded, what effort it has taken to reach them, what expense, and then to lead them to stand against appetite and base passions! Is this work to be permitted to swallow up all the workers and all the money needed to sustain the various branches of the <work of the> cause of God? I answer, No.14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 13

Camp meetings are to be held; not one mammoth camp meeting, but smaller camp meetings in different localities. After the camp meeting is over, let a house be hired for the accommodation of the workers, and let these workers go out among the people and ascertain who are willing to take their position on the Lord's side. One thing is certain: We have a work to do similar to the work done in the early history of the message. This work we are trying to carry forward in this country. But the Lord does not give us direction to erect buildings for the care of babies, although this is a good work. But it is not the work for the present time. Let the world do all it will in this line. Our time and means must be invested in a different line of work. We are to carry the last message of mercy <in the very best way> to those in the churches who are hungering and praying for light.14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 14

We see the work that must be done, and in every place we enter we unite medical missionary work with the gospel ministry, <just as God would have with our limited resources.> We labor earnestly for the poor, the distressed, and the sick. If we find a poor widow struggling to support her family, we show our sympathy in a tangible way, and help her to help herself. We seek to awaken the missionary spirit in our churches. We appeal to the members to show their religion by their works of sympathy <and do all they can.>14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 15

We are cautioned not to misunderstand the great part we have to act in these last days. God says to us, "Cry aloud; spare not; lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and show my people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sin." [Isaiah 58:1.] The standard of truth is to be uplifted in every place. People are to be taught that sin is the transgression of the law. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 16

We have a message to bear to the churches. Christ declares, "I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last. Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city. ... I Jesus have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning star. And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely." [Revelation 22:13, 14, 16, 17.]14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 17

We are to give to the people the warnings contained in Revelation. But many workers are engaged in a line of work that is disqualifying them to preach the Word <and do the very work God has appointed them to do.>14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 18

The truth in regard to the Sabbath of the Lord is to be proclaimed. The seventh day is to be shown to be the seal of the living God. People are to be shown what they may expect from the papal power. The time has come when the Protestant churches are reaching out to grasp the hand of the power that has made void the law of God. More work is to be done in the W.C.T.U. Here is a special field that has scarcely been touched. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 19

In the seventeenth of Revelation is foretold the destruction of all the churches who corrupt themselves by idolatrous devotion to the service of the Papacy, those who have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication. John writes, "And there came one of the seven angels which had the seven vials, and talked with me, saying unto me, Come hither; I will show unto thee the judgment of the great whore that sitteth upon many waters: with whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabitants of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication. So he carried me away in the spirit into the wilderness; and I saw a woman sit upon a scarlet colored beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns. And the woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet color, and decked with gold and precious stones and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand full of abominations and filthiness of her fornications." [Verses 1-4.]14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 20

Thus is represented the papal power, which with all deceivableness of unrighteousness, by outside attraction and gorgeous display, deceives all nations, promising them, as did Satan our first parents, all good to those who receive its mark, and all harm to those who oppose its fallacies. The power which has the deepest inward corruption will make the greatest display, and will clothe itself with the most elaborate signs of power. The Bible plainly declares that this covers a corrupt and deceiving wickedness. "Upon her forehead was a name written, Mystery, Babylon the Great, the mother of harlots and abominations of the earth." [Verse 5.]14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 21

What is it that gives its kingdom to this power? Protestantism, a power which while professing to have the temper and spirit of a lamb, and to be allied to heaven, speaks with the voice of a dragon. It is moved by a power from beneath.14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 22

"And after these things," John writes, "I saw another angel come down from heaven, having great power; and the earth was lightened with his glory. And he cried mightily with a strong voice, saying, Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and the cage of every unclean and hateful bird. For all nations have drunk of the wine of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of earth are waxed rich through the abundance of her delicacies. And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues." [Revelation 18:1-4.] This is the message Satan would have silenced.14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 23

“Reward her even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double according to her works: in the cup which she hath filled fill to her double. How much she hath glorified herself, and lived deliciously, so much torment and sorrow give her. For she saith, I sit a queen, and am no widow, and shall see no sorrow. Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death and mourning and famine; and she shall be utterly burned with fire; for strong is the Lord God who judgeth her.” [Verses 6-8.] Shall this message be considered an inferior matter?14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 24

I am commissioned to speak to all those who are engaged as physicians in our institutions. A reformation is required in regard to the management of these institutions. They are not to be conducted as the world would conduct them. While many who cannot afford to pay are treated free, others are charged exorbitant sums for operations which take but little time. The charges of worldly physicians in this country> are not to rule in our institutions. High prices are current in the world, but correct principles are to be brought into our work. The Bible standard is to be followed to the letter, irrespective of consequences. The way of the Lord—justice, mercy, and truth—is to be followed. No exorbitant bills are to be sent in for slight operations. The charges made are to be proportionate to the work done.14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 25

The work done in our medical institutions is to correspond with the words, Medical missionary work. We do not want the Lord to think ill of us because we misrepresent the work of Christ. God has not given us permission to do a work which will not bear the investigation of the judgment. He does not want any institution established by His people to bear a reputation similar to that borne by Ananias and Sapphira. Desiring to gain a reputation for self-sacrifice, liberality, and devotion to the Christian faith, Ananias and Sapphira sold their property, and laid part of the proceeds at the feet of the apostles, pretending that they had laid it all there. They thought that they had been successful in cheating the cause of God; but they were cheating the Lord, and He dealt summarily with this, the first case of deception and falsehood in the newly formed church.14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 26

Ananias and Sapphira were not urged to give all they had to the cause. God would have accepted part. But <as some moved by the Holy Spirit gave all> they desired it to be thought that they had given all. Thus they thought to gain the reputation for which they hankered, and at the same time keep back part of their money. God slew them both, as a warning to all of the danger of sacrificing truth to gain favor. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 27

We are not to misrepresent what we profess to believe in order to gain favor. God despises misrepresentation and prevarication. He will not tolerate the man who says and does not. The best and noblest work is done by fair, honest dealing. A lawyer came to Christ with the question, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" "What is written in the law? How readest thou?" Christ asked. The lawyer answered, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy strength and with all thy mind and thy neighbor as thyself." "Thou hast answered right," Christ said; "this do and thou shalt live." [Luke 10:25-28.] Upon these two great arms hang all the law and the prophets. 14LtMs, Lt 232, 1899, par. 28

Brother

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales

September 10, 1899

This letter is published in entirety in 21MR 398-401.

Dear Brother:

I am sorry to learn from your letter that some things which are not pure provender are being given to the church of God as food. No one can feed the church of God aright unless he studies the pure, sanctifying principles of the truth. Non-essential subjects are not to occupy our minds. Our conversation should be pure, uplifting, ennobling. 14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 1

You will find men who talk of a second probation, comforting themselves with the thought that if they are not overcomers in this probationary time, they will in a future probation secure a preparation for heaven. But the Lord has no future probation for any soul that lives. Those who do not appreciate this present probation will have no second trial. Those who in this life pursue a course which will close against them the gates of the city of God need not flatter themselves that the Lord will give them another opportunity to prepare to meet Him. No, no, no! 14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 2

I present to you some important matters to present to the people as practical present truth. There is no need to dwell upon subjects that are not light and truth. We are to think of those things that will give spiritual nourishment. 14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 3

Those who have a knowledge of the truth should never seek for something new and strange to present to the people. Let not the ministers of God enter into contention and strife. Their influence is greatly hurt when they are self-exalted and dictatorial. Let all be exceedingly careful on this point. Each day we need to learn more of Jesus Christ. 14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 4

Let no one live to please himself. We are laborers together with God. We are to work in union with His Holy Spirit. God is the great First Cause, the Source of all power and grace and efficiency. Human agencies are to yoke up with Christ. "Ye are God's husbandry." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] You are to work out that which God works in. "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God which worketh in you both to will and to do of his good pleasure." [Philippians 2:12, 13.] Your heart is to be cultivated by the Holy Spirit, that it may bear fruit unto righteousness.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 5

"Ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] You cannot build your character yourself. You must unite with the divine Builder. Said Paul, "According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise masterbuilder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereupon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon. For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." [Verses 10, 11.] Let no man suppose that he is appointed to be a foundation upon which other human beings are to build. Every human being is to erect his building upon the sure foundation, Jesus Christ. "Now if any man build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble; every man's work shall be made manifest; for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire; and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is." [Verses 12, 13.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 6

I am instructed to say that sufficient carefulness has not been shown in regard to the material which has been brought to the foundation stone. "If any man's work abideth which he hath built thereupon, he shall receive a reward." Who does not desire, then, to be faithful in co-operating with Christ? "If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss; but he himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire." [Verses 14, 15.] If he sees his wrong and sincerely repents, he will save himself, but his lifework is a failure.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 7

"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you. If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." [Verses 16, 17.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 8

To those who lift themselves up in exaltation, supposing that anything they may choose to do is right, the caution comes, "Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wise." [Verse 18.] Let not his soul be puffed up with self-conceit, for he is but a man. He is not God. He is not to suppose that he is a foundation upon which other men are to build. There is danger here, and I am instructed to say, Take heed. All ye are brethren. "For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. For it is written, He taketh the wise in their own craftiness." [Verse 19.]14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 9

Just as surely as men weave the threads of selfishness into the pattern, their work will be revealed. For "the Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain. Therefore let no man glory in men; for all things are yours." [Verses 20, 21.] The Lord gives wisdom to those who will make the best use of this wisdom. Christ declares, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." [Matthew 28:18.] God knows who is prepared to act as His helping hand in the closing scenes of this earth's history.14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 10

"All things are yours; whether Paul or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours; and ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's." [1 Corinthians 3:21-23.] God sees where His wisdom is most needed and where it will accomplish the most good. He will strengthen the minds of His servants. He will help them to devise and plan and execute for the greatest advantage of His work.14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 11

No one, however responsible the position he occupies, is to take glory to himself. If he loves God with all the heart and his neighbor as himself, he will follow the example of Jesus Christ. As God's workman bear responsibilities and carry burdens in the great harvest field, let them remember that true success comes from God alone, and that every particle of the praise and glory belongs to Him. We are God's husbandry, God's building. We are to understand that power and efficiency comes only from our heavenly Father. Under the generalship of Christ we are to do the work allotted to us. Each member of the church must have a living connection with its great Head. 14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 12

Let those who are laboring in the ministry or in the medical missionary work wear the yoke of Christ, walking in humility of mind before God, and using their varied gifts to bless humanity. Then God will use them as His helping hand. All are to be united in one body under Christ. All parts of the work are to be controlled and guided by the wisdom which God gives. There is to be harmony in every action. There is to be no jealousy of Paul or Apollos or Cephas. All are to draw in even cords, without a sign of friction. 14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 13

Ministers must learn to give room to their fellow laborers. They are not to measure their brethren by their own ideas. He in whose heart Christ abides will not quarrel with his brother. All are to stand under the standard of Christ Jesus, united by the desire to strengthen His work in every line. Human devising is not to be followed. Let no one fasten his soul to a human leader. Christ is our Leader. He was sent by the Father to redeem the fallen race. Men are to follow His directions in the work of restoring the moral image of God in the human race. In this great work they are to act in His name and for the glory of God. 14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 14

Let those who by God's appointment are connected with His cause cherish no low estimate of the work He expects them to do. They are to be faithful stewards, dying to self and living to Christ. 14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 15

The words that Christ spoke were weighty and full of dignity, but at the same time He exalted the natural things of nature, pointing to them as expositors of divine truth. Elevating, ennobling truths were taught from the simplicity of nature's lesson-book, and they were presented so clearly and plainly that even those dull of comprehension could not fail to understand them. 14LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 16

There was no excitement in Christ's manner of teaching. He made truth stand forth in the light of heaven. He inculcated the principles that are ever to be honored. God has wisdom to impart to His servants. The precious, precious treasures of wisdom that have been concealed in nature will be unlocked and brought forth. Here wonderful resources will be given to God's people for use in His work.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 17

*****

Some have looked upon the medical missionary work with suspicion because of its constantly increasing success. Unless these are baptized with the Holy Spirit, they will continue to entertain their jealous feelings, whatever power God may reveal in advancing the truth. They will lose the spiritual blessings they might have had and will bring the divine judgments upon themselves. The truth which, if received, is a savor of life unto life becomes, when rejected, a means of hardening the heart.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 233, 1899, par. 18

Starr, Brother and Sister [G. B.]

Toowoomba, Queensland, Australia

October 15, 1899

Portions of this letter are published in 4Bio 435.

Dear Brother and Sister Starr:

We are nicely situated in a pleasant cottage with a lady who owns the house and rents it to visitors who come to the place. I have a nice front room which gives us a beautiful view of the scenery of the upland which is settled with some very fine buildings. You know about this place. One park is just across the street; there is a park at a little distance secured for the camp meeting. 14LtMs, Lt 234, 1899, par. 1

We have never had a tent meeting, since my acquaintance, in any place so pleasant and so beautiful, with trees and with green grass. The tents so clean and new make a nice appearance. The congregation as yet is small—one hundred at most on Sunday. We hope more will be on the ground. Our meetings Sabbath were good. Brother Tenney spoke in the forenoon; Brother Daniells spoke Sabbath evening; I spoke on Sabbath afternoon, and the Spirit of the Lord seemed to be in the meeting. Just before I closed, my Will brought in about twenty-two more. I do not know who speaks this forenoon. I speak in the afternoon. 14LtMs, Lt 234, 1899, par. 2

Brother Tenney looks bad; his head and face trouble him some; his face is nearly purple. I am so sorry for him. We shall take his case to the Lord in prayer. 14LtMs, Lt 234, 1899, par. 3

If you get the matters settled at Maitland will you please write to me? It may be we can stop over when we return, which we expect will be as soon as the meeting closes. If you have not become settled, then we pass right along to Newcastle. We had good accommodations, but Sara was worn out and carsick. The cars run fast and jostled us about; it was very rough. We think it might be the location of the berths in the end of the car. Sara was troubled all the way with carsickness. I was resting, notwithstanding, and sleeping.14LtMs, Lt 234, 1899, par. 4

After we changed cars Friday noon we had the ladies' compartment to ourselves until we arrived at our destination.14LtMs, Lt 234, 1899, par. 5

I must now close. We have beautiful weather. Praise the Lord for this.14LtMs, Lt 234, 1899, par. 6

In love to all the family.14LtMs, Lt 234, 1899, par. 7

Write me the first thing after you know what you can depend on.14LtMs, Lt 234, 1899, par. 8

Dear Brother Kellogg:

I feel very much perplexed as to how to address you, after the words traced by your pen that some things I have written are not true. You relate that the influence of my writing on your mind was about as terrible as could be. I am sorry I was not able so to arrange my words that you could understand them. I have written letter after letter to you, all true, but with such feelings of reluctance and discouragement as are inexpressible. The impression made on my mind was no more favorable to the positions taken in the sanitarium than when the Lord said, Call upon the managers of the Sanitarium in Battle Creek to do a work they should have discerned needed to be done.14LtMs, Lt 235, 1899, par. 1

The men sent to America from this country to learn all that they could about how to work were returned to this field with no special assistance in facilities. The very instruments to perform various operations that you had cast aside for better, we should have had to begin the work in this part of the Lord's vineyard. But it was not the Lord who set you a work to do in so many lines that you could not see this. The means should not have come from your personal funds but by your personal influence from the institution under your direction to the sister institution just started in this very field. This would bear testimony before heaven that the abundant riches of the Sanitarium in Battle Creek brought into existence an humble institution that would give character to the work here where there was nothing of the kind in all this large portion of the Lord's vineyard.14LtMs, Lt 235, 1899, par. 2

It was the sister sanitarium that was called upon, not you, Dr. Kellogg, individually. But notwithstanding those appeals have been made in obedience to the instruction given me to give to the Sanitarium, the help has not yet come. Three thousand dollars were raised for this field by the General Conference, and Dr. Kellogg raised something short of a thousand dollars by soliciting donations for our hospital.14LtMs, Lt 235, 1899, par. 3

You state you gave one thousand dollars out of your own funds and your brother made a donation likewise that he could ill afford to do. We were not instructed to call upon you to do this. I have invested in your institution quite a little sum—several hundreds of dollars—that could so easily have been transferred to the sanitarium we are as yet unable to commence to build. It was my right, given me of God, to solicit help to create and man our institution from the abundance that is being enjoyed in the largest sanitarium in the world.14LtMs, Lt 235, 1899, par. 4

To whom were we supposed to look to establish a sanitarium here in this country where we were unknown and where the churches that were raised up were poor? I have done just the work I was authorized to do, and I want to see what shall be done. I have made my appeal. It has brought very little. Every dollar that has been received is on record.14LtMs, Lt 235, 1899, par. 5

How many dollars in donations have you invested in objects creating considerable expense? When I was presented with the plan to raise funds from the conference to establish a consumptives' home in Boulder, there was not one-twentieth part of the reason for that institution to be established that there was for the one such institution to be established in this country, [and] manned and provided with facilities. There is not one such institution in existence in all this new missionary field. The Lord in His providence permitted us to have a part in the work here, in the building of a sanitarium which would be a link in the chain that God would have forged to draw the attention [of the world].14LtMs, Lt 235, 1899, par. 6

Dear Son Edson:

I have written much of late, and I am drawn out to encourage the workers to enter new fields, annex new territories to the fields already worked. There are many souls that need the light of the first, second, and third angels' messages. You inquire how you can help them in Battle Creek. By bearing a straightforward testimony in your life; and this is not all, wherever you can go to camp meetings, go and get hold and keep hold. 14LtMs, Lt 236, 1899, par. 1

I shall be very much pleased to see you whenever you may come. You may, when you feel clear in your own soul that you can take hold with us in book work, in attending meetings, in standing with us to uplift the standard of truth in new territories; but I dare not have you come against your will. When you feel free to come, draw from the Review and Herald office your passage money, and I will settle that bill myself, freely. We need your help and your talent in this new world; and the climate, where we are at Cooranbong is free from malaria. But come and try it, and you can return if you do not want to remain. There are places where one hundred could be put to work, and in the canvassing field there are one hundred more needed. You can give instruction in this line. 14LtMs, Lt 236, 1899, par. 2

Let the Holy Spirit take possession of the heart and by faith grasp the promises of God, and we shall see of the salvation of God. I know the Lord would have you a free man in Christ Jesus, bearing a living testimony for the Master. This is the best evidence you can give, to walk humbly with God and work earnestly for the advancement of the truth. You need to commit the keeping of your soul to God and open the door of the heart and let Jesus come in and work you. There always is danger of many trying to work the Holy Spirit in the place of the Holy Spirit working them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 236, 1899, par. 3

Now, Edson, put your trust in God, maintain a humble, contrite spirit, and you will then understand by experience what these words mean: "For thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy; I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones." [Isaiah 57:15.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 236, 1899, par. 4

It is the humility and contrition of the soul that, if you cherish them, will be in a special manner your strength. You will never succeed in trying to battle your way through, for there are combatants that are educated in this line who will be stronger than you. But when you leave your case in the hands of your Advocate, Jesus Christ, He will work with you and by you and through you, not to harm and wound and bruise you or any other one; but He will work through you to uplift, to strengthen, to restore. The Lord will bless you when you are all ready to impart His grace given you, in word, in spirit, in practical working. The Lord will help you if you will be passive in His hands, and not worry and put yourself out of His hands, and take your own hands to work yourself.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 236, 1899, par. 5

Now, Edson, be sure you are on the Lord's side, and hold fast the banner; never let go, hold firmly, look up, rejoice in the Lord always, and seek ever to strengthen and not to destroy anything but sin. Christ will bless and guide you and bring you safely through to His kingdom if you are obedient.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 236, 1899, par. 6

Maitland, New South Wales, Australia

Dear Sister Henry:

We are now amid an interest which covers a large territory. There are many, awakened by the camp meetings, who desires to understand the Sabbath question, and the large, rich farming district is now being worked by visiting—house-to-house labor. Doors are open to all who visit them, high and low, to hear what saith the Word. They are as eager as hungry children for a piece of bread. May the Lord give them to eat of that Bread which cometh down from heaven. Our workers are of excellent courage because every week one after another is deciding to obey the truth and keep the Sabbath. This is making the hearts joyful on earth and causing joy in the heavenly courts.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 1

The settlements are far apart and there is the farming district and the mining districts, the wealthy and the poor. All are treated alike and our people have been welcomed to every house where they have called. We shall seek to do all possible to get the light before them in their homes.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 2

The ministers are now doing more for their church members, visiting them and warning them not to entertain these people in their houses, that they are deceivers; and [that] the representations of the doctrines believed by Adventists are the strangest mixture of the most inconsistent, foolish, improbable things that could possibly be manufactured. But meeting the people and getting acquainted with them in their homes is doing away with this fear and terror that some are trying to inspire in those who have not been out to the camp meeting. One minister who preaches in the St. Mary's church has issued a little pamphlet presenting the weakest arguments that we have ever seen in print, thus showing his deplorable ignorance.

But these things will have influence over the minds that have never heard the reasons of our faith. Froth to them cannot be distinguished from the pure milk of the Word.14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 3

There is the large tent standing in Maitland. Brother Colcord is speaking to the people and Brother Hickox is united with him, and he has his standing appointments out three and six miles from Maitland. He has as many as a private house can accommodate. One of the smaller tents will be pitched in a favorable locality. This interest must be carefully looked after. Brother Starr has been appointed to take charge of the work in Melbourne for one year. We have so many places that need the help of ministers and workers that we have to study how to give proper help to the many places that are now opened. It is while the people are eager to learn what is truth that a quick and earnest work must be done. There must be no delay. The seed must be sown at once, for many have lived at so great a distance from Maitland they could not get to the meetings.14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 4

On one occasion twenty miners came above three miles to attend evening meetings, then urged that labors be given to these settlements at a distance. The men would be at home with their families in the evenings and they would be highly pleased to receive the workers and understand the Scriptures. And now these settlements at a distance of three and four and six miles are being worked.14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 5

Regular meetings are appointed. Several of our ministers and workers visited these settlements and it is evidenced that there is a necessity of something more personal being done beside the ministry of the Word in large congregations. These visits to the miners and to the farmers well-situated on their own farms in comfortable cottages are a help. We can meet the people where they are, and talk with them and pray with them and we can show that we have an interest for their souls.14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 6

This is the very kind of missionary work which ought to be done. Here is where humanity can, through God, touch humanity, and lay hold of divinity in behalf of humanity. This class needs the labor.

The workers will find the intemperate and the tobacco devotee, and can present to them the necessity of surrendering their hearts to God, lifting up the Saviour higher and still higher. Every soul out of Christ needs the labor bestowed upon him that ministers and workers can give. Lessons to mothers are needed on how to teach their children and treat them as the younger members of the Lord's family. These children are the Lord's property. Parents must be converted and then they can lead their children to Christ. This is the work being done in these suburbs of Maitland. 14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 7

Elder Hickox has been out two or three evenings in the week. He hires horse and carriage, that his wife can accompany him, for her talent in singing is highly appreciated. These miners were not asked to help defray the expenses of horse and carriage, but they put their hands in their pockets and made their offering which more than covers the expense. I have now loaned Brother and Sister Hickox a horse. If they can get a buggy they are fitted out for their evangelistic work. 14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 8

There are very many settlements and this house-to-house labor will prove the very best kind of missionary work that can be done to open the Word of God to those families that are now, many of them, both ignorant of the Scriptures and of the power of God. Our sisters will, we think, have a horse and a carriage furnished them, for they walk miles and it is wearing upon them. They throw their whole souls into the work and are all having marked success. Brother Colcord works in Maitland, having meetings in the tent. 14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 9

It is strange what kind of reports are met by our workers in regard to the food Seventh-day Adventists eat. The most inconsistent falsehoods are circulated. But when the people placed before the brethren who visited them good bread and very nice honey, they demonstrated they could eat and enjoy the very same kind of food they themselves enjoyed. This partaking of the food was highly appreciated and scattered to the winds the falsehoods that hearsay had scattered. 14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 10

will have to be many seasons of prayer, much patient, persevering labor, teaching them according to their understanding line upon line, line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little. They can only reach the people through God, and missionary success will be through the grace of God fully proportioned to the efforts that are put forth. 14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 11

What is the standard that in these places, at the present time, may regulate the expectations of success? Is it the rapidity with which the gospel was diffused after the ascension of Christ? Then the disciples went forth everywhere preaching a crucified, risen Saviour. The Lord would have every worker softened and subdued by the grace of Christ. The heart imbued with the Spirit of God is quick to make impressions upon the minds of those we want to help. None need to expect the highest results independent of their own earnest, self-denying zeal and persevering energy and most fervent prayers. All who believe the truth should possess a spirit of earnest intercession and wrestling with God for the victory. We must reveal that as laborers together with God we are intensely in earnest. Souls are perishing out of Christ. Reach them we must. [Read] Jude 17-25.14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 12

Who can estimate the value of the human soul? The One who has paid in full the ransom price for that soul can answer this question. Who can estimate this great work? With what earnest soul hunger we have felt for Newcastle and Maitland, the latter place especially. We have apparently been set down in the woods of Cooranbong, where there was not a Sabbathkeeper within seventy miles, to establish our school, and it has seemed so strange. But now we see the fields are ripe for the sickle. We have had a precious camp meeting. We have now a vineyard to be worked and souls raised up within twenty-seven miles of Cooranbong. The prospect seems to be so encouraging. We can but praise the Lord with heart and soul and voice. 14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 13

The standard will be raised here in Maitland. The people are calling for the Word of the Lord in many places. What a privilege to tell the souls of that love which passeth knowledge and of that peace which passeth all understanding. If the people will only be willing to hear, we have reason to be rejoiced. We see the eager souls, longing to become intelligent in spiritual things. How we have longed to see missionary labor put forth in Maitland, a beautiful farming district! Everywhere we go we find people who are in need of help.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 14

I was just preparing to retire to my bed for rest when one of our new Sabbathkeepers, who was always designated as that sweet-faced old lady who always was seated in front of the speaker's stand [came to me]. I dared not say no. I went into the room and conversed with her. She wished to speak with me in regard to a lad thirteen years old, a promising lad. His mother lived in the same house with the sweet-faced lady, who seemed to bear the likeness of Christ. She told me the story of the mother who had received the truth and was a very pleasant, intelligent lady about thirty-five years old.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 15

Her husband was a drunkard and did not support the mother or her child. He left her and she took in three boys to keep. They were poor children supported by the state. For feeding and clothing and supporting these children she received five shillings each per week—one dollar and a quarter each in American money. She works at her business—dressmaking—and thus she was supporting this family. Her husband came back. He said he had reformed. But temptations were great. She did all she could for him, but he went lower than ever, and she suffered such abuse from him that she could not live with him and obtained a divorce.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 16

Now she has been converted to the truth. She is very desirous her son shall attend the Avondale school, where he shall be educated for a missionary. Would I help this lad? I said yes, I would take him and pay his expenses through school. And then we will see if the mother cannot connect with the work in some way where we can help her and she can help us.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 17

This one case represents several cases in every place where we go. There are also sick ones to treat, and this is educating the mothers. We find abundance of missionary work to do in every place where the truth has been received. There are the poor that need help, the fatherless children to be cared for. We cannot possibly invest in buildings to accommodate them, but we help them to help themselves. We locate them on a piece of land. We help them to put up a humble little house and then see that they have work. We plow the ground for them and help them to raise their own food. 14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 18

This kind of work we are carrying forward all the time. We do not take them on to support them, but let them carry the burden of themselves as much as possible. We have taken care of the people far and near when sick. We make no charges. This has been the missionary work we have done since we have been in this country. 14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 19

The gospel and the medical missionary work cannot be separated. The branch does not bear the root, but the root bears the branch. Every branch that beareth not fruit He taketh away, and every branch that beareth fruit He pruneth it that it may bring forth more fruit. 14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 20

We are so thankful that we find the people are not satisfied with the spiritual food which they receive. The Lord is moving upon minds and they are hungering and thirsting for a knowledge of the Scriptures. The Lord would have His workers go where there are people that are spiritually starving. The church in Battle Creek can arouse and must awake to their God-given responsibilities ere they sleep the sleep of death. In the parable of the unwise virgins they can see their future. Not all can be paid a salary as workers, but there are those who can dedicate a portion of their time for missionary work. For some, after the first step is taken the way opens more clearly as they advance. But they first need the holy kindling in their own hearts before they can have divine wisdom to prepare the way of the Lord. Why cannot more persons inquire, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me to do?" and then do it wholeheartedly? [Acts 9:6.] 14LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 21

I arose this morning at one o'clock a.m. I cannot sleep after I once awake, because the burden of the work seems to be consuming me. And I cannot feel it is my duty to confine my labors, even as much as I have done, to our churches who know the truth and who ought to be earnestly putting out their talents and trading on their

Lord's goods, that they may by trading improve their talents. I am so very anxious that all who can work should work, and in doing the work of God in saving perishing souls, their light will increase in brightness and they cannot but shine.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 22

I am now about to say to you something that may seem a little strange to you. I have a request to make. Give your son, from me one of my best bound books which you, knowing him, may choose—the one that would do him the most good. If it is The Desire of Ages, give him that, or either of the other of my large books. You will please consider this my order, and tell them at the publishing house to charge to my account. Also, if you know persons whom you think will be benefited by having these books—those who read them and appreciate them—you can place a book in their hands. It may cut away their prejudice. This is the work I am doing in this country, and it has done a good work and brought some souls to see and understand our work.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 23

They tell me mail goes out today, December 19.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 237, 1899, par. 24

White, J. E.; White, Emma

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

April 10, 1899

Previously unpublished.

Dear Children, Edson and Emma White:

I have many things to say to you, and I now feel free to say, Come to Australia. I dare not cast reflections upon others, but I feel free to say, I need your help. I cannot feel it is your duty now to be thus far away from me. I have need of the help which you can give me. Your tact in bookmaking would be of great value to me. Let me tell you, I wish to have some one to whom I can read the writings I have for books, and [who can] rearrange with the view of publishing them. W. C. White is having large responsibilities because he is in connection with me. I consult him, and when I can get his time he works hard, and the articles written passing under his inspection come out well-guarded. But you can be a great help to me, and from certain things presented to me I know your health is in danger. Therefore I now feel that you should have a change.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 1

A voyage for you and Emma on the Vancouver steamer would be a blessing to you both healthwise. Old Sister Sisley bore the trip splendidly, and she can scarcely ride in a carriage without seasick feelings. She bore the journey well and was not seasick. You can come now and help us. We will erect a house for you and Emma to live in on our land. I have quite a large amount of land for my stock, and excellent building places. You can take exercise out of doors. I have horses and carriages. We have to have these things here, for the station is at Dora Creek, two miles and a half away, and it is about six miles to Morrisset. We would be pleased to have you come when oranges are ripe. They are but just beginning to be picked.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 2

How pleased would we be to see you at this important conference!

We think you had better settle up your business so as not to traverse the waters again. If you desire to be on the water, we intend to have a boat to use for transporting goods to different points. Dora Creek is a beautiful, smooth river. We may change its name. We ride in the row boat six miles, then enter the lake which is generally very smooth and pleasant. I wish your boat was off your hands, Cannot you dispose of it? Do this if you can.14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 3

Will you please to ascertain what became of my adjustable chairs left at Petoskey? They have been just the things we wanted so much. Considerable furniture was left in that house we occupied, but we have received only eleven dollars for the goods. See if anyone can tell you in reference to these things. If you can get those chairs traced out and they are a wreck, let them go; but if of any value, bring them with you. I wish I could have that chair and lounge that I think so much of in Battle Creek, but it is no use. The cost will be too much.14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 4

Please get me a bottle of oil of wintergreen, amounting to four shillings. You may bring me a bottle of witch hazel or the witch hazel bark and slippery elm bark. These things we cannot get here. Witch hazel we can get here, but it is imported. Put these things where you will not be required to pay duties on them, as things for your own use. The duties are no longer to be paid in the trading in the colonies. A confederacy has been doing away with duties. But the duties on foreign goods are to be paid now in Sydney.14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 5

If Emma and you come to us, we will try to do all in our power to make you happy. My dear children, I have no urging to do. If you ask the Lord in regard to the matter, then do as you know is your duty. We must take life's controversies and troubles to His feet, for Christ loves us. His every word and look invite our confidence. We want Jesus and want Him to come into our home and abide with us. He will shape and mold our characters according to His own will, and every day we will be found asking, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" [Acts 9:6.] We must not have undue anxiety, but learn the lessons of faith and trust. Let us commit the spiritual health of the soul to Him who hath loved us and given His own precious life that He might make it possible for us to learn of Him who is meek and lowly of heart. 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 6

While lifting the cross He says to us, “Whosoever will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.” [Mark 8:34.] He alone can make us capable of responding when He says, “Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls.” [Matthew 11:29.] This means that self must be denied every day. Christ can give the noble resolve, the will to suffer, to do, and to fight the battles of the Lord with persevering energy. The weakest, aided by divine grace, may have strength to be more than overcomers. Oh, we need an abiding Christ! We must have more than a fitful service. Learning of Jesus we will copy His character, His meekness, His lowliness. 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 7

When we find ourselves in trouble, we are apt to censure someone. Now, it is not right to do this. We need to hide our individual self in God. My children, we need to have confidence in God. “But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory,”—from character to character—“even as by the Spirit of the Lord.” [2 Corinthians 3:18.] The Lord Jesus does not expect impossibilities of you or of me. Beholding Jesus we are changed into His likeness. 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 8

“Charity (love) suffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up. Doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not her own, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil; rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth. Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.” [1 Corinthians 13:4-7.] Christ has, through His inspired apostle, presented the measure of a character that is imbued with the love of Christ. We are to have His marks, we are to have the likeness of Christ. This sample is given us as the specifications of the possibilities and heights we may reach in and through Jesus Christ. The standard Christ presents and dictates to all for whom He has died, perfection in Him and through His merits, we may attain. We come short because we are content with looking at earthly things rather than the heavenly things. 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 9

It is by beholding Christ that we are changed from glory to glory. The eye viewing common things needs to be elevated higher and still higher. “For now we see through a glass darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known. And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity”—love. [Verses 12, 13.] No one has yet the measure of our heavenly Father’s nature, or of the character of the Son of God as it is. We must have a knowledge of God by living experience. 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 10

If we follow on to know the Lord, we shall know “his going forth is prepared as the morning.” [Hosea 6:3.] We are to appreciate the talents of words, faith, hope, charity. “But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name: which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God. And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth. ... And of his fulness have we all received, and grace for grace.” [John 1:12-14, 16.]14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 11

Will you, my children, receive the gifts of the Holy Spirit daily? What others may do, what others may say, what others may think of you, will not change the thoughts of God toward you. “He that doeth righteousness is righteous,” and the opinion of man will not change his character. [1 John 3:7.] You have, my dear children, a heaven before you to win, and Christ gave His own life that you might obtain the heavenly peace and rest and love of Jesus. Only keep looking unto Jesus, who loves you, who is the One you are to love, the One you are to talk about, the One who is the Author and Finisher of your faith. Edson, Jesus loves you. Emma, Jesus loves you, and the Lord Jesus takes no man’s measurement of character for you. You are to behold Jesus and reflect His image in your words, keep His love in your thoughts. Invite the heavenly Guest to abide with you. 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 12

“Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the (experimental) knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.” [2 Peter 1:2-4.] 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 13

Now the Word is plain. We have no excuse to remain in weakness, in spiritual poverty. Every possible provision has been amply supplied, and now it rests wholly with the souls for whom Christ has died whether they will believe the words of God. The Lord Jesus calls you to be filled with all the fullness of God; then you will represent the words of Jesus Christ. “But whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life.” [John 4:14.] Jesus Christ wants us to be co-laborers with Him. He will give us to impart. When we are emptied of self, the olive branches “which through the two golden pipes empty the golden oil out of themselves” will empty it into the cleansed vessels for them to impart to others who are in need of light and comfort and hope and love. [Zechariah 4:12.] 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 14

My children, my words seem very tame, but try to take them in. Let your spirit be cleansed from all earthliness, all unholy, uncharitable thought. Let your words be clean, sanctified, reviving and refreshing to all with whom you associate. Be not “easily provoked.” [1 Corinthians 13:5.] Let the praise of God be in your heart and upon your lips. Then no evil thing can be said of you in truth. 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 15

Mother.

You may have some goods you wish to bring. You can find out all about the cost of the family goods. 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 16

If Emma could take along that chair and sofa as household goods and any such things of mine, I would be glad to have them come. 14LtMs, Lt 238, 1899, par. 17

Dear Children:

We received your letters in the last mail. That which I feared has come. But, my children, the Lord has been gracious to you. If they had attacked you, we know not what would have been the result. As I had written you quite a lengthy letter I will only say, the Lord be praised.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 239, 1899, par. 1

I have felt deeply grieved in regard to the Southern Field, but do not blame anyone. Leave the Lord to reprove. I do not want to send reproofs but dare not withhold them. Let all these deliverances you have had lift you nearer to God. The funds now are so limited; do not now expect much. It might have been otherwise, but now let us not dishonor God by talking unbelief.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 239, 1899, par. 2

The Lord would not be pleased to have your life imperiled or your life lost through malaria. Talk hopefully; talk faith. The Lord knows all the difficulties, and He will bring help in His own way and glorify His own name.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 239, 1899, par. 3

Let those who cannot work in one field, if excluded, go to another. But let the most extreme care be exercised in regard to words and presumptuous actions. The Lord would have every pen dipped in holy oil before tracing lines in the papers that shall help the enemy who, with intense earnestness, is stirring up human minds to action against the Lord's commandment-keeping people.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 239, 1899, par. 4

It will come, and the Southern element will be the ones who, through jealousy and determined hatred against the truth, will do the devil's work. God's people must be on guard. The Lord would have every teacher with pen and with voice honor God and the truth, and give no occasion for the enemy to take advantage.14LtMs, Lt 239, 1899, par. 5

Oh that the converting power of God may come to everyone who teaches the truth to others! Oh that the people of God would work in Christ's lines! His commands, His lessons practiced, unite the human brotherhood with one another in Christ Jesus, in God. Holding fast to God, we can lay hold on souls ready to perish and set their feet on the ladder which is planted firmly on the earth and reaches upward to heaven. Looking unto Jesus we will not become easily provoked. We are seeing Him who is invisible. Our hearts need every moment an abiding Christ. Then we shall have peace and joy. The Lord would have all disunion cease, and all love one another as He has loved us.14LtMs, Lt 239, 1899, par. 6

I must close this letter. I wish you to receive the money essential to bring you across the broad waters, on my account.14LtMs, Lt 239, 1899, par. 7

In much love,14LtMs, Lt 239, 1899, par. 8

Dear Children, Edson and Emma White:

I hope you will come to us now as soon as possible, [even] if you do not remain more than two years. After you come you can then learn the way you should go. Elder Haskell and his wife left Cooranbong last evening to go to America. The boat leaves Sydney next Wednesday. I shall miss them very much. I need you to help me now, and tell me what to do in some things. 14LtMs, Lt 240, 1899, par. 1

Edson, do not, I beg of you, write books and get this one and that one to write them for you and then sign your name to them, even if you say these men have helped you. It hurts you as an author. You can write in simplifying the truth, but do not engage any man or woman to write for you. With close application you can read the Scriptures and make the thoughts your own. The Lord will help you if you only take time for careful study. You have ideas; do not employ others to put their fingers and brains into the work. We want you here to plan on books. Come right along as soon as possible and escape the hard winter. I want you to take this matter to the Lord yourself, and pray about it. The Lord will teach all who seek Him earnestly. 14LtMs, Lt 240, 1899, par. 2

Elder Haskell is accompanying Brother Irwin to America. Their first meeting will be in California. 14LtMs, Lt 240, 1899, par. 3

I have not slept since eleven o'clock p.m. I am so tired. 14LtMs, Lt 240, 1899, par. 4

We had excellent meetings through the conference. You will see the report in the Bulletin. I was taken very sick and did not attend meetings for one week. I was then so urged by our brethren to attend the meeting that I ventured, but could not stand. A chair was placed on the rostrum and I was comfortably seated. I spoke very feebly at first. I was showing my sickness decidedly in my countenance, but all were made glad to see strength coming to me. My voice grew stronger, and from that point I was improving. Next day I remained in the meeting, speaking in the afternoon and by request spoke again in the evening in the school chapel. 14LtMs, Lt 240, 1899, par. 5

At the close of the services [visitors were invited] to look at the grounds. All said that they felt like exclaiming, What hath the Lord wrought! The improvements made in every line are a wonderment to everyone. I would not gather my fruit. I allowed our visitors, entertained at our house, to go into the orchard and gather from my loaded trees mandarins and oranges and passion fruit. Brother Haskell, Sister Haskell, and Brother Irwin will tell you in regard to my home. 14LtMs, Lt 240, 1899, par. 6

If you come, you may have a home of your own in which to live and to work. I am not well now. Had an ill turn with my heart and it takes time to recover. I have a wish for that big piece of furniture, with the many drawers, if it could be packed by taking to pieces. I would be so glad of it. I would make two chests of drawers. I have a splendid cabinet worker, Brother Pocock. He would put it all up for me. Everything of this order is very expensive. You know what I mean—that piece of furniture in my room that had to be taken in through the window. All material in wood for making bureaus and other furniture has to come from Oregon and far off places. I must leave these matters to your judgment. Everything has to be cased. The back of the concern, of common, cheap wood, need not be brought. 14LtMs, Lt 240, 1899, par. 7

Dear Children, Edson and Emma White:

We are just now parting with Brother and Sister Haskell, whom we are now willing should go to America to do a work that we know he can do, and his wife will help him. We are sorry, very sorry, to have them leave us, but Brother Irwin is very anxious for them to go. At first I said, No, no, we cannot consent to have him leave the work here, for new fields are to be opening all around us and the fields are all ripe for the harvest. But the Lord has presented before me the work that needs to be done in America, and there are few who are voicing the third angel's message. Things are swinging into wrong channels.14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 1

The work called truly medical missionary work we have been engaged in ever since we came to this missionary field, and we have seen the marked working of the Holy Spirit of God in the restoring of the sick. We have seen the wonderful work of God upon the human hearts of men who were using tobacco and drinking liquor. We have seen the work of God accomplishing transformation of character. They have been tested and proved and brought out of the bondage of the law into the liberty of the gospel, and they are converted men and women. They find in Christ Jesus all that is satisfying.14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 2

We see such great things accomplished and humble our hearts before God and say, The work is not ours but that of the Lord Jesus Christ, the Lifegiver. The redemption and restoration of the soul is not our work, but the Lord's work. Edson and Emma, the cause that we knew not we have searched out. Here are whole families we have been instrumental in saving. This is medical missionary work. We had no hospital, but we used our own home as a place to take the sick and suffering to restore and try to save. We have used everything of our own and advanced the money to help them to get homes and a piece of land. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 3

A family of twelve—father, mother, and children—are now rejoicing in a home of their own. They have a house on the land, composed of tent and bark of trees, with corrugated iron for roofing, and they will soon be able to build a humble cottage of their own. The father is a carpenter. The two eldest sons work with him. The mother, discouraged and overworked, gave up trying to be a Christian, but her heart has broken before God, because we have taken right hold of the whole family. We have taken a crippled son who had a knee swelling. Sara worked for him and with compresses and pulverized charcoal killed the inflammation. Five years ago this injury came to the knee. He is a fine, bright boy with keen perception. For eleven months he was confined to his bed, and the doctor said it would be six weeks more before he could get off the bed. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 4

Well, the father came to work on the meetinghouse and school buildings, bringing his three eldest boys. The wife and mother was taking care of six children in Parramatta or Prospect until a place could be made for her. We let them occupy a small house of mine. We furnished them with everything to keep house themselves. The crippled boy, came on crutches, was the cook. He was so much better he laid aside his crutches and washed and baked and cared for the father and his two elder brothers. But it was too much. The knee troubled him again. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 5

We had the lad dine at our table, and yet we must do more. We took him outright and we kept up the treatment. Oh, what power there is in water! There formed under the knee a bunch which he called his egg. We dared not leave him, and Sara had the charge of him through the camp meeting at Newcastle. She opened this large swelling and it discharged dark-colored blood and matter and pieces of bone, which had come out several times. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 6

We placed the lad—he is, I think, thirteen years old—under Sister Peck, my worker in preparing and classifying matters for books. I have an office room where she works. She has given him charge of printing the letters in letterbooks. He is learning to write on typewriter, and she is teaching him many things. Now we send him to school. We clothe him and board him and his father pays his tuition. We keep him for the benefit we may do the boy. He is good material to work upon. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 7

The mother is so thankful she cannot express her gratitude. The father also is rejoiced that we can care for the boy who was pronounced by all physicians who examined him a cripple for life. They look upon the boy, active and healthy, and you can judge how they feel. This is our field for missionary work. This is the third case of terribly injured limbs, which cases had been pronounced by physicians incurable. These cases had been maltreated, and it was thought blood poisoning had set in, after ten days in one case and five days in another case. Sara took these cases and treated them with great, painstaking effort continuously for weeks. In one case we made a hospital of our own home, taking care of the boy and his aunt who came with him. We boarded them nearly two weeks, and Sara treated the case. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 8

She receives nothing for her labor, for I want all to know we do this for the love of God. In case after case, where physicians have failed to give any relief after charging an enormous sum for their services—five and ten pounds for a visit—the poor souls have sent for Sara. She has gone days and nights, five and six miles on horseback into the bush where no carriage could go, and attended the calls. She had been without rest and watching the sick patients days and nights, until one night she slept sixteen hours and could not be awakened. Everything was done that could be done but she could not be aroused. But the Lord did not permit this to be unto death. She revived, but felt the influence for some time, utterly exhausted. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 9

I might tell you of reformations in families, the history of the breaking off tobacco and tea and coffee, and standing out as health reformers. These are truly converted. One, a fisherman and boatmaker, smoked his pipe even after he went to bed. And he drank tea; he was a tea inebriate. He was converted. It took time. Bible readings were given in certain houses and companies came to learn the truth from the Bible. Then health reform was taught, and they were led along step by step. This man carries with him the unmistakable evidence that the Lord has wrought in his behalf. And still three more families have cast away tobacco and tea and coffee and liquor. The ministry of the Word has been brought home to their hearts and convicted them of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 10

One man was a livery stable keeper in prosperous times, well-to-do in the things of this world. He became sick and poor and the whole family, numbering eight, were sick at once with influenza. Again Sara went, with a young man who had learned lessons in the Health Home. He nursed the father of the family, and Sara the mother and children, and all recovered. The father and mother came to our meetings, were convicted, and both were converted. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 11

He threw his pipe in the fire, and when his wife saw this she cried most heartily. Said he, "Are you feeling bad because I broke my pipe?" She said, "Oh no, but I thought, when my family was supported by the washings I was doing from place to place, I had to give of my little for you to buy tobacco. Why did you not do this before?" Said he, "Wife, I did not understand before the sinfulness of tobacco using, beer drinking, and tea drinking, but I will not grieve you any more. If Brother White and Sister White will give me work to do, I will earn money now to support my wife and my children." He has worked steadily for one year and he says, "I look at myself and say, Is this Hungerford? I really scarcely know myself, eating proper food and employing my physical strength. I am coming up from being sick and discouraged to work like a strong man." 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 12

There is a family on our ground who are all God-loving and God-fearing. He was a conductor of Sabbath schools. He embraced the truth, lost his position as coach and cabinetmaker, and found a little piece of land among the rocks where no wagon could go. He carried material for his house down a steep hill and up a steep hill on his back. Every stick of lumber composing his home was thus brought onto the spot, and he built his house; but his poverty was great. I was solicited to give him work when building my home. I did so and found him a gentleman to be honored and respected. He is a man of noble traits of character. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 13

He looked, just before he left me, as if he had something to say, and finally in a most respectful manner asked if I would give him a few books. I found he possessed none of our books. I gave him books and papers with which he has worked and imparted to others, until three families living from three to six miles away have been converted and baptized by Brother Starr. He asked me if I had old clothing we would not use. We made up a box for him and for three years have continued to send him one or two boxes, which have kept his family [so] that he had not had to buy anything. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 14

We prevailed on him to move to Cooranbong where we could supply him with work. His child became sick just before he left home and in one week he died. Sara did everything for the boy she could do, but he had not strength to rally from the being poisoned by eating a parakeet given him by his grandmother. It poisoned the child to death. They are now using my camp meeting family tent. They have been furnished money by Sara to purchase iron to roof the tent and bags are put outside the tent to keep out the cold. I let them have a stove to cook their food and warm the tent, and there they will stay until there is a time when he will not have work and can build him a house. He has selected fifteen acres of land, and he can raise things on the land to support himself and his family. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 15

This man had not money to pay his fare on the cars. We paid the bill and wait for him to help us in work when he cannot get work to do on the school ground. He is a first class painter. His children, the two eldest, attend school, and this is about as happy a family as you would wish to see. There were five children. Now there are four children. 14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 16

This is the medical missionary work we are doing for Christ's sake. We see very much to do, and we have given only a few instances of our work. I have given away one hundred pounds of books and I am endeavoring, through reading matter and through active, earnest, practical doing, to relieve the pressing necessities that come to our knowledge. We believe with heart and soul and voice in missionary work that will not ravel out. We see whole families can be saved to Jesus Christ by laying right hold of them, bringing them into our homes and relieving their necessities. This is the work that should be done in every church. It is the blessing the church needs to receive by imparting and getting out of their selfish, covetous ways.14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 17

Men would not have been happy in Paradise without employment. The curse does not consist in labor, but in the sin of disobedience which has made man a convicted rebel. Man is not made for contemplation only, or for idleness, but for action. Activity is an essential for happiness and for health. Our faculties are precious, God-given talents to be exercised. Everything in relation to man in the human machinery means action. The wheels of nature and of Providence are not made to roll backward or to stand motionless. An idle man is never happy. Indolence is sin. The Lord created man to be a laborer.14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 18

Adam and Eve were earnest and happy in their employment appointed them of God. Working was full of thanksgiving and praise. The Lord God walked and talked with the holy pair in their innocence, instructing them how to do the work.14LtMs, Lt 241, 1899, par. 19

Sin made the work very much harder, but work was a safeguard for man. We work here, that we may do the very thing to keep us from sin, therefore there is no degradation in work. We may ask God for help and grace and rich blessings, and the Lord God will give in answer to our requests. But men are not imitating Christ's example. It is sad to see men and women pursue such a course that it is a severe humiliation to ask a favor. They just act as if they would lock the doors of their hearts, lest they should be induced to grant a simple favor which would cost them very little but [would] confer a great favor. There is a great hesitancy to request, for fear of being refused. Not so with heaven's gifts. You may ask, you may receive, and you may be bound up close with the great Heart of goodness and compassion and love. When the hearts of the human agents are converted they will be like Christ, to whom it is a joy to bless men and women. God help His people to have hearts to

Dear Children, Edson and Emma White:

I must say to you that your letters confirm all I have had presented to me, that it was your privilege to place yourself in different relations. It has always been presented to me, you well know, that W. C. White, your mother, and yourself should connect together in the work, but why is it not done? I know of no one who could be a greater help to you in your bookmaking than W. C. White, and you could be a great help to us. I have now decided Marian has served her time with me. She burdens me with her peculiarities, and she cannot do the books I desire to have done.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 242, 1899, par. 1

I wrote to you in regard to paying your debts before incurring more debts. I may not have made myself understood, but will say, if you wait the long process you have arranged before you come to us, I fear my time to work will be done. And yet I do not feel to urge you unreasonably. You will draw from the Review and Herald enough to pay your fare and Emma's fare, and draw what is necessary to bring the things you desire or see fit to bring, or to make purchases there. Well, I do not see as I can make any more statements than I have made. I warn you not to get up a rivalry in bookmaking, for your danger was presented to me.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 242, 1899, par. 2

I am sure if you are here we can get out quite a number of books. I can say no more. It is now six o'clock. I have been writing since one o'clock. Slept until twelve o'clock.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 242, 1899, par. 3

Now, my son, ask God for wisdom. We cannot say you must break away and come to us, but we say, ask the Lord. Get your light from the Lord. He can and will teach all who seek Him and whose will is to do God's will if they know His will. 14LtMs, Lt 242, 1899, par. 4

I spoke in my last letter in regard to the case of Sister Rose. You may draw from the office the sum to cancel that debt and charge to my account, and we will settle that business between you and me. 14LtMs, Lt 242, 1899, par. 5

I am sure of one thing, that the warning was given me especially for you not to carry out the inclination of your own heart to strive for rivalry in books. I would be able to help you, I know, or put in your power to handle some of my books I anticipate getting out. But, Edson, Marian has been on the strain a long while, and I think she should be released and not kept at the treadmill until she loses her mind. I greatly desire to have proper help and not have to wait one or two years, for I know not how I shall be in one year from now. 14LtMs, Lt 242, 1899, par. 6

I shall try to spend some time in the open air. Last evening Sara and I rode with Jasper, Elder Haskell's horse, to Martinsville for oranges. We found enough for the present. Shall go again on Thursday. We brought home twenty-six dozen for W. C. White and our family—three pence per dozen, which is six cents per dozen. The trees are all in bloom again for another crop. We have a very nice flower garden. The oranges were ripe when the union conference was held. I would not let the family pick many oranges and mandarins, but gave the ministers the privilege of picking the fruit for themselves. The trees are loaded with blossoms and so fragrant. We have plenty of lemons which are in all stages of ripening and are full of blossoms. 14LtMs, Lt 242, 1899, par. 7

My eyes will close while I am tracing words to you. 14LtMs, Lt 242, 1899, par. 9

Dear Children:

I will write to you early for this next mail. I had two letters written—one for Sister Henry and one for yourself—and was expecting every moment that they would come to take the letters, but when too late I learned they could not go. I received your letters. Thank you for writing. 14LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 1

Brother Ballenger has written me a letter which I fear I cannot properly answer. I have written some things but it does not, I fear, cover the grounds fully. I will send you a copy of the letter I have written him, and I wish your comment upon it. 14LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 2

Brother Irwin is entertained at my home. I have not had any opportunity to ask him about the Southern Field. I am answering written down questions which have been sent for me to answer. 14LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 3

Edson, please answer my question: Had I ought to dispose of my property in Battle Creek for thirty-two hundred dollars? Dr. Kellogg offered me thirty-five hundred. I agreed to take it, they purchasing it subject to the mortgage; but since then they have had it appraised and have sent me a note for only thirty-two hundred, subject to the mortgage. Very little is coming to me. 14LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 4

The very next time you go to Battle Creek I want all my belongings there considered. I want to know how much I have. I had that wagon you had Henry make stowed away. What became of the springs of that secondhand carriage you purchased—a four-wheeled, one-seat carriage, with top? Those were the best springs I ever had, and if you know anything about them will you tell me, for I would have those springs taken care of, and sometime they can come to me in a box of goods. I can find nothing like them here. If you go to Battle Creek in the hot spell of weather—which you should do, or go somewhere else, and wherever you go you will first go to Battle Creek—I want you to see if that piece of furniture in my room could have the drawers removed and sent to me, and if it could all be taken apart and sent, packed up close without costing a large sum. I thought much of that piece of goods.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 5

I have books—I think four or five volumes of Barnes' Notes, large books. I want them. They can be packed in a box of books coming to Australia. There are other books. I would appreciate Horace Mann, but you look over my books and tell me in regard to them. What property have I in Battle Creek? Will you just ascertain? I do not know as you can read this scribbling. If you can, I shall be pleased.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 6

All the money we have received from Battle Creek is three thousand dollars. It is a strange thing that occurred in reference to Captain Norman. I understand all that business of his liberal donations is a fraud. He has not the means he so liberally donated. What do you make of this man, that he should deceive the whole conference as he has done? And Brother Corliss has moved, in preparation to get ready to go on his boat or vessel, and has expended for preparations four hundred dollars. What does it all mean?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 7

Well, we did hope for donations to help us out of our difficulties but if we cannot obtain means in that way, the Lord can open up some other way to help us.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 8

I would be greatly pleased could you unite with us in Australia in our work. You would understand [the work] better than anyone we could get to help me in getting out my testimonies which the people need so much. If I had more help, I would now begin to write, and finish up the New Testament history and then take up the Old Testament history. Which do you think would be the best—the revision of the Life of Paul and the Apostles from Acts through to Revelation, or the Old Testament from Solomon down to Malachi? I would be so pleased if I could have your help. Willie is called off on so many business matters that I cannot hope to have much of his time and careful planning.<sup>14LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 9</sup>

The book Christ Our Saviour is not yet completed. The artist is slow, but he is doing good work. I will send them to you as soon as he has done the work, which will, I hope, be soon.<sup>14LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 10</sup>

I am enjoying good health at present. I send you copies of matter which I have been writing and I would like to know what you think of these things. I am much exercised in regard to them, and I have written out these matters.<sup>14LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 11</sup>

Brother Irwin came to our place last week. He is with us still and will go, I expect, to visit Melbourne after this week.<sup>14LtMs, Lt 243, 1899, par. 12</sup>

I hope you will be of good courage and will not expose yourself or Emma when hot weather comes. Go to some healthy place and may God give you courage in the Lord. I can write no more. [First part missing.] ... errand of the men and the father looked rather perplexed. The son had told our brethren that he used no tobacco or liquor of any kind. Brother Starr went over the ground of which he had spoken to the son, and the father was much interested and thought there would be no objection to their having the ground, but he would have to speak to the council. "And as you," he said, addressing Brother Starr, "can tell them just as you have told me, I invite you to be present on this occasion." He promised he would. So you see the matter is working so the truth will be brought before the first men of authority of Maitland. This is as it should be. We are to take an elevated position, as did the prophets of old, and be intensely in earnest in working out the will of God. And while we have the spirit of a little child, the Spirit of the Lord will make the impressions upon human hearts.14LtMs, Lt 244, 1899, par. 1

We have spent two Sabbaths and Sundays at Hamilton. We were called to be present at the dedication of the church just erected at Hamilton. I spoke on Sabbath—what is called the dedicatory discourse. The house was well filled. Sabbath afternoon there was a social meeting. Very good. Sunday I spoke in the afternoon, Brother Daniells in the evening. We returned to Cooranbong Monday morning.14LtMs, Lt 244, 1899, par. 2

We received telegram from Dr. Caro to come to see land for sanitarium. We took the cars Tuesday morning—W. C. White, Brother Gates, Sara, and I. We found two teams waiting for us. I have given you the history of this in another letter.14LtMs, Lt 244, 1899, par. 3

Last Sabbath I spoke in afternoon in the chapel. Brother Daniells spoke in forenoon and in the evening. Sunday morning quarter before ten, we were in the school chapel. W. C. White spoke with clearness. I had been so harassed with various perplexities that I did not know as it was my duty to speak, but as my turn had come I arose and, committing myself to God for His help, I addressed the students and the teachers. I was sure that the Lord gave me tongue and utterance. Every word seemed to come readily, and I do bless the Lord for the signal manifestation of the power of God. All the school felt, indeed, the presence of God in a marked manner. I was filled with the Spirit of God and out of the abundance of the heart the tongue speaketh. Then Elder Daniells spoke excellently well, then Herbert Lacey bore a good testimony. Brother Palmer, who was preceptor, spoke well; then Brother Hughes spoke well. Young Brother Morse spoke. I could not remain for I was tired.14LtMs, Lt 244, 1899, par. 4

I had a pleasant interview with Brother Colcord. Brother John Wessels had been with us during the closing exercises of the school. I had an interview with him. Meeting was appointed for early morning in my room—Brethren Daniells, Starr, Salisbury, and W. C. White, and myself. This proved to be a most important interview in reference to recommending laborers in new fields. Now I am preparing my American mail, and I have so consumed my time I can write but little. Brother and Sister Hickox are doing well. A tent is established in a beautiful park at Wallsend. These meetings have only just begun. It is not possible to know the result. There seems to be an excellent spirit generally. I wish we could see you here when the year is over. We shall expect to see you in the centennial year.14LtMs, Lt 244, 1899, par. 5

Wednesday, the 11th, we shall be on our way to Toowoomba, Queensland. And you and Sister Haskell will not be here as you were in Brisbane. But the Lord Jesus will be with you and us. I fully believe it since the Lord blessed me so abundantly yesterday. Praise His holy name.14LtMs, Lt 244, 1899, par. 6

Dear Son Willie:

After Elders Haskell and Irwin left us I was nearly completely exhausted. I cannot describe my feelings. I felt as nearly alone as I have at any period of my life. I shall miss Elder Haskell very much. He could appreciate the character of my work as no one else now living has ever done. If your mind were not called in so many ways, engrossed in so many things, you might in time be the best help I could have. But it is not possible for me to expect this. Your education has been in that line that business is your forte, and I have tried to be reconciled. Whenever a call has been made, you were up and off. I made the remarks I did to you that I should no longer place any dependence upon the surety of your help. I do not think you have felt the burden of my work or how I have been situated and my sore perplexities. 14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 1

I expected when Sister Peck came at my call you would link up with her, and you being acquainted with the character of the work to be done, a great burden would be taken from me. But I am sorely disappointed. When you give yourself to the work, you can do that which no other one can do; but this has only been for a limited period of time. Then you accepted other burdens, some of which were apparently a necessity, some things—I might say many things—were placed first and [my] work second or thirdly. 14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 2

I have felt that Edson should be with me. Whether he would be a help or hindrance depends largely upon the state of his mind. I know of no one who could do this work as well as yourself and he. But I am compelled to realize the fact that you have little confidence in your brother, and he does not have much confidence in your course of action. He has not written me anything but what I have placed in your hands, so you understand his expression as well as I do. I was very much disappointed that you, his own brother, did not take a special burden on you to visit him in the field of his labor. You seemed to me, in this, to pass an opportunity that you may never have again of seeing things on his own ground of labor. This hurt my soul. I was here, working to supply the necessities of your family. I neglected nothing that I knew needed to be done for your wife May and your children. I made every exertion to build you a home and to make you a present of the same. You knew this when you were in America. And I was intensely interested that you should act a brother's part toward Edson. 14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 3

I did not suggest some things to you that I might. I left you to be just as forward to help your brother as you have been to help others, just as solicitous in his case as you have been for others who were no kith or kin to you. You ought by this time to have known his temperament and to have been very tender and careful in speaking with him and acting in my behalf toward him. I was acting toward you the part of a mother. I mothered your family and I sincerely hoped you would feel the same toward Edson. 14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 4

I would say to you, Willie, I am supplying all the money that you loaned to Edson White, and I think it would be a brotherly action for you to say to him, "Edson, you are, I see, having a hard time and a hard struggle. I will not ask you to pay to the uttermost farthing of the debt you owe me. If ever you get in a situation to pay, all right. If not, I shall never ask it of you." This is what I expected and had a right to expect. I thought you were so very susceptible to all these things in many other cases you would certainly understand the right thing to do. But when the case was laid open before me by yourself, I felt bruised in spirit; and the close terms, as it appeared to me you made with Edson, would not serve to strengthen brotherly affection as God would be pleased to have it, but to make the breach between you wider. 14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 5

Now, Willie, I have begrudged you nothing. I paid the school debt of May's. I paid about one hundred dollars to have her teeth set in order. I have clothed her and your children almost entirely since you were married. I have shared my fruit with you and loved to do it and in no case would be deprived of the privilege. I have told you I made to you a free gift of your home, and the land you required. And could not you have handled this case of Edson in a similar manner?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 6

Now, W. C. White, my son, I love Edson White and his wife just as much as I love you and your wife, and am more sympathetic for Edson than for you, because before his birth circumstances were peculiarly unfavorable in regard to his stamp of character. My association while carrying him, the peculiar experience I was forced to have, was most objectionable and severely trying. After his birth it was no less so for years. It was altogether different in your case.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 7

I could not have felt worse if he had died, than to have the impression on your mind and on his mind, as I know it was when you were in America. I know you tried to help him, but mingled with this was the business in the book arrangements that made him sore by every touch of yours in the matter. From the light given me of the Lord, these things should not have been managed the way they were, for it cut deeply and there has not been that tenderness exercised in regard to your brother that there should have been. There was too much of the spirit, "Pay me what thou owest" [Matthew 18:28], when I was doing for you and for your family all the time everything I could do, and I did it gladly. The light that the Lord has given me has been that there should be unity and love existing and constantly cherished between you, and you have just as much to do in this matter as has Edson, your elder brother.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 8

This alienation must not exist. Any sacrifice is better than this. The Lord has dealt tenderly with Edson and has accepted his labors in the South, although he has made mistakes in not heeding the instruction given him in regard to plans that were revealed to me, but that he was anticipating. I do not now want Edson to come here if there is not a change in your feelings toward him. I have written him to come, for I wish him to be with me awhile, and I wish him to help me in my work. I have not confidence that your mind will be able to assimilate to the work I have in hand. The Life of Paul must be revised, and the temperance book brought before the people. Could you have given to me more of your time, the large bills paid for that work that amounts to nothing would have been saved. How to Live is to be revised, and all these things weigh me down as a heavy burden. The Testimonies are to be prepared in right shape to come before the people. 14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 9

I stop here, but say to you, Do not withhold yourself from any position you think you should take, for you might just as well have the position assigned you as to do the work without the appointment. You can then have your pay from the union conference and do the work you are accustomed to do and have been educated to do, and then I will not count upon you and will shape myself to the situation and manage, if possible, to get some help from a woman, not a man. I will take right hold myself with Sister Peck. We will read matters together, and then I will not be looking forward to and expecting your help, which I do not get. 14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 10

I think you can read this without copying. 14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 11

I shall send my letter to Edson White that I read to you. If he decides to come, I will be glad; and if you will both decide to do those things which make for unity and peace, the Lord will greatly bless you both. I am sure you can help your brother by sheathing the sword of sharp words and showing tender, thoughtful affection. Your words are sharp and severe, not alone to him, but toward others. This is not natural. This is not hereditary with you, but is the habit you are getting into, and have been for years. Let a change come, and the Lord will bless you; but words spoken have displeased the Lord Jesus, for they were sarcasm and wholly uncalled for. 14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 12

I leave these matters now with you, and [will] be perfectly free, for I shall not be hindered any longer. It is not the will of God that I should be. I shall do my best now while life shall last, to press these testimonies right into circulation. And do not think I have not appreciated the work you have done to get hold of the matter. 14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 13

I shall not attend camp meeting in any place without special light from the Lord. I shall be with my workers; and we shall, if possible, accomplish something—if it is not so wonderful and precise. This is the plan to which I have thought I should work. I see no other plan. I did not send this matter to Sydney as I designed to do, but see[ing] things now as I do, I shall go straight ahead as soon as the American mail leaves. I shall not wait one day for you, my son, or for any other one. The work I supposed would be done is not done.14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 14

Mother.

August 13

My son, W. C. White, Do not think I do not appreciate your work when you give yourself to it, for I do appreciate it highly.14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 15

But I have lost all hope of any success while I wait your notion, or freedom, to work in the matter so important to me. I cannot have you take hold of the work in a sort of catch it up [manner], to drop it to do work at the school, and I keep the burden of matters, of planning and devising methods and ways, while I have a very little of your mind, for it is on something else.14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 16

When you proposed last night to have Sister Peck take a class of teachers to educate for church schools, I said to myself, What does he mean? Can he have any real sense of my labors and the burdens I carry? It is a hopeless case. He would suggest things to take away the only working force I have on these important matters which should come to the people. There cannot be catching up my work as a woman would her knitting work and dropping it just as readily. Every time Sister Peck has her mind called to other work, that mind and its power, which the work should have, is diverted.14LtMs, Lt 245, 1899, par. 17

Belden, Brother and Sister [S. T.]

1899

Dear Brother and Sister Belden:

Brother Starr came yesterday from Maitland. He says the interest does not abate, but it is now the most critical period of time and must be carefully and attentively watched. We are not to be relieved and off guard a moment. The ministers are concocting their falsehoods and exerting every influence possible to keep their members from attending meetings, but Brother Hickox and his wife are to work as best they can in any place where they are most needed. The very best of the church members have fed on dry, stale food—politics, war in Africa, and all manner of cheap hash—until they are sick and tired of this class of ministry. Now is our time to do to the uttermost of our God-given ability. We feel deeply and work incessantly. 14LtMs, Lt 246, 1899, par. 1

As to forsaking you, you have tangible proof that we have done all we could do, while you were with us and when you left us; and if we are away off in camp meetings, engaged in the work and put to our wits' end to know what to do in the work in hand, if we do not keep you constantly before our minds, is it anything to be wondered at? We thought, after we had done what we did do, investing one hundred pounds, that we would feel that you could get along and be comfortable and help yourselves; but if this is not the case, then we will wish to know what you want. State it plainly and we will try to supply your necessities. We do not want you to suffer. I will make inquiries in regard to whom you can address in Sydney; but all have their hands so full that I cannot tell whom to trust, and am thinking you will be obliged to wait, sometimes, if you do not get things just as you want. 14LtMs, Lt 246, 1899, par. 2

All the fitting out for you both in clothing and facilities amounted to quite a sum, about one hundred pounds. Frank has written me that he is so loaded with debts it will be a long time before he can do anything in the line of helping you in money matters, but he says he means to carry all the expense we have been at. But when he [will] get free from debt no one can tell, and I shall not depend on him at all. If we had let you have the money, for you to live on, [that was] expended in the tools for you to make teeth, I think it would have shown greater wisdom, much greater. 14LtMs, Lt 246, 1899, par. 3

... made a deep impression and the tent meeting was larger than it had for many weeks before. The people of the Lord must have freedom and courage in the Lord, giving the last note of warning as the trumpet gives a certain sound to call all to the battle. At ten o'clock we retired for rest, and arose at three a.m., harnessed our team and drove to Mount Vincent; half way there fed the horse, ate our lunch, and here we are at home again. The care of the churches has pressed me as a cart beneath sheaves. But my work is not done yet and the Lord will sustain me until it is done. 14LtMs, Lt 246, 1899, par. 4

I am very sorry that I cannot get in connection with Norfolk Island oftener and more certainly. I scarcely know what to do to relieve the situation. I am willing to do all that I can, but how to do it is the question. We consented for you to go from us to Norfolk Island because you were uneasy and not content and happy, and this was becoming a burden to me. Had you been satisfied to let us do for you, and not been trying all the time to do something that was beyond your strength, and had you been looking unto Jesus, reposing in Jesus Christ, it would have been a pleasure for us to do anything in our power. The twenty pounds you thought would fit you out to work increased until all together it reached all of one hundred, but I was not begrudging you this. If there had been contentment with you both, then my mind would have been at rest. But I cannot have my mind troubled and worried about things that I cannot help, and that are out of my power to help. 14LtMs, Lt 246, 1899, par. 5

I felt worried as I saw Sister Belden so helpless. I did not feel it was as it should be. She had the name of being a missionary, and yet she chose to read, read, and the dishes were not washed. Her meals were not prepared as they should be, because she chose to read so much. In the night season I had the matter presented to me that she could better glorify God by being attentive to prepare food that would be nourishing, and have everything neat and tidy and make a correct representation to anyone who might come to call or enter the house. These things are not as they should be. I present them now because I dared not do this before, fearing Sister Belden would think I wanted to get rid of her; but I tell you I tried to do everything I could. I know from the light given me that in order to do as little as possible, often a very meager diet was presented in a cheap, distasteful way. I wanted no one to see these things, for remarks often come to me from others asking why you did not make your rooms look neat and not leave the dishes uncared for, unwashed.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 246, 1899, par. 6

I send you these lines because you are children of God and He expects you to do the very things that will be a lesson to others. I know that Stephen ought to have better and more careful preparation in his food, to nourish him. And when you get your mind on reading books you neglect to exercise your physical strength as is best for you. Now I speak these things to help you both, not to destroy, but to restore. You both need now to be drawing nigh to God, to become more and more after the divine Pattern.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 246, 1899, par. 7

Dear and Beloved Sister in Jesus Christ:

I send you in this mail a letter to Sister Carle and to the little girl Miller that gave the ten cents. I thought, you see, that they had these letters. I was requested by Brother Irwin to write to these two in particular. I have done so. 14LtMs, Lt 247, 1899, par. 1

I wish often you were with us to act as matron of my home. We should prize you highly as matron of our Health Retreat. I do want to see you so much, but this cannot be. I do not want you to leave the Health Retreat in California until the time the Lord would have you take up work in another place. 14LtMs, Lt 247, 1899, par. 2

I am doing more writing than I have ever done in my life. I am often up at twelve at night and at one and two o'clock in the morning. I would be so glad to bear my testimony in California once more. I am always glad to hear from you. You have many letters from me in the papers. I get nothing from you unless you write. I leave for Queensland tomorrow to attend camp meeting in Toowoomba, several hours' ride short of Brisbane, where the camp meeting was held last year. Our school term has closed and the blessing of the Lord was with us in the exercises. 14LtMs, Lt 247, 1899, par. 3

Davis, Marian

Toowoomba, Queensland, Australia

October 20, 1899

Previously unpublished.

Dear Sister Marian:

I write you a few lines this morning. I would have been pleased to hear from you in regard to the work in your hands. How are you progressing? I have not been as strong as usual since I left home. In the cars I was weak. Sara was all worried out before we came. She was carsick all the way and has not been her usual self since being here, but she is some better, and I think, will not realize her journey [as] hard as when coming up. Our sleeper was at the end of the cars, and there was a continual banging underneath the cars, jostling and shaking us about. When in the sleeper, she had a severe headache and seasick sensation, and so did I. I have not been as well as usual, but now I am feeling more natural.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 1

I have spoken four times. Yesterday Elder Daniells, Sister Graham, Sara, and I rode out for the first time to see the place. It is a very pretty place, and we enjoyed viewing it from the high hills. The earth is red and when it rains it sticks, they say, like putty. There are abundant flowers everywhere. They have showers quite frequently, but I am thankful that we have had none since we have been here.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 2

The outside attendance is not much. We cannot explain this, but so it is. Everything has been done that could be done to secure a congregation, but the people seem to care for none of these things. They have sold more Echoes than in any place yet, but it ends there. This is a strong Catholic center. We are told they have several churches and a large convent in this place. I expect, as others have said, that the Protestant element is working among families, telling them not to come out and not to hear us. But the tent will be pitched in the very midst of the population and Brother Herbert Lacey and workers connected with him will do their best. It is one of those places where the inhabitants seem spiritually paralyzed. All that has been done with any success is visiting from home to home and laboring with families. I have found a place for all our German literature. Germans are scattered in the country—farmers, honest, nice, whole-souled people—and these are being helped, and a few outsiders are interested.14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 3

There was one night this week when I felt a great agony of soul. I prayed most earnestly, for I could not sleep. The burden seemed tremendous upon me. I walked the room, and at midnight was up crying unto God. I seemed crushed under the burden, as a cart beneath sheaves; but the burden was laid upon the Burden-bearer and since that time I have had peace and rest.14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 4

The Lord has His own way of doing His work and He does not always work in the same way. I know a message was given me for Brethren Starr and Pallant that the people could only be reached in some places in the country by vigilant, persevering, house-to-house effort. I but just this morning called this to mind, and this plan is to be carried out by the workers here. I wish I could visit Brisbane and speak to them, but I fear it will be too much for me.14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 5

I shall expect you to attend the meeting at Maitland if you desire so to do. I want to say, Marian, that if you would surround your soul with the sweet atmosphere of the Holy Spirit's creating, you would be a much happier woman, but you do not take yourself in hand. Your own spirit rules you like a tyrant. Now, it is no kind of use to let this be so. You are under bonds to God as His follower, to follow the Lamb of God who taketh away the sin of the world.14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 6

We are handling sacred things and not one must give loose rein to the natural traits of character that are constantly striving for the supremacy. Self must be under the control of the Holy Spirit, else it becomes, in the place of being transformed, a deformed agency to spoil the Christian experience. You cannot be a happy child of God unless you comply daily with the invitation of Jesus Christ, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." [Matthew 11:28-30.] This is the lesson we need all to learn daily, quietude in Jesus Christ. All the attributes of Christ are peace and hope and joy.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 7

You have let jealousy find a place in your heart. Now empty the soul temple of this disagreeable guest. The Lord Jesus and jealousy cannot occupy the same room. The Lord calls upon you to consider. The advantages you have had for so many years in connection with a work that bears the divine signature should have a sanctifying, reformatory power upon your soul, and you should testify to the grace of God given you as one cooperating with the Holy Spirit to make that work just that which the Lord would be pleased to have it. But when you bring unsubdued self into the work and let your own strong spirit be revealed in your words and demeanor, then you place all connected with me in an uncertainty and temptations come. What manner of spirit is working you? What does it all mean? Can the Lord be working with Sister Davis? No one need to have anything toward you but respect and love. You have had years of experience and of knowledge and should be in character and deportment a mild, devoted, whole-souled Christian. If your connection with the work does not make you thus, then that work wears and tears and wearies the physical and mental powers, and it is time a change was made.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 8

Now, Marian, I do not want to place any other work in your hands, because I do not want to wear out the last particle of physical, mental, and moral strength that you have. I am deeply burdened to know just what to do. Would it please you to go to America and see this book of the parables through the press? I understand just now that Brother and Sister Reekie are going in a few months. If you would be pleased to go, then I will make arrangements for you to see through several books which will follow, and you can do a good work in this business at that end of the line as my employed worker to do this. If this is considered, the change may be beneficial to you.

A change you must have and that very soon. As much as I want your cooperation and work in getting out books, I am where I dare not, in your present condition, put work into your hands, for it would bring upon me a great, very great responsibility that I was doing you an injury that would make me responsible for the result.14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 9

I have not mentioned this to any one of our household, but I have thought of this as the best thing that could be done. You may consider it. I cannot prevail upon you to go anywhere rather than right where you are. And when I see that same intensity put into the raising of a few flowers that you have put into the work, I know that it is not the help you should have. You do not work for mere exercise, but with the same zeal and intensity as if the flowers that last only a day were souls capable of obtaining immortality. I know the hope in that line is cut away from me. Everything is swallowed up this way. If we can devise any course to benefit you that will improve physical, mental, and moral strength, then I will gladly accede to anything. But it must not be that you have no change. I am constantly burdened. I see your work in the flowers or on the grounds does not improve your physical or your spiritual development, and something must be done.14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 10

I am nearing the close of my earthly life, and I must have quietude and peace and rest to prepare more important works which the people need. But my mind is so troubled to see you not growing in grace and meekness and quietude of mind because you rest in the Lord and enjoy His love, that I dare not say, "Here, Marian, is a book I will put in your hands to arrange." If you would only make a change and have entire rest in some place where the work and wear will not be felt by you, then you might, after one year's rest, be able to take hold again. It is worth the effort anyhow and may work out the sum that puzzles me so. If you have any plans to suggest that will please you and that are reasonable, make it known to me freely.14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 11

You have now the matter laid out before you, and I want you to consider. It is high time you were, through the grace of Christ, sweetening up and having peace and rest of soul. You seem to have a spirit of combativeness and intensity to carry out your own wishes and your own plans without weighing the effect upon others and seeking to accommodate yourself to the convenience of those connected with me in the work. All who handle the work of God that I place in their hands must work harmoniously, else the enemy will obtain victories to hinder in the place of advancing the work. There is a great help in Christian association if all are seeking to be controlled by the will of God. 14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 12

All have their own peculiar trials and temptations, which as faithful followers of Christ they can overcome in His strength. But if they place themselves in positions where they feel no sacred responsibility to be a help and a blessing according to the light, knowledge, and experience of many years, to be an advantage to the souls of others who have not had the opportunity and experience they have had; if they show no advance in spiritual growth, but act like unsubdued children, they dishonor Christ, and show that His Spirit is not entertained and Christ is not abiding in the soul. 14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 13

You should be where you could help all that are connected with my work. You can never help them by making a charge upon them. God calls upon you to change decidedly, and as you have been severely taxed in preparing the work Desire of Ages, we would plan for you to let go of all this kind of work in preparation of books. I shall feel this laying down of the work more than any other one can possibly feel it. I could wish that your physical, mental, and moral strength would carry you through as long as I live to arrange the matters I shall prepare. But as I see you have lost your grip upon the divine power, I am frightened for you and for myself. When I see you positively without self-control, I cannot trust my work in your hands. The converting, transforming power of the great Healer is so much needed, but will never come upon you while you let your strong will press you forward in any direction that it shall happen to carry. Do you have your eye fixed upon Jesus? Do you by beholding Him become changed day by day into His image, which reveals a grace not earth-born, aiming to promote the happiness of all with whom you are acting a part in the work? 14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 14

Sister Peck is my associate in the work. You are my associate in the work. She and you united, her healthy strength mixed with yours, would make, I thought, a complete whole. But your own self stood where this could not be done, which God would have had done, and the feelings that you have had of jealousy and evil surmisings have made you miserably unhappy, and repelled her so that you could not associate together in the work. You will reason no reference to this matter, but it is the truth, and therefore I am situated where I am in perplexity what to do. At Petoskey the light was given me that she should become united with me in my work. I had need of her; but others told me that she would not come with me to Australia. Had she consented to come, Fannie would never have crossed the broad waters. I should have pressed the matter home upon her myself, and I should have gained the victory. Then when you could not do a tithe of the work to be done, and should have hailed a fresh, healthy hand and mind to aid in the work, you have not felt pleased, and have been feeling jealous and full of evil surmisings. Christ cannot abide in your heart until self dies and Christ fills the soul.14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 15

I beg of you to no longer halt between two opinions. If the Lord be God serve Him, and die to self. Let Christ into your heart, and He can heal your poor, sick mind and body. But I now leave this matter with you.14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 16

I have no copy of this. No one has seen it.14LtMs, Lt 248, 1899, par. 18

Kellogg, Brother and Sister [J. H.]

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

June 3, 1899

Portions of this letter are published in 4Bio 396-397.

Dear Brother and Sister:

I am troubled, greatly troubled. Matters have been opened before me and I am greatly perplexed [to know] what to do and what to say. Here we are, longing to see the medical missionary work established in this country, but we are behind that which we could do if we could obtain means to establish a sanitarium. Some things have been presented to me, that if the Lord had been permitted to run things in America there would be an altogether different showing. Not only would new territory be entered and the truth proclaimed and souls perishing in their sins converted, but churches would be built in America and new churches solidly established to support the work. But this kind of work has not received the care, and studied, careful plans have not set in operation, to add territory after territory where the truth has not yet been proclaimed. 14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 1

There is a work to be done that is not done, and the Lord holds the ministers and leading men responsible for the work that should be done that is left undone. The third angel's message is being considered a matter out-of-date, and yet the state of things in our world is revealing the end near. There is to be a work done that is not done. 14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 2

There has been human overworking in some lines of that which is supposed to be medical missionary work. But everything is not to be carried in this kind of management of the missionary work. There is the great necessity of young men entering the canvassing field to do a work that preaching the Word cannot do. The youth are to be educated and trained in as short a time as possible, and not left to drift where they take a notion and pick up fanciful ideas and, without careful study of the Scriptures, weave false threads into the web. This is being done, and it is becoming a rarity to hear the gospel trumpet giving clear, distinct, pure Bible doctrine—present truth for this time. Young men would do excellent work if linked with experienced preachers, ever bearing in mind that the medical missionary work is an arm and working hand to the body, not the body, not the all and in all. It is to be connected with the work of the ministry. There is danger of swaying the work heavily in one line, while other essential lines are neglected; things are getting turned upside down. The arm is made the all-important everything and the body nothing.14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 3

The work is moving strangely, not healthfully. It is getting to be something which is absorbing all the vitality and the means, and is hedging up the way for the gospel to be proclaimed to the world in all its dignified bearings. The ministry is not to be treated as if it had lost all its sacred efficiency, and here has come in a work which takes the place of the ministry. Never, never can this be. The Lord God of Israel will have the ministry hold its sacred character as long as time shall last. Why, my Brother Kellogg, do you, before your colleagues, present the ministry as secondary to the medical missionary work? God does not make your methods and all your inventions the thing to prepare a people to stand in the great day of God. The medical missionary workers are not to feel that it is a right action to belittle the gospel ministry. God has never indicated or inspired men to do this, and He calls for a different sentiment.14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 4

My Brother Kellogg, you are making a great mistake. Had the Lord led your mind you would not have linked up with A. R. Henry, and carried the donated means to establish another sanitarium, when you had the painful difficulties we were in here in this new world kept before you. It is not God's Spirit that gives you eyes and ears only for the things that are nigh. The medical missionary work, united with the ministry, will carry a proper dignity with it that the third angel's message of warning to our world means something to the world. The large donations you received! Think you, if James White were alive, in health as he once was, he would not have taken in the situation and seen afar off, as well as nigh.14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 5

That sanitarium in Boulder should not have been created until there had been, Dr. Kellogg, an interest to understand there was [a] greater necessity in fields where there was nothing. You know the character of the work God has given me to do, and my being sent to this field meant to you that God called upon you to divide your donations until the medical missionary work should be established. But we could not have the assistance of the hand and arm to the body because you manifested a selfishness to center the institutions where you pleased. The necessity was kept before you, and you could have managed not to have absorbed so largely and abundantly in America and left the ones God has sent [to Australia] to struggle along, destitute of the help that you could and should have given us. Years have passed, and we are still unable to work—the hand and arm connected with the body. 14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 6

There has not been any desire for you to give of your private personal funds, but [only] to [have you] turn to Australia some of the gifts and offerings flowing in. I cannot feel that this is God's leading, for I have much more confidence in my heavenly Father than to consider this is His way of managing. I have, myself, spent thousands of dollars. If I had not done this, we should have been not at all advanced. But I am sore at heart to see the time passing and you absorbing means and devising [plans] to use up the funds in medical missionary lines, and yet you are not deeply moved to establish that which is deemed so important in connection with the ministry here in Australia. 14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 7

The Lord called me to this field, and when at times I have been almost discouraged, then figures and symbols would be given me, and the words in explanation, that in every department of the work it is the willing mind, the earnest, unselfish spirit the laborer possesses that achieves the victory. But I have been restrained from entering into the work as have done in America, absorbing means to such a large extent with, indeed, so little solid work that bears the divine credentials. 14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 8

The discouragement our ministers have received has not been of the Lord. The Lord calls for wise planning and economy in the investing of means. There is now a confused state of things, but the Lord will bring order out of the confusion. The medical missionary work is not to supersede the ministry of the Word. God has given now, at the present time, the very same outlining of the work that He gave in the first establishment of the truth in the lines we have worked. 14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 9

I have not said to you or to others all I have been authorized to say, for neither you nor they could bear it. Neither can you now bear it. I may never say the things I might say. 14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 10

I have listened to your words in jots and tittles to demerit the ministers and their work; it was not to your credit to do this. It was against the Lord's organized plans, and if all had been done to please your ideas, we should have strange things developed; but God has held in check some things, that they should not become a specialty. The ministering forces are not to be measured, or to be under the control of yourself or any living man to bind them about, to put them in the dust. You have become exalted; you have come to think that the message God has given for this time is not essential. Nevertheless, if the trumpet gives a certain sound, it will be the proclamation of the third angel's message. All the heart is to be renovated and given to God. This is our individual work. Oh how few understand the workings of the power of Satan upon the human heart! 14LtMs, Lt 249, 1899, par. 11

I am propped up in bed to write a few lines to you. I left the camp ground Monday morning at nine o'clock, needing rest and treatment. I had spoken ten times before the large number assembled under the tent and the many who could not get under the tent. Our congregations Sabbath afternoons and evenings and Sundays have been the largest we have had in any tent meeting. We have had one of the greatest and best meetings we have ever attended. The interest seemed to begin [with the first] meeting. The large tent, the largest we have yet seen, was filled to overflowing and thus it kept up until the close. On weekdays and evenings the tent was full. I spoke ten times to the large number and six times to lesser numbers in the early morning meetings, beside council meetings. I hoped to get over my weariness, but I had been so reined up I did not know I was about on the eve of bankruptcy.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 250, 1899, par. 1

They expected I would attend the meeting at Ballarat commencing this week, but I am really unable. I have been growing sicker and sicker until I began to think seriously how this would end.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 250, 1899, par. 2

Yesterday, Sabbath, a telegram informed us our dear, beloved Brother Wilson fell asleep quietly in Jesus Friday afternoon. It may be I shall go next. I have failed in flesh much during this illness. I cannot eat. I suffer much pain.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 250, 1899, par. 3

When before the people I feel intensely. The peril of every soul seems to stand out clearly before me and I try to draw them. I lay hold upon the sinner with one hand and Christ with the other hand. I speak above one hour full of earnestness, and perhaps it is this that makes me so sick now. Two thousand people were present at the last meeting Sunday afternoon. I know the Lord was in the tent, making His presence felt.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 250, 1899, par. 4

We thought the Brisbane, Queensland, camp meeting was a wonderful meeting, and it was. I labored with all my powers, then had a meeting with the Rockhampton people, and they felt so anxious for me to go there [to Rockhampton]. I talked with them all [for] nearly two hours, and finally decided to go to Rockhampton, but was taken sick the very morning I started; was sick all the way; could not eat. I vomited, and it was nothing I had eaten, for I live so very abstemiously it could not be that it was food in my stomach. I decided it was overwork. It was Monday we left. Wednesday we arrived at Rockhampton. I thought I would have rest until Sunday, but after spending a night on the boat, brethren met us and told us they had sent advertisements everywhere that I would speak Wednesday evening. I scarcely had strength to stand. We were to ride four miles out in a wagonette and then must come four miles back into the city and, after speaking, ride again four miles into the country. The carriage, to me, was exceedingly hard, but I went through the process and spoke in the largest hall in the place. The Lord strengthened me, and the hearers seemed much interested. But I was so sick I could not sit and it was most difficult for me to eat. Sabbath I again rode into the city and spoke in a smaller hall, most earnest words which the Lord gave me. Then we had testimony meeting, and true deep feeling was in the meeting; there were confessions made.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 250, 1899, par. 5

Haskell, Brother and Sister [S. N.]

Hamilton, Newcastle, New South Wales, Australia

January 7, 1899

Previously unpublished.

Dear Brother and Sister Haskell:

I received your letter. Thank you. This is a most beautiful day. Not a cloud in the sky. We hope much for today and tomorrow. The interest continues good. A school teacher and his wife and daughter came ten miles yesterday, and he is now investigating and inquiring. Our table was spread in the dining tent, and they took their evening meal with the members of our family. They enjoyed their supper, the nut gravy. He has purchased from canvassers Great Controversy and Patriarchs and Prophets. He has not [before] attended the meeting, but he came eight miles to attend the evening meeting and said he would come today. He has been up to Cooranbong a week ago and says he is pleased with the outlook. There must be some interest when a family will attend an evening meeting and ride ten miles to return home over the road to Morisset. 14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 1

The whole community is stirred, and this one and that one and the other one meets us with, "You cannot possibly tell the great good this meeting has done." They will tell you that men who never attended meetings are convinced we have the truth. God is at work. I know now, if all who are connected with the work clear the King's highway, we shall see of the salvation of God. You must in no case lose faith, real, genuine faith and trust in God. 14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 2

God has His appointed agencies. He sees in men just the material needed in His work—material in which, if sanctified, He will work out the possibilities. There may be persons that may pass by and say, There is nothing in him; he can make nothing. God sees all the possibilities of that heart, and begins His landscape gardening. Did not God put the possibility of beauty in that which is offensive and in every way objectionable? Although our finite vision cannot grasp the unseen possibilities, the Lord can. He sees the combativeness in man; He sees the destructive propensities; and He commences His work to soften and subdue while He preserves every vein and muscle, the courage and perseverance, that will make true workmen. 14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 3

“Ye are God’s husbandry, ye are God’s building.” [1 Corinthians 3:9.] God will work out every piece of timber that is unworthy of the structure. He will accept every faculty of soul and mind and strength if men will submit to be co-workers with Him. He is the great and unseen Worker. Man is the humble, seen actor, but he must sink himself in God; else he will not work after God’s similitude. 14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 4

The greatest hindrance to God’s work is our own ideas, our own human plans. Human threads are not to be drawn into the web. God would have man depend wholly upon Him. This character building in our individual selves needs to be critically inspected by our individual selves lest the human become mingled with divine. The saving of our souls requires heart searching and putting away of those things which are not calculated to make us individually the best material and instruments through whom God can work. The outward work is vain unless God works within. God has committed to those who have put on Christ the work of untrained, undisciplined mortals, and He would not have in word, spirit, or action anything that shall mislead them. We are to be as tender and pitiful and compassionate as Christ has been to us. 14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 5

A few words more: You had some talk with me in regard to W. C. White, that you gave him not the least encouragement to help in any way. When in Brisbane, on last Sabbath, the appointment was given out to the people that Willie White would speak Sabbath forenoon, he told me that he had been appointed to speak. When the time came, you said not a word to him, but walked into the tent and took the meeting. Now, why you did this might have been because the impressions you have cherished of W. C. White had put your own words and plans out of your mind, and you went right forward after the appointment had been given out. It was only a little company assembled, but there was no real need of your being taxed with that meeting; but it is your habit, and you did not consider at all what impression that would make on his mind.14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 6

He has not mentioned the matter to me but I have to him. There were many places where you could have encouraged him if you had the feeling to help him that you ought to have had. It was a chance to make use of talent that was right at your hand, who could have given light and truth to the people, but he never will put himself forward. This is one who is not a novice. This is one who has been before congregations and filled appointments in churches and in camp meetings, and I have felt edified by hearing him speak. He has good language, appropriate language, but the view your wife has expressed to you of W. C. White has shown she is working at cross purposes with God, and that her opinion is far from infallible.14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 7

I put this straight because there are things that God will have decidedly changed in the mind, in the heart. Then there will be a spiritual estimate of God's servants when there is a more humble estimate of her own spirit. This spirit of criticism places her on the devil's ground. Now in the name of the Lord I call upon her to come off that ground. I make this matter no less strong and decided. This will not, if cherished as it has been done, make her complete in Him. God's plan is one that will stand the day of judgment. He calls for cooperation with God and cooperation with one another. There must not be the idea that no one can do the work but your two selves. There must be accepting God's servants, and that without being subject to your criticisms.14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 8

The revealed will of God has lessons of infinite value and efficacy adapted to every individual. We are candidates for immortality only as the will of God is revealed in us through our perfect submission to His will and His way. The converting power of God will make us wise in that wisdom which cometh from God. The Lord, with all His tender compassion and love, is waiting to see what His people will do in laboring for souls. They are His agencies, and if they do not do the part assigned them they are not cooperating with God. The young men must have a chance, but W. C. White is not a young man. He is one whom God set apart for His work, as one who must feed the flock of God, as one who must act as counsellor, one whom He has taught and will teach, because he never takes the highest seat.14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 9

I have now the tenderest feelings toward you, my brother, my sister, but I must tell you the truth and then my soul is clear.14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 10

Private to Brother Haskell:14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 11

You speak in a desponding tone, but, nevertheless, all that I have written you I beg of you not to misunderstand. It is that which the Lord sees, but you do not discern. He has not placed matters before you to discourage or perplex you, but to open your eyes to see more clearly what tramples and cripples you, that you can, by cooperating with God, certainly overcome. He wants you to come into that position that His joy may remain in you and that your joy may be full.14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 12

He has given you knowledge, imparted to you mental and moral powers, that He expects you to use as His gifts in the very work of perfection of your character. He has given you light, knowledge of the truth as it is in Jesus. He gives the Holy Spirit. He supplies all your defects of character with His own holy attributes. He gives you opportunities and facilities, and He will need all, the whole of you, that you may be a laborer together with God. But never, never, never has God consented for you to enter upon any work to manage it all in your own way, in your own wisdom, in your own strength. All the outward work is vain and discouraging unless God works within; unless you submit that self shall die, then all the manifest work is vain. But when God is working within, you will evidence the same outwardly.14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 13

You are not to feel that you need no help from others, no suggestions, no intimations from others. God would have us all, in every pursuit of knowledge in religious things, in every branch of business, every department of education, every study of science, illustrate the all-pervading Bible principle of cooperation with God and with man in harmoniously working out the divine plan of God to be laborers together with God and with one another. 14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 14

If we will not run “as uncertainly,” and not to fight “as one that beateth the air,” God will impart to us moral powers and spiritual susceptibilities. [1 Corinthians 9:26.] He has manifested to us the Light and the Truth and the Way. In order to be worked as God’s husbandry we must use all the helps God has offered as saving agencies. Pray, believe for your own salvation by putting on Christ in all circumstances in character purification. Use all the helps God has offered. Pray, believe, and obey. Thus every power is brought into union with divine power and divine opportunities. Diligently, conscientiously yoke up with Christ. 14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 15

I have the assurance that you will yoke up with Christ and become complete in Him, for you will be laborers together with God and one another, and this is the only provision made—that the work will be complete in and through Jesus Christ. Our probationary time is too precious to have any part of it aside from God. Our every attribute purified, ennobled, sanctified always leads to unity and improvement in God. He will not work reformation in our defective characters unless we carry out His own ways, to be zealous workers, cooperating with God and with one another, and God has all the treasures of His grace. 14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 16

To this end may the Lord strengthen you and Sister Haskell is my prayer. He will do a work for you which you cannot possibly do for yourself. The highest talents are given of God. You did not create them. They are a trust and can be removed and confusion come in the place of clear conception. God would have you learn the lessons in His school that you have not yet learned—to love your brethren as He has loved you. 14LtMs, Lt 251, 1899, par. 17

Kellogg, Brother and Sister [J. H.]

NP

April 27, 1899

Portions of this letter are published in 4Bio 416, 440.

Dear Brother and Sister Kellogg:

I sent a letter to you by the last mail to relieve your mind. I am much perplexed to understand how any letters I have written should leave the impression on your mind to lead you to write to me as you did. But although sorely grieved and so distressed, I have not been able to set myself to writing for days. Yet I have had all I could possibly do to advance the building supposed to be called a hospital. It will not bear that name. It will be something more than this; the plan was presented to me. Drs. Caro and Rand and Brother Reekie were on the allotment where the building was to go up. We had the plan made, but it was so located that the sun would shine brightly where it was not wanted, in the kitchen department, and the rooms the patients would occupy, dining room, parlor, and sleeping rooms would have almost no sun.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 252, 1899, par. 1

Sara and I studied over the matter, and Sister Peck drew out the plan, changing it from the first plan. Then Willie was called to Sydney to arrange some matters there, and I do not know as yet just all that was done. We were so pressed financially we feared we could not keep our credit good. The workmen could not pay their grocery bills, and money must come from some source. When W. C. White returned, the situation was not relieved, and we thought the plan of building must be cut down. Four feet were cut out and a new plan laid, but a building was presented to me, tall and narrow and disproportionate. I asked what building that was. One came forward and said, "That is the structure that will appear if you take out four feet." I said, "This must not be. Give the full size and merely enclose the building, finishing off [a] few rooms, but it must not be made smaller."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 252, 1899, par. 2

I have given more particulars in another letter which I will send you. I insisted upon having the building set in such a position that it would have the sunshine in sitting room, dining room, and bedrooms. This oversight cost us all two days' work. I said, "It is to be called The Avondale Health Retreat." Yesterday we were on the ground—Elder Haskell, Brother Palmer, W. C. White, and other members of the board—and there, seated on a newly felled trunk of a eucalyptus tree, we had a board meeting. Sara and myself were in our phaeton a portion of the time, and a portion of the time I was on a cushion on the ground. And there, kneeling beside the clean, newly cut logs, prayer was offered to our heavenly Father for special [grace] to be worked by the Holy Spirit. But I thought at first our plans were to be defeated in regard to locating the building.14LtMs, Lt 252, 1899, par. 3

If it was not regular in position, the sunshine we must have. At noon, in the afternoon, all night I kept my heart uplifted to God for His guidance and for His Holy Spirit to lead our brethren to view things correctly. And the matter came out all right. The building will be blessed with plenty of sunshine. Then I felt impressed that the kitchen and dining room should be separate from the main building, that a building should be erected containing two good-sized rooms—one for cooking and the second room for dining room. Then there will be no rattling of dishes, no smell of food cooking, and there will be quietness for the sick. We had to use the money that came for the hospital to pay the workmen a portion of their wages and this has delayed us, but there is nothing now to hinder us from going ahead but the resources.14LtMs, Lt 252, 1899, par. 4

Dear Sister Ings:

I have not been able to write but a few lines to anyone for this mail, except letters to Elder Haskell and Elder Irwin. I was sick one week and came to this place a little better but far from well, and since coming here I have had to move my quarters to a more favorable location. I am in the house Elder Starr has rented for the mission workers, and now I can do much better work; but with council meetings and moving and the awful cyclone striking us yesterday I could not write.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 253, 1899, par. 1

We are in a place where there is the greatest need of the people having the last message of warning to the world, and they are hearing it here for the first time. The trumpet is giving no uncertain sound. Sunday was one important day. All day the message of warning was pealing forth to thousands and the Lord helped me speak and lifted me above my infirmities and gave me power from on high. And the people listened as if entranced with the solemn subjects that had never fallen upon their ears before. There is a deep interest, and after this place there are many more just beyond. Newcastle has only been touched. There are many places connected with Newcastle.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 253, 1899, par. 2

Adamstown, Lambton, and several other suburbs, Young Wallsend and Wallsend proper—all these places are being worked and souls are coming to the knowledge of the truth. Singleton, beyond this place, is calling for someone to come to them and preach the truth. Oh, so much to be done! Word comes to me, “Open the work in regions beyond. Carry the message where the people have never heard the truth. Introduce the leaven and it will work itself to leaven all around it.” So there are new fields everywhere we may lift our eyes. I am not allowed to be satisfied with one place. No sooner has the message come to one place than another place is presented to be worked, and thus the new territories are added to the Lord's kingdom. 14LtMs, Lt 253, 1899, par. 3

We are stretching every nerve and muscle. We are all denying ourselves, putting in all the means possible to gather the poor, lost, perishing souls to the cross of Christ. The message goes forth in power. We are in the most wicked community, and yet there are the most churches. But the shepherds are false shepherds and they kill them that are fed and feed not the flock with the Bread of Life. 14LtMs, Lt 253, 1899, par. 4

Well, Sister Ings, I love you and would be so glad to see you. I have never done more work than I am doing now. But this must go in the mail. 14LtMs, Lt 253, 1899, par. 5

Your Sister in the Lord. 14LtMs, Lt 253, 1899, par. 6

Wessels, Sister

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

December 22, 1899

This letter is published in entirety in 20MR 10-11.

Dear Sister Wessels:

I have an earnest desire to see you this morning, but we are many miles apart. What a blessing it will be when we all shall be one family in the kingdom of God! No partings then, no sickness, no sorrow, no pain, no death. And that which is best of all, no tempting devil to lead the footsteps astray from right paths.14LtMs, Lt 254, 1899, par. 1

I have been writing since two o'clock; have written sixteen pages of letter paper, all to go, I thought, in this morning's mail, but two letters to Queensland will not go until noon.14LtMs, Lt 254, 1899, par. 2

I would be glad to come and see you at once but it is now fruit canning time and Sara has her hands more than full. But as soon as I can see my way to run down to Strathfield I shall improve the opportunity. The interest at Maitland rests heavily on my soul. I am so very anxious to see the work done there that needs to be done to gather in the sheaves. Sara and I have ridden over the road twenty-seven miles with our horse and phaeton and back again. We have a great interest in that work, and we pray it may prosper. Several good souls have embraced the truth, and they are waiting for several others who are in the valley of decision. I think now that there are twelve souls who have taken their position to keep all the commandments of God.14LtMs, Lt 254, 1899, par. 3

Some of these are the very choicest, and will be a recommendation to the truth. Some I have not seen to know them. There is a very widespread influence everywhere, and we long to see many souls taking their position upon the truth. If they only knew the things that make for their peace, they would do this.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 254, 1899, par. 4

We know not the future, but we must have peace and rest and quietude in Him who hath loved us and given His life for us. What a privilege to take everything to God in prayer! Everything around us is stirring and changing. In the midst of all changes how thankful I am to know that the sweet voice of mercy is still heard and there are added to the church of such as shall be saved. God has a faithful people upon the earth. The company of the Lord's precious ones are not now all in sight to be distinguished and counted. They are hidden now, but the proclamation of the third angel's message is to bring them to sight ere long. We are becoming acquainted with some of these precious hidden ones, and my soul is glad that they take their position firmly and gladly. Thus it has been in Maitland. Said the Lord, "I give unto them eternal life; ... neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." [John 10:28.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 254, 1899, par. 5

Dear Brother Butler:

We are having twenty minutes' time before we leave for the station, and I improve the time in writing a few words to you. I have been up since one o'clock; commenced writing at two o'clock. Have written ten pages, eaten my breakfast, and am writing a few lines, knowing if I make a beginning I shall perhaps finish it.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 1

Oh, how I long to see the work advance! This locality is being worked, but we have given only a small portion of Newcastle some work. There is a dearth of laborers and a great dearth of means. The donations supposed to come to us have not reached us yet; only one hundred pounds have come, and we thank the Lord for that much. But we keep at work, watching and praying and waiting.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 2

We have had to do quite an amount of labor, investing means in building a hospital for a place to take our sick. My house has been open as a hospital, but the piers are now laid and the work will advance. If we can only get the building enclosed, we can use it for our coming conference. Ministers are to meet to consult together as to how best to carry forward the work. My heart is in this work. We must entertain quite a number. I wish you were to be our guest. I would entertain you right gladly but although this may never be, it will do no harm for me to express my wishes that should it be. I would be very, very glad. I want to see your face in the flesh and speak with you in regard to the blessed hope and glorious appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ. He is soon to come, and I am doing my best to prepare the way of the Lord, to make His paths straight.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 3

Sara and I came to Newcastle last Friday. It is the Week of Prayer and the laborers are distributed in different churches in New South Wales to spread our help the longest way. 14LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 4

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, May 23. At home again. Our meetings at Hamilton were excellent. Sabbath Brother Haskell spoke in the morning meeting. I, according to appointment, spoke in the afternoon at three o’clock. There was a good representation of those who have recently come to a knowledge of the truth. After Brother Haskell prayed, my heart was drawn out in earnest supplication for the presence of Jesus in our midst to bless God’s commandment-keeping people, pleading the promise made in Exodus 31:12-17. The Lord has twice said the Sabbath “is a sign between me and you throughout your generations” for a perpetual covenant “that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you.” [Verse 13.] We must have the sanctification of the Spirit. 14LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 5

We must open wide the windows of our soul heavenward that the Sun of Righteousness shall come in and its bright beams make us all light in the Lord. I did believe and I did receive that peace in my heart that the world cannot give, neither can it take away. There were many with eyes wet with tears. When I arose to speak I felt strengthened physically, and the Lord seemed indeed precious nigh. I spoke upon taking the Lord at His word. If we have sinned we are to bear in mind that Christ is the Sin-Bearer and would certainly come very close unto us and be our stronghold in every emergency. 14LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 6

The Lord gave me freedom, not to preach, but to speak the Word with simplicity. I read the precious promises, showing them what was our duty day by day. [See] Romans 12:1, 2. These words comprehend much. Opportunity is given unto every soul to prove by an experimental knowledge the acceptable service to God, and thus, by surrendering our whole being as a consecrated offering, demonstrate to the world that there is a reality in the true service of God. This accepting us just as we are, cleansing us, purifying us, sanctifying us to Himself, is a great work to do for us; and yet it must be done, else we cannot see His face. 14LtMs, Lt 255, 1899,

The heart of God is determined to do a great work for us if we will let Him. And we have the privilege of glorifying the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in accepting His great love. He loved us when we were dead in trespasses and sins, and He loves us when we permit Him to take away our sins and impute to us His righteousness. Best of all is that this working in the human agent both glorifies the name and makes glad the heart of God as He sees the subjects of His kingdom channels of light through whom He can communicate His inconceivable blessings of love and mercy and glory. It is in lifting up the believer to a state of enjoyment of His love and grace that He can make us His lightbearers to the world, and it satisfies His heart of love when we cooperate with the Lord Jesus in the great work of restoring the moral image of God in fallen man. Well might the inspired apostle in considering this wonderful theme say, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ." Ephesians 1:3.14LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 8

Brother Butler, may the Lord Jesus help you to be of good courage. Do not look to yourself but unto Jesus who is the only One who can help you and me. Some things come up that make my heart very sad and discouraged. There are wrongs that ought not to be, but we ought not to be surprised at them; but it hurts my heart and I cannot at night close the draw. Three nights in succession I could sleep but a few hours. I was then certain I must change, go somewhere. I was wanted at Newcastle and I left Friday morning, and spent Sabbath and Sunday at Hamilton, Newcastle. It was pleasant to look upon the Sabbathkeepers. Not one of the people, citizens of Newcastle, were of our faith [a few months ago], and now there are thirty-five that have been baptized and twelve more are waiting a favorable opportunity. 14LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 9

I designed to write you a much nicer letter than this, and also to write a letter to Aurora, but tell your sister I have not been able. I have had Brethren Daniells, Starr, and W. C. White to consult with upon important matters in relation to the cause of God, and the providence of God in bringing us into new places and preparing the way in Sydney, that we can now advance. It seems so singular that a house in Wallsend was offered us, a large building bearing a sign in great letters, Empire Clothing Store. This is in need of repairs, but it is two stories [high]. Brother and Sister Haskell were forced out of the place Brother Lacey had occupied sooner than they were ready, and this house was for rent. The sales room will hold two hundred people, and then there are good rooms for the workers, and it is only ten shillings per week. They would have to pay ten shillings per evening for a hall no larger. 14LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 10

We were greatly bound about in the city—the main business part of Sydney. We could do but little medical work, because we could not get a place for bathrooms and giving of treatments. What to do we could not tell. Yesterday Elder Starr came to Cooranbong with the information that he had a three-story brick building which had once been a printing office offered to them for twenty-five dollars per month. It is a large three-story house. The room which had been used as a printing office will be converted into a hall for meetings, and there will be bathrooms made for patients to take baths and all kinds of treatments—just what we wanted. But I must close for this mail. 14LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 11

I send you enclosures, thinking you would be interested in the matter. 14LtMs, Lt 255, 1899, par. 12

Dear Son Willie:

I am this morning improving in health. I have been sustained on the journey remarkably well. Sara was quite used up, carsick, and I had symptoms of carsickness. The roughness, the jolting and banging were quite severe. Sara was just about done over, and I felt sorry for her. The pain in her eyes was severe and her whole head was troubled. When it came to doing up the roll, she had help from the sleeping car porter. I slept well during the night and had to keep quite still until we changed cars, at between eleven and twelve. We had a compartment all to ourselves the rest of the way. Sara and I lay down and slept considerably. 14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 1

We got to the station about sundown; should have been in the house hired for us before the sun set if we had come direct from the station, but there was considerable delay in the baggage being readily obtained. It was fully half an hour before we could get the things Brother Daniells was looking for. We then found a very nice cottage with three rooms ready for us: for Herbert Lacey, Sister Graham and Sara, and a front room for me with a good bed and well furnished—quite as large as our parlor. 14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 2

Sara and I board ourselves. We have the food we brought from home, oranges and lemons. The first meetings have not represented the Brisbane meeting by a long ways. Brother Daniells spoke Sabbath evening to about fifty. Sabbath forenoon Brother Tenney spoke. In the afternoon about one hundred were present. My voice called in about twenty more before I closed my talk. The Spirit of the Lord was in the meeting. 14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 3

This is a beautiful place. From the front window we see afar off before us up the hill where most of the large buildings are located. Brother Daniells is making arrangements for me to ride out this Sunday morning. Yesterday clouds gathered in the heavens and did not pass away until about the time I was to speak, then there was soon clearness. We had a most clear, moonshiny night and this morning there is not a cloud. The weather yesterday was rather cool and Friday night Brother Daniells borrowed two rugs of us to supply someone's deficiencies. Last night the weather was just nice, not too hot or too cool, just perfect. Today seems perfect. The atmosphere is bracing, the sky cloudless, and the sun shining makes it very pleasant.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 4

We know not what this day may bring forth. We hope to see many more people out. Brother Tenney says there are more than he expected to see. Brethren Daniells and Tenney visited me yesterday morning. I was pained to look upon the face of Brother Tenney. It seemed full and bloated as you have seen in the face of a drinking man. He seems better healthwise, but I would not be surprised that any time he should have an attack of apoplexy. I do not think anything of devising or planning, anything that brings perplexity, should come upon him. Brother Daniells says he is clear in his Bible readings and when preaching, but when preparations are to be made he does not manifest tact and good judgment.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 5

I am feeling more natural today. My eyes are not so sunken in my head, and if I [a] speak short [time] I need not bring on exhaustion. I did speak short Sabbath, held myself back as with bit and bridle. This I must do else I shall not be worth much.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 6

I shall speak today from (1 John 3): "Behold, what manner of love," etc. I think if it were not for the Maitland meeting that is following close upon this I should be tempted to remain here a few days, but as it shall speed right along home. I am hoping that something will be done to complete and get out some books, for the people need them very much. I cannot see why some books cannot be completed without further delay and the parables closed up. They need not be held in Marian's hands any longer. The Lord help is my earnest prayer, that these books shall no longer be delayed. When once out, my mind will be at ease in regard to the many things I am always feeling burdened to write. 14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 7

This must go before eleven o'clock this morning. I have not said much but will send it, thinking you would be pleased to hear. I am very desirous that this place shall have the very best impression made upon minds. But, Willie, I do not think the appearance of Brother Tenney is such as to make a good impression. His countenance bears the impression of a man that uses spiritous liquors. We know it is not the case, but others will thus be impressed. I do feel so sorry for him. 14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 8

I think I spoke to you in reference to that place in view for [a] sanitarium. If that brother on the place now deems his chance of securing fruit of so much value as thirty pounds, it cannot be of as much value to the sanitarium after having to have the orchard cared for and the fruit picked and canned as it shall develop. It would bring the crop high for the sanitarium. Brother Radley can tell in regard to this matter. 14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 9

If you should conclude to take it, orchard and all, I think I shall pitch a tent on the ground and spend some time there, unless I attend more camp meetings. I think if I was away awhile in rustication, I should improve decidedly healthwise, but this is only a thought. I pray the Lord will give you all wisdom to choose the very best location. As far as the surroundings are concerned, the judgment of you all must balance the question. We should not be too near Catholics, but I think they are at about equal distance in both places you are viewing. 14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 10

I have felt since I left home, especially Friday, that we must do more praying. I am casting my burdens upon the Lord and He will manage for me. I shall not lay my burdens upon you, and no one must lay my household burdens on you. You have abundance in your own family to take your time and thoughtful care, and the multiplicity of burdens in connection with the cause and work of God draws you hither and thither and you have no extra mental powers to exhaust on my family concerns. I shall not expect it and I do not want they should come to you with my troubles. I shall, as long as I have a household of workers, stand as first in the management of this household business and shall, when I can no longer do this, dismiss my workers and let them go under the supervision of someone who can use them. I will now close this letter, for I expect the team for me any moment.14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 11

I think you have too much now to carry, and I am praying about all these matters. And to have your home filled up with those who are not your family, you have been instructed it is not best for your family's prosperity. You have too many visitors and boarders.14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 12

In haste,14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 13

I was so sorry that Maggie did not give me copies of the last mails. I hope she has sent them to me at this place.14LtMs, Lt 256, 1899, par. 14

December 1899

Portions of this letter are published in 5MR 235-236; 1MR 242; 11MR 309; 12MR 1.

Dear Brother:

Your last letter expresses the thought that I have lost confidence in you. I do not know just how to reply to this statement. I am certainly deeply concerned for you, and it is most difficult to say anything, because you do not take the matter as you should. I know that the Lord is your true Friend, and He has presented your case before me as not directing the work correctly. 14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 1

Every man who has large responsibilities to carry should be a daily learner in the school of the greatest Teacher the world ever knew. Jesus Christ made the world, and every human being is amenable to Him, and should be very modest, lest he assume the place of Christ as leader. Every man is to be educated in Christ's school. Are you a daily learner in the school of Christ, that you may have that sanctified discernment which shall make you in every respect a safe teacher and adviser? Are you not in danger of weaving into your instruction sentiments and principles that are not in Christ's lines—ideas and impressions which will be carried away by others wherever they shall go to engage in the work? Thus others will make mistakes which will have to be corrected, and still others will be misled who will have to be set right. All our work is now to be critically done in Christ's lines, that the world may be prepared for the closing scenes of this earth's history. 14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 2

Every influence will be set in operation by satanic agencies, to divert minds from the genuine work that will place men as laborers together with God. All, who do not aggressively labor in the warfare where Christ, the mighty General of armies, leads, will be in the opposite party, composing the armies of the prince of darkness. They will lead the people away from the living issues that should occupy their minds and hearts and prepare them to distinguish between the voice of the world and the voice of Jesus Christ. We must ourselves be very watchful and prayerful, that we may be able to understand the voice of the deceiver from the voice of Him who always speaks the truth. Those who are worked by the Holy Spirit are not led by a feeling of enthusiasm, which soon goes out in darkness. The spell of Christ's influence is abiding. "Be still and know that I am God." [Psalm 46:10.] This is a solemn, abiding quietude in God.14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 3

There is danger that all of us will have too much zeal, and too little of Christ's sound wisdom and unquestionable prudence. Every one must stand individually as an active, working agency for the Master, beholding His work as it is given in His Word for our practice.14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 4

Individually, they must think for themselves. With an open Bible before them, they must study under the influence and presence of Jesus Christ, inquiring and knowing for their individual selves what is the way of the Lord. They must catch His spirit; they must be partakers of His divine nature. Then they need never be in doubt, they need never develop the spirit of criticism; but they will daily heed the inspired Word, "Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates? ... Now I pray God that ye do no evil; not that we should appear approved, but that ye should do that which is honest, though we be '(looked upon)' as reprobates. For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth." [2 Corinthians 13:5, 7, 8.]14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 5

I am seeking to carry the work just as Christ directs. Can you not see and understand that I have had to stand in the strength and name of the Lord against great opposition? I have words to say to you, my brother. You have had some experience in this work in meeting strong, opposing spirits. You should have more confidence in the work which God has given me to do. Should I be considered your enemy because I will not hold my peace when the Lord instructs me to tell you that you need a work done for yourself, which will give you an altogether different experience from that which you are now having?<sup>14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 6</sup>

You have had a work, large, taxing, and responsible. But the burdens which you have assumed, which have become more weighty as you have borne them, you did not receive from the hand of Christ. You gathered and attached to yourself responsibilities that you were not competent to carry. The sanitarium was your work, and to give to that the care necessary to make it just what God designed it should be was, even with wise men connected with you, a sufficiently large burden for your part of the work.<sup>14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 7</sup>

But you assumed the care of other institutions and other interests which embraced large proportions, and gathered thousands upon thousands of God's entrusted capital of means. This money should have been used to set in operation other sanitariums to do a similar work, and give character and prominence to the truth for this time. This work would bring to the sanitariums many who, but for these memorials and representatives of advanced methods in medical lines, would never understand the Bible truth, or even have their attention called to it.<sup>14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 8</sup>

At the very time when, with the money placed in your hands—money which was not yours to do with as you have done—you could have helped other destitute countries which were wading through every difficulty in their efforts to spread the truth, you were investing this money as though you were a millionaire. This is that which God does not approve, because with it a much greater work, exerting a much more extended influence, would have been the result. While this was being done, the very work that demanded your keenness of perception, that required much time for prayer and quiet reflection—for this is not a small matter that you are handling—has been neglected. The anxiety caused by the precarious condition of the sanitarium, the schools, and the Review and Herald office, is not restful, but very wearing.<sup>14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 9</sup>

The work of the sanitarium demands your clearest judgment, your most matured thought, and God's instruction at every step. If this institution is prosperous, it will be because diligent work that God approves is done in it. To manage such a large responsibility you need a wisdom above your own. The educating of students was enough to connect with your work. God has not piled all these others things upon you. The sanitarium needs more than it is possible for you to give it. And unless you greatly diminish your various lines of work, you will be where I cannot write to you, because I would not be free to tell you even that which for years has been presented to me concerning you. After all your unremitting labor, you cannot bear to have the facts appear as they are in truth. You have not done the best thing, and you feel hurt when the Lord points out the things that you should not do. 14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 10

The sanitarium will be a memorial for God if it is conducted in all lines as it should be. Many who come to the sanitarium will receive their impression of the truth, as did Sister Henry. She was one of God's precious ones, and through your skill, which has been given you of God, His truth was magnified. This is as it should be. All the influence you can give to the sanitarium is none too much. 14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 11

The medical missionary work might better be named the Missionary Health Restoration Work. The powers of darkness, which have long been watching for a chance to come in and counteract the Lord's work, have found no better open door than this work which has done some good, but O! so limited an amount in comparison with the outlay of effort and means! There is no field in this world so ripe to have a work done in it as this field, where are at work the Lord's servants who have acted a part in establishing the work in America. Your own ideas have been followed in centering largely in America. This was self-glorification. The need in this country was a hundredfold greater. O, the ignorance existing here is marvelous! It is terrible! And yet I have never seen a people who responded so fully to medical missionary work as they do in this country. 14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 12

The gospel of Christ and health reform in its true relation to the gospel have a common Head. A great work might have been done that has not been done, and, in doing which, America would have suffered no loss. I was instructed to set the situation before you in America and call for means from the sanitarium. I was instructed to call upon the responsible men, men who were managing the sanitarium, to awaken in them an interest to give to this field facilities to place the Missionary Health Restoration work where it could set the true principles of health reform before the people in this need world. But large schools buildings and sanitariums in abundance have been and are still being planned, while we have been here something like nine years and have not so much as one building erected for a sanitarium proper. We feel handicapped. We cannot yet furnish our Health Retreat, though donations have come to it from yourself and from me. 14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 13

You need to be counselled and to receive this counsel as a blessing, not as a curse. You are wearing out your powers. I need you to encourage and to help me in bearing the straightforward testimony which God has given me. The discouragement which you think I have brought upon you is not to be charged to me, for I have given you the source of my message. 14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 14

The Lord loves you, and after setting in operation so many great enterprises, He says to J. H. Kellogg, You are selfishly carrying the work in America, and using God's money in various lines in buildings and institutions, when this destitute field to your certain knowledge needs something of this very work started and advanced that you consider so essential to be done in America. You could and should bind about, in the future, your large plans to center so largely in America, when many places have not for years had any money or facilities to do the same kind of work in a much humbler way—work which would have advanced the truth largely in many places. This is as the Lord has represented it. 14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 15

“And he turned him unto his disciples, and said privately, Blessed are the eyes that see the things that ye see: For I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear and have not heard them.” [Luke 10:23, 24.] The Lord God of Israel would have His light and glory advanced in other parts of the world. “And, behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Here a most decided question is presented—"What shall I do to inherit eternal life? He said unto him, What is written in the law? how readest thou? And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." [Verses 25-27.] 14LtMs, Lt 257, 1899, par. 16

Dear Sister Henry:

I have been spending Sabbath and Sunday at Newcastle. Elder Haskell is just preparing a large, old, out-of-repair home, but is well located, ten miles from Newcastle. The name of the place is Wallsend. It is sixteen miles from Cooranbong. This place is now to be worked while the meetinghouse is being built in Hamilton. We want the suburb of Newcastle to be worked. There are about thirty-five now, fully established. There are about twelve to be baptized, and several more are keeping the Sabbath who are not fully established. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 1

We are sure that a deep interest has been awakened all through Newcastle and Maitland, twenty-five miles from Newcastle. As yet the means pledged has not yet come to us from America, with the exception of one hundred pounds. But we hope the next boat will bring us the money pledged. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 2

Our building is going up in Cooranbong, called by some other name than hospital, for that name involves much in this country. The lumber could not be purchased because we had not the means. But we can, if means come now, only barely enclose the building, giving the people tangible proofs that we are doing our best to accommodate the union conference. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 3

We expect a delegation of ministers, and [will] counsel together in reference to advancing the work. There is the work to be done all through this city, and we have not workers nor money, only in prospect, and we live in hope. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 4

I would be much pleased to meet you at our conference, but this would be a long journey across the broad waters of the Pacific. If you are a good sailor, then it is much more pleasant, but if a poor sailor, it would be a disagreeable journey. Nevertheless, I may have to undertake the journey and again my labors be in America. I wish first to establish the work connected with my brethren in this new world. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 5

There are decided health talks given by Doctor Caro in Hamilton. There are cooking classes given once each week. There is an interest kept up here that present subjects that are essential for all to understand. There is a health club established, and all these various lines are drawing the people. I wish more would be drawn. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 6

The ministers are now commencing their work of visiting from house to house to warn their church members to have nothing to do with Adventists. But this is a new kind of labor for the ministers—to be pastors of the flock. We have cases brought to our attention that have been and are still very critical. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 7

Miss Gow has stood as the responsible member of the drapery firm here in Newcastle. Her father and mother and sisters all looked to her as the one responsible for all lines of work connected with the firm. The meetings held in this place awakened conviction. Sister Starr gave her Bible readings. The work of drawing to the truth and to make a decision was felt deeply by her. She knew the whole firm was dependent on her holding her position. She tried to get everything possible to excuse decision, but she was troubled and could not, dared not, take her position against the truth. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 8

This family sent their boy, thirteen years old, to the Cooranbong school after visiting the school. The boy was highly pleased, and was doing well, but the cross of the Sabbath seemed too great for her to lift, for it was ever kept before her [that] if she left it would break up the establishment. She was granted a vacation and, accompanied by Sister Starr, they spent two weeks in Cooranbong. She attended the Bible classes, two classes each day. She was learning, and finally took her stand on the Sabbath. She returned to Newcastle and made known her purposes, but father, mother, and sisters all opposed her most bitterly. She was in a most trying position—whether to leave the truth or to leave her parents. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 9

They sent for their son to come from the school. He came against his will. Thus the determined battle went on day after day. Every inducement was presented, and every objection magnified, but she held, for a time, unswervingly. She decided to go to Cooranbong to school—telegraphed for them to meet her at [the] station. Then the battle went on in her home. Next day after the telegram was sent, the mother told Elder Starr their daughter had left for a four-weeks' vacation. The father had a talk with the daughter. The result was, she had left for Melbourne, and this was the doing of the father. She said she went to her father's brother. His brothers were—one a Catholic, the other an infidel. They do not give her address. We are cut off completely from any intercourse, and unless she writes herself, we shall know nothing. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 10

This is a strange affair. The mother feels they have gone too far and is troubled in regard to the matter. But here we have to leave her. She was an excellent young woman—kind, loving, affectionate—but she was not satisfied with her religious experience. One week has passed and nothing has been heard from her, but the Lord can reach her wherever she is. We have lost all track of her, but the Lord can and will help her if she has not cast off her Lord through the great pressure brought to bear upon her. The Lord may work this matter out to His own name's glory. The Lord Jesus is a compassionate Saviour. The Lord Jesus can speak to this dear soul: "The Lord shall preserve thee from all evil; He shall preserve thy soul." [Psalms 121:7.] "The just shall live by faith: but if any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him." [Hebrews 10:38.] "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed." [John 8:31.] "He that shall endure unto the end, the same shall be saved." [Matthew 24:13.] "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong." [1 Corinthians 16:13.] "Hold that fast which thou hast that no man take thy crown." "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life." [Revelation 3:11, 5.]14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 11

We have seen that which our Lord has assured us should come—divisions in families. One family by the name of Lord had eight sons. The eldest married the daughter of a man who kept a hotel, called here Publican House, where liquor is dealt out and the sale sustained by law. His daughter embraced the truth with her husband, and her parents told her never to enter their doors again. When she was baptized, her sister and brother, older than she, took hold of her arm to force her away. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 12

The police saw the brother, and he came to him and said, “Release her. Let her follow her convictions of conscience.” This policeman had watched the tent and heard the teachings in the tent, and had said that it must be that the Lord was with this people, for he had far less work to do in arresting the evil workers. He told that brother if he did not keep his abusive tongue to himself, [and] let this woman alone, he would arrest him for disorderly conduct. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 13

The mother and sister then came to her and cursed her and her mother-in-law, Sister Lord, who had embraced the truth. This wicked woman knelt down and told the Lord how her daughter had disgraced the family. And then she prayed that her daughter might be taken sick and the mother-in-law might be struck with sickness and never leave her bed again. In about two weeks that mother, who was so bitter, was taken violently sick and died, a great sufferer. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 14

The son-in-law, Lord, and his wife, went from Cooranbong to the funeral. It was dinner time. The family were eating dinner. They did not ask the sister to sit at the table, and her opposing sisters left the table, declaring they would never sit at the table and eat with her. Brother and Sister Lord felt very sad and returned again to Cooranbong, disowned by sisters and brothers. You see that which many souls [suffer who] have embraced the truth. They do this in the face of self-denial and sacrifice. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 15

Brother Lord had been in his little room as [a] single man to work the brakes twenty years, but when he embraced the Sabbath he was discharged. His employer said he would have no man that kept the Sabbath in his employ. Brother Lord asked him if he could find the record on any of the books where he had failed in doing his work faithfully. He said, “You have stood as one of our most trustworthy men, and we know not how your place can be supplied, but we cannot have one who keeps Saturday to do our work.”14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 16

Thus you can see [that] both parties, believers and unbelievers, are making sacrifices. The words of the apostle are to the point—“By whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world”—but not on the same line. [Galatians 6:14.] One is on the line of obedience to all of the commandments of God. For their loyalty their business is taken from them and they are set adrift without any money laid by.14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 17

Brother Lord came to Cooranbong. The only place he could find was the small, broken-down shanty for his large family. There were no houses to rent, and my own house was full. We managed to keep them one night—feed mother and father and seven sons. The married son was living in a tent. The married daughter and her husband have found them a place somewhere.14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 18

We helped as best we could to supply their necessities. [We] employed three boys, and the pay for their work just put food into their mouths. We had two spare stoves we set up for them, and did all in our power, but you can see this is no more than we can expect. We shall find some place for them on the school land, to make a home for them. Two were poor families. We are helping to secure a home, [and] a little piece of land to cultivate.14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 19

There are good Sabbathkeepers of excellent influence. One was a coachmaker, wheelwright builder, but he was located where [he] could not get work and they could not obtain the necessities of food and clothing. This is the kind of missionary work we are called out to do, and we pray the Lord to open the way for these blessed ones, whom the Lord loves. We shall look after them [and] secure them homes. If they can pay, they will pay, and they can pay if we give them work, which at present is abundant on the school grounds.14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 20

We have employment for everyone who can work. We must gather into the net the poor and distressed and the wealthy. Whosoever will, let him come and take of the waters of life freely. Some of these poor people are the Lord's noblemen. They are the choice of the earth, have been workers, superintendents of Sabbath schools, and have worked [for the church] since because of their faith they were discharged. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 21

Brother Pocock has been instrumental in bringing to the truth several families. It is just such ones we wish to occupy the school grounds. They are put in office at once to help share the burdens, and are first-class workmen, but poor, very poor, in this world's goods, but rich in faith. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 22

Well, it is daylight. I have been up since one o'clock, writing since two o'clock, this letter. I do not think I can get it copied—will send it just as it is if I cannot. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 23

Oh, how much instruction we need from the Lord! Daily we must receive the rich current of the grace of Christ, that we may impart to the needy. We have had evidence that this part of the Lord's vineyard is to be worked. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 24

One portion of Newcastle has been receiving labor. Now another section must receive the truth, and thus take section after section until the stronghold of Satan is broken down. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 25

“It is impossible but that offenses will come; but woe unto him, through whom they come.” [Luke 17:1.] How cruelly they treated our precious Saviour, and shall we not expect the very same kind of treatment? Shall we be surprised and astonished that we are called to be partakers with Christ of His sufferings? We will pray constantly that we may have the mind that was in Christ Jesus. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 26

We now must take the cars for Cooranbong. 14LtMs, Lt 258, 1899, par. 27

I address this letter to Brother C. H. Jones and those connected with him in the work. 14LtMs, Lt 259, 1899, par. 1

We need a printing press very much, and as you have been getting new presses, could you not donate the one you do not now need, to come to this country, Cooranbong? We need a press very much, that we may get off interesting matter in leaflets and small tracts and in a small [paper] give the incidents in the work. 14LtMs, Lt 259, 1899, par. 2

I have used up and hired money to carry forward the work. I have this morning given my note for two hundred pounds at six percent interest to erect the meetinghouse in Newcastle. One of our brethren has taken the house on contract, to be completed in seven weeks. If the contractor can purchase the lumber with money down, he can obtain better terms. One man recently come to the faith loaned money to purchase the land, and was loath to let more money go, for he will not take mortgages. He was asked if he would take Mrs. White's note, and loan the money to her. He answered readily, "I will." His wife also assented, so Elder Starr came from Newcastle last night, and before my lamp was put out he laid the matter before me. Willie came in and they both explained matters, and my name was put to the paper, for this loan, two years. 14LtMs, Lt 259, 1899, par. 3

I divided one hundred pounds toward Brisbane church and Newcastle church. Of that money sent me in the Scott note, one hundred is divided for sanitarium and our hospital. 14LtMs, Lt 259, 1899, par. 4

I appropriated ten pounds for tent in which they have held their [meetings] since the camp meetings. It is now the wet season and we must provide a house of worship in Newcastle. It cannot be avoided. The remaining portion of the money sent is also to be appropriated to the advancing work here on the ground, as is needed in furnishing the hospital. 14LtMs, Lt 259, 1899, par. 5

We have nothing to pay for a press, and we need it badly. Will you accommodate us in this? If you can do this at once, we will be very thankful. The work here could be much advanced in having a press to aid us in doing the work. 14LtMs, Lt 259, 1899, par. 6

Dear Brother and Sister Wellman:

I cannot sleep past one o'clock a.m., and the mail goes this morning. I wish to express to you that your liberal donation offered to [the] cause of God in this missionary field is accepted as a much needed blessing. I feared I could not get time to write a word because special matters of the school have taken our time quite fully. The closing exercises were good. The presence of the Lord was with us, and we are of good courage.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 260, 1899, par. 1

The Health Retreat that we have ventured to put up in Cooranbong was much needed. It is heavily in debt, and we had come to a standstill. We could go no farther. But the means coming from California enables us to pay the workmen, [and] to advance in putting on the plastering. The furnishing is still [to] be done.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 260, 1899, par. 2

Brother Owen, who came to the conference, helped us much. He furnished the material, and he has made, free of charge with the exception of his board, three bathtubs and an immense tank to furnish water for the retreat. This is thankfully received and has saved us quite an expense. We are so thankful at the prospect of having a place where we can care for the sick. We have made our own home a hospital for the sick; but soon this building will be in running order, and we are grateful. We know the Lord has put it into your hearts to do this, to impart of your means as His stewards.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 260, 1899, par. 3

We are working as fast as possible to follow the directions of the Lord to add new territory to the cause of God. The light comes, “Go forward, enter new territories, and the ministering angels will go before you. You are not to put boundaries to the aggressive warfare. Erect memorials in humble houses of worship, and secure a place for the Lord's little flock who shall be cast out from the nominal churches. But your greatest success will be in commencing [to work with] the class that are not converted. Religious prejudice will not stand in their way." 14LtMs, Lt 260, 1899, par. 4

This has been our experience from the first. Men and women who have not attended meetings in the church for sixteen years have given up their tobacco, their drinking wine and liquor, and have been converted and make the best workers we have. 14LtMs, Lt 260, 1899, par. 5

Last year we attended the camp meeting held in Queensland, in Brisbane. This year the camp meeting will be held [at] Toowoomba, several hours' less ride than Brisbane. We leave tomorrow for that place. 14LtMs, Lt 260, 1899, par. 6

I am of good courage in the Lord. I know that the Lord is preparing the way before us in this new world. We see so much to be done, and means and workers are so much needed. We pray the Lord for strength. We must have it. Every blessing we have received of the Lord is to be imparted, and the Lord will give His Holy Spirit in large measure to all who will receive it. 14LtMs, Lt 260, 1899, par. 7

Again I thank you for your liberal gift. 14LtMs, Lt 260, 1899, par. 8

Hickox, Brother and Sister

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

December 22, 1899

Previously unpublished.

Dear Brother and Sister Hickox:

I would like to understand what you are doing and the result of your labors. I do not know as I explained to you that the horse in your charge was, if driven fast and continuous, subject to lameness. But with careful treatment—bathing his limbs and rubbing them—he improves and will not show the lameness. I would have let Sisters Wilson and Robertson have the use of the horse, but I knew that they could not have the care of the horse and give it proper attention. It must not be driven long distances, but this is unnecessary for me to say. The horse is a free horse and has no ungainly tricks and is perfectly safe, but do not pull the lines or hold them tight. Brother Haskell himself had not learned that to some horses this is unbearable and makes them nearly frantic. 14LtMs, Lt 261, 1899, par. 1

I was sorry that you did not get a two-seated wagon, for then you could have taken two of our sister workers sometimes and, in so doing, accommodated them very much. I told you I did not give the use of [the] horse to you and the sisters, for I know what this means. There must be one in charge to know how much the horse has been driven and [not] keep it on the go all the time for this one and that one and the other one. Poor dumb animals have not the power of speech, and if they had, there would be some astonishing revelations in regard to thoughtless drivers, and also of the inhumanity and unmercifulness of man to dumb creatures. 14LtMs, Lt 261, 1899, par. 2

I am anxious to know how you are getting along. What are your prospects? There is a most important work to be done. When you and your wife sing, let it be the simple revival hymns. They have enough of the long, dry hymns in the churches. We hope you will seek the Lord most earnestly; there is your strength. Do not be discouraged. Depend wholly on God. You can be deepening in piety and love for God and for souls, and you can, if you work in Christlike simplicity, have a marked success. Come right to the hearts of the people. This can be done in sympathy and in love. Work in faith [and] claim the promises of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 261, 1899, par. 3

“The kingdom of heaven suffereth violence, and the violent take it by force.” [Matthew 11:12.] Sometimes there is need of patience united with perseverance, that “as the rain and the snow come down from heaven and return not thither again, but water the earth and make it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower and bread to the eater, so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth. It shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish the thing whereunto I sent it.” [Isaiah 55:10, 11.] Now, this warrants us to have a very strong expectation. We need more faith, much more faith. You must give yourselves far more to earnest, humble prayer and ask with the simplicity of a child. There is a deeper experience for you to gain. Search the Word of life and let the Lord’s Word come to the people through you.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 261, 1899, par. 4

I want much that you should sink the shaft deep in the mines of truth and possess yourself of the heavenly treasure. Make every point simple [in order] to be comprehended by the souls that do not take in the truth because it is new and strange to them. There must be “line upon line and precept upon precept, here a little, there a little.” [Isaiah 28:10.] Cut away everything that will interpose your prayers. Come in meekness as a learner, and ask counsel and advice of Brother Colcord and your brethren, because you do not always move with the best judgment and have laid too large confidence in your own plans. Now, the Lord would have every one of the workers in His service bind heart to heart [and] be united. The more humbly you walk before God, the greater will be your power with the people.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Lt 261, 1899, par. 5

Do not dwell upon subjects the people cannot comprehend, but dwell on those subjects that will have the largest amount of Christ in them—His law, of course, is the message for this time—and come close to the people. Your success is in God. Commune with God and guard yourself, for your plans that often seem wise to you need remodeling before they can be safe for you to follow. When you draw out your heart toward God by an actual trust, when you have urged a particular promise to God in your prayer, then believe in submission, yet hope, for God never yet has failed a believing, trusting soul. We may lay hold on God by virtue of a double chain: by virtue of the single promise that first drew out your soul to ask, [and] then another promise made if you trust. “Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, who putteth his trust in Thee,” (this is your legacy) “because he trusteth in Thee.” [Isaiah 26:3.]14LtMs, Lt 261, 1899, par. 6

Abide close by the written Word of God. The Lord Jesus is the Author and Finisher of your faith. In Christ’s human nature He was both a man of faith and a man of prayer—His was the highest of all instances in believing prayer. Walk humbly with God; walk softly before Him. Every visit you make, be sure and pray if there is any sick where you call. Pray for the sick that God would raise them up, for you know not who shall be greatly blessed in the kingdom of God. But I must close this letter.14LtMs, Lt 261, 1899, par. 7

Come as a humble servant of God before the people and lift up Jesus. Talk of the love of Christ. Talk of His power to save to the uttermost all who come unto Him. Wind yourself into the confidence of the people—for you have a large circle to visit—and put in all the time you can to see men and women, to plead with them, to enlighten them. Press your way through the moral darkness of unbelief, taking the people with you if you can. Work and pray and urge your way through the moral darkness.14LtMs, Lt 261, 1899, par. 8

May the Lord give you souls, precious souls, is my prayer in your behalf and all who are connected with the work.14LtMs, Lt 261, 1899, par. 9

In love.14LtMs, Lt 261, 1899, par. 10

Jones, C. H.

NP

Circa 1899

Previously unpublished. Not sent.

[Dear Brother C. H. Jones:]

I had a very trying day yesterday. Could not sleep after twelve o'clock p.m. and had an unpleasant day. Rode out but it did me no real good. Took treatment and went to bed. This morning I am better. Slept until 3:00 a.m. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 1

Brother Jones, I received and read your letter, and I am the one to be greatly surprised that you caution me to not let anyone receive the idea that I receive royalty from the published testimonies. What do you mean? Do you think I am trying to conceal anything in reference to my books? Have you not had evidence that I am one with the cause of God; that I call nothing my own; that I have borrowed, or rather hired, at least twelve thousand dollars on which I pay interest to press the work in Australia because I must see it established in righteousness? My brethren in America are not doing their part to open the work in new fields. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 2

I am so sorry that every evidence that I could give has still left upon your mind a cloudy impression of suspicion and criticism, ready to think thoughts that ought never to enter your minds. You must study deeper, my brother, from cause to effect. My conscience is clear before God. I value earthly possessions, gold or silver, as nothingness in comparison with the souls for whom Christ has given His life. And if the work had been done in American cities, in California and east of the Rocky Mountains, that God made it possible for you to do, there would today be memorials in cities nigh and places afar off where houses of worship would stand as God's memorials, as in Oakland, and a much larger number would be representing the truth of God in many places. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899,

I felt a heart weariness and death-like sickness come upon me as I read your representations and see that you and [other] ministering brethren are so dull of comprehension. Would you have me produce bricks without straw? Where shall I obtain the money to pay my workers to produce books? I thought after reading your letter that, as far as I am concerned, the farther I am located from our institutions and from those who stand in responsible places, the better, far better, would it be for me in the accomplishment of the work God has given me to do. You seem to be so shortsighted. Would you be so shortsighted concerning your own work? I know you would not. Would it not be according to the law of God for you to be as sharp in looking at the things of others as well as at those things you are handling? I will propose to you [that you] make no charge for the press work, and I will donate the manuscript, and then sell them for their net value and put the money in the cause.14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 4

The words of your letter surprised me very much and revealed to me that I need never expect that brethren and sisters who ought to comprehend are in mind and heart and spirit where they can possibly understand the nature and character of the work God has given me to do. They seem to suppose they know, when this letter from you reveals to me an inwardness of willing ignorance of human comprehension which should not be entertained. Am I to be compelled to specify things and explain that which should be self-evident to any intelligent mind? You should not be surprised, nor any other of our brethren, that I receive royalty on the testimonies that I give to the people. Whoever gave you or any other man the supposition that the important task of preparing the manuscripts was a free gift? Elder Butler thought at one time that the testimonies should be given to the people without anything in the line of royalty coming to me. Some of our brethren have thought and spoken that, too.14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 5

In Australia I have had a very hard, laborious work to do; so also has W. C. White. He is called to take the responsibilities, largely, in councils, and I have had no help except for a typewriter and Sister Davis, who is intelligent in regard to my work. Those who have little experience with me and the laborious work every day of my life are unable to comprehend the matter by telling them. It is not possible for their minds to have any just appreciation of my work or that perception to understand. I was so pleased to obtain help of one who I knew respected the testimonies but who, as a minister, was receiving three pounds per week. But I did not hesitate to employ him. His health was not good. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 6

While this matter had all been published in small pamphlets as private testimonies for the churches, composing a book to be circulated for all our people demanded the most careful labor to prepare. To have just that much done cost three pounds per week and was a slow process. Then, after this work was done, when my mind was in its most clear and unburdened condition, I must go over every line of the work prepared to examine every word, that nothing should be placed in the book that could open the door for naturally severe men to use one expression [that would] encourage them to use the words in the Testimony as a whip to apply to scourge others—work some were ever ready to do, and have done, and will continue to do, because they have not the wisdom of the serpent and the harmlessness of the dove. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 7

I dare not place in manuscripts for publication many words entirely as they [were meant to] be, as I have spoken them and they have been reported—just as they came from my lips, just as God has moved me to speak—knowing that some who handle them may interpret these words to suit their own unsanctified spirit to bruise and to wound souls. Yet others will take the words to serve their own purposes to gain some point, and, in repeating the testimonies with a spirit of their own, make them of none effect. Every word was truth, but the great want of love and kindness and the Spirit of God to properly give the interpretation of the things written has led me to great carefulness, [because the] impression that I know should be present with the testimonies borne [is lacking, and it] makes me afraid. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 8

For some length of time I have been paying two pounds per week for one to classify and examine all the writing that has been collecting in testimonies for many years, and to select the portions that give light upon various points—of correcting evils in the family government and in the church government, in warnings, in restraint, and in encouraging the ones who need to be strengthened and sustained. [Two lines torn here.] ... the particular things they wish to bring to pass would not mix in them words of interpretation, so that the congregation cannot possibly distinguish what is testimony from the Lord or what are the words of the man who handles them. These things, in preparing testimonies, are the most severe on me of any class of labor possible. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 9

I think it is above twelve years that there has not been any testimonies prepared and got out in book form. But I have worn out typewriters and paid for the labors of persons to use these typewriters and the paper and all things required to reproduce copies to go all over the world where our people are. I have many hours less sleep than persons usually have; I am awakened at all times of night to write with an intensity that no one can understand. [Two lines torn here.] 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 10

“Ye have eyes but ye see not.” [Jeremiah 5:21.] If it was thus in Christ’s day, it is no less thus in this our day. Christ, the greatest Teacher the world ever knew, on occasions when He knew His words were misinterpreted, said, “Ye hear my words but ye understand not.” Said He on one occasion, “Why do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my words.” Truth was not palatable to them. “Because I tell you the truth, ye believe me not. Which of you convinceth me of sin? and if I say the truth, why do ye not believe me? He that is of God heareth God’s words: ye therefore hear them not because ye are not of God.” [John 8:43, 45-47.] [Read] Isaiah 6:8-11. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 11

There are at this time many things that might be said that have to be left unsaid, for the people have not been imbued with the Spirit of God to take them in. A view of God’s infinite majesty and holiness will bring a deep sense of their own deficiency of spiritual understanding. The great work to be done in our institutions requires plain, direct, decided testimony—for they are just as much in need of them as the people in Christ’s day. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 12

What, Brother Jones, do you mean and what are you talking about, as though I must say nothing about receiving the means expended for help in bringing out the Testimonies, means which I have to pay for collecting and preparing this matter for the Testimonies. I have never had anything to conceal. It would be just as appropriate for our people to advance the idea of my having no remuneration for Desire of Ages, Patriarchs and Prophets, Great Controversy, and all the other writings. I did not suppose anyone was in darkness upon this point. Therefore I will inform them. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 13

Of the testimonies, these are the most difficult matters to manage, because the varied minds will interpret them to mean that which they do not mean. It requires most taxing and perplexing discretion as to what shall come in print and what shall be withheld. We do not desire to make bare our weakness to unbelievers, lest they will glory in the fact that Sabbathkeeping Adventists are faulty and love of the Lord does not convert their souls. I shall, I hope, ever carry myself and the work the Lord has given me to do in accordance with the instruction I have received from the One who has given me my work to do—the most trying and difficult work that can ever be given to human agencies. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 14

I did not suppose that persons of reasoning faculties would suppose that the light given of God for the people could be prepared for publication and brought out without the most critical, taxing preparation so that our own people shall be benefited and that every word should be so carefully guarded that the unbelieving world cannot take occasion to reproach our people. When the numbers of unbelievers were few, the matter could be handled with much less difficulty. I have to cut out some statements from the private testimonies, that the cause of God shall not be dishonored, and thus our precious work shall not become the sport of Satan's handling. These testimonies have been sent to the ones to be warned and reprov'd. But the way the testimonies have been handled has made it a necessity to present the matters before the household of faith, and the truth must appear as it is, for one claims Sister White has said in testimony this, and another, that, and the other, something else. I now have to present the matter as it is. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 15

A small portion only will appear now. I cannot give the strength and time I desire before this coming Conference. I am not at all worried about my debts, although they are heavy. I have a desire to be in a position where I can settle them, but if I can still see a chance where I can rally my brethren by my own example, taking hold and doing something to extend the work, I shall not stop to get out of debt first but try to create interests which will be producing and not continually consuming. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 16

I have had the key presented to me how the cause of God can be advanced and the subject agitated, and then the presentation will make its own impression. But as sure as the beginning is made, there will be obstacles. I want to stand in that consecrated position where I dare, in the name of the Lord, to obey the command from divine instruction, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, ... baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." [Matthew 28:19, 20.]14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 17

You express, perhaps, the thoughts of many, but truth is truth, and I am to stand clear in the sight of God and never expect to be understood by many in this life. Many will continue to use the testimonies as they are doing. That which points out their individual defects in character they choose to war against, and they say, I do not believe that. They will continue to cover their faults as with a garment, but the Lord's words are not changed, whether you receive or reject it. 14LtMs, Lt 262, 1899, par. 18

“And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ, till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ: that we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lie in wait to deceive, but speaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Christ: from whom the whole body fitly joined together, and compacted by that which every joint supplieth according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, maketh increase of the body unto the edifying of itself in love.” [Ephesians 4:11-16.] 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 1

There are manifold instruments and agencies on whose concurrence and harmonious action the prosperity and perfection of the Christian church depends. If the finger, apparently the least important member of the body, becomes afflicted, it telegraphs the fact to the brain, and the whole body suffers. We may apply this illustration to the church. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 2

In the church, officers are appointed as co-workers with God for the edification of the body of Christ. Mothers and fathers who are doers of the Word of God are a part of the body of Christ. They nurture and admonish their children in accordance with God's Word, raising up a little army to stand under Christ's banner. They are God's witnesses, showing to the world that they are under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Christ is their pattern and they educate their children to know God. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 3

In the prayer Christ offered in behalf of His disciples just before His betrayal and crucifixion, He said, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." [John 17:3.] Should not every family on earth be a symbol of the family in heaven? In each household should there not be heard songs of praise and thanksgiving? 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 4

The family whose members love God and one another, who do not get provoked, who are long-suffering, forbearing, kind, is a symbol of the family above. The members realize that they are a part of the great firm of heaven. They are taught by the laws of mutual dependence to rely upon the great Head of the church. If one of the members of such a family suffer, all the rest suffer. The suffering of one entails suffering on the other. This should teach the youth to take care of their bodies, and to pray to be preserved in health; because when they suffer from disease, the whole family partakes of their suffering. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 5

Those men and women who have determined to serve God will seek to govern their families so that they may correctly represent the religion of Christ. The children will be taught to be tidy and useful, to share the burdens of the home, not allowing the parents to bear any which they can carry. Thus the lot of mother and father is made much easier. The whole family shares the blessing of the helpfulness of its members. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 6

Why do not parents come to Jesus just as they are, asking for His forgiving grace and healing power? Why do they not plead to be endowed with capabilities that will enable them to rule their households aright? 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 7

Every gift of God is to be appreciated and put to the very best use. Thus we place ourselves where we can be laborers together with God. But God is robbed when men and women do not connect with Him in such a way that mind, soul, and strength may be controlled by the Holy Spirit. The family of God here below should co-operate in the most perfect harmony with God's appointed agencies in the work of molding the human character after the divine similitude. Each member is to seek to use aright their entrusted talents. They are to trade upon these talents, and thus increase them. Then they obtain power. This is an individual work. Each is to seek with earnest effort for peace in Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 8

God has appointed agencies to meet every case. "He gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers." All these varied influences are to be used for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ. All are not to work in the same lines, but all are to appreciate every gift of God. These gifts are to be used in their different places, "till we all come in the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." [Ephesians 4:11-13.]14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 9

The members of the church are ever to be respectful and courteous to the Lord's ministers. "Be ye therefore followers of God as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet smelling savor." [Ephesians 5:1, 2.] This is the height of the love we are required to reach. And the texture of this love is not tainted with selfishness.14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 10

In the following verses the apostle names the attributes which will exclude from heaven all who cherish them. Then he names the traits of character which will open the gates of the city of God to those who cherish them. "Ye were sometimes in darkness," he says, "but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light: (for the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodness and righteousness and truth) proving what is acceptable unto the Lord. And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them. For it is a shame even to speak of those things which are done of them in secret."14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 11

"But all things that are reprov'd are made manifest by the light; for whatsoever doth make manifest is light. See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil. Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is. And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess.” [Verses 8-13, 15-18.] The use of wine or tobacco is not essential to Christian growth. Indulgence in intoxicating liquor places a man wholly under the control of the demon who devised this stimulant in order to deface and destroy the moral image of God. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 12

“But be filled with the Spirit”—the holy unction from on high —“speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs; giving thanks always for all things unto God and the Father in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.” [Verses 18-20.] 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 13

Let no one think that he should be privileged without interruption to carry out his ideas and plans. Every movement should pass under strict self-examination. Every principle of action should be compared with the principles of God’s Word. God’s servants should counsel together, working in unity; for in unity there is strength. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 14

“If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfil ye my joy, that ye be like-minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind. Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory, but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves. Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others. Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus.” [Philippians 2:1-5.] 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 15

“Wives, submit yourselves to your own husbands, as unto the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife, even as Christ is the head of the church; and he is the saviour of the body. Therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in everything. Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it by the washing of water by the word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish. So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies.” [Ephesians 5:22-28.] Let every husband remember these words. Let no man degrade his wife by making her a servant to his uncontrolled passions. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 16

“He that loveth his wife, loveth himself. For no man ever yet hated his own flesh, but nourisheth and cherisheth it, even as the Lord the church. For we are member of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall be joined unto his wife, and they two shall be one flesh. This is a great mystery: but I speak concerning Christ and the church. Nevertheless let every one of you in particular so love his wife even as himself, and the wife see that she reverence her husband.”
[Verses 28-33.] 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 17

The lessons of this chapter are of the greatest importance, yet they are practiced by but few. If these instructions were carried out to the letter, what changes would take place in families! 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 18

In the third chapter of Colossians definite instruction is given to families. The apostle says, “Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as it is fit in the Lord. Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them. Children, obey your parents in all things; for this is well pleasing unto the Lord. Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged. Servants, obey in all things your masters according to the flesh; not with eyeservice, as menpleasers; but in singleness of heart, fearing God. And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord and not unto men; knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance; for ye serve the Lord Christ. But he that doeth wrong shall receive for the wrong which he hath done, and there is no respect of persons.” [Verses 18-25.] 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 19

If those who claim to be Christians would be obedient to God’s Word, the husband loving the wife, and the wife respecting and reverencing her husband, both remembering what a family should be, how different would be the condition of our world! How many doors would be closed against the temptations of Satan! 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 20

Those who work at cross purposes in the home are disqualifying themselves to be members of the royal family above. Unless they change, they can never dwell in the mansions Christ has gone to prepare. Many who claim to be Christians are Christians only in name. They choose to follow their own standard, rather than the standard God has set in His Word. They have not put on Christ, but are among the number who went into the banquet thinking that it made no difference whether they had on their citizen's dress or the wedding garment. They preferred to follow their own natural impulse. They refused to accept the robe of Christ's righteousness. They believe in Christ as the world's Redeemer, but know Him not as a personal Saviour. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 21

He who is under the control of the enemy of all good exerts an influence wholly for evil. He has strong passions, which should be controlled, but he feels under no holy restraint, and his manifestations of envy and jealousy, his outbursts of anger, and his evil surmisings make him a demon in his home. He will not do the will of God. He needs to be taken in hand, and like a rebellious child disciplined and chastened; for he is ruining himself. His course is downward. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 22

Husbands, wives, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God that worketh in you, both to will and to do of His good pleasure. But many will not submit to the will of God, be His call ever so clear and loud. Every family has daily improvement to make. "Ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] Men and women must co-operate with God if they would be overcomers, and at last see His face. Christlike virtues must be brought into the character. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 23

The word given us through the apostle is, "Ye are a spectacle to the world, to angels, and to men." [1 Corinthians 4:9.] "Ye are the salt of the earth, but if the salt have lost his savor wherewith shall it be salted? It is thenceforth good for nothing but to be cast out and trodden underfoot of men. Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid. Neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick, and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." [Matthew 5:13-16.]14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 24

change, they can never dwell in the mansions Christ has gone to prepare. Many who claim to be Christians are Christians only in name. They choose to follow their own standard, rather than the standard God has set in His Word. They have not put on Christ, but are among the number who went into the banquet thinking that it made no difference whether they had on their citizen's dress or the wedding garment. They preferred to follow their own natural impulse. They refused to accept the robe of Christ's righteousness. They believe in Christ as the world's Redeemer, but know Him not as a personal Saviour. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 21

He who is under the control of the enemy of all good exerts an influence wholly for evil. He has strong passions, which should be controlled, but he feels under no holy restraint, and his manifestations of envy and jealousy, his outbursts of anger, and his evil surmisings make him a demon in his home. He will not do the will of God. He needs to be taken in hand, and like a rebellious child disciplined and chastened; for he is ruining himself. His course is downward. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 22

Husbands, wives, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God that worketh in you, both to will and to do of His good pleasure. But many will not submit to the will of God, be His call ever so clear and loud. Every family has daily improvement to make. "Ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] Men and women must co-operate with God if they would be overcomers, and at last see His face. Christlike virtues must be brought into the character. 14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 23

The word given us through the apostle is, "Ye are a spectacle to the world, to angels, and to men." [1 Corinthians 4:9.] "Ye are the salt of the earth, but if the salt have lost his savor wherewith shall it be salted? It is thenceforth good for nothing but to be cast out and trodden underfoot of men. Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on an hill cannot be hid. Neither do men light a candle and put it under a bushel, but on a candlestick, and it giveth light unto all that are in the house. Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." [Matthew 5:13-16.]14LtMs, Ms 1, 1899, par. 24

The Need of Greater Consecration

NP

January 24, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in UL 38; BTS 10/1908.
+NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Brethren, we have little time in which to work. Certainly we need to stop complaining about each other and lay our whole hearts open before God, that we may receive the Holy Spirit. Years ago the time came for the Holy Spirit to descend in a special manner upon God's earnest, self-sacrificing workers. The Lord will greatly bless His tried and chosen ones if they will co-operate with Him. When the Holy Spirit came down on the day of Pentecost, it was like a rushing, mighty wind. It was given in no stinted measure; for it filled all the place where the disciples were sitting. So will it be given to us when our hearts are prepared to receive it. 14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 1

Those who have been striving unlawfully to obtain money, whether for their own personal benefit, or to enrich the treasury of God, have committed an offense in His sight. He will not accept or make the least account of means gained in this way. He declares "I hate robbery for burnt offering." [Isaiah 61:8.] 14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 2

God requires every one connected with His work to use sacred and not common fire. Murmuring, jealousy, evil-surmising, evil-speaking, let it not come into the Lord's house. When you meet with the Lord, say, I am in the Lord's house, and I desire all wicked thoughts, all mistrust and murmuring against my brethren, to be banished. 14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 3

We have met here with God, who "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.] This is our privilege, and we desire to come into the house of God with thanksgiving. We ask the Lord to remove from our hearts every thing that is evil, that we may bring to the house of God that which He can bless.14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 4

Let every church member kneel before God while in His temple, and consecrate to Him His own, which He has bought with the blood of Christ. Pray for the speaker. Pray that great blessing may come to the one who is to hold forth the bread of life. Strive earnestly to lay hold of a blessing for yourself. Cry unto God, Increase my faith. Make me to understand Thy word, for the entrance of Thy word giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple. Refresh me by Thy presence. Fill my heart with Thy love, that in possessing so great a treasure, I may love my brethren as Christ has loved me.14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 5

God will bless all who will thus prepare themselves for His service. They will understand what it means to have the assurance of the Spirit, because they have received Christ by faith. The religion of Christ means much more than the forgiveness of sin. It means taking away our sins and filling the vacuum with the Holy Spirit. It means divine illumination, rejoicing in God. It means a heart emptied of self, and blessed with the abiding presence of Christ. We need the vital qualities of Christianity, and when we possess them, the church will be a living, active, working church. There will be growth in grace, because the bright rays of the Sun of Righteousness pervade the chambers of the mind.14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 6

Let us not bring the gloom of unbelief into the church. Let us trim our lamps, seeking a fresh supply of oil, before we step over the threshold. It is our right, our privilege, to dismiss gloomy depression. As we go to the house of worship, we may go with joyfulness; for are we not going to meet with God and His people?14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 7

Christ welcomed little children to His presence. He was cheered by the simplicity of their faith. Let us become as little children, that in simplicity of faith we may welcome Christ and be welcomed by Him. Sing to the Lord with the Spirit and the understanding. Let no thought of criticism enter your mind, to torment you, for Satan is near. He will do this work without your help. Refuse to co-operate with the accuser of the brethren. Gather up every ray of light, and then seek out those who need help, and give this light to them. God says, Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled. 14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 8

Praise the Lord, all ye His saints. Be glad in the Lord. Praise His holy name. We must carry to every religious gathering a quickened spiritual consciousness that God and the angels are there, co-operating with all true worshipers. We do not obtain one hundredth part of what we should from assembling together to worship God. Our perceptive faculties need sharpening. Fellowship with one another should make us glad. Why, with such a hope as we have, are our hearts not aglow with the love of God? 14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 9

When we are tempted to murmur or complain at something someone has done, praise something in that person. Say, Satan, I have defeated your temptation this time. Cultivate the habit of thankfulness. Praise God over and over again for His wonderful love in giving Christ to die for us. It never pays to think of old grievances. God calls upon us to cultivate His mercy and His matchless love, that we may be inspired with praise. 14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 10

“Lift up your eyes on high, and behold, who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number. He calleth them all by name, by the greatness of his power, for that he is strong in power; not one faileth.” [Isaiah 40:26.] 14LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 11

“In that day shall the branch of the Lord be beautiful and glorious, and the fruit of the earth shall be excellent and comely for them that are escaped of Israel. And it shall come to pass that he that is left in Zion, and he that remaineth in Jerusalem, shall be called holy, even everyone that is written among the living in Jerusalem; when the Lord shall have washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and shall have purged the blood of Jerusalem from the midst thereof by the spirit of judgment, and by the spirit of burning. And the Lord will create upon every dwelling place of Mount Zion, and upon her assemblies, a cloud and smoke by day, and the shining of a flaming fire by night; for upon all the glory shall be a defence. And there shall be a tabernacle for a shadow in the daytime from the heat, and for a place of refuge, and for a covert from the storm and from rain." [Isaiah 4:2-6.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 12

"The mercy of the Lord is from everlasting to everlasting upon them that fear him, and his righteousness unto children's children; to such as keep his covenant, and to those that remember his commandments to do them. The Lord hath prepared his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all. Bless the Lord, ye his angels, that excel in strength, that do his commandments, hearkening unto the voice of his word. Bless ye the Lord, all ye his hosts, ye ministers of his, that do his pleasure. Bless the Lord, all his works, in all places of his dominion." [Psalm 103:17-22.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 13

Let us learn what it means to have an abiding Christ. We call upon the people of God with earnest words, to reach a higher standard. It is the privilege of all who are connected with the Lord's institutions to be sanctified when they surrender themselves to God. Some have done this, to my certain knowledge, and a great and mighty work has been wrought for them. Some have not yet gained this experience, and they are losing ground every day that they cherish sin. God wants strong men, men who can speak a word in season, who can and will rebuke sin and folly. God requires of His stewards that they be found faithful. Let not self creep in. Let it be crucified. Reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all longsuffering and doctrine, but be sure that you are controlled by the Holy Spirit. Pray for this at your camp meetings. Pray in faith. Do not wait for a more convenient season. Surrender all to God, and freedom, light, and peace will come to you.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 14

"O the depth of the riches, both of the wisdom and love of God! How unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past finding out. For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counsellor? or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed to him again? For of him, and through him, and to him are all things, to whom be glory for ever." [Romans 11:33-36.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 2, 1899, par. 15

The Work for this Time

NP

January 25, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in GCDB 03/02/1899.

We are standing on the threshold of great and solemn events. Prophecies are fulfilling. The last great conflict will be short but terrible. Old controversies will be revived. New controversies will arise. The last warnings must be given to the world. There is a special power in the presentation of the truth at the present time, but how long will it continue—Only a little while. If ever there was a crisis, it is now. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 1

Decided efforts should be made to bring the message for this time prominently before the people. The third angel is to go forth with great power. Let none ignore this work, or treat it as of little importance. The truth is to be proclaimed to the world, that they may see the light. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 2

This is our work. The light that we have upon the third angel's message is the true light. The mark of the beast is exactly what it has been proclaimed to be. All in regard to this matter is not yet understood, and will not be understood until the unrolling of the scroll, but a most solemn work is to be accomplished in our world. The Lord's command to His servants is, "Cry aloud; spare not; lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and show my people their transgression, and the house of Jacob their sins." [Isaiah 58:1.] 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 3

There is to be no change in the features of our work. It is to stand as clear and distinct as prophecy has made it. We are to enter into no confederacy with the world, supposing that by so doing we could accomplish more. If any stand in the way, to hinder the advancement of the work in the lines that God has appointed, they will displease God. No line of our faith that has made us what we are, is to be weakened. We have the old landmarks of truth, experience, and duty, and we are to stand firmly in defence of our principles, in full view of the world. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 4

It is essential that men be raised up to open the living oracles of God to all nations, tongues, and peoples. Men of all ranks and capacities, with various gifts, are to stand in their God-given armor, to co-operate harmoniously for a common result. They are to unite in the work of bringing the truth to all nations and peoples, each worker fulfilling his own special appointment. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 5

There is a wide field of action, and in their plans and devising, all need to consider the result. Everything is to move according to the divine plan. The whole body must be fitly joined together, that each member may promote the designs of Him who gave His life for the life of the world. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 6

As the work advances, dangers arise that need to be guarded against. As new enterprises are entered upon, there is a tendency to make some one line all-absorbing; that which should have the first place becomes a secondary consideration. The church needs fresh power and vitality; but there is great danger of taking on new lines of work that will waste their energies instead of bringing life into the church. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 7

The Work for the Outcasts

Of late a great interest has been aroused for the poor and outcast classes; a great work has been entered upon for the uplifting of the fallen and degraded. This in itself is a good work. We should ever have the spirit of Christ, and we are to do the same class of work that He did for suffering humanity. The Lord has a work to be done for the outcasts. There is no question but that it is the duty of some to labor among them, and try to save the souls that are perishing. This will have its place in connection with the proclamation of the third angel's message and the reception of Bible truth. But there is danger of loading down everyone with this class of work, because of the intensity with which it is carried on. There is danger of leading men to center their energies in this line, when God has called them to another work. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 8

The great question of our duty to humanity is a serious one, and much of the grace of God is needed in deciding how to work so as to accomplish the greatest amount of good. Not all are called to begin their work by laboring among the lowest classes. God does not require His workmen to obtain their education and training in order to devote themselves exclusively to these classes. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 9

The working of God is manifest in a way which will establish confidence that the work is of His devising, and that sound principles underlie every action. But I have had instruction from God that there is danger of planning for the outcasts in a way which will lead to spasmodic and excitable movements. These will produce no really beneficial results. A class will be encouraged to do a kind of work which will amount to the least in strengthening all parts of the work by harmonious action. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 10

The gospel invitation is to be given to the rich and the poor, the high and the low, and we must devise means for carrying the truth into new places, and to all classes of people. The Lord bids us, "Go out into the highways and hedges and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled." [Luke 14:23.] He says, "Begin in the highways; thoroughly work the highways; prepare a company who in unity with you can go forth to do the very work that Christ did in seeking and saving the lost." 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 11

Christ preached the gospel to the poor, but He did not confine His labors to this class. He worked for all who would hear His word—not only the publican and the outcasts, but the rich and cultivated Pharisee, the Jewish nobleman, the centurion, and the Roman ruler. This is the kind of work I have ever seen should be done. We are not to strain every spiritual sinew and nerve to work for the lowest classes, and make that work the all in all. There are others whom we must bring to the Master, souls who need the truth, who are bearing responsibilities, and who will work with all their sanctified ability for the high places as well as for the low places. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 12

The work for the poorer classes has no limit. It can never be gotten through with, and it must be treated as a part of the great whole. To give our first attention to this work, while there are vast portions of the Lord's vineyard open to culture and yet untouched, is to begin in the wrong place. As the right arm is to the body, so is the medical missionary work to the third angel's message. But the right arm is not to become the whole body. The work of seeking the outcasts is important, but it is not to become the great burden of our mission. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 13

The Gospel Wagon

In our efforts to reach the people, there is danger of adopting methods that will not produce the best results. Plans may be followed which seem to excite much interest for the time; but the effect proves that the work is not abiding. The use of the Gospel Wagon may accomplish some good; but in most cases the after results will be disappointing. People will be attracted by the music, and will listen to the addresses and appeals that are made. But the workers pass rapidly from place to place, and there is not time for persons to become established in the faith. The impressions made are soon effaced. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 14

Little seed has been sown that springs up and bears fruit. When the season is ended, there will be few sheaves to be gathered. Experience will show that the results are not proportionate to the expenditure. The work is too much like that of carrying a torch through a district in the night. The places where the torch-bearer goes are light; but not many tapers are kindled from his torch, and when he has gone his way, the darkness is almost as great as before. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 15

In this manner of working there is danger of depending too much on outward display to attract the people. The mission of Christ was not conducted in this way. Outward display is not to characterize our work. We must not give the impression that we link amusement with the solemn work for this time. If the workers have a real love for souls, they may find more effective methods of labor. Other plans could be devised which would be less expensive, and would have a much better after-influence. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 16

And this method of working will not have the best effect upon the workers themselves. Outward attraction and display encourage sensational ideas by which some of the workers may be spoiled for any effective service. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 17

In this manner of life they are likely to obtain a shifting, changeable experience. Plans should be followed by which each working force may know what kind of work it is doing, and may be able to gather up the sheaves. Expend your money in a work in which each worker may be able to see something of the results, and know that God was with him. We want to have daily an individual experience in the things of God. And each laborer should be learning to build up the work, so that it shall be solid and abiding. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 18

Camp Meetings

In contrast with the use of the gospel wagon, another work has been presented to my sight. Tents were being taken to different places during suitable seasons of the year. Camp meetings were being held in many localities. These were conducted by able, God-fearing men, assisted by suitable helpers. Children's meetings were held, and revival meetings, to bring the people to take their stand for the truth. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 19

In many places it is next to impossible to find entrance to any house of worship. Prejudice, envy, and jealousy are so strong that often we can find no place in which to speak to the people the Word of life. If camp meetings can be held in different places, those who wish to hear can have the opportunity. Souls that are starving for the bread of life will be fed. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 20

Instead of having mammoth camp meetings in a few localities, more good would often be done by having small meetings in many places. Let these be held in cities and towns where the message of present truth has not been presented. Help those who are interested to attend, if necessary providing them with food and lodging. And let the meeting continue two or three weeks. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 21

This should be followed up by a tent meeting and Bible work.

Experienced laborers with their assistants should remain in the field to search out all who are interested. They should work as if searching for the lost sheep. Many who came to the camp meeting merely to hear or see some new thing will be impressed by the truth, and some will take their stand to obey. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 22

All this will require consecrated, self-sacrificing labor. At a camp meeting it may sometimes be difficult to hold the principal speakers for several weeks to develop the interest that has been awakened. It may be impossible for all our people to remain till the close of the meeting, and it may involve considerable expense to retain the ground and keep standing a sufficient number of family tents to maintain the appearance of a camp meeting. It may be at a sacrifice that families remain camping on the grounds to assist the ministers and Bible workers in visiting and Bible study with those who come on the ground, and in visiting the people at their homes, telling them of the blessing received at the meetings, and inviting them to come. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 23

No doubt it will be difficult to secure a sufficient number of workers to carry forward the work successfully after the meeting, but the result will justify the effort. It is by such earnest, energetic efforts as these that some of our camp meetings have been instrumental in raising up strong working churches, and it is by just such earnest work that the third angel's message must be carried to the people of our cities. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 24

In these meetings we should not at first present doctrinal subjects, of which the hearers have no understanding. Hold the attention of the people by presenting the truth as it is in Jesus. The very first and most important thing is to melt and subdue the soul by presenting our Lord Jesus Christ as the sin-pardoning Saviour. Keep before the people the cross of Calvary. What caused the death of Christ? The transgression of the law. Show that Christ died to give men an opportunity to become loyal subjects of His kingdom. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 25

Let the truth be presented, not in long, labored discourses, but in short talks, right to the point. Educate, educate in regard to thorough, whole-souled service. Thorough consecration, much prayer, an intense earnestness will make an impression, for angels of God will be present to move upon the hearts of the hearers.14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 26

Let there be singing and instrumental music. Musical instrumentals were used in religious services in ancient times. The worshipers praised God upon the harp and cymbal, and music should have its place in our services. It will add to the interest.14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 27

Let there be personal labor for the unconverted. Invite all who are not satisfied that they are prepared for Christ's coming, and all who feel burdened and heavy laden, to come apart by themselves. Let those who are spiritual converse with these souls. Pray with them and for them. And do not let the work stop here. Visit them at their homes. Let much time be spent in prayer and close searching of the Word. Let all obtain the real facts of faith in their own souls through belief that the Holy Spirit will teach them because they have a real hungering and thirsting after righteousness.14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 28

In this way the right kind of education is given to the people in religious exercises, and there is presented also the discipline of organization and order.14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 29

Meetinghouses and Church Schools

When a company of believers is raised up, careful provision should be made for the permanence and stability of the work. A house of worship will be needed, and a school where Bible instruction may be given to the children. The workers should not leave their field of labor until a meetinghouse is built, and a schoolroom and a teacher provided. Here is a channel in which the means invested in gospel wagons might be used to secure far greater and more permanent results for good.14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 30

All this has been presented before me as a panoramic view. I saw workmen building humble houses of worship. Those newly come to the faith were helping with willing hands, and those who had means were assisting with their means. In the basement of the church, above ground, a schoolroom was prepared for the children. Teachers were selected to go to this place. The numbers in the school were not large, but it was a happy beginning. I heard the songs of children and of parents, "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it. Except the Lord keep the city, the watchman waketh but in vain." "Praise ye the Lord; praise the Lord, O my soul. While I live will I praise the Lord. I will sing praises unto my God while I have my being." [Psalm 127:1; 146:1, 2.] 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 31

The establishing of churches, the erection of meetinghouses and school buildings was extended from city to city, and the tithe was increasing to carry forward the work. There was a plant, not only in one place, but in many places, and the Lord was working to increase His forces. Something was being established that would publish the truth. That is the work to be done, not only in Australia, but in the cities of America as well. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 32

In this work all classes will be reached. When the Holy Spirit works among us, souls who are unready for Christ's appearing are convicted. Many come to our meetings and are converted who for years have not attended meetings in any church. The simplicity of the truth reaches their hearts. The tobacco devotees sacrifice their idol, and the liquor drinker his liquor. They could not do this if they did not by faith grasp the promises of God for the forgiveness of their sins. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 33

The truth as it is in the Word comes before high and low, rich and poor, and those who receive the message become workers with us and with God, and a strong force is raised up to labor harmoniously. This is our work. It is not neglected in any of our camp meeting labor. It is a part of every gospel mission. Instead of setting every talent to work for the lowest outcasts, we should seek in every place to raise up a company of believers who will unite with us in uplifting the standard of truth, and working for rich and poor. Then as churches are established, there will be an increase of helpers to labor for the destitute and the outcasts. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 34

The Relation of the Ministry to the Medical Missionary Work

Both home and foreign missions should be conducted in connection with the ministry of the Word. The medical missionary work is not to be carried forward as something apart from the work of the gospel ministry. The Lord's people are to be one. There is to be no separation in His work. Time and means are being absorbed in a work which is carried forward too earnestly in one direction. The Lord has not appointed this. He sent out His twelve apostles and afterward the seventy to preach the Word to the people, and He gave them power to heal the sick and to cast out devils in His name. The two lines of work must not be separated. Satan will invent every possible scheme to separate those whom God is seeking to make one. We must not be misled by his devices. The medical missionary work is to be connected with the work of the third angel's message, as the hand is connected with the body, and the education of students in medical missionary lines is not complete unless they are trained to work in connection with the church and the ministry. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 35

There are in the ministry men of faith and experience, men who can say, "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the Word of life; ... that which we have seen and heard declare we unto you." [1 John 1:1, 3.] These men are to instruct others. The plan of calling workers away from their fields of labor to attend ministerial institutes is not as a rule the best for this time. Let men be trained by actual labor, under the instruction of experienced workers. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 36

The medical missionary work is not to take men from the ministry, but to place them in the field. Wherever camp meetings are held, young men who have received an education in medical missionary lines should feel it their duty to act a part. They should be encouraged to speak, not only on these special lines, but also upon the points of present truth, giving the reasons why we are Seventh-day Adventists. These young men, given an opportunity to work with older ministers, will receive much help and blessing. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 37

In following up the interest after a camp meeting, helpers are needed in various lines, and these occasions should be as a training school for workers. Let young men work in connection with experienced laborers who will pray with and for them, and patiently instruct them. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 38

There must be no belittling of the gospel ministry. No enterprise should be so conducted as to cause the ministry of the Word to be looked upon as an inferior matter. It is not so. Those who ignore the ministry are ignoring Christ. The highest of all work is ministry in its various lines, and it should be kept before the youth that there is no work more blessed of God than that of the gospel minister. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 39

Let not our young men be deterred from entering the ministry. There is danger that, through glowing representations, some will be drawn out of the path where God bids them walk. Some have been encouraged to take a course of study in medical lines who ought to be preparing themselves to enter the ministry. The Lord calls for more men to labor in His vineyard. The words were spoken, "Strengthen the outposts; have faithful sentinels in every part of the world." God calls for you, young men. He calls for whole armies of young men who are large-hearted and large-minded, and who have a deep love for Christ and the truth. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 40

The measure of capacity or learning is of infinitely less consequence than the spirit with which the work is done. It is not great and learned men that the ministry needs, it is not eloquent sermonizers. God calls for men who will give themselves to Him to be imbued with His Spirit. The cause of Christ and humanity demands sanctified, self-sacrificing men, those who can go forth without the camp, bearing the reproach. Let them be strong, valiant men, fit for worthy enterprises, and let them make a covenant with God by sacrifice. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 41

The ministry is no place for idlers. God's servants are to make full proof of their ministry. They will not be sluggards, but as expositors of His Word they will put forth their utmost energies to be faithful. They should never cease to be learners. They are to keep their own souls all alive to the sacredness of the work and to the great responsibilities of their calling, that they may at no time or place bring to God a maimed sacrifice, an offering which cost them neither study nor prayer. The Lord has need of men of intense spiritual life. Every worker may receive an endowment of strength from on high, and may go forward with faith and hope in the path where God bids him walk. The Word of God abideth in the young, consecrated laborer. He is quick, earnest, powerful, and he has in the counsel of God an unfailing source of supply. 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 42

God has called this people to give to the world the message of Christ's soon coming. We are to give to men the last call to the gospel feast, the last invitation to the marriage supper of the Lamb. Thousands of places that have not heard the call are yet to hear it. Many who have not given the message are yet to proclaim it. Again I appeal to our young men: Has not God called upon you to sound this message? I bid you seek counsel from God. Seek Him with the whole heart, and "whatsoever he saith unto you, do." [John 2:5.] 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 43

"Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest. And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal; that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together." [John 4:35, 36.] 14LtMs, Ms 3, 1899, par. 44

The Effective Use of Means in Missionary Fields

NP

January 25, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in GCDB 03/02/1899.

It is the very essence of all right faith to do the right thing at the right time. God is the great Master Worker, and by His providence He prepares the way for His work to be accomplished. He provides opportunities, opens up lines of influence and channels for working. If His people are watching the indications of His providence, and stand ready to co-operate with Him, they will see a great work accomplished. Their efforts, rightly directed, will produce a hundredfold greater results than can be accomplished with the same means and facilities in another channel where God is not so manifestly working. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 1

Our work is reformative, and it is God's purpose that the excellence of the work in all educational lines shall be an object lesson to the people for the consummation of the last great work to save the perishing. In entering new fields, it is important that the work be so established that a correct representation of the truth shall be given. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 2

In all our plans for missionary operations these principles should be considered. Certain countries have advantages that mark them as centers of education and influence. In the English-speaking nations, it is comparatively easy to find access to the people, and there are many advantages for establishing institutions and carrying forward our work. In other lands, such as India and China, the workers must go through a long course of education before the people can understand them, or they the people. And there are great difficulties to be encountered at every step of the work. In America, England, and Australia, many of these impediments do not exist. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 3

America has many institutions to give character to our work. Similar facilities should have been furnished for England and Australia. In these countries the Lord has able workmen, laborers of experience. These can lead out in the establishment of institutions, the training of workers, and the carrying forward of the work in its different lines. God designs that they shall be furnished with means and facilities. The institutions established would give character to the work in these countries, and would give opportunity for the training of workers for the darker heathen nations. In this way the efficiency of our experienced workers would be multiplied a hundredfold. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 4

The duty of providing facilities for this work the Lord has in great measure laid upon the churches and institutions in America. These churches and institutions were built up by the labors and sacrifices of the Lord's servants. Large donations have been made to establish the institutions in Battle Creek and in other places. Now God calls upon them to use some of the means in their hands to forward His work in other lands. It all belongs to God, every dollar is His, and He is not pleased with their neglect to do the work which so much needs to be done. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 5

By building up the institutions in the English-speaking countries, they would have several plants constantly increasing in usefulness and facilities. Thus the great work for this time might be far more rapidly accomplished. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 6

The Situation in Australia

When the General Conference sent me and my helpers to Australia, our people should have understood the situation, and should have provided us with means and facilities for establishing the work in this country. For seven years we have labored here, but except the publishing house in Melbourne, we have no institution that can give character to the work. In our school work something has been done; but we have not yet the means for erecting our main hall which is to contain the chapel and the recitation rooms. We have not means for the necessary improvement of the land and equipment of the buildings. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 7

The health work is in still greater need. We should have a sanitarium in some location near Sydney, with branches in Newcastle and in some city in Queensland. But we have made scarcely a beginning. The building at Summer Hill, which we are now using as a sanitarium, is in a good location, but it is not at all adapted for a health institution, and it has to be managed in a way that cannot make a correct impression upon the minds of those who patronize it. We might have a much larger number of patients if we only had a suitable building. Wealthy men come to our sanitarium, look at the miserably constructed bathrooms, and say, "I can never consent to take treatment in such a place," and they leave the institution disappointed. But the place is the best we could provide with the means at our command. We have to pay a high rent, and this eats up the funds which we might otherwise use for needed facilities. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 8

Little help will be given us by the doctors in this country. There is occasionally one who appreciates the principles and speaks well of our work; but the physicians generally do not want sanitariums established, and they will make it as hard for us as possible. The hospitals here are numerous, but the nursing is not on the best lines, and in some of them patients are roughly handled. We should have an institution which is a commendable example of right arrangements and right methods as well as of right principles. A good sanitarium here would count more in giving efficiency to our work than it could possibly do in America. But time is passing, and we have nothing to do with. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 9

In connection with the sanitarium in Sydney, a hospital is needed at Cooranbong. This would furnish a retreat for convalescents, and for a large class of patients who need the benefit of country air and surroundings. And nothing could be a more effective help in medical missionary lines. There is no physician at Cooranbong or in all the surrounding districts. In sickness the people have to send to Newcastle, twenty miles away, for a doctor, at an expense of $25 for a visit. The people are poor, and we are constantly called upon to give advice and treatment to the sick, and to minister to the needy and suffering in many ways. This work helpers connected with the hospital would be able to do. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 10

The hospital is needed at once. Dr. Kellogg has raised means for furnishing it, and we had hoped to erect it ourselves, but as yet we have not been able to accomplish this. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 11

Here we are in this new world, with only a very few churches, mostly composed of poor people who are not prepared to give financial aid to the work. How can we meet the requirements in establishing churches, schools, and conferences, and in building up the medical missionary work? We have been straining every nerve to meet the most pressing demands of the work just now. Help must be furnished for the erection of a house of worship for the company of believers just raised up at Brisbane, and very soon a church must be built at Newcastle. The Health Food Company must have help to erect a building for the work they are about to establish in Cooranbong. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 12

The school is struggling to provide sufficient accommodation for its students for another term. And there is the work of helping the poor, lifting up the bowed down and oppressed, clothing the naked and feeding the hungry, all of whom are just as precious in the sight of the Lord as the same class in America. So the work that we desire to do in erecting our hospital is still undone. Directions have come from Battle Creek to push forward the medical missionary work, to start a health institution, to put this work in the forefront. But we cannot make brick without straw. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 13

The actual state of new enterprises is closely watched in this country. In medical and educational institutions, the value of the work is estimated by the moral, intellectual, and financial forces that are engaged for their advancement. The fact that men of ability are forced to work in the manner that we have been compelled to do here, determines in the eyes of the community the breadth and efficiency of the church that can permit such a state of things to exist. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 14

It was not the design of God that our work in this country should be so hard and advance so slowly. It is His purpose that there shall be a true pattern in Australia, a sample of how other fields shall be worked. The work should be symmetrical and a living witness for the truth. God would have us cherish a noble ambition. He desires that the character of our work shall be in harmony with the great truths we are presenting to the world. Everything that shall be done here should be solidly established, as an object lesson to be applied to spiritual things. The work should be such as to inspire students and those who are to become missionaries with hope, zeal, and sanctified ambition, and put new life into the elements found in this new world. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 15

But men, if left to work at cross purposes with God, will spoil the web. While we have been wading through difficulties, and constantly handicapped for want of means, large institutions in America are continually adding to their already abundant facilities. They are absorbing donations that are sorely needed in missionary fields, and are expending means in lines of work that will not accomplish one hundredth part of what might be accomplished with the same means and facilities in this country. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 16

Means have been absorbed in various impulsive movements that do no real good. But if for every expenditure you could show good results, that would not change the principles you should work upon. You were helped in raising funds to make a beginning, and now God requires you to restrict your supposed wants, and give of your abundance to start the work in this new world. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 17

A Contrast

While I was in Queensland, our present situation was presented to me by the figure of a building in process of erection. The builders were full of earnestness and determination to complete the work, putting into it their very best efforts. But the second time I came to look at the building, it was not half completed, yet the builders had gone to other work. I said, "What does this mean?" The answer was, "We began to build, but were not able to finish. We had no money with which to purchase material, and had to stop building." 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 18

Again an illustration was presented before me. There were elaborate buildings, abundant facilities, and many plans for new improvements. I asked, "Who owns these buildings?" The answer was, "They are supposed to be the Lord's property." "Well, who owns that building not yet half completed?" "O, that too is the Lord's building, but the workers could not complete it, for they had nothing to build with." This represents the comparative situation of the work here and in America—the great lack in one place and the superabundance in the other.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 19

My Teacher said, "This is chargeable to the devising of men, but no reflection should be cast upon God. The abundance in one locality was amply sufficient for completing the unfinished building and providing facilities for carrying on the work in other localities. God is not partial. He does not work in this way. The stewards entrusted with the outlay of his means chose to build up that which was under their own supervision, but the same enterprise in the new world of Australia they leave in the condition represented by the unfinished building. Never should God's stewards show such marked selfishness and partiality. Such policy and principles are wholly worldly. They should find no entrance among God's people. The Lord is dishonored before the world and before the heavenly universe. That house must be built. The sanitarium in Sydney must be put in working order. The Lord never works capriciously. He designed that His work should stand before the world more evenly proportioned."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 20

At the Brisbane camp meeting, and during our visit to Rockhampton, our brethren were raising money to carry on the work of building the College Hall for the school at Cooranbong—work which had come to a standstill for want of funds. Our brethren in Queensland are poor, and have large families to support. While they were being drawn upon to raise the amount apportioned to their Colony, they were told of the promise made by the General Conference that for every pound raised in this country the Conference in America would donate a pound.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 21

In the night season I found myself presenting these matters before our brethren in America. I told them what poverty existed in this country. I dreamed that one of our stewards brought in the amount collected from men, women, and children in Queensland. The promise of our American friends that we should receive pound for pound had encouraged these hard-working people in Brisbane to give to the very utmost of their ability. Then the responsible brethren in America turned to the ones who were so anxiously waiting to see what they would do. They said, "We thought you understood that we cannot now fulfil our promise to duplicate your gifts. Circumstances have made this impossible." I find myself waking up in the night and crying, "O Lord, pity thy poor people, whose managers do not consider the wants of the cause in this land. They cannot see afar off."14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 22

God has waited for you in America to send your gifts where the fields are white for harvest. Should you not have some thought as to how you could gather from your conferences the means which you promised our school, giving us pound by pound, according to that which we could raise? Shall that agreement be broken when by strong appeals the means are gathered in here from those who are sacrificing almost the necessities of life? Have our brethren no thought with reference to all these workers, so crippled and bound about? We can see the great harvest field, but are almost without facilities for gathering in the sheaves. Shall the cold-hearted, unbrotherly neglect manifested by our American brethren continue? God has bidden us to call, and call again. He says, "Break up this calculating policy. The means are mine, the work is mine."14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 23

Are our brethren afraid that we cannot possibly use the means to such advantage as they can use it? Let them try us.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 24

The Lord's Instruction

I seemed to be in a meeting where our necessities were being reviewed. We were considering what should be done. One stood up among us, and the word of the Lord was spoken: "Those in America can relieve the situation here, and should have shared with you their abundance years ago. The Sanitarium at Battle Creek has been blessed of God. He has imparted to it abundantly, and in its prosperity it might impart to the work He has signified should be done in Australia. The managers there could have done a large work in establishing and equipping a sanitarium in Australia had they placed themselves in the situation of the workers in this field. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 25

I was bidden, "Bear the message clear and definite. God demands of them a work which should have been done when I sent my workers to break new ground in Australia. While the aggressive warfare was being carried on, and the light given upon health reform, institutions should have been established to give character to the work. The Sanitarium at Battle Creek could and should have given of her abundance to relieve the situation in Australia." The neglect to do this has placed us years behind. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 26

Of all countries, Australia most resembles America. It is her sister. All classes of people are here. And the truth has not been resented and rejected. There are thousands of honest souls praying for light. God's watchmen are called to stand on the walls of Zion, and to give the warning, "The morning cometh, and also the night," the night wherein no man can work. [Isaiah 21:12; John 9:4.] While the angels are holding the four winds, a message is to enter every field in Australia as fast as possible. There is no time to be lost. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 27

The Lord says to His people in America: "When I send my servants to establish my work in a new field, and build up the interests essential to give it character, I call upon my people to sustain that work with their prayers and with their means. Because they have neglected to do this, the appearance presented by the health institution in Australia is objectionable. It is not a proper object lesson, for it is no just representation of the truth. The medical mission work in that country, which should have been a noble work, is a work of which God is ashamed. The testimony borne by such meager representations brings the most sacred truth into disrepute; it dishonors God. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 28

"When my servant whom I have called to make known my will was sent to Australia, you in America should have understood that you had a work to do in co-operation with her. Who was it that carried out my directions in laying the foundations of the institutions in America which have grown to such large proportions? And when my servant was sent to establish the work in a new field, could you not see that He who owns all the gold and silver was calling for your co-operation? You had obtained a standing fully abundant and ample. And when the work was to begin in another field, I would be with my servant to indicate the work, and you should have been ready to aid in lifting up the standard of truth by precept and example in a way that would recommend it to a gainsaying world. My watchmen are to call upon all to come to the gospel feast, to do high service for the Master. Could you not discern that when the same work was entered upon in Australia it required means? The God of heaven has been dishonored.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 29

“Upon whom has the Lord for so many years laid the burden and travail of soul for the work in America? Who has borne the burden and wretchedness of the people who are constantly working at cross purposes with God? The needs and errors of the laborers in responsible positions have called for a heavy, soul-wearing work. Did you suppose that any amount of wages could be a recompense for this? Nothing that earth can give is of sufficient value to recompense the travail and burden of soul, the agony of mind, that has been felt in seeing the people endangering the work of God, and making it necessary for Him to withdraw His prospering hand from the publishing association and from the Conference.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 31

“Then the test came upon the Sanitarium. God has given them prosperity, not to be a means of self-exaltation, but that they might impart of their substance. When my servants were sent to Australia, you should have understood that God would work through them, and you should have exercised liberality in apportioning means to advance the work. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 32

“The medical missionary work should ere this have been established upon a solid foundation. There should be no withholding of means. The Lord has let His chastening hand fall upon the Review and Herald Office because they would not heed His voice. Self-sufficient managers hedged up the way, that His work should not advance. The Lord now calls upon the Battle Creek Sanitarium to extend their work, and to assist in placing the health institution in Australia upon a proper basis and make it a signal to exalt the truth.” 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 33

The time has come when no physical, mental, or moral power is to be wasted or misapplied. The Lord would have you no longer confine to a few places at home all the great facilities that concern the moral and spiritual advancement of His work. The word of command is, “Go forward. You to whom I have given much are called upon to impart. Place your means where it will help now in giving light to darkened nations and to the islands of the sea.” 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 34

Again the word of the Lord came to me saying, “I have spared your life to do My work, and wherever I send you, go, and I will send mine angel with you. In no case should you be feeble in your request for the advantage of means. Wherever I send you, go, and speak My words. I will be Thy mind, I will be Thy judgment. All the advantages are Mine. The means and facilities are Mine, and there should be no withholding. But selfishness, a desire to control, has kept the advantages in one place, so that everything is overbalanced. Call for the means God designed you to have long ago. Hold up My banner. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 35

“Give honor to no human instrumentality, but to God, that My name may be a praise in the earth. The Lord, He is God, and before Him there is no other. My work in Australasia has been greatly hindered.

Money has been used unwisely in the great centers, so that there is distress for means to build up the work in new places. But go not forth in hesitancy. I will be with you. Ask of My people the means that should have gone to advance the work in the Australasian field, the new world to which I have sent you.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 36

“Those who stand in responsible places in the work need wisdom in regard to the best methods of proclaiming the last message of mercy to the world. I have a work to be done in Victoria, in New South Wales, in all the Australasian fields. Call for the means which ought to have been flowing there, where there are so few facilities to build up My kingdom, where it will tell the most in magnifying My name.”14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 37

Again the light given me is, “The Lord has sent you to take hold of this work. What you have done in America under the direction of God is to be done in planting the standard of truth and building up the work in Australia. In America they should know that you need to be supplied with the means required for the work. You have been too slow in calling for the help that is essential.”14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 38

The work should be established in this country, and it will be, for thus the Lord has said. We might be years in advance if our brethren in America had stood unflinchingly to their duty, to hear and obey the word of the Lord. Let no more time be lost. You who have so many advantages do your work unselfishly. It is God’s work we are doing, and you will not find the work in your hands restricted, if you follow the will and word of God. Share your advantages with us in this field, that the work may stand on a true basis and have the influence and character it should possess. Your minds may not now be prepared to see the importance of surrendering yourselves to do what ought to have been done when we were appointed to come to this field. You may not be able to see all the particulars involved in this request of God to impart. But the special work has been laid out, and you are called upon to do your God-given duty in our onward march in this country by furnishing us with facilities for our work.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 39

Christ’s dignity and office work are in imposing such conditions as

He pleases. His followers are to become more and more a power in the proclamation of the truth as they draw nearer to the perfection of faith and of love for their brethren. God has provided His divine assistance for all the emergencies to which our human resources are unequal. He gives the Holy Spirit to help in every strait, to strengthen our hope and assurance, to illuminate our minds and purify our hearts. He means that all-sufficient facilities shall be provided for the working out of His plans in this field. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 40

A Misapplied Message

The message, "Sell that ye have, and give alms," is now to be given. [Luke 12:33.] But there are many who do not understand the object of this message. It is not the purpose of God that the revenues of the church shall be largely absorbed in the work for the poor and outcast classes. This work might be presented in such a way that every dollar would be drawn from our people, and there would be no resources left for aggressive warfare in new fields. But our brethren in America who were engaged in medical missionary lines can, by appealing to the outside people, obtain help, because theirs is not a denominational work. They should not draw their funds largely from our churches. The resources of the church are needed to support the gospel ministry, and to carry forward the work in new fields. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 41

The special work for this time is not to be restricted under the plea of giving to the poor. A lesson on this point is given in Christ's words to Mary at Simon's feast. In gratitude for her brother's restoration to life, and in full faith in Christ as her Saviour, Mary broke her alabaster box of precious ointment, and poured its fragrant contents on the head and feet of her Lord. Indignation was expressed at the supposed waste. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 42

Some even of Christ's own disciples, who ought to have known better, said, "To what purpose is this waste?" They thought that the ointment was thrown away when poured upon his head and his feet. "This ointment might have been sold for much," they said, "and given to the poor. When Jesus understood it, He said unto them, Why trouble ye the woman? For she hath wrought a good work upon me. For ye have the poor always with you, but me ye have not always. For in that she hath poured this ointment on my body, she did it for my burial. Verily I say unto you, Wheresoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, there shall also this, that this woman hath done, be told for a memorial of her.” [Matthew 26:8-13.]14*LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 43*

Was anything wasted in breaking the box of ointment as a gift to Jesus? That gift was no waste. It is true that the ointment might have been sold for bread and clothing; thus a small number of destitute persons might have been fed for a short time; but it would have remained to be seen whether they would have been really benefited. [Mary] could not have bestowed that gift which to her seemed a faint representation of Christ’s boundless love. Mary’s act was immortalized, for it showed her love for her Saviour. Christ Himself bound up that sacrifice of love with His own sacrifice, the greatest the world has ever seen.14*LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 44*

Mary represents the church, and her act has a lesson for the church in all ages. Christ has not bidden us bestow all our labor and all our gifts upon the poor. We have a work to do in behalf of those who are fulfilling His commission: “Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.” [Mark 16:15.]14*LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 45*

The increase of the ministry will require an increase of means; for the laborer is worthy of his hire. Bear in mind, my brethren in America, that the Lord requires of you self-sacrifice. The sacrificing is not all to be done by one class. There is altogether too much spasmodic work. When you expend money, consider, “Am I encouraging prodigality?” When you give to the poor and wretched, consider, “Am I helping them, or hurting them?”14*LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 46*

I understand that a plan has been thought of for the erection of additional buildings in Battle Creek to accommodate the poor. God has not laid the burden of this work upon His people. The churches should not be sapped of their funds for such an enterprise. The special work to be done at this time, no interest must interpose to hinder.14*LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 47*

Think of the necessities of our mission fields throughout the world. The London mission is in distressing need of help. There is a most solemn and important work to be done in that vast city. God designs that His workmen there shall have advantages to do some of the same work which Christ did when he was ministering in this world. So in Scandinavia and in the Central European field, means are required to advance the work in its different lines.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 48

The Lord has presented to me that the enemy is still seeking with all his power to center the work in Battle Creek, contrary to the word of God. A movement to erect more buildings there, and to gather in more people who might better never see Battle Creek, will bring results for evil that are not now foreseen.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 49

Not all the institutions now at Battle Creek should have been there. Our people have found excuse after excuse for establishing new enterprises and erecting more buildings, but these excuses are no more valid with God than are those now urged for the enterprise contemplated that is not the way of the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 50

Our churches are barely able to hold their ground against opposing forces. But they are told that if they take hold of the work for the poorest classes, the Lord will bless them. But no blessing will come to any enterprise that has against it the Lord's plain, "Thou shalt not." And God has long been warning His people not to center any more responsibilities in Battle Creek.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 51

The present time is burdened with eternal interests. We are to unfurl the standard of truth before a world perishing in error. God calls for men to rally under Christ's bloodstained banner, give the Bible to the people, multiply camp meetings in different localities, warn the cities, and send the warnings far and near in the highways and byways of the world.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 52

Our brethren have not discerned that in helping us to do this work they would be helping themselves. That which is given to start the work here, will result in strengthening the work in other places. As your gifts free us from continual embarrassment, our labors can be extended; there will be an ingathering of souls, churches will be established, and there will be increasing financial strength. We shall have a sufficiency, not only to carry on the work here, but to impart to other fields. Nothing is gained by withholding the very means that would enable us to work to advantage, extending the knowledge of God and the triumphs of truth in regions beyond.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 53

However large the income or the possessions of any person, any family, or any institution, let them remember that they are only stewards, holding in trust the Lord's money. All profit, all pay, our time, our talents, our opportunities, are to be accounted for to Him who gives them all. The Lord would not have the first thread of selfishness woven into the fabric of His work. He is constantly proving us to see if our work is free from selfishness and pride. Those workers will have the richest reward who prove that they love God supremely, and their neighbor as themselves.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 54

The spirit of covetousness and selfishness, like threads drawn into the web, has been working in our American institutions, until the spirit that should control them has been lost sight of. This has deprived them of great blessings.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 55

If the workers in America had imparted to others of their great mercies, they would have seen prosperity in England. They would have sympathized with the workers who are struggling with difficulties there, and would have had the heart to say, not only in word, but in action, "All ye are brethren." [Matthew 23:8.] The strengthening of the work in English-speaking countries, would have given our laborers a hundredfold more influence than they have had to plant the standard of truth in many places.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 56

An Appeal for Help

Now at the beginning of the year 1899, seeing the work that might have been done in this field and that is not done, and knowing the will of God in the matter, I appeal to my brethren in America. I can hold my peace no longer. I say to our churches, if you have property in lands or money consecrated to the work of God, we need a portion of it just now. I ask you to send us help without delay. Your gifts need not pass through any Conference organization. The more the people in Battle Creek have had to work with, the more they have sought to gather, and the less they have felt the necessity of advancing the work in other English-speaking countries. The more these stewards can gather from the churches, the less they feel like sharing with the workers who have toiled faithfully in other fields. Let your liberalities come to us direct. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 57

You owe the Lord much—vastly more than you comprehend or can ever compute. Will you recognize this obligation? God will recognize every effort made to help us in lifting the standard of truth in every city and in every suburb. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 58

One of the most effective aids in bringing the light to the people here will be a well-equipped sanitarium. In this enterprise the boards and managers of our sanitariums in America have a special duty to help us. Let the help be given while there are those of experience here to manage the interests of the work. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 59

The Lord who has made you beneficiaries of His grace and recipients of His bounty now calls upon you to withdraw some of the means from the varied channels to which it is constantly flowing. Let it be put where it will make a showing, distinct and decided, in this missionary field. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 60

The Battle Creek Sanitarium has received thousands of dollars in donations which should be passed over to institutions in other countries which are struggling for an existence. And more than this, the profits of the sanitarium should be largely used in helping similar institutions in needy circumstances. I am now directed by the Lord to call upon you to do something for us, and to do it without delay. Some division of your funds must be made for this purpose. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 61

Is it not just as important that the half-finished building represented to me should have money and facilities to complete it, as it was that the institutions in Battle Creek should be built up? Have not I a right to demand in the name of the Lord that this should be done? Will you not help us to gain a foothold here, that we may stand as co-workers with you in America?14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 62

The enemy will invent every device in his power to prevent the light from shining in new places. He does not want the truth to go forth as a lamp that burneth. Will our brethren consent that he shall any longer succeed in his plans for hindering the work?14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 63

Time is rapidly passing into eternity. Will any one now keep back from God that which is strictly His own? Will any one refuse Him that which, though it may be given without merit, cannot be denied without ruin? The Lord has given to every man his work, and the Holy angels want us to be doing that work. As you shall watch and pray and work, they stand ready to co-operate with you. When the understanding is worked by the Holy Spirit, then all the affections act harmoniously in compliance with the divine will. Then men will give to God His own, saying, "All things come of thee, and of thine own we freely give thee." [See 1 Chronicles 29:14.] May God forgive my brethren that they have not done this.14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 64

The very Being who fills all heaven with splendor, and who is worshiped by the heavenly host, came to our earth, humiliating Himself as a man, that we might be exalted to share His glory. Shall not we also sacrifice that others may be lifted up?14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 65

I have tried to set things before you, but the attempt falls far short of the reality. Will you refuse my plea? It is not I who appeal to you; it is the Lord Jesus, who has given His life for this people. In my request I obey the will, the requirement, of God. Will you improve this opportunity of showing honor to God's work here, and respect for the servants whom He has sent to do His will in guiding souls to heaven?14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 66

"But this I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly, and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work: (as it is written, He hath dispersed abroad; he hath given to the poor: his righteousness remaineth forever. 14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 67

“Now he that ministereth seed to the sower both minister bread for your food, and multiply your seed sown, and increase the fruits of your righteousness:) being enriched in everything to all bountifulness, which causeth through us thanksgiving to God. For the administration of this service not only supplieth the wants of the saints, but is abundant also by many thanksgivings unto God; while by the experiment of this ministration, they glorify God for your professed subjection unto the gospel of Christ, and for your liberal distribution unto them and to all men; and by their prayer for you, which long after you for the exceeding grace of God in you. Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift!” [2 Corinthians 9:6-15.]14LtMs, Ms 4, 1899, par. 68

The Need for Consecrated Workers

NP

January 26, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 4MR 98. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Every soul is now to stand in his lot to do his appointed work. He is to be prepared to hear Christ's voice, and respond to His call, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." [Matthew 11:28-30.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 1

"Then went out to him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about Jordan, and were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins. But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees come to his baptism, he said unto them, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Bring forth therefore fruits meet for repentance: and think not to say within yourselves, we have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham. And now also the ax is laid unto the root of the trees, therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down and cast unto the fire. I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than me, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost, and with fire: whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into the garner; but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." [Matthew 3:5-12.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 2

This is the message that is to be given to the world, for the One upon whom our salvation, our eternal life, depends is coming in answer to the prophetic declaration, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God. Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain: and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it. The voice said, Cry. And he said, What shall I cry? All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field: the grass withereth, the flower fadeth: because the Spirit of the Lord bloweth upon it: surely the people is grass. The grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the word of our God shall stand forever." [Isaiah 40:3-8].<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 3

This message is a decided one. Before an eastern monarch travels to foreign countries, a herald is sent to appoint workmen to prepare the way, to remove the objections, build bridges over gulches, level the hills, and make as clear and unobstructed a path as possible for the king to pass over.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 4

This figure was given to Isaiah to show what must be done to prepare a people for the first advent of our Lord. He was to call upon the disobedient to see their transgression, and to humble themselves before God. Their self-exaltation, their feeling of superiority, their pharisaical pride as a nation, must be seen in a true light. The people must see that their natural advantages were of no value to them without true purity, true obedience to all of God's commandments. The call was, Repent ye, for the kingdom of God is at hand.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 5

A more marked, decided work than has been done must be done prior to the second appearing of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. The gospel is to be given to all nations, tongues, and peoples. Read the whole of the forty-first chapter of Isaiah. A work is to be done in these last days to prepare the way for the second appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ. The Lord gave men minds in order that He might control them. But Satan has come in with a determination to control the minds of men. Through his devising he has led men into intemperance of every description, into pleasure-loving, into liquor-drinking, into the use of the narcotic tobacco, of opium, and all other drugs which weaken the hold of the human family upon life. These are the great and most common causes of intemperance.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 6

Through the love of pleasure, horse racing, cardplaying, cricket and football matches, the intellect is enfeebled. Is this the way in which Christ would have those formed in His image devote their time? God has given man faculties to cultivate, improve, expand, elevate and ennoble. But too often these faculties are laid as a freewill offering upon Satan's altar. Thus men make it impossible to prepare for the future immortal life. The very duties and work given them to do in their various spheres of action is not done.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 7

Man is to be a partaker of the divine nature. He was created to stand in a position of holy trust as God's steward. He is in possession of most sacred and holy responsibilities. His mind, brought into harmony with the mind of God has a rich and unexhausted field in which to work. For the proper use of his faculties, he is responsible to Him who has entrusted them to him. He is to guard every avenue of the soul, lest Satan remove the fortifications and obtain the victory.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 8

Man is God's property, and he is to strive to reach the highest point of excellence by using all the means within his reach. He will receive much if he is faithful over little things, and so closely follows the Lord's plan that he knows nothing of defeat or failure.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 9

He may present to the Lord the portion of his vineyard over which he has been given charge, well-cultivated and beautiful. He is to faithfully plant and sow, ever extending his domains by working new lands. "Ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] Therefore if a man will keep his mind free from the rubbish Satan would pile into it, and lay it open to the bright beams of the Sun of Righteousness, he will be able to see God. His intellect is well-cultivated, and his character well disciplined. The work done will be like the work described in the forty-third chapter of Isaiah.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 10

The members of the church must arouse. Each member must have an individual living experience. Each must receive a message from God, and work in co-operation with God, doing the very things the Lord would have him do. His highest interest is at stake, for to every man has been given his work. He is to make use of every advantage God has provided. His eternal welfare depends upon the faithful discharge of every duty, be it large or small. He is to conscientiously strive for Christ's righteousness of character. He will find that in doing his appointed work, he will learn continuously from the great Teacher in regard to heavenly things. He is to make everything according to the pattern shown him in the mount. He does not work for a hard taskmaster, who calls him to reap where he has not sowed. He works for One who has devised liberal things. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 11

Satan works constantly to lead men to weave selfishness into their religious experience and work. God calls upon every man to crucify self. Those who respond increase in their ability to impart. The more they learn from Christ, the more will they seek to establish every branch of the work of God by imparting their blessings to others. The more truly enlightened they are, the more deep and earnest will be their desire to enlighten others, and the wider will be their sympathy for every phase of the work that builds up the kingdom of God. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 12

The more he talks with God, the less he will live to himself. He does not practice selfishness, for he knows that it has no redeeming qualities. The more abundant the privileges, opportunities, and facilities he is able to secure, the more he will feel under obligation as God's steward to impart, because it is God's kingdom that is to be built up. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 13

It is a sin in God's sight to withhold from needy fields the facilities abundant in another field. By wise and judicious planning, the efficiency of God's workmen, sent to work in new fields, would be doubled and trebled. The workers could establish institutions that would give character to the work. In every part of the Lord's vineyard the truth would be represented. The work would not be confined to one part of the world, but everywhere there would be witnesses who could tell the story of the love of God. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 14

After Christ had talked with the Samaritan woman at the well, she was so convinced by His words that she forgot all about her errand and, leaving her waterpot, went into the city to tell the wonderful things she had heard. "Come," she said to the people, "see a man which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Christ? Then they went out of the city, and came unto him." [John 4:29, 30.]14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 15

While the woman was away telling her story, the disciples came to Christ, and said, "Master, eat. But he said unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of. Therefore said the disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eat? Jesus saith unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work." [Verses 31-34.]14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 16

This lesson was not given only for Christ's disciples but for all who should afterwards unite in His service. Yet let all know that if they yoke up with Christ, they are to ask at every step when tempted to be selfish, What would Jesus do were He in my place? This is the principle which is to control every action. Not a thread of self is to be woven into the fabric.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 17

As Christ spoke these words to His disciples, He was thinking of the way in which the Samaritan woman received His message. He had told her great truths; she had received them joyfully, and going into the city, she told her story and brought to Him those who listened to her report. Jesus used this occurrence as an opportunity to impressing truth upon the minds of His disciples. At that time the fields bore no appearance of harvest; the seed was only just sown. Christ said, "Say not ye, there are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields, for they are white already for harvest." [Verse 35.] There was no appearance of harvest in the natural world.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 18

Between the sowing and the reaping there must be a time of waiting. But the seed that had been sown in the mind of the Samaritan woman had already borne fruit. She received the word spoken, and immediately began to impart to others the knowledge of eternal life. Jesus knew what the result would be. He knew that the Samaritans would come to Him to hear for themselves the things of the kingdom of God, and would believe on Him, “because of the saying of the woman, which testified, He told me all things that ever I did.” [Verse 39.] Those who first heard of Christ from the woman listened to many more truths from His own lips. These were precious to them; they received Jesus as the Christ of God.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 19

The readiness of the Samaritans to receive the truth was to be a lesson to the disciples which they would never forget. The speedy harvest was to increase their faith and to encourage their hearts. The Samaritans were interested to hear, and astonished at the great light shining upon them from the Scriptures.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 20

This experience was an illustration of the success the disciples might expect in their labor. Souls were hungry for the bread of life, perishing for a knowledge of the truth. There was a work, a heart work going on among both Jews and Gentiles. Many would receive the Word and rejoice in the truth. A great field of labor lay open before them. They needed to pray for laborers to go out into the harvest field, put in the sickle, and gather in the sheaves, for the harvest was ripe. Other men had labored before them to prepare minds to receive the gospel. Prophets and teachers had been working. John the Baptist’s voice had been lifted up in the wilderness to prepare for this very result. The disciples were to enter into other men’s labors: Others had done the sowing; they were to do the reaping. The fields were white for the harvest.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 21

[This] may all be said of every new field today. The need of workers is as great as it ever has been. The need of self-denial is as manifest now as ever it was. The men to whom have been given abundant facilities need to look on the fields that are ready for the sickle, and see what they can do.14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 22

This parable has been strikingly fulfilled in the last camp meetings in Sydney. We have seen the working of the Spirit of God in Brisbane. The fields in Queensland are all white unto the harvest. Sheaves have been and still are being gathered in. In our camp meeting in Newcastle an interest was aroused exceeding anything that we have ever seen hitherto, or have had faith to anticipate. The whole community is stirred, all the way from Cooranbong to Newcastle, and from Newcastle to Brisbane, Queensland. We were astonished to see the eager listeners who gathered to hear the words of life. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 23

In the two camp meetings held this season, we know that the angels of God enshrouded in the pillar of cloud went before us. While on my way to the camp meeting in Brisbane, I saw in the vision of the night two white clouds. Word came to me that clouds filled with angels announced the coming of Christ to our world. The word came to me, "Look ye." Raising the curtain of the car window, I saw two clouds of purest white. This sent a glad and happy thrill to my heart. I watched these two clouds. They did not change their form. One would come close to the other and touch, and I thought I heard the angels sing. Then the clouds would move apart, but again they would come together. I was sure that angels were in these clouds. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 24

When we changed cars at noon I looked for the clouds again, but did not see them after that. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 25

The Brisbane and Newcastle camp meetings were the most precious meetings I have ever attended. At the last meeting I realized this more especially, and so did all who had any acquaintance with God. Those not of our faith acted [as] if they were on holy ground. The people did not seem to come to the meetings from curiosity. They came to hear the Word of life, and they heard it. Newcastle has been thoroughly canvassed for our books, especially Patriarchs and Prophets, Great Controversy, and Steps to Christ. The angels of God were upon the encampment. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 26

A new tent has been purchased, and it was pitched last Thursday. I am told that this is in every way the best tent we have ever erected. The interest now is not so large as it was during holidays, for men living at a distance have to attend to their business. But the tent is well filled in the evenings and on Sabbaths and Sundays. Every effort is made to get close to the hearts of the people, and a number have taken their stand for the truth. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 27

These meetings in Brisbane and in Newcastle have been the most earnest, solemn meetings we have ever seen. The people seem to be attracted and charmed as the treasures of the Word of life are opened to them. We have had earnest laborers. God is working upon hearts. During the camp meeting Dr. Caro gave health talks, and the people took him into their hearts at once. He is a clear speaker, full of earnestness and faith. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 28

Before these meetings were held, there were presented to me in the night season small and large companies stretching out their hands, and saying with eager interest, "Come and help us: we want the truth, the pure gospel. We are starving for the bread of life." The fields are all ripe for the sickle, and now is the time when we need devoted, earnest workers who are themselves worked by the Spirit of God. 14LtMs, Ms 5, 1899, par. 29

The Poor Rich Man

NP

January 31, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in UL 45. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day: and there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, which was laid at his gate, full of sores, and desiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man’s table; and moreover the dogs came and licked his sores.” [Luke 16:19-21.]14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 1

All this rich man possessed had been entrusted to him by God, who had made him his steward that he might minister to the homeless and the naked. In proportion to the means entrusted to us we are to impart to those in need. The Lord holds us as debtors to those around us.14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 2

Had the rich man been a faithful steward, he would have shared his abundance with those who needed medical attention, wholesome food, clean garments, and spiritual enlightenment. But he used his all in self-service. He clothed himself in purple and fine linen, and fared sumptuously every day, forgetting the duties resting upon him as God’s steward. He did not help those suffering around him. He was responsible to God for the use of his means, and in the beggar who lay at his gate an opportunity was presented for him to show his love to God and his neighbor. But he left the beggar to receive attention from dogs better cared for than he was.14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 3

The rich man should have regarded it as a privilege to do all in his power for the beggar. Loathsome as was the appearance of the one who needed help, it was the rich man’s part to do what he could for him. The more afflicted Lazarus was, the more sympathy he should have received. The rich man could have relieved his wants without suffering the least inconvenience himself. And even if he had had to practice self-denial, he would only have been following, in a limited way, the example of the Majesty of heaven, the King of glory, who gave him a probation that he might be a co-laborer with God in relieving the necessities of humanity. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 4

This is the work devolving upon all who have means. Every man will be called upon to render an account for the use of his entrusted means. Those who have abundance, and yet refuse to obey God's commands bring a reproach upon their Lord, and will be judged according to their works. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 5

The doctrine of an intermediate existence was held by those who were listening to this parable. Just before Christ began to speak the parable, some of the Jews had been talking earnestly together, objecting to some of the points in Christ's previous lesson and asserting that after death the departed spirits would converse with each other. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 6

Christ knew of the confused ideas held by the people, and he gave them a most wonderful lesson. Meeting them on their own ground, He framed His parable so as to inculcate important truths through their preconceived opinions. "It came to pass," He said, "that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's bosom: the rich man also died, and was buried; and in hell he lift up his eyes, being in torments, and seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom. And he cried and said, Father Abraham, have mercy upon me, and send Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame." [Verses 22-24.] 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 7

Christ held up before the Jews a moral looking glass, wherein they might see themselves in their true relation to God. He used the prevailing opinion to convey the idea he wished to make prominent to all—that no man is valued for his possessions, for all he has belongs to him only as lent by the Lord. A misuse of these gifts will place him below the poorest and most afflicted man who God loves and trusts in Him. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 8

Christ desired His hearers to understand that it was impossible for the rich man to obtain any help after death. "Son," Abraham is represented as answering, "remember that thou in thy lifetime receivedst thy good things, and likewise Lazarus evil things; but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented. And beside all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed, so that all they which would pass from hence to you cannot, neither can they pass to us, that would come from thence." [Verses 25, 26.] Thus Christ presented the hopelessness of looking for a probation at the close of the only time given in which to choose sides, in which to prepare for the judgment. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 9

The rich man had not abandoned the idea that he was a child of Abraham, and in his distress he called upon him for aid. "Father Abraham," he prayed, "have mercy on me." [Verse 24.] There is nothing in the parable to show that the prayer was offered to God. The rich man had a religious theory, but it went to further than a belief in Abraham. But Abraham was in his grave. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 10

The rich man represents the Jewish nation. The highest men in the nation worshipped Abraham, not God. They put their dependence in the fact that they were children of Abraham. "We be children of Abraham," they said proudly, "and were never in bondage to any man." [John 8:33.] When the crisis came, it was revealed that they had divorced themselves from God and had placed their trust in Abraham, as if he were God. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 11

Christ longed to let light shine into the darkened minds of the Jewish people. Infinite sorrow filled His heart because He could not impress them with the truth. Their minds were so filled with error that it seemed that no thing could enlighten their darkened understanding. Their spiritual condition was as pitiful in the sight of the heavenly universe as was the physical condition of the beggar in the parable. They would not do what they knew to be right. By refusing to come to Him who was the Light of the world, they were cutting themselves away from the source of all true light. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 12

Though surrounded by all the luxuries of life, the rich man was so ignorant that he put Abraham where God should have been. But if he had appreciated his exalted privileges, if he had responded to the divine call, and allowed God's Spirit to mold mind and heart, he would have had an altogether different future. So with the nation he represented. If they had responded to the divine call, their future would have been entirely different. They would have shown true spiritual discernment. They had means sufficient to bless and enlighten the whole world. But they so far separated from the Lord's arrangement that their whole life was perverted. They failed to use their gifts as God's stewards, in accordance with truth and righteousness. Eternity was not brought into their reckoning, and many perished in their sins. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 13

Christ knew that at the destruction of Jerusalem the Jews would remember this lesson. And it was so. When calamity came upon Jerusalem, when the prophecy that the mothers would eat their own children was fulfilled, when starvation and suffering of every kind came upon the Jews, they remembered these words of Christ and understood the parable. They brought their suffering upon themselves by their proud resistance of the Redeemer. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 14

The rich man was eulogized by his fellow men for his riches. But though riches will clothe a man with costly raiment, though they will enable him to fare sumptuously every day, they will not gain salvation for him. The rich man passed by want and suffering on the other side. Thus his character was formed to do good to himself, but not to others. When it was too late, he realized his folly, and thought of his brethren, who would go on as heedlessly as he had done, living to please themselves. Then he made the request, "I pray thee, therefore, father, that thou wouldst send him (Abraham) to my father's house: for I have five brethren; that he may testify unto them, lest they also come into this place of torment. Abraham saith unto him, They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them. And he said, Nay, Father Abraham, but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent. And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead." [Luke 16:27-31.]14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par.

When the rich man solicited additional evidence for his brethren, he was plainly told that should this evidence be given, they would not be persuaded. This request cut a reflection on God. It was as though the rich man had said, If you had more thoroughly warned me, I would not now be here. In his answer to this request, Abraham is represented as saying, They have been sufficiently warned. They had eyes, but they would not see the light. They had ears, but they would not hear the truth. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 16

This also was a representation of the Jewish nation. They had been given every spiritual advantage. Special instruction had been given the children of Israel in regard to their treatment of their brethren who had fallen into decay, the stranger within their gates, and the poor among them. When gathering in the harvest, they were to leave some of their fruit and grain for the poor to gather up after them. They were not to seek to gain everything for their own advantage, but were to remember those in need, and share with them. And God promised to bless them in accordance with their deeds of love and mercy. But like the rich man, they put forth no helping hand to relieve the temporal or religious necessities of suffering humanity. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 17

“They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them. ... If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded though one rose from the dead.” [Verses 29, 31.] Thus He who is the Light of the world spoke to the Jewish nation. Christ’s last and crowning miracle was the raising of Lazarus, after he had been dead four days. The Jews were given this wonderful evidence of the Saviour’s divinity, but they rejected it, and Christ’s words were vindicated. Lazarus rose from the dead and bore his testimony before them, but they hardened their hearts against all evidence. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 18

The law and the prophets are God’s appointed agencies for the salvation of men, Christ said. Let them listen to these evidences. It is not evidence piled upon evidence that will convince men and lead them to repent. If they do not listen to the voice of God in His Word, the testimony of a witness raised from the dead would not be heeded. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 19

Those who obey Moses and the prophets will require no greater light, but if they refuse to receive the light, and fail to appreciate the opportunities God has graciously granted them, they would not hear if one from the dead came to them with a message. They would not be convinced even by this evidence, for those who reject the law and the prophets so harden their hearts that they will reject all light. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 20

The conversation between Abraham and the once-rich man is figurative. The lesson to be gathered from it is that every man is given sufficient light for the discharge of the duties required of him. The responsibilities of a man are proportionate to his opportunities and privileges. God gives to every one sufficient light and grace to do the work He has given him to do. If men do not do that which a little light shows to be their duty, greater light would only reveal unfaithfulness, neglect to appreciate the blessings given. This increase of light would only be more light to be disregarded. "He that is faithful in that which is least, is faithful also in much; and he that is unjust in that which is least, is unjust also in much." [Verse 10.] Those who refuse to be enlightened by Moses and the prophets, who ask for some wonderful miracle to be performed, would not be convinced if their wish were granted. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 21

The parable of Lazarus and the rich man shows how the Lord regards the two classes represented by these men. Men may have earthly honor lavished upon them, they may have the means of gratifying every desire, and yet they may possess no true riches. In the parable, the rich man's possessions did not win him to Christ, the source of all true wisdom and riches. They did not fill his heart with tender sympathy for those suffering around him. The contrast between him and the beggar did not impress him as it should have done. He went on in his own way till it was too late for him to turn back. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 22

This parable shows us the way in which these things are estimated in the unseen world. There is no sin in being rich, if riches are not acquired by injustice. The rich man is not condemned for the riches he has. But condemnation rests upon him if he spends in selfishness the means entrusted to him, building grand houses, buying costly furniture, spreading a luxurious table. Far better might the money thus spent be laid up beside the throne of God in doing God's service. Death cannot make any man poor who devotes himself, soul, body, and spirit, to seeking eternal riches. But the richest man who hoards his treasure for self cannot take any of it to heaven. He is weighed in the balances and found wanting. He has proved himself to be an unfaithful steward. During his lifetime he had his good things, but he was forgetful of his obligations to God. He failed to secure the heavenly treasure. He did not appreciate the honor God bestowed on him by making him an agent for His great firm. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 23

The rich man, who had so many privileges and such great advantages, is presented to us as one who should have cultivated his gifts so that his works should reach to the great beyond, carrying with them improved spiritual advantages. It is the purpose of redemption, not only to blot out sin, but to give back to man those spiritual gifts lost because of sin's dwarfing power. Money cannot be carried into the next life; it is not needed there; but the good deeds done to win souls to Christ, the faithful investment of God's entrusted treasure, these are carried to the heavenly courts. But those who selfishly spend the Lord's goods on themselves, leaving their needy fellow creatures without aid, who do not advance God's work in our world, dishonor their Maker. Robbery of God is written opposite their names. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 24

Poverty is not a sin unless by recklessness men bring poverty upon themselves. And even then, if they repent, they will be pardoned. He who is represented in the parable as having no riches, no comforts, no earthly enjoyments, had a title to a home in heaven. So today those who have faith in Christ as a personal Saviour, even though they may occupy a humble place in the world, are heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ to an immortal inheritance. They have an insurance policy to eternal life. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 25

After enumerating the privileges of those who work on the plan of addition, constantly adding Christian attributes to the character, the apostle Peter declares that God will work on the plan of multiplication. "Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue; whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. ... Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fail. For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.” [¶ Peter 1:2-4, 10, 11.] Here is our life insurance policy. Shall we not work on God’s plan to secure it?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 26

Man is ever dear to the heart of God. The Creator of the world comes graciously near and still nearer to all those in every nation who receive Jesus as a personal Saviour.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 27

The Lord permitted the rich man and the poor man to live in this world as their home. But the rich man is described as looking upon himself as the owner of the capital entrusted to him. Though so greatly blessed, he did not return even the interest of his money to the Lord. He forgot, or did not care to remember, that he was responsible to God for all he possessed, because God had placed means in his hands to be expended aright. He thought he was superior to those who were poor. All his wants were anticipated. Physicians stood ready to hasten to his assistance to remove every disagreeable sensation caused by his own dissipation.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 28

He had all that money could procure, but he did not possess the riches that would have kept his account right with God. Much perfume was lavished upon his person, but the fragrance of a consecrated life was entirely lacking. The atmosphere surrounding his soul was a savor of death unto death. His love for pleasure and display kept him in a state of forgetfulness of God. Surrounded by companions who pleased and amused him, he lost sight of the fact that he had a soul to lose or save.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 29

At length there came a summons which he could not neglect. He is commanded by a power he cannot question or resist to quiet the premises of which he is no longer steward. The word goes forth, Cut down the unfruitful tree, that it may no longer cumber the ground. A wonderful change takes place. The once rich man is reduced to hopeless poverty, for the robe of Christ's righteousness, woven in the loom of heaven, can never cover him. He who once wore the richest purple, the finest linen, is reduced to nakedness. The day has come when these garments must be laid aside. His probation is ended. He did not make his calling and election sure, and he is bankrupt for eternity. He brought nothing into the world, and he can take nothing out of it. His poverty is irredeemable. 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 30

Christ lifted the curtain, and presented this picture before priests and rulers, scribes and Pharisees. Look at it, ye who are rich in this world's goods, and are not rich toward God. Will you not contemplate this scene? That which is highly esteemed among men is abhorrent in the sight of God. Christ asks, "What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" [Mark 8:36, 37.] 14LtMs, Ms 6, 1899, par. 31

Home-Training

NP

January 31, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 1NL 93-95. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Watch, pray, work. Watching, working, and waiting for the Lord; this is our proper position. We are to act as servants who strive faithfully to do the Master's will. I am particularly burdened in reference to home-training. The father is the houseband of the family. This is his position, and if he is a Christian, he will maintain right government in every respect. His authority is to be recognized, but in many families parental authority is never fully acknowledged. Various excuses are framed for the disobedience of children, and the life is a scene of endless variance between parents and children. Often the mother works to counteract the influence of the father, who, she thinks, is too severe, too exacting. 14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 1

If the father is a Christian, he represents the divine authority of God, whose vicegerent he is, and whose work it is to carry out the gracious designs of an infinite God in the establishment of upright principles and the foundation of pure, virtuous, well-balanced characters. But if the father and the mother are at variance with each other, the condition of things in the home is demoralizing. Neither the father nor the mother receive the respect and confidence essential to correct management. The mother leaves on the minds of the children the impression that she thinks the father too severe, for children are quick to see anything that casts the slightest reflection on rules or regulations, especially if they restrict them in carrying out their inclinations. 14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 2

I would that parents had sanctified intelligence, that they might see the necessity of working in unity. The husband, wife, and children are a firm. They should look upon themselves as God's agents, who are to work together intelligently, regarding the family as a divine institution. The parents are to instruct their children wisely and patiently, teaching them line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little. With faith and perseverance they are to educate, train, and discipline, requiring their children to be obedient, allowing no disrespect. Thus the seeds of reverence and respect for the heavenly Father are sown. The home should be a preparatory school, where children and youth may be fitted to do service for the Master, preparatory to joining the higher school in the kingdom of God. 14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 3

Parents need to remember that they occupy the place of God to their children. Just as you deal with your children, parents, so will God deal with you. Their lack of experience is to be supplied by wise precepts and a godly practice. This work is to begin in their early years, when the heart is tender and impressible, and is to be carried forward step by step. Every word, every action, of the parents is to be an object lesson of the right kind. They should not act impulsively, but as though realizing that God sees them, that the heavenly universe witnesses every act when dealing with each other and with their children. 14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 4

Children are the Lord's heritage, purchased by the blood of the only begotten Son of God. With intense interest heavenly intelligences watch to see how children are dealt with by their parents, guardians, and teachers. And what strange management they witness at times, when father and mother disagree and express their variance by words and actions. 14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 5

Sometimes the father casts reflections on the mother. He sternly disciplines the children, as if to disparage the mother's tenderness and love. Because of this, the mother thinks that she must bestow on them increased affection, and gratify and indulge their inclinations. Thus she seeks to counteract the father's impatience and severity; but O, how God is dishonored. The family is demoralized, and the children are confused in regard to true discipline and correct education. 14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 6

There is danger of too severely criticizing small things. Criticism that is too severe, rules that are too rigid, lead to the disregard of all regulations; and by and by children thus educated will show the same disrespect for the laws of Christ.14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 7

Parents must be converted before they can guide their children aright. They must become submissive to the requirements of God before they can expect their children to submit to them. Then their words and even their thoughts will be brought into captivity to Jesus Christ. Day by day they must learn from Jesus, catching His Spirit, that they may reveal the Christlikeness in their lives. In childhood and youth the powers of imitation are strong, and children should have the most perfect pattern set before them, that they may have unquestionable confidence in the wisdom of their parents.14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 8

Religion in the home—what will it not accomplish? It will do the very work that God designed should be done in every family. Children will be brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. They will be educated and trained, not to be society devotees, but members of the Lord's family. They will not be sacrificed to Molech. Parents will become willing subjects of Christ. Both the father and mother will consecrate themselves to the work of properly training the children given them. They will firmly decide to work in the love of God with the utmost tenderness and compassion to save the souls under their guidance. They will not allow themselves to be absorbed with the customs of the world. They will not give themselves up to parties, concerts, dances, to give feasts and attend feasts, because after this manner do the Gentiles.14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 9

Eternal vigilance must be manifested with regard to our children. With his manifold devices Satan begins to work with their tempers and their wills as soon as they are born. Their safety depends upon the wisdom and the vigilant care of the parents. They must strive in the love and fear of God to preoccupy the garden of the heart, sowing the good seeds of a right spirit, correct habits, and the love and fear of God.14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 10

Obedience to parental authority must be inculcated in babyhood, childhood, and youth. The will of the parents must be under the discipline of Christ. Molded and controlled by God's pure, Holy Spirit, they may establish unquestioned dominion over the children. But if the parents are severe and exacting in their discipline, they do a work which they themselves can never undo. By their arbitrary course of action, they stir up a sense of injustice.14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 11

Many parents have to meet in their children their own temper and disposition. But instead of ruling with wisdom and kindness, they are harsh and exacting. They do not make the religious life attractive, and the children say, "If this is religion, we want none of it." Enmity against the rules of God is created. The rebellious spirit which refuses to render obedience to parental authority is the last to yield to divine authority. Thus, by misrule, parents fix the eternal destiny of their children. By mismanagement they drive them to the enemy's ranks, to serve the prince of darkness rather than the Prince of light.14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 12

Such parents will have a fearful account to settle with God. In the great day of judgment, He will ask them, "What have you done with My heritage? Where are the children I entrusted to your care?" Then with terrible distinctness the parents will see that their neglect has not only proved the ruin of their children, but of themselves, and that the wrong traits of character they cherished have been transmitted from parent to child to the third and fourth generation. The seeds which have been sown have produced a harvest they will not care to garner. The course of action which confirmed the children in irreligious practices has reacted upon themselves, making their influence a curse instead of a blessing.14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 13

The family is a school where the father and mother, under the control of Christ, seek to educate their children for the Master. They should not try to evade the responsibilities of this work. They should not give their time to visiting, to the entertainment of visitors, neglecting their children to do this. If in the family school parents neglect to teach their children to be useful and helpful, Satan takes them and instructs them in his school. And those who learn in this school show who has been their instructor.14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 14

Parents lose much when they are only half converted. Of Abraham Christ said, "I know him, that he will command his household and his children after him, ... to keep the way of the Lord." [Genesis 18:19.] By the combined influence of love and authority Abraham was to rule his home. He was to walk before his household without hypocrisy or deception. He would do nothing to betray the truth. 14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 15

The rule for master and servant, parent and child, is obedience to the great standard of righteousness. But how few bring religion into the home life! Parents, what course are you pursuing? Are you acting on the theory that in things concerning the religious life your children shall be left free from restraint, that all you have to do is to counsel with them, and then leave them to do as they please? If so, you are neglecting your duty, neglecting the souls for whom God holds you responsible. 14LtMs, Ms 7, 1899, par. 16

Talk/A Talk Given by Sister White at the Opening of the Cooranbong School.

NP

February 1, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in OHC 19; 1MCP 190; 2MCP 806; 8MR 261.

There is a great responsibility resting upon those here today who have in the past been connected with this school. They have been given many precious opportunities. The Word of God has been opened before them day after day. They have had the privilege of listening to the message God sent them. They have had the opportunity of knowing what God requires from every human being. Therefore a great responsibility rests upon them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 1

We read in the Word, "We are laborers together with God." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] If you could only begin to feel one hundredth part of the burden I feel as I read these words, you would have no trouble in the school here. If you could only realize that you are probationers, that the God of heaven takes those who have been rebels against His government, and says, You may be laborers together with me, you would this day consecrate yourselves wholly to Him. You may be in living connection with Jesus Christ. You may be channels of light.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 2

Is it not wonderful that we can receive the rich current of grace from Deity, and work in harmony with Deity? What does Deity want with us, poor, weak, and feeble as we are? What can Deity do with us? Everything, if we are willing to surrender all. God loves every youth. He knows all about your trials. He knows that you will have to battle against the powers of darkness, who strive to gain control of the human mind. This school has been established in the order of God, that young men and young women may be partakers of the divine nature by linking up with Christ. The good that we may accomplish by thus uniting with our Saviour we never shall know till as overcomers we enter the city of God. 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 3

I used to think, when God called me in my very childhood to work for Him, What can I do? God says, Do my bidding. This is all that any of us need to do. I want to tell you what each of you, from the oldest to the youngest, can do for this school. You can co-operate with God, with your teachers, and with one another. Are you prepared to co-operate with those who carry a burden for the school? If so, you will not drift along from day to day just where your inclination leads you without an anxiety on your mind. You will not study how to please yourself. You will realize that you are responsible for the influence you exert. 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 4

At the very beginning of this term of school, it is your privilege to understand the meaning of the words, "We are laborers together with God." "Ye are God's husbandry." Think of it! He is seeking to work the mind, just as you work the land. He is trying to sow seed that will bear fruit to His glory. "Ye are God's building." [Verse 9.] But God does not build without any care for you. He says to each one of you, "Come unto me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." [Matthew 11:28-30.] Where do we find rest. In meekness and lowliness. In submitting to God as a dutiful child submits to his father. 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 5

Here are your teachers. Instead of complaining about them being too strict, come into line with them. Draw with Christ. Take His yoke upon you and learn of Him, for He is meek and lowly in heart. You will never need to complain of your teachers' strictness if you will keep faithful watch over yourselves, guarding jealously the citadel of the heart. Ever remember the words. "What, know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.] God longs to work in you, to will and to do of His good pleasure. Are you willing to submit to His working? The success of the school depends upon the consecration and sanctification of the students, upon the holy influence [that] under God they feel bound to exert. 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 6

We must put to the stretch every spiritual nerve and muscle if we would stand as Daniel stood. God spoke of Daniel as a man greatly beloved. Would we not rejoice if this could be said of us? Strive to be like Daniel, affable, kind, forbearing. Show great love for those who are seeking to help you to form right characters. Do all you can to help yourselves, that your intelligence may reach the highest point of excellence, as God wishes it to. He does not desire you to remain novices. He wants you to reach the very highest round of the ladder, and then step from it into the kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 7

God needs in His work everything that you can gain here in the lines of mental culture and keen discernment. The Lord desires you to understand the position you occupy as sons and daughters of the Most High, children of the heavenly King. He desires you to live in close connection with Him, so that your words may educate those around you. Cut away from everything frivolous. Do not think that you must indulge in this pleasure and that pleasure. Determine that you will be on the Lord's side from the beginning to the close of this term. If you will stand under the bloodstained banner of Prince Emmanuel, faithfully doing His service, you need never yield to temptation, for One stands by your side who is able to keep you from falling. Let the impression go from this place that the school here is just what the Lord would have it—a school carried on in a different manner and for holier objects than any school that has ever been established. 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 8

Do not feel as though you could not trust the Lord. You are here in the school family as part of the family firm. You are here to be trained and disciplined, here to use the powers you have to make the school a success. If you give yourself up to this work, you will have something to say when you write to your friends. You will be able to say, I am gaining and mental and physical power. I am gaining an experience I never had before. 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 9

But God cannot carry forward this work unless you give Him all the powers of heart and mind. Let your teachers understand that you are on their side. You are working for time and for eternity. The angels of God are watching the development of character in this school. God is weighing moral worth. He longs to see every mind used aright. He has given you the precious talent of reason, and He calls upon you to use it aright. He desires you to feel that you can acquire and will acquire greater and greater strength. 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 10

Take heed to yourselves, lest you lead others astray. If by your wrong course of action others are turned aside from the right way, this is recorded against you in the books of heaven. We have one great object before us—the salvation of our souls. Christ left the royal courts and come to this earth in human flesh, to show us that we may co-operate with Him to save our souls. After He has made this great sacrifice for us, should we deem any sacrifice too great to keep our passions, our inherited and cultivated tendencies to wrong, under control? 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 11

This is what we need. We desire that this work shall be accomplished in our school. We are praying for it. Do not make the burden too heavy for us. Pray for yourselves. Take a firm hold of the arm of divine power, determining as did Daniel not to swerve from any duty. Harness your habits. Put on the bit and bridle. Say, I love the Lord, and I am determined to use every particle of my intelligence in His work. 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 12

We are living amid the perils of the last days. We need to receive an education as missionaries. Let each one here make up his mind that he will not stand in the army of the enemy. We are working for eternity, and we expect to receive light and grace from the Lord. Strive to reach all that it is possible for you to reach with the blessing of God. When you have such a Helper, when angels of God are watching your every movement, when all heaven is interested in your welfare, will you not do all in your power for yourselves? 14LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 13

I feel an intense interest in you. Let us all, teachers and students, and I with you, draw in even cords. Let us be determined that this school shall not be regarded as a lie. We have said that it should be the best school ever established; let us make it so. You can do this if you will. God help us that we may overcome as Christ overcame, and sit with Him in His throne. May God help the teachers and give them wisdom. Dealing with human minds is the most delicate work that can be done, and teachers need to be inspired by the Spirit of God, that they may be able to do their work aright. Students, will you help them? Will you let your sympathies go out to your teachers? God grant it. May the Spirit of God rest upon this school, and may you [have] His blessing and approval every day, is my prayer.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 8, 1899, par. 14

God's Purpose for His People

NP

February 8, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in OHC 21.

The love expressed by God in giving Jesus for the salvation of the human family is a subject that few can comprehend. This sacrifice shows us the value placed by God upon the human soul. The low, cheap estimate our brethren place upon each other is painful to my soul. I tried this morning to present the great responsibility resting upon us. As those who are dealing in sacred things, we should make prayer a necessity, and should daily exercise faith and receive forgiveness of sins. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 1

The necessity of the Holy Spirit working in the heart should be realized by all. Unless this Spirit is accepted and cherished as the representative of Christ, whose work it is to renew and sanctify the entire being, the momentous truths which have been entrusted to us will lose their power on mind and character. Many today are in this position. They refuse to enter into right relation with God, as doers of His Word. They do not see the necessity for this. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 2

Every teacher of the Scriptures is to be a doer of the Word, which, if obeyed, will make man wise unto salvation. Those who claim to know and teach the truth, yet who do not live by every word that proceeds out of the mouth of God, cannot be laborers together with God. If they do not receive and follow the light, they walk away from the truth, and bring in the practices and opinions of self. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 3

O what a wonderful teacher Christ was! His lessons were uttered in the language of independent goodness, and if, by beholding, we become changed into His likeness, we shall see His face. He came to enlighten the world by His wisdom, by the shining of His righteousness. It is His desire to commit divine instruction to faithful stewards who will both teach and practice, who will live by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God. Holy purposes make the truth a power which will sanctify the receiver. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 4

Christ declares, "A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." [John 13:34, 35.] Again Christ declares, "As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love. If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love. These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 5

"This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. Ye are my friends, if ye do whatsoever I command you. Henceforth I call ye not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you. Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you, that you should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain: that whatsoever ye shall ask of the Father in my name, he may give it you. These things I command you, that ye love one another." [John 15:9-17.]14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 6

This love goes beyond the expression of the commandment, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." [Leviticus 19:18.] Here men are required to love one another as Christ has loved them. The disciples did not then comprehend the significance of these words. They knew not the high, unselfish character of heavenly love. But after Christ had, by His death on the cross, demonstrated His love for them, they understood His word. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 7

This heaven-born love is not selfish and changeable. It is not a love dependent on human praise. The heart of him who drinks the blood of the Son of God, overflows with a holy love for God and for those for whom Christ died. He does not love his fellow creatures because they love and please him, because they appreciate his merit and rightly estimate his value, but because they are Christ's purchased heritage. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 8

The want of genuine faith and love is the lack of the church today. Our Christian experience is imperfect because we do not love as Christ has loved us. If we are filled with admiration for self, if we measure others by ourselves, how can we understand the Scriptures? What comprehension can we have of that faith which works by love and purifies the soul? 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 9

What fullness is expressed in the words, "I am the light of the world." "I am the Bread of Life." "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life." "I am the Good Shepherd." "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." [John 8:12; 6:35; 14:16; 10:11, 10.] This life is what we must have, and we must have it more abundantly. God will breathe this life into every soul that dies to self and lives to Christ. But entire self-renunciation is required. Unless this takes place, we carry with us the evil that destroys our happiness. But when self is crucified, Christ lives in us, and the power of the Spirit attends our efforts. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 10

I wish we could be what God would have us—all light in the Lord. We need to reach a higher standard, but we can never do this until self is laid on the altar, until we let the Holy Spirit control us, molding and fashioning us according to the divine similitude. Truth must be taken into the life; then our words will testify that Christ's spirit is working through us. God lives and reigns in us, and we bear witness to the truth. Draw nigh to God. Learn from the Great Teacher. Surrender all to God. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 11

We must daily consecrate ourselves to God's service. We must come to God in faith. If we have accumulated suppositions and imaginary difficulties, which keep us from a perfect union with our brethren, let us at once begin to remove the obstacles. We need to humble ourselves before God. It is self that we have first to do with. Criticize the heart closely. Search it to see what hinders the free access of God's Spirit. We must receive the Holy Ghost. Then we shall have power to prevail with God. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 12

A mere assent to truth is not enough. Daily we must live the truth.

We must shut ourselves in with God, surrendering all to Him. To listen to the great and grand truths of the Word is not enough. We must ask ourselves the question, Does Christ dwell in my heart by faith? He alone can show us our necessity and reveal the dignity and glory of the truth. At the altar of self-sacrifice—the appointed place of meeting between God and the soul—we receive from the hand of God the celestial torch which searches the heart, revealing its great need of an abiding Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 9, 1899, par. 13

Words of Warning

NP

February 16, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in TDG 55 +<sup>Note</sup>One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

As the children of Israel, God's favored people, persisted in impenitent rebellion, notwithstanding the warnings and reproofs He had sent them, He challenged them to prepare to meet their God. By His appointed agents He had sent them message after message, which they had only despised and rejected, and now they must prepare to meet His retributive judgments. They would not prevail against Him; for "lo, he that formeth the mountains, and createth the wind, and declareth unto man what is his thought; that maketh the morning darkness, and treadeth down the high places of the earth, the God of hosts in his name." [Amos 4:13.] As an offended judge, the Lord would execute His judgments upon His impenitent people. If they would escape His vengeance, they must humble their hearts and confess their sins.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 1

This lesson is for us. The Lord has a people on the earth, but the precious wheat is mingled with tares. Both must grow together until the harvest. Mere professors of religion are found among true followers. These will be among the first who will feel the wrath of an offended God. While God is purifying to Himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works, Satan is binding up the tares in close connection with himself.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 2

The war instituted against principalities and powers, against spiritual wickedness in high places, cannot be avoided. A probation has been granted us by God to make our calling and election sure. We have been given time, precious time, to critically examine our own hearts, and compare our characters with the pattern given us to copy. We shall not be excusable if we meet the world's standard. The world cannot now understand the true follower of Jesus or judge his works, any more than it could understand Christ or judge His works. Spiritual things are spiritually discerned. The world knoweth us not because it knew Him not.14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par.

We are in no wise safe while professedly serving Christ and in reality serving the world. The condition of things marked out in prophecy exists, and is endangering the purity of our faith. There are multitudes who are called Christians who know not Christ by an experimental knowledge. They do not walk in his statutes. They do not desire knowledge from the Most High. Their hearts go after their idols, worldly gain, worldly honor, sensual pleasure. These objects are eagerly pursued. Hardness of heart, impenitence, depravity, enmity, exist among a large number who profess to be Christ's followers. These by their unsanctified spirit are working the works of unrighteousness. This is the reason that God does not reveal Himself in power. Self is served and worshiped. The passions of the human heart are petted and excused.14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 4

Those who do not the works of Christ hate self-denial and piety. By their course of action they will influence and deceive souls who, if not deceived by these agents of Satan, would walk in obedience to the plainly-specified command, "He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me. So shall he be my disciple." [See Luke 9:23.] The souls of those led from the simplicity of the gospel, from the self-denying life of a Christian, will be required at their hands. Our conduct, our sentiments, must be conformed to the divine standard, and constantly we must pray for heavenly illumination and sanctified judgment, that we shall not err from God's precepts. Every church needs to bring forth fruit meet for repentance.14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 5

God makes His presence and will known to His people through appointed ministers who are walking in the light. He has channels through which He can communicate light. "Surely the Lord will do nothing but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." [Amos 3:7.] God does reveal His secret purposes to His chosen agents, whose duty it is to declare the same to His people, that they may take warning and turn from a course which will surely bring the wrath of God upon them. He sends reproofs and warnings that they may turn to Him, that His wrath may be turned away, and His approval rest on them. But often the perversity and stubbornness of the human heart leads men to refuse the light because it does not harmonize with their ideas. They know that if they receive the light, they would have to repent and be converted. They justify their own deceptions, and do not correct their ways.14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 6

How many who seemed to run well for a time have been led into connection with the world, and as a result have separated from God? As those who are inclined to worldliness indulge their selfish inclinations, they go farther and farther from the light. They do not love the light reflected upon them through Christ's appointed agencies. They hate both the message and the messenger. The most strenuous efforts will be made by this class to pervert the understanding of Christ's ministers, that the voice which God would use to reprove their course of evil may be intimidated and silenced. Thus they add sin to sin. They engage in Satan's work, and maintain an obstinacy that resembles the fruit borne on a corrupt tree.14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 7

Some churches are much affected by this influence. It is like the leaven which leavened the whole lump. The Lord cannot much longer endure these workers of iniquity. He will expose them, because they disgrace the religion of Christ. Our God is a jealous God. He will not always bear with the perversity of men. He has committed to His Israel the most sacred truth ever committed to mortals. He has made His people the repositories of His holy law, that the light of His truth may shine forth to those who are living in the darkness of the errors of this evil time when iniquity abounds.14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 8

God has blessed His people with light and privileges, as no other people have been blessed. If their works and influence correspond with their profession, they will be trees of righteousness, bearing fruit to the glory of God. But because God has shown them favor by committing to them His oracles, He will in no wise excuse in them disrespect and disregard of His requirements. If found in sin, this highly favored people will be punished [with] as much greater severity than the common sinner as their advantages and opportunities have been greater. God will never connive at wickedness in any shape. Much less will He spare those in responsible places who have used common fire in place of the sacred. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 9

None can connect with God and work in harmony with Him, have friendship with Him, while working contrary to His plainly -expressed will. He declares, "Them that honor me I will honor." [1 Samuel 2:30.] Those who will not listen to the words of instruction given them by His appointed agents, whose hearts rise up against His counsels, who vindicate and justify their own course of action, show by their fruits that they are not doers of the words of Christ or lovers of the law of God, but lovers of themselves. They are proud, boastful, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 10

Indulgence in any wrong course blinds the understanding and hardens the heart against justice and mercy. How truly has this been revealed by the arbitrary exaction manifested, the desire to domineer and lord it over God's heritage. The Lord addresses such in words of irony, fitted to them in their present state: "Come to Bethel, and transgress; at Gilgal multiply transgression; and bring your sacrifices every morning, and your tithes after three years; and offer a sacrifice of thanksgiving with leaven, and proclaim and publish the free offering: for this liketh you, O ye children of Israel, saith the Lord God." [Amos 4:4, 5.] "Serve ye every one his idols, and hereafter also, if ye will not harken unto me: but pollute ye my holy name no more with your gifts, and with your idols." [Ezekiel 20:39.]14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 11

The people so mercifully granted every temporal and spiritual advantage have not responded to God's tokens of mercy and love. The Lord is indignant with them, and rebukes them sharply for neglecting to heed His warnings. He gives them to understand that He cannot manifest Himself to them, but will be obliged to give them up to strong delusions, as a just punishment for their abuse of His means of grace, so long offered and rejected. Their offering sacrifice to [Him] and then to their idols was an affront to His name. In His abhorrence of their course of action, He bids them follow their beloved idols, and bear the consequence of their perversity. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 12

Those thus addressed were not heathen, but the professed people of God, who condemned the worship of idols made of wood and stone, yet by following their own devices and walking in their own ways they were daily committing idolatry. They were exalting self and dishonoring the God of heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 13

No form of worship, no religious service, can supply the want of reconciliation with God. The regenerating grace of Christ is necessary in order for men and women to abide in Christ, and work the works of Christ. "Can two walk together except they be agreed?" [Amos 3:3.] The Lord has a controversy with His people in these last days, who please self, and serve the world, the flesh, and the devil. Their influence endangers the church of Christ, yet those who bear testimony against them are derided, and their words despised. But God will work through His ministers as He worked through Moses. He will ratify in heaven their judgments and decisions, and at the last great day will produce these decisions. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 14

Men who are determined to do as they please will despise and reject the counsels of God against their own souls. God will give them up to their own lusts and idols. He will receive none of their service, but will pronounce sentence against them as against the barren fig tree, saying, "Let no fruit grow on thee henceforth and forever." [Matthew 21:19.] Their condemnation will be irrevocable, although they may bear the name of Christian and go through a form of service. None but God may know their true state, but he searcheth all things. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 15

No rank or office in the church or in society can place men where the truth will not reach them if they neglect their duty and abuse their opportunities. Those who lead people to exalt self place Christ in the background. They do not fear the threatenings of God or seek His favor. They hate the light; they despise the faithful preachers of righteousness, who speak evil and not good of them, and who rebuke them for their sins as openly as these sins were committed. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 16

The Lord reads the motives of every heart. He will incline His ear to hear the prayer of the contrite heart, but those who would silence God's true messengers, that they may no more be annoyed by their reproofs, He will permit to go on in the way of their own choosing. He will take from them the privilege of having their errors pointed out. No prophecy will awaken them from their carnal security. No warnings will put them to shame or lead them to repentance. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 17

“Now go, write it before them in a table, and note it in a book, that it may be for the time to come for ever and ever: that this is a rebellious people, lying children, children that will not hear the law of the Lord: which say to the seers, See not; and to the prophets, Prophecy not unto us right things, speak unto us smooth things, prophesy deceits: get you out of the way, turn aside out of the path, cause the Holy One of Israel to cease from before us.” [isaiah 30:8-11.]14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 18

God saw that the spirit of rebellion manifested by ancient Israel would increase in after ages; therefore He directed that His warnings be written in a book, as a testimony against them forever. The professed people of God have used their influence [against what] God sent through His chosen agencies. Men who have linked with the world in spirit and practice have endeavored to turn the people from truth and righteousness. The messages which God has sent, reproofing their backslidings, and warning them of their false security, they have despised. [They] would use any device to cause this admonitory voice to be hushed and words to be spoken which would foster their pride, encourage their presumption, and sooth the conscience into a false peace. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 19

Their effort is to turn the true messenger of God from the path of duty, and silence the voice of warning, while they, professing godliness, shall mingle with the world in spirit and practice, and at the same time be honored as Christian leaders. But to keep the fear and honor and judgment of God before them fills them with hatred. They do not want to bear His holy character, His hatred for sin, for they practice dishonesty. They cry, "Prophecy smooth things, talk of the love of Jesus. Do not keep before us the justice of God." A "Thus saith the Lord" gives great displeasure to their proud, worldly, reprobate minds. They despise the words the Lord sends them, and are resolved to pursue the way which seems right to them, to trust in oppression, deceit, and perversity. Therefore their iniquity shall be to them "as a breach ready to fall, swelling out in a high wall, whose breaking cometh suddenly at an instant." [Verse 13.] 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 20

Hypocrisy is peculiarly offensive to God. A large majority of the men and women who profess to know the truth prefer smooth messages. They do not desire to have their sins and defects brought before them. They want accommodating ministers, who will not arouse conviction by speaking the truth. They choose men who will flatter them, and in their turn they flatter the minister who has shown such a good spirit, while they revile the faithful servant of God. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 21

Great efforts are made in this age to induce ministers to leave the straightforward path of truth and holiness, in order to sustain a wrong course of action. Many praise the minister who dwells on the grace and mercy and love of Jesus, who is not particular to enforce duties and obligations, who does not warn of the danger of hypocrisy, or present the terrors of God's wrath. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 22

The Lord's work is earnest and decided, above deceit and hypocrisy. His true shepherds will not praise and exalt man. They will come before the people with a plain "Thus saith the Lord, the Holy One of Israel." [isaiah 45:11.] They will bear His message, whether men will hear or whether they will forbear. If men despise God's Word, and trust in oppression, hypocrisy, and worldliness, they must declare against them God's denunciations, so that if possible they may be aroused to repentance. If they are too proud to repent and confess their errors, to turn to God, welcoming His salvation and seeking His favor, the Lord will remove His light from them, and will leave them to walk in the way they have chosen. 14LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 23

Those who drive the Lord's faithful messengers into corners, who discourage them, who stand between them and the people, that their message may not have the influence God designed it should, are answerable for the deceptions and heresies that come into the church as a result of their course. They have a fearful account to render to God. After the Lord has repeatedly warned His people, and they still refuse to hearken to His voice, and will not be instructed, their guilt becomes peculiarly abhorrent to Him. The record of their rebellion is written in a book before Him, and will confront them when the judgment shall sit and the books shall be opened.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 10, 1899, par. 24

The Work at Newcastle

NP

February 21, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in Ev 501, 529; VSS 302. See RH 04/24/1900, 05/01/1900. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Sunday afternoon, February 5, I spoke to a good congregation in the new meeting tent in Newcastle. The Lord enabled me to speak for three quarters of an hour. I crowded in all I could say in that time, and I longed to say more. The people sitting before me were intelligent and attentive, and how my heart yearned that they might be brought into living connection with Jesus Christ. I knew that the heavenly universe was looking with intense interest upon the people who filled the tent. These souls are Christ's property, a part of the great whole. They have been bought with a price, even the precious blood of the Son of God. The whole heavenly host was interested in that audience. And while I stood before them in my feebleness, scarcely able to stand upon my feet, I thought of what I could say that would be a blessing to them. God alone could impress their hearts. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 1

I spoke from the first chapter of Second Peter. "Simon Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained like precious faith with us through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ." [Verse 1.] If all could appreciate this great blessing, what an advantage it would be to them. We can obtain like precious faith with Peter and those who were his companions through only one source—the righteousness of Jesus Christ, who stood at the head of humanity as a sin-bearer, overcoming in our behalf, that we might overcome in His strength. "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." [John 1:12.] 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 2

Man is given the privilege of being a laborer together with God in the saving of his own soul. He is to receive Christ as his personal Saviour, and is to continue to believe in Him. Receiving and believing is our part of the contract. This means abiding in Christ. Have faith in Him at all times and under all circumstances. This faith is a constant representation of Christ's character, for it is a faith that works by love and purifies the soul from all defilement. Christ is the Author of this faith, and He demands that it be constantly exercised. Thus we receive a constant supply of grace. "Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of Christ and of Jesus our Lord." [2 Peter 1:2.] 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 3

To be effectually saved, the truth of the Word must be inwrought in the soul. It is a power which works inwardly to bless the soul of the receiver and outwardly to prove a blessing to the souls of others. Take the Word just as it reads and be a doer of it. The Holy Spirit works with the consecrated soul who searches the Scriptures. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 4

Now, just now, is our great opportunity to study the Word of life. The hearts of many in the world, as well as many church members, are hungering for the bread of life and thirsting for the waters of salvation. They are interested in the service of song, but they are not longing for that or even prayer. They want to know the Scriptures, what saith the Word of God to me. The Holy Spirit is working on mind and heart, drawing them to the bread of life. They see everything round them changing. Human feelings, human ideas of what constitutes religion, change. They come to hear the Word just as it reads. They desire to build upon a firm foundation; therefore Christians are counselled to be always ready to give a reason of the hope that is in them with meekness and fear. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 5

Each individual must obtain an experience for himself. No one can depend for salvation on the experience or practice of any other man. We must each become acquainted with Christ ourselves in order to properly represent Him to our world. "According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue." [Verse 3.] None of us need excuse our hasty temper, our misshapen characters, our selfishness, envy, jealousy, or any impurity of soul, body, or spirit. God has called us to glory and virtue. We are to obey the call. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 6

“Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these we might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.” [Verse 4.] Without divine aid we could not possibly escape the temptation and snares that Satan has prepared to deceive and allure human minds by falsehoods and misrepresentations, so that he may make error appear as truth. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 7

How shall we escape the power of one who was once an exalted angel in the heavenly courts, next to Christ? He had the blessing of powerful intellect. He was a being full of beauty, and personal charm. These were given him by God. Because of his exalted holiness, he thought himself equal with God. By his deception, he led astray some of the heavenly angels, and with these, his sympathizers, he was cast out of heaven. Then he set up a kingdom of his own, to allure the world to his own apostate banner. How can we resist his pretensions, and discern his false theory, which have captivated the world. It is only through the individual experience gained through receiving a knowledge of Jesus Christ our Lord. “As thou hast given him power over all flesh that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.” [John 17:2, 3.] 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 8

We must learn of Christ. We must learn what He is to those He has ransomed. We must realize that it is our privilege through a belief on Christ to be partakers of the divine nature, and so escape the corruption that is in the world through lust. We <may> escape from all sin, all defects of character. <Christ> is the Sin-bearer, and John pointed the people to Him, saying, “Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.” [John 1:29.] We need not retain one sinful propensity. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 9

“And you hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins; wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience: among whom also we all had our conversation in times past in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind; and were by nature the children of wrath, even as others. But God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by grace ye are saved;) and hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus: that in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus. For by grace are ye saved through faith: and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God.” [Ephesians 2:1-8.]14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 10

Christ says to us, “Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly of heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light.” [Matthew 11:28-30.] We are ever to learn of Christ. Yoked up with Him in perfect restraint, we are to stay in the learner’s position our whole life long, and then we are indeed “laborers together with God.” [1 Corinthians 3:9.] We can be profitable teachers only as we daily learn Christ’s meekness and lowliness of heart. There is to be no halting in Christ’s school, no dwarfed experience. We are to receive that we may give. Constantly we are to learn more and more of the divine attributes.14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 11

As we partake of the divine nature, hereditary and cultivated tendencies to wrong are cut away from the character, and we are made a living power for good. Ever learning of the divine Teacher, and daily partaking of the divine nature, we co-operate with God in overcoming Satan’s temptations. God works and man works, that the sacred union may exist, that man may be one with Christ as Christ is one with God. Then we sit together with Christ in heavenly places. The mind may rest in peace and assurance in Jesus Christ.14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 12

Why then, we may ask, do we not have more of the Holy Spirit? Because we do not abide in Christ, eating His flesh and drinking His blood. All who eat the heavenly bread will have eternal life. “He that saith he abideth in him ought himself also so to walk even as he walked.” [1 John 2:6.] God has given us every facility, every grace. He has provided the very riches of heaven’s treasure, and it is our privilege to draw continually from the capital. But we do not avail ourselves of this privilege. The apostle exhorts us, “And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue (which will demonstrate the purity and holiness of your character) and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance, patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity.” [2 Peter 1:5-7.]14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 13

Temperance is placed before patience. Can any one make a favorable impression upon an intemperate man? Satan spread a net for his feet, tempting him to take the liquid poison, and he sold his reason. Tobacco and liquor are both poison. Liquor is so drugged that by drinking it a man is made mad. He knows no more what he is doing than an insane man. How many cases are tried in court where theft, incendiarism, murder, were committed under the influence of liquor?14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 14

“If these things be in you and abound,” the apostle continues, “they make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.” [Verse 8.] But a profession of faith without corresponding works is nothing. “He that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins.” [Verse 9.] This is a true description of a professed Christian who lives his old life of sin. He grieves the Lord Jesus, and puts Him to open shame because he manifests a character after the similitude of Satan. He retains the same objectionable traits of character that he had before he claimed to receive Christ. By indulging his corrupt tendencies he forgot to be a doer of the Word. He did not eat the flesh or drink the blood of the Son of God. He did not practice Christ’s words or do His works.14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 15

Then comes the conclusion, “Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.” This is the life insurance policy that every one may have. The apostle says, “I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth. Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle to stir you up by putting you in remembrance.” [Verses 10-13.] 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 16

A clear, faithful testimony must be borne by every shepherd of the flock of God. The state of the heart is to be our first earnest concern. “With the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation.” [Romans 10:10.] But mere speech is nothing. Preaching the Word, and then working contrary to the Word, makes that Word of none effect. Lip knowledge, forms and ceremonies, are of little value while Christ is not abiding in the soul. We are to watch for souls as they that must give an account. We must sanctify the Lord God in our hearts. Then we shall be men and women of faith, prayer, and power. There is a great work to be done. The heart must be faithfully sentineled, else pride and rebellion will bear rule within. Evils without will awaken evils within, and the soul will wander in its own homemade fog, all the time charging upon some one else the result of its own unchristian course of action. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 17

The Word of God must dwell in us richly, else we can never sanctify the Lord God in our hearts. We must live by the Word of God, and take self in hand, closely examining ourselves to see if we are in the love of God or bound up in our own conceit; for every heart that is not subdued by grace is treacherous, and will lead to ruin. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 18

The price of heaven is Christ. The way to heaven is obedience to the command, Deny thyself, take up thy cross, and follow me. “Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of God, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you.” “He that cometh unto me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst.” [John 6:53, 35.] In Christ there is inexhaustible fulness. As we follow on to know the Lord, we shall lead souls to the Word of God. With us they will know that his going forth is prepared as the morning. As man works on the plan of addition, adding grace to grace, God works on the plan of multiplication. “Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue." [2 Peter 1:2, 3.] The mass of rubbish of vanity and self-love, of evil-thinking and evil-speaking, that we carry with us keeps us powerless and inefficient. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 19

With self cherished, self petted, self exalted, we cannot work out our own salvation in harmony with the character of Christ. The service of Christ demands prompt obedience. We are to walk as He walked, learning His meekness, His loveliness, following in His footsteps. How can two walk together except they be agreed? The service of Christ is pure and elevated. The path He travelled was not one of self-pleasing, of self-gratification. He speaks to His disciples, saying, "He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me. So shall he be my disciple." [See Mark 8:34.] The way [that] Jesus journeyed, we must journey, for that path leads to where Jesus is preparing mansions for us. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 20

O, what privileges are ours if we will only believe and walk humbly before God, ever learning the will of God concerning us. The graces of the Spirit are love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness. This is the fruit that a life hid in Christ will produce. As a people who have had great light, we should be far advanced in spirituality and holiness. "Neither pray I for these alone," Christ said, "but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me." [John 17:20-23.] 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 21

It is our privilege to so fully partake of the divine nature that we may be one with Christ as He is one with the Father. When this is so, Christ can confess His people before His Father and before the heavenly angels. By our love and unity we show to the world the credentials that God sent His Son to this earth to save the human race. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 22

We have need of all the spiritual help possible, that we may do the work to be done in our world. We are to work the works of Christ. He prayed for His disciples and for us, "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth. As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world." [Verses 17, 18.] Satan is taking the world captive through the use of liquor and tobacco, tea and coffee. The God-given mind, which should be kept clear, is perverted by the use of narcotics. The brain is no longer able to distinguish correctly. The enemy has control. Man has sold his reason for that which makes him mad. He has no sense of what is right. Yet the liquor curse is legalized, and works untold ruin in the hands of those who love to tamper with that which not only ruins the poor victim but his whole family. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 23

The curse of liquor-drinking is demonstrated by the awful murders that take place. Intemperance is widespread. How much man's senses are perverted by intoxicating drugs it is impossible to say. Judges, senators, lawyers, who frame the laws of the land, are many of them working under the stimulus of liquor. What safety is there in their management, their judgment? Are the men who command the great ocean steamers, who have the management of railways, strict temperance men? Is their brain free from the influence of intoxicants. If not, the accidents that occur under their management will be charged to them by the God of heaven, whose property men are. No confidence can be placed in the judgment of liquor drinkers. Satan presents before them false scenes, false ideas of things. The liquor drinker is under the destroying influence of Satan. 14LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 24

As the time draws near that will decide the destiny of every soul, Satan will make strenuous efforts to corrupt the souls of the human family. But Christ gave His life to save human beings. He pledged His divine word that He might work in behalf of humanity. He encircled the race with His long human arm, while with His divine arm He laid hold of the throne of the infinite God. He was commander of the heavenly hosts, but He left the royal courts. He stepped down from His exalted throne, laid off His kingly crown and royal robe, that He might stand at the head of humanity and pay the

Yes; Christ gave His life for the life of the world. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.] He sent His Son to be the propitiation for the sins of the world. How many appreciate the sacrifice sufficiently to touch not, taste not, handle not, accursed, intoxicating beverages? Who is co-operating with Christ by using all their power to practice self-abstinence in their lives, to keep their tables free from all drinks that will intoxicate?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 26

The Lord calls for men who are partakers of His divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. God would have every man step forth in His God-given manhood and every woman in her God-given womanhood. He would have them stand like faithful sentinels to keep back the tide of moral woe, to break the fetters that are binding human beings in chains of slavery. God calls for His ministers to do faithful work in presenting the great curse that man himself is manufacturing. In every pulpit the voice should be heard, "Abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul." [1 Peter 2:11.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 11, 1899, par. 27

The Need of a Knowledge of God's Word

NP

February 22, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 3SM 21. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

We need to search the Scriptures diligently, that we may understand every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. From the pillar of cloud Christ gave directions as to how man should regard God and also one another. The children of Israel were enjoined to treat with love and compassion their own brethren and the stranger sojourning with them. It is essential that we understand and practice the principles given by the great Teacher to His servant Moses. 14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 1

The Word of God is to be the great lesson book in all our schools. From Genesis to Revelation it is full of instruction in practical godliness. 14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 2

“These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee: as thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory that I had with thee before the world was.” [John 17:1-5.] 14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 3

The prayer of Christ to His Father, contained in the 17th chapter of John, is to be our church creed. It shows us that our difference and disunion are dishonoring to God. Read the whole chapter, verse by verse. “I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world; thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word. Now they know that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee. For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me; and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.” [Verses 6-8.]14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 4

Let us see that we observe the conditions that God has laid down, by observing the unity that should exist among brethren. When Christ abides in the heart, unity is seen. Divine love flows from the heart in a strong current. The privileges and opportunities given to every soul are appreciated.14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 5

“Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they may all be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us, that the world may believe that the thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one.” [Verses 20-22.]14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 6

If we have the mind and love of Christ in our hearts, it will be revealed by our treatment of one another. Our unity tells in powerful manner that we are children of God. It has an irresistible influence upon the world, showing that man in his humanity may be a partaker of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 7

Those who believe in Christ work out His character and act upon the principles given in the Old and New Testaments. “They are not of the world,” Christ said, “even as I am not of the world. Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth.” [Verses 16, 17.]14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 8

The Word of God is to be studied, eaten. Thus we eat the flesh and drink the blood of the Son of God. This is Bible religion. Without this we cannot manifest godliness to the world.14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 9

“And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me.” [Verses 22, 23.] This is the most wonderful promise that ever came from the lips of Christ. Why do we not show that we understand these words?14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 10

“Father, I will that they also, whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou hast given me, for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world.” [Verse 24.] We are plainly shown that by receiving Christ a change takes place, and we reveal to the world that [God] has truly sent His Son into the world.14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 11

“In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God ... In him was life; and the life was the light of men ... He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not.” [John 1:1, 4, 10.] How many who claim to be Christians are Christians in thought? How many have an abiding Christ? How many reveal to the world the glory that Christ declares He gave His people? Who among those who have been given great light reveal that light to the world in clear, distinct rays by their unity and love for one another?14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 12

All true Christians will carry out Christ’s principles. They will represent Him by their compassionate tenderness for each other. We read, “As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name. ... And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth. ... And of his fullness have all we received, grace for grace.” [Verses 12, 14, 16.]14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 13

As we receive the precious gift of grace we are to impart the same to others. Thus we show that we are in partnership with Christ. God and man work in perfect harmony. When man receives the grace of Christ he cannot keep that grace from flowing forth in words and deeds to his fellow men.14LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 14

Why do we not eat the bread of life? Why do we not drink the blood of the Son of God, that His life may be revealed in our lives, and that the world may see the wonderful privileges that are ours? If we are one with Christ, we receive power to show the world that God loves human beings as He loves His only begotten Son.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 15

Shall Christ be always disappointed in His people? Will they always refuse to comply with the conditions He has laid down? Shall we not change this feature of this experience, and believe that God will work with power if, as professed Christians, we do not hinder Him by disregarding His requirements? What could not God do if we would place ourselves in right relation to Him and to each other!<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 16

“The anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you, but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it has taught you, ye shall abide in him. ... When he shall appear, we may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at His coming. If we know that he is righteous, we know that every one that doeth righteousness is born of him.” [1 John 2:27-29.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 17

“Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin; for his seed remaineth in him, and he cannot sin, because he is born of God. ... For this is the message which ye heard from the beginning, that we should love one another, not as Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother’s righteous. ... We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death.” [1 John 3:9, 11, 12, 14.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 18

Shall we not be doers of the Word? Shall we not work in partnership with Christ? “By one offering he has perfected forever them that are sanctified. Whereof the Holy Ghost also is a witness to us: for after that he had said before, This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them; and their sins and iniquities will I remember no more.” [Hebrews 10:14-17.] God desires us to have all He has provided for us at such an immense cost. The reason why the great and grand truths which have been presented to us do not accomplish more is because we do not live these truths, and therefore they are powerless to influence us. We need a deeper appreciation of truth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 12, 1899, par. 19

Christian Perfection

NP

November 20, 1898 [typed February 23, 1899]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 5BC 1110; CTr 52. See ST 10/25/1899. +Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The parable of the wedding garment opens before us a lesson of the highest consequence. It presents the marriage of humanity with divinity, and shows the standard of character each must reach to be accounted a fit guest at the wedding. This parable is to be studied carefully, and the full import of its meaning gathered. 14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 1

Many are guilty of presumption in matters where their eternal interests are involved, which will result in the loss of their souls. All do not agree with the standard God has given. Many measure character according to their own ideas. As I consider this, I am afraid, not that God will fail to fulfil every specification of His promise, but that He will be hindered by our continuing in sin. A firm stand must be taken by all who decide for Christ. There must be a surrendering to God of that which is already His own. Unless we accept the righteousness of Christ, as defined in the sixth chapter of John, we have not on the wedding garment. 14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 2

As Christ was about to leave His disciples, He illustrated by the symbol of the vine and the branches the relation which should exist between Him and His disciples. "Every branch in me," He said, "that beareth fruit, he purgeth (pruneth) it, that it may bring forth more fruit. ... Abide in me and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine, no more can ye except ye abide in me. I am the vine, ye are the branches. He that abideth in me and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing. If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned. If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.” [John 15:2, 4-7.]14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 3

What fulness is expressed in these words! Why does not every soul understand their significance? We read them, but how little of their depth and breadth do we comprehend. This morning, November 20, 1898, I awaken with a great longing of soul that I and the people of God may comprehend this lesson, given to the disciples by their beloved Teacher to be given to the world. Certainly there is nothing hidden, nothing clothed in mystery, in these words. I have an intense longing that none who claim to believe in Christ shall work on the enemy’s side. Those who abide in Christ will reveal Him to the world. Thus only can they bear fruit to God’s glory.14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 4

Unbelief greatly dishonors God. We need to take in the real meaning of Christ’s words. We may read them over and over again, and yet miss their true significance. In this way we lose the blessing of the promises there given. Do not be satisfied to follow Christ a great way off. Many today are doing this. They think that they are trusting in the Saviour, but their faith resembles that of the multitude, who touched Him with only a casual touch.14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 5

In answer to an earnest invitation, Christ was on His way to exercise His divine skill as a compassionate physician. As He went, the multitude pressed as closely to Him as possible, anxious to get near the center of attraction. There was a woman in the throng who had long been troubled with a painful malady. For twelve years she had suffered. She had spent all she had on physicians, and was nothing bettered, but rather grew worse. She was told of Christ’s power, but she did not think herself worthy of His notice. She thought, “If I may but touch the hem of his garment, I shall be made whole.” [Matthew 9:20, 21.] She watched her opportunity, and knowing her heart’s desire, Christ in His infinite love moved in her direction. In faith she put forth her hand, and touching the hem of His garment, was instantly made whole. Her faith was not in the garment, but in the virtue which the garment covered.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 6

Happiness now filled the woman's soul, and she was seeking to escape from the crowd and go quietly on her way when Christ's voice, plain and distinct, was heard saying, "Who touched me?" As he looked round to see who had touched him, Peter and the other disciples said, "Master, the multitude throng and press thee, and sayest thou, Who touched me?" It seemed a strange question to ask, but Christ desired to teach a lesson which would sound down through the ages to our time, and He said, "Somebody hath touched me; for I perceive that virtue is gone out of me. And when the woman saw that she was not hid, she came trembling, and falling down before him, she declared unto him before all the people, for what cause she had touched him, and how she was healed immediately." "Daughter," Christ said, "be of good cheer; thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace." [Luke 8:45-48.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 7

We need to understand this lesson, for it has a deeper meaning than many realize. It is possible to be in Christ's presence, and even to press close to Him, and yet receive no blessing, because we touch Him only with the casual touch of the multitude. There are hundreds and thousands who think they have faith in Christ, but they do not touch Him with the faith manifested by the suffering woman.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 8

Why do we not show more faith? We do not know what blessings we are losing because of unbelief. To exercise faith it is not necessary that we become worked up into an ecstasy of feeling; this is not at all essential. Exercising faith means taking God at His word, believing in His power to save to the uttermost all who come to Him, relying upon His Word because He is behind the promise and can do all things. If we come to Him in living faith, we shall receive of His fulness. "If ye ask anything in my name," He says, "I will do it." Then comes the condition: "If ye love me, keep my commandments." [John 14:14, 15.] Our obedience makes us witnesses for God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 9

What a Friend we have at court. After His resurrection Christ spoke to His disciples, saying, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." [Matthew 28:18.] These words were spoken to all who will receive them as a living assurance. Do we not often forget this promise, and limit the Holy One of Israel? God cannot honor indifference, neither can He honor unbelief. Hear His words: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things, (not a few injunctions) whatsoever I have commanded you, and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world." [Verses 19, 20.]14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 10

This promise is as surely given to the people in 1898 as it was to those in whose hearing Christ spoke. Why need any one be mystified? Why do human beings so often go to human beings with inquiries regarding their trials and temptations and their desire to please God? Where is their faith? Is it centered in human instrumentalities, or in the One who so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life? "God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved. He that believeth in him is not condemned." Shall we not remember this statement? Many are wearing continually the yoke of condemnation, because they do not take the Word of God as Yea and Amen in Christ Jesus. "He that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God." [John 3:17, 18.] He may have a casual faith in Christ as the Son of God, but that is of no avail.14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 11

"What think ye of Christ?" [Matthew 22:42.] What is He to you personally? Is your faith centered in Him as your Redeemer? Do you believe that He saves you from sin, that He imputes to you His righteousness?14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 12

"This is the condemnation that light is come into the world, and men loved darkness rather than light." [John 3:19.] They will not come to the light, for fear that their deeds will be reproved. This is the position taken by many. Their names are in the church books. They observe a round of ceremonies, but they do not love the truth. They have been satisfied to stand at the door. They do not press their way into Christ's presence, to share with Him the glory of His royal life. Their characters are not brought into harmony with the truth. They have not the faith that works by love and purifies the soul. Evil-speaking, evil-surmising, dishonest actions, cast a dark shadow athwart their pathway. Their faith sinks into this shadow of shame, and they feel that they are separated from Christ. There is a sting in the conscience, a condemnation in the life. They feel a desire to hide away from God. Light has come into the world, but they love darkness rather than light, because their deeds are evil. 14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 13

Is not this the reason [for] our dwarfed spirituality? Is not this the reason why we have so little faith? We live under a sense of condemnation. The time has come when it is for our eternal interest to believe in Christ. "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." [1 John 1:9.] He is the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. He says, "I will write my law in their hearts." [Jeremiah 31:33.] He will create in those who come to him in faith a divine principle of holiness, which shall rule in the soul, enlightening the understanding and captivating the affections. 14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 14

Full and free the invitation comes to us, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." [Matthew 11:28-30.] What an invitation! It was this invitation that He gave to Enoch before the world was destroyed by the flood. That time was no more favorable to the development of Christlike character than is the present time, yet we read that Enoch walked with God. Christ was as verily Enoch's Saviour as He is our Saviour, and in His power, notwithstanding the corruption of that degenerate age, Enoch perfected a Christian character. 14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 15

The voice saying to us, "He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness" [John 8:12], said the same words to Enoch, assuring him that if he followed the Saviour, he would not walk in the darkness of ignorance. 14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 16

The Lord instructed Enoch, and made him His watchman. He was a faithful witness for God. He warned the inhabitants of the old world not to follow the example of the Cain-worshippers, but to serve the living God. "Enoch also the seventh from Adam prophesied of these, saying, Behold, the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints, to execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard speeches, which ungodly sinners have spoken against him." [Jude 14, 15.]14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 17

It is our privilege to walk as did Enoch. Christ has assured us that those who walk in His steps are His disciples, His true representatives. He says, "I am the light of the world. He that followeth me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." [John 8:12.] Is not this sufficient assurance? Should not these words fill us with holy peace and joy?14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 18

"Herein is my Father glorified," Christ declares, "that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples. As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you, continue ye in my love. If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love. These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full." [John 15:8-11.] The greatest sin we can cherish is the sin of unbelief. Many say, "I do not know how to be a Bible Christian." It is because you do not receive Christ a sin-pardoning Saviour. Therefore your experience is full of inconsistency and unbelief. No one can have joy and peace who does not receive and obey Christ's words.14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 19

We need the riches of faith and love. But we can only obtain these by surrendering the will to Christ. When we take the Saviour at his word, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight, complete unity will prevail. We shall constantly grow more like our Leader. His character has been plainly revealed, and we have been plainly told that we are to be like Him. Our watchword is, "Go forward." [Exodus 14:15.] Pressing onward to the Light of life means victory. Do not deplore the crookedness of your past life; for this does not bring strength but weakness. We see much in our hearts that is dark and forbidding, and there is much we do not see at all, but God is greater than our hearts, and He knows all things. All unbelief is moral deformity. In bemoaning our past there is no healing balm, but only sorrow and sin, which makes the heart sick and faint. Thus we become more and more discouraged. Might we not better look to the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world?<sup>14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 20</sup>

Why did God permit the children of Israel to be bitten in the wilderness. Because of their wicked unbelief and continual murmuring, because of their perversity and rebellion. They did not stop to think how much God was saving them from, how many evils He was holding in check. He had forbidden the poisonous serpents to touch the people. He had restrained the wild beasts of the forest, and had saved his people from a thousand dangers.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 21</sup>

God sent them test and trial, to see whether they had learned the lesson of submission and were prepared to receive the rich blessings he had in store for them. He was seeking to correct their selfishness, that they might take their place in His divine theocracy as a representative people. It was His purpose that they should reveal His character and bear a living testimony to the world that God honors those who honor Him. He desires them to be pure, holy, intelligent people, who could be used as light bearers to the world. But instead of remembering that the angel of the Lord was constantly guiding and protecting them, the children of Israel lost sight of God's merciful and wonderful dealings, and magnified the trials sent to prove them. God could not work with a people who continually lost sight of their advantages and dishonored Him by unbelief.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 22</sup>

Sin and holiness are entirely opposite. They cannot harmonize. The children of light are those who have the righteousness of Christ. They are pure, holy, undefiled. God has made every provision that those who take hold of His strength shall make peace with Him, and be free [from] condemnation. He bids those who have the light live no longer in sin, but walk in the light. He promises that if they are obedient to His commandments He will give them every temporal and spiritual advantage.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 23</sup>

Study the history of ancient Israel, and the words of counsel given them. In no case practice their sins, but practice the mercy, the love, the compassion they were enjoined to show, not only toward their brethren, but to the stranger within their gates. God does not promise freedom from temptation, but He charges His people to honor Him at all times, and He promises to honor them among all nations of the earth. He would have us put far from us all injustice, all fraud, all selfishness. 14LtMs, Ms 13, 1899, par. 24

To Every Man His Work

NP

February 28, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in UL 68; 6MR 384-385.

+NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Where is the strength of God's people? It is in their union with Him through His only begotten Son, and their union with each other. There are no two leaves of a tree precisely alike; neither do all minds run in the same groove. But in diversity there may be unity. Christ is our Root, and all who are grafted into this root will bear the fruit which Christ bore. They will reveal the fragrance of His character in the talent of speech, in the cultivation of kindness, of hospitality, of Christian courtesy, and true heavenly politeness. We are not all fitted to do the same kind of work, but each man's work is designed by God to help make up His plan. Look at the flowers in a carpet, and notice the different colored threads. All are not pink, all are not green, all are not blue. A variety of colors are woven together to perfect a design. So it is in the plan of God. He has a purpose in placing us where we must learn to live as individuals. 14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 1

When the Lord commanded the children of Israel to build the tabernacle, and gave them the plan for its furniture, its curtains and everything pertaining to it, every man was not given the same work. The Lord chose His workers, and then fitted them for their work by giving them skill and imparting to them His wisdom. To each worker was apportioned work according to his ability. No man was to lay hold of one portion of the work and place himself in the way of his fellow laborer. Each was to do his appointed work with the strictest fidelity. The plan of the great Deviser was followed, and the tabernacle came forth from the hands of the workers complete, each part in harmony with the other. 14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 2

Industry in a God-appointed work is as much a part of true religion as is devotion. We are not to think that in any of the work essential in the building of the different parts of the tabernacle, one part was menial and the other not. Every part of God's work means service. He declares of His people, Ye are laborers together with God. Whatever is essential to be done in this world must be done in a lawful manner, and we are to do nothing that would violate one principle of the law of God.14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 3

Angels of God are appointed to minister unto those who shall be heirs of salvation. But human beings, although professing to be followers of Christ, do not place themselves in a position where they can understand this ministry, and they make it very hard for the heavenly messengers to work. It would be far pleasanter for the heavenly angels to remain in the courts above, and do their work in a pure and holy atmosphere. But a work must be done in bringing this heavenly atmosphere to the souls who are tempted and tried, that Satan may not disqualify them for the place the Lord would have them fill in the heavenly courts. Principalities and powers in heavenly places combine with these angels in their ministration for those who shall be heirs of salvation. The truth of God is brought to bear upon the hearts of men.14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 4

The Lord desires to bring them as material from the quarry of the world, that He may work them. They are in need of the axe, the hammer, of planing and polishing; for if this work is not done, the stones will retain their roughness and will not become symmetrical. They will not be fitted to fill the place for every one who will enter the kingdom of God. Those, who under the education of Jesus Christ make it possible to reach the highest attainments, will take every divine improvement with them to the heavenly mansions Christ is preparing. Those who are unwilling to have the great work of fitting up a character after the divine similitude go on in them make the angels sad, for by clinging to their own sinful habits and practices, they spoil the design of God.14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 5

We are to bear in mind that this is the Lord's workshop. We are to bear the image of God, and every soul who is saved through the sacrifice of the Son of God must in this life have the work done for him that will make him complete in Christ. There is much to do in order to fit us for the courts of the Lord. The roughness of spirit must be overcome, the coarseness of speech, the cheapness of character, must be put away, or we can never wear the wedding garment woven in the heavenly loom—the righteousness of Christ. The work of the ministering angels is to prepare the inhabitants of this world to become children of God, pure, holy, undefiled. But how sad for these angels to see the coarseness, the roughness of men and women who are so desirous of securing their own ends, of gratifying their own wishes, that they lose sight of the Word of God, which should be their instructor and their guide.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 6

Let us learn from the experience of individuals the wonderful wisdom of God in His requirements of every soul. Let us study the results of following human wisdom and human judgment. If men would follow implicitly the way and will of God, which is their discipline in this life, they would secure for themselves the life which is to come.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 7

The angels who do always behold the face of the Father in heaven would prefer to remain close by the side of God. But the Lord gives to every angel his work for this fallen world. Divine help is provided for men. They have the opportunity of co-operating with heavenly intelligences, of being laborers together with God. The possibilities of gaining a fitness for the presence of God, of being enabled to see His face, are placed before them. Heavenly angels are working to bring the human family into a close brotherhood, a oneness described by Christ as like to that existing between the Father and the Son. How can men so highly honored by God fail to appreciate their opportunities and privileges. How can they refuse to accept the divine help proffered. How much it is possible for human beings to gain if they will keep eternity in view. “What is a man profited,” Christ asks, “if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul? or what will a man give in exchange for his soul?” [Matthew 16:26.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 8

Satanic agencies are ever warring for the mastery over human minds. But the angels of God are constantly at work, strengthening the weak hands and confirming the feeble knees of all who call upon God for help. The promise to every child of God is, “Ask, and ye shall receive; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you.” [Matthew 7:7.] The Lord is more willing to give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him than parents are to give good gifts to their children. Then ask; believe what God has said. He will surely fulfil His Word. Say from the heart, “My flesh and my heart faileth, but God is the strength of my heart, and my portion for ever.” [Psalm 73:26.] The victory must be gained day by day. 14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 9

As followers of Christ we are to stand on vantage ground before the world as Christ’s representatives. Let us then engage in this part of the Christian warfare, determinedly overcoming every weakness of character. The path to destruction is broad, the gate wide; and many go in thereat. Strait is the gate, and narrow the way that leads to life, and few there be that find it. 14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 10

The Lord has had truehearted men and women, those who have made a covenant with God by sacrifice. They have not swerved from their integrity; they have kept themselves unspotted from the world. These have been led by the light of life to defeat the purposes of the wily foe. Will human beings now act their part in resisting the devil? If they will do this, he will surely flee from them. Angels who will do for you the things you cannot do for yourselves are waiting for your co-operation. They are waiting for you to respond to the drawing of Christ. Draw nigh to God and then you will draw nigh to one another. By desire, by silent prayer, by resistance of satanic agencies, put your will on the side of God’s will. While you have one desire to resist the devil, and sincerely pray, Deliver me from temptation, you will have strength for your day. 14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 11

It is the work of the heavenly angels to come close to the tried, the suffering, the tempted ones. They labor long and untiringly to save the souls for whom Christ has died; and when souls appreciate their advantages, appreciate the heavenly assistance sent them, the Holy Spirit’s working in their behalf, when they put their will on the side of Christ’s will, angels bear the tidings heavenward. Returning to the heavenly courts they report their success for the souls for whom they have ministered, and there is rejoicing among the heavenly host. “There is joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine just persons which need no repentance.” [Luke 15:7.]14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 12

The angels of God have seen a condition of things in the church that has grieved them and grieved the Spirit of God. It is a lack of unity, the lack of love the members have shown for one another. The apostle exhorts us, “Be ye therefore followers of God as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweetsmelling savor.” [Ephesians 5:1, 2.] Shall we not work on this principle?14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 13

Again the apostle says, “We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. Let everyone of us please his neighbor for his good to edification. For even Christ pleased not himself; but as it is written, The reproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me. For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the Scriptures might have hope. Now the God of patience and consolation grant you to be like-minded one toward another, according to Christ Jesus; that ye may with one mind and one mouth glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.” [Romans 15:1-6.]14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 14

Please read the twelfth chapter of Romans. Here we are enjoined, “Let love be without dissimulation, abhor that which is evil; cleave to that which is good. Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honor preferring one another; not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord; rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation, continuing instant in prayer, distributing to the necessity of saints, given to hospitality.” [Verses 9-13.]14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 15

This admonition has been strangely neglected. “Distributing to the necessity of the saints; given to hospitality.” [Verse 13.] What a change has been brought about in Battle Creek, that those who have entertained their brethren should receive pay for this work! This plan has been devised that the loving attentions shown by hospitality and visiting, a work which should bind heart to heart, is cut off. What does this mean? All may live on simple food, which does not require much preparation; but if the entertaining is done with simplicity, it will bind the hearts of brethren and sisters together. The spirit of covetousness, O let it die! Let not methods and plans be invented which will give no opportunity for brotherly love to live. Our heavenly Father gives us of His bounty freely, and for His sake who gave His life for us, we should entertain our brethren and sisters. 14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 16

The Lord designs that we shall care for the interests of our brethren and sisters. The apostle Paul gives us an illustration of this. Addressing the church at Rome he says, "I commend unto you Phoebe our sister, which is a servant of the church which is at Cenchrea; that ye receive her in the Lord, as becometh saints, and that ye assist her in whatsoever business she hath need of you; for she hath been a succorer of many, and of myself also. Greet Aquila and Priscilla my helpers in Christ Jesus." [Romans 16:1-3.] Read also the twelfth chapter of I Corinthians. 14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 17

Christ's admonition to His disciples is to be heeded by us. Almost His last words before He gave His life for the world were, "A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another." How much, Lord? "As I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another." [John 13:34, 35.] "This is my commandment that ye love one another as I have loved you. Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you. Henceforth I call you not servants; for the servant knoweth not what his lord doeth; but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you. Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you; and ordained you that you should go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit should remain; that whatsoever ye shall ask the Father in my name, he may give it you." [John 15:12-16.] 14LtMs, Ms 14, 1899, par. 18

Comments on Malachi Chapter Three

NP

February 23, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 4BC 1182.

In the third chapter of Malachi two parties are brought to view. Here the Lord denounces against His professed people who are not faithful sentinels. The charge and challenge of God against this people is marked and decided. "I will come near to you to judgment; and I will be a swift witness against the sorcerer and against the adulterer, and against the false swearer, and against those who oppress the hireling in his wages, the widow, and the fatherless, and that turn aside the stranger from his right, and fear not me, saith the Lord of hosts. For I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed. Even from the days of your fathers ye are gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept them." 14LtMs, Ms 15, 1899, par. 1

"Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts. But ye said, Wherein shall we return? Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of Hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it." 14LtMs, Ms 15, 1899, par. 2

"And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed; for ye shall be a delightsome land saith the Lord of hosts." [Verses 5-12.] Man's duty to be faithful in giving the Lord the portion which He claims in tithes and offerings, that there may be a supply to carry forward the work without embarrassment or hindrance is plainly specified. 14LtMs, Ms 15,

A people is brought to view who are not filled with the Holy Spirit, because they have not walked humbly with God and been faithful and clean and pure and holy in His sight. God says, "Your words have been stout against me. ... Yet ye say, what have we spoken so much against thee? Ye have said, It is vain to serve God, and what profit is it that we accept his ordinance, and that we have walked mournfully before the Lord of hosts? And now we call the proud happy; ... yea, they that tempt God are even delivered." [Verses 13-15.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 15, 1899, par. 4

Who required them to walk mournfully? Not Christ. Their mournfulness is the fruit of their own will and unsanctified spirit. They complain of one another and of God, putting on an outside show as disappointed men, leaving the impression on the world that it does not pay to be Christians. To be envious and jealous of the brethren means to be envious and jealous of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 15, 1899, par. 5

While these poor, deceived, unconsecrated, jealous, envious souls are allowing Satan to take possession of their minds, while they voice his spirit and please and glorify him and dishonor God, a more pleasant picture is brought before us of another party. "Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another: and the lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written for them that feared the Lord and that spake upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels." [Verses 16, 17.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 15, 1899, par. 6

Here a different note is introduced. Testimonies of thankfulness, helpful testimonies, are borne. The believers encourage one another and glorify God by their patience, hope, and charity. The Holy Spirit is imparted to them, and as they receive they impart. "And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not." [Verses 17, 18.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 15, 1899, par. 7

The time has come when the Holy Spirit will work upon mind and character. "Many shall be purified, and made white and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly, and none of the wicked shall understand, but the wise shall understand." [Daniel 12:10.]14*LtMs, Ms 15, 1899, par. 8*

The Marriage at Cana of Galilee

NP

February 19, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 10MR 197-203.

“And the third day there was a marriage at Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there; and both Jesus was called, and his disciples, to the marriage.” [John 2:1, 2.] 14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 1

Christ was present at the creation of the world, as Commander in the heavenly courts. “In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made. In him was life; and the life was the light of men. And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not.” [John 1:1-5.] Adam was appointed to be monarch of the world, under the supervision of God. “And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness, and let him have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him, male and female created he them.” 14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 2

“And God blessed them, and God said unto them, Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it: and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth. And God said, Behold, I have given you every herb bearing seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in the which is the fruit of the tree yielding seed; to you it shall be for meat. And to every beast of the earth, and to every fowl of the air, and to every thing that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life, I have given every green herb for meat: and it was so. And God saw everything that he had made, and, behold, it was very good.” [Genesis 1:26-31.] 14LtMs, Ms 16,

“And the Lord God formed man out of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. ... And the Lord said, It is not good that man should be alone; I will make him an help meet for him. ... And the Lord God caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept; and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof; and the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, made he a woman, and brought her unto the man. And Adam said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man. Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh.”
[Genesis 2:7, 18, 21-24.]14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 4

He who gave Eve to Adam as a help meet performed His first miracle at the marriage festival. In this festal hall, where friends and relatives rejoiced together, He commenced His public ministry.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 5

By His presence at this gathering, our Saviour sanctioned marriage, recognizing it as an institution He Himself had formed. In the beginning, when the Sabbath law was given to man, the marriage law was also given. Then God bestowed on man His two great gifts—woman as a help meet, and the Sabbath as a day of rest.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 6

Marriage has received Christ’s sanction and blessing, and it is to be regarded as a sacred institution. True religion does not counterwork the Lord’s plans. But God ordained that woman should be united with man in holy wedlock, to raise up families who would be crowned with honor, who would be symbols of the family in heaven.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 7

Priests and popes have made laws forbidding priests to marry, and secluding them in monasteries. These laws and restrictions were devised by Satan to place men and women in unnatural positions. Thus Satan has tempted human beings to disregard the law of marriage as a thing unholy, but at the same time he has opened a door for the indulgence of human passion. Thus have come into existence the greatest evils that curse our world—adultery, fornication, the murder of innocent children born out of wedlock.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 8

Christ knew all about the human family, and at the beginning of His public ministry He gave Him decided sanction to the marriage He had sanctioned in Eden. Thus He witnessed to all that He will not refuse His presence on marriage occasions, and that marriage, when joined with purity and holiness, truth and righteousness, is one of the greatest blessings ever given to the human family.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 9

Jesus came to our world to rectify mistakes and to restore the moral image of God in man. Wrong sentiments in regard to marriage had found a place in the minds of the teachers of Israel. They were making of none effect the sacred institution of marriage. Man was becoming so hard-hearted that he would, for the most trivial excuse, separate from his wife, or, if he chose, he would separate her from the children and send her away. This was considered a great disgrace, and was often accompanied by the most acute suffering on the part of the discarded one.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 10

Christ came to correct these evils, and His first miracle was wrought on the occasion of the marriage. Thus He announced to the world that marriage, when kept pure and undefiled, is a sacred institution.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 11

The Scriptures state that both Jesus and His disciples were called to this marriage feast. Christ has given Christians no sanction to say when invited to a marriage, We ought not to be present on so joyous an occasion. By attending this feast Christ taught that He would have us rejoice with those who do rejoice in the observance of His statutes. He never discouraged the innocent festivities of mankind when carried on in accordance with the laws of heaven. A gathering that Christ honored by His presence it is right that His followers should attend. After attending this feast, Christ attended many others, sanctifying them by His presence and instruction.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 12

The feast was in progress, and an important point in the ceremony had been reached, when it was discovered that the supply of wine had failed. Mary at once went to Jesus, saying, They have no wine.

She had an interest in this ceremony, and Christ had ever been to her a wise counsellor. The answer was, “Woman, what have I to do with thee?” [John 2:4.] This should be, What hast thou to do with me? This was not in any sense disrespectful. Christ was always respectful, and courteous to all, but He was especially so to His mother. Christ was engaged in His Father’s work, and He must follow the dictation of no one but God. 14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 13

Mary understood His words as encouragement, not rebuke, and she said to the servant, “Whatsoever he saith unto thee, do it.” [Verse 5.] 14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 14

“And there were set there six water pots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing two or three firkins apiece.” [Verse 6.] In those days the Jewish religion was composed largely of forms and ceremonies. A certain amount of washing was required by the law, but they carried this matter to an extreme, prescribing certain forms never required by God, and making a tedious process of that which was intended to cleanse and refresh. Seeing the stone jars standing there, Christ bade the servants fill them to the brim. This was done, and He said, “Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feast. And they bare it.” [Verse 8.] 14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 15

“When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was: (but the servants which drew the water knew;) the governor of the feast called the bridegroom, and saith unto him, Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine; and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse; but thou hast kept the good wine until now.” [Verses 9, 10.] 14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 16

The wine created by Christ at this time was the best wine those present had ever tasted. But it was free from all fermentation. Christ himself had forbidden the use of fermented drink, saying, “Do not drink wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee, when ye go into the tabernacle of the congregation, lest ye die: t shall be a statute forever throughout your generations: and that ye may put difference between holy and unholy, and between clean and unclean; and that ye may teach the children of Israel all the statutes which the Lord has spoken unto them by the hand of Moses.”

[Leviticus 10:9-11.]14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 17

Fermented liquor confuses the senses, and perverts the powers God has given. He is dishonored when men have not sufficient respect for themselves to practice strict temperance. Fermented wine is not a natural production. The Lord never made it, and with its production He has nothing to do. When Paul advised Timothy to take a little wine for his stomach sake, and often infirmities, it was the unfermented juice of the grape that he meant.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 18

The use of fermented wine caused Nadab and Abihu to confuse the sacred and the common, and death was their penalty. After this severe restriction was placed on those connected with the sacred service. They were prohibited from touching wine or using grapes in any way, when they came before the Lord in sacred service, that they might avoid the consequence of becoming familiar with fermented wine. When food or drink which bewilders the brain is placed in the mouth, the destroyer sees his opportunity to enter and dethrone reason. Be assured that Paul never advised Timothy to use what the Lord had prohibited.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 19

Some who claim to be Christians clothe themselves with fig leaves and feel at liberty to use intoxicating drinks, and they claim to be in harmony with Christ in this particular. But Christ did not set the example they claim to imitate. Be assured that Christ would not have made intoxicating wine on the occasion of His first miracle. He give to those present a safe drink to give to all humanity—the pure juice of the grape.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 20

Christ never placed a glass of fermented liquor to His lips or to the lips of His disciples. Drunkenness was rare in Palestine, but Christ looked down the ages, and saw in every generation what the use of wine would do for the users. Therefore at this feast He set a right example.14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 21

He did not give publicity to His action, and at first only a few knew of the embarrassment of the governor. But after the wine made by Christ was brought in, great astonishment was expressed by the guests regarding its superiority over the wine first placed before them. The knowledge of the miracle became known, and the very work Christ desired to see done was accomplished. The faith of the disciples was confirmed. This miracle was to them a convincing testimony that He was the world's Redeemer.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 22

Christ's future work shows the influence of this miracle. "When he was come into Galilee," we read, "the Galileans received him, having seen all the things he did in Jerusalem at the feast; for they also went unto the feast. So Jesus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman, whose son was sick at Capernaum, when he heard that Jesus was come out of Judea into Galilee, he went unto him, and besought him that he would come down, and heal his son; for he was at the point of death. Then said Jesus unto him, Except ye see signs and wonders, ye will not believe. The nobleman said unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die. Jesus saith unto him, Go thy way; they son liveth."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 23

"And the man believed the word that Jesus spoke unto him, and he went his way. And as he was now going down, his servants met him, and told him, saying, Thy son liveth. Then inquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they said unto him, Yesterday at the seventh hour the fever left him. So the father knew that it was at the same hour, in the which Jesus said unto him, Thy son liveth; and himself believed, and his whole house. This is again the second miracle that Jesus did, when he was come out of Judea unto Galilee." [John 4:45-54.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 24

Christ did not touch the water in the jars. He simply looked upon it, and once became like wine fresh from the cluster. Only a few days before Christ had refused to work a miracle to satisfy His hunger. He was weak and emaciated, for He had been without food for forty days and forty nights; but He would not command the stones to become bread to satisfy His appetite. To the temptation of the enemy He answered, "It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." [Matthew 4:4.] Neither would He accept a challenge to imperil His life by casting Himself down from the pinnacle of the temple to prove that He was the Son of God. In answer to the challenge He said, "It is written, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." [Verse 7.] But on the occasion of the wedding feast Christ desired to show that marriage is not forbidden by God. 14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 25

The divine love emanating from Christ never destroys human love, but includes human love, refined and purified. By it human love is elevated and ennobled. Human love can never bear its precious fruit until it is united with the divine nature, and trained to grow heavenward. Jesus wants to see happy marriages, happy firesides. The warmth of true friendship and the love that binds the hearts of husband and wife is a foretaste of heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 26

God has ordained that there should be perfect love and perfect harmony between those who enter into marriage relation. Let bride and bridegroom in the presence of the heavenly universe pledge themselves to love one another as God has ordained they should. Let no draught of unkindness chill the atmosphere which should exist. The wife is to respect and reverence her husband, and the husband is to love and cherish his wife. As the priest of the household, the father should bind his wife and children to his heart. The wife should feel that the large affections of her husband sustain her before the children are born, and after their birth he should cooperate with her in the management of the little ones, who should be wisely, tenderly, lovingly educated. 14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 27

The family relationship should be sanctifying in its influence. Christian homes, established and conducted in accordance with God's plan are a wonderful help in forming Christian character. Families here should be a symbol of the great family above. Parents and children should unite in offering loving service to Him who alone can keep human love pure and noble. 14LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 28

"Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord, for the husband is the head of the wife even as Christ is the head of the church: and he is the Saviour of the body. Therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in everything. Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and give himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word; that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy, and without blemish. So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 29

“He that loveth his wife, loveth himself. For no man ever yet hated his own flesh; but nourisheth it and cherisheth it; even as the Lord the church: for we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones. For this cause shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall be joined unto his wife, and they two shall be one flesh. This is a great mystery: but I speak concerning Christ and the church. Nevertheless let every one of you in particular so love his wife even as himself; and the wife see that she reverence her husband.” [Ephesians 5:22-33.] If this instruction had been heeded by those who enter into the marriage relation, the home life would be pure and elevated, garrisoned by a holy love.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 30

Christ came not to destroy the law, but to fulfill its every specification. He came to pull down and destroy the works of oppression that the enemy had raised up everywhere. It was in perfect harmony with His character and work to make known the fact that marriage is a sacred and holy institution.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 31

God made from the man a woman, to be a companion and help meet for him, to be one with him, to cheer, encourage, and bless him, and he in turn to be her strong helper. All who enter into matrimonial relations with a holy purpose, the husband to obtain the pure affections of a woman’s heart, the wife to soften and improve her husband’s character and give it completeness, fulfill God’s purpose for them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 32

Christ came not to destroy this institution, but to restore it to its original sanctity and elevation. He came to restore the moral image of God in man, and He began His work by sanctioning the marriage relation. He who made the first holy pair, and who created for them a paradise, has put His seal upon the marriage institution, first celebrated in Eden, when the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 16, 1899, par. 33

Cooperation

NP

March 1, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in RH 05/28/1908.

“Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God that worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleasure.” [Philippians 2:12, 13.] The work of salvation is a work of co-partnership, a joint operation. No man can work out his own salvation without the aid of the Holy Spirit. The co-operation of divine and human forces is necessary for the formation of right principles in the character. Man is to make the most strenuous efforts to overcome the tempter, to subdue natural passions; but he is wholly dependent upon God for success in the work of overcoming the propensities that are not in harmony with correct principles. Success depends wholly upon willing obedience to the will and way of God. Character develops in accordance with conformity to the divine plan. But man must work in Christ’s lines. He must be a laborer together with God. He must submit to God’s training, that he may be complete in Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 1

God has originated and proclaimed the principles on which divine and human agencies are to combine in temporal matters as well as all spiritual achievements. They are to be linked together in all human pursuits, in mechanical and agricultural labor, in mercantile and scientific enterprises. In all lines of work it is necessary that there be co-operation between God and man. God has provided facilities with which to enrich and beautify the earth. But the strength and ingenuity of human agencies are required to make the very best use of the material. God has filled the earth with treasure, but the gold and silver are hidden in the earth, and the exercise of man’s powers is required to secure this treasure which God has provided. Man’s energy and tact are to be used in connection with the power of God in bringing the gold and silver from the mines and trees from the forest. But unless by His miracle-working power God co-operated with man, enabling him to use his physical and mental capabilities, the treasures in our world would be useless.14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 2

We cannot keep ourselves for one moment. We are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation. We are utterly dependent upon God every moment of our lives.14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 3

God desires every human being in our world to be a worker together with Him. This is the lesson we are to learn from all useful employment, making homes in the forest, felling trees to build houses, clearing land for cultivation. God has provided the wood and the land, and to man He has given the work of putting them in such shape that they will be a blessing. In this work man is wholly dependent upon God. The fitting of the ships that cross the broad ocean is not alone due to the talent and ingenuity of the human agent. God is the great Architect. Without His co-operation, without the aid of the higher intelligences, how worthless would be the plans of men! God must aid, else every device is worthless.14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 4

The human organism is the handiwork of God. The organs employed in all the different functions of the body were made by Him. The Lord gives us food and drink, that the wants of the body may be supplied. He has given the earth different properties adapted to the growth of good for his children. He gives the sunshine and the showers, the early and the latter rain. He forms the clouds and sends the dew. All are His gifts. He has bestowed His blessings upon us liberally. But all these blessings will not restore in us His moral image unless we co-operate with Him, making painstaking effort to know ourselves, to understand how to care for the delicate human machinery. Man must diligently help to keep himself in harmony with nature's laws. He who co-operates with God in the work of keeping this wonderful machinery in order, who consecrates all his powers to God, seeking intelligently to obey the laws of nature, stands in his God-given manhood, and is recorded in the books of heaven as a man.14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 5

God has given man land to be cultivated. But in order that the harvest may be reaped, there must be harmonious action between divine and human agencies. The plough and other implements of labor must be used at the right time. The seed must be sown in its season. Man is not to fail of doing his part. If he is careless and negligent, his unfaithfulness testifies against him. The harvest is proportionate to the energy he has expended.14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 6

So it is in spiritual things. We are to be laborers together with God. Man is to work out his own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God that worketh in him, both to will and to do of His good pleasure. There is to be co-partnership, a divine relation, between the Son of God and the repentant sinner.14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 7

We are made sons and daughters of God. "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God." [John 1:12.] Christ provides the mercy and grace so abundantly given to all who believe in Him. He fulfills the terms upon which salvation rests. But we must act our part by accepting the blessing in faith. God works and man works. Resistance of temptation must come from man, who must draw his power from God. Thus he becomes a co-partner with Christ.14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 8

The infinitely wise and all-powerful God proposes co-operation with His frail, erring creatures, whom He has placed on vantage ground. On the one side there is infinite wisdom, goodness, compassion, power; on the other, weakness, sinfulness, absolute helplessness, poverty, dependence. We are dependent upon God, not only for life and all its blessings, but for our entrusted talents, and for all the resources required in the work we must do if we accept the invitation to work with God. Man's intellect, his understanding, his every valuable thought, the opportunities and privileges that are placed within his reach, all come from Him who is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. We have nothing of ourselves. Our success in the Christian life depends upon our co-operation with Christ, and our submission to his will. It is not a sign of pure, consecrated service for a worker to follow his own way. Every worker is to willingly obey his Leader, to receive and practice every Word of God.14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 9

We are to be individual toilers. Character cannot be bought or sold. It is formed by patient, continuous effort. Much patience is required in the striving for that life which is to come. We may all strive for perfection of character, but all who come into possession of it will earn it step by step, by the cultivation of the virtues which God commends. The Holy Spirit presents before man the agencies provided for his transformation. If he heeds the words, "He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me," he will receive help from a power that is infinite. [Mark 8:34.] 14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 10

Man is given the privilege of working with God in the saving of his own soul. He is to receive Christ as his personal Saviour and believe in Him. Receiving and believing is his part of the contract. This means abiding in Christ, showing in him at all times and under all circumstances a faith that works by love and purifies the soul from all defilement. Christ is the Author of this faith, and He demands that it be constantly exercised. Thus we receive a constant supply of grace. 14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 11

The apostle Paul declares, "Ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] The material for the building is plainly specified in the words, "Giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ." [2 Peter 1:5-8.] Here we are shown how we may co-operate with God. Man is to work constantly upon the plan of addition, while God works on the plan of multiplication. Thus man grows in spirituality, until he presents to the world, to angels, and to men such perfection of character that in the heavenly courts the words are spoken, "Ye are complete in him." [Colossians 2:10.] 14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 12

The plan of redemption was arranged in the counsels between the Father and the Son. Then Christ pledged Himself to render an account for man if he proved disloyal. He pledged Himself to make an atonement which would unite every believing soul to God. He who lays his sins upon the Substitute and Surety, thus becoming a partaker of the divine nature, can unite with the apostle in saying, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places." "That in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus." [Ephesians 1:3; 2:7.]14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 13

In His infinite love Christ devised the plan of salvation. This plan He stands ready to fulfil in behalf of all who will cooperate with Him. In their behalf He says to the Father, Do not impute their sins to them, but lay them on me. Be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities remember no more. They have accepted My merits and made peace with Me; and they shall make peace with Me. My righteousness is theirs; for My sake bless them with all spiritual blessings.14LtMs, Ms 16a, 1899, par. 14

The New Commandment

NP

March 2, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in OHC 24, 231; SD 101; 2MCP 579. †Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“A new commandment I write unto you, which thing is true in him and in you, because the darkness is passed, and the true light now shineth. He that saith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness even until now. He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occasion of stumbling in him.” [1 John 2:8-10.] 14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 1

God desires us to learn the lesson that we are to love Him supremely and our neighbor as Christ has loved us. To do this, we must practice self-control. If we would be true lights, to light every man which cometh into the world, we must manifest the loving, compassionate spirit of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 2

What a world of evil has resulted from evil-speaking and evil-surmising. As the inclination to criticize and accuse is indulged, it will strengthen. Those who yield to this inclination place themselves under the training of the priests of Satan's synagogue. He is the accuser of the brethren, and he improves every opportunity to imbue men and women with his spirit and make them wise to do his work. Shall we not hate his attributes and refuse to be co-partners with him? 14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 3

God would have His children realize that in order to glorify Him their affection must be given to those who most need it. None with whom we come in contact are to be neglected. No selfishness, in look, word, or deed, is to be manifested when dealing with those of like precious faith, whatever may be their position, whether they be high or low, rich or poor. The love that gives kind words to only a few, while others are treated with coldness and indifference, is not love, but selfishness. It will not in any way work for the good of souls or the glory of God. Our love is not to be confined to one or two objects. It is not to be sealed up for special ones, to the neglect of others. Break the bottle, and the fragrance will fill the house.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 4

Those who gather the sunshine of Christ's righteousness, and do not let it shine forth into the lives of others, will soon lose the sweet, bright rays of heavenly grace, selfishly reserved to be lavished only upon a few. Those who possess much affection, are responsible to God to bestow this affection, not merely upon the members of their own family—for this is selfishness, which has no place in the life of Christ—but on all who need help. Self should not be placed first, gathering to itself a select few, but giving nothing to those who need help the most. Those who do this in no way represent Christ.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 5

To love as Christ loved means to manifest unselfishness at all times and in all places, by kind words and pleasant looks. These cost those who give them nothing, but they leave behind a fragrance that surrounds the soul. Their effect can never be estimated. Not only are they a blessing to the receiver, but to the giver, for they react upon him. Genuine love is a precious attribute of heavenly origin, which increases in fragrance in proportion as it is dispensed to others.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 6

While our words are ever to be kind and tender, no words should be spoken that will lead a wrongdoer to think that his way is not objectionable to God. This is a kind of sympathy that is earthly and deceiving. No license is given for undue manifestation of affections, for sentimental sympathy. Wrongdoers need counsel and reproof, and must sometimes be sharply rebuked.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 7

Coldness and hardheartedness are not to be regarded as virtues. Those who cherish Christ's attributes of character will never be cold and stern and unapproachable in their demeanor, confining their sympathies to a favored few. The souls of those who love Jesus will be surrounded with a pure, fragrant atmosphere. There are those who hide their soul hunger. These will be greatly helped by a tender word or a kind remembrance. The heavenly gifts, freely and richly bestowed by God, are in turn to be freely bestowed by us upon all who come within the sphere of our influence. Thus we reveal a love that is heaven-born, and which will increase as it is freely used in blessing others. Thus we glorify God.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 8

Christ's love is deep and earnest, flowing like an irrepressible stream to all who will accept it. There is no selfishness in His love. If this heaven-born love is an abiding principle in the heart, it will make itself known, not only to those we hold most dear in sacred relationship, but to all with whom we come in contact. It will lead us to bestow little acts of attention, to make concessions, to perform deeds of kindness, to speak tender, true, encouraging words. It will lead us to sympathize with those whose hearts hunger for sympathy.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 9

“God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by grace ye are saved;) and hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus: that in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Christ Jesus. For by grace are ye saved through faith: and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast. For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 10

“Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; that at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenant of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world; but now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.”
[Ephesians 2:4-13.]14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 11

“If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfil ye my joy, that ye be like-minded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind. Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory, but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves. Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others. Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus.” [Philippians 2:1-5.]14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 12

“Ye Are Complete In Him”

The Lord would have all quick to remember His favors and blessings, that by studying His dealing, so merciful and compassionate, their experience may be enriched. He would teach this lesson from the record of what the children of Israel were to do after passing over Jordan.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 13

“Moses and the elders of Israel commanded the people, saying, Keep all the commandments which I command you this day. And it shall be on the day when ye shall pass over Jordan into the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, that thou shalt set thee up great stones, and plaster them with plaster, and thou shalt write upon them all the words of this law, when thou art passed over, that thou mayest go in unto the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee, a land that floweth with milk and honey; as the Lord God of thy fathers promised thee. Therefore it shall be when ye shall be gone over Jordan, that ye shall set up these stones, which I command you this day, in Mount Ebal, and thou shalt plaster them with plaster.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 14

“And there shalt thou build an altar unto the Lord thy God, at altar of stones: thou shalt not lift up an iron tool upon it. Thou shalt build the altar of the Lord thy God of whole stones: and thou shalt offer burnt offerings thereon unto the Lord thy God; and thou shalt offer peace offerings, and shalt eat there, and rejoice before the Lord thy God. And thou shalt write upon the stones all the words of this law very plainly.” [Deuteronomy 27:1-8.]14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 15

Under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit Peter writes, “Wherefore the rather brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall. For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things though ye know them, and be established in the present truth.” [2 Peter 1:10-12.]14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 16

And Paul declares, “Put them in mind to be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates, to be ready for every good work, to speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, showing all meekness unto all men. ... But after that the kindness of God our Saviour toward man appeared, not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost; which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; that being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life. This is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have believed in God might be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable unto men.” [Titus 3:1, 2, 4-8.]14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 17

These words are a call to life and liberty, freedom and happiness. There is work for all to do in co-operating with God to build up characters which will fit them to unite with the royal family in the kingdom of God.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 18

Christ came to draw sinners to Himself, by His words and by His Spirit. Those who depend upon Him for guidance will not remain in ignorance and sin, but will climb round after round of the ladder Jacob saw. Divine illumination will come to God’s believing, hungering children.14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 19

The Word of God brings to view a people who are overcomers. “These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. These were redeemed from among men, being the first fruits unto God and to the Lamb. And in their mouth was found no guile: for they are without fault before the throne of God.” [Revelation 14:4, 5.]14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 20

“God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.” [2 Corinthians 4:6.] In Christ are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge. "And Moses went up unto God, and the Lord called unto him out of the mountain, saying, Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel; Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare you on eagle's wings, and brought you unto myself. Now, therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, then ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people; for all the earth is mine: and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and an holy nation." [Exodus 19:3-6.] 14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 21

This pledge was given not only to Israel, but to all who are obedient to God's Word. Those who live amid the perils of the last days may realize that just as at the beginning of their experience the truth united them to the Saviour, so He who is the Author and Finisher of their faith will perfect the work he has begun for them. God is faithful, by whom we are called to fellowship with His Son. As men and women co-operate with God in doing the work He has given them, they go forward from strength to greater strength. As they exercise simple faith, believing day by day that God will not fail to establish them in Christ, God says to them as He did to ancient Israel: "Thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God, the Lord hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth." [Deuteronomy 7:6.] 14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 22

Thus God is able and willing to lead all who will be led. He desires to teach each one a lesson of constant trust, unwavering faith, and unquestioning submission. He says to each one, I am the Lord thy God. Walk with me, and I will fill thy path with light. He comes to all with priceless gifts, inviting them to companionship with Himself. He would make them members of His royal family. 14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 23

But God requires obedience to all His commands. The only way in which it is possible for men to be happy is by rendering obedience to the laws of God's kingdom. 14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 24

Life, with its privileges and endowments, is God's gift. Let us remember that all we have comes from God, and is to be wholly and freely consecrated to Him. Paul declares, "I count all things but loss for the excellency of Christ Jesus my Lord, for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung that I may win Christ, and be found in him, not having mine own righteousness, but the righteousness which is of God by faith." [Philippians 3:8, 9.] The sacrifice of our ideas, our will, is necessary if we would be one with Christ in God. All we have and are must be laid at Christ's feet. Shall we not give up all selfishness, and learn the lesson of abiding in Christ? 14LtMs, Ms 17, 1899, par. 25

The Call to the Feast

“The kingdom of heaven is like unto a certain king, which made a marriage for his son, and sent forth his servants to call them that were bidden to the wedding; and they would not come. Again he sent forth other servants, saying, Tell them which are bidden, Behold, I have prepared my dinner: my oxen and my fatlings are killed, and all things are ready: come unto the marriage. But they made light of it, and went their ways, one to his farm, another to his merchandise: and the remnant took his servants, and entreated them spitefully, and slew them. But when the king heard thereof, he was wroth: and he sent forth his armies, and destroyed those murderers, and burned up their city. Then saith he to his servants, The wedding is ready, but they which were bidden were not worthy. Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage. So those servants went out into the highways, and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good: and the wedding was furnished with guests.” [Matthew 22:2-10.]14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 1

The king sent his messengers first to the higher classes, those who were called his chosen people. But these, wholly intent on securing worldly gain, sent in their refusal, saying, “I pray thee, have me excused.” [Luke 14:18, 19.] They did not feel sufficient respect for the master of the feast to respond to his invitation. They are represented by the words. “Them that are turned back from the Lord; and those that have not sought the Lord, nor inquired for him.” Thinking their own wisdom sufficient, they have much to say, as though they were oracles of wisdom. The Lord declares, “Hold thy peace at the presence of the Lord God; for the day of the Lord is at hand; for the Lord hath prepared a sacrifice, he hath bid his guests. And it shall come to pass, in the day of the Lord's sacrifice, that I will punish the prince, and the king's children, and all such as are clothed with strange apparel. In the same day also will I punish all those that leap on the threshold, which fill their master's houses with violence and deceit." [Zephaniah 1:6-9.]14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 2

When the princes of the land refused the invitation, the king sent his messenger into the highways, where were found those who were not so absorbed in the work of buying and selling, planting and building. Building transactions were not made of such importance that eternity was left out of the reckoning. "The wedding is ready," the king said, "but they which were bidden were not worthy. Go ye therefore into the highways, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the marriage. So those servants went out into the highways and gathered together all as many as they found, both bad and good: and the wedding was furnished with guests." [Matthew 22:8-10.]14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 3

"And when the king came in to see the guests, he saw there a man which had not on a wedding garment: and he said unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless. Then said the king, Bind him hand and foot, and take him away, and cast him into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. For many are called, but few are chosen." [Verses 11-14.]14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 4

This teaches us that there are those who come in to enjoy the privileges of the banquet of truth who have not eaten the flesh and drank the blood of the Son of God. They claim to believe and teach the Word to others, but they work the works of unrighteousness. "But ye have not so learned Christ; if so be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jesus, that ye put off concerning the former conversation the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful lusts, and be renewed in the spirit of your mind; and that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness. Wherefore putting away lying, speak every man truth with his neighbor; for we are members one of another. Be ye angry, and sin not: let not the sun go down upon your wrath: neither give place to the devil. 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 5

“Let him that stole steal no more: but rather let him labor, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth. Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace to the hearers. And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption. Let all bitterness and wrath and anger and clamor and evil-speaking be put away from you, with all malice; and be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ’s sake hath forgiven you.” [Ephesians 4:20-32.]14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 6

And Paul writes to Titus, “Put them in mind ... to speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, showing all meekness unto all men. For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another. But after that the kindness and love of God our Saviour toward men appeared, not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost; which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour; that being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs [according to the hope] of eternal life.” [Titus 3:1-7.]14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 7

Those first called, who refused the invitation, represent the Jewish people. God declares, “Since the day that your fathers came forth out of Egypt unto this day, have I even sent unto you all my servants the prophets, daily rising up early and sending them; ... but ye heard not.” [Jeremiah 7:25, 13.] Had they heeded the call which meant so much to them, they could have united with the messengers in giving the invitation. But they with one consent they began to make excuses. Still the blessing of the truth must be set before them, to give them an opportunity to heed the message. 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 8

The invitation was first given to those in the higher walks of life. Let the Lord's messengers bear this in mind. It comes to the shepherds of the flock, the teachers divinely appointed, as a word to be heeded. Those belonging to the higher ranks of society are to be sought out with tender affection and brotherly regard. This class have been too much neglected. Men in business life, in positions of trust, men with large inventive faculties and scientific insight, men of genius, are to be the first to hear the gospel call. It is the Lord's will that men to whom he has entrusted many talents shall hear the truth in a manner different from the way in which they have heard it in the past. 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 9

There are men of the world who have God-given powers of organization, which are needed in the carrying forward of the work for these last days. All are not preachers; but men are needed who can take the management of institutions where industrial work is carried on, who can act as leaders, captains, and educators in our conferences. God needs men who can look ahead and discern what needs to be done, men who can act as faithful financiers, as presidents of conferences, men who will stand as solid as a rock to principle in the present crisis and in the future perils that may arise. 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 10

We need and have needed talent that it was God's purpose we should have. But so much selfishness has been woven into our institutions that the Lord has not wrought to connect those with the work who should be connected with it, because He has seen that they would not be recognized or appreciated. 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 11

There are conscientious men who have not yet seen the light of truth, who need to be taught. Those who have labored in the temperance cause, who in their work have had the Lord behind them, should have had far more labor put forth in their behalf. We need to feel our responsibility in this work. Do not go to those in the higher ranks of life and call them in such a disrespectful manner that they will not listen. 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 12

Those in the highways must first be warned. The teachers, the leading men among the people, must be called. To them the invitation must be given. They must be dealt with personally and earnestly; for if one teacher is gained, he will be able to communicate the light received to many others. More work should have been done for those in high places. Those who give the last message of mercy to a fallen world are not to pass by the ministers. God's servants are to approach them as those who have a deep interest in their welfare, and then plead for them before God in prayer. If they refuse to accept the invitation, tell the Master about it, and then your duty is done. 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 13

Lest we should think only of great and gifted men, to the neglect of the poorer classes, those who are in humble circumstances, Christ instructed His messengers to go also to those in the byways and hedges, to the poor and lowly of this earth. When those first invited refuse the invitation, the command is given, Go ye to those in gross darkness, and as many as ye shall find, bid to the feast. This is the work we are to do. Labor is to be put forth for all classes. The guests who come are a mixed company. Some are true believers; others have not on the robe of Christ's righteousness. Many will accept the invitation, and apparently take their stand as believers who have never put on Christ. But the work of separation is not given to any human being. The servants cannot take the responsibility of refusing admittance to any who may come. Yet there is laid upon them the work of carrying out the Bible rule in regard to disorderly members. 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 14

Those in the byways and hedges came in response to the call of the messenger. They had no fitness for the feast in their common, inappropriate dress; and therefore fitting apparel was provided for them. So we must put on the righteousness of Christ before we shall be ready for the banquet He has prepared. "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God." [John 1:12.] 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 15

The humblest men and women have their appointed work. The most lowly, if they will receive the truth for this time, will be accepted by Christ to do His work. The Lord will do a great work through humble men in reaching humble men. He will accept the talents of the greatest men in the world, but if these refuse to return to him their entrusted gifts, he uses humbler workers. It is God who has given men all the power they possess. Those who refuse to use

God's gifts in his appointed way will be left to their own finite wisdom, to lose the powers they possess. God will accept the humble, patient, loving service of lowly people. Through the skill of a multitude of humble workers He will carry on His work. 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 16

From the arrangements made for the building of the tabernacle we see from whence man gets his strength, skill, and education. We read, "And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, See, I have called by name Bezaleel, the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah: and I have filled him with the spirit of God, in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship, to devise cunning works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass, and in cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving of timber, to work in all manner of workmanship. And I, behold, I have given with him Aholiab, the son of Ahismach, of the tribe of Dan, and in the hearts of all who are wise hearted I have put wisdom, that they may make all that I have commanded them." [Exodus 31:1-6.]14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 17

Christ must be all and in all to every soul. Those who try in their own strength to solve the mystery of the creation of men, the mystery of mercy in redemption, the mystery of eternity will be baffled. The wedding garment was prepared for us at infinite cost. It is the righteousness of Christ, provided for every soul who comes to the supper. Those who have put on Christ have on the wedding garment. 14LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 18

The man who came in to the feast without the wedding garment represents those who violate God's law. Christ gave his life to make it possible for God to pardon sin. Violation of the law caused Adam to lose Eden. The disobedient can never enter in through the gates of the city. They can never have a right to the tree of life. The Lord has made every provision that no one shall in any way dishonor him. He was provided the wedding garment, the righteousness of Christ, and it is essential that we be clothed with this garment, that we may show faith in Christ. Those who think they are complete without the righteousness of Christ will find in the end that they have lost their souls. Faith is made perfect by works. Those who make no change in character, yet claim the privilege of being called Christians, are without the wedding garment. They think they are good enough, virtuous enough, in themselves. Without faith in Christ, they rest upon their own merits. True repentance for sin they have never felt. Therefore when Christ comes in to examine the guests, the command goes forth, "Bind him hand and foot, and cast him into outer darkness." [Matthew 22:13.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 19

"Many are called, but few chosen." [Verse 14.] This is a true statement of the final outcome. Many come in not having on the wedding garment. They do not accept Christ's righteousness. They have not repented and made peace with God. They have not received the free gift. Man is very dear to the heart of God, and all are invited to the feast. Those who clothe themselves in the garment provided find abundant entrance. As they receive the righteousness of the Saviour, God places His stamp upon them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 20

We are to receive Christ's righteousness as a free gift, and in receiving it we acknowledge that in bestowing it God confers on us a great favor. The wedding garment was prepared for us at an infinite cost. Only one can bestow this priceless gift, but all may receive it, and thus become entitled to a place at the feast. The call to the feast is a call to partake of the richest spiritual provision. All who respond to this call find awaiting them an abundant supply of grace, and the more grace they receive the more they desire. Those who partake of this feast may turn to their heavenly Father, and say, Thou has kept the best wine until now.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 18, 1899, par. 21

“Compel Them to Come In.”

NP

March 6, 1899

“Seek ye the kingdom of God; and all these things shall be added unto you. Fear not, little flock, for it is your father’s good pleasure to give you the kingdom. Sell that ye have, and give alms; provide yourselves bags which wax not old, a treasure in the heavens, that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth. For where your treasure is there will your heart be also. Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning, and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord, when he may return from the wedding; that when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately. Blessed are those servants whom the lord when he cometh shall find watching; verily I say unto you, that he shall gird himself, and make them sit down to meat, and will come forth and serve them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 1

“And if he shall come in the second watch, or come on the third watch, and find them so, blessed are those servants. And this know, that if the good man of the house had known what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have suffered his house to be broken through. Be ye therefore ready also: for the Son of man cometh in an hour when ye think not. ... Who then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his Lord shall make ruler over his household, to give them their portion of meat in due season? Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing.” [Luke 12:32-40, 42, 43.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 2

“Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also. The light of the body is the eye. If therefore thine eye be single, thy whole body shall be full of light. But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness. If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness! No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon.” [Matthew 6:19-24.]14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 3

“The end of all things is at hand. Be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer. And above all things, have fervent charity among yourselves; for charity shall cover a multitude of sins. Use hospitality one to another without grudging. As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another as good stewards of the manifold grace of God; if any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as with the ability that God giveth: that God in everything may be glorified through Jesus Christ, to whom be praise and dominion forever and ever.” [1 Peter 4:7-11.]14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 4

“The kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods. And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his several ability, and straightway took his journey. Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents. And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two. But he that had received one went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord’s money.14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 5

“After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them. And so he that had received five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents; behold, I have gained beside them five talents more. His lord said unto him, well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord. He also that had received two talents came and said, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me two talents, behold, I have gained two other talents beside them. His lord said unto him, well done, good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy lord.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 6</sup>

“Then he which had received the one talent came and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed; and I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth, lo, there thou hast that is thine. His lord answered and said unto him, thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strawed; thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury. Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents. For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance. But from him that hath not shall be taken away, even that which he hath. And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness; there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.” [Matthew 25:14-30.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 7</sup>

We are to work earnestly and vigilantly to prepare the way for the second coming of the Lord. There is much to be done in preparation for that solemn event. Waiting, watching, praying and working—this is what we are to do as servants of God. Personal consecration is necessary, and this cannot be unless heart-holiness is cultivated and cherished.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 8</sup>

God requires us to be faithful in His service. There is to be no spiritual declension. The apostle exhorts us to be “not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.” [Romans 12:11.] All are to strive to increase their capabilities, that they may continually do better work for the Master. He has provided every facility so that His servants can work intelligently.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 9</sup>

Christ is our Master. By definite instructions he prepared his followers for their work before leaving them. As soon as he could talk, Christ used the talent of speech, in the family circle, and among friends and acquaintances, in a way that was without fault.

Not one impure word escaped his lips. Never did he do a wrong action; for he was the Son of God. Although he possessed a human form, yet he was without a taint of sin.14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 10

When invited, as his work commenced, to a dinner or feast, by Pharisee or publican, he accepted the invitation. He was accused by the religious leaders of eating with publicans, and they cast the imputation upon him that he was like them. But on such occasions Christ controlled the table talk, and gave many precious lessons. Those present listened to Him; for had He not healed their sick, comforted their sorrowing, taken their children in His arms and blessed them? Publicans and sinners were drawn to Him, and when He opened His lips to speak, their attention was riveted on him.14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 11

Christ taught His disciples how to conduct themselves when in the company of those who were not religious and those who were. He taught them by example that when attending any public gathering, they need not want for something to say. But His conversation differed most decidedly from that which had been listened to at feasts in the past. Every word He uttered was a savor of life unto life to His hearers, and they listened with subdued attention, as though desirous of hearing to a purpose.14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 12

The respect shown to Christ at the feasts He attended was in marked contrast to the manner in which the scribes and Pharisees were treated, and this made them envious. Christ gave lessons adapted for the needs of His hearers. It was when He was at a feast that He gave the parable of the great supper, and [showed] the way in which the invitation of the king was treated.14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 13

“It came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees, to eat bread on the Sabbath day, that they watched him. ... And he put forth a parable to them which were bidden, when he marked how they chose out the chief rooms; saying unto them, When thou art bidden of any man to a wedding, sit not down in the highest room; lest a more honorable man than thou be bidden of thee. And he that bade him and thee come and say to thee, Give this man place, and thou begin with shame to take the lowest room. But when thou art bidden, go and sit down in the lowest room; that when he that bade thee cometh, he may say unto thee, Friend, go up higher: then shalt thou have worship in the presence of them that sit at meat with thee. For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.” [Luke 14:1, 7-11.] 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 14

The great Teacher spoke as one having authority. He instructed His disciples in regard to the duties and regulations of true social life, which are the same as the laws of the kingdom of God. Christ spoke His words with great clearness and simplicity, and with no uncertain sound. His words were as apples of gold in pictures of silver. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 15

In His parables Christ held up the mirror of His Father’s mind. Every insult shown by man to his fellow man only made Him more conscious of their need of His divine sympathy. He realized the harm Satan was trying to do through power of position and wealth. He felt in His human nature the need of the ministration of heavenly angels. He felt the need of His Father’s help, as no other human being has ever felt it. He was Himself winning, as a powerful warrior, a victory in behalf of the world that He had created. Under the most trying circumstances, His faith did not fail. He placed Himself in the hands of His Father, and every insult He endured made Him understand better man’s great need. As the Substitute and Surety of the human race, He felt every pang of anguish that man can ever feel. He Himself suffered being tempted. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 16

“He was despised and rejected of men; a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief: and we hid as it were our faces from him; he was despised, and we esteemed him not. Surely he hath borne our grief, and carried our sorrows: yet we did esteem him stricken, smitten of God, and afflicted. But he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities: the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; and the Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all.” [Isaiah 53:3-6.] These words describe the experience of the afflicted Son of God. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 17

In everything Christ sought first the kingdom of God and His righteousness; and that which He did He commands His followers to do. This example He gave to the human race that they might in His strength render to God the obedience He requires, and in the end present themselves perfect before His throne. He was one with the Father. His life was a fulfilling of the law, a continual obedience to God's commands. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 18

Christ's humanity made Him very tender toward humanity. The lesson He gave His disciples was in perfect harmony with His announcement of His life work. We read that after being tempted in the wilderness, Christ returned into Galilee, "and he taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all. And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up: and, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the Sabbath day, and stood up for to read. And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Esaias, and when he had opened the book, he found the place where it was written, The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord." [Luke 4:15-19.]14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 19

Christ opened before His disciples the principles to be maintained. "When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends," He said, "nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbors; lest they also bid thee again, and a recompense be made thee. But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind: and thou shalt be blessed; for they cannot recompense thee: but thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just. And when one of them that sat at meat with him heard these things he said unto them, Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God." [Luke 14:12-15.] The eating of bread seemed to be the great lesson to him. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 20

Christ in answer gave the parable of the supper. He made the matter of the invitation to be given [the] work for all to do. The class first invited refused to come, and none of them, He declared, would be invited again. This answer shows that the spirit of the man who made himself prominent by saying, "Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God," was similar to the spirit manifested by Balaam, when he said, "Let me die the death of the righteous, and let my last end be like his." [Numbers 23:10.] Christ's answer plainly reveals the spirit of the man who had expressed his seeming piety. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 21

The second invitation was given to the poor and needy. "Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city," the master said, "and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind. And the servant said, Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded, and yet there is room. And the Lord said unto the servant, Go out into the highways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled. For I say unto you, That none of those men which were bidden shall taste of my supper." [Luke 14:21-24.] 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 22

The great feast is prepared. The first class honored by the invitation refused to respond. The feast would be abundantly provided with guests, but not one of those who refused would taste of the supper. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 23

"Behold the Lord maketh the earth empty, and maketh it waste, and turneth it upside down, and scattereth abroad the inhabitants thereof. And it shall be, as with the people, so with the priest; as with the servant, so with his master; as with the maid, so with her mistress; as with the buyer, so with the seller; as with the lender, so with the borrower; as with the taker of usury, so with the giver of usury. The land shall be utterly emptied, and utterly spoiled: for the Lord hath spoken this word. The earth mourneth and fadeth away, the world languisheth and fadeth away, the haughty people of the earth do languish. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 24

"The earth also is defiled under the inhabitants thereof; because they have transgressed the laws, changed the ordinance, broken the everlasting covenant. Therefore hath the curse devoured the earth, and they that dwell therein are desolate; therefore the inhabitants of the earth are burned, and few men left. The new wine mourneth, the vine languisheth, all the merry hearted do sigh. The mirth of tabrets ceaseth, the noise of them that rejoice endeth, the joy of the heart ceaseth. They shall not drink wine with a song; strong drink shall be bitter to them that drink it. The city of confusion is broken down; every house is shut up, that no man may come in.” [Isaiah 24:1-10.] 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 25

Here is described a class to be labored for. Many of them were once in possession of wealth. Some are highly educated, but the pollutions of the world, strong drink, indulgence in the lusts of the flesh, have brought them to the lowest depths. They are still, thank God, prisoners of hope, for among those sunken in the lowest depths of degradation the Lord sees those who cannot restore themselves. They may hear the call, but their ears are too dull to take in its meaning; their eyes are too blind to see anything good in store for them. They are dead in trespasses and sins. They are to be laid hold of, and compelled to come in. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 26

Medical missionary workers are fulfilling this phase of the work. Poor outcasts are admitted to places prepared for them. They are taken to bathrooms, washed, and dressed in clean clothing. Their hunger is satisfied, and then the gospel is preached to them, simply and earnestly. They are told that Christ, the Son of God, is their Restorer. Thus those who were homeless and hopeless are encouraged to believe in Jesus Christ, and to realize that He will receive them. They are invited to sign the temperance pledge, and the hope is held before them that Christ the Restorer, the great Medical Missionary, will relieve their suffering bodies, and restore to soundness the abused intellect. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 27

Some grasp quickly the hope presented; others not so readily. Let the workers remember that the invitation is to be given to all. Practical work is to be done. “Compel them to come in.” [Luke 14:23.] Active work must be done in laying hold of the poor souls who have scarcely enough sense left to know whether they have souls to be saved. They have lost their sense of eternal realities. Then let the workers act as Christ would were He in their place. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 28

Some say, Where are you going to take me? They realize their great degradation. They say, I am not fit to be helped. Leave me alone. But because of this the workers must not desist. By ministering to publicans and sinners they are co-operating with God. These poor outcasts are to hear the voice of prayer in their behalf. Take them, and lay them at the feet of Christ. Compel them to come by your kindness. You can see clearly the end which you desire them to reach. They cannot see what you see. They cannot hear Christ's call, but you hear it, and you must act in His stead. Christ's great love must be your law, impelling or compelling, as the case demands. You must hold fast to those you are trying to help, else victory will never be yours. Only as you can get them to look upon the Saviour hanging on the cross, in His inexpressible love, will they, as they become sane, make the kingdom of heaven their choice. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 29

When they do this, the goal of your endeavor is reached, for Christ's righteousness goes before you, and they are clothed with the wedding garment. There must be appointed over these outcasts those who watch for souls as they that must give an account. Those who have decided to make an effort to live for Christ must have the weakened willpower carefully guided, closely guarded. Be sure that they have work to do. They have lost their manhood and womanhood, and this they must win back. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 30

Everyone is born into the world with hereditary tendencies that must be closely watched and guarded against. Evil and good, from within and without, keep up a constant struggle for the supremacy. Few know the overmastering power of appetite, and the fury of the collision between habits of self-indulgence and the determination to be temperate in all things. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 31

Let all remember that ministering angels are beside every truehearted son and daughter of God. You do not work alone. Christ is the Restorer. Those who work for the suffering and needy, under the supervision of Christ, will see great results. But all workers must learn constantly in the school of Christ. They must use faithfully the talents God has given them. Thus they will grow in grace and in the knowledge of God and Jesus Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 32

Let no selfishness mingle with the service done for fallen humanity. The Lord calls for faithful workers. The fascinating witcheries of evil present themselves in disguise. Each worker must be wide awake to the bewitching power of Satan, as he seeks to rescue men from deadly evils. He must be sure that he is a partaker of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 33

Let all who work for those sunken low in degradation keep mind and heart in the love of God. Let them stay their minds upon a divine presence, which is always beside them, ever looking on with pitying tenderness. Let them think of a Father's heart that ever grieves over sin, of a Father's hand stretched out still, a Father's voice saying, "Let him take hold of my strength, that he may make peace with me, and he shall make peace with me." [Isaiah 27:5.] "I will punish the world for their evil, and the wicked for their iniquity; I will cause the arrogancy of the proud to cease, and I will lay low the haughtiness of the terrible." "I will make a man more precious than gold, even a man than the golden wedge of Ophir." [Isaiah 27:5; 13:11, 12.] 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 34

The whole world is to hear the gospel invitation. Those who have fallen through sin to the very lowest depths are not to be excluded. They are to hear the invitation, "Come." They are to be brought in where the light of truth shines forth. They will think when the invitation is made that they are not fit to be in such company, that their dress is not appropriate. The Lord says, "Compel them to come in." [Luke 14:23.] Listen to no excuse. Make them come as they are. Take right hold of them. 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 35

"Ye, beloved, building up yourselves on your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Ghost, keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life. And of some have compassion, making a difference: and others save with fear, pulling them out of the fire; hating even the garment spotted by the flesh. Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to present you faultless before the presence of his glory with exceeding joy, to the only wise God our Saviour, be glory and majesty, dominion and power, both now and ever." [Jude 20-25.] 14LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 36

“Compel them to come in, that my house may be filled.” [Luke 14:23.] What a message for the ministers of Christ! Our Lord now removes the veil and proclaims the supper His own. The time will come when those who refuse the invitation would give all for another opportunity. But He will not allow one of them to taste of His supper. Paul declares, “Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ; and to make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ; to the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be known by the church the manifold wisdom of God, according to the eternal purpose, which he purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord.” [Ephesians 3:8-11.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 19, 1899, par. 37

The Second Advent

The people of God are to bear in mind that the great day of the Lord is at hand. The signs which Christ declared would be given just prior to His second appearing are now being fulfilled. Speaking of this time the Saviour said, "As the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. Then shall two be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left. Two women shall be grinding at the mill; the one shall be taken, and the other left. Watch therefore; for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come. But know this, that if the good man of the house had known in what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have suffered his house to be broken up. Therefore be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not, the Son of man cometh." [Matthew 24:37-44.]14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 1

"Of that day, and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father. Take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is. For the Son of man is as a man taking a far journey, who left his house, and gave authority to his servants, and to every man his work, and commanded the porter to watch. Watch ye therefore: for ye know not when the master of the house cometh, at even, or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing or in the morning: lest coming suddenly he find you sleeping. And what I say unto you I say unto all, Watch."

[Mark 13:32-37.]14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 2

Christ gave this information, these cautions and warnings, for us. He has told us the signs which are to herald His second advent, and now He calls for faithful watchmen who will give their attention to the fast-fulfilling prophecies and stand, not in idle contemplation, but watching and waiting for the second appearing of Christ in the clouds of heaven. The events taking place in this world will be recognized by these faithful watchmen. They will not be found surprised and unready.14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 3

The day and hour of Christ's coming is unknown to the people of God. By lips that never make a mistake it has been declared, "Of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven." For this reason the solemn charge comes to each of us, "Watch." "Be ye also ready; for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh." [Matthew 24:36, 42, 44.]14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 4

"Who then," Christ asks, "is a faithful and wise servant, whom his lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season." Who will be on the watch and, tracing the signs of Christ's coming point by point, give the right message to the people? "Blessed is that servant, whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing." [Verses 45, 46.]14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 5

There is a great work to be done, and those who are doing God's service must not employ their time in preparing a variety of foods for the table. They are not to be slaves in the kitchen. Christ exhorts all: "Take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting and drunkenness and cares of this life, and so that day come upon you unawares. For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth. Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that ye may be accounted worthy to escape all these things which shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man." [Luke 21:34-36.]14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par.

The Gift of God's Grace

The parable of the talents presents a most important truth, which all should understand. God has not distributed His talents capriciously. To every man are given abilities which will fit him for the work God calls him to do. There is to be no sleeping at the post of duty. Every soul is to understand that he has work to do for God. 14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 7

Study carefully the fourth chapter of Zechariah, and learn what the two olive trees there referred to mean. Read it carefully verse by verse, for in this chapter the features of the work in which we are engaged are plainly set forth. 14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 8

“And the angel that talked with me came again, and waked me, as a man that is wakened out of his sleep, and said unto me, What seest thou? And I said, I have looked, and behold a candlestick all of gold, and a bowl upon the top of it, and his seven lamps thereon, and seven pipes to the seven lamps, which are upon the top thereof: and two olive trees by it, one upon the right side of the bowl, and one upon the left side thereof. So I answered and spake to the angel that talked with me, saying, What are these, my lord? Then the angel that talked with me answered and said unto me, Knowest thou not what these be? And I said, No, my lord. Then he answered and spake unto me, saying, This is the word of the Lord unto Zerubbabel, saying, Not by might nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord.” [Verses 1-6.] Our power and efficiency are not in ourselves; we receive them from a higher source. 14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 9

“The answered I, and said unto him, What are these two olive trees upon the right side of the candlestick, and upon the left side thereof? And I answered again, and said unto him, What be these two olive branches, which through the two golden pipes empty the golden oil out of themselves? And he answered me, and said, Knowest thou not what these be? And I said, No, my Lord. Then said he, These are the two anointed ones, that stand by the Lord of the whole earth.” [Verses 11-14.] 14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 10

“Then I turned, and lifted up mine eyes, and looked, and behold a flying roll. And he said unto me, What seest thou? And I answered, I see a flying roll; the length thereof is twenty cubits, and the breadth thereof ten cubits. Then said he unto me, This is the curse that goeth forth over the face of the whole earth; for everyone that stealeth shall be cut off as on this side according to it; and everyone that sweareth shall be cut off as on that side according to it. I will bring it forth, saith the Lord of hosts, and it shall enter into the house of the thief, and into the house of him that sweareth falsely by my name; and it shall remain in the midst of his house, and shall consume it with the timber thereof and the stones thereof.” [Zechariah 5:1-4.]14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 11

The events that are taking place on earth are critically watched in heaven; for by them human beings are being tested and proved. Every individual soul, if he would receive the seal of the living God, must hear the Word of the Lord, and do it with exactitude. There must be no such thing as haphazard religion if men would have a place in the family of God. All who are brought into connection with God will be pure and holy. They will receive the holy oil from the heavenly messengers, and will impart it to their fellow men.14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 12

The talents entrusted to men are not to be employed to please and glorify self, but to honor Him from whom those talents come; and as these gifts of God are appreciated and valued and used, they will increase. The fulness of Christ awaits every receiver. Of our own selves we are poor, but if we come to Christ, and ask Him in faith, we shall receive eternal riches. Christ stands waiting for us to ask Him for the gift of the Holy Spirit. I may say, You will receive; but my word is not enough. You must take the words of Christ, and understand his willingness to bless and strengthen and give to you the fulness of his riches. The more the precious treasures of grace are discovered and drawn upon, the more anxious will we be for all to enjoy these heavenly riches. According to our capacity for understanding and appreciating these great gifts of God will be our ability to communicate, to enlighten the minds of those who are in the darkness of error. We are to draw from the inexhaustible source, and gladden hungry starving souls by presenting to them the living bread which comes down from heaven.14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 13

Every man should consider himself of value with God, because he has been entrusted with the richest gift that can be obtained. The soul is thrilled with the love of Christ as it drinks deep from the inexhaustible fountain. "This is the will of God concerning you, even your sanctification." [1 Thessalonians 4:3.] Although our sins may be as a mountain before us, if we humble our hearts and confess our sins, trusting in the merits of a crucified and risen Saviour, He will forgive, and cleanse us from all unrighteousness. As the soul yearns after God, he will find more and still more of the unsearchable riches of His grace. 14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 14

The salvation of one soul reveals the depths of a Saviour's matchless love. If all church members who have known the truth would accept this salvation, they would bear the testimony, "We have redemption through his blood. The law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made us free from the law of sin and death. We are more than conquerors through him that loved us and gave himself for us. Believing in him, we rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." [See Ephesians 1:7; Romans 8:2-4, 37; Titus 2:14; 1 Peter 1:8.] 14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 15

This should be the expression of every soul whose name is on the church books. But many are not in communication with God, and therefore they cannot give life to the church. It is the privilege of every soul to be a living channel through which God can communicate the treasures of His grace, the unsearchable riches of Christ. When God's people occupy this position, light will shine forth to the world, and blessed experiences will be made known. Confessions of Christ will be made which will reveal that hearts are burning under the reception of the holy oil that comes from the two olive trees. 14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 16

It is here, right here in this world, that our talents are to be used in helping the souls who need help, those who desire to be led by the Lamb of God. It is not enough that we ourselves enjoy the riches of God's grace. We are to lead others to the fountain of living waters. We are to point souls to the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. This is the work which God designs shall come first. And when Christ shall come, He will gather the redeemed from every nation, kindred, tongue, and people, and lead them Himself to fountains of living waters. 14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 17

The talents God has given carry with them an accountability. It is the work, and should be the pleasure, of every one who believes in Christ, to present to the world, in his own life, the unsearchable riches he finds in his Saviour. We may make daily progress in the upward path to holiness, and yet we find still greater heights to be reached; but every stretch of the spiritual muscles, every taxation of heart and brain, brings to light the abundance of the supply of grace essential for us as we advance. The more we contemplate these riches, the more we will come into possession of them, and the more we shall reveal the merits of Christ's sacrifice, the protection of His righteousness, His inexpressible love, the fulness of His wisdom, and His power to present us before the Father without spot or wrinkle or any such thing. 14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 18

The words of the apostle Paul to Timothy, "Take heed to thyself and to the doctrine," may be addressed to every member of the church. [1 Timothy 4:16.] The golden oil is the pure, unadulterated truth in doctrine and practice. Received, believed, and practiced, this truth forms character that will prepare us to do the great work to be done in this life, and will give us a fitness for the service we shall render to God in eternity. Again the apostle exhorts, "Wherefore, my beloved, ... work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For it is God which worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleasure. Do all things without murmurings and disputings; that ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world holding forth the word of life." [Philippians 2:12-16.]14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 19

"As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name: which were born not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God. And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, ... full of grace and truth. ... And of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace." [John 1:12-14, 16.]14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 20

Man can do nothing of himself. He cannot advance or retard the work. The work must be done through the power of the Spirit of God. The Spirit's grace is imparted to the church to be given to the world. Zerubbabel could not understand this mystery, and as a little child he confessed his ignorance. He longed to understand, and he placed himself where he could understand. Then the word of the Lord came to him, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord." [Zechariah 4:6.]14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 21

The work is the Lord's, and man must be His faithful instrument. If he will cease to look at appearances, and trust in the living God, he will have all the help he needs. He is to go forward in faith. Man's weakness is no obstacle in this work, for God can perfect his strength out of weakness. He can save by many or by few.14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 22

This is a representation of the work of the truth. Zerubbabel is represented as the chief authority in directing the work. Man is to do his appointed work, but he must move forward in faith; for a lack of faith will leave his work incomplete. Mountains of difficulties will be removed, and the work will be completed, but it must be acknowledged as wholly of grace. We are living amid the perils of the last days. That period of time is no longer in the future; it is right upon us. There is need of men who will not fail nor be discouraged. There must be no negligence now. Every attention must be given to the spiritual necessities of men and women, lest the day of God shall overtake them as a thief. We must be diligent in using the talents entrusted to us, that we may give back to God His own with usury. All are to be workers. On every soul rests the most solemn responsibility to use his opportunities and privileges for the glory of God.14LtMs, Ms 20, 1899, par. 23

“Give Unto the Lord the Glory Due Unto His Name.”

We are all living on probation. Those who have passed into their graves have been tested and tried, to see if they would realize their responsibility to serve God. This should be to us the most powerful of all motives. It should lead us to make every exertion to improve the privileges and opportunities provided for us, that we may understand how to use wisely the Lord's goods. It should lead us to keep brain, bone, muscle, and nerve in the most healthful condition, that our physical strength and mental clearness may make us faithful stewards. Selfish interest must ever be made subordinate, for if given room to act, it becomes a controlling power which contracts the intellect, hardens the heart, and weakens the moral power. Then disappointment comes. The man has divorced himself from God and sold himself to unworthy pursuits. He cannot be happy for he cannot respect himself. He has lowered himself in his own estimation. He is an intellectual failure.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 1

Daniel was regarded by the Lord as a man, because he was a steward who traded faithfully on his Lord's goods. He did not forget God, but placed himself in the channel of light, where he could commune with God in prayer. And we read that God gave Daniel and his fellows knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 2

Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, dreamed a dream which none of his wise men could interpret. The secret was revealed to Daniel in a night vision, and we read, “Daniel answered and said, Blessed be the name of God forever and ever: for wisdom and might are his: and he changeth the times and seasons; he removeth kings and setteth up kings. He giveth wisdom unto the wise, and knowledge to them that know understanding: he revealeth the deep and secret things: he knoweth what is in the darkness, and the light dwelleth with him. I thank thee and praise thee, O thou God of my fathers, who hath given me wisdom and might, and hast made known unto me now what we desired of thee: for then hast now made known unto us the king's matter." [Daniel 2:20-23.]14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 3

Daniel did not stand before king Nebuchadnezzar to glorify human power, to dishonor God by failing to acknowledge His goodness. Had he not acknowledged God as the source of his wisdom, he would have been an unfaithful steward. Those who follow the example set by Daniel will connect with the Lord. They will consult Him as a son consults a wise father. Not all human fathers possess wisdom; but God may always be trusted and depended on. With perfect assurance we may commit the keeping of our souls to Him as unto a faithful Creator.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 4

Did Daniel's faithful recognition of God before kings, princes, and statesmen detract from his influence? No. Read his firm, bold testimony, and then follow his example. Let the clear-cut testimony, like a sharp, two-edged sword, cut to the right and to the left. Make appeals that will bring foolish, wandering minds back to God.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 5

After Daniel had given Nebuchadnezzar God's warnings in regard to self-exaltation, he said to him, "Wherefore, O king, let my counsel be acceptable unto thee, and break off thy sins by righteousness, and thy iniquities by showing mercy to the poor; if it may be a lengthening of thy tranquillity." [Daniel 4:27.] Had the king heeded this counsel, the threatened evil might have been averted, but he went on with proud superiority, until his reason was taken from him, and he became as the beasts of the field. God allowed him to suffer seven years of deplorable degradation, and then removed His chastening hand. Then the king acknowledged his wrong.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 6

“At the end of the days,” the record reads, “I Nebuchadnezzar lifted up mine eyes unto heaven, and mine understanding returned unto me, and I praised and honored him that liveth forever, whose dominion is an everlasting dominion, and his kingdom is from generation to generation. And all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing, and he doeth according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth: and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou? At the same time my reason returned unto me, and for the glory of my kingdom, mine honor and brightness returned unto me, and my counsellors and my lords sought unto me, and I was established in my kingdom, and excellent majesty was added unto me. Now I, Nebuchadnezzar praise and extol and honor the king of heaven, all whose works are truth, and whose ways judgment; and those that walk in pride he is able to abase.” [Verses 34-37.] 14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 7

Said the great apostle Paul, “Let a man so account of us as ministers of the kingdom of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God. Moreover it is required in stewards that a man be found faithful.” [1 Corinthians 4:1, 2.] Those who act a part in the work of God do good only because God is behind them, doing the work. Shall we then praise men, and give thanks to man, neglecting to recognize God? If we do, God will not co-operate with us. When man puts himself first and God second, he shows that he is losing his wisdom and righteousness. All that is ever done toward restoring the moral image of God in man is done because God is the efficiency of the worker. Christ declares in His prayer to His Father, “This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent.” [John 17:3.] 14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 8

Let every steward understand that as he strives to advance the glory of God in our world, whether he stands before infidels or princes, he is to make God first and last and best in everything. The true Christian will realize that he has a right to his name only as he uplifts Christ with a steady, persevering, and ever-increasing force. No ambitious motive will chill his energy, for it comes from an inexhaustible source—the Light of life. 14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 9

“It is required of stewards, that a man be found faithful.” [1

Corinthians 4:2.] When we are faithful in making God known, our impulses will be under divine supervision, and we shall make steady growth, spiritually and intellectually. But when men enter into a confederacy to exalt men, and have little to say of God, they are weakness itself. God will leave those who do not recognize Him in every effort made to uplift humanity. It is Christ's power alone that can restore broken-down human machinery. Everywhere and in every place let those around you see that you give God the glory. Let man be put in the shade, let God appear as the only hope of the human race. Every man must rivet his building to the eternal Rock, Christ Jesus; then it will stand amid storm and tempest.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 10

God prepares the mind to recognize Him who alone can help the striving, struggling soul. He will educate all who stand under His banner to be faithful stewards of His grace. Man cannot show greater weakness than by thinking he will find more acceptance in the sight of men if he leaves God out of his assemblies. God must stand the highest. The wisdom of the greatest man is foolishness with Him.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 11

God has given to man immortal principles, to which every human power must one day bow. We have truth that has been given us in trust. The precious beams of this light are not to be hid under a bushel, but are to give light to all that are in the house. Truth, imperishable truth, is to be made prominent. Show those with whom you come in contact that the truth is of consequence with you. It means much to you to stand by principles which will live through the eternal ages.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 12

God has given every man talents, that His name may be exalted, not that man may be lauded and praised, honored and glorified, while the Giver is left out of their counsels. All have been entrusted with God's gifts, from the lowest and most poverty-stricken to the highest and wealthiest, who walk in haughty pride. To every man has been given physical, mental, and moral powers. Let none waste their God-given time in regrets that they have only one talent. Spend every moment in using the talents which you have. They are the Lord's to be returned to Him. It is not your own property you are handling, but the Lord's. He will one day come, to receive His own with usury. Fulfill faithfully your appointed stewardship, that you may meet Him in peace.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 13

Have we consecrated all our talents to God? We cannot be excused in withholding one from Him. Reason is a precious gift. Do not abuse it, for God can remove it. The gift of speech is a valuable talent. Never despise or demerit this gift. Thank God for entrusting it to you. It is a precious gift, to be sanctified, elevated, and ennobled. As a sacred trust, the voice should be used to honor God. It should never utter harsh, impure words or words of faultfinding. The gospel of Christ is to be proclaimed by the voice.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 14

With the talent of speech we are to communicate the truth as we have opportunity. It should ever be used in God's service; but this talent is grievously abused. Words are spoken which do great harm. Christ declared, "Every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment. For by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned."
[Matthew 12:36, 37.]14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 15

Our means are a talent, which is to be placed in God's treasury to be invested in His cause. But many are robbing God in tithes and offerings. God says, "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse: for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in my house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it."
[Malachi 3:8-10.]14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 16

The ministers of Christ are in a special sense ministers of the mysteries of God. Are we as individuals searching the Word of God carefully and prayerfully, lest we shall depart from its precepts and requirements? The Lord will not look upon us with pleasure if we withhold anything, small or great, that should be returned to Him. If we desire to spend money to gratify our own inclinations, let us think of the good we might do with that money. Let us lay aside for the Master smaller and larger sums, that the work may be built up in new places. If we spend selfishly the means so much needed, the Lord does not, cannot, bless us with His commendation.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 17

As stewards of the grace of God, we are handling the Lord's money. It means much, very much to us, to be strengthened by His rich grace day by day, to be enabled to understand His will, to be found faithful in that which is least as well as that which is great. When this is our experience, the service of Christ will be a reality to us. God demands this of us, and before angels and men we should reveal our gratitude for what he has done for us. We should reflect back God's benevolence to us in praise and deeds of mercy. Read the eighth and ninth chapters of second Corinthians. These words show the impression made upon those for whom we work when we act as Christ would have acted in our place. "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man as he purposeth in his heart so let him give, not grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound, toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work (as it is written, He hath dispersed abroad, he hath given to the poor, his righteousness remaineth forever. <sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 18

"Now he that ministereth seed to the sower both minister bread for your food, and multiply your seed sown, and increase the fruits of your righteousness:) being enriched in everything to all bountifulness, which causeth through us thanksgiving to God. For the administration of this service not only supplieth the want of the saints, but is abundant also by many thanksgivings unto God; whiles by the experiment of this ministration they glorify God through your professed subjection unto the gospel of Christ, and for your liberal distribution unto them and unto all men; and by their prayer for you, which long after you for the exceeding grace of God in you. Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift." [<sup>2</sup> Corinthians 9:10-15.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 19

Do all church members realize that all they have is given them to be used and improved. God keeps a faithful account with every human being in our world. When the day of reckoning comes, the faithful steward takes no credit to himself. "Thy pound," he says, "has gained other pounds." [Luke 19:16.] He does not say, "My pound." He knows that without the entrusted gift no increase could have been made. He feels that in faithfully discharging his stewardship he has only done his duty. The capital was the Lord, and by His power he was enabled to trade upon it successfully. His name only should be glorified. Without the entrusted capital he knows that he would have been bankrupt for eternity. The approval of the Lord is received almost with surprise; it is so unexpected. But Christ says to him, "Well done good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things; I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." [Matthew 25:23.] 14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 20

Are we, as members of the Lord's family, striving to be among the number who shall walk with him in white because he finds in them true obedience? The testimony of the one who strives earnestly for the crown of life may be, I study for eternity. His steady purpose will not only aid himself, but will help others to practice industry. The Lord will cooperate with the worker who puts his heart into his work, who walks in all humility of mind. Such a worker will work in the love and fear of God. A sense of the gratitude due to God will lead him to improve every opportunity for expressing his thanksgiving, which will be accepted as a testimony of loyalty. 14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 21

Faithfulness toward God in the discharge of every good work will bring God's blessings. As we show ourselves faithful in fulfilling our trust, our influence leads others to do likewise. They are filled with thanksgiving and praise to God as the one to whom praise is due. Those who are not with us in the faith are given a practical evidence of the power of the truth to sanctify the naturally selfish heart. God calls upon us to work for him in a world of sin, where men are given to idolatry. They have no thought of their obligation to their Creator. They act as though they had created themselves and their blessings. 14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 22

God bestows His bounties upon the evil and upon the good. He gives [to] all sunshine and showers of rain. He carefully watches the seed put into the soil, that from it may spring the living germ. But very few have any realization of the blessings God bestows upon them from day to day. Still less do they realize the greatness of the gift of God's only begotten Son. If they only comprehended the sacrifice that was made in order that our world might be blessed with the light of truth, how many conversions would be made in a day! How many would rally round the standard of the Redeemer!14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 23

By earnest, faithful work the gospel is to be carried to regions beyond, to cities and towns, into the highways and byways. And as souls are converted, let all glory be given to God. "He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. For not he that commendeth himself is approved, but he whom the Lord commendeth." [2 Corinthians 10:16-18.] Earnest effort should be made to present before men and women the example that Christ has left them in His life of sacrifice. He laid aside His royal crown and kingly robe, and yielding up His high position as Commander of the heavenly host, He clothed His divinity with humanity, and for our sake became poor, that we through His poverty might come into possession of eternal riches.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 24

Paul writes to Timothy, "Godliness with contentment is great gain. For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out, and having food and raiment let us be therewith content. But they that will be rich fall into temptation and a snare, and into many foolish and hurtful lusts, which drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is the root of all evil: which while some coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themselves through with many sorrows. But thou, O man of God, flee these things; and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness." [1 Timothy 6:6-11.] Who will take these words into the inmost soul and for Christ's sake, for their soul's sake, awaken to the perils that are threatening all who fail to find refuge in Christ?14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 25

The apostle continues, "I give thee charge in the sight of God who quickeneth all things, and before Christ Jesus, who before Pontius Pilate witnessed a good confession, that thou keep this commandment without spot, unrebukable, until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ: which in his times he shall show, who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords; who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen, nor can see, to whom be honor and power everlasting. Charge them that are rich in this world that they be not high-minded, nor trust in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy; that they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to distribute, willing to communicate; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life.”

[Verses 13-19.]14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 26

Christ declares, “He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me.” [Mark 8:34.] Those who have on the wedding garment, the robe of Christ’s righteousness, will not question whether they should lift the cross and follow in the footsteps of the Saviour. Willingly and cheerfully they will obey His commands. Souls are perishing out of Christ. How inconsistent then is all striving after position and wealth! How feeble are the motives which Satan may present, which selfishness and ambition can furnish, in comparison with the lessons which Christ has given in His Word! How worthless the reward the world offers beside that offered by our heavenly Father!14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 27

“After this, I beheld, and, lo, a great multitude, which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and peoples, and tongues, stood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands; and cried with a loud voice, saying, Salvation to our God which sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb. And all the angels stood round about the throne, and about the elders and the four beasts, and fell before the throne on their faces, and worshiped God, saying, Amen: Blessing and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honor, and power, and might, be unto our God forever and ever. And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes, and whence came they? And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 28

“And he said unto me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple. And he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters: and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes.” [Revelation 7:9-17.]14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 29

“And unto the angel of the church in Sardis write: These things saith he that hath the seven Spirits of God, and the seven stars: I know thy works, that thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead. Be watchful, and strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die: for I have not found thy words perfect before God. Remember therefore how thou hast received and heard, and hold fast, and repent. If therefore thou shalt not watch, I will come on thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know what hour I will come upon thee. Thou hast a few names even in Sardis which have not defiled their garments; and they shall walk with me in white; for they are worthy.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 30

“He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels. ... I know thy works; behold I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it: for thou hast a little strength, and hast kept my words, and hast not denied my name. ... Because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth. Behold, I come quickly: hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown. Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is new Jerusalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God, and I will write upon him my new name.” [Revelation 3:5, 8, 10-12.]14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 31

“And unto the angel of the church of the Laodiceans write: These things saith the Amen, the faithful and true Witness, the beginning of the creation of God: I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot. I would that wert cold or hot. So then because thou art lukewarm, I will spew thee out of my mouth. Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing; and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked: I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich, and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 32

“And anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see. As many as I love I rebuke and chasten. Be zealous therefore, and repent. Behold, I stand at the door and knock. If any man hear my voice and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches.” [Verses 14-22.]14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 33

These words are being fulfilled today. Read and understand the revealed truth of God. A heavenly Watcher marks our words and deportment, and reads the motives which prompt us to action. We have no time now to be idle and indifferent. We must strive to develop a Christian character. Our spiritual understanding must be cleansed, purified, sanctified, and ennobled. All are now taking sides. It is ours now to choose a blessing or a curse. Now is the time for us to purify the mind by obeying the truth.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 34

Christ is to be our example in all things. He alone had the power to reclaim important truth from the rubbish under which it had been buried, making it shine forth in its original loveliness. In His parables, in order that He might awaken interest and sympathy, He drew His illustrations from the things of nature. Plucking a lily in its glowing beauty, He said, “Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: and yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.” [Matthew 6:28, 29.] In all His teaching Christ sought to impress His hearers that all true knowledge leads heavenward, and that all nature’s lessons, rightly understood and interpreted, are the lessons of the Creator.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 35

There is a great work to be done in our world, and Christian educators are needed, men and women who are partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. These can enter cities and towns, and plant the standard of truth, glorifying God by their humility and faith, by their faithful performance of every duty. In the work to be done in the Lord's vineyard discouragements will come, but these may prove instructive to the worker, teaching him to wait patiently, and endure trial nobly. Those who keep God's glory in view will not fail nor be discouraged.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 36

The Lord needs men who are true, who will not seek for promotion, but whose course of action is marked by self-sacrifice. The nature of our trust demands that self be lost in Christ, that in the daily life we seek to illustrate in the very best way possible the character of Christ.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 37

All sin, from the least to the greatest, may be overcome by the Holy Spirit's power. God desires us to lift up the Saviour as One who has been crucified among us. We are to think and talk of Christ, praising and magnifying His name. As servants of God, we need to put away all self-importance, and abide in Christ, taking not one jot or tittle of credit to ourselves. If we are abiding in Christ we shall reveal Him in character. Thus we become channels through which God can communicate light. We are made workers together with God.14LtMs, Ms 21, 1899, par. 38

True Prayer

NP

March 9, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in OHC 18, 36, 82, 130; 1MCP 262-263; 6BC 1058; 7BC 942-943; CTr 140; 12MR 255-256; 17MR 27. †Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“And it came to pass, that as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceased, one of his disciples said unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.” And Jesus taught them to pray in the words of the Lord’s prayer. “When ye pray,” He said, “say, Our Father, which art in heaven, hallowed by thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so in earth. Give us day by day our daily bread, and forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.” [Luke 11:1-4.]14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 1

Christ did not give this prayer for men to repeat as a form. He gave it as an illustration of what our prayers should be—simple, earnest, and comprehensive. Neglect prayer, and you cannot come to the light. This is the only way by which we can approach God, and every other way is not the way of the Lord. God’s way and will must be done. True prayer, offered in faith, is a power to the petitioner. By prayer, whether offered in the public assembly, or at the family altar, or in the desert, man places himself directly in the presence of God.14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 2

Christ continues, “Which of you shall have a friend, and shall go unto him at midnight, and say unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves; for a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to set before him? And he from within shall answer and say, Trouble me not; the door is now shut, and my children are with me in bed: I cannot rise and give thee. I say unto you, That though he will not rise and give him because he is his friend, yet because of his importunity he will rise and give as many as he needeth. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 3

“And I say unto you, Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock and it shall be opened unto you. For every one that asketh receiveth; and he that seeketh findeth, and to him that knocketh it shall be opened. If a son shall ask bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a stone? Or if he ask a fish, will he for a fish give him a serpent? Or if he shall ask an egg, will he offer him a scorpion? If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children: how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him?” [Verses 5-13.] 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 4

The Lord does not say to us, If any man lack wisdom, let him go to his pastor, or his neighbor, and pray to them for help. Lay your burden upon finite men as weak as yourself, and seek their wisdom. He invites us, “Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, ... and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.” [Matthew 11:28-30.] “If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering, for he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea, driven of the wind and tossed. But let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord.” [James 1:5-7.] 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 5

Shall we not cease from man, and ask the Lord to give us His wisdom? We cannot obtain from our fellow men that help which cometh alone from God, in whom is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 6

The Lord invites us to ask of Him. Shall we turn from God’s wisdom, to ask of man? They may advise us to do what is best, but unless they receive their light from heaven, finite men can have no certain light to give us. The Lord is acquainted with our ignorance and darkness, and He bids us come unto Him, the source of all light and all wisdom. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 7

The prayer meeting, if conducted properly, may be a power for good. But in these assemblies, one man is not to pray all over the world. The long, spiritless prayers that are offered do not bring blessing to any; they are no strength to the praying one, and give no glory to God. In our prayers we are to come right to the point. We are to ask for the divine presence, and that the Lord will bless the preaching of the Word. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 8

In the place of bearing your perplexities to a brother or a minister, take them to the Lord in prayer. Do not place the minister where God should be, but make him a subject of your prayers. We have all erred on this point. The minister of Christ is like other men. True, he bears more sacred responsibilities than a common businessman, but he is not infallible. He is compassed with infirmity, and needs grace and divine enlightenment. He needs the heavenly unction to do his work with exactitude and success, giving full proof of his ministry. There are those who are ignorant of the way of life and salvation, and these will find in the godly minister one who will teach them what they shall do to be saved. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 9

Those who know how to pray, who know what are the invitations of the gospel of Christ, who know the immutability of His promises, show dishonor to God when they lay their burden upon finite men. It is right, always, to counsel together. It is right to converse together. It is right to make the difficulties that present themselves in any enterprise plain before your brethren and your minister. But do not so greatly dishonor God as to depend on man for wisdom. Seek God for the wisdom that cometh from above. Ask your fellow laborers to pray with you, and the Lord will fulfill His word, "Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in their midst." [Matthew 18:20.]14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 10

As a people we have become weak and dwarfed in religious growth, because we have sought the strength of finite, erring men, when we might have had the strength of an unerring, infinite God. The displeasure of God is upon the churches in every conference, because they do not come to Jesus and learn of Him, seeking for that wisdom which He alone can give. Ministers who have labored zealously in the work have gone prematurely to the grave, because church members have clung to them, making them responsible for the work which God alone could do. They have not been able to do all that should have been done to teach the people the way of the Lord, to point them to Him who is man's sure Helper. Why do we not go to the mighty Helper, instead of to weak, erring man? Why do we place man where God should be? Let every church member closely examine his own heart, and see if he really has confidence in the promises of God?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 11

The gift of God's dear Son makes the promises of God ours of a surety. Christ clothed His divinity with humanity and paid the ransom for man, and He desires that man shall estimate the life thus provided for him by the infinite price paid. Man is to understand by an experimental knowledge the tender love of God for His creatures. God expressed this love in a wonderful way. He could not make man a partaker of the divine nature until His only begotten Son, One equal with Himself, should stoop to human nature and reach man where he was. God did not withhold His Son. In Christ humanity touched humanity, while divinity laid hold upon humanity. In Him man becomes a child of God, an heir to all the treasures of heaven.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 12

Before the humblest is opened the promises of the Word of God. God declares, "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all men liberally and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him." [James 1:5.] He will never be sent away empty. And the man who lives by every word of God will improve in mental and moral capabilities. He will have a clearer understanding than he manifested before he opened his heart to the entrance of the Word of life. Connected by faith with the living Source of wisdom and knowledge, the mental powers will grow and expand. While the powers of the intellect were under the sway of Satan, the whole man was deformed. But when the power of the truth is brought into the heart, it influences the entire being.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 13

It is the absence of the grace of Christ in the heart that causes men to make wrong decisions. It leads those who have had light and rejected it to regard light as darkness. They call error truth and truth error, because they walk in the sparks of their own kindling. God declares that such shall lie down in sorrow. The reception of the word of God in sincerity and simplicity will renew the mind and awaken it to understand clearly the Word of God. The blindness passes away, the darkness is removed, and the true light shines forth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 14

Promises are estimated by the truth of the one who makes them. Many men make promises only to break them, to mock the heart that trusted in them. Those who lean upon such men lean upon broken reeds. But God is behind the promises He makes. He is ever mindful of His covenant, and His truth endureth to all generations. "Blessed be the Lord, that hath given rest unto his people Israel, according to all that he promised: there hath not failed one word of all his good promises which he promised by the hand of Moses his servant." [1 Kings 8:56.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 15

The Lord is always the same. He keepeth truth forever, and there is no unfaithfulness in Him. We have confidence in our fellow men; then why are we so apt to distrust the promises of God? Christ declared that heaven and earth should pass away, but not one word of God should fail. Why then do we not honor the Lord by believing His Word, which is not Yea and Nay, but Yea and Amen in Christ Jesus? Why do we express our wants to men, and thus say, I can trust my fellow men, but I cannot trust the Lord? Why do we not come to our heavenly Father as a child comes to an earthly parent, and ask Him for the things we need? Christ says, "If ye then being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your heavenly Father give the Holy Spirit to them that ask him." [Luke 11:13.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 16

Do not let us grieve the Spirit of God any more. Do not let us show distrust in His Word, for He alone is to be depended upon. He is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords. He has a mighty arm; strong is His hand, and high is His right hand. He is a mighty God, who is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we can ask or think. He is wonderful in counsel, the only wise God. If He be for us, who can be against us? Then trust ye in the Lord forever; for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength.<sup>14</sup>LtMs,

*****

The Lord has revealed the power of His Word to His people in the past as He did to ancient Israel. But we have been pained to see men and women who were resolved not to see the evidences of truth. How difficult it is for the truth to make a favorable impression on the mind when that truth is not in harmony with men's ideas. There are few who will investigate the Word of God with that spirit that led the noble Bereans to compare Scripture with Scripture. When will those men in responsible positions recognize the voice of the true Shepherd, and follow Him rather than a stranger?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 18

If those who are still on the stage of action, who have had an experience in the dealings of God in the rise and progress of the work, would stand as did Joshua to strengthen the faith of the people of God, by reviewing past blessings and mercies a great deal more, they themselves would be blessed, and they would prove a blessing to those who have not had this experience. If they would recount the sacrifices made by those who led out in the work, and would keep before the people the simplicity of the early workers, and the power of God that was manifested to keep the work free from error and delusion and extravagance, they would have a molding influence upon the workers at this time.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 19

When we lose sight of what the Lord has done in the past for His people, we lose sight of His present working in their behalf. Those who enter the work now know comparatively nothing of the self-denial and self-sacrifice of those upon whom the Lord laid the burden of the work at its commencement. This should be told them again and again. Those who engage in the work now will need to carry it forward in the same humble spirit, with the same self-sacrificing principles that have characterized the true worker in the past.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 20

A stern conflict is in progress between the Prince of life and the prince of darkness, and this battle calls for constant vigilance on the part of devoted workers. There must be no indolence, no sleepy watchmen on the walls of Zion. The workers in the cause of the Lord must allow God to choose His own instruments for the work He has to do. If men refuse to accept the ways of the Lord, if they resist for any cause the light sent them by heaven, they will be found among the workers of iniquity. Those who, after serving on the side of Christ, take this position, exert an influence as much more dangerous than the one who has never professed Christ as his light and office of trust have been greater. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 21

When these see the error they have made, they realize that they have not had a right spirit, that they have tried to kill that which the Lord would have live, let them honestly and frankly acknowledge their error. A review of the past will be highly beneficial to such men. When they humble their hearts before God as did David, confessing that they have erred, they have the sure Word of God that they will find pardon. But if they refuse to acknowledge their mistakes, if they refuse to seek pardon, their sins stand registered against them, to come up against them in the day of judgment. In that day these men will not stand in a favorable light before the great Intercessor. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 22

Those who have laid stumbling blocks before the inexperienced who have clouded the minds of those who have not had a personal knowledge of the Lord's dealings with His people in the past, who have opened the door of temptation through which doubts and questions have come in, and have left the impression upon minds that the testimonies of the Spirit of God are not reliable, can only help to undo their work by making their confession as full, decided, and broad as their influence has been by reaching those upon whom they have brought confusion and uncertainty by resistance of the Spirit of God. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 23

At the present time, God's Spirit is being grieved. Satan has been encouraged in his special work for this time. Those who have erred in the past, and have not humbled themselves to fully confess their wrongs and make them right, will continue to move in their own spirit. They will call truth error and error truth. These men will eventually be found on Satan's side of the controversy. The Lord has declared to me that thus it will be. Our God is a jealous God;

He will not be trifled with. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 24

If men would make straight paths for their feet lest the lame be turned out of the way, they will confess their mistakes and sins. Then they will see that the hand of God is leading His people in the right way. They will see His wisdom overrule even [their] mistakes and errors for their own good and for the good of God's people as a whole. When they have the heavenly anointing, they will see the dangerous path they have entered upon when Satan had power over their minds and hearts. They will see that if they do not work in harmony with God their influence will be exerted against God's work and His workmen. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 25

As God in faithful in His promise, so also will He be faithful in his threatenings. Brethren, I may be silent in the grave before these warnings from God may have the desired effect upon your minds and hearts; but in the words of Paul I say to you, "Knowing the terrors of the Lord we persuade men;" everywhere to repent. [2 Corinthians 5:11.] "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." [Joshua 24:15.] 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 26

What a humiliation it was to Paul to know that all the time he was using his powers against the truth, thinking he was doing God's service, he was persecuting Christ. When the Saviour revealed himself to Paul in the bright beams of his glory, he was filled with abhorrence for his work and for himself. The power of Christ's glory might have destroyed him, but Paul was a prisoner of hope. He was made physically blind by the glory of the presence of Him whom he had blasphemed, but it was that he might have spiritual sight, that he might be awakened from the lethargy that had stupefied and deadened his perceptions. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 27

His conscience, aroused, now worked with self-accusing energy. The zeal of his work, his earnest resistance of the light shining upon him through God's messengers now brought condemnation upon his soul, and he was filled with bitter remorse. He no longer saw himself as righteous, but condemned by the law in thought, in spirit, and in deeds. He saw himself a sinner, utterly lost, without the Saviour he had been persecuting. In the days and nights of his blindness he had time for reflection, and he cast himself all helpless and hopeless upon Christ, the only One who could pardon him and clothe him with righteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 28

This wonderful example I present before you my brethren. You have guilt upon your souls. You have been doing as did Paul, despising the messages and the messengers God has sent for the benefit and salvation of his people. You have intercepted your finite capabilities, entrusted to you by God, to make of none effect his work. The same blindness and deception that was upon Paul is upon you. You need this work of repentance and forgiveness as verily as did Paul, and unless you have it, you cannot be saved. To do as you have done, notwithstanding the light in warnings and reproofs given you from heaven, will leave you in greater darkness than was Paul. O that the converting power of God might come to your souls, and you like Paul pass through the deep work of repentance. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 29

From a proud Pharisee who thought himself justified by the law, Paul was changed to a humble supplicant for mercy. He felt the far-reaching claims of the law of God take hold upon the most secret things and reach even to the thoughts and emotions of his sin-corrupted heart. He realized that he had been breaking the law, while he flattered himself that he was keeping it. Writing of this later he says, "I was alive without the law once, but when the commandment came (home to his conscience) sin revived, and I died." [Romans 7:9.] His past life he saw with eyes anointed by the grace of Christ. Did Paul then pass right on, as though he had done no wrong? What was the result of the divine enlightenment? "I, Paul, died." Was not the sword of the Spirit a discerner of the thoughts and intents and purposes of his heart? 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 30

It was a hard struggle for Paul, who could say of himself as far as outward acts were concerned, "As touching the law, blameless" [Philippians 3:6], to come to the place where he saw himself, with all his supposed goodness swept away, where, having offended in one point, he was a transgressor before God. It was a severe struggle for him to give up his imagined goodness and supposed perfection, to be saved by the One whose name he had despised, and upon whom he had poured his contempt. But God designed that Paul should see that his good name, his virtue, were as nothing, and that he must repent and confess his sins, and seek pardon from Christ for the work he had done in warring against the Spirit of God and the messengers He had sent.14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 31

This is the only way by which those who have had great light, great opportunities, but who have closed their eyes lest they should see and be converted, can have pardon written against their names. There is no way provided by which men entrusted with large responsibilities can commit errors, and then pass over them lightly.14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 32

These mistakes, through blindness to the truth, through a refusal to acknowledge the way in which God works through His appointed agencies, leaves a mold upon other minds, and thus a channel is opened through which Satan can convey his doubts and questionings to those who are weak in moral power, those who look to the men they regard as pious, for example. These sins stand registered against God's people in the books of heaven. The only way for them to do is to send their sins beforehand to judgment by coming to Christ with the humility and simplicity of a little child. They must confess their sins, else they will be left to hardness of heart. The light they refuse will become to them blacker than midnight darkness.14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 33

The reasoning powers of men, given them as a holy trust from God, are being perverted. They view everything in a distorted light. That which might be to them peace and joy in the Holy Ghost appears inconsistent and unreasonable, and they put on the armor of Satan to war against anything of this character that may arise. The testimony of the Spirit of God is no more, nor half as much to them, as the word of men, because they are too blind to discern truth from error.14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 34

Paul declared, "When the commandment came, sin revived, and I died." [Romans 7:9.] The tongue of him who had blasphemed the name of Christ, the only name given under heaven whereby men may be saved, was converted, and became eloquent in sounding forth the praises of Him who had called him out of darkness into His marvelous light. O, that the same power might go forth to impress and soften and subdue hearts today by its transforming energy. Then there would be something done in sincerity and in truth. Wrongs would not be varnished over. Open-hearted confessions, just such as you have advised your brethren to make, just such repentance and confession of wrong as the Lord has directed those who have committed errors to make, will be heard.14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 35

No one is safe unless he walks in humility of mind and true contrition of soul, unless he repents of the sins he has committed. Men cannot pass over this matter in silence and still receive the favors of God. True greatness in the sight of the Lord is only to be obtained by becoming as a little child, not in understanding, but in spirit. The humble heart will not think confession beneath him. He will not feel it a disgrace to confess if he has in any way, even in thought, hurt his brother or hindered God's work through him.14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 36

The mission God gives to His workers He expects them to respect. But in the experience of the past two years, a spirit has been manifested, a course of action pursued, which has been more than displeasing to God. He has abhorred their course of error. The messengers God has seen fit to send were not infallible. They were weak, erring men; but the Lord wrought through them as they gave themselves up to His service. They gave the message with ability and earnestness. The truth spoken was adapted to the necessities of God's people; evidences of truth were given in clear lines, and adapted to the wants of the church, as only divine Inspiration could make them. The reason that the Word did not have its designed effect on the minds and hearts of the hearers was not because of lack of evidence from the Word of God to sustain the word spoken, for link after link was produced until the chain of evidence was complete.14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 37

Some of the hearers were convinced that this heaven-sent message was for them, but their hearts were filled with prejudice and jealousy and evil thinking, and would not accept it. They were not willing to admit the evidence, and tried to make the Bible sustain their evidence instead of bringing their ideas to the Bible. So great is the opposition of the natural heart to the truth, that when men have once combatted it, they will hold to their own ideas. The plan of salvation, which they ought to know, they are not humble enough to acknowledge. They have seen the fruits, they have witnessed all the proof they will ever have of the power of the Holy Spirit, but like the Jews, they catch up some word spoken, and take offense at it. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 38

The Jews watched Christ, that they might catch some word from His lips at which they could take offense. Has not the same work been done by men today? They have exerted an influence over the minds of men who ought to look to God in the place of hanging their souls on finite men. Cut yourselves loose from the work of God. When His wisdom is not given, you will become too blind to discern any change, too self-sufficient to feel the absence of the Sun of Righteousness. You ask, What does Sister White mean by placing us in such a position? It is not Sister White who places you in this unfavorable light. You have placed yourself there by your own resistance of the deep movings of the Spirit of God. You know not that you are wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 39

The Lord must be among us, else no arguments we can use, no power of human intelligence or eloquence, can convert the soul. Some will acknowledge the truth, some will be converted; but men need not take the credit for it, for it is not so written in the books of heaven. God has sent other humble instrumentalities to work, and it is the humble doer of the Word in whose crown the stars will shine. There is a divine agency at work in every assembly to draw the souls who are seeking for light to the Source of all light. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 40

The Lord knows who are these souls. He hears their prayers and makes them the recipients of truth. They do not require the evidence of miracles as did the Pharisees. They acknowledge the light as it comes to them. The Spirit of God sets home the truth with power to the hearts of all who do not close the door against it. Pride of position and intellect lead men to harden their hearts and reject the precious message sent, which would make them wise unto salvation and would give to their teaching the power that the Lord desires it to have. 14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 41

Christ rejoiced in spirit because those things, which men refused because they thought themselves wise, were clearly comprehended by those in humble stations and of far less experience—those who might be called babes in comparison with the men who rejected the light. The man who feels secure in his knowledge must become as a little child in humility and simplicity of spirit, else he will lose eternal life. He who has intellect should remember that it is God's gift. However distinguished he may be, there will be no time in his experience when, if he would have the spirit, the power and grace of Christ, he will not have to come to Jesus as humbly as any poor sinner, with the humility of a child. He must ask and be willing to learn the lessons that God has for him to learn. Those who come to Christ in this way will constantly say, "He must increase, and I must decrease." [John 3:30.]14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 42

What words can my pen trace that will arouse our ministering brethren to a sense of the mighty responsibilities that rest upon them? How fearful their work if, while professing to be watchmen on the walls of Zion, they lay stumbling blocks in the way of their less experienced brethren, and lead them to question the Word of God and doubt the precious message He sends.14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 43

Christ never promised success to His disciples, only as they should place themselves under the bright beams of the Sun of Righteousness. They were not authorized to preach a single discourse except under the influence of the Holy Spirit. They had strict orders to tarry in Jerusalem until they were imbued with power from on high. Is this considered essential for the success of the worker today? We have had sermonizing and theorizing until the churches are ready to die. The Holy Ghost must come upon the people, and then the truth will be a power, sanctifying the soul of the receiver.14LtMs, Ms 23, 1899, par. 44

Faithfulness in the Work of God

NP

March 12, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in Ev 354; TDG 80; 5MR 358-359; 9MR 102. + Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works.” [2 Timothy 3:16, 17.] 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 1

It is a terrible strain on mind, soul, and body to be on missionary ground and to see the large work to be done, with so few prepared to engage in it. It is a terrible strain to be cramped continually for facilities and means, and we must be well-balanced in judgment, else we will make mistakes. If great precaution is not taken, men will respond to the call, saying, “Here am I send me” [isaiah 6:8], who know very little of the spirit in which the work should be conducted. The work must be laid, as an unction from the Holy One, upon the soul. The training must be after God’s order, and every man and woman must be educated to bear responsibilities, discharging in the fear of God their personal responsibilities. 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 2

Every child of God is to be watched over and disciplined as a faithful mother watches over and disciplines her child. The Holy Spirit is not to be worked by the human agent; the human agent is to be worked and fashioned and molded by the Holy Spirit. Discipline means repression, submission, the bending of the will in a certain direction after the will and way of God. It is just as distasteful to the child of God to be disciplined as it is to the child of earthly parents, but God must discipline every man and woman to act a part in His service (Revelation 3:15-21), for not one can retain his own perverse character in a single line and yet be led and taught by God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 3

Those who feel irritated because they are reprov'd, because they are hindered from having their own selfish way, cannot be used by God. Their pride of temperament, their self-esteem, their masterly spirit of subordinating everything to their own ideas, all this must change. Self must die. All errors and imperfections, all crude manners, and uncourteous, unchristlike words, all unsanctified practices, are not of God and must be separated from the character that God is assimilating to resemble His own, that His family of children shall be workers together with Him.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 4

We are to impress on every soul newly come to the faith that our work is aggressive. We are to carry out the principles of Protestantism. Popery is represented all around us, and unless every eye is singled to the glory of God, this enormous system of popery will be interwoven with our faith and practice. Just as far as any of its deluded principles and practices shall insinuate themselves into our religious management and organizations, we are disabled and weakened, and hindered from doing our first work in personal reformation of character; for the principles of the papacy are directly opposed to religious freedom, and wherever they are cherished, an effort is made to control the conscience.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 5

Personal diligence must be constantly practiced, that we may be kept from the delusive infatuations that will be pressed in upon us on every side. "Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours; grace be unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ. I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God, which is given you by Jesus Christ; that in everything ye are enriched by him, in all utterance, and in all knowledge; even as the testimony of Christ is confirmed in you, so that ye come behind in no gift; waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ; who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ." [1 Corinthians

1:2-8.]14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 6

There is to be a greater self-denial and far less self-glorification, far more devotion in prayer and far less self-pleasing. Those to whom the Lord has entrusted even one talent are required to do their very best with that talent. See Luke 19:20-24. Those who fail to serve God faithfully are robbing Him of the talents they should use to increase the Master's revenue. These are the men who have the most complaints to make about God and their brethren.14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 7

The Lord shows us the truth in unmistakable principles. The professed believer who fails in little things will fail to gain eternal life. Apparently to him they are small, but this is his only opportunity to do that little. As he works on the plan of addition in the littles God will work on the plan of multiplication, that those littles will become the most precious influences in the work of God if all is done heartily as unto the Lord. No offering is small that is given with a pure-heartedness and gladness of soul. "God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord. Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment." [1 Corinthians 1:9, 10.]14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 8

This is a wonderful mission field in which to work. Seek to be at peace with your brethren. But that peace must not be secured by failing to do the work which Paul the apostle charged Timothy to do: "I charge thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom; preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long suffering and doctrine." [2 Timothy 4:1, 2.]14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 9

Personal responsibility, personal activity in seeking the salvation of others, must be the education given to all newly come to the faith. Spiritual despotism is in the very atmosphere, which is impregnated with the subtilty of Satan's oppression. This despotism becomes more and more pronounced as we near the close of this earth's history. Personal faith is to be acted and practiced, personal holiness is to be cultivated, and the meekness and lowliness of Christ is to become a part of our practical life. The work is to be thorough and deep in the heart of every human agent. 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 10

Those who profess to receive and believe the truth are to be shown the deadly influence of selfishness and its tainting, corrupting power. The Holy Spirit must work upon the human agent, else another power will control mind and judgment. Spiritual knowledge of God and Jesus Christ whom He hath sent is the only hope of the soul. Each soul is to be taught of God, line upon line, precept upon precept; he must feel his individual accountability to God to engage in service for his Master, whose he is, and whom he is required to serve in the work of saving souls from death. 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 11

All must use their God-entrusted powers as faithful stewards of the grace of Christ. They are not their own. They have been bought with a price, and must act not their own will but the will of God. The subduing nature of the Spirit of God must be felt in heart, life, and character. The love of Christ must constrain their actions. They must present themselves a living sacrifice to God, which is their reasonable service. Every soul who has a knowledge of the truth is under responsibility to make known the truth to others. He is ordained to diffuse the light given just as verily as is the minister who is ordained to preach. 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 12

The members of the church of God in every place are organized in order that they may do their work intelligently in church capacity. They must realize the fact that if they constitute members of Christ's body, of His flesh and of His blood, they are to receive from the living head capabilities, light, and efficiency to bless the world. Missionary responsibilities are to be studied, information is to be obtained and seriously considered. What can the church do in this time of peril and obligation, as the Macedonian cry comes from every quarter, "Come over and help us"? [Acts 16:9.] 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 13

The mouth of Satan's pit is open to receive every soul, and if selfishness and covetousness, which is idolatry, exist in the church, the members will not sense the necessities of the regions beyond. The interposing grace of God can move upon the heart of every child of God to do his utmost to diffuse light. The needless expenditure of money for the many little idols should be given up. Needless expense in clothing, needless expense in houses and furniture, needless expense in eating and drinking, must be given up. Every one who claims to believe the truth is required to practice his faith as did Jesus. He was the Majesty of heaven, the King of Glory, but He laid aside His majesty and splendor, and clothing His divinity with humanity came to our world. For our sakes He became poor that we through His poverty might be made rich. He was a man of sorrow and acquainted with grief. 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 14

The fields now destitute will never be worked until the professed believers in Christ lay these destitute fields on their naked souls and empty their hearts of every vestige of selfishness. Self must die. "He that will come after me," Christ declared, "let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." [Mark 8:34.] Contemplate the situation for Christ's sake. When He beheld the impenitent city of Jerusalem, He wept over it, saying, "O that thou hadst known, even thou in this thy day, the things that belong to thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes." [Luke 19:42.]14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 15

It would be well for all our churches to see afar off, as well as nigh. When you in counsel shall appropriate ten or twelve thousand dollars to enlarge your buildings when there are already more than you can command ability to work, seriously consider how far such a sum would go toward erecting the banner of truth in new fields. O, for Christ's sake be ashamed. One section of the vineyard is not to be overloaded with advantages, for then it is impossible to do justice to far off fields. 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 16

Shall any of us have the covetous spirit of Judas? Consider the expenses that have been incurred in these fields, and think also of the useless outlay of the means that might be used in home missions. Look, for Christ's sake look, on these destitute fields, and let the eye of your understanding be so enlightened that it will affect your hearts, and that the soul temple will be so full of divine mercy and compassion for perishing souls who have never heard the message that you will be aroused to put forth practical efforts in their behalf. Having our eyes thus opened to the wants of the destitute field around us, we shall be led to bind about our own imaginary wants. Our work in missionary lines must be far more extensive. Self-denial and self-sacrifice must be practiced as they have not yet been. 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 17

It is in working actively to supply the necessities of the cause of God that we shall bring our souls in touch with the Source of all power. But let no one entertain the idea that those who have embraced the truth will be engaged in imparting more than in receiving. Your spiritual expenditures need not exceed your spiritual income. The one is essential to the other. Neglect the one, and the other will be neglected. The most interested, active servants of God in every age have been those who have had most living, practical piety. Their spiritual wants were supplied from the never failing Source of power, that they might impart to others. When we have an eye single to the glory of God, we shall cultivate personal piety. 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 18

There is danger of our religious activity losing in depth as it gains in surface. There is danger of our workers depending upon human agents, upon facilities, and great preparations for work, and losing their firm faith in God, in making every outward show of prosperity, while the work in the heart is neglected. Philanthropy, however widespread, cannot take the place of personal piety. Danger is on every hand, and we need to be constantly depending upon God, that His Holy Spirit may make our hearts pure, unselfish, and quick to hear the orders from above. When personal piety presides in the hearts of the men and women connected with the work and cause of God, every gathering for counsel will be regarded as sacred. 14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 19

God calls for every one to work. There are many in this present time who neglect the small opportunities for serving God, neglect to serve Him in little things. There is nothing insignificant in the work of God, and the faithfulness with which the work is done decides the reward of each. The work of the one who has but one talent is as valuable in the sight of God as the one who has five talents.14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 20

Our self-denial and self-sacrifice do not keep pace with the growing demands of the work. But there are individuals who are so in love with God and the truth that they are constantly seeking to economize their resources, that they may use all they possibly can to advance the cause of truth, and thus lay up treasure for themselves in heaven. The spirit of self-denial and of benevolence will characterize the lives of all who believe the truth as it is in Jesus. They will practice the truth. They will not only receive, but they will impart. God cannot bless a self-indulgent church.14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 21

All who are looking unto Jesus as their Pattern will be changed into the same image. They will turn from selfishness to liberality, because the work of God must go to regions beyond. They will realize that that which the Lord has placed in their hands is to be used judiciously, that the grace of salvation may go to all men, and as faithful stewards of God's means they will place all their possessions at His disposal.14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 22

The work of God is to be carried forward in God's way. He gave His Son to our world to show us the true way, and if we perseveringly follow this example, we shall show to the world that we are learning of Jesus. As we co-operate with Christ we shall see the necessity of working with all our capabilities, for we shall see the demand for this work constantly increasing. The little trifles of life, which hitherto have absorbed our time, will seem very small as we catch the spirit of the great Teacher. As we learn His lessons, His meekness and lowliness of heart, we shall be more and more constrained by His love, by His high and heavenly motives. It is because men have failed to copy the life of Christ that the great Head of the church has been restrained from bestowing His blessings largely, for they [such men] cannot be used by the heavenly agencies in transforming the world to Christ's divine image.14LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 23

May our heavenly Father give us a right understanding in all things. God will never let go His hold of us if we will hold to Him in faith. He is our Leader. He has separated us from the world, from objectionable habits, and given us His rich grace, and He bids us strive for life eternal. Shall we?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 25, 1899, par. 24

“When any one heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one, and snatcheth away that which was sown in his heart.” [Matthew 13:19.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 1</sup>

Brethren, take heed how ye hear. Are men in responsible places trying to hear what God says to them, and to understand His words and His works? There are many, professedly the guardians of sacred trusts, to whom the Lord has sent His warning, “Do not.” But they do the very things He has warned them not to do. They would, they thought, let everybody know that they could do great things. Every expression disparaging the light God gave you, in your spirit, in your words, or in your actions, was a seed sown to spring up and to bear its fruit.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 2</sup>

Hearts have been growing hard as adamant. Men who ought to have stood firm as a rock to principle were deceived. They were divided. They were betraying the work and cause of God. Their very action in sustaining men who they knew were not spiritual men made them responsible for the evil work. That work was in a great measure the result of the apparent sanction of those men who had not accepted the word of the Lord to them. What will be the result of this failure to be true to God and the light He has graciously given? Time will tell.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 3</sup>

“The kingdom of heaven is as a man traveling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods.

And unto one he gave five talents, to another two, and to another one; to every man according to his several ability; and straightway took his journey. Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents. And likewise he that had received two, he also gained other two. But he that had received one went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money. After a long time the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them. And so he that had received five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents, behold, I have gained beside them five talents more.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 4

“His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord. He also that had received two talents came and said, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me two talents: behold, I have gained two other talents beside them. His lord said unto him, Well done, good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord. Then he which had received the one talent came and said, Lord, I knew thee that thou art an hard man, reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed; and I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth; lo, there thou hast that is thine.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 5

“His lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gather where I have not strawed: Thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury. Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents. For unto every one that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath. And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.” [Matthew 25:14-30.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 6

Christ's servants are those who stand toward Him in the relation of service. His goods mean all the gifts and endowments called talents, whether they be original or acquired, natural or spiritual. All are to be employed in the actual service of Christ. The Lord gave His life for the world. "Ye are not your own; for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.] The Lord calls upon every soul to bear a share of the burdens in His cause, that prosperity may attend the preaching of the gospel as an important part of the great work. There is some duty enjoined upon every soul. We are to think most earnestly, What is our lifework to be? 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 7

The Lord Jesus, whose we are by creation and by redemption, has pointed out our duty. All through our life we are to heed His words, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." [Matthew 6:33.] We are strictly charged, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal." [Verse 19.] "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat; because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." [Matthew 7:13, 14.] To every man is given a talent, and he cannot dispose of that talent to another to do his trading. He must be a faithful steward. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 8

A selfish course of action on the part of responsible men in our publishing houses has brought in a whole train of evils. They threatened, and twisted, and planned every device in order to get possession of books, taking advantage of circumstances, and God says, Such men cannot come into the courts of the Lord. While looking out for their own interests, they have brought men into close places. They have had the power in their hands for those who were seeking to advance the cause of God. God says, "Shall I not judge for these things?" [Jeremiah 5:9.] The managers of the Pacific Press are not guiltless in these matters of dealing. High, pure principles have been sacrificed for gain. I pray you to consider that you have touched only the border. The true, vital questions have not been canvassed. Where is the blind man, Elder Littlejohn? He appealed to me, supposing I could help him. I could have sent a package of copies to be read to him that would have told its own story, but I did not do this. He did not know that I was acquainted with the situation. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 9

These men had received warning after warning, testimony after testimony, and if they had dared to do it, some would have torn them into shreds if they could have got hold of them. I have exercised too great caution in not sending these things to our churches. I knew that if I did, the enemies of our faith would get hold of them, and triumph over the defection and corruption of the publishing house in particular. I see now that I might better, far better, have sent the words of caution to the churches in testimonies, and then they would not have been leavened with the very same spirit that has had a controlling influence in Battle Creek. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 10

When Christ wept over Jerusalem, there were presented to His infinite eye the very same influences that have corrupted the cause of God at the heart of the work. Men who are vitalized by the Spirit of Christ will never in a single transaction comply with maxims of business which are based upon false principles. But I can never make blind men see. When they are convicted and converted, they may see some things in an altogether different light. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 11

Councils and committee meetings and the Foreign Mission Board have used largely of the common fire. They have walked in the sparks of their own kindling. The Book Committee has pronounced upon the value of books, accepting or denouncing, when they themselves had not experience, intellectual fitness, or knowledge that would fit them to judge correctly of that which they were denouncing or commending. I know what I am talking about. As far as any spiritual understanding was concerned, they were like blind men. The things which they supposed would bring an income to replenish their depleted treasury would be eagerly grasped. But O, the methods, the sharp financiering, the secret conniving to make a good thing, as they supposed, for the printing office. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 12

And what about the publishers? Did they maintain the principles of justice? There was scheming and planning and devising to turn their brethren from their rights. They bought men and the productions of their brains, saying, "It is naught, it is naught." [Proverbs 20:14.] And when the matter was in their possession, they eagerly gathered in the revenue. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 13

These deceptive workings were laid open before me. It seems that the father of lies has invented every device to corrupt justice. Honesty, fair dealing, integrity, and truth have been put aside. Conscience has been prevented from lifting her voice in effective protest by the plea, "It is for the cause of God. All that we can do to save for the cause is just and right." The very fact that they were working for the cause of God should have been sufficient to keep the work from one spot of defilement. The ones they wronged would have served the cause of God far more effectively if left to render to God His own. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 14

High wages have been paid to men for their responsibilities in working for the cause of God. They accepted the highest wages while they were turning things upside down and by fallacious reasoning making right appear wrong, and sin righteousness. Even those institutions that have not the light of truth for these last days would from worldly policy deal more justly and honorably with the talents brought into their bookmaking. The managers of such institutions are generally men who possess ability to judge the merit and value of publications. Some of the managers of our publishing interests, when any man has interfered with their scheming, and has pointed out the dishonesty or unfairness, have resented the interference, and have considered the reprover as righteous overmuch. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 15

My heart burns within me when I hear such men claim to be serving the Lord's cause. Nothing has done so much as this to make our faith an offense and our work, as a people believing and handling sacred, eternal interests, a subject of scorn and derision to honest men who do not believe the truth. The covetous, grasping spirit manifested, and the methods employed to take advantage of authors, is written in the books of heaven. It has not brought the blessing of God to the work. These managers have, by their example, been educating others in practices that are dishonest as viewed by the Lord God of heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 16

And those who claimed to be in the service of God, yet indulged this grasping spirit for advantages irrespective of the position in which they placed their brethren, have by their dealing brought into the office a dearth of means. The Lord has not stirred the hearts of His people to give. God has not prospered men with means, that they should maintain a corrupt policy. In the retaining of unconsecrated men as managers, there has been a sustaining of the ungodly in their unrighteous course, and these men are now claiming larger wages for ruining the confidence of God's people. God has sent dearth and a want of funds when He could have multiplied means for human agents had they acted with true liberality, as many have done in the past. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 17

I speak that which I do know from the Lord God of heaven. Compliance with the supposed customs and practices of men who act from a worldly policy, practicing false methods, should be cut out of all our institutions. None is to work on the confederacy plan, "You help me, speaking good words for me, and I'll do the same by you. You need not mention my lack of intelligence in some things, and I will cover your defects." All should be as transparent as the sunlight. Let none seek to prevent the detection of wrong in matters small or great in the institutions God has established. To be called trustworthy men is very different from being strictly and conscientiously honest and upright. A man who will defraud in time and ability in accomplishing those things he is supposed to be master of, is a fraud. He has committed himself to a course of action opposed to that which is pure, lovely, and of good report. He has worked in Satan's lines. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 18

There are temptations to meet in every line. We may truly say, "Justice hath fallen in the streets, and equity cannot enter, ... and he that departeth from evil maketh himself a prey." [Isaiah 59:14, 15.] Among worldly-wise men gold and silver and possessions of houses and lands measure the value of character. And this has been leavening those men in our very midst who claim to be Christians. But shall those who call themselves Christians bring in corrupting principles and dishonor Christ? 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par.

There are men connected with the Lord's work and institutions in Battle Creek who would not be corrupted. But they knew that if their voice should be heard calling things by their right names, they would soon for some pretense be left out of the councils. So Joseph and Nicodemus were appointed to do some apparently important work, that they might not be present at the mock trial of Christ. Some have felt great anxiety to carry out their own methods, and it was not pleasant to have others present who would oppose their measures. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 20

There were men who were not willing to go into things as an experiment, and who would not cheer on the spirit of covetousness, and the determination to rule or ruin. They could not smile at a glossed-over falsehood, but they dare not speak their minds. They thought they made the Word of God their standard of duty, but they failed to unveil the evil. The leaven was working. Reverence for God and integrity to His cause should have led them to make determined remonstrance. But this exposure was feared. They would have been wanted in some important business transaction somewhere in regions beyond. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 21

God calls for staunch, loyal, faithful men in His work, men who will not be bought or sold, men not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. "One is your Master, even Christ." [Matthew 23:8.] To God we are individually responsible, and that responsibility is a sacred trust which can be discharged only when these words are firmly followed, "Whatsoever ye do, in word or in deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." [Colossians 3:17.]14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 22

Captain Eldridge was young in experience, and his course of action was determined largely by the course that others pursued. When he takes a position, even if wrong, he has learned the captain's policy to maintain that it is right. He sets his stakes, and will hold to them. He may succeed for a time; others may venture to stand for the right and lose all, while the one who apparently succeeds is really on the losing side. Satan is playing the game of life for his soul. If he is awakened to his peril, and in the fear of God will repent and be converted, the Lord will hear him. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 23

He who dismisses the fear of God will pursue a course of recklessness and fail of gaining eternal life. God has no use for double-minded and two-sided men. Those who by their departure from the Word of God have helped these inexperienced souls in a wrong course will be chastised and greatly humbled. The Word of God is to be the standard for all human beings. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 24

I want it understood: Those who have been connected with the work of largest importance in our world have been terribly blinded. The Word does not set the boundary to man's activity and his progress, but the right way is put before him in distinction from the wrong. The prevailing iniquities surrounding the Christian are to be shunned. There is God's call and the devil's call, he professing to be as God. Will the still, small voice calling, attracting, inviting, "Come unto me, take my yoke upon you," be heard? [Matthew 11:28, 29.] Will the many exciting enterprises and selfish, ambitious pursuits in every branch of business lead us to run after the evil in the place of choosing the good? All who have received the endowment of God from on high will have their eyes fixed on the Captain of their salvation, and will advance. As Christ walks, they will walk. Confidence placed in man will prove a snare. He who sets the Lord ever before him will be sustained by Him who hath said, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." [Matthew 28:18.] 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 25

Those who claim to stand under the banner of the third angel have no sanction from God to engage in any business transaction that will oppress their brother or neighbor, or will obscure their discernment as to what is due to Jesus Christ in regard to himself. The world is reading the history of Seventh-day Adventists. The world is watching to see what principles our religious faith will develop. Some have been deceived by choosing false theories, by the hollow, corrupting maxims which prevail around us, and have lost sight of the distinction between the frauds of men, the cunning artifice, the shrewd methods, and the entirely opposite—the truth of the living God. The child of God is not to soil his purity by stepping upon Satan's flattering premises. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 26

The world has a right to watch Seventh-day Adventists. They mark any deviation from Bible principle, and then they take courage. They say, "These people are no better than ourselves. I think that in the long run I shall come out as well as Seventh-day Adventists." They watch, they talk, and when professed believers depart from righteousness and seek not first the kingdom of God, the world does not forget this inconsistency. They point to the various signs of the great center of the work, and say, "Look ye, they are a set of sharpers." What pleasing satisfaction it has been to them. They want just such encouragement as these unsanctified, professional men give them. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 27

I tell you there are serious accounts to settle with God for thus placing His truth in jeopardy and becoming the sport of Satan's temptation. In many departments of business there have been deeds done that angels of God have written in the books of heaven, which are a shame to those who claim to be Seventh-day Adventists. Very fair names are given to business transactions which are simply deception, fraud, and robbery. Men are selling the truth of Christ as verily as did Judas when he sold his King for thirty pieces of silver. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 28

The progress of the missions in foreign countries has been impeded by the diverting of means from the true object, to be invested according to men's ambitious designs. Will these men repent and be converted, and do those things worthy of the name of Christian, or will they go with that party who consider that gain is godliness, and will practice any method to please their lust for gain and power? 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 29

Those who have so benumbed their sensibility that they mingle human wisdom with the divine and confuse other minds as to right and holy methods in business transactions, those who unjustly acquire means at the expense of another, do they love God with their whole heart and their neighbor as God requires? Do they meet the holy standard of character? They prove that they have not yet learned the holy law of God, and the explanation of that law in the pure gospel given upon the Mount. The Lord calls for a cleansing process, a purging of the soul temple. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 30

“Moreover it is required of stewards that a man be found faithful.” [1 Corinthians 4:2.] Some are richly endowed with ten pounds, and others are endowed with only one. But the man with one talent is to be just as faithful with that one as the man with two, five, or ten talents. Because he has only one talent to trade upon, he is not to bury that one in the earth, and then accuse God of being unfair and partial. Those who have the smallest gift may bear the test of character by their trading with the one talent. They need not expect the improvement of ten or five. The one entrusted with the smallest talent is to be thankful that he has not to answer for the responsibility of five or ten. The responsibility is exactly proportionate to the amount of the gifts, graces, or talents received in trust from his absent Lord. All are to be diligent workers; there are to be no idlers, no man who is a makeshift for another. Each is first to give himself to the Lord. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 31

But the heaviest obligation rests upon the worker who has been made steward in trust of the greatest means and abilities, as were the Jews. Let no man talk of equality in the revenue that is received by faithful trading. Character is to be developed by diligent trading upon that which a man has. If one has ten pounds, he is responsible for all that ten pounds would do if properly used. If only pence are entrusted, that man’s character depends upon his use of the pence and farthings. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 32

All our people are to act a part in consecrating the tithe. It is God’s money, and He will reward their faithful return to Him of His own. The unfaithful steward bound up his one talent and hid it in the earth. Thus he refused to give the Lord an opportunity to cooperate with Him in greatly increasing that talent. And he tried to make the Lord responsible for his own neglect. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 33

The Lord in His distribution of His gifts proves every character. If that man with one talent had been entrusted with five, he would have placed them where they could not increase, just as he did with the one. That unfaithful steward of one pound made light of his natural and entrusted capabilities, and trifled with his moral responsibilities. He despised the trusts of heaven. The varied trusts are proportioned to the varied capabilities of the human agent. The Lord gave the parable to correct existing evils, and if the Lord had been honored and glorified, that unfaithful servant would never have charged upon God his own deficiencies. He would not have tried to prove the Lord the cause of his own neglect to improve his talents. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 34

There are many to whom this parable applies today. Many are complaining of their brethren, and of the inequality of facilities. They bring charges against God just as did the unfaithful servant. God gave to His servants every man according to his ability. God is infinite in wisdom, and He knows perfectly what He is about, and how to put His tests upon men. He apportioned His trusts according to the known powers and capacities of His servants. To every man is given his work, and if he works faithfully, he may gain two talents to use, and then double the two to four. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 35

The Lord will reward diligent, honest service. If men will put their trust in Him and not in themselves, if they will recognize His compassion and benevolence and will walk humbly before Him in the place of complaining, He will cooperate with them and will delight to open ways before them. He will increase their intellect. He entrusts the talents according to the known power to use them. To every man He has given His trust, His talents, to improve, and He expects and requires corresponding returns. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 36

There is a diversity of gifts. There will never be equality in the distribution of the Lord's trust, neither will there be equality in the trusts returned. But the Lord has a right to our best and holiest service. If one has done his best with the one or with the two, or with the five, his work will be accepted and approved. It is not the number of the gifts returned, but the faithfulness with which the trust has been improved, that wins the Lord's commendation. Every man is responsible for the abuse of his entrusted gifts. He must do thorough, consecrated work for the Master if he would be acknowledged as a good and faithful servant. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 37

I have no time to pursue the subject farther, but I have a few more things to say. When men took upon them the responsibility of blocking the way largely for nearly two years, so The Great Controversy and Patriarchs and Prophets could not be put in circulation, did they realize that they were working to prevent [the light God had given] through the humble instrument from reaching the people? They were withholding from one of the Lord's stewards the talents she was to trade upon. Yet how narrow the ideas they even now have of this matter. The veil of deception is still upon their eyes. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 38

The Lord had a work to be done, and His voice should have been recognized by the men in responsible positions. They should have used every means in their power that the light of heaven might not be hindered. Through their blindness of mind and hardness of heart they showed precisely how much they valued the light God had given to shine amid the moral darkness and press back the workings of the enemy. Works should have come first that were left to the last. This hindrance of men, not a thread of it of God, gave opportunity for minds uninformed to take the position on the wrong side of the question. It is well known that the works coming from my pen are claimed to be light given from the Source of all light, and the Word of the Lord never returns unto Him void. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 39

I am instructed to say to you that you felt very much amused over my deep burden and anxiety. You robbed me of means, but this was the least thing. You hedged up the way so that I could not bring the truth in my publications before the people. You robbed God by placing something of far less consequence than the message He has given to come before the people. You showed that you had no sense of your important stewardship, and you would be removed unless you should repent. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 40

There was a condition of things that made it essential for the message to be given without delay. If you had not closed your hearts against light, you would have recognized the moving of the Spirit of God and the time for the Word of the Lord to be heard and find its way to the people. The Word of the Lord in the books from the press would have made an impression upon hearts. It was the voice of warning to them, and many who have heard my voice at camp meetings would have been impressed that the Lord was back of the message. An immediate giving to the people of the message from the Lord in warnings would have worked upon minds and hearts. The book which was crowded in by selfish devising closed the way for the voice of appeal to the people. The way will never be opened again as before. That book was carried so enthusiastically because it would bring to the publishers some returns. God said, "I will blow upon the revenues." 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 41

Those who withdrew the circulation of my book had no sense of the importance of the matter that should have been given to the people. The way that the canvassers used Bible Readings, the course taken by presidents of conferences, showed that all needed to become familiar with the very truths contained in the book Great Controversy. Canvassers would have had altogether a different spirit had they been educated in the important matters contained in that book. Those who read the book would have had a different mold upon them, and those handling the book would not have had, because of their unfaithful stewardship, the sentence, "Weighed in the balance and found wanting." [Daniel 5:27.] 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 42

The sale of Bible Readings, had it been preceded by the sale of Great Controversy, would have had far more weight than it had in going first. The Lord knew all about this. He knew what principles were violated. He knew the falsehoods told and reiterated, that the books bearing the vital truth to the people would not sell. He knew that ministers and presidents were advised to recommend that all handle the one book, and the keeping of Great Controversy from the field has done a work that men will have to answer for in the judgment. 14LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 43

When these men put in a plea to be remunerated for working in their own human judgment, and closed their ears and eyes to the warnings of the Spirit of God, some would never see clearly again. These men have shown their blindness. They have imperiled the cause, and brought about the withdrawal of the Spirit of God from giving prosperity to His work. All this is the result of the unsanctified inventions of men. Please read Exodus 31:1-6; 21:29. 14LtMs, Ms

26, 1899, par. 44

The Lord has made the hearts of His people willing to put their talents to use. God gave this wisdom. The Lord also stirred hearts to give willingly. The Lord has the work in His hands. He has not stirred their hearts as He once did, because of the unfaithfulness of those who were in the highest places, who were working at cross-purposes with God, hedging up His way, and bringing discouragement upon His people. The Lord has removed the wisdom of these men, as I wrote in 1896. In all this has been shown the displeasure of God. What will bring the people to humble their hearts before Him—the men upon whom is the rebuke of God, which has been upon some of His stewards up to this time, 1899? See 1 Chronicles 28:8.14 LtMs, Ms 26, 1899, par. 45

The Great Standard of Righteousness

NP

March 19, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 1BC 1088; 2BC 994; 3BC 1152; 7BC 951, 970, 980-981. See RH 04/23/1901, 05/07/1901. †NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The Lord has taken infinite pains to teach men by giving them His law. This law is to govern the world. It demands perfect obedience from rich and poor, high and low. Its divine requirement is that we love God supremely and our neighbor as ourselves. Its principles are binding upon the angels and upon all human intelligences. "Sin is the transgression of the law." [1 John 3:4.] This is the only definition of sin. Without the law there can be no transgression. "By the law is the knowledge of sin." [Romans 3:20.] The standard of righteousness is exceeding broad, prohibiting every evil thing.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 1

Satan sees that to call the attention of human beings to the righteousness of the law barricades the soul against his specious devices. His only hope for securing the world is to lead men to ignore the law, to make them believe that the law is null and void, that belief in Christ is all that is necessary. If Satan can so deceive the world that sin will not appear exceeding sinful, he has gained all he tried to gain in heaven. He has succeeded in leading multitudes to believe this falsehood. Ministers preach against the law, especially the fourth commandment, which links together the precepts specifying man's duty to his God and those specifying his duty to his fellow man.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 2

We are nearing the close of this earth's history. Satan is making desperate efforts to make himself God, to speak and act as God, to appear as one who has a right to control the consciences of men.

He strives with all his power to place a human institution in the position of God's holy rest day. Under the jurisdiction of the man of sin, men have exalted a false standard in complete opposition to God's enactment. But God has put His seal upon His royal requirement. Each Sabbath institution bears the name of the Author, an ineffaceable mark that shows the authority of each. The first day of the week has not one particle of sanctity. It is the production of the man of sin, who strives in this way to counterwork God's purposes. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 3

God has designated the seventh day as His Sabbath, the memorial of the creation. He declares. "Verily, my Sabbaths ye shall keep; for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations, that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. ... It is a sign between me and the children of Israel forever; for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh he rested, and was refreshed. ... Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant." [Exodus 31:13, 17, 16.]14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 4

This is the distinction drawn between the loyal and the disloyal. Those who would have the seal of God in their foreheads must keep the Sabbath of the fourth commandment. This is what distinguishes them from the disloyal, who have accepted a man-made institution in the place of the true Sabbath. The observance of God's rest day is the mark of distinction between him that serveth God and him that serveth Him not. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 5

When men make the assertion that a change has been made in the law of the divine government, they cast a reflection upon God's character. If the law was just when given to Adam, it is just today. Heaven and earth shall pass away, Christ declared, sooner than that one jot or tittle of the law shall fail. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 6

The substitution of the false for the true is the last act in the drama. When this substitution becomes universal, God will reveal Himself. When the laws of men are exalted above the laws of God, when the first day of the week is exalted above the seventh, know that the time has come for God to work. He will arise in His majesty to shake terribly the earth. He will come out of His place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity, the transgression of His law. And the earth shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain.14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 7

The belief that the law of God is not the standard of character is now almost universal in the Christian world. Professing Christians think that the more contempt they place upon the law, the more commendable are they in God's sight. Each human being exerts an influence, either for good or ill, upon those with whom he associates. Those who are willing to be led by false theories and unsound doctrines, who build their hopes for eternity on sliding sand, will find when trial comes that storm and tempest will sweep away their refuge of lies. Their structure falls and they perish; they are lost, lost for eternity.14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 8

Adam listened to the words of the tempter and, yielding to his insinuations, fell into sin. Why was not the death penalty carried out at once in his case? Because a ransom was found. God's beloved Son volunteered to take the sin of man upon Himself, and to make an atonement for him. There could be no pardon for sin without an atonement being made. Had Adam's sin been pardoned without an atonement, sin would have been immortalized. It would have been perpetrated with a boldness and constancy that would have been without restraint. Consider how soon after the transgression of Adam the apostasy of his posterity became so marked that God declared that it repented Him that He had made man. They followed the imaginations of their evil hearts, and the striving of the Spirit was not heeded. They refused to be admonished. They had an abundance of blessings for their own enjoyment, and they soon forgot that their immortality had been forfeited.14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 9

God granted them one hundred and twenty years of probation in which to consider, and during that time preached to them through Seth, Enoch, and Noah ["Methuselah, Noah, and many others of His servants" The Review and Herald, April 23, 1901]. They were represented as men shut up in prison. Had they listened to the testimony of these faithful witnesses, had they repented and returned to their loyalty, God would not have destroyed them. But warnings made an impression on them only for a time. Christ was their atoning sacrifice, their mediator, but His intercessions were unavailing because they had no faith, and as the time of probation drew nearer to its close, the service due to God from them passed entirely from their thoughts; and the word went forth, "The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and, behold, I will destroy them with the earth." [Genesis 6:13.] 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 10

Again the earth was corrupted under its inhabitants, and the signal judgments of God fell upon Sodom and Gomorrah. But soon this punishment was forgotten, and once more men corrupted their way before God, turning from the worship of the Creator to idols. God called out the Hebrew people from slavery, and from Sinai gave them His living oracles. But Egypt was desolated with plagues before Pharaoh would consent to listen to the great I AM. He persisted in his stubbornness till Egypt was ruined, and the Egyptians, from the lowest serf to the king upon his throne, looked upon the dead bodies of their firstborn. Then Pharaoh consented to let the children of Israel go, but he followed them immediately with an imposing display of chariots and men of war. Another exhibition of God's power was required. The Red Sea was opened to the Israelites, and the Egyptians who pursued them were drowned. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 11

The terrible judgments of God which were visited upon the idolaters in the lands through which the children of Israel passed caused a fear and dread to fall upon all people living on the earth. But Israel, for whom so much had been done, apostatized in the very sight of Sinai. Aaron, who had been left in charge, was afraid to stand firm against the vast host who were clamoring for gods to lead them back to Egypt. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 12

After entering Canaan the children of Israel gradually went into idolatry. By His prophets God sent them message after message. But they forgot the instructions of their Leader, and followed their own inclination and the imagination of their own hearts until the Lord could no longer protect them. He permitted their enemies to overcome them, and to scatter them as captives in strange lands. But still He was willing to pardon. He promised that if they would return to Him, He would heal all their backslidings, and reinstate them in His favor. He sent them warnings, reproofs, judgments, to save them from ruin. But notwithstanding these efforts, they wandered farther and farther from Him.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 13

As represented in the parable given by Christ, God sent His messengers to them, but these were persecuted and put to death. Last of all He sent His only begotten Son, "The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us ... full of grace and truth." [John 1:14.] But the people He came to save refused to receive Him. They rewarded Him evil for good, and in Pilate's judgment hall He was condemned to crucifixion. "Who is this that cometh from Edom, with dyed garments from Bozrah? This that is glorious in his apparel, travelling in the greatness of his strength? I that speak in righteousness, mighty to save. Wherefore art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth in the winefat? I have trodden the winepress alone; and of the people there was none with me." [Isaiah 63:1-3.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 14

Christ gave His life to redeem humanity, and He calls upon men and women to make every sacrifice in their power to glorify God by placing light in contrast with darkness. Christ gave His life as a sacrifice, not to destroy God's law, not to create a lower standard; but that justice might be maintained, and that man might obtain a second probation. But no one can keep God's commandments except in Christ's power. He bore in His body the sins of all mankind, and He imputes His righteousness to every believing child.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 15

Christ is our example in all things. He has magnified the law and made it honorable. By His unwavering obedience He testified to the truth that God's law is the standard of righteousness for all men. God requires nothing of man that it is not possible for him to do. "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.] Possessing our nature, though untainted by sin, and tempted in all points like as we are, Christ kept the law, proving beyond controversy that man can keep it also.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 16

The fiat has gone forth: “The wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life.” [Romans 6:23.] The sinner must feel his guiltiness, else he will never repent. He has broken the law, and in so doing has placed himself under its condemnation. The law has no power to pardon the transgressor, but it points him to Christ Jesus, who says to him, I will take your sin and bear it Myself. If you will accept Me as your Substitute and Surety, you will return to your allegiance and I will impute to you My righteousness. Thus you will be led to obedience and will become loyal and true and complete in Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 17

Sin is the transgression of the law. “Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit.” [Matthew 7:16, 17.] Notwithstanding all the professions of lip and voice, if the character is not in harmony with the law of God, those making profession of godliness bear evil fruit. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 18

“Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven,”—the will made known in the Ten Commandments, given in Eden when the morning stars sang together and all the sons of God shouted for joy, and spoken with an audible voice from Sinai—“Many will say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils, and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity.” [Verses 21-23.] Many mighty works are done under the inspiration of Satan and these works will be more and more apparent in these last days. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 19

“Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the wind blew, and beat upon that house, and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock. And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell, and great was the fall of it.” [Verses 24-27.]14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899,

par. 20

The mischief done by the professed believers in God, who are not doers of the Word but transgressors of His commandments, cannot be estimated. Their lawless, unholy principles corrupt many, leading them away from the path of obedience to transgression. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 21

A life of conformity to the Christ-life cannot be a life of disobedience to God's commands. In answering his own question, the lawyer said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul; and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." "Thou hast answered right," Christ said, "this do, and thou shalt live." [Luke 10:25-28.] Sin cannot reign in the life of the one who loves God supremely. Love to God is the fruit borne by obedience. Christ is not at war with Christ, and love to our neighbor prevents us from working ill to him. "The fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace." [James 3:18.] The law of God lays its claims upon the whole man. There is no period of time when the law does not make this demand upon every son and daughter of Adam. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 22

Complete obedience is the only condition that meets the requirement of the law. The question is asked, "Is God a man, that he should lie?" [See Numbers 23:19.] God has given the definition of sin. His law is the rule of government. God says, "Do this, and thou shalt live." [Luke 10:28.] But to the disobedient He says, "Cursed is every one that continueth not in the things written in the book of the law to do them." [Galatians 3:10.] "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." [Ezekiel 18:4.] God has given the promise that those who do this law will be rewarded, not only in the present life, but in the life to come. He declares just as decidedly that those who do not obey His requirements shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on them. By lips that never lie the obedient are blessed, and the disobedient are pronounced guilty. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 23

There are only two classes in the world today, and only two classes are recognized in the judgment,—those who violate God's law and those who keep that law. Two great opposing powers are revealed in the last great day of battle. On one side stands the Creator of heaven and earth. All on His side bear His signet. They are obedient to His every command. On the other side stands the Prince of darkness, with those who have chosen apostasy and rebellion. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 24

When the judgment shall sit, and every one shall be judged by the things written in the books, the authority of God's law will be looked upon in a light altogether different from that in which the Christian world now regards it. Satan has blinded their eyes and confused their understanding, as he blinded and confused Adam and Eve, and has led them into transgression. The law of Jehovah is great, even as its Author is great. In the judgment it will be recognized as holy, just, and good in all its requirements. Human laws are supposed to be framed according to the precepts of God's law. The thief, the burglar, the murderer, are distinguished as such by the moral law. Those who transgress this law will find that they have a serious account to settle with God, for His claims are decisive. 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 25

Christ has borne our sin in His own body, and those who accept Him as a personal Saviour are free from the penalty of the law. Jesus has been made the propitiation for our sin, and not for ours only but for the sins of the whole world. "Hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected. Hereby know we that we are in him. He that saith he abideth in him, ought himself also so to walk, even as he walked." [1 John 2:3-6.] 14LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 26

To the obedient child of God, the commandments are a delight. David declares, "Thy testimonies have I taken as an heritage forever; for they are the rejoicing of my heart. I have inclined my heart to perform thy statutes always, even unto the end. I hate vain thoughts, but thy law do I love. Thou art my hiding place and my shield; I hope in thy word. Depart from me, ye evildoers; for I will keep the commandments of my God. ... I am thy servant; give me understanding that I may know thy testimonies." [Psalm 119:111-115, 125.] [See also] Psalm 119:1-8, 44-48, 77, 97-100. 14LtMs, Ms

Did the contempt shown to the law of God extinguish David's loyalty? Hear his words. He calls upon God to interfere and vindicate his honor, to show that there is a God, that there are limits to His forbearance, that it is possible to so presume upon the mercy of God as to exhaust it. "It is time, O Lord, for thee to work," he says; "for they have made void thy law." [Verse 126.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 28

David saw the divine precepts thrown aside, and obstinacy and rebellion increasing. Was he swept away by the prevalence of apostasy? Did the scorn and contempt cast upon the law lead him to cowardly refrain from making an effort to vindicate the law? On the contrary his reverence for the law of Jehovah increased as he saw the disregard and contempt shown for it by others. "They have made void thy law," he exclaims; "therefore I love thy commandments above gold, yea, above fine gold; therefore I esteem all thy precepts concerning all things to be right; and I hate every false way." [Verses 126-128.] As man studies and contemplates the precious statutes of the Most High, as he meditates upon them, and realizes their value, he exclaims, "Thy testimonies are wonderful; therefore doth my soul keep them. The entrance of thy word giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple. ... Great peace have they that love thy law, and nothing shall offend them." [Verses 129, 130, 165.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 27, 1899, par. 29

Think Not That I Am Come to Destroy the Law

NP

March 19, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in TDG 87. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Let us listen to the words of Christ, the divine Teacher, as they fall from His lips upon the ears of the disciples, who press closely round Him, and upon the ears of the scribes and Pharisees, who watch His every movement, and listen to every word, hoping to hear something which they can use to make an accusation against Him. The vast multitude listen also to words full of grace and truth, spoken in a clear, musical voice. Such words they had never heard from the Rabbis.14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 1

“Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets,” Christ says; “I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil.” [Matthew 5:17.]14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 2

Our eternal well-being has not been left in uncertainty. We need not depend on the writings of “the fathers,” or upon commentators for explanations regarding the law of God. When these men have told us all that they in their human intelligence can, we find that they do not agree. We see such a diversity of opinions that were we to follow, in deciding what is truth, we would be left in confusion and uncertainty. The Lord has told us not to follow these human guides, but to take everything claiming to be Bible doctrine to the Scriptures.14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 3

“Bind up the testimony; seal the law among my disciples. And I will wait upon the Lord, that hideth his face from the house of Jacob, and I will look for him. Behold I, and the children whom the Lord hath given me are for signs and for wonders in Israel from the Lord of hosts, which dwelleth in Mount Zion. And when they shall say unto you, Seek unto them that have familiar spirits, and unto wizards that peep and that mutter, should not a people seek unto their God, for the living to the dead? To the law and to the testimony: if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them.” [Isaiah 8:16-20.] 14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 4

“The people that walked in darkness have seen a great light; they that dwell in the land of the shadow of death, upon them hath the light shined.” [Isaiah 9:2.] This light was shining forth as Christ in His sermon on the mount gave the true exposition of the law. The traditions, maxims, and false interpretations, which had been brought in, had buried the precious jewels of truth beneath a mass of rubbish. Christ rescued these precious jewels, and placed them in the framework of truth. He bade them stand fast forever, to shine in their natural lustre, commending themselves to the intellect, arousing the slumbering conscience, leading the people away from human tradition, from asking, “What saith the Rabbis? What saith my minister?” 14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 5

Christ taught them to ask instead, “What saith the Word of the Lord? I have a soul to save or a soul to lose. I cannot afford to be mystified and befogged when my eternal well-being is at stake. Because my minister refuses to examine the Scriptures with a heart free from cruel prejudice and from stubborn purpose, because he will not understand the binding claims of the Sabbath, shall I do the same? Shall I refuse to lift the cross? Shall I be determined to believe only my preconceived opinions, to continue in rebellion against God, which are not substantiated by sure evidence? Shall I miss my way to heaven because the shepherd cries in my ears, Peace, peace. The Fathers, The Fathers? Shall I turn from the cool snow waters of Lebanon to the turbid streams of the valley?” 14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 6

Many in that vast assembly were not seeking for evidence. Of this they had had altogether too much. They wished they had less, for to obey involved a cross. What they desired was not evidence but an excuse to evade truths of eternal importance, which had for their foundation a “Thus saith the Lord.” And today many refuse to put their will on the side of God’s will. They refuse to conform their lives to the great standard of righteousness. They have educated and trained their God-given intellect to make of none effect the law of Jehovah, treating it as a code of moral embarrassment, a yoke of bondage. They see the sum worked out on the characters of all who transgress the law, yet they will not yield. They are not able to reason from cause to effect, because the sophistry of Satan is urging itself upon their minds, confusing everything clear and distinct, and mystifying the truth till it is clothed with a shadow of darkness. Writing to the Galatians, Paul exclaimed, "Who hath bewitched you, that ye should not obey the truth?" [Galatians 3:1.] These words sound down along the ages to our time.14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 7

But whether the world or the church, which has joined hands with the world, obey or disobey, the law of God maintains its binding claims upon them, notwithstanding the controversy over it, notwithstanding that men claim to have answered every argument in its behalf. The truth still lives; the light still shines on; it cannot be put out. The Bible was set aside; it was burned. Men tried to banish it from the earth, but it still remains. The law of God may be ignored, despised, rejected, trampled upon, but it is still the great standard of righteousness, for it is immutable, indestructible. It is as eternal as the character of Jehovah.14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 8

The keenest intellect may try to the utmost of its capacity to make void the law, but behold, the intellect of the greatest men perishes. Men dare to put "Reverend" before their names—a word once only used in the Bible, and then as applying to God. Men build themselves up, full of a desire for high titles rather than for a growth in grace, but they go down to the grave. Their ambition perishes with them. Their eloquence and genius is gone. But God's holy law, unchangeable, eternal and immortal, will stand firm forever and ever.14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 9

Every human being will be tested as were Adam and Eve, to see whether they will be obedient. Our loyalty or disloyalty decides our future destiny. Since the fall of Adam men in every age have excused themselves, charging God with their sin, saying that they cannot keep His commandments. This is the insinuation Satan cast at God in heaven. But the plea, "I cannot obey the commandment" need never be presented to God, for before Him stands the Saviour, the marks of the crucifixion upon His body, a living witness that the law can be kept. It is not that we cannot keep the law, but we will not yield up our stubborn wills. See John 15:10; 14:15, 21, 23, 24.14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 10

Today ministers dare to charge Christ with being a Sabbath-breaker. Those who make this charge, made by the scribes and Pharisees, place themselves on the side of the great accuser, and directly contradict Christ's teaching. With sacrilegious words the Pharisees charged Him with transgression, and if they could have fastened crime upon Him, as they flattered themselves they could do, they would have been able to prove that He should have been sentenced to death by the very law He had given. But they could not prove in a single instance that His works were not in perfect harmony with the law.14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 11

In His human nature, Christ rendered perfect obedience to the law of God, thus proving to all that this law can be kept. He endured the death penalty Himself, not to abolish the law and immortalize sin, but to take away sin. It is because He has borne the punishment in His own body on the cross that man has a second probation. He may, if he will, return to his loyalty. But if he refuses to obey the commands of God, if he rejects the warnings and messages God sends, choosing rather the words of fallacy spoken by those who echo the word of the deceiver, he is willingly ignorant, and the condemnation of God is upon him. He chooses disobedience because obedience means lifting the cross and practicing self-denial, and following Christ and the path of obedience.14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 12

The natural mind leans toward pleasure and self-gratification, and it is Satan's policy to manufacture an abundance of this, that they may be filled with excitement, leaving men and women no time to consider the question, How is it with my soul? The love of pleasure is infectious. Given up to this, the mind hurries from one point to another, ever seeking for some amusement. Obedience to the law of God counteracts this inclination, and builds barriers against ungodliness. Each person, as a rational human being, is under the most sacred obligation to obey the letter of the law. The Spirit has been provided to enable all to do this. Those who transgress the law by resting on the first day of the week instead of on the seventh, bear false testimony to the world by precept and example. God would have His people maintain the dignity of His law by resting on the seventh day, His memorial of creation. 14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 13

The ability to enjoy the riches of glory will be developed in proportion to the desire we have for these riches. How shall an appreciation of God and heavenly things be developed unless it is in this life? If the claims and cares of the world are allowed to engross all our time and attention, our spiritual powers weaken and die because they are not exercised. In a mind wholly given to earthly things, every inlet through which light from heaven may enter is closed. God's transforming grace cannot be felt on mind and character. The talents which should be used in active piety are ignored and neglected. 14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 14

How then can a response be made when the invitation is heard, "Come; for all things are now ready"? [Luke 14:17.] How is it possible for a man to receive the commendation, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant" [Matthew 25:21], when he has been disobedient, unthankful, unholy? He has trained the mind to disregard God's plainest requirements, to dislike religious things. He loves the things of earth more than the things of heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 15

Obedience to God's commands will enroll our names in the Lamb's book of life, "for we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence steadfast unto the end." "Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward." [Hebrews 3:14; 10:35.] In keeping God's commandments there is great reward. "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul." [Psalms 19:7.] By partaking of the divine nature, man is enabled to show to the world an illustration of perfect obedience, thus magnifying the only true and living God by obeying His holy, just, and perfect law. 14LtMs, Ms 28, 1899, par. 16

Sacrificed for Us

NP

March 17, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in UL 90; 5BC 1085; 7BC 914-915; 6MR 2. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

In the councils of heaven God said, "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness." "So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him." [Genesis 1:26, 27.] The Lord created the moral faculties and the physical powers possessed by man. All was a sinless transcript of himself. God endowed man with holy attributes and placed him in the garden made expressly for him. Sin alone could ruin the beings created by the hand of Christ, and deface God's image in them. 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 1

The malice Satan bore to God led him to form the purpose of destroying the Creator's work through subtlety. But no sooner was Satan wholly successful, as he supposed, in placing Adam on his side, to work in unison with the fallen angels, than God interposed to rescue him. He "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.] Thus He showed to the heavenly universe and to the fallen angels the value He placed upon man. 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 2

Not one jot or tittle of God's law could be changed to meet man in his fallen condition and save him from eternal death. But God could give up His Son, to vindicate the honor of His law, to elevate, ennoble, and forever settle its immutability, and rescue the beings He had created. So Christ took upon Himself the redemption of the soul, a work which it was impossible for angels to do. He was made an offering for sin. 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 3

The work of redemption is called a mystery, and it is indeed the mystery by which everlasting righteousness is brought to all who believe. The race in consequence of sin was at enmity with God. Christ, at an infinite cost, by a painful process, mysterious to angels as well as to men, assumed humanity. Hiding His divinity, laying aside His glory, He was born a babe in Bethlehem. In human flesh He lived the law of God, that He might condemn sin in the flesh, and bear witness to heavenly intelligences that the law was ordained to life and to ensure the happiness, peace, and eternal good of all who obey. But the same infinite sacrifice that is life to those who believe is a testimony of condemnation to the disobedient, speaking death and not life. 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 4

This is the mystery of godliness, that One equal with the Father should clothe His divinity with humanity, and laying aside all the glory of His office as Commander in heaven, descend step after step in the path of humiliation, enduring severe and still more severe abasement. Sinless and undefiled, He stood in the judgment hall, to be tried, to have His case investigated and pronounced upon by the very nation He had delivered from slavery. The Lord of glory was rejected and condemned, yea, spit upon. With contempt for what they regarded as His pretentious claims, men smote Him in the face. These men will one day call upon the rocks and mountains to fall upon them and hide them from the wrath of the Lamb. 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 5

Pilate pronounced Christ innocent, declaring that he found no fault in Him. Yet to please the Jews, he commanded Him to be scourged and then delivered Him up, bruised and bleeding, to suffer the cruel death of crucifixion. The Majesty of heaven was led as a lamb to the slaughter, and amid scoffing and jeers, ridicule and false accusation, He was nailed to the cross. The crowd, in whose hearts humanity seemed to be dead, sought to aggravate the cruel sufferings of the Son of God by their revilings. But as a sheep before his shearers is dumb, so He opened not His mouth. He was giving His life for the life of the world, that all who believed in Him should not perish. 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 6

Christ's heart was pierced by a far sharper pain than that caused by the nails driven into His hands and feet. Sweat drops of agony stand upon His brow, while from the murderers are heard the words, "If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross." [Matthew 27:40.] The Saviour is about to speak. What will He say? From His pale, quivering lips come the words, "Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." [Luke 23:34.] What an exhibition of divine love! These words are an expression of God's love to man. Thus Christ proclaimed the message of mercy, even to His murderers. The good news of pardon was proclaimed upon the cross. There is mercy for all. The most hardened sinner, if he repents and believes in Jesus, will be forgiven.14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 7

We say to those who profess to be children of God, "Behold, the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world." [John 1:29.] Why then do those who profess to believe in Him reveal a hardness of heart, a lack of pity, mercy, and love, that crucifies Christ afresh, and puts Him to an open shame?14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 8

On the cross the Saviour revealed the love of the unknown God. Had the people known God, they would not have thought they were doing Him service by persecuting and putting to death the prophets. But they forgot their Creator, and waxing bold in their supposed superiority, they put to death Him who alone was able to give them life.14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 9

Christ bore the sins of the whole world. He endured our punishment—the wrath of God against transgression. His trial involved the fierce temptation of thinking that He was forsaken by God. His soul was tortured by the pressure of a horror of great darkness lest He should swerve from His uprightness during the terrible ordeal. He could not have been tempted in all points like as man is tempted had there been no possibility of His failing. He was a free agent, placed on probation, as was Adam and as is man.14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 10

Unless there is a possibility of yielding, temptation is no temptation. Temptation comes and is resisted when man is powerfully influenced to do a wrong action and, knowing that he can do it, resists by faith, with a firm hold upon divine power. This was the ordeal through which Christ passed. In His closing hours, while hanging upon the cross, He experienced to the fullest extent what man must experience when striving against sin. He realized how bad man may become by yielding to sin. He realized the terrible consequence of the transgression of God's law, for the iniquity of the whole world was upon Him. 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 11

Reason, lost in an unfathomable depth of wonder and amazement, would question the truthfulness of such a record, but faith accepts the inspired record. It is true; and it would be blasphemy against God to attempt a denial. The Holy Spirit bears witness to the work of redemption. "He shall glorify me"—the speaker is the world's Redeemer—"for he shall receive of mine, and shall show it unto you." [John 16:14.] The office work of the Holy Spirit is to display the glory of the person of Jesus Christ, God in man. The Holy Spirit makes known the things freely given to us of God. 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 12

Precious jewels of truth, that are of the highest value to the meek and lowly ones who believe in Christ, are as foolishness to him who is wise in the world's estimation. But truth, eternal truth, is ever present with the true believer. The Spirit is the appointed instructor of such a soul, his guide, his continual strength and righteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 13

By giving His only begotten Son to die on the cross, God has shown us the estimate He places on the human soul. All that the world admires, all it calls precious, sinks into insignificance when placed in the balance with one soul, for a matchless ransom has been paid for that soul. All heaven has been given in one gift. 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 14

Christ was afflicted, insulted, abused; on the right hand and on the left He was assailed by temptation, yet He sinned not, but presented to God a perfect obedience that was entirely satisfactory to the Father. By this He removed forever every semblance of excuse for man not keeping the law. He came to show man how to obey, how to keep all the commandments, notwithstanding the swellings of iniquity. He laid hold of divine power, and this is the sinner's only hope. He gave His life that man might become a partaker of the divine nature, having overcome the corruption that is in the world through lust. Consider the sacrifice made by the infinite God. Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. Who is our Redeemer? Isaiah tells us: "Unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace." [isaiah 9:6.] 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 15

Christ is the representative of God to man and the representative of man to God. He came to this world as man's substitute and surety, and He is fully able to save all who repent and return to their allegiance. Because of His righteousness, He is able to place man on vantage ground. Christ our Passover has been sacrificed for us. He gave His precious, innocent life to save guilty human beings from eternal ruin, that through faith in Him they might stand guiltless before the throne of God. What return have we made for this great sacrifice? 14LtMs, Ms 29, 1899, par. 16

Do All to the Glory of God

NP

March 19, 1899

Formerly Undated Ms 99. Portions of this manuscript are published in 11MR 279. See ST 10/18/1899.

Those who enter the service of God must be faithful to their Leader. If during their lifetime they have not given the powers of mind and soul and strength to the Lord, when they are converted, they will realize that every capability belongs to God. The truly converted man will bring even his thoughts into obedience to the will of God. His mental and physical powers will be laid on the altar of sacrifice. His time is the Lord's; it is not to be idled away.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 31, 1899, par. 1

All are bound, by the most solemn obligations, to redeem the time. Waste it not, make the most of it. Do your best, as long as you live in the world, to be a blessing. Christ regarded every moment as precious. Thus should His followers regard their time. Those who are not directly engaged in the work of seeking to save that which was lost, should have some trade. They should use the powers of mind and body to a purpose, that they may be able to place their gifts and offerings in the Lord's treasury, and bring a faithful tithe to Him. It is the duty of all who enjoy God's bounties to engage in useful employment. To every man is given his work, and upon the faithful performance of this work depends the blessing received.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 31, 1899, par. 2

He who wastes his precious time robs God of service due to Him. He is guilty of a neglect which God will not excuse. How can God welcome such a one into the courts above with the words, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; ... enter thou into the joy of thy Lord"? [Matthew 25:21.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 31, 1899, par. 3

The strength belongs to God. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.” [Luke 10:27.] This statement covers the use of the physical powers. Every part of the being is to be employed to the glory of God. The Lord would not have given us such definite specifications had He not designed us to study carefully how much this comprehends. If you have physical strength, that strength is Christ’s property. He who has in the past looked upon himself as above labor, when converted will change his habits, and use his physical powers to some purpose. An indolent man cannot serve God; for he gives to others an example entirely contrary to the principles of Christ. No idler can be a practical Christian. Christ is our example, and He worked at the carpenter’s trade with His father Joseph.14LtMs, Ms 31, 1899, par. 4

After the precious message of truth is heard and received, the heart is touched and convicted. When the heart turns to Jesus, the will is brought into subjection to Christ. The soul temple is cleansed from its moral defilement for Christ’s indwelling. The deep moving of the Spirit fills the soul with earnest love for Christ. The receiver of truth could feast forever on the truths which he hears, but he must not ever receive and go no farther. He must impart the precious knowledge of the Redeemer’s love. He must strive to uplift the crucified Saviour. Heart and soul are to be consecrated to God’s service, and the physical strength is to be used as well. There are no gentlemen idlers in God’s vineyard, for there is earnest, practical work to be done. There is no reason why a man who has strength of body cannot use that strength in Christ’s lines.14LtMs, Ms 31, 1899, par. 5

The man who has a family is under obligation to set a right example in his family as a faithful steward. He is to educate his children to be intelligent and useful, able to use the strength given them by God to carry forward His work in our world. By precept and example he is to train them to be faithful stewards. They are to be educated, disciplined, and trained to realize that they hold in trust lent treasures, which are to be used to the very best advantage, that they may do the highest service.14LtMs, Ms 31, 1899, par. 6

Teach your children that nothing is to be withheld, that all their gifts are to be used to promote the glory of God. Teach them to cherish a sense of their accountability to use wisely their entrusted capabilities, improving and perfecting them by use. You are accountable for the judicious use of every faculty.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 31, 1899, par. 7

God cannot excuse those who have been bought by the blood of His Son from working faithfully in His service. Every true Christian is [a] co-worker with Christ. Nothing can be more offensive to God than to cripple or abuse the gifts lent us to be devoted to His service. The value of the soul is to be estimated by the price paid for it. It is written, "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." [1 Corinthians 10:31.] "Who will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life: but unto them which are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation, wrath, tribulation, and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile; but glory, honor, and peace, to every man that worketh good, to the Jew first, and also to the Gentile."<sup>14</sup>[Romans 2:6-10.]LtMs, Ms 31, 1899, par. 8

Home-Training

NP

March 20, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in AH 236, 245-246; CG 106-107, 205, 247-248, 251. See RH 12/05/1899.

God has given to every man talents to be used to His name's glory. All have not the same gifts; all are not called to do the same work; but to each God has given ability for the work God has appointed him. Often men receive praise for the talents they possess, and take the credit to themselves. There are those who in their pride make frequent reference to those gifts in which they excel. If these talents were self-created, man might have reason to boast of them, but they are not. We have strong and efficient workers, but they have nothing of which to boast. God has given them the power; they have not created it. Let all appreciate every gift of God and seek to make the best use of their talents without self-exaltation, knowing that unless they are kept by the power of God through faith unto salvation they will reveal a weakness which will detract from their influence. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 1

There are some who think that unless they are directly connected with active religious work they are not doing the will of God, but this is a mistake. Every one has a work to do for the Master; it is a wonderful work to make home pleasant and all that it ought to be. The humblest talents, if the heart of the recipient is given to God, will make the home life all that God would have it. A bright light will shine forth as the result of wholehearted service to God. Men and women can just as surely serve God by giving earnest heed to the things which they have heard, by educating their children to live and fear to offend God, as can the minister in the pulpit. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 2

The minister has his line of work, and the mother has hers. She is to bring her children to Jesus for His blessing. She is to cherish the words of Christ and teach them to her children. From their babyhood she is to discipline them to self-restraint and self-denial, to habits of neatness and order. The mother can bring up her children so that they will come with open, tender hearts to hear the words of God's servants. The Lord has need of mothers who in every line of the home life will improve their God-given talents and fit their children for the family of heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 3

The Lord is served as much, yea, more, by faithful home work than by the one who teaches the Word. As verily as do the teachers in the school, fathers and mothers are to feel that they are the educators of their children. Children are the heritage of the Lord, and they should be trained and disciplined to form characters which the Lord can approve. When this work is carried on judiciously and with faithfulness and much prayer, angels of God will guard the family, and the most commonplace life will be made sacred. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 4

All heaven recognized Abraham's faithfulness in this respect, and He who blesses the habitation of the righteous said, "I know Abraham. He is priest of his household and patriarch in his home." "He will command his children and his household after him, to keep the way of the Lord to do justice and judgment." [Genesis 18:19.] 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 5

Symmetry of character is to be restored in man, and God calls upon parents with all their capabilities to co-operate with Him in this work of restoration. Uncleanliness in the home is a great mistake, for it is educating in its effects, and casts its influences abroad. Even in babyhood a right direction should be given to the minds and habits of children. Teach them to keep their bodies clean by giving them a bath as soon as they rise in the morning and before retiring at night. Show them that uncleanliness, whether in body or dress, is objectionable to God. Teach them to eat in a clean manner. Constant vigilance must be exercised that these habits may become second nature to them. There must be no lax methods in the home, for the children will never outgrow what they have been allowed to become familiar with in their childhood. If they have been trained to habits of neatness and order, untidiness and slackness will be offensive to them. Impurity will be despised as it should be. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 6

The Lord commanded the children of Israel to wash their clothes and put away all impurity from their encampment, lest in passing by He should see their uncleanness. God is passing by our homes today, and He looks upon the unsanitary conditions of families, the lax habits. Had we not better reform, and that without delay? Parents, God has made you His agents, that you may instill right principles in the minds of your children. You have in trust the Lord's little ones, and that God who was so particular that the children of Israel should grow up with habits of cleanliness will not sanction any impurity in the home today. God has given you the work of educating your children in these lines. And in training your children in habits of cleanliness, you teach them the spiritual lessons. They will see that God would have them clean in heart as well as in body, and will be led to an understanding of the pure principles which God designs should prompt every act of their lives. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 7

O, that all would understand that these small duties are not to be neglected. The whole of their future life will be shaped by the habits and practices of their childhood. Children are peculiarly susceptible to impressions, and sanitary knowledge may be imparted to them by not permitting disorder. The impress which the children receive in their childhood they will carry with them through all their future life. All the learning they may acquire will never undo the evil resulting from a lax discipline in childhood. One neglect oft repeated forms habit. One wrong act prepares the way for the second. Bad habits are more easily formed than good ones, and are given up with more difficulty. It takes far less time and pains to spoil the disposition of a child than it does to imprint upon the tablets of the soul principles and habits of righteousness. It is only by constantly watching and counterworking the wrong that we can hope to make it right. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 8

Mothers, the Lord will be with you as you try to form right habits in your children. But you must begin the training process early, for if you neglect this you will make your future work very difficult. Teach them line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little. Bear in mind that your children are God's, and are to become

His sons and daughters. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 9

God designs that the families on earth shall be samples of the family in heaven, that every member shall be marked with the stamp of heaven. Children should be clad in plain garments, without ruffles or ornament. The time spent in needless sewing God would have spent in educating them or in devotional exercises. That garment you are sewing on, that extra dish you think you will prepare, let it be neglected rather than the education of your children. The labor due to your child during the first years of its life will admit of no neglect. There is no time in its life when the rule should be forgotten, "Line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little." [Isaiah 28:10.] Parents, the Lord knows what kind of work you are doing in the formation of the characters of your children. Will you consider the responsibilities resting upon you as their natural guardians? 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 10

Overindulgence always proves an injury to children. It is the veriest cruelty to allow wrong habits to be developed, to give the law into the hands of the child and let him rule. Children are not to be taught to think that everything in the house is their plaything, to do with as they please. Instruction in this line should be given even to the smallest children. By correcting this habit you will destroy it. God designs that the perversities natural to childhood shall be rooted out before they become habit. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 11

Do not, parents and teachers, in your discipline of children release them from that which you have required them to do. Do not let your mind become so absorbed in other things as to cause you to grow careless. And do not become wearied in your guardianship, because your children forget and do that which you have forbidden them to do. If you become angry and lose your temper, you forfeit that which no mother or father can afford to lose—the respect of your children. Never scold yourself, or permit scolding in your home. Never give your child a passionate blow, unless you want him to learn to fight and quarrel. As parents you stand in the place of God to your children, and you are to be on guard. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 12

Parents, do not be abrupt and act from impulse. Never correct your child when you are provoked, for if you do this you will mold him after your own image—impulsive, passionate, unreasonable. You can be firm without violent threatenings and scoldings. I have seen a mother snatch from the hand of her child something that was giving it special pleasure. The child did not know the reason of this, and naturally felt abused. Then followed a quarrel between parent and child, and a sharp chastisement ended the scene as far as outward appearance was concerned. But that battle has left an impression on the tender mind that will not be easily effaced. I said to the mother, You have wronged your child deeply; you have hurt his soul, and lost his confidence. How this will be restored I know not. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 13

This mother acted unwisely. She did not move cautiously, reasoning from cause to effect. Her harsh, injudicious management stirred up the worse passions in the heart of her child, and on every similar occasion these passions were aroused and strengthened. This is the worst policy that can be used in family government, for this advanced age and maturity of strength warring against a helpless, ignorant little child confirms rebellion in the heart. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 14

But, you ask, shall I never punish my child? Whipping may be essential when every other resort fails; but before you cause your child physical pain, you will, if you are a Christian father or mother, reveal the love you have for your erring little one. You will manifest real sorrow because you are compelled to cause him suffering. You will bow before God with your child, and with a heart full of sorrow ask the Lord to forgive. Pray that Satan may not have control of his mind. Present before the sympathizing Redeemer His own words, “Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of heaven.” [Matthew 19:14.] That prayer will bring angels to your side, and your child’s heart will be broken in penitence. 14LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 15

It is a very nice work to deal with human minds. All children cannot be treated in the same way, for that restraint which must be kept upon one would crush out the life of another. Study the minds and characters of your children. During the first years of their lives is the time in which to work and watch and pray and encourage every good inclination. This work must go on without interruption. You may be urged to attend mothers' meetings and sewing circles, that you may do missionary work; but unless there is a faithful, understanding instructor to be left with your children, it is your duty to answer that the Lord has committed to you another work which you can in no wise neglect. You cannot overwork in any line without becoming disqualified for the work of training your little ones and making them what God would have them be. As Christ's co-worker you must bring them to Him disciplined and trained.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 16

Both parents and children are under the government of God. They are to be ruled by Him. By combining the influence of authority and affection, parents can rule their homes after the order God has given us in His Word. There is to be no ruling by impulse, no parental oppression, but at the same time, no disobedience is to be overlooked. We are not to reach the standard of worldlings, but the standard God Himself has erected. We are to diligently inquire, "What hath God said?" God's holy Word must be our rule, and from this we must never turn aside. There must be no waywardness on the part of the children, no disregard of obligations on the part of the parents. Our motto must be: "As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." [Joshua 24:15.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 32, 1899, par. 17

The Lord accepts those who will accept and honor Him. He will work through those who are willing to be directed by Him. He sees in our cities many who have been blessed with a large share of mental and physical capabilities swept into the whirlpool of temptation. They must be reached. This is where health reform has been made the entering wedge. By this work may have been reached that would not otherwise have been reached. Men and women of strong, noble sentiments and deep sympathies have been aroused to do something, while priest and Levite have passed by on the other side. Medical missionary workers have made strong efforts to introduce the leaven of truth, to let light shine amid the moral darkness. But some in Battle Creek have been so deeply absorbed in work which God has not given them that they have passed by their bruised and wounded brethren. Have not the colored race been robbed, bruised, beaten, and left for dead?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 1

When God's people are thoroughly converted, additions will be made to the workers in the Southern Field of men and women who will carry the work forward from high, pure principles. God will go with them, and many souls will come forth from their degradation converted, every whit.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 2

By expending so much on ministerial institutes, men have failed to accomplish the work the Lord would have done. They have gone over and over the same ground. The institutes that have been held have taken time that ought to have been spent in seeking to save sinners. Had ministers worked in these lines, their labor would have received God's endorsement. Many now perishing in their sins would have received a knowledge of the truth. But when those to whom God has entrusted sacred trusts have been reaching out their arms for more than they could hold or carry, the work that ought to have been done has not been done. 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 3

The Lord has seen that His people were not prepared to change the old order of things. He is turning away from those who have opposed the work He designed should commence in Battle Creek, and extend to Detroit, Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, and many other cities. He will pass by those who have been given the opportunity of working with Him, but who have been stubborn and indifferent. Nothing can bring such discouragement to the work of teaching others as indifference to moral obligations. 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 4

What good does it do for the conference to send ministers into the field without furnishing them with means and facilities with which to work? The way in which The Gospel Primer was taken out of Edson White's hands deprived him of the means he needed in the Southern Field. Those who conducted this transaction did not move in the counsel of God. Every dollar of the profits from The Gospel Primer should have been used in the Southern Field. This money was needed there. Men cannot work in that field handicapped. 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 5

There is a work to be done in the cities of America that is very different from the work that has been done. Send out your seventy, as did Christ, with a special message, that they may open the way to those who are in darkness. Not only are those who are in respectable grades of society to be worked for, [but] the fallen and degraded are to be gathered in. It is in the highways and hedges that souls will be found who need to be saved. Many are mentally blind, mentally wounded. There are those who have had educational privileges, who have valuable, receptive faculties, who have yielded to temptation. These are to be sought out. Some are in possession of more than ordinary talents, but they are dead in trespasses and sins, and they must be labored for. 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 6

The different denominational churches are being converted to the world. The members have not the power to hold the minds and reform the hearts of tempted ones. And I have been shown that our people are not half awake. Ministers and people are asleep—not all, thank God, not all—but many who have been given precious opportunities and privileges have not gained enough of their Lord's goods to enable them to trade acceptably. If they had striven to do God service by working in the cities, He would have co-operated with them. He will hold those accountable who have been given great light, and yet are devoting their time and means to self-service, while thousands are perishing for want of help. 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 7

The work done in medical missionary lines is disproportionate to the work being done in the conference. Let none permit feelings to rise against Dr. Kellogg because there are so many pressing their way into the medical missionary work. Let them remember that he has given young men and young women encouragement to work. But while you have been busily laying your plans to acquire more power, many of the souls you might have used your time to save have passed forever beyond your influence. There are scores of young men who would have been glad to have given themselves to the work of the ministry had they received encouragement, but they were not properly treated or appreciated. Therefore they pressed their way into the medical missionary work. They are not lost to the cause of God; for some are becoming fitted to do a work which will have a convincing power upon souls. 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 8

When will our people receive the Word of the Lord and work in Christ's lines? There is no help for those who refuse to listen to the divine voice pointing out their duty. Such have fallen prey to a fatal disease, for which no human skill can provide a remedy. So long have they neglected to respect and obey the voice of God through His servants that their hearts have become hardened. The Lord has sent warnings, He has marked out the way; but strong-minded, self-willed men have separated from God. Their voices have not been raised as was Caleb's in defense of the right. A chieftain in Israel, Caleb was one of those selected to spy out the land of Canaan. When they returned from this work the voices of his companions was raised in complaint. They acknowledged the goodness of the land, but “the people be strong that dwell in the land,” they said, “and the cities are walled and very great; and moreover we saw the children of Anak there.” [Numbers 13:28.] 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 9

Caleb saw the difficulties just as plainly as the other spies, but he stood plainly to the post God had assigned him. He never shirked any disagreeable responsibility, and now, in the face of his cowardly companions, who had raised stones to throw at him, he cried with a ringing voice, “Let us go up at once and possess it; for we are well able to overcome it.” [Verse 30.] We need Calebs in our work today. 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 10

God will not endorse any work that is done on wrong principles. But wrong positions have been taken and held for years, notwithstanding the cautions and warnings that have been given. Sanctions has been given to the decisions of men whose hearts were not baptized with the Holy Spirit. They know not what to say, for they have not the wisdom of God. Their power and vitality have gone, and they do not know it. They have been ready to bind about the work that should have gone forward and not backward. The Lord has blessed the sanitarium and given it signal success, while those who have separated from Him have expended their energy in contending for unscriptural plans. 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 11

The Spirit of God is needed in the work, that the workers in all lines may co-operate harmoniously to remove the reproach and stigma against Sabbathkeepers. The Lord is about to pass by those who refuse to take up the work they should have done. Of those who refuse to deny self and lift the cross the Lord says, “They shall not taste of my supper.” [Luke 14:24.] He declares, “I will take illiterate men, obscure men, and move upon them by my Spirit to carry out My purposes in the work of saving souls. The last message of mercy will be given to the world, but not by the counsels of the supposed sages, who received My commission, but did not My work. This work will be done, but not by pretentious buildings, not by the eloquence of the learned, but by a people who love and fear Me. ‘Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit.’” [Zechariah 4:6.] 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 12

Thus it is that the whole body, fitly framed together, and compacted by that which every joint supplieth, according to the effectual working in the measure of every part, groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 13

“Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. See that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil. Wherefore be ye not unwise, but understanding what the will of the Lord is. And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess, but be filled with the Spirit, speaking to yourselves in psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord, giving thanks always for all things unto God, and the Father, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, submitting yourselves to one another in the fear of God.” [Ephesians 5:14-21.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 14

“Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers. And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption. Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamor, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice, and be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ’s sake hath forgiven you.” [Ephesians 4:29-32.] “Be ye therefore followers of God as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering and a sacrifice to God for a sweet smelling savor ... For ye were sometimes darkness, but now are ye light in the Lord; walk as children of light.” [Ephesians 5:1, 2, 8.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 15

None need to dishonor God and the truth; for God will help all who call upon him in faith. Those who do the commandments of God are distinct in faith and practice from those who are regardless of His precepts. Those who claim to believe the truth and yet do not practice it walk in the way of folly. There are some the Scriptures call fools who never become wise; they never redeem the time.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 16

Every hour of life is to be filled with good deeds, with a diligent cultivation of the entrusted talents. We all need to cultivate tenderness and love for each other, and when we are converted we shall do this. All who enter the kingdom of God must strive most earnestly to be commandment keepers. They must be brought into harmony with the law of God. "Work while it is called today." [See John 9:4; Hebrews 3:13.] This is the lesson each must learn. We must constantly watch and strive, fighting manfully the good fight of faith, never ceasing in our efforts to run the race with patience, that we may receive the prize. It is only by earnest endeavor that we can win eternal life. 14LtMs, Ms 33, 1899, par. 17

The Home Life

NP

March 21, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in UL 94; CD 315; 3BC 1129; 5BC 1085.

The educational influences of the home life are a decided power for good or for ill. These influences are in many respects silent and gradual, but if exerted on the side of right, they are full of preciousness. Christ came to this world to be our Pattern, to show by precept and example the characters all must have who compose the family of God. He came to bless and save the human race, and to raise men and women to be sons and daughters of God. To this end He humbled Himself, stepping from the highest to the lowliest position. 14LtMs, Ms 34, 1899, par. 1

In the councils of heaven it was decided that the mother of the Redeemer should be a pure, pious virgin, though poor as far as earthly riches were concerned. The despised village of Nazareth was chosen as His [home]. Joseph, His earthly father, was a carpenter, and He who had given direction that every youth in Israel should learn a trade, learned Himself the trade of a carpenter. None need be ashamed of honest poverty. For thirty years Christ was subject to His parents, and by the labor of His hands He helped to sustain the family. Thus He would teach that labor is not a degradation, but an honor, and that it is every man's duty to engage in useful, honorable work. 14LtMs, Ms 34, 1899, par. 2

Christ was the foundation of the Jewish economy. He planned the arrangements of the first earthly tabernacle. He gave every specification in regard to the building of Solomon's temple. He who worked as a carpenter in the village of Nazareth was the heavenly Architect who marked out the plan of the house where His name should be honored. The things of heaven and earth are more directly under Christ's supervision than many realize. 14LtMs, Ms 34, 1899, par. 3

It is a solemn, serious work to care for those for whom Christ has died, to teach children not to lavish their affections upon the things of this world, not to waste time and labor on that which is worth less than nothing. In order to educate their children aright, mothers must be learners in the school of Christ. The Christian mother will spend much time in prayer, for in the home children are to be taught to be true to the government of God. With patience and forbearance they are to be trained. Scolding and passionate reproof will never work reforms. Fathers and mothers commit a grievous sin when they educate their children to give way to temper by giving way [to temper] themselves and by training them according to wrong methods. Children are to be disciplined in a way that will enable them to take their place in the family of heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 34, 1899, par. 4

Mothers, deal gently with your little ones. Christ was once a little child. For His sake honor the children. Look upon them as a sacred charge, not to be indulged, petted, and idolized; but to be taught to live a pure, noble life. They are God's property; He loves them, and calls upon you to co-operate with Him in helping them to form perfect characters. 14LtMs, Ms 34, 1899, par. 5

Religion may be brought into every phase of the home life. It may be brought into bread making. Sour bread causes cholic, headache, and indigestion. Religion will lead mothers to make bread of the very best quality. Some have educated the appetite to desire new bread and hot biscuits. They refuse to see the evil effects of these articles, because they enjoy eating them. But this does not make it right to eat them. Bread should be thoroughly baked, inside and out. The health of the stomach demands that it be light and dry. Bread is the real staff of life, and therefore every cook should excel in making it. 14LtMs, Ms 34, 1899, par. 6

Mothers who have wisely reared their children feel the burden of responsibility, not only for their own children, but for their neighbor's children. A true mother's heart of sympathy goes out for all with whom she comes in contact. With a determined effort she seeks to turn wayward souls to Christ. In his strength she is enabled to do much. And those who have no children have responsibilities to bear. In most cases they may receive to their homes children who are orphaned and homeless. These they may train for Christ's sake to practice those virtues so much needed in our world. 14LtMs, Ms 34, 1899, par. 7

The Lord requires perfection from His redeemed family. He calls for perfection in character-building. Fathers and mothers especially need to understand the best methods of training children, that they may co-operate with God. Men and women, children and youth, are measured in the scales of heaven in accordance with that which they reveal in their home life. A Christian in the home is a Christian everywhere. Religion brought into the home exerts an influence that cannot be measured. 14LtMs, Ms 34, 1899, par. 8

The family on earth is designed by God to be a symbol of the family in heaven. It is to be the school where the first and most important lessons are to be learned, where both child and parent shall gain a knowledge of human nature, where they shall learn to practice self-denial and self-control. Every child is to be diligently trained to act his part. The mother's mission is one of self-denial and self-sacrifice. She is to teach her children that they may co-operate with her in teaching other children who are cast out to be neglected and trodden under foot. From their earliest years children should be taught to regard themselves as a part of the family firm. A mother does not do her duty if she fails to teach her children the lessons of helpfulness that mean so much to them. Ever she must remember that her children are to be trained in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. The children who are trained with careful, painstaking efforts will be co-workers with Christ. They will win others to the Saviour. 14LtMs, Ms 34, 1899, par. 9

Teaching From Nature

NP

March 21, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 13MR 335-338.

God has entrusted human beings with talents. The gifts of reason and speech are a special treasures. He has given men and women intellect, that they may study His dealings with [them]. All have the privilege of knowing the only true God and Jesus Christ whom He has sent. Shall we then follow our own inclinations, and indulge our inherited and cultivated tendencies to wrong, without reference to God's Word? The birds of the air are guided by instinct. They are obedient to the laws which govern their life. But the beings formed in the image of God fail to honor Him by obeying the laws of nature. By disregarding the laws which should govern the human organism, they disqualify themselves from serving God. God sends them warnings to beware of how they break His law in breaking the laws which govern their bodies; but habit is strong, and they will not heed. 14LtMs, Ms 35, 1899, par. 1

The swallow and the crane observe the changes of the seasons. They migrate from one country to another to find a climate suitable to their convenience and happiness, as the Lord designed they should. But God's people sacrifice life and health by seeking to gratify appetite. In their desire to accumulate treasure, they forget the Giver of all their blessings. Their health is abused, and their God-given powers are used to carry out their unsanctified, ambitious projects. Their days are filled with pain of body and disquietude of mind because they are determined to follow wrong habits and practices. They will not reason from cause to effect, and they sacrifice health, peace, and happiness to their ignorance. 14LtMs, Ms 35, 1899, par. 2

The wise man addresses the indolent in the words, "Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise: which having no guide, overseer or ruler, provideth her meat in the summer, and gathereth her fruit in the harvest.” [Proverbs 6:6-8.]14LtMs, Ms 35, 1899, par. 3

The habitations which the ants build for themselves show skill and perseverance. Only one little grain at a time can they handle, but by diligence and perseverance they accomplish wonders. Solomon presents to the world the industry of the ant as a reproach to those who waste their hours in sinful idleness, in practices which corrupt soul and body. The ant prepares for future seasons. This is a lesson which many gifted with reasoning powers disregard. They fail entirely to prepare for the future immortal life which God has in His providence secured for the fallen race.14LtMs, Ms 35, 1899, par. 4

Stones have been used as memorials of God’s dealings with His people. Joshua, knowing that the time of his service as the visible leader of Israel was about to end, gathered together the people who had been chosen by God, and caused them to renew their covenant with their Maker. He wrote what he had said in the book of the law, and “took a great stone and set it up there under an oak that was by the sanctuary of the Lord. And Joshua said unto all the people, Behold, this stone shall be a witness unto us; for it hath heard all the words of the Lord which he spake unto us: it shall be therefore a witness unto you, lest ye deny your God.” [Joshua 24:26, 27.]14LtMs, Ms 35, 1899, par. 5

Christ used the things of nature to illustrate divine truth. He used the simple flowers He had created and the things of the animal creation as object lessons. He presents the ox and the ass as having more gratitude than man. Under His teaching nature utters her voice to declare the wonderful works of God, and to reprove man’s unbelief and forgetfulness of his constant dependence upon God. Will not that God who has given man all that he has keep him in health and strength if he complies with the conditions of entire obedience to the law, as nature is obedient to law?14LtMs, Ms 35, 1899, par. 6

“Take no thought for your life,” Christ said, “what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? Behold the fowls of the air; for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" [Matthew 6:25, 26.] Consider the ravens, for they neither sow nor reap, but God takes care of them. They act the part God designed them to act. 14LtMs, Ms 35, 1899, par. 7

"Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature? And why do ye take thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin, and yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." [Verses 27-29.] Let the lily, beautifully tinted and gracefully formed by the great Master Artist, rivaling in its loveliness the artificial adorning of Solomon, teach us the lessons of simplicity and faith. If men and women would devote less time to the preparation of elaborate meals, for the gratification of the appetite, and spend more time in the contemplation of God's work in nature, they would be better fitted to serve their Creator. 14LtMs, Ms 35, 1899, par. 8

If men will show perfect trust and unwavering faith in God, if they will not work after their own imaginations to counterwork the purposes of divinity, if they will place their God-given faculties under the discipline of grace, they will see that they have a work to do in becoming conversant with the growth of plants and animals. This lesson book is ever open to all. 14LtMs, Ms 35, 1899, par. 9

None have an excuse for misusing their God-given faculties. Such misuse robs God of the powers He demands. Man is the Lord's by creation and by redemption. The superior qualities with which he has been endowed show how high an estimate the Lord places on human beings. He has given every man his work. Every youth, every child has a work to do in accordance with the Lord's revealed will. No one can waste his opportunities and privileges without robbing God. Shall not men and women learn from God's great lesson book that He bestows His love, mercy, and grace on us every moment of our lives? How can man ignore the responsibilities which rest upon him? The sun, the moon, the stars, the solid rocks, the flowing stream, the broad, restless ocean, [all teach lessons] which we would do well to heed. 14LtMs, Ms 35, 1899, par. 10

The Marriage at Cana

NP

March 21, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 10MR 187-190.

“And the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee; and the mother of Jesus was there; and both Jesus was called, and his disciples, to the marriage. And when they wanted wine, the mother of Jesus said to him, They have no wine. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, what have I to do with thee? Mine hour is not yet come. His mother saith unto the servants, Whatsoever he saith unto you, do it.” [John 2:1-5.] 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 1

“There were set there six waterpots of stone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing two or three firkins apiece. And Jesus said unto them, Fill the waterpots with water.” The servants obeyed, filling them to the brim. Jesus then said, “Draw out now, and bear to the governor of the feast.” [Verses 6-8.] Again they obeyed his commands, and lo, the water had become the choicest wine. 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 2

At the feasts which the world provides, the richest provisions are usually placed before the guests first, but on this occasion the best was kept till the last. When the ruler of the feast had tasted the water which was made wine, he at once detected the difference between this and that which he had before drank. It was superior, the best he had ever placed in his lips. Calling the bridegroom, he “saith unto him, Every man at the beginning doth set forth good wine; and when men have well drunk, then that which is worse; but thou hast kept the good wine until now.” [Verse 10.] 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 3

Christ desired this figure to represent the marriage supper of the Lamb, and He would have the symbol as perfect as possible, with all the objectionable features which usually attend a marriage festival dropped out. 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 4

What Christ does is fully done, and this is the plan on which His servants are to work. In the waterpots filled by His word there was more wine than was required for the feast. By this He would teach us that the provision which the Saviour's grace and righteousness makes for us is full and abundant. Those who come to Him for the bread of heaven and the water of salvation will always be supplied. He does "exceeding abundantly," above all that we can ask or think. [Ephesians 3:20.] 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 5

Christ came to our world to cause heavenly light to shine amid the moral darkness. He came to make men and women understand that the marriage institution is sacred. His presence at Cana gave high endorsement to this ordinance. The wife is to respect her husband. The husband is to love and cherish his wife; and as their marriage vow unites them as one, so their belief in Christ should make them one in Him. What can be more pleasing to God than to see those who enter into the marriage relation seek together to learn of Jesus and to become more and more imbued with His Spirit? 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 6

The home is an institution of God. God designed that the family circle, father, mother, and the children, should exist in this world as a firm. The father is to act as priest in his own house. He is the house-band, and what his influence will be in the home will be determined by his knowledge of the only true God and Jesus Christ whom He has sent. 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 7

"When I was a child," Paul says, "I spake as a child; I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things." [1 Corinthians 13:11.] The father is to stand at the head of his family, not as an overgrown, undisciplined boy, but as a man with a manly character and with his passions controlled. He is to obtain an education in correct morals. His conduct in his home life is to be directed and restrained by the pure principles of the word of God. Then he will grow up to the full stature of a man in Christ Jesus. 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 8

Affection cannot be lasting, even in the home circle unless there is a conformity of the will and disposition to the will of God. All the faculties and passions are to be brought into harmony with the attributes of Jesus Christ. If the father and mother in the love and fear of God unite their interests to have authority in the home, they will see the necessity of much prayer, much sober reflection. And as they seek God, their eyes will be opened to see heavenly messengers present to protect them in answer to the prayer of faith. They will overcome the weaknesses of their character, and go on unto perfection. 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 9

The voice is an entrusted talent, and it should be used to help and encourage and strengthen our fellow men. If parents will love God and keep the way of the Lord to do justice and judgment, their language will not savor of sickly sentimentalism. It will be of a sound, pure, edifying character. Whether they are at home or abroad, their words will be well chosen. They will descend to no cheapness. They are bought with a price, and they are to glorify God in their body and spirit, which are His. They belong to God, and their deportment is to be consistent. 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 10

Christ has made every provision that every parent who will be controlled by the Holy Spirit will be given strength and grace to be a teacher in the home. This education and discipline in the home will have a molding and fashioning influence. There should be no fermented wine to tempt the appetite of the children. If you are under the control of the Spirit of God, you will put all the energy of your being into what you do, and a sanctifying influence will pervade the home. Blemishes in your character will be overcome, and parents and children will grow up to the full stature of the measure of the fulness of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 36, 1899, par. 11

The Need of Consecrated Workers

NP

March 21, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 8MR 287-288; 10MR 319.

To the question Christ put to the twelve, “Will ye also go away?” Peter answered, “Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God.” [John 6:67-69.]14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 1

When the leaders and teachers in our institutions and schools bring these words into their practical life, the Holy Spirit will be present to do its office work upon the hearts and minds of the students. The principles revealed in the daily life of Daniel and his companions are to be brought into our institutions. We are to know no other Leader but Christ, whose we are by creation and by redemption.14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 2

Many who profess to be followers of Christ make but slight acknowledgement of His claims upon them, and a sickly, dwarfed religious experience is the result. Such acknowledgments as these cannot be productive of spiritual health and growth. Our workers must have a firm vital piety which they do not now possess. Spirituality will be seen in the lives of all who are partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 3

“The corruption that is in the world through lust.” [2 Peter 1:4.] This does not apply merely to the sin of licentiousness. Selfishness, self-gratification, pride of dress, of appearance, of talents, of knowledge, love of amusement, evil-surmising, evil-speaking, impatience, corrupt thoughts, impure conversation, covetousness—all these, if indulged, become warring lusts which fight against the Spirit of God. The work of the Holy Spirit is to reprove of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. This reproof—coming from the agents whom God may use—if rejected, leaves the soul in the same darkness which surrounded the Jews when they refused the light sent them through God’s beloved Son. 14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 4

The spiritual blindness of the Jews did not come to them all at once. God spoke to those who stood as teachers in Israel, and they refused to hear. He impressed them by His Holy Spirit, but they refused to yield to His working. They had abundance of evidence, but still they called for more. They made of none effect the commandments of God. While feigning to honor the Sabbath, they utterly failed to comprehend its true import, and the very day which God had given as a memorial of His created work, the day which He gave as a rest for man, they made a day of vigorous bondage. False standards of duty were erected; the outward and ceremonial was made to eclipse the spiritual requirements of God. 14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 5

Christ warned these men, saying, “Strive to enter in at the strait gate: for many, I say unto you, will seek to enter in, and shall not be able. When once the Master of the house is risen up, and has shut to the door, and ye begin to stand without, and to knock at the door, saying, Lord, Lord, open unto us, and he shall answer and say unto you, I know ye not whence ye are: then shall ye begin to say, We have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets. But he shall say, I tell you, I know you not whence ye are; depart from me, ye workers of iniquity. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out. And they shall come from the east and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God. And behold, there are last which shall be first, and the first which shall be last.” [Luke 13:24-30.] 14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 6

These words amazed the scribes and Pharisees. God had given them every facility. In His providence He had bestowed upon them great light, and they had been regarded as the first, the only pious people on the face of the earth. At these words of Christ, they determined to get rid of Him, and sought to accomplish the work by intimidating Him. "The same day there came certain of the Pharisees, saying unto him, Get thee out and depart hence; for Herod will kill thee. And he said unto them, Go ye, and tell that fox, Behold, I cast out devils, and I do cures today and tomorrow, and the third day I shall be perfected. Nevertheless I must walk today, and tomorrow, and the day following: for it cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem." [Verses 31-33.]14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par.

This people had closed their eyes that they should not see and their ears that they should not hear. They themselves had loaded the cloud of vengeance which burst upon them to their destruction. "Ye will not come unto me," Christ said, "that ye might have life." [John 5:40.] The sure fate of Jerusalem, the harrowing scenes of her destruction as the result of their course of action, stood clearly revealed to Him, and He broke forth into the mournful lamentation, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate: verily I say unto you, Ye shall not see me, until the time come when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." [Matthew 23:37-39.]14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 8

Who were the most guilty, the leaders in Israel or those who came to them for instruction? It was the teachers, the educators of the youth and of the people. Ezekiel calls them the ancients before the gates. These ancients, it must be understood, were not called so because of their age. They were the ones chosen to be counsellors, wise men who sat in the gate, and to whom the people came for advice and counsel. But the hearts of these men were not right in the sight of God. They were false teachers.14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 9

We are to learn a lesson from the sin of Israel. The men who accept the position of educators should be men who are in communion with God. If they dared to assume these responsibilities, while they do not keep a connection with the Source of all wisdom, while they trust to their own human judgment, they incur guilt upon their souls; for they bring unsanctified maxims and customs and devisings into the most sacred work ever committed to mortals. These men lead astray those who depend upon them and trust in them. If those who learn lessons from them are not ruined body and soul, it is not because of any saving virtue in these ancients. It is because the people themselves are alarmed by the developments in themselves and their teachers.14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 10

Let the teachers in our schools, from the highest to the lowest, come under the instruction of the divine Teacher, learning his meekness and lowliness of heart. Their own souls and the souls under their care will be in peril as long as they remain in their present position. Let every man and woman arouse to a sense of their God-given responsibility. Let not the ancients close the gates, so that the Lord can find no entrance into their families and their hearts.14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 11

If the youth come to school determined to obtain instruction that will fit them for the higher grade, ministering angels will attend them at every step. The still, small voice is speaking to them, saying, "This is the way, walk ye in it" [Isaiah 30:21], and they must so conduct themselves that they will be susceptible to the influences of the Holy Spirit. Angels in the appearance of men will walk by the side of the student who will submit his will to God's will.14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 12

Heavenly messengers are sent to minister unto those who shall be heirs of salvation, and these would converse with the teachers if they were not so well satisfied with old customs and maxims and the well-trodden path of tradition, if they were not so fearful of getting away from a certain line that keeps them under the shadow of the world. Men and women labor to obtain a class of food which is not calculated to strengthen spirituality, to give that wisdom, that knowledge, that higher education which comes from God, and which alone can give spiritual vigor and moral strength. Christ says, "Labor not for that meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto everlasting life, which the Son of God shall give unto you: for him hath God the Father sealed." [John 6:27.]14LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 13

The teacher should strive to have his knowledge of the Word and spiritual truth continually increase. But he cannot do this by wedding himself to certain authors. If he would have his powers and capabilities daily improve, he must study the Word of God, and work in Christ's lines. This is represented as eating the flesh and drinking the blood of the Son of God. This is that meat which endureth unto everlasting life. The soul that is nourished by the bread of life will have every faculty vitalized by the Spirit of God. Paul exhorts us, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God." [Romans 12:1, 2.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 37, 1899, par. 14

“The Will of God Concerning You.”

NP

March 26, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 1SAT 300-303.

Through the apostle John God sends the message to his people in these last days, “I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot. So then, because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth. Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing, and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked; I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the same of thy nakedness do not appear, and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see.” [Revelation 3:15-18.] 14LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 1

As a people we are in danger of being separated from the Sun of Righteousness. We are to be sanctified to God through obedience to the truth. Our conscience must be purged from dead works to serve the living God. Sanctification means perfect love, perfect obedience, entire conformity to the will of God. If our lives are conformed to the life of Christ through the sanctification of mind, soul, and body, our example will have a powerful influence on the world. We are not perfect, but it is our privilege to cut away from the entanglements of self and sin, and go on unto perfection. “We all, with open face, beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord.” [2 Corinthians 3:18.] 14LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 2

Christ in His prayer to the Father, said, “I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil. They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. Sanctify them through thy truth, thy word is truth. As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world. And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth. Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one, as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them, that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them as thou hast loved me.” [John 17:15-23.]14LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 3

These are grand and uplifting truths. Great possibilities, high and holy attainments, are placed within the reach of all who have true faith. Shall we not anoint our eyes with eye salve, that we may discern the wondrous things here brought before us? Why do we not with persevering earnestness, work out this prayer, advancing onward and upward, reaching the standard of holiness? We are laborers together with God, and we must work in harmony with one another and with God; for it is God which worketh in us, both to will and to do of his good pleasure.14LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 4

“When I was a child,” Paul said, “I spake as a child; I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things.” [1 Corinthians 13:11.] How many men there are who have grown to man’s estate, but have not outgrown their childhood, who bring the defects of their child-life into their religious experience. Brethren, “be not children in understanding; howbeit in malice be ye children, but in understanding be men.” [1 Corinthians 14:20.]14LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 5

The Lord takes no pleasure in seeing us spiritually weak. “God who commanded the light to shine out of darkness hath shined in our hearts to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.” [2 Corinthians 4:6, 7.] We have conflicts and trials to meet, but we need not fail or be discouraged. The apostle says, “We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, yet not in despair; persecuted, ... but not destroyed, always bearing about in our body the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our body.” [Verses 8-10.]14LtMs, Ms 38,

It is the supposed little sins that will exclude us from heaven. We cannot carry with us a part of our sinful selves, that sensitiveness which is always ready to be hurt, and cry out. Our refusal to let self die and our life be hid with Christ in God, will leave us in unbelief and transgression of the law. The gospel has not abolished from the law, or detracted one little from its claims. It still demands holiness in every part. There is no such thing as making the law void through faith in Christ. The law is the echo of God's own voice, giving to every soul the invitation, "Come up higher." Be holy, holier still.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 7

If we would press forward to the mark of our high calling of God in Christ Jesus, we must show that we are emptied of all self, and supplied with the golden oil which through the two golden pipes is communicated by the two anointed ones who stand by the Lord of the whole earth. God is dealing with us through His grace and providence. From eternity He has chosen us to be His obedient children. He gave His Son to die for us, that we might be sanctified through obedience to the truth, cleansed from all the littleness and cheapness of self. As a people, we are far behind. A personal work is needed, a personal surrender of self. We are to be controlled by the Holy Spirit. "Ye are the light of the world." Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and may glorify your Father which is in heaven. [Matthew 5:14, 16.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 8

God can only be honored when we who profess to believe in Him are conformed to His image. We are to represent to the world the beauty of holiness, and we shall never enter the gates of the city of God until we perfect a Christlike character. If we with trust in God strive for sanctification, we shall receive it. Then as witnesses for Christ, we are to make known what the grace of God has wrought in us.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 9

The greatest disquietude we can have is uncertainty. The acceptance of the blessings of God brings righteousness and peace. The fruit of righteousness is quietness and assurance forever. We must have simplicity and Godlike sincerity. We must have that wisdom which cometh from above. Our Christian experience must be animated, by piety, and instinct with the divine life.14LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 10

You strike too low, my brethren. Set your mark high. Let your works be in harmony with the works of Jesus Christ. It is the privilege of all to grow up to the full stature of men and women in Christ Jesus. "This is the will of God concerning you, even your sanctification." [1 Thessalonians 4:3.] Is it your will also? with intensity of desire, long after God; yea, pant after him, as the hart panteth after the water brooks. Press to the mark of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.14LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 11

Why do not all who have named the name of Christ put on Christ? Why do they not awake from their indifference, arouse from the lukewarm state, their self-satisfied condition? God's people must have a fixed purpose. They will never be holy until they put all the energy of their being into the work of conforming to the will of God.14LtMs, Ms 38, 1899, par. 12

Loyalty or Disloyalty

NP

March 23, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in RH 02/06/1900.

In past ages the Lord God of heaven revealed His secrets to His prophets, and this He does still. The present and the future are equally clear to Him, and He shows to His servants the future history of what shall be. The Omniscient looked down the ages, and predicted through His prophets the rise and fall of kingdoms hundreds of years before the events foretold took place. The voice of God echoes down the ages, telling man what is to take place. Kings and princes take their places at their appointed time. They think they are carrying out their own purposes, but in reality they are fulfilling the word God has given through His prophets. They act their part in carrying out God's great purposes. Events fall into line, fulfilling the word God has spoken. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 1

The unbelieving and godless do not discern the signs of the times. In ignorance they may refuse to accept the inspired record. But when professed Christians speak sneeringly of the ways and means employed by the great I AM to make His ways and purposes known, they show themselves to be both ignorant of the Scriptures and of the power of God. The Creator knows just what elements He has to deal with in human nature. He knows that means to employ to obtain the desired end. The Christian who accepts the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, will look at Bible history in its true bearing. The past, the history of the Jewish economy from [the] beginning to the end, instead of being spoken of contemptuously and sneered at as "the dark ages," will reveal light, and still more light, as it is studied. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 2

Man's word fails, and he who takes the assertions of man as his dependence may well tremble, for he will one day be as a shipwrecked vessel. But God's Word is infallible and endures forever. Christ declares, "Verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled." [Matthew 5:18.] God's Word will endure through the ceaseless ages of eternity. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 3

God lives and reigns. His glory is not confined to the temple made with hands. He has not closed heaven against His people. As in the Jewish age, so in this age, God reveals His secrets to His servants the prophets. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 4

The image shown to Nebuchadnezzar in the visions of the night represents the kingdoms of the world. The metals in the image, symbolizing the different kingdoms, became less and less pure and valuable. The head of the image was of gold, the breast and arms of silver, the sides of brass, and the feet and toes iron mingled with clay. So the kingdoms represented by them deteriorated in value. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 5

The result of making void the law of God may be seen in the immorality of these several kingdoms. If they had kept the fear of the Lord ever before them, they would have been given wisdom and power which would have bound them together and kept them strong. But the rulers of the kingdoms of the world made God their strength only when harassed and perplexed. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 6

Failing to get help from their great men, they sought it from men like Daniel, whom they knew honored the living God, and were honored by him. To these men they appealed to unravel the mysteries of providence to them, for they had so far separated themselves from God by transgression that they could not understand His warnings. They were forced to appeal to those illuminated by heavenly light to explain the mysteries they did not comprehend. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 7

Daniel, a man inspired by God, stood up in the Babylonian empire, when the kingdom seemed so strong and its influence so far-reaching that the most powerful foe could not take its scepter, and prophesied that it would pass away, notwithstanding its apparent magnificence, and that a second would succeed it. He prophesied also that the second empire would be succeeded by the third, and that a fourth empire would arise, more fierce, more determined, and more powerful than any kingdom that had preceded it. As strong as iron, this kingdom would subdue and break in pieces all the nations of the world. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 8

This picture passes before us as a panorama. In spite of the warning he had received, Nebuchadnezzar went on in his own strength till God took from him the talent of wisdom, that he might be brought to see and acknowledge the living God as One able to create and to destroy. Babylon passed away because in her prosperity she forgot God and ascribed the honor and glory of her prosperity to human achievements. So today when men refuse to obey the law of God they are humiliated. God tests them, and if they do not humble their hearts and confess their sins, they receive the penalty of transgression. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 9

The Medo-Persian kingdom was visited by the wrath of God because in it His law was trampled under foot. The fear of God possessed no power among the people. Wickedness, blasphemy, and corruption were the prevailing influences in this kingdom, and the kingdoms that followed were even more base and corrupt. They deteriorated because they cast God off. As they forgot Him they sank lower and lower in the scale of moral value. The vast empire of Rome crumbled into pieces. The church of Rome boasts of her infallibility and of her hereditary religion. But this religion is a horror to all who are acquainted with the secrets of the mystery of iniquity. The priests of this church maintain their ascendancy by keeping the people in ignorance of the will of God. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 10

While representing the kingdoms of this earth, the image revealed to Nebuchadnezzar also fitly represents the deterioration of religion. We grow weak morally and spiritually just in proportion as we forget God. Those who claim to be Protestants are not today what Luther was. They have left the old landmarks, and have depended on forms, ceremonies, and outward display to make up for the lack of purity and piety, meekness and lowliness, found in obedience to God. It is sin that is ruining nations today. Even leaders in the religious world have not a good conscience toward God. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 11

There is no real standard of righteousness apart from the law of God. By obedience to this law the intellect is cultivated, the conscience enlightened and made sensitive. Righteousness exalteth a nation. People need an intelligent knowledge of God's law. The words of the Bible and the Bible alone should be echoed from the pulpits of our land. God speaks in his word, and fulfills this word in the world. We need now to seek to understand the movements of God's providence. Said Paul, "Ye brethren are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief. Ye are the children of light and the children of the day. We are not of the night, nor of darkness." [1 Thessalonians 5:4, 5.]14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 12

The Bible is God's great director. It is a lamp to our feet, a light to our path. It flashes its light ahead, that we may see the path by which we are travelling, and its rays are thrown back on past history, showing most perfect harmony in that which to the mind in darkness appears like error and discord. In that which seems to the worldling an inexplicable mystery, God's children see light and beauty.14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 13

God has marked out the way with His prophetic guideposts. We are not left to depend on man's wisdom. The great waymarks God Himself has raised show us that the path of obedience is the only path we can follow with certainty. Men break their word, and prove themselves untrustworthy, but God changes not. His Word will abide the same forever. Those who love and obey the law of Jehovah will meet with trials and temptations, but this is only what Jesus met, and He declares, "My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me: and I give unto them eternal life; and they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of my hand." [John 10:27, 28.] If we hope and pray and by faith trust His Word, we shall be able to say with Paul, "I am persuaded that neither life nor death, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor height nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." [Romans 8:38, 39.]14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 14

Have we wholly given ourselves up to do God's will? Are we transformed by the grace of Christ? Some claim to be in Christ, while their special work is to make void the law of Jehovah. Shall we take their word for it? Shall we accept their assertions? How shall we distinguish God's true servants from the false prophets which Christ said should arise to deceive many? There is only one test of character—the law of Jehovah. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 15

The Israelites placed over their doors a signature of blood, to show that they were God's property. So every child of God in this age will bear the signature God has appointed. They will place themselves in harmony with God's holy law. A mark is placed upon every one of God's people, just as verily as a mark was placed over the doors of the Hebrew dwellings, to preserve the people from the general ruin. God declares, "I gave them my Sabbaths, to be a sign between me and them, that they might know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify them." [Ezekiel 20:12.] When men say that the law of God is abrogated by the testimonies of "the fathers," they are teaching for doctrine the commandments of men. Their word is not founded upon the teaching of the apostles and prophets. Jesus Christ is not the Chief Cornerstone of their structure. John says, "He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him." [1 John 2:4.] Those who permit themselves to be deceived will, with the deceiver, feel the wrath of the Lamb. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 16

With God's Word before us, with the lesson of instruction we may there learn, there is no need for us to be deceived. We are living in a momentous period in this earth's history. The great conflict is just before us. We see the world corrupted under the inhabitants thereof. The man of sin has worked with a marvelous perseverance to exalt a spurious sabbath, and the disloyal Protestant world has wondered after the beast, and has called obedience to the Sabbath instituted by Jehovah disloyalty to the laws of the nations. Kingdoms have confederated to sustain a false sabbath institution, which has not a word of authority in the oracles of God. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 17

In the record of the vision given to John we read, "The dragon was wroth with the woman, (the church), and went to make war with the remnant of her seed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ." [Revelation 12:17.] Satanic agencies have made the earth a stage for horrors which no language can describe. War and bloodshed are carried on by nations claiming to be Christian. A disregard for the law of God has brought the sure result. 14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 18

The great conflict now being waged is not merely a strife of man against man. On the one side stand the Prince of Life, acting as man's substitute and surety; on the other the prince of darkness, with the fallen angels under his command. "We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. ... Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil." [Ephesians 6:12, 13, 10, 11.]14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 19

There will be a sharp conflict between those who are loyal to God and those who cast scorn upon His law. The church has joined hands with the world. Reverence to God's law has been subverted. The religious leaders have taught for doctrine the commandments of men. As it was in the days of Noah, so it is in this age of the world. But shall the prevalence of disloyalty and transgression cause those who have revered the law of God to have less respect for it, to unite with the powers of earth to make void God's law? The truly loyal will not be carried away by the current of evil. They will not throw scorn and contempt on that which God has set apart as holy. The test comes to every one. There are only two sides. Which are you on?14LtMs, Ms 39, 1899, par. 20

“I Will Have Mercy and Not Sacrifice.”

NP

March 26, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in WM 24; 9MR 160; 10MR 95-96.

“Whoso hath this world’s goods, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?” [1 John 3:17.] 14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 1

Christ, our substitute and surety, was a man of sorrows and acquainted with grief. His human life was one long travail in behalf of the inheritance He was to purchase at such an infinite cost. He was touched with the feelings of our infirmities. In consideration of the value He places upon the purchase of His blood, He adopts them as his children, makes them the objects of His tender care. And in order that they may have their temporal and spiritual necessities supplied, He commits them to His church, saying, Inasmuch as ye do it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye do it unto me. 14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 2

This is to be our watchword. “Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.” [Matthew 25:40.] And if we faithfully carry it into our daily lives, we shall hear the benediction, “Well done, good and faithful servant; ... enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.” [Verse 23.] Will it pay to endure, as a Christian, the tests and trials of God? 14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 3

We need to make great changes. We need to hold the pure principles in reverence for Christ and respect for the purchase of His blood. This we may do through practical obedience to heaven’s law. There must be a continual growth in those attributes which tend to perfection of character. When divine grace has opened our hearts, we shall impart to others of the grace we have received. “And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep our hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.” [Philippians 4:7.]14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 4

Listen to the testimony of Inspiration concerning Christ: “Behold my servant, whom I uphold, mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth: I have put my Spirit upon him: he shall bring forth judgment unto the Gentiles. ... A bruised reed shall ye not break, and the smoking flax shall ye not quench: he shall bring forth judgment and truth. He shall not fail nor be discouraged till he have set judgment in the earth: and the isles shall wait for his law.” [Isaiah 42:1, 3, 4.]14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 5

This is the testimony to be borne of every servant of Christ. His professed followers would do well to ask themselves, Have I the mind of Christ? Have I, with humble heart, sought to bless the souls who are cramped and oppressed, those who are tempted and tried by poverty and affliction? Or have I heard the voice of my fellow men asking for pity, for consideration, for mercy, and instead of following in the footsteps of my Example, spurned their earnest cry? Have I made it harder for them to place their confidence and faith in a prayer-hearing God? Have I, by harsh, unpitying words, crushed the wounded spirit, and in hardness of heart quenched the last spark of hope in the soul?14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 6

The richest treasure in the sight of God is a humble, contrite heart. The power of the Lord is magnified when the human heart is tender, sensitive to another’s woe, and pitiful for his suffering. Angels of God are ready to work with the human instrumentality in ministering to help souls. When the Holy Spirit works upon our minds and hearts, we shall not shun duty and responsibility, and like the priest and Levite, pass by on the other side, leaving the wounded, helpless soul to its misery. Let there be no departure from the example given us in the Word of life. Charity and godliness are worthy of constant exercise.14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 7

No man is to be trusted with high responsibilities unless he takes himself in hand daily and, through grace given, sets his heart in order. Often the ones who do the greatest harm are those who accept positions of trust, but who have not inquired at every step, “Is this the way of the Lord?” The one who allows his heart to become hardened by Satan's temptations, who permits his natural disposition to gain the victory, fails to receive the impress of heaven. He becomes sapless and impoverished, and bears only wild fruit. 14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 8

The professed children of God who have refused the guidance of their Father in heaven, who have disregarded God's message and messengers, will mourn too late the blessings they have lost. With anguish of soul they will call to mind the opportunities and privileges which were within their reach, but which they failed to improve. They will then realize that these blessings are lost to them forever. 14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 9

Will the professed follower of Christ consider what manner of spirit he is of? As you read the history of the Old and New Testaments, mark how tender and pitiful the Lord is in His dealings with His creatures. While we were yet sinners, Christ died for us, and He stands ready to receive every wanderer who will return. And yet how many there are, themselves needing salvation as much as he, look upon the struggling soul not only with indifference, but contempt. Like the Pharisee they say, "God, I thank thee I am not as other men, or even as this sinner." [See Luke 18:11.] 14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 10

My soul trembles as I see the blindness of intelligent minds to discern their possibilities, as I see how hard and ungracious are the thoughts cherished toward the straying sheep. O, if those in positions of influence would realize what God expects of them, in rescuing the human race, many lambs that have been killed by neglect might now be safely housed in the fold of God. If one-half the time and strength that is now devoted to sermonizing were spent in seeking to win back the straying ones, there would be rejoicing in the heavenly courts. These sermons lived would have a telling influence in winning souls to Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 11

How can God look upon the men and women who, claiming to be co-workers with Christ, regard the prodigal with contempt? While the soul is making its very first struggles against the flood of temptation, they, like the elder brother of the parable, stand by—stubborn self-willed, complaining. But the heavenly Father appreciates His erring child, and encourages him in returning to his heavenly home. The Father's arm is about his son; the Father's garments cover his rags; the ring is placed upon his finger as a token of his royalty. 14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 12

The ear of the Lord is open to the cry of every soul that is poor in spirit. Even before the prayer is offered, or the yearning of the soul made known, the Spirit of God goes forth to meet it. Never has there been a genuine desire, however weak, never a prayer lifted to God, however faltering, never a tear shed in contrition of soul, but grace from Christ has gone forth to meet the grace working upon the human heart. 14LtMs, Ms 40, 1899, par. 13

The Religion of Christ

NP

March 28, 1899

Previously unpublished. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

There are many intelligent men who mean to be Christians, and who think they are Christians, but they deceive themselves. Their religion is not after the order of Christ, but is a shadow of some other man's mind, and does real harm to the cause of truth when brought into connection with the work. If these persons would study the work of Christ, they would discover that they act out the attributes of Satan rather than reveal the beauty and lowliness of the meek and lowly Jesus. If in their work something arises that cuts across their plans, they place all the strength of their being on the enemy's side. They become unkind and unfeeling. They make unholy decisions, and act in a way that hurts souls nigh and afar off. They lie against the truth while claiming to believe. They think their position demands that they be firm and very zealous, and they speak as they feel, in a harsh, cutting manner, and having once spoken their opinion, they will maintain it at any price. The heart of flesh seems hardened to a heart of steel. 14LtMs, Ms 41, 1899, par.

These men misrepresent the religion of Jesus Christ. By the heavenly universe, as well as men, it is seen that they have not renewed, sanctified hearts, but are rough and coarse in disposition, unsympathetic, unkind, uncourteous, unchristlike. 14LtMs, Ms 41, 1899, par. 2

A man may think he is a Christian, and that he is doing an essential work, and yet do that work with such a spirit that it proves he is no Christian. He may do his work in such a way as to stir up the worst passions of the human heart. It is possible for a man to think himself a Christian, and yet have entirely incorrect ideas of Christianity. He may believe the truth, but his faith is not a faith which works by love and purifies the soul. At times he may speak the truth as it is in Jesus. He may be kind and deal with equity. He may have right ideas, and at times come to correct decisions in regard to the work; but if any fault is found with him, if some one ventures to correct him, he covers himself with zeal as with a cloak, and pours forth such bitterness that the attributes of Satan are revealed in him. 14LtMs, Ms 41, 1899, par. 3

He may have ability to teach others, to educate the young or deal with the erring. But self in him is strong, and when unfavorable circumstances arise, he will show that he lacks self-control, and the old habits and practices, awakening into life, will carry him on with a zeal that is not according to knowledge or sound Bible principle. Bitterness is cherished against souls who are the purchase of the Son of God, and when through misconception his own spirit is brought into exercise, his unchristlike disposition manifests itself against those who are innocent. How can God look upon such a man with pleasure? Will He not punish for these things? 14LtMs, Ms 41, 1899, par. 4

God has represented this work in His Word, saying, "Ye have thrust with side and with shoulder, and pushed the diseased with your horns, till ye have scattered them abroad." [Ezekiel 34:21.] This is the course many have pursued. They have driven the weak on to Satan's battleground, to be tempted, to falter, and to fall. When the judgment shall sit and the books are opened, these men will be called to account for the blood of souls that is upon their garments. In that day God will ask them, "Who hath required this at your hand?" [Isaiah 1:12.] They will then see that they have done a work that God has not required of them. 14LtMs, Ms 41, 1899, par. 5

For a time the work may not show the result of such a course of action, for God works to preserve the honor of His cause. But if after messages of mercy and warning are rejected these defects will become apparent, alienation will be aroused, distrust awakened. Those who have connected themselves with these men will find themselves losing in personal piety and faith in Christ, that their characters are becoming molded after a wrong pattern.

Temptations will be many and strong to be unmerciful, unsympathetic, untouched by the feelings of others' infirmities. Instead of learning in the school of Christ, they are being educated in wrong ways by teachers whose defects of character will close the gates of heaven upon them. 14LtMs, Ms 41, 1899, par. 6

A course of action should be pursued that will inspire faith. The Spirit of Jehu will never bind human hearts together. This lesson men are slow to learn. It is not safe to bind our interests up with a Jehu-religion, for it will result in bringing sadness of heart upon God's true workers. It was a sad day for Jehonadab when he was lifted up by the hand of Jehu to a place in his chariot, to understand his zeal for the Lord and the principles which moved him to action. God can give Jehu a work to do under His hand, but He has not left any of His servants to do the work of punishing the men who will not heed His warnings and reproofs. His workers cannot do this with success. The Holy Spirit abiding in the heart will lead the erring human agent to see His own defects of character and pity the weakness of others, to forgive as he wishes to be forgiven. He will be pitiful, courteous, [and] Christlike. 14LtMs, Ms 41, 1899, par. 7

Kept in Trial

NP

March 28, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in RH 06/19/1900.

“I say unto you, my friends,” Christ said, “be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more than they can do.” [Luke 12:4.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 1

The priests and rulers did all that lay in their power against the only begotten Son of God and against all who acknowledged Him, for they were imbued with the spirit of him who is a liar and a murderer. But though Satan vented his spite against the children of God and their great Head, he could not control the conscience or tarnish the soul. He may cause all the suffering possible to the body, but he cannot change the character of the man who conscientiously serves God.14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 2

Today men may persecute even unto death in an effort to make their fellow men worship an idol sabbath which has been brought into existence by the man of sin, who thinks to change times and laws. But to torture and put to death the body is all they can do. Satan makes a continual effort to ruin the souls God is seeking to save. By his masterly inventions and crooked deceptions he seeks to confuse men’s minds in regard to the Way, the Truth, and the Life. Under his direction men have inflicted untold pain and misery on their fellow men. But they have never been able to harm the soul. There is a power which can destroy both soul and body. “I will forewarn ye whom ye shall fear. Fear him which, after he hath killed, hath power to cast into hell, yea, I say unto you, Fear him.” [Verse 5.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 3

The Ruler of the universe bears long with the perversity of men, but He keeps a record of their works, and in proportion as they have caused pain to others, they will themselves be punished. “I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and receive not of her plagues. For her sins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities. Reward her even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double according to her works: in the cup which she hath filled, fill to her double. How much she hath glorified herself, and lived deliciously, so much torment and sorrow give her; for she saith in her heart, I sit a queen, and am no widow and shall see no sorrow. Therefore shall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine; and she shall be utterly burned with fire; for strong is the Lord God who judgeth her.” [Revelation 18:4-8.] 14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 4

“God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” [John 3:16.] No earthly ruler could show himself so jealous of his honor, so interested in his subjects, so kind and tender to those who put their trust in him as does the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the Ruler high above all rule, all authority. He has strictly prohibited all sin, and has strictly enjoined practical obedience. It is Satan that fills man’s heart with a desire to do evil. Those who follow him, the busy, incessant worker of evil, are not content with imperilling their own souls. They present every inducement which they think will lead others to imperil their souls. If these cannot rule, they seek to ruin. 14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 5

A spirit of exasperation, of revenge, of hatred, works in the children of disobedience, as it worked in the first great rebel. He imbues his followers with every species of malignity against those who cannot be induced to join his ranks. Gaping prisons are opened before them. They are threatened with the chain-gang and the stocks. Thus men treat those who worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience. Have they forgotten that as they judge and punish, so they will be judged and punished? 14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 6

God has said, “Touch not mine anointed, and do my prophets no harm.” [Psalm 105:15.] Men have borne false witness against God’s chosen ones. They have bruised their limbs with fetters and burnt them at the stake. The Lord will avenge His children. As men have carried out the spirit and purposes of Satan in causing pain to human beings, so will they suffer. Thus will they perish who have done all in their power to compel men to transgress the law which God has commanded all to obey. "And I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he doth judge and make war. His eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns; and he had a name written that no man knew but he himself. And he was clothed in a vesture dipped in blood, and his name was called the Word of God." 14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 7

"And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And out of his mouth goeth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations, and he shall rule them with a rod of iron, and he treadeth the winepress with the fierceness of the wrath of Almighty God. And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, King of kings and Lord of lords. And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven, Come and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God: that ye may eat the flesh of kings and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great." 14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 8

"And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war on him that sat on the horse, and against his army. And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet which wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast, and them that worshiped his image. These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone. And the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sat upon the horse, which sword proceedeth out of his mouth: and all the fowls were filled with their flesh." [Revelation 19:11-21.] 14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 9

Christ says, "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns or figs of thistles?" [Matthew 7:15, 16.] "I am the vine, ye are the branches. He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing.” [John 15:5.] “Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit, but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. ... Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them.” “Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doth the will of my father which is in heaven. Man will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity.” [Matthew 7:17, 18, 20-23.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 10

Let the Lord Jesus testify in regard to the fruit he bears: “The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the poor; he hath sent me to bind up the broken-hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, (not to sentence them to prison and exile, to chain gangs and stocks), and the opening of the prison to them that are bound. To proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, and the day of vengeance of our God; to comfort all that mourn; to appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they may be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord, that ye might be glorified.” [Isaiah 61:1-3.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 11

This is the work of Christ. What a contrast it is to the work of Satan!14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 12

The Lord has not forgotten His people who live in this age. He says to them, “Why sayest thou, O Jacob, and speakest, O Israel, My way is hid from the Lord, and my judgment is passed over from my God? Has thou not known? Hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? There is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint, and to them that have no might he increaseth strength. Even the youth shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall; but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; they shall walk, and not faint.” [Isaiah 40:27-31.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 13

“But thou, Israel, art my servant, ... whom I have chosen, the seed of Abraham, my servant. Thou whom I have taken from the ends of the earth, and called thee from the chief men thereof, and said unto thee, Thou art my servant; I have chosen thee, and not cast thee away.14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 14

“Fear thou not; for I am with thee; be not dismayed, for I am thy God: I will strengthen thee, yea, I will help thee, yea, I will uphold thee with the right hand of my righteousness. Behold, all they that were incensed against thee shall be ashamed and confounded, for they shall be as nothing, and they that strive with thee shall perish. Thou shalt seek them, and shalt not find them, even them that contended with thee; they that war against thee shall be as nothing, and as a thing of nought. For I the Lord thy God will hold thy right hand, saying unto thee, Fear not; I will help thee. Fear not, thou worm Jacob, and ye men of Israel, I will help thee, saith the Lord, thy Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel.” [Isaiah 41:8-14.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 15

“For thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy: I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones.” [Isaiah 57:15.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 16

“Ye shall know them by their fruits.” [Matthew 7:16.] Do those who accuse God’s children come under the head of “contrite ones”? Instead, they show to the world, to angels, and to men that they have chosen to stand under the banner of the prince of darkness, to swell the numbers of those who love and make a lie.14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 17

We are living in probationary time. There are only two sides, only two parties. Of those whom God sees that He can trust because they are loyal and obedient, He says, “They that feared the Lord spake often one to another, and the Lord hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels, and I will spare them as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall ye return and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God, and him that serveth him not.” [Malachi 3:16-18.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 18

“For, behold, the day cometh, that shall burn as an oven, and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be as stubble, and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch. But unto you that fear my name shall the Sun of righteousness arise with healing in his wings; and ye shall go forth, and grow up as calves of the stall. And ye shall tread down the wicked; for they shall be ashes under the soles of your feet, in the day that I shall do this, saith the Lord of hosts.” [Malachi 4:1-3.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 19

The Lord makes a covenant with His people. After being tested and tried, those who are loyal to His commandments are pronounced trustworthy members of the royal family, children of the heavenly King. God declares, “He that overcometh shall inherit all things,” “and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father and before his angels.” “Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he shall go no more out, and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is New Jerusalem.” [Revelation 21:7; 3:5, 12.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 20

“These things saith he that is holy, he that is true, he that hath the key of David, he that openeth, and no man shutteth and shutteth and no man openeth: I know thy works: behold, I have set before thee an open door, and no man can shut it: for thou hast a little strength, and hast kept my word, and hast not denied my name. Behold I will make them of the synagogue of Satan which say they are Jews and are not, but do lie: behold, I will make them to come and worship before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee; because thou hast kept the word of my patience, I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation, which shall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth.” [Verses 7-10.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 21

“Because thou hast kept the word of my patience.” Does this apply to the men who persecute those who conscientiously keep the commandments of God, who refuse to bow down to an idol sabbath and worship an institution of the Papacy. Who is keeping the word of God's patience? This is a subject of intense interest, which none of us can afford to ignore, because God says of those who do keep the word of His patience, "I also will keep thee from the hour of temptation which shall come upon all." The hour of test and trial will surely come, and is even now approaching. Christ declares, "Behold, I come quickly; hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." [Verses 10, 11.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 22

"Behold I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the first and the last. Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." [Revelation 22:12-14.] Compare these words with the warning, "And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead or in his hand, the same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation, and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels and in the presence of the Lamb, and the smoke of their torment ascendeth up forever and ever, and they have no rest day nor night who worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name. Here is the patience of the saints: here are they that keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus." [Revelation 14:9-12.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 23

"And I heard a loud voice saying in heaven, Now is come salvation, and strength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Christ: for the accuser of the brethren is cast down, which accused them before our God day and night. And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of their testimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death. Therefore rejoice ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them." [Revelation 12:10-12.]14LtMs, Ms 42, 1899, par. 24

"And I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvelous, seven angels, having the seven last plagues, for in them is filled up the wrath of God. And I saw as it were a sea of glass mingled with fire, and them that had gotten the victory over the beast and over his image, and over his mark and over the number of his name, stand on the sea of glass, having the harps of God. And they sing the song of Moses the servant of God, and the song of the Lamb, saying, Great and marvelous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints. Who shall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy; for all nations shall come and worship before thee; for thy judgments are made manifest." ### Sabbath School Work

NP

March 29, 1899

Previously unpublished. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

We deeply regret our utter inability to help some people. They listen to the words spoken from the Bible, and seem to understand their meaning; but we wait in vain for them to be religiously impressed, to appear conscious that they have been bought with a price, that God has claims upon them. How the heavenly angels rejoice when they see the youth, young men, young women, and children, making the right choice, and offering themselves voluntarily in whole-souled allegiance to Him who gave His life for them.14LtMs, Ms 45, 1899, par. 1

In our Sabbath schools it is not those who possess supposed superior talents who accomplish the most. Those who amuse their classes by relating anecdotes do not exert an influence that is a savor of life unto life. Neither is the best influence exerted when students are encouraged to look upon the committing of chapters of Scripture to memory as a wonderful achievement. Offer no bribes to children to attend Sabbath school. But be sure that the teachers have the oil of grace in their vessels with their lamps.14LtMs, Ms 45, 1899, par. 2

You who are engaged in the work as Sabbath school superintendents and teachers remember that though you may teach the Word fluently, this is not all that is necessary. You may have plans whereby you hope to make your mark; but before you carry them out, ask yourself, Will it prove to be the mark of Christ, or a revelation of myself?14LtMs, Ms 45, 1899, par. 3

Much cheap machinery is used in Sabbath schools. How many people have been accepted as Sabbath school instructors who have never surrendered the soul to the discipline of Christ? They refuse to accept Christ, yet they accept the position of a teacher of Bible truth. There are those who step into the ranks as volunteer workers who have known the reasons of our faith from their youth up, but whose characters have never been transformed. They bear no sweet, precious fruit. They may be looked upon as excellent teachers, but their teaching has about as much influence as a recitation of the multiplication table would have. They are signboards pointing in the wrong direction. They have never realized what the true aim of life is. They have missed the mark most decidedly, and are no more fit to teach than were the foolish virgins to go into the marriage supper of the Lamb.14LtMs, Ms 45, 1899, par. 4

Let every Sabbath school teacher remember that he must bear about with him the precious fragrance of Christ's grace. The Sabbath school is a missionary field, open for all who love God. Into this work men and women may put heart-piety and soul-burdened, loving service. Those who do this, work to a purpose. The greatest earnestness, the deepest spirituality, are demanded for a Sabbath School worker. The simplicity of true religion, cherished in the hearts of superintendents and teachers, will bring angels of heaven into the school to impress and win souls.14LtMs, Ms 45, 1899, par. 5

Sabbath school superintendents and teachers should drink every day of the water of life. Then they will have within them a well of water, constantly springing up unto everlasting life. They are themselves learners in the school of the great Teacher, and therefore they can bring from the treasure house of the Word things new and old. The love of Christ speaks from the lips and is expressed in the countenance.14LtMs, Ms 45, 1899, par. 6

Such teachers show their love for Christ by their love for His children. They carry their students upon their soul until they are gathered into the fold, adopted as sons and daughters of God. They do not rest until they see before them the practical results of their work. They yearn for the souls committed to their charge. They will not rest until the Lord answers their earnest prayer for the conversion of souls. Angels of God co-operate with such teachers, enabling them to do service for the Master. The light of the Sun of Righteousness shines naturally from the soul. The words they speak are received as sincerity and truth. Christians indeed, they are doing the work of Christ, under His supervision.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 45, 1899, par. 7

The Pearl of Great Price

NP

March 29, 1899

Previously unpublished.

The pearl of great price represents the salvation which Christ brought to the human family. This salvation He freely gives to all who accept Him as a personal Saviour. But He warns us to take heed lest in searching for the pearl of great price, we are deceived into accepting a counterfeit. There are many who almost gain possession of the pearl, but fail in the end. They have not the purity of heart, the thorough consecration, the close relation with divinity, necessary for this noble pursuit. 14LtMs, Ms 46, 1899, par. 1

“Sanctify them through thy truth:” Christ prayed; “thy word is truth. As thou hast sent me into the world, so have I also sent them into the world. And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also may be sanctified through the truth. Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; that they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me, I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them as thou hast loved me.” [John 17:17-23.]14LtMs, Ms 46, 1899, par. 2

“I in them, and thou in me.” [Verse 23.] Nothing can bear any comparison with possessing Christ as a personal Saviour. He says to each one, “Wilt thou be made whole? Look unto me and be saved. I have borne thine iniquities. By the stripes laid upon me thou canst be healed.” 14LtMs, Ms 46, 1899, par. 3

As Saul of Tarsus was on his way to Damascus, breathing out threatening and slaughter against the disciples of the Lord, he was arrested in his course. “Suddenly there shone round about him a light from heaven, and he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying, unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" [Acts 9:3, 4.]14LtMs, Ms 46, 1899, par. 4

This wonderful revelation so affected Saul's eyesight that he was instantly made blind, but the eyes of his spiritual understanding were enlightened. He gained a knowledge of God and Jesus Christ whom He had sent. Remorse came over him, and he saw that he had persecuted Christ. What did he do? He sold all to buy the pearl of great price, saying, "What things were gain to me, these I counted loss for Christ, yea, doubtless, I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord, for whom I have suffered the loss of all things." [Philippians 3:7, 8.]14LtMs, Ms 46, 1899, par. 5

Seeking pardon for sin, Saul found the sin-pardoning Saviour, who takes away the guilt of the world. He found the One who said to him, "A new heart also will I give thee." [Ezekiel 36:26.] "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life." "Whosoever believeth in me, shall not perish, but shall have the light of life." [John 14:6; 3:16; 8:12.] In reference to Paul Christ could indeed say, "I was found of him who sought me not." [See Romans 10:20.] Paul was not searching for the pearl of great price. But it flashed its invaluable loveliness before him, that his attention might be attracted. Christ and his righteousness became to Paul more than the whole world. "I count all things but loss ... that I may win Christ," he declared. [Philippians 3:8.]14LtMs, Ms 46, 1899, par. 6

A restored spiritual life, a sound symmetrical experience, is the result of an acceptance of the great gift of Christ. The noblest faculties of the soul are thus made one with God. He who receives Christ by faith has the blessedness and joy of an eternal life.14LtMs, Ms 46, 1899, par. 7

“God Loveth a Cheerful Giver.”

NP

March 29, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in TDG 97; WM 279-280.

The apostle Paul declares, “He that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work.” [2 Corinthians 9:6-8.] 14LtMs, Ms 47, 1899, par. 1

Liberality is one of the directions of the Holy Spirit, and when the professed people of God withhold from the Lord His own in tithes and offerings, they meet with spiritual loss. The Lord does not reward a stinted liberality. He calls upon the people to honor Him with their substance, and wait the firstfruits of all their increase. 14LtMs, Ms 47, 1899, par. 2

It is not possible to lay down rules for every case, for in many instances such a course would distress the giver. The circumstances in which some are placed, and which are of God’s appointment are to be considered. The Lord expects a man to impart of what he has and not of what he has not. With some a tenth of the income would not properly represent the proportion they should give to the Lord, while to others it is a fair return. 14LtMs, Ms 47, 1899, par. 3

How many are losing rich blessings and becoming spiritually dwarfed because they withhold from God His own? The enemy of God and man is constantly at work to divert the treasures which belong to God to please and honor and glorify the human agent. My family needs call for this and for that, men say, and convenience after convenience is added to the house in furniture, in clothing, in dainties for the table. They fail to limit their desires, when by so doing they would bring blessing to themselves and to their families.14LtMs, Ms 47, 1899, par. 4

God has made us His almoners, co-partners with Him in the great work of advancing His kingdom on the earth. We may pursue the course taken by the unfaithful steward, and by so doing lose the most precious privileges ever granted to men. For thousands of years God has worked through human agencies, but at His will He can drop out the selfish, the money lover, the covetous. He can carry on His work though we act no part in it. But who among us would be pleased to have the Lord do this?14LtMs, Ms 47, 1899, par. 5

It were almost better not to give at all than to give in a grudging way. Let all bear in mind that they are dealing with God, upon whom they depend for every blessing. The Lord reads every thought of the heart, every impulse of the mind. If we have not the spirit to give freely, we mock Him.14LtMs, Ms 47, 1899, par. 6

When we show to the world, to angels, and to men that the prosperity of the cause of God is our first consideration, God will bless us. Sometimes He works through unbelievers, and unexpected relief comes. The Lord puts it into the hearts of men to help. The means coming in this way is not to be refused. When means comes from unbelievers it is to be used by the human agent to honor God. Every spiritually-minded, wholehearted giver will rightly apply every God-entrusted talent. The Lord does not have to depend upon our means. He will not be restricted by the human agent. His way is always the best way, and any help that may come to advance His cause and work in any of our institutions is to be used as coming from Him. Gifts from unbelievers are not to be refused. The money is the Lord's, and is to be received with gratitude. Let God work and send by whom He will.14LtMs, Ms 47, 1899, par. 7

If the love of God is supreme in our hearts our love for wife, husband, children, relatives will be in accordance with the will of God. We are to keep ourselves from idols. Everything that would divide our affections and confuse our understanding in regard to our duty to God is sin. When we allow our means to flow into unnecessary channels, while the cause of God is left in poverty, we show that our minds are perverted. Who is sufficient for these things? may be the inquiry of those engaged in the work. We believe time is closing. Eternity is at hand. Our supply of means is limited, and the work to be done is great. It is now that faith must be exercised. Our sufficiency is in God. When we have worked to the best of our ability and judgment to use the means which we have at our command, we may leave the rest with God. We are to go forward, and the Lord will open the way. 14LtMs, Ms 47, 1899, par.

Work in Christ's Lines

NP

March 29, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in ST 12/20/1899, 12/27/1899. †NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The life of Christ was a perfect life. It was a life of intense spirituality. Every circumstance of life Christ turned into an occasion for unfolding truth. As He sat by Jacob's well, talking to the woman of Samaria, His disciples came to Him with food, saying, "Master, eat. And he said unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of. Therefore said his disciples one to another, Hath any man brought him aught to eat? Jesus saith unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work." [John 4:31-34.] While the disciples were thinking of natural hunger, Jesus presents to them a higher need, a spiritual hunger to do the will of the Father. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 1

There is a sustaining power in the deed done to benefit and bless humanity. This was the power that strengthened the world's Redeemer. Christ declares, I came ... "not to do my own will, but the will of the Father which sent me." [John 6:38.] His will was put into active exercise to save the souls of men. His human will was nourished by the divine. His servants today would do well to ask themselves, "What kind of a will am I individually cultivating? Have I been gratifying my own desires, confirming myself in selfishness and obstinacy?" If we are doing this we are in great peril, for Satan will always rule the will that is not under the control of the Spirit of God. When we place our will in unison with the will of God, the holy obedience that was exemplified in the life of Christ will be seen in our lives. God requires us to keep His commandments, that by obedience we may cultivate the attributes which made the Saviour's life pure, holy, and undefiled. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 2

How many blessings are lost to Christ's professed followers because men and women have so limited an experience in being crucified to the world! When they place themselves under the generalship of Jesus Christ, instead of hurting others by their criticisms, they will institute a warfare against their own defects. They will criticize their own evil wills. Paul declares, "I am crucified with Christ." [Galatians 2:20.] There is nothing so hard as the crucifixion of the will. Christ was tempted in all points like as we are, but His will was ever kept on the side of God's will. In His humanity He had the same free will that Adam had in Eden. He would have yielded to temptation as Adam yielded. And Adam, by believing God and being a doer of His word, could have resisted temptation as Christ resisted it. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 3

Had Christ so willed it, He could have commanded the stones to be made bread. He might have cast Himself down from the pinnacle of the temple. He might have yielded to Satan's temptation to fall down and worship him, the usurper of the world. But at every point He met the tempter with, "It is written." His will was in perfect obedience to the will of God, and the will of God was revealed throughout His entire life. It was a part of His very being. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 4

Christ's obedience to His Father's commandments is to be the measure of our obedience. Those who follow Christ, if they would become complete in Him, must keep their will surrendered to the will of God. Abundant provision has been made that those who will seek God with the whole heart may find Him a present help in every time of trouble. Help has been laid on One that is mighty. Christ has promised, I will be your helper. I am the vine; ye are the branches. As the branch cannot bear fruit except it abide in the vine, no more can ye, except ye abide in me. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 5

We have a part to act for the prosperity of the church. We are to shine as lights in the world. Our faith is to be a faith which works by love and sanctifies the soul. In and through Christ we are to be imbued with the spirit of Christ, to work in Christ's lines. "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling," the apostle says. "For it is God which worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleasure." [Philippians 2:12, 13.] A sharp warfare must be instituted against selfishness and the corruption that is in the world through lust. We are to do earnest, faithful work, laboring for souls as they that must give an account. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 6

The man Christ Jesus was the greatest Teacher the world ever knew. During their three years of discipline under His instruction, the disciples received many lessons. They also received rebukes for their dullness of comprehension. They could not take in the great themes presented to them. But when their Teacher was about to leave them, He bade them tarry in Jerusalem until they should be endued with power from on high, before going forth to preach the truth of the kingdom of God. Jesus well knew that their arguments, however logical, would not melt the hard heart, or break through the crust of selfishness and worldliness. He knew that the truth could only be effectual coming from hearts made warm and lips made eloquent by a living knowledge of the Way, the Truth, and the Life. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 7

The spiritual life of the church can only be kept alive as the members make personal efforts to win souls to Christ. No amount of mental culture or theological training will do this work. But it can be done by the soul who is contrite and humble, who is imbued with the Spirit of God, and holds daily intercourse with Him. The bright beams of the Sun of Righteousness must shine upon the heart of the worker and purify his life before light from the throne of God can come to those who sit in darkness. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 8

God calls for living, active, working men, men who from the first moment of their religious life will depend upon God and trust in Him who is the Head of the church. "Ye are a chosen generation," He says, "a royal priesthood, an holy nation, that ye should show forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light." [1 Peter 2:9.] In every church we need Christlike workers, those who in life and character are growing into the divine likeness by working to call sinners to repentance. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 9

The work of the minister is incomplete if he does not educate the souls newly come to the faith to be laborers together with God, visiting and praying with families, showing to the world what Jesus has done for them. God's Word declares, "Pure and undefiled religion before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." [James 1:27.] These words are addressed not only to the minister, but to every follower of Christ. There are sluggards all through our churches, who frame excuses for their idleness. God calls not only on the minister, but on every soul connected with him, to be a worker in His vineyard. "Herein is my Father glorified," Christ says, "that ye bear much fruit." [John 15:8.] By His own life Jesus has paid for your earnest, hearty co-operation. He expects you to work, every one who has passed from death unto life. If you do not work as faithful missionaries, you are untrue to your trust, and you disappoint your Saviour. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 10

There is a solemn obligation resting upon all. God's admonition reaches to every one: "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." [Matthew 5:16.] The wrong act oft-repeated becomes habit, to act and re-act upon mind and heart, and unless divine power shall interpose, and the human agent become a partaker of the divine nature, the sure result will follow. Strengthen not the evil will by training it in wrong lines. Your life hid with Christ in God will be divested of all selfishness. Causes and effects are linked together. We shall not always be able to see the way before us. Circumstances will develop in a way we do not expect. But God sees not as man sees. His thoughts are not our thoughts, neither are His ways our ways. His hand is above all, and He will cause all things to work together for good to them that love God. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 11

I wish I could impress upon the minds of ministers and people the great danger there is of making blunders in our missionary efforts. We are in danger of failing to realize how essential is the work of the Spirit of God upon the heart. In the work of ministers and laymen who have not a daily connection with God there is not that which will stand the test of storm and tempest. A new order of things has come into the ministry. There is a desire to pattern after other churches, and simplicity and humility are almost unknown. The young ministers desire to be original and introduce new ideas and new plans for labor. 14LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 12

They open revival meetings, and by this means call large numbers into the church. But when the excitement is over, where are the converted ones? Repentance and confession of sin are not seen. The sinner is entreated to believe in Christ and accept Him, without any regard to his past life of sin and rebellion. The heart is not broken. There is no contrition of soul. The supposed converted ones have not fallen upon the Rock Christ Jesus.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 13

The Old and New Testament Scriptures show us the only way in which this work should be done. Repent, repent was the message rung out by John in the wilderness. To the Pharisees he said, "Ye generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come. Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance, and begin not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, That God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham. And now also the axe is laid unto the root of the trees: every tree therefore that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire." [Luke 3:7-9.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 14

Christ's message to the people was, "Unless ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." [Luke 13:3.] And the apostles were commanded to preach everywhere that men should repent. The Lord would have His servants today preach the old gospel doctrine, sorrow for sin, repentance, and confession. We want old-fashioned sermons, old-fashioned customs, old-fashioned mothers and fathers in Israel. The sinner must be labored for, perseveringly, earnestly, wisely, until he shall see that he is a transgressor of God's law, and exercises repentance toward God, and faith toward the Lord Jesus Christ. When the sinner is conscious of his helpless condition, and feels his need of a Saviour, he may come with hope and faith to the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. Christ will accept the soul who comes to Him in true repentance. A broken and a contrite heart He will not despise.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 15

The battle cry is sounding along the line, Let every soldier of the cross push to the front, not in self-sufficiency, but in meekness and lowliness of heart. Your work, my work, will not cease with this life. For a little while we may rest in the grave, but when the call comes we shall take up our work in the kingdom of God to advance the glory of Christ. But this holy work must be begun upon earth. We are not to study our pleasure or convenience. Our question must be, What can I do to lead others to Christ? How can I make known to men the love of God which passeth knowledge?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 48, 1899, par. 16

The Seal of God

NP

April 2, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in ST 11/01/1899, 11/08/1899. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

To the apostle John on the Isle of Patmos were opened scenes of deep and thrilling interest in the experience of the church. Subjects of intense interest and vast importance were presented to him in figures and symbols, that those who should turn from error to truth might become intelligent concerning the perils and conflicts before them. The history of the Christian world to the very close of time was revealed to him. With great clearness he saw the position, dangers, conflicts, and final deliverance of the people of God. He records the closing message which is to ripen the harvest of the earth, either as sheaves for the heavenly garner, or as fagots for the fires of the last day. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 1

John beheld in vision the redeemed people of God. He saw the triumph of those who had gained the victory over the beast and over his image. He marked the trials which they had endured for the truth's sake. He saw their unyielding firmness in adhering to the commandments of God against the oppressive powers that sought to force them to disobedience. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 2

Under the symbols of a great red dragon, a leopard-like beast, and a beast with lamblike horns, the earthly governments, which would be especially engaged in trampling upon God's law and persecuting His people, were presented to John. Their war is carried on till the close of time. The people of God, symbolized by a holy woman and her children, are represented as greatly in the minority. In the last days only a remnant still exists. Of these John speaks as "they which keep the commandments of God, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ.” [Revelation 12:17.] 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 3

Through paganism, and then through [the] Papacy Satan exerted his power for many centuries in an effort to blot from the earth God’s faithful witnesses. Heathen and papists were actuated by the same dragon spirit. They differed only in that the Romish apostate, making a pretense of serving God, was the more dangerous and cruel foe. Through the agency of Romanism, Satan took the world captive. The professed church of God was swept into the ranks of this delusion, and for more than a thousand years the people of God suffered under the dragon’s fire. At the time when [the] Papacy, robbed of its strength, was forced to desist from persecution, John beheld a new power coming up to echo the dragon’s voice, and carry forward the same cruel and blasphemous work. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 4

This power, the last that is to wage war against the church and the law of God, was represented by a beast with lamblike horns. The beasts preceding it had risen from the sea, but this came up out of the earth, representing the peaceful rise of the nation which it symbolized. The “two horns like a lamb” [Revelation 13:11] well represent the character of our own government, as expressed in its two fundamental principles, Republicanism and Protestantism. These principles are the secret of our power and prosperity as a nation. Those who first found an asylum on the shores of America rejoiced that they had reached a country free from the arrogant claims of popery and the tyranny of kingly rule. They determined to establish a government upon the broad foundation of civil and religious liberty. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 5

But the stern tracings of the prophetic pencil reveal a change in this peaceful scene. The beast with lamblike horns speaks with the voice of a dragon, and “exerciseth all the power of the first beast before him.” Prophecy declares that he will say to them that dwell on the earth “that they should make an image to the beast,” and that it will cause “all, both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand or in their foreheads; and that no man might buy or sell, save he that had the mark or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.” [Verses 12, 14, 16, 17.] Thus Protestantism follows in the steps of [the] Papacy. 14LtMs,

It is at this time that the third angel is seen flying in the midst of heaven, proclaiming, "If any man worship the beast or his image, and receive his mark in his forehead or in his hand, the same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture." "Here are they that keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus." [Revelation 14:9, 10, 12.] In marked contrast to the world, stands a little company that will not swerve from their allegiance to God. These are they of whom Isaiah speaks as repairing the breach which had been made in the law of God, they who are "building the old waste places," "raising up the foundation of many generations." [Isaiah 58:12.]14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 7

The most solemn warning and the most awful threatening ever addressed to mortals is that contained in the third angel's message. The sin which calls down the wrath of God unmixed with mercy must be of the most heinous character. Is the world to be left in darkness as to the nature of this sin? Most assuredly not; God does not deal thus with His creatures. His wrath is never visited upon the sins of ignorance. Before His judgments are brought upon the earth, the light in regard to this sin must be presented to the world, that men may know why these judgments are to be inflicted, and may have opportunity to escape them.14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 8

The message containing this warning is the last to be proclaimed before the revelation of the Son of man. The signs which He Himself has given declare His coming to be near at hand. For well-nigh forty years has the message of the third angel been sounding. The time has come when all who have an interest in their soul's salvation should earnestly and solemnly inquire, What is the mark of the beast? How shall we avoid receiving it?14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 9

In the issue of the great contest, two parties are developed: those who "worship the beast and his image," and receive his mark, and those that receive "the seal of the living God," who have "the Father's name written in their foreheads." [Revelation 14:9; 7:2; 14:1.] <This is not a visible mark.>14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 10

The seal of God, the token or sign of His authority, is found in the fourth commandment. This is the only precept of the Decalogue which points to God as the Creator of the heavens and the earth, thus clearly distinguishing the true God from all false gods. Throughout the Scriptures the fact of God's creative power is cited as proof that He is above all heathen deities.14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 11

The Sabbath enjoined by the fourth commandment was instituted to commemorate the work of creation, thus to keep the minds of men ever directed to the true and living God. Had the Sabbath always been kept, there would never have been an idolater, an atheist, or an infidel. The sacred observance of God's holy day would have led the minds of men to their Creator. Everything of nature would have brought Him to their remembrance, and would have borne witness to His power and His love. The Sabbath of the fourth commandment is the seal of the living God. It points to God as the Creator, and is the sign of His rightful authority over the beings He has made.14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 12

What, then, is the mark of the beast but the spurious sabbath which the world has accepted in the place of the true?14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 13

The prophetic declaration that the Papacy was to oppose and exalt itself "above all that is called God, or that is worshiped," was strikingly fulfilled in the change of the Sabbath from the seventh to the first day of the week. [2 Thessalonians 2:4.] Wherever the papal sabbath is honored in preference to the Sabbath of the Lord, there is the man of sin exalted above the Creator of the heavens and the earth.14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 14

Those who assert that Christ changed the Sabbath are directly contradicting His own words. In His sermon on the mount He declared, "Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets; I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill. For verily I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law till all be fulfilled. Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.” [Matthew 5:17-19.]14*LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 15*

Roman Catholics acknowledge that the change in the Sabbath was made by their church, and they cite this very change as evidence of the supreme authority of the church. They declare that by observing the first day of the week as the Sabbath, Protestants are recognizing her power to legislate in divine things. The Roman Church has not relinquished her claim to infallibility, and when the world and the Protestant churches accept a spurious sabbath of her creating, while they reject the Sabbath of Jehovah, they virtually acknowledge this claim. They may cite the authority of the apostles and fathers as authority for this change, but the fallacy of their reasoning is easily discerned. The papist is sharp enough to see that Protestants are deceiving themselves, willingly closing their eyes to the facts in the case. As the Sunday institution gains favor, he rejoices, feeling assured that it will eventually bring the whole Protestant world under the banner of Rome.14*LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 16*

The change of the Sabbath is the sign or mark of the authority of the Romish Church. Those who, understanding the claims of the fourth commandment, choose to observe the false sabbath in the place of the true, are thereby paying homage to that power by which alone it is commanded. The mark of the beast is the papal sabbath, which has been accepted by the world in the place of the day of God's appointment.14*LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 17*

But no one has yet received the mark of the beast. The testing time has not yet come. There are true Christians in every church, not excepting the Roman Catholic communion. None are condemned until they have had the light and have seen the obligation of the fourth commandment. But when the decree shall go forth enforcing the counterfeit sabbath, and the loud cry of the third angel shall warn men against the worship of the beast and his image, the line will be clearly drawn between the false and the true. Then those who still continue in transgression will receive the mark of the beast.14*LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 18*

With rapid steps we are approaching this period. When Protestant churches shall unite with the secular power to sustain a false religion, for opposing which their ancestors endured the fiercest persecution, then will the papal sabbath be enforced by the combined authority of church and State. There will be a national apostasy, which will end only in national ruin. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 19

Marvelous in her shrewdness and cunning is the Roman Church. She presents a fair front to the world, covering with apologies her record of horrible cruelties, and representing that her spirit of persecution no longer exists. But the Papacy is still the same. She may clothe herself in Christlike garments, the better to carry forward her purposes, but she still retains the venom of the serpent. Her principles are exerting their influence in legislative halls, in churches, and in the hearts of men; but she is the same as in the days of [the] Reformation when men of God stood up at the peril of their lives to expose her iniquity. Popery is the same as when it assumed the power to control kings and princes, and claimed the prerogatives of God. Its spirit is no less cruel and despotic now than when it crushed out human liberty and slew the saints of the Most High. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 20

Protestants have tampered with and patronized popery by compromises and concessions, giving her vantage ground which papists themselves are surprised to see and fail to understand. The Protestant world needs to be aroused to resist the advances of this most dangerous foe to civil and religious liberty. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 21

When the State shall enforce the decrees and sustain the institutions of the church, then will Protestant America have formed an image of [the] Papacy. Then the true church will be assailed by persecution as were God's people in ancient times. Almost every century furnishes instances of what human hearts, controlled by rage and malice, can do under a plea of serving God by protecting the rights of the church and State. The Protestant churches that have followed in the steps of Rome by forming alliance with worldly powers have manifested a similar desire to restrict liberty of conscience. How many non-conformist ministers have suffered under the power of the Church of England! Persecution always follows favoritism in doctrine or religion on the part of secular governments. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 22

It is urged by many that the intellectual and moral darkness prevailing during the Middle Ages favored the spread of the dogma, superstition, and oppression of popery, and that the general diffusion of knowledge and the well-nigh universal acceptance of the principles of religious liberty, forbid a revival of superstition and tyranny. It is true that great light, intellectual, moral, and religious, is shining upon this generation. Since 1844 light from the heaven of heavens has beamed from the open door of the temple of God. But it is to be remembered that the greater the light bestowed, the greater the delusion and darkness of those who reject the Word of God and accept fables, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 23

Satan will excite the indignation of apostate Christendom against the humble remnant who conscientiously refuse to accept their customs and traditions. Blinded by the prince of darkness, popular religionists will see only as he see, and feel as he feels. They will determine as he determines, and oppress as he has oppressed. Liberty of conscience, which has cost this nation so great a sacrifice, will no longer be respected. The church and the world will unite, and the world will lend to the church her power to crush out the right of the people to worship God according to His Word. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 24

The decree which is to go forth against the people of God in the near future is in some respects similar to that issued by Ahasuerus against the Jews in the time of Esther. The Persian edict sprang from the malice of Haman toward Mordecai. Not that Mordecai had done Haman harm, but he had refused to flatter his vanity by showing him the reverence which belongs only to God. The king's decision against the Jews was secured under false pretenses, through a misrepresentation of that peculiar people. Satan instigated the scheme in order to rid the earth of those who preserved the knowledge of the true God. But his plots were defeated by a counter-power that reigns among the children of men. Angels that excel in strength were commissioned to protect the people of God, and the plots of their adversaries returned upon their own heads.14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 25

History repeats itself. The same masterful mind that plotted against the faithful in ages past is now at work to gain control of the falling churches, that through them he may condemn and put to death all who will not worship the idol sabbath. We have not to battle with men, as it may appear. We war not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against wicked spirits in high places. But if the people of God will put their trust in Him, and by faith rely upon His power, the devices of Satan will be defeated in our time as signally as in the days of Mordecai.14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 26

The decree is to go forth that all who will not receive the mark of the beast shall neither buy nor sell, and, finally, that they shall be put to death. But the saints of God do not receive this mark. The prophet of Patmos beheld those that had gotten the victory over the beast and over his image and over his mark and over the number of his name, standing on the sea of glass, having the harps of God, and singing the song of Moses and the Lamb.14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 27

To every soul will come the searching test, Shall I obey God rather than men? The decisive hour is even now at hand. Satan is putting forth his utmost efforts in the rage of a last despairing struggle against Christ and His followers. In this closing scene false teachers are employing every possible device to stimulate the hardened sinner in his rebellious daring, to confirm the questioning, the doubting, the unbelieving, and by misrepresentation and falsehood to deceive, if it were possible, the very elect. Who are prepared to stand firmly under the banner on which is inscribed, "The commandments of God and faith of Jesus"? [Revelation 14:12.]14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 28

Christ never purchased peace and friendship by compromise with evil. Though His heart overflowed with love toward the human race, He could not be indulgent to their sins. Because He loved them He was a stern reprover of their vices. The life of Jesus, the suffering which He endured from a perverse nation, demonstrate to His followers that there must be no sacrifice of principle. God's tried people must maintain continual watchfulness, with fervent prayer, lest in their eagerness to prevent discord, they surrender truth, and thus dishonor the God of truth. Peace is too dearly obtained if purchased by the smallest concession to Satan's agencies. The least surrender of principle entangles us in the snare of Satan. 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 29

Paul writes to the Romans, "If it be possible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men." [Romans 12:18.] But there is a point beyond which it is impossible to maintain union and harmony without the sacrifice of principle. Separation then becomes an absolute duty. The laws of nations should be respected when they do not conflict with the laws of God. But when there is collision between them, every true disciple of Christ will say, as did the apostle Peter when commanded to speak no more in the name of Jesus, "We ought to obey God rather than men." [Acts 5:29.] 14LtMs, Ms 51, 1899, par. 30

The Danger of Self-Sufficiency

NP

April 2, 1899

Previously unpublished.

“Another parable put he forth unto them, saying, The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man which sowed good seed in his field, but while men slept, his enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way. But when the blade was sprung up, and brought forth fruit, then the tares appeared also. So the servants of the householder came and said unto him, Sir, didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? From whence then hath it tares? He said unto them, An enemy hath done this. The servant said unto him, Wilt thou then that we go and gather them up? But he said, Nay, lest while ye gather up the tares, ye root up also the wheat with them. Let both grow together until the harvest, and in the time of harvest I will say to the reapers, Gather ye together first the tares, and bind them in bundles to burn them; but gather the wheat into my barn.” [Matthew 13:24-30.]14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 1

There are tares in the church, and the inquiry is made, “Wilt thou that we go and gather them up?” The answer is, No; “let both grow together until the harvest.” [Verses 28, 29.] Should the work of condemning church-members and purifying the church be committed to the human agent, terrible mistakes would be made. But all judgment is committed to the Son of God, who in humanity lived the law of God. He understands the strength of the temptations that come to every child of His.14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 2

I address my self to you, my Brother H. Have you not professedly received light from the Bible and from the ministry of the Word? What have you been doing for years? What are you doing now? Are you opening your heart to receive Christ? Are you striving to be like him in character. A great responsibility rests upon each one who has the privilege of knowing the Word of God. Said the apostle,

“How can they hear without a preacher? And how can he preach unless he be sent?” [Romans 10:14, 15.] “If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things have passed away, and, behold, all things have become new.” [2 Corinthians 5:17.]14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 3

As the light of truth shines into the chambers of the mind, the defects are revealed. The soul temple is cleansed from selfishness, hardness, ungodliness. Then appears the fruit of the Spirit, “love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance.” [Galatians 5:22, 23.]14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 4

Paul tells us that he was alive without the law once, but when the commandment came, sin revived, and he died. He was made aware of his ignorance of the true principles of the law. He did not know what coveting meant until the law said to him, Thou shalt not covet. The law pointed him out as a sinner in the eyes of God. He had been without knowledge of sin, but the great standard of righteousness condemned sin in the flesh. His self-sufficiency left him. He received the truth declared in the gospel, laid hold of the Saviour, and the truth immediately began its work of purification.14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 5

The Lord reads the motives of every heart. He has a controversy with you. Your great need is the need of that faith which works by love and purifies the soul. Have you this faith? The truly converted soul will cease to accuse and condemn others. He will see himself erring, in need of purification because of past transgressions. You have not fallen on the Rock and been broken. If you had, you would cease ascribing piety and virtue to yourself. You would cease aspiring to be great, and would humble your heart before God.14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 6

God will never entrust His flock to a man of your temperament, for you would either rule or ruin. “The diseased have ye not healed, the bruised have ye not bound up.” [Ezekiel 34:4.] The Lord does not give His flock into the charge of those who bite and devour, who have so high an estimate of self that they know not how to give meat in due season, how to minister to the sick and suffering in the flock. You need an entire transformation of character. You know not how to behave in your home as a Christian gentleman, how to be kind, gentle, and considerate. Self is your idol. When the love of Christ fills your heart, your character will change decidedly. In the place of filling your thoughts and conversation with criticism, you will realize that your past life has been a failure. You will walk humbly before God. 14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 7

I entreat you to fear lest you lose eternal life because of not knowing God. Christ said to Peter, "When thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren." [Luke 22:32.] When you are converted, your entire life will testify that a reformation has taken place. A fountain cannot send forth from the same place sweet water and bitter. If you are drinking from the fountain of the water of life, you will love all who believe in Jesus. Christ loves all mankind. Every one of his purchased inheritance is dear to him, and when you have the mind of Christ, you will lose your unholy spirit. Those in your family, in the church, and in the world will see that the fountain of your heart is losing its bitterness, and that the stream that flows from it is pure. Your words will not be sharp, dictatorial, and arbitrary. You will not manifest the characteristics of the Pharisee, for the grace of God will abide in your heart, and you will be renewed in grace and true holiness. 14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 8

By faultfinding, you have placed yourself on the side of him who is an accuser of the brethren. Your influence is exerted in the wrong direction, and the only safe thing for you to do is to be converted. Then you will cease to leaven the church with envy, suspicion, faultfinding, and accusing. 14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 9

My brother, you are religiously sick, and do not know it. The great sin that has caused the ruin of thousands and thousands of souls is pride. Self-sufficiency, self-satisfaction, is the hardest of all sins to overcome. There is hope for every man who humbles his heart before God and confesses his sin. If a man has given himself up to lust and lasciviousness, if he has been unfaithful to his marriage vow, his case is not hopeless. If he realizes that he has violated the law of God, if he repents and confesses his sin to his Maker and to those he has injured, and earnestly strives to make restitution for the past by kindness and sympathy, he will receive forgiveness. Nothing else will avail. Only by pursuing this course can his soul be cleared from guilt. If he does not show the evidences of reformation, his sin remains charged against him in the books of heaven.14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 10

If a covetous, self-centered man sees his sin in the light of the law, and repents, bringing forth fruit meet for repentance, God looks upon him with pleasure. And as he practices self-denial, he learns that it is more blessed to give than to receive.14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 11

But when a man possesses defects of character, and yet fails to realize this, when he is so imbued with self-sufficiency that he cannot see his fault, how can he be cleansed from sin? “They that are whole need not a physician, but they that are sick.” [Luke 5:31.] How can a man improve when he thinks his ways are perfect? The sin that is most hopeless and incurable is pride of opinion, self-conceit. This sin stands [in] the way of all advancement and growth. Thus it was with the Pharisees in the days of Christ. The Lord set before them their true position, pronouncing a woe upon their self-righteousness, and declaring that the publicans and harlots would go into the kingdom of heaven before the scribes and Pharisees, because they knew that they were sinners, and showed genuine repentance. But the leaders in Israel did not come to Christ in repentance; for they did not think that they needed a Saviour. They did not realize that they cherished sins which needed to be repented of, forsaken, and forgiven.14LtMs, Ms 52, 1899, par. 12

Words of Instruction to Those Connected with the Sanitarium

NP

April 3, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in TDG 102; Ev 539, 542-543; VSS 52 +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

There are dangers ahead [for] the sanitarium. Could I explain these so that they would be understood, could I arouse those in responsible positions to connect with God in their labor and in all their plans, the God of wisdom would stand at the head of the work. His Spirit would control, and the sanitarium would prosper because the Ruler of the heavens and earth stood at the helm, guiding, guarding, and protecting. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 1

The general tone and character of the sanitarium will be determined to a great extent by the deportment, the words and actions, of the physicians and their helpers. If general order, thoroughness, and neatness prevail, this will have a great influence in its favor. Those caring for the sick should never manifest a sharp, rasping, irritable spirit in any part of the work. Men of hasty spirit must feel it their duty to control their words and actions. It will be a tax upon those with nervous, irritable temperaments to be brought in contact with sick, unreasonable persons who have not practiced self-control, but the feelings must not be allowed to control the judgment. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 2

The sick have peculiar fancies, and because of a diseased imagination, see things in a false light. To them these things are real, and those caring for them need to manifest constant kindness and unwearied care. Physicians should make a study of this phase of disease, and should bear long with those suffering from it. And their helpers should daily, with sincerity and earnestness, seek strength and grace from above, that they may be enabled to keep the soul with all patience, to be kind and sunshiny, to speak no words of condemnation. They must expect sick people to be unreasonable, especially those who have no faith that they will receive help from above to bear their sufferings. The changeable state of their feelings should not be charged upon them. The adversary, who is using them to make those connected with them unhappy, should not be gratified by seeing his object accomplished. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 3

Those in responsible positions cannot expect to be shown respect if they are nervous and excitable, easily irritated by the complaints and changeable feelings of the patients. Those who retort with sharp speeches to the patients do themselves harm and injure the institution. The way to gain the confidence of these irritable ones is by showing them, by word and action, that you will not be irritated or fretted by their whims. Let them see that you have an abundance of the milk of human kindness. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 4

Let them see that their fretful whims and pettish complaints cannot provoke you into impatience and retaliation. This is where some have failed. They have been misunderstood. They have much more tenderness and sympathy than they reveal, but they are harsh and severe where they should be kind, forbearing, and gentle. Physicians and nurses have much to try their patience, but if they watch and pray, they will find their work a good school in which to gain self-control. Those who have anything to do with the sick should preserve strict discipline over themselves, overcoming the disposition that is easily provoked. Superintendent, matron, and helpers cannot cultivate too large a stock of patience. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 5

Sick people, suffering with bodily pain, and diseased in mind, imagine many things that are false in regard to themselves and others. It will be of no use to tell them the truth, for they are not always prepared to have their true condition presented to them. Their ideas concerning themselves are so false that they would feel that you were imposing on them were you to tell them all the facts in the case. You may see and understand their true condition, but you are not obliged to say all you think. Christ said to His disciples, "I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now."

[John 16:12.] Plain and decided facts are not always to be presented to the sick. This might make such an impression on some minds that they would become prejudiced, while others would be made hopeless. Sanctified wisdom is greatly needed in this matter. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 6

There are among the helpers some who have no thought beyond their own selfish interests. They have no real anxiety in regard to the prosperity of the institution. They do not realize their responsibility to work faithfully, doing with thoroughness what they can do. They slight and neglect wherever they can. All their life long they have moved from impulse. Right principles have not had a controlling power over them. These entirely fail of meeting the purposes of God. They gather no light from the throne of God to scatter in the pathway of others. Instead they bring with them evil angels. They are self-confident, too wise to be taught anything. They feel as if they needed no cautions. They are ever making mistakes, but when admonished they become impatient. They refuse to be controlled, and are glad when the hour comes which brings them their liberty. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 7

They put on airs of importance, and by their actions say, The judgment of no one is as good as mine. "Pride compasseth them about as with a garment." [See Psalms 73:6.] They think they are creating a sensation, and they are, but it is very different from what they hoped to create. No one loves to see pomposity and self-inflation in others, especially in the inexperienced youth. Reticence and modesty ever command respect from sensible people. Let those who think themselves capable of managing themselves take their own way, and they will follow the path to ruin. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 8

Youth come to the sanitarium amiable in disposition and pure in morals. But through association with those who have no fear of God before their degenerate eyes, they become ringleaders in wrong. They were first tempted, and in their turn they become tempters. We are often surprised at such downfalls, but could we see the reasons, we should find it due to improper associates. If those who act a prominent part in the sanitarium were today what they should be, an influence would go forth from this institution which would reflect the life-giving beams of Christianity. The light reflected from this institution will be proportionate to the purity and piety of those connected with it. If the sanitarium is to be a place where the Spirit of God can dwell, it will be a success. If a power goes from it, through the influence of those connected with it, which is unto righteousness, God will give His blessing to the institution.14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 9

The triumph of the truth is dependent on the influence of those who believe it. By personal labor, by a well-ordered life, by piety, faith, and tender compassion, we are to advance the truth. We have a heaven to win. The highest rewards are presented to the overcomer. Yes; an eternal weight of glory is held out before us, to induce us to so run that we may obtain the crown of life that fadeth not away.14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 10

He who determines to overcome has a warfare before him from which there is no release. Manfully he is to fight the good fight of faith. Lawfully he is to strive, day by day seeking for purity and moral excellency. This God requires him to do that he may represent Christ. He is to believe the promises of God, and trust in Christ, showing those around him that he has an inexhaustible treasure from which to draw. His words are to be right words, his spirit the right spirit. His hands are never to grow weak in doing the work God has given him to do. He will meet with trials, but he must always be brave and cheerful. He is to treat all as the purchase of the blood of Christ, without partiality and without hypocrisy. The Holy Spirit is his helper. Through Christ, who strengthens him, he is enabled to bear all things.14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 11

Those connected with the sanitarium will meet with all classes of people, refined and coarse, intellectual and dull, liberal and selfish, jealous and unsuspecting, those who find fault and those who are cheerful and gladsome, those who are pure and those who are corrupt. Only by being closely connected with God can the doctors and their helpers learn how to deal with these different elements. If they ask wisdom from Him who giveth to all men, and upbraideth not, wisdom will be given them that will enable them to deal justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly before God.14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 12

Never should those connected with the sanitarium be intimidated by wealth or position. Never should they shrink into cringing time-servers. As children of God, sons and daughters of the King of heaven, they should preserve their dignity at all times and under all circumstances. But never should they be cold and unsympathetic, especially when dealing with the poorer classes. Courtesy, tender solicitude, genuine sympathy, loving compassion, should be shown to all, rich and poor alike. Ever remember that God values men and women according to their beauty of character and the purity of their motives, not according to their financial standing, to the amount of wealth they possess. Goodness alone is true greatness.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 13

The partiality that has been shown to the wealthy has brought upon nearly every large medical institution the displeasure of God. Jesus has been slighted in the person of His poor saints, and God will judge for these things. A great difference has been made between the attention bestowed on those who are wealthy and those who are poor. But God acknowledges no rank or position. In His sight men are simply men, either good or bad. In the day of final reckoning, position, rank, or wealth will not alter the case of any man one hair's breadth. By the All-seeing God men will be judged for what they are worth in purity, in integrity, in nobility of character, in love for Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 14

The talents God has entrusted will call for proportionate returns. God accepts according to what a man hath, and not according to what he hath not. He does not expect from the man who has only one talent that which he expects from him who has five. If the wealthy choose to gratify every selfish desire, to enjoy the good things of this life, they will be judged accordingly. They refuse to honor Christ by humble obedience, to lift his cross. They live to please and gratify self, and thus dishonor God; and He declares "Them that honor me, I will honor." [1 Samuel 2:30.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 15

Seeking after eternal riches is a work requiring close, conscientious thought. Many are seeking to do a great work, to exalt themselves, hoping thereby to have their praises sounded abroad, to be called great by the world. To this end they aspire to do great things, flattering themselves that they are rendering humanity a great service. But their work is as a sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal. Only those who trade faithfully upon their talents, with a solemn sense of their responsibility, do a great work, because of their steadfast faithfulness. Those who have talents, and yet do not answer to the claims of God, who expend everything upon themselves, are not the ones God would have us honor. Only those who glorify Him by wisely improving the gifts lent them by aiding the cause of God, are great in His sight. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 16

Let the managers of the sanitarium be pure-minded, whole-souled men, in whose mouths there is no guile. The manners and tones of the voice should be guarded, that no wrong impression shall be made upon the minds of the patients, to be borne away to work against the institution. God requires all, from those in the highest position to those in the most lowly, to conduct themselves with the strictest propriety. In no case appear affected and put on a false show in order to gain favor, neither condescend to be common or familiar. A becoming dignity should ever be preserved. This will impress visitors and patients favorably, and will increase their confidence in the institution. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 17

Men and women of means are thoroughly acquainted with the world's standard. They see the deference paid to wealth and the neglect of the poorer classes. They see the superficial attention paid to the high of this earth, and they read the motives which prompt to action. They cannot help but respect men and women who are governed by high and holy motives, who move in the fear of God, who will not depart from principle for the sake of money, who carry the principles of the gospel of Christ into the daily life. This is a light that is reflected on them, showing the marked contrast between such a course of action and their own selfishness. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 18

They see that an unseen power prompts to action, and some, even of the world's most wealthy, are refreshed by this manifestation of pure motives and high principles and they are made better. Others are reprov'd and annoyed by it, for it is in marked contrast to their own course. The influence exerted is similar to the influence Christ's character had upon the Pharisees. Hatred to Christ was in accordance to their unsanctified hearts, because his pure life rebuked their sinfulness. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 19

In regard to making known our faith, no decided effort should be made to conceal it, and no unwise efforts put forth to make it prominent. Persons will come to the sanitarium who are in a favorable condition to be impressed by the truth. If they ask questions in regard to our faith, it would be proper to state what we believe, in a clear, simple manner. Indwelling godliness imparts a power to the conduct of the true believer that gives him an influence for the right. But in this matter we should act with discretion. There are conscientious persons who think it their duty to talk freely upon points of faith on which there is a difference of opinion, in a manner which arouses the combativeness of those with whom they converse. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 20

One such premature, injudicious effort may close the ears of one who otherwise would have heard patiently, but who will now influence others unfavorably. Thus spring up the roots of bitterness, whereby many are defiled. Through the indiscretion of one, the ears and hearts of many may be closed to the truth. It is a fact that is known to all that the zealous religionists of the different sects have cultivated and manifested very little candor in their estimation of those who differ with them on religious subjects. Those of this class expect to meet the same unreasonable spirit among Seventh-day Adventists, and they put on their armor, prepared to resist anything that will reflect on their peculiar views. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 21

In times past, some in the sanitarium have felt it their duty to introduce the Sabbath question in all places. They have urged it upon the patients with earnestness and persistency. To such the angels of God would say, Not words, but deeds. The daily life tells much more than any number of words. A uniform cheerfulness, tender kindness, Christian benevolence, patience and love, will melt away prejudice, and open the heart to the reception of the truth. Few understand the power of these precious influences. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 22

The sanitarium parlor, where are gathered a promiscuous crowd of patients, is not the place to talk upon doctrinal subjects. Let our consistent lives win confidence and awaken a desire to know why we believe as we do. Then invite those who inquire to attend the Sabbath meetings. If our brethren and sisters in Battle Creek were what they might be and what God would have them, angels would be present when they assemble in worship. These heavenly messengers would impress the hearts of the unprejudiced seeker after truth. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 23

We have seen the light of truth, and to us it is exceedingly precious. We should all strive to show how valuable it is by making the truth attractive to those who do not believe. Remember that what is light to us is darkness to others. We should not fail to consider the feelings of those who differ from us, though they may cherish great errors, which we wonder they do not see as plainly as we do. Those who have a real burden for souls are those who exhibit the fruits of righteousness in good works, who are willing to deny self and make sacrifices for the good of others. Thus they follow the example of the one great Pattern, who lived only to bless others. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 24

Influence and example, when viewed in the light of the cross and in their true relation to eternity, assume infinite importance. A word fitly spoken at the right time may save a soul from death. Day by day the example we set and the influence we exert is registered in the records going beforehand to judgment. Will those who are connected with the sanitarium, an instrumentality of God, inquire critically, What has my example been while connected with the sanitarium? Have I let my light shine forth to others in works that give glory to God? Has my example told on the side of truth? 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 25

Judicious conversation and right actions exert an influence which is a power in the right direction. But generally those who talk most are those who do the least deep, earnest thinking, the least work for the Master. They think that by talking they can make up for their deficiencies. But it is doers of the Word that are justified before God. Those who have little to make life happy are often neglected by those who are enthusiastic in laying out the duties which ought to be done for the orphans or the unfortunate. They talk, but their moral sensibilities are not directed by the Spirit of God; therefore they cannot follow the way of the Lord to do justice and judgment. God requires us to put ourselves into His hands without reserve, to obey His directions implicitly. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 26

When we take the Lord as our Counsellor, when we follow Him, not only by doing the few things which please us, but by placing body, soul, and spirit under His control, we can work as Christ worked. Those who make Christ their personal Saviour seek Him most earnestly in prayer, not only believing, but practicing the truth, and by His grace they are enabled to be true, noble, and beneficent. They minister in a way which heaven approves. By unselfish actions they reveal the character of Christ, pure, holy, and undefiled. They realize that they cannot afford to lose sight of Christ, to do an unchristlike action, because by thus doing they would give unbelievers an occasion to cast a reproach upon the sacred truth they profess. By precept and example they represent their Leader. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 27

The daily influence of purity and devotion, an observance of the courtesies of life, unbending integrity and steadfastness, will be to all a constant recommendation of our faith. But if those who profess the truth are light and trifling, reckless in their conversation, and careless in their deportment, they deny Christ, and the world is made only worse by their profession. With less of such advocating the truth of God would stand higher. We may all deplore the want of earnestness in doing the will of our heavenly Father, the want of power to control the naturally irreligious, irreverent disposition, and to resist temptation. It is the duty [of] every Christian to show himself a true follower of Jesus who loves the truth for the truth's sake, cherishing and practicing righteousness for his own good, hating every species of impurity, shunning all undue familiarity, willingly denying self for Christ's sake. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 28

The poorest man in this world is rich so long as he preserves his integrity of character. The one who is victorious in life's battle is he who gives himself earnestly and unreservedly to God. The daily life of such a one is a constant confession of Christ. He who refuses to please himself, who will not abate his efforts in the great work of living the truth, whatever difficulties he may meet, walks the earth as one of the Lord's great men, a nobleman in his Maker's sight.

While this life lasts he is constantly doing and saying something to prepare himself and others for the future life. He has the mind of Christ, and in private and public life his light shines with clear, steady rays. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 29

In the sanitarium there are continual losses, resulting from a neglect to look after the little things. Men and women have thought it their duty to attend to large responsibilities, but there are hundreds of leaks that are not cared for or even thought of. The loss resulting from these is not small. This is one of the special defects at the sanitarium. The men and women in charge are above looking after the minutia. They regard small things as below their notice. But God declares, "He that is faithful in that which is least is faithful also in much." [Luke 16:10.] My brethren at the sanitarium, remember that minute, conscientious attention to what the world terms "little things" constitutes the great success of life. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 30

God's work is perfect as a whole because it is perfect in every part. He makes the simple leaf, the tiny flower, the blade of grass, with just as much care as He makes a world. The symmetrical structure of a strong, beautiful character is built by individual acts of duty. Learn to be faithful in the least as well as in the greatest. Your work cannot bear God's inspection unless you pay diligent attention to the little things. Losses are occurring in all our institutions in which it is the duty of those in responsible positions to prevent. God does not accept unwilling service. He calls upon those connected with the sanitarium to be faithful and economical, that nothing be lost. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 31

The sanitarium will have to give free treatment to many sufferers. Send none away without comfort or relief, if it is possible to give it. Those who are courteous and kind in the little things of life scatter bright sunshine in the pathway of others. This is reflected back on them in the richest blessings. Your work, your efforts, will not always be appreciated, but think of Christ's efforts in a thankless world. His labors of love were not appreciated. And today His mercies and bounties are not half appreciated by you. But what if He should say because of this, I will cease to be merciful? Christ has done more for you than you can possibly do for others. 14LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 32

But if you yield yourself to God's will, looking only for appreciation and reward in the future life, you are following in Christ's footsteps. He loved us in our sin and ingratitude. Though He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor, that we through his poverty might be made rich. He clothes his divinity with humanity, that he might become acquainted with the frailties of humanity, and endure the temptations wherewith man is beset. He reached to the very depths of woe, that He might uplift erring mortals. He turned none away empty. There was no wearying of his patience, no lessening of His love and zeal. The waves of mercy, beaten back by proud and impenitent hearts, ever returned in a fresh and stronger tide of unresisting love. How feeble are our efforts to imitate Christ! How small any sacrifice we might make for others in comparison with the infinite sacrifice made for us!<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 33

Said Christ, "If any man will be my disciple, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." [Matthew 16:24.] The cross of self-denial lies directly at the entrance of the narrow way. Self-sacrifice must be practiced if we would travel the path our Saviour trod. Superintendent, physicians, matron, and helpers should feel that they are witnesses for God, that they are engaged in an important work which requires much wisdom, much patience, much self-control. Yet they may feel joy in the belief that they are doing God's work. They may often be tempted to think that caring for the sick is a thankless task, but they know not the result of their influence and example.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 53, 1899, par. 34

God calls upon those working in the sanitarium to reveal the Spirit of Christ. Let the golden beams of the Sun of Righteousness shine through you to those who need them. Let your characters be as fragrant incense ascending to God. The love of Jesus, like a sweet savor, will give sacredness and power to all in authority, for a divine presence will control the conscience. The influence of the spirit breathed forth will be inhaled by many more than you suppose. Jesus will make you workers together with God if you will do His will. He has bought you with His own blood. He has made you the depositaries of sacred trust, and though you are in a position of peculiar temptation, you may be individual Christians. "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." [Matthew 5:16.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 53,

Brother Faulkhead and the Echo Office

NP

April 4, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in PM 84-85, 93; 4Bio 53.
+NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

After the closing exercises of the Bible school, Brother Faulkhead came to my room to see me. I could not forbear telling him that I had a message for him from the Lord, which I wished him and his wife to hear. He seemed anxious to know what it was, and said, Cannot you give it to me now? As he seemed very kind and tender in his feeling toward me, I rose from the bed, and taking the writing, read to him for three hours as straight and direct a testimony as I have ever borne any one. It was like a sharp, two-edged sword, butting every way. The Spirit of the Lord co-operated with the feeble human agent. The message against Freemasonry, and against the influence this society has upon all who belong to it, was strong and decided. The low religious standard of those who are connected with secret societies was presented in clear lines.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 1

When I had finished reading, Brother Faulkhead said, "I am so glad that you did not send me that testimony, for then it would not have helped me, but by reading it to me yourself you have done me a world of good." There was in it much that was general, appropriate for others in the Office; for Brother Faulkhead said, "It all applies to me. I receive every word of it. It means me, it means me." I made an appointment to meet him and his wife on Thursday evening.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 2

Brother Faulkhead then went home, having to walk seven miles. Afterward he related the circumstances to the workers in the Office, telling them that Sister White had given him a special testimony, which he received, and should carry out to the letter. He said, "I did want to meet some of the brethren last night. My heart was full, and I wanted to tell them how happy I was. A ton's weight seemed to have dropped off me. The Lord had noticed me, even me."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 3

They say that Brother Faulkhead appears like another man. I do hope he will be a new man in Christ Jesus. Two or three days before I talked with him, he made the remark in defiant independence that he would not be taught his duty by Starr or White or any man. He belonged to the Freemasons, and should not give them up. But he is now another man. He belonged to five lodges, having sole financial management of three. He has just been promoted to the highest order; but he told me that he should cut loose from them all. He said, "Sister White gave me the sign known only to the highest order of Freemasons. I knew she did not know it, but she gave it twice. This convinced me that her testimony was from God." I cannot tell what he meant by this, only I know that as I said something about Freemasonry and the impossibility of a man being a free Mason and a Christian, I made a certain movement which my attending angel made to me.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 4

After this, although it was the week before American mail, and I had not had time to write any thing, I attended two committee meetings, and presented the true position of things in the Echo office. Seemingly a labored effort was made to keep up appearances for the sake of appearance. The publication of the Echo was a continual loss. Jobs were secured at altogether too large an expense, and loss was the result. Funds were sunk in nearly all the lines that were being carried forward. There was not sufficient business ability and wise generalship to bind up the work in a way which would save expense. A desire to launch out seemed to be the order. I was shown that this was not the way to do business.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 5

It is not the will of our heavenly Father that His work should be conducted in such a way as to be in continual embarrassment. The office should not be eaten up by its own expenses. Work that cannot be done without this cost should be abandoned. Let tact and interested ability be put into the work. Let serious consideration be given to matters in the office. If the workers take up work without any consideration in regard to the income and outgo, how can the work be executed without friction? How can the workers keep in a cheerful, Christlike frame of mind?14LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 6

Everyone should make the intelligent inquiry, What work shall the Echo office do, and yet stand on a paying basis? It has been gathering up branches of work which it will not be able to carry. This has been hampering, entangling, and impeding its forces. Too many things are carried on which are merely dead weights. If a remedy is to be found for the condition of things in the office, its business must be searched to the very bottom. The intellect must work as it has not yet done to find out by close investigation the cause of the debts incurred.14LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 7

A decided change must be made in the management of the office. Words of reproof have been uttered on the impulse of the moment, without any definite aim. Much has been said that is vague. The result of this vagueness and generality is that no one in particular is helped or enlightened. True soul conversion is needed. A deep and wide interest should be manifested in helping one another. The Lord is not pleased when His people draw apart. This is one defect in the office. Some of the workers are not willing to help and instruct their fellow workmen. Another evil is that those who are inexperienced do not wish their ignorance to be known. They make many mistakes, at a cost of much time and material, because they are too proud, too self-willed, to ask. This ignorance could have been avoided if those in the work had shown kindness and love to one another.14LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 8

The trouble is not difficult to define. The workers have been independent threads, when they should have regarded themselves as threads which must be drawn into the fabric to help to make the pattern. If men and women could see what trouble they make themselves by this independence, by trying to do what they do not know how to do without asking, they would alter their course. If Christ were abiding in the hearts of the workers, they would try to bring high Christian consecration into all their duties, whether great or small. And in the act of working heartily as unto the Lord, raising their thoughts above the ordinary level of business life, they would be blessed. It is the Christians' duty to think of holy things.14LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 9

The workers in the Echo office have very little insight into the right methods of obtaining success. They are working at cross-purposes with each other. The Echo office is sick, from the crown to the foundation. There will be no vitality, no decided progress, until the workers follow Christian principle. These workers need to be soundly converted to the truth. Devotion to God, conscientious, prayerful work for the Master will bring unity. Each worker must be on his guard, firmly determined to bind about the edges of every department in the office. He must realize that it is his duty to give brain, bone, and muscle to the work, that it may be made a success.14LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 10

The Lord's work has many branches. The ways in which the Lord condescends to employ human agents are numerous. As God's stewards each man and woman has a work to perform. Each one is given capabilities which qualify him for this work. If those in responsible positions in the office put aside all selfishness, if they faithfully weigh the probabilities and possibilities, they will see that if there are any employed in the office to do a work that might better be done outside the office, these should be placed where they can use their ability in other lines of the Lord's work. There is great need of canvassers, and none of us are in this world to please and glorify self.14LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 11

I do not think that any one should encourage those in responsible positions in the office to try to keep up appearances, unless they see some fund upon which they can fall back. This is a missionary field. Here in Australia we have but just begun to break the soil. A great work is waiting for earnest workers. But we have not the resources from which to draw that they have who are in America.14LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 12

There are in America experienced churches, upon which our brethren can call for aid in a time of necessity. Money is lent at small interest, and donations are made to sustain the cause in its various branches. But it is a mistake for those here to think that they can imitate Battle Creek. For the work to succeed here as it has done at Battle Creek will require executive ability and careful planning. The standard of truth must be planted in Australia, but while debt is constantly accumulating in the office, those at the head of the work cannot feel of much courage to send men into the field. These men cannot work for nothing. They must have wages. 14LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 13

I do not think that our brethren in America take in the situation of things here. They do not think of the many years of experience they have had, the many influences that have been brought to bear upon God's people in America, bringing them along step by step, giving them line upon line, precept upon precept, saying at every crisis, "This is the way, walk ye in it." [Isaiah 30:21.] The Lord calls for great patience to be exercised in this new world. Australia must be helped. The light and influence those in America have enjoyed for years they must now be willing to impart to others. 14LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 14

Many in this country have not received the advantages of education which have been so abundantly and graciously given by God in America. A thorough line of work needs to be constantly kept in action for the perfecting and establishing of the cause of God upon a proper basis. But it is of no advantage to the cause to broaden our field of action until efforts are made in aggressive warfare, until men and women are trained to go forth and carry to others the great and precious truths which God has been opening up before us for years. 14LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 15

Those who teach the truth to others should feel the importance of learning from Christ, just as the little child learns from its teacher. Otherwise, what good will he accomplish? What will his labors result in? Those who realize their inefficiency, who feel that they do not know half of what they ought to know, will not stop with reaching any low standard. Those connected with our publishing houses, where the truth of God is being handled, should feel that they are on holy ground. They have been instructed that they need to feel daily the converting power of God. For years the voice of God has been speaking to them. Angels of God co-operate with the worker who is consecrated, and who works with pure and holy motives, seeking ever to do the will of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 16

Every association leaves an impression upon the character. The letters that are written either sow the seeds of tares or wheat. Our thoughts, our words, the spirit in which we perform our daily duties, all act their part in the formation of character. The workers in our institutions are either devoted servants of Christ, or they are under the leadership of the enemy. Each individual is constantly abiding in the true vine, partaking of the divine nature, or else he is imbibing the spirit of pride, of self-indulgence. Imperceptibly worldly influences affect the mind and form the character. If the mind does not appropriate high and holy influences, it must be appropriating those that are low and debasing. If there is not a growth in piety and grace, there is a growth in worldliness and sin.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 54, 1899, par. 17

Following Christ

NP

April 7, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in GCB 2nd Qtr 1899.

For the joy that was set before Him, Christ endured the cross, despising the shame, and is forever set down at the right hand of God. He died on the cross as a sacrifice for the world, and through this sacrifice comes the greatest blessing that God could bestow—the gift of the Holy Spirit. This blessing is for all who will receive Christ. The fallen world is the battlefield for the greatest conflict the heavenly universe and earthly powers have ever witnessed. It was appointed as the theater on which would be fought out the grand struggle between good and evil, between heaven and hell. Every human being acts a part in this conflict. No one can stand on neutral ground.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 1

Men must either accept or reject the world's Redeemer. All are witnesses, either for or against Christ. Christ calls upon those who stand under His banner to engage in the conflict with Him as faithful soldiers, that they may inherit the crown of life. They have been adopted as sons and daughters of God. Christ has left them His assured promise that great will be the reward in the kingdom of heaven of those who partake of His humiliation and suffering for the truth's sake.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 2

The cross of Calvary challenges, and will finally vanquish, every earthly and hellish power. In the cross all influence centers, and from it all influence goes forth. It is the great center of attraction, for on it Christ gave up His life for the human race. This sacrifice was offered for the purpose of restoring man to his original perfection. Yea, more, it was offered to give him an entire transformation of character, making him more than a conqueror. Those who in the strength of Christ overcome the great enemy of God and man, will occupy a position in the heavenly courts above angels who have never fallen.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 3

Christ declares, "I, if I be lifted up, ... will draw all men unto me." [John 12:32.] If the cross does not find an influence in its favor, it creates an influence. Through generation succeeding generation, the truth for this time is revealed as present truth. Christ on the cross was the medium whereby mercy and truth met together, and righteousness and peace kissed each other. This is the means that is to move the world. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 4

In the plan of God, all the riches of heaven are to be drawn upon by men. Nothing in the treasury of divine resources is deemed too costly to accompany the great gift of the only begotten Son of God. "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." [John 1:12.] Christ was empowered to breathe into fallen humanity the breath of life. Those who receive Him will never hunger, never thirst, for greater joy than that found in Christ there cannot be. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 5

Study the words spoken by the Saviour from the Mount of Blessing. How the divine nature shone through His humanity as His lips uttered the benedictions upon those who were the objects of His mercy and love! He blessed them with a fullness that showed that He was drawing from the inexhaustible store of the richest treasures. The treasures of eternity were at His command. The Father committed the riches of heaven to Him, and in the disposal of them He knew no bound. Those who accept Him as their Saviour, their Redeemer, the Prince of life, He acknowledges before the heavenly host, before the worlds unfallen, and before the fallen world, as His peculiar treasure. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 6

The Lord Jesus has summoned the world to hear. "He that hath ears to hear, let him hear." [Matthew 11:15.] Let all listen with submissive, reverent attention. He repeats the words given him by the One who said, This is my beloved Son. ... Hear Him. Who is listening to the words which are light and life to all who receive them? Will men and women consider how God regards the creatures He has made? He formed man's mind. We do not think one noble thought that does not come from Him. He knows all the mysterious workings of the human mind, for did He not make it? God sees that sin has debased and degraded man, but He looks upon him with pity and compassion, for He sees that Satan has him in his power. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 7

The demon of appetite in the intoxicating cup has robbed thousands of their reason. Still the Lord draws, draws, draws. Who will draw with God, seeking to set in operation a restoring power that will obtain the mastery over sin? Those who will not fail nor become discouraged in this work, who will venture to take hold of the wretchedness they see around them, co-operate with their Redeemer. Thus we may show our gratitude to God. Our sympathies are wrought upon by the Holy Spirit. And in the heart of the one who is helped gratitude springs up, and he gathers hope to lay hold upon the hand of Divinity, and to realize that God is seeking to save him from sin and degradation. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 8

The knowledge of God has been lost from a large number of minds, not alone from the minds of those who have debased themselves to the lowest depths, but from the minds of kings, princes, and emperors, from men of high estate the world over. God called one man a fool because of this forgetfulness. This man has been blessed with great treasure, so that he had no place in which to store it. He thought he must be better than the generality of men, or he would not have been thus favored. He consulted his own soul, and did not consult God at all. He did not take the Lord into his heart. The Giver of all his treasure was the last One to be thought of. But he talked with his soul as though it were his God, declaring, "I will say to my soul, Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink and be merry." [Luke 12:19.] 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 9

His blessings had received his worship. A love for gain had become all-absorbing, and had obtained the ascendancy over him. His mind was thus brought unto bondage. The poor and needy, the widow and orphan, did not so much as enter his mind. The Lord saw this. He read the heart of the one who has been so greatly favored, and He said to him, "Thou fool, this night thy soul shall be required of thee; then whose shall those things be which thou hast provided?" [Verse 20.] 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 10

This man is represented as one no longer fit to live in the world, as a fruitless tree which should be cut down. He was not worthy to be recognized among men blessed with life and capable of seeking for immortality and securing eternal life. His separation from God was complete. His life could benefit no one. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 11

Christ recognizes no caste, no nationality. He holds it as His prerogative, divine and incommunicable, to work after His own might and pleasure. The compassionate Redeemer, He labored among all classes. When the paralytic was let down through the roof at His feet, He saw at a glance the trouble of the sufferer, and He immediately exercised His power as a sin-pardoning Saviour. "Be of good cheer," He said, "thy sins be forgiven thee." [Matthew 9:2.] At this, some of the scribes said within themselves. "Why doth this man thus speak, blasphemies? Who can forgive sins but God alone?" [Mark 2:7.] 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 12

How astonished they were to have their unspoken thoughts opened before them. "Why reason ye these things in your hearts?" Jesus said. "Whether is easier to say to the sick of the palsy, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Arise, and take up thy bed, and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (he saith to the sick of the palsy,) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy bed, and go thy way into thine house." [Verses 8-11.] 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 13

Christ changed the relation of the sinner toward God, taking the guilt from the inmost soul. The rich fool died in his bloated wealth; but the helpless sinner was brought to Christ, and manifesting his belief that Christ could heal him, he was not disappointed. His diseased main was first cured, and then the great Physician cured his bodily infirmities. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 14

Thus Christ drew the people to Him. He was unfolding truths of the highest order. The knowledge He came to impart was the gospel in all its richness and power. The Sin-bearer, He is alive to all the horrors which sin brings upon the soul; and He came to this world with a message of deliverance. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 15

What is Christianity? God's instrumentality for the conversion of the sinner. Jesus will call to account every one who is not brought under His control, who does not demonstrate in his life the influence of the cross of Calvary. Christ should be uplifted by those whom He has redeemed by dying on the cross a death of shame. He who has felt the power of the grace of Christ has a story to tell. He seeks to put in operation methods of work which will diffuse the gospel of Christ. Humanity, drawing its efficiency from the great Source of wisdom, is made the instrumentality, the working agency, through which the gospel exercises its transforming power on mind and heart. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 16

Under the inspiration of the Spirit, the apostle [Peter] represents Christians as those who have purified their souls in obeying the truth. Just in accordance with the faith and love we bring into our work will be the power brought into it. No man can create faith. The Spirit operating upon and enlightening the human mind, creates faith in God. In the Scriptures faith is stated to be the gift of God, powerful unto salvation, enlightening the hearts of those who search for truth as for hidden treasure. The Spirit of God impresses the truth on the heart. The gospel is called the power of God unto salvation, because God alone can make the truth a power which sanctifies the soul. He alone can render the cross of Christ triumphant. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 17

Everything that Satan can devise to divert the mind of man from its accountability to God he will devise. Look at the many amusements and pleasures he has set in operation to keep men from thinking, How is it with my soul? He leads men to wish to forget the law of God. There must be some agency to call this law to their remembrance. The talent of speech was given to convey the truth to the ear. By this talent God designs to impart the knowledge that the soul needs. By His words Christ communicated knowledge of the very highest order, telling men what they must do to be saved. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 18

Every minister is first to receive grace from God, and then to administer grace to his hearers. In the pulpit and out of the pulpit he is to minister. His speech is always to be seasoned with grace, in harmony with sacred truth. Wherever the believer is, he has the Word of God, which contains spiritual life; and it is his duty to learn the way of communicating truth so that it will have a convincing power. Man has an important part to act in the work of saving the souls who are in need of being converted without delay, or Satan will control them as his property. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 19

To every man God has given his work. Every soul has been given his post of duty, his sphere of action. It is for his present and eternal interest to find out his work by inquiring, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? Each person forms a link in the chain of responsibility which binds man to his fellow man. In their service men are to be linked with one another and with God. Each man is to act his part in the program of life. Each is to exert an influence for good. All are to work together to make a complete whole. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 20

All our powers are to be used for Christ. This is the debt we each owe to God. In forming a relationship with Christ, the renewed man is but coming back to his appointed relationship with God. He is a representative of Christ, and he is ever to pray and watch unto prayer. His duties lie round him, nigh and afar off. His first duty is to his children and his nearest relatives. Nothing can excuse him from neglecting the inner circle for the larger circle outside. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 21

In the day of final reckoning fathers and mothers will be required to answer in regard to their children. Parents will be asked what they did and said to secure the salvation of the souls they took upon themselves the responsibility of bringing into the world. Did they neglect their lambs, leaving them to the care of strangers? Fathers and mothers, are you allowing your children to grow up in impurity and sin? A great good done for others will not cancel the debt you owe to God to care for your children. The spiritual welfare of your family comes first. Take them with you to the cross of Calvary, laboring for them as those that must give an account. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 22

Parents should seek to gain the co-operation of their children. Thus children can become laborers together with God. Some households have a little church in the home. Mutual love binds heart to heart, and the unity that exists among the members of the family preaches the most effectual sermon that could be preached on practical godliness. As parents faithfully do their duty in the family, restraining, correcting, advising, counselling, guiding, the father as a priest of the household, the mother as a home missionary, they are filling the sphere God would have them fill. By faithfully doing their duty in the home, they are multiplying agencies for doing good outside the home. They are becoming better fitted to labor in the church. By training their little flock discreetly, binding their children to themselves and to God, fathers and mothers become laborers together with God. The cross is erected in their home. The members of the family become members of the royal family above, children of the heavenly King. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 23

The tenderness of Christ is to be brought into the daily life of His followers. His character is to be reproduced in them. The disinterested benevolence shown by Him is to be shown by them. His love for souls should be cultivated by practice. Humble, wrestling prayer will soften the subdued hearts. Christ's servants can and should be able to meet and overcome every temptation. They should say, "I am not my own; I have been bought with a price. By the infinite sacrifice Christ has made for me, He has put it out of my power to give Him more than He demands. All is His. He has purchased me, body, soul, and spirit. He calls for all my time, all my capabilities." Thus we may show that we are abiding in Christ and that Christ is abiding in us. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 24

Christ accepts no divided service. His followers are to shine as lights in the world. "Come out of the world, and be ye separate," is the message which comes sounding down along the line to our time. [2 Corinthians 6:17.] Love not the world, neither the things of the world. Set your affections on things above, and not on things below. Those who heed this message will find that Christ's yoke is easy and His burden light. 14LtMs, Ms 56, 1899, par. 25

Words of Gratitude

NP

April 11, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in GCB 2nd Qtr 1899
+NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

I am very grateful to our heavenly Father that I have been able to sleep until half past two a.m. I feel very grateful to my Lord for His great goodness. For some days, yes, for some weeks, we have been so crowded with responsibilities that we have not known which way to turn, or how to take up those things which needed to be done first. The great dearth of means has been a great hindrance to our advance, but last week on Wednesday we received encouraging letters from Dr. Kellogg, and the next day came the Bulletin with [an] account of donations for this field. 14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 1

The news came none too soon. Elder Daniells had left Cooranbong to go out among the churches to obtain the money pledged to the school. There has been much praying and seeking the Lord most earnestly to understand what we must do. The word had been, "Go forward" [Exodus 14:15], and yet not a thing could be done to hire money from the banks, or to raise it in any other way. Some who had loaned money to the publishing house in Melbourne were calling for their loan. Everything seemed to hedge us in. We looked to the Lord to help us, and prayed most earnestly. The particulars I have not time to write now, but we are greatly relieved. 14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 2

Last Sabbath a portion of the special Bulletin was read in the church, and Brother Palmer gave a little history of our difficulties and struggles for the past few months. In the afternoon there was a service of praise to the Lord. 14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 3

At the morning meeting I spoke for a short time, giving some items of our past history in the establishment of the work in different lines. What experiences we had in the commencement of the work in Battle Creek and California! Now we are going over the ground in Australia. The different chapters in the history of these Christian missions, the efforts made in lifting and planting the standard of truth in regions beyond, are similar in nearly all parts of the Lord's great missionary vineyard. 14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 4

The spiritual wants in this country have been brought to light and pressed upon our souls. We have felt that the time has now come to work. The opening fields have been brought before us much faster than we, with our present force of workers and our limited means, could supply them. We are very thankful for that which has been done, but the prospect before us in the fields of labor yet untouched is without a limit. To raise the standard and plant it firmly means work, activity. 14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 5

In some places where we have been brought into a pressure, those not of our faith have all unexpectedly come forward with their gifts of money. This has been the case in Brisbane, Queensland. We thank the Lord for this. A meetinghouse, which was a positive necessity, has been erected there. Elder Haskell has labored hard in Brisbane, and souls still continue to embrace the truth in that portion of the Lord's vineyard. 14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 6

Every year there must be more than one or two neglected fields occupied and developed. We need more consecrated laborers to be set to work in these fields. The churches need care and encouragement, yet our work must largely be to lift the standard in new fields, where the truth has not yet come to the people. The most promising fields we have found have been those which we supposed would be the most difficult to work. 14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 7

All who present the truth in the love of it have all the zeal that they can endure. They feel such love for the souls whom they see in ignorance of the truth that often they are carried beyond their power of endurance. We have constantly to remind them that they are mortal and must care for their bodies. In their great interest to draw souls to Christ, opening to them the treasures of the Word of God, they themselves catch the inspiration of His Holy Spirit, and they endure taxation and labor in a way that is surprising. Thus it has been with Elder Haskell. Thus it was with Elder Wilson, who died at his post of duty; and thus it has been, and is, with other faithful workers. 14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 8

As soon as a field is entered, the educational work begins, line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little, and there a little. It is not the preaching that is the most taxing; it is the labor from house to house, reasoning from the Word, explaining the Word. It is the earnest travail of souls that will not yield to obstacles or be discouraged. Over and over again the same things must be repeated, and the dependence of the worker must be wholly upon God. And what rich experiences in educating those in the darkness of error the teacher obtains. He is a learner, and sees wonderful things in the Word of God. Ever and ever, as he attempts to explain the Scriptures, the Holy Spirit is working with his own mind and in his own heart. He is receiving the holy oil from the two olive branches, which through the two golden pipes empty the golden oil out of themselves. These olive branches are the two anointed ones, who stand by the Lord of the whole earth. 14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 9

All who engage in the work of winning souls will themselves be constantly educated by the Holy Spirit to a clearer understanding of the Word, as they communicate to others the light God has given them. The gracious utterances of the Word are the holy golden oil, emptied from the two olive branches into the hearts of all who are prepared as vessels cleansed to receive the heavenly treasure. There is infinite consolation for all who are laborers together with God. The requirements of the Word impose most weighty obligations upon every steward entrusted with light and knowledge. The Bible teaches the whole will of God concerning us, and the Bible is to be not only read, but is constantly to be our rule of life, the foundation of our faith and practice. 14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 10

We need truly converted workers, those who are converted every day. Every worker must be supplied with the golden oil. We may have it, we must have it, and then there will be success in the work.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 11

We see so many places to be worked, and in the name of the Lord we call for workers, earnest workers, for this field. We do not ask for men who are wedded to their own ways, but for those who are wedded to Christ and His ways. We pray that there will be men and women who will be stirred by the Spirit of the Lord to come to this country to settle in different places and work and have a holding influence. We need you, oh, so much, we need you. In every place opened there should be families, true missionaries, settled, those who will use their knowledge and experience to serve others. As they communicate, God will communicate to them. We cannot draw from the treasury to support these families in this new field. There is so much of the field unworked that all the means we can command will be required. We see no limit.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 12

The words of Christ are very impressive. He said, "My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work. Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest. And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal, that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together." [John 4:34-36.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 13

I have a request to make: Let all that love the Lord, who gave His life for them, make returns to Him who has bought them with a price. Through your own self-denial and self-sacrifice return to God your offerings, to be used in opening new fields and planting the standard of truth in places that have never been worked. First give yourselves to the Lord as a consecrated offering, and then in your practice heed the words of Christ, "He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross and follow me." [Mark 8:34.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 14

The word comes to every believer, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord. Make straight in the desert a highway for our God." [Isaiah 40:3.] Economize in your expenditure of means upon yourself. The first step of self-denial is generally the most difficult, but begin without delay. Your self-denying offerings shall be used in this field to supply workers to give the last message of mercy to a fallen world. There will be in your hearts such a sacred kindling of love for God and zeal for the truth that you will realize indeed the truth of the words, "Ye are laborers together with God." [1 Corinthians 3:9.]14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 15

From the light given me of God, I make this call to young and old, men and women and children. God calls upon you to do your best. Practice self-denial in order to bring the truth before thousands who have never heard it.14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 16

The missionary spirit needs to be revived in our churches. We want you to show your active zeal in doing something, and do it now. Let there be planning of sacrifices for God in order to advance the work in the very places where it is most needed.14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 17

There is a great work to be done in England. The light radiating from London should beam forth in clear, distinct rays to regions beyond. God has wrought in England, but this English-speaking world has been terribly neglected. You that have the cause of God at heart, bear in mind the great work to be done in London and all through the cities of England.14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 18

We want to push the triumphs of the cross in Australia, right where we are new fields are opening, and the work must not be hindered. Maitland and Singleton and other towns and cities must be warned. The Lord is coming. Prepare to meet thy God. Every place not entered, not worked, has its own claims. The anticipation, the prospect of working these fields, must give place to the grave, decided, self-sacrificing reality of hard work itself. Anticipate all you please in regard to regions beyond, but go to work now. Every Christian is bound to be a Bible worker, to do something in imparting to others the great present truth for this time. Communicate what you do know. Tell it, sing it, pray it. Work while it is day; for the night cometh, in which no man can work. God help you, is my most earnest prayer.14LtMs, Ms 57, 1899, par. 19

The Duty of Parents to Children

NP

April 13, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in AH 172-173, 389-390; TMR 7.

Before parents can do their duty to their children, they must be converted and transformed in character. Mothers, fathers, your children are the younger members of the Lord's family. He has paid the price for their ransom, and when you deal with them from caprice, you are unfaithful stewards of souls. God has given you reasoning faculties and you are to put them to use. There are responsibilities resting upon Christian parents which they do not accept and carry in the fear of the Lord. They profess to believe the most sacred and solemn truth ever given to the world, but they do not reach the standard to which God calls them. They do not sanctify themselves through the truth, that their children may be sanctified. Parents are required by God to bring up their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, constantly instilling in their minds correct principles, and training them by the law of kindness and love.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 1

But while parents are to make the religion of Christ attractive by their cheerfulness, their Christian courtesy, and their tender, compassionate sympathy, they are to be firm in requiring obedience and respect. Right principles must be established in the mind of the child. If the parents are united in this work of discipline, the child will understand what is required of him. But if the father, by word or look, shows that he does not approve of the discipline the mother gives, if he feels that she is too strict, and thinks that he must make up for the harshness by petting and indulgence, the child will be ruined. Deception will be practiced by the sympathizing parent, and the child will soon learn that he can do as he pleases. Parents who are committing this sin against their children are accountable for the ruin of their souls.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 2

“Strait is the gate, and narrow is the way that leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it; because wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth unto death, and many there be which go in thereat.” [Matthew 7:14, 13.] Satan has prepared pleasing attractions for fathers and mothers as well as for the children, for he knows that if he can exercise his deceptive power upon mothers, he has gained much. The ways of the world are very inviting, but they are full of deceitfulness and fraud and misery. “Many there be which go in thereat.” 14LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 3

If the children and youth are not carefully educated and trained and disciplined, they will surely go astray. Having no fixed principles, it will be hard for them to resist temptation. So long as the father’s eye is upon them, the mother’s watchcare over them, there is a certain degree of security. But if the mother in her love of society leaves her children to themselves, Satan watches the opportunity, and uses it to their ruin. These, separated from the influence which should have a power to hold them in check, reveal that their moral power is weak. They have no strength to resist temptation, and when sinners entice them, they have not the moral strength to meet them with a resolute No. The youth who thus follow their own impulse and inclination can have no real happiness in this life, and in the end will lose eternal life. 14LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 4

Fathers and mothers should become intelligent in regard to the laws that govern physical life, that they may know what are and what are not correct physical habits. Right habits in eating and drinking and dressing must be insisted upon. Children must be taught to make a right and appropriate use of the things of this life, and to leave alone those things which abuse the powers of mind and body. Parents who would secure physical soundness in their children must teach them that every organ of the body, every faculty of the mind, is the gift of a good and wise God, and that it is to be used to His glory. By a proper exercise of the talents lent them, they may secure eternal happiness. 14LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 5

The souls, as well as the bodies, of the youth are affected by their habits of eating and drinking. Bad habits render the youth less susceptible to Bible instruction. God calls upon parents to guard their children against the indulgence of appetite, and especially against the use of stimulants and narcotics. The tables of Christian parents should never be loaded down with food containing condiments and spices. Prepare healthful, palatable food which will preserve the stomach from any abuse. Fathers and mothers may do much in giving right characters to their children by conforming their own appetites and passions. Fathers who use tobacco and liquor poison their blood and transmit to their children their own vitiated appetites, intensified. They give feeble moral powers as a legacy to their children. Thus the sins of parents are perpetuated in their offspring. What a weight of crime will be charged to parents in the day of final account!<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 6

Those who have charge of God's property in the souls and bodies of the children formed in His image should erect barriers against the sensual indulgence of this age, which is ruining the physical and moral health of thousands. If the many crimes of this time were traced to their true cause, it would be seen that they are chargeable to the ignorance of fathers and mothers who are indifferent on this subject. Health and life itself is being sacrificed to this lamentable ignorance. Parents, if you fail to give your children the education that God makes it your duty to give them, both by precept and example, you must answer to your God for the results. These results will not be confined merely to your children. They will reach through generations. Just as the one thistle permitted to grow in the field produces a harvest of its kind, the sins resulting from your neglect will work to ruin all who come within the sphere of their influence.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 7

Many parents send their children to school, and think when they have done this that they have educated them. But education is a matter of greater breadth than many realize. It comprises the whole process by which the child is instructed from babyhood to childhood, from childhood to youth, and from youth to manhood. As soon as the child is capable of forming an idea, his education should begin. The teachers in the school will do something toward educating the youth, but the example of parents will do more than can be accomplished by any other means. Their conversation, the way in which they manage their business matters, the likes and dislikes to which they give expression, all help in molding the character. The disposition the child sees in you, the self-control, the self-possession, the kindness, the courtesy, all will be daily lessons to him. Like time, this education is ever going on, and the tendency of this everyday school will be to make your child what he ought to be.14LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 8

The circumstances in which a child is placed will often have a more effective influence on him than even the example of parents. There are wealthy men who expect their children to be what they were in their youth, and blame the depravity of the age if they are not. But they have no right to expect this of their children unless they place them in circumstances similar to those in which they themselves have lived. The circumstances of the father's life have made him what he is. In his youth he was pressed with poverty, and had to work with diligence and perseverance. His character was molded in the stern school of poverty. He was forced to be modest in his wants, active in his work, simple in his tastes. He had to put his faculties to work in order to obtain food and clothing. He had to practice economy.14LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 9

Fathers labor to place their children in a position of wealth, rather than where they themselves began. This is a common mistake. Had children today to learn in the same school in which their fathers learned, they would become as useful as they. The fathers have altered the circumstances of their children. Poverty was the father's master; abundance of means surrounds the son. All his wants are supplied. His father's character was molded under the severe discipline of frugality; every trifling good was appreciated. His son's habits and character will be formed, not by the circumstances which once existed, but by the present situation—ease and indulgence.14LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 10

The parent may think that he will counteract these tendencies and bring up his son to economical habits, to tax his physical and mental powers, and guard his associations. He has realized the benefits to be derived from a plain, simple diet, and he will seek to have his child restricted to the plainest food, that he may not become dainty or sickly. But his surroundings are such that simplicity cannot be preserved. His table is spread with food of every description, to gratify the taste of visitors, and what the child sees others indulge in, he will reason that he should have. When luxury abounds on every side, how can it be denied him?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 11

Christ discerned these dangers in the life of the rich man. He said, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where moth and rust do not corrupt, and where thieves do not break through and steal." "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." [Matthew 6:19, 20, 33.] This is the first work to be engaged in. Every family should rear its altar of prayer, realizing that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 12

If any persons in the world need the strength and encouragement that religion gives, it is those who are responsible for the education of their children. They cannot do their work in a manner acceptable to God while their daily example teaches those who look to them for guidance that they can live without God, as though it were not necessary to have him in their thoughts. If they educate their children to live for this life only, without reference to the future life, these children will make no preparation for eternity. They will die as they have lived, without God. And the parents will be called to account for the loss of their souls. Parents need to seek God morning and evening at the family altar, that they may learn to teach their children wisely, tenderly, lovingly, line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 58, 1899, par. 13

The Perfect Standard

NP

April 13, 1899

Previously unpublished. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

There are many who inquire, What is the standard I must reach? I answer, The law of God is the only true standard of moral perfection. In the life of Christ you have the law practically carried into action, and this is your example. Nothing short of this will meet the requirement of the Word of God. Christ could say, "I have kept my Father's commandments," and the disciple John declares, "He that abideth in him ought himself also so to walk even as he walked." [John 15:10; 1 John 2:6.]14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 1

We may plead our inability to keep this law, but this will not excuse us. Such a plea is the language of the carnal heart, which is not willing to put forth determined effort in self-conquest. There must be an earnest desire for higher and still higher attainments in the Christian life. Paul [Peter] speaks of growing in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. This means a spiritual connection with God which will give us trust and confidence in Him, leading us to meditate upon Him, to talk of Him, and to Him, until we have an experimental knowledge of His divine nature and are changed into His image. Then we can glorify God by revealing to those with whom we associate the results of the transforming influence of the grace of Christ.14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 2

We read the biographies of Christians, and think their experience and attainments entirely out of our reach. These, we say, are the histories of a few who are specially favored by grace. But these high attainments are for all. Christ died for every soul, and we are assured by God's Word that He is more willing to give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him than parents are to give good gifts to their children. We may be engaged in the common duties of every day life, but we can make them sacred by simple, earnest faith and persevering, trusting prayer. However humble the duty, it is a part of the service of God. Religion must be made the first great business of life. Christ enjoins us to “seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness.” [Matthew 6:33.] God is honored by the steadfast integrity, the holy walk and conversation, of His people, even in the humblest walks of life. 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 3

The apostles and prophets and holy men of old did not perfect their characters by a miracle. They used the ability given them by God trusting alone in the righteousness of Christ; and all who will use the same means may secure the same result. It is our privilege to have high spiritual attainments, for God’s Word has declared it. But these call for labor and faith on our part. The reason why professed Christians do so little in winning souls to Christ is because they have so little of Christ in themselves. The usefulness of the Christian will depend upon the measure of the grace he has received, and the measure of grace he receives will be proportionate to the use he makes of the blessings God gives him. 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 4

Those who gain the mastery over temptation and sin will have conflict and trials to meet, for the powers of darkness are determined to oppose their advance, lest they become channels of light to the world. All the powers of the being must engage in this warfare, and while they look to the cross of Christ for grace and strength, they will surely conquer. For every soul who is growing up into Christ there will be times of earnest and long continued struggle against the enemy. But if we work the works of Christ, the mind will gather strength and firmness to resist the adversary of souls. The apostle says, “Think it not strange concerning the fiery trial that is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you.” [1 Peter 4:12.] 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 5

“Ye are in [heaviness through] manifold temptations, that the trial of your faith, being much more precious than of gold which perisheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praise and honor and glory at the appearing of Jesus Christ.” “Wherefore let them that suffer according to the will of God commit the keeping of their souls to him in well doing, as unto a faithful Creator.” “Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time, casting all your care upon him, for he careth for you. Be sober, be vigilant, because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour; whom resist, steadfast in the faith, knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your brethren that are in the world.” [1 Peter 1:6, 7; 4:19; 5:6-9.] 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 6

There are many who teach the people the theory of the truth, but they do not impress upon them the necessity of godliness, of bringing the truth into the daily life. Those who are resting in the fact that they have the truth, while personal piety is not revealed in their lives, are misrepresenting Christ. They do not practice His virtues. They do not manifest His humility and forbearance and love. Christ says of them, “I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot. I would thou wert cold or hot. So then, because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth.” [Revelation 3:15, 16.] 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 7

Christ presented before John a class of people who in their self-satisfaction say, “I am rich, and increased with goods, and in need of nothing.” These know not that they are wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked. Christ counsels all such, “Buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear, and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see.” [Verses 17, 18.] This state of things must be watched and guarded against. We are to be clothed with the garment of Christ’s righteousness. Faith and love are the precious treasures presented as gold, and these graces, which characterized the life of Christ, should dwell in our hearts. 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 8

There is another class whose religion consists in feeling. To them a happy emotion is godliness. They say, to sinners, Come to Jesus and believe in Him. It makes no difference what you believe, so long as you are honest in your belief. They do not make the sinner understand what sin is. He is not urged to search the Scriptures on bended knees to know what is truth, to pray that his eyes be anointed with eyesalve, that he may see the grace of Christ. When the lawyer came to Christ saying, "Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" he did not say, Believe, only believe, and you will be saved. He said, "What is written in the law? how readest thou? He answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy mind and with all thy soul and with all thy strength; and thy neighbor as thyself." Christ answered, "Thou hast answered right; this do, and thou shalt live." [Luke 10:25-28.] Here the false doctrine that man has nothing to do but believe is swept away. Eternal life is given to us on condition that we obey the commandments of God. 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 9

Christ warns His followers, "Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep's clothing; but inwardly they are ravening wolves." [Matthew 7:15.] He exhorts them not to be deceived when false shepherds press in their doctrines. These false shepherds tell us that the Ten Commandments were done away at the death of Christ. Shall we believe them, these men who claim to be sanctified while they refuse to obey God? They say the Lord has told them they need not keep the Ten Commandments, but has the Lord told them this? No; God does not lie. Satan, who is the father of lies, deceived Adam in a similar way, telling him he need not obey God, that he would not die if he transgressed the law. But Adam fell, and by his sin he opened the floodgates of woe upon our world. 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 10

Again Satan claimed that he [man] need not follow expressly the command of God in presenting the slain lamb as an offering. Cain obeyed the voice of the deceiver, and because God did not accept his offering, while He showed His approval of the sacrifice of Abel, he rose up in anger and slew his brother. Let us each know for ourselves what voice we are heeding, whether it is the voice of the true and living God, or the voice of the great apostate. Eternal life is of value to each of us, and we must take heed how we hear. We want to know what to believe. We want sound doctrine, pure faith. We cannot afford to receive the sayings of men for the commandments of God, for if we do this, we shall make void God's law. The Lord has said, "If his children forsake my law, and walk not in my judgments; if they break my statutes, and keep not my commandments, then will I visit their transgression with a rod, and their iniquity with stripes." [Psalms 89:30-32.]14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899,

par. 11

John has given us the definition of sin: "Whosoever committeth sin," he declares, "transgresseth also the law." [1 John 3:4.] And this was after the crucifixion of Christ, when, we are told, the law was abolished. When type met antitype in the death of Christ, sacrificial offerings ceased; the ceremonial law was done away. But by the crucifixion of Christ the law of ten commandments was established. Let us compare our lives and characters with this great moral standard, God's just and holy law; for it is the standard by which we shall be judged in the last great day. Looking into this great mirror we should carefully examine our thoughts and works. 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 12

The law has no power to pardon transgressors. Repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ must be exercised. As the sinner looks into this divine mirror, he will see the exceeding sinfulness of sin, and will be driven to Christ. Our question should be, Are we making void the law of God, or are we standing in vindication of that law? Where shall we wish to stand when Christ shall appear? 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 13

Satan is willing that every transgressor of God's law shall claim to be holy. This is what he himself is doing. He is satisfied when men rest their faith on spurious doctrines and religious enthusiasm, for he can use such persons to good purpose in deceiving souls. There are many professedly sanctified ones who are aiding Satan in his work, helping on the work of apostasy. They talk much of feeling, of the exercise of their mind. They speak of their love for God, but God does not recognize this love, for it is a delusion of the enemy. The light God gives them they refuse to accept, and it becomes darkness to them. With the father of lies, these souls will receive the reward of disobedience. It had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness than after they had known it to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them. 14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 14

Listen to the testimony of John: "By this we know we love the children of God, if we love God and keep his commandments. For this is the love of God that ye keep his commandments, and his commandments are not grievous.” “He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected. ... Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you, but an old commandment, which ye had from the beginning. The old commandment is the word which ye heard from the beginning.” [1 John 5:2, 3; 2:4, 5, 7.]14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 15

Let us earnestly inquire, What is truth? We cannot afford to build on a sandy foundation. The doctrines revealed in the Word of God are to be the foundation of our faith. It is a matter of utmost importance that we understand as far as God has given us capacity for understanding, the principles upon which God’s government rests, for the principles which we believe and receive into the heart will govern and control the actions. The more clear the understanding of the truth as it is in Jesus, the more spiritual will be the religious life, the more holy the affections.14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 16

Godly sorrow will always be the result of a realization of our frailties and depravities. Our faith in the atoning sacrifice will be based on the sacred promise of full and complete pardon from Christ. The message of mercy which Christ brought from the Father to man was meant for the ears of the world: “I, if I be lifted up,” Christ said, “will draw all men unto me.” [John 12:32.] Everlasting life has been purchased for man at an infinite cost. “God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life.” [John 3:16.] In this matchless gift Christ embraces the world with an atmosphere of grace. All who choose to inhale this life-giving atmosphere will have eternal life. The sinner who consents to be drawn can say, “Herein is love.” [1 John 4:10.]14LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 17

That Christ should take the nature of man, and by a life of humiliation elevate man in the scale of moral worth with God, that He should carry this adopted nature to the throne of God, and there present His children to the Father, to have conferred upon them an honor exceeding that bestowed upon the angels—this is love that melts the sinner’s heart. It is too much for the human mind to grasp, that God, having collected all the riches of the universe, laid open all the resources of His power, should place them in the hand of His Son, saying, All these I give to You for man. These are My gifts to him. Confer them upon him, that he may be convinced that there is no love like Mine, and that his eternal happiness consists in his giving Me his love in return. As the sinner contemplates this love, it broadens and widens into infinitude, and passes beyond his comprehension.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 59, 1899, par. 18

The Teacher Sent From God

NP

April 20, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 16MR 89-96.

“Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep’s clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.” “Ye shall know them by their fruits.” [Matthew 7:15, 16.]14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 1

There are some who have departed from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of devils, and these in their turn seduce others through falsehood and misrepresentation. These false teachers are represented by Christ as ravening wolves. Their work is to tear down that which God through His agencies is seeking to build up. “Thus saith the Lord concerning the prophets which make my people to err, that bite with their teeth, and cry, Peace: and he that putteth not into their mouths, they even prepare war against him. Therefore night shall be unto you, but ye shall not have a vision; and it shall be dark unto you, but ye shall not divine; and the sun shall go down over the prophets, and the day shall be dark over them. Then shall the seers be ashamed, and the diviners confounded; yea, they shall all cover their lips; for there is no answer in God.” [Micah 3:5-7.]14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 2

False prophets are described by Paul in his letter to Timothy: “Men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, having a form of godliness but denying the power thereof.” [2 Timothy 3:2-5.] Paul warns his son in the gospel, saying, “This charge I commit unto thee, son Timothy, according to the prophecies which went before on thee, That thou by them might war a good warfare, holding faith and a good conscience; which some having put away concerning faith have made shipwreck.” [1 Timothy 1:18, 19.]14LtMs, Ms 61,

When those who controvert the truth of God send for men to oppose truth with falsehood and error, this is the time to watch the influence their words have upon the congregation. Those who do not want a knowledge of the truth will greedily partake of the dish of pleasing fables presented to them. They will listen diligently to the falsehoods and ravening of the wolves in sheep's clothing. They are of those who rejoice in iniquity. They infuse into the hearts of those who do not want God's way the same wicked opposition that is in their own hearts. And they will act out the same spirit toward God's commandment-keeping people in this time as the Jews did when they refused to believe the truths which Christ unfolded before them. 14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 4

Christ presented before this people the prophecies of the Old Testament Scriptures, showing them that by their rejection of him they were fulfilling those prophecies. But they continued in their evil course, and followed to the end the works which stand registered against them in the books of heaven, and which have brought eternal infamy upon them as a nation. 14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 5

What accusation did they bring against Christ? The same which men today bring against the commandment-keeping people of God—scandal, reproach, and falsehood. Greedily they receive the testimony of false witnesses. They hired men to report against Christ, that they might have some pretext for condemning Him. Everything that could be said or done was done to make themselves and others believe Him a criminal. His every word and action was watched and reported to His enemies in a distorted light. Spies were constantly upon His track, saying, "Show us a sign." [Matthew 12:38.] Work some miracle. 14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 6

When Christ said to the sick of the palsy, "Be of good cheer; thy sins be forgiven thee," He gave His enemies a sign which they could not set aside. "And the scribes and Pharisees began to reason, saying, Who is this which speaketh blasphemy? Who can forgive sins, but God alone?" But Jesus, knowing their unspoken thoughts, said, "What reason ye in your hearts? Whether is easier to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee: or to say, Rise up and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (he saith to the sick of the palsy), I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house. And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God. And they were all amazed, and glorified God, and were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things today.” [Matthew 9:2; Luke 5:21-26.]14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 7

Did this evidence that Christ was the Son of God cause the scribes and Pharisees to believe in Him? No; this demonstration of mercy and wonderful restoration only exasperated them. It was not evidence that He was the great Teacher sent from God that they wanted, but that He was a deceiver. Again and again they were on His track, to see and hear His words and works. Their hearts were not open to conviction. They were filled with intense hatred, with bitter prejudice, and they were ever seeking to find some occasion to work out their bitterness and wrath against Him.14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 8

“And it came to pass, as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with him and his disciples. And when the Pharisees saw it, they said to his disciples, Why eatest your Master with publicans and sinners? But when Jesus heard that, he said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick. But go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy, and not sacrifice: for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.” [Matthew 9:10-13.]14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 9

Next in His work came a call from a ruler, saying, “My daughter is even now dead, but come and lay thine hand upon her, and she shall live. And Jesus arose and followed him, and so did his disciples. As he went, the people pressed about him, until he was followed by a vast multitude. And, behold, a woman which was diseased with an issue of blood twelve years came behind him, and touched the hem of his garment: for she said within herself, If I may but touch his garment, I shall be made whole. But Jesus turned him about, and when he saw her, he said, Daughter, be of good comfort; thy faith hath made thee whole. And the woman was made whole from that hour.” [Verses 18-22.]14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 10

“And when Jesus came into the ruler’s house, and saw the minstrels and the people making a noise, he said unto them, Give place; for the maid is not dead, but sleepeth. And they laughed him to scorn. But when the people were put forth, he went in, and took her by the hand, and the maid arose. And the fame thereof went abroad into all the land.14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 11

“And when Jesus departed thence, two blind men followed him, crying, and saying, Thou Son of David, have mercy on us. And when he was come into the house, the blind men came to him, and Jesus saith unto them, Believe ye that I am able to do this? They said unto him, Yea, Lord. Then touched he their eyes, saying, According to your faith be it unto you. And their eyes were opened; and Jesus straitly charged them, saying, See that no man know it.” [Verses 23-30.]14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 12

Notwithstanding this charge, the restored men “when they were departed, spread abroad his fame in all that country.” [Verse 31.] This added fuel to the fire of prejudice. His enemies interpreted His works of mercy and compassion as a wrong done to themselves. The people were leaving them and listening to the teachings of Christ.14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 13

“As they went out, behold, they brought to him a dumb man possessed with a devil. And when the devil was cast out, the dumb spake: and the multitude marvelled, saying, It was never so seen in Israel.” [Verses 32, 33.] These words, contrasting the works and mercy of Christ with the course pursued by the priests and Pharisees, exasperated the leading men, and in the place of the evidence softening their proud, ungodly hearts, they were filled with prejudice. Every additional proof given them provoked them to increased resistance.14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 14

When they saw that they could not prevent Him from working miracles, they put forth their skill to misrepresent and falsify him. They could bear false witness, and this they did. They said, “He casteth our devils through the prince of devils.” [Verse 34.] But Jesus worked on, irrespective of censure and prejudice, resistance, and determined opposition. The genuineness of His power and work was kept before the people, and His enemies could not turn the multitude from following after him. 14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 15

In Christ's mighty works there was sufficient evidence for faith. But these men did not want truth. They could not but acknowledge the reality of the works of Christ, but they cast condemnation upon them all. They must acknowledge that supernatural power attended His work, but this power, they declared, was derived from Satan. Did they really believe this? No; but they were so determined that the truth should not affect their hearts and they be converted, that they charged the work of the Spirit of God to the devil. In this they blasphemed God and committed the sin against the Holy Spirit which has no forgiveness in this world or in the world to come. 14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 16

"But when he saw the multitudes, he was moved with compassion for them, because they fainted and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd. Then said he unto his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest." [Verses 36-38.] 14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 17

All-compassionate Redeemer! what love, what matchless love, was Thine! Charged by the great men of Israel with doing His works of mercy through the prince of devils, scorned and maligned, He was yet as one who saw and heard not. The work He came from heaven to do must not be left undone. He saw that truth must be unfolded to men. The light of the world must flash His beams into the darkness of sin and superstition, and reveal error in contrast with truth. That truth found no place in the hearts of those who should have been foremost to receive it, because they were barricaded by prejudice and wicked unbelief, and among those who had not such exalted privileges He prepared hearts to receive it. He made new bottles for the new wine. 14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 18

Every moral and spiritual truth is invested by the God of heaven with a power of influence proportionate to its character and importance. The work of Christ was tested and brought forth prominently. The plan of redemption, which means everything to a lost and ruined world, was to be proclaimed, and the Spirit of God in Christ Jesus was brought into vital contact with the heart of the world, in order to draw the world to its divine Author, the Truth, the Word, and the Life. Christ declared, "I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." [John 12:32.]14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 19

Christ does not use force or compulsion in drawing men to Him. But while truth was being proclaimed, the hearts of those who professed to be children of God were barricaded against it, and those who had not been so highly privileged, those who were not clothed with the garment of self-righteousness, were drawn to Christ. Their minds were convinced and quickened into activity, and light and truth vibrated through the universe. It was the plan of redemption, which was to call forth the intellect, to thrill the soul, and prepare it for the great power of God, which is salvation to all who believe—a truth so large, so deep, so full and complete, it could be the center of all truth hitherto revealed, presenting in a more exalted manner that which had been buried beneath a mass of rubbish and error. The work of Christ was to replace old truths in the framework of the gospel, and by bringing clearly to view neglected obligations, renovate the world.14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 20

Satan endeavored to keep hidden from the world the great atoning sacrifice which reveals the law in all its sacred dignity, and impresses hearts with the force of its binding claims. He was warring against the work of Christ, and united all his evil angels with human instrumentalities in opposition to that work. But while he was carrying on this work, heavenly intelligences were combining with human instrumentalities in the work of restoration. The cross stands as the great center of the world, bearing a certain testimony that the cross of Christ will be the condemnation of every transgressor of the law of God. Here are the two great powers, the power of truth and righteousness and the working of Satan to make of none effect the law of God. The human agent, magnetized by the power of Satan, works in the lines of the enemy; the Saviour employs His human instrumentalities to be laborers together with God.14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 21

Those who expect to be children of God are not to expect an easy time in this life. There are battles to be fought. We wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against the rulers of the darkness in this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. We are not left alone to engage in this conflict. Jesus Christ is the Captain of our salvation. He clothed His divinity with humanity, and took the field himself, that He might teach us how to fight the battles of the Lord. He says “Lo, I come, in the volume of the book it is written of me, I delight to do thy will, O my God, yea, thy law is within my heart.” [Psalm 40:7, 8.]14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 22

Who is this? We ask Isaiah, and he answers, “Unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulders, and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.” [isaiah 9:6.] John the Baptist tells us who He is, “Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.” [John 1:29.] And the beloved disciple adds his testimony, “In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.” [Verse 1.]14LtMs, Ms 61, 1899, par. 23

Judge Not

NP

April 18, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 8MR 309.

As ministers of the gospel of Christ we need to study the example of our Master. How pitiful and courteous Jesus was. How tenderly He entered into the feelings of others. Touched with the feeling of their infirmities, He wept with those who wept, and with those who rejoiced He could rejoice. Such a character will not be without an influence on the characters of His followers. Those who educate their minds to dwell on the perfection of Christ will represent Him to the world. 14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 1

My brethren, rule by love and kindness, rather than by severity and censure. When the erring one becomes conscious of his wrong, he is humiliated enough. Do not deal with him in a manner that will take away all his respect. Do not seek to tear to pieces, but rather to bind up and heal. You may see the errors of a brother, and he not be able to discern the wrong; and it may be difficult to know how to act in such a case. But never pursue a course of action that will leave the impression on his mind that you consider yourself his superior. You may think that your feelings, your pursuits, your organization, are superior to his; but do not seek to make this apparent, for this is altogether out of harmony with true refinement, true nobility of character. 14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 2

We are not to arouse or create prejudice; we are not to bruise the souls of the erring. Go to them armed with humility and prayer. When the gospel minister, with his heart subdued by the love and grace of Christ, comes in touch with human minds, he can reveal his superior qualifications, not by destroying hope and courage, but by inspiring faith in the faithless, lifting up the hands which hang down, and confirming the feeble knees. 14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 3

The action will always testify to the texture of the character. Advice and counsel coming from the lips of one who has a keen sense of right will always be superior. And if he is endowed with no ordinary gifts, he will unconsciously testify the same by his actions. He will work as Christ worked, seeking to uplift from the depths of woe and wretchedness the unhappy beings who will surely perish unless a loving, sympathizing hand is extended to them.14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 4

We are all sinners, and should seek for true elevation of character through Jesus Christ. We are not to place ourselves on an eminence, and then expect the sinner to climb to us. God calls upon us to do as the world's Redeemer has done. He was Commander in the heavenly courts, but He stripped Himself of all His glory, and clothed His divinity with humanity. He was rich, but for our sakes He became poor, that we through His poverty might be made rich. He came to this world all seared and marred by the curse, that He might come close to man in His woe and affliction. With His long human arm He encircled the race, while with His divine arm He grasped the throne of the infinite, bringing to fallen man divine power to co-operate with his human effort.14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 5

As we seek to copy our Master we shall stand on a high level, imbued with a keen sympathy, an abundant love, a tender compassion. We may stand where the bright beams of the Sun of Righteousness can shine upon us, and this will fill us with the sympathy, the tenderness, and the pity of Christ for the helpless. It will give us divine power to combine with our human capabilities.14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 6

The gospel minister, unless he brings himself in touch not merely with the members of his church but with unbelievers as well, is not following the example of Christ. Of Christ it is said, "In all their affliction he was afflicted." [Isaiah 63:9.] He was tempted in all points as we are <tempted>. Let the anxious desire be awakened in every heart to seek and to save that which is lost. Let no words of superiority be spoken. Make no special reference to your own qualifications; for by this very act you testify that you do not have the endowments which you flatter yourself you possess. You are not in the light. If your eyes were fixed upon Jesus, if you were contemplating his unsurpassed purity and excellence, you would see your own weakness and poverty and defects as they are. You would not regard yourself as holy. You would see yourself lost and hopeless, clad in garments of self-righteousness, like every other sinner. 14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 7

If we are saved, it will not be because of our superior intellect, our refinement of ideas, but through the grace of God. We have no garment of our own that will give us a position of honor at the marriage supper of the Lamb. Christ's robe alone, the garment woven in the loom of heaven, will give to the guests a worthiness to sit down at the marriage feast. Each must accept this robe, and it is offered to the lowliest who will believe in Him as his personal Saviour. The imputed righteousness of Christ alone can make the sons and daughters of Adam members of the family in heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 8

This world is polluted under the inhabitants thereof. Satan has left his awful mark upon men and women. But God has not placed upon any the burden of the sins of the world. If we allow ourselves to dwell upon the disagreeable side of life, the wretchedness we cannot cure, and fret about these things, we shall become like that which we contemplate. We can only have serious thoughts and anguish of spirit as we see the prevalence of iniquity in the world. But the fact that imperfection reigns everywhere should not make us extravagant in our feelings, and lead us to give expression to disgust. We are children of the King, pilgrims and strangers here, who seek a better country, even a heavenly. Love must reign in our hearts. As we see the exciting pleasures of the world, we must guard against a sour, hard, censorious spirit. Let us look away from the sin and evil to Jesus, the embodiment of purity. His love reigns supreme toward His enemies, and all who follow Him will keep themselves in subjection to the laws of His kingdom. 14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 9

Those who feel it their prerogative to criticize their fellow men are doing the work of the enemy. The Lord has set none to correct the supposed errors of their fellow men; for by beholding the imperfections of others, they <themselves> become harsh and self-centered. They compare themselves with others, and measure themselves among themselves. 14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 10

There are jealous and sensitive ones who have fostered their pride until, like an inflamed wound, it cannot bear the slightest touch. They fancy they have been slighted, when no slight exists, until they create a state of feeling in themselves which produces the very state of things they imagined in others. But no man is to consider himself appointed by God to dwell upon these objectionable features. Christ has given no man the grace to do this work, and if he attempts it, he will make grave mistakes. He will surmise evil, and will work upon his surmises as though they were truth. Neither ministers nor people must educate themselves to think evil of their brethren. To watch for any slight or any misconception of their own importance, for Satan is ready to conjure up many things that will be unjustly entertained. 14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 11

Christ has given instruction in these lines. "Judge not, that ye be not judged," He says: "for with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged; and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again." "And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull the mote out of thine eye, and, behold, a beam is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye." [Matthew 7:1-5.] Let us heed these words. We may dwell upon the love of God with all safety. The greatness of that love is beyond comprehension. Open the door of the heart, and let it in, for it will expand the soul, and give it something upon which to feed. It will create a new capacity; he who loves God will love his brother also. 14LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 12

"Yet a little while is the light with you; walk while ye have the light, lest darkness come upon you." [John 12:35.] Thus Jesus reasoned with the Jews, and should not His words have force with us? In proportion to the shortness of time are their value to those who have not accepted Christ. The wonderful facilities, the precious revealings of the love and grace of Christ, constantly abounding to believers and unbelievers, if not appreciated and improved, will lose their <sacred> value. It is possible for every man to become a

Christian. But if he will not accept the light, the darkness of unbelief will prevail in his soul. He will lose his faith; he will move away from God. While he sets aside the counsel, the warnings, the reproofs, the mercy of God, while he fails to co-operate with divine agencies, his light steadily diminishes.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 13

In the infinite goodness and mercy and self-sacrificing love revealed by the Father in that He spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all, we are to learn the lesson of sacrifice. We are to study how to give our sympathy and love to others. As we have received this priceless gift from God, we are to impart it. Let none imperil their souls by thinking and speaking evil, for this class can have no real happiness in this life, and cannot be trusted to enter the portals of bliss. They will criticize the angels and the blood-washed throng.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 14

As a people we must have more love. Our hearts must grow soft by contemplating Christ. O that we might see our need of sympathy and wisdom and grace. When we are Christlike we shall acknowledge no walls of partition. Christ died for all, and everyone who will believe may be cleansed from every taint of sin. It is the privilege of all to improve their opportunities and reach perfection of Christian character. They may open the heart and understanding to Jesus. They may have that faith that works by love and purifies the soul. The true Christian educates himself to look out of and away from self to Christ, and as he beholds His matchless mercy and inexpressible love, every barrier between him and his brethren is broken down. The harshness of his nature is melted away. He is refined and purified by the furnace fires, and can present an offering to God in righteousness. The law of kindness is upon his lips as the expression of the soul. Looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of his faith, he is changed into the same image.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 15

“The Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we do toward you, to the end he may stablish your hearts unblamable in holiness before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints.” [1 Thessalonians 3:12, 13.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 62, 1899, par. 16

The Work of Christian Physicians

Hamilton, Newcastle, New South Wales, Australia

April 22, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 15MR 29-42.

Yesterday Miss McEnterfer and Miss Maggie Hare accompanied me to Newcastle. This morning I arose at half past three, thankful for a night's rest. I slept well, for which I thank the Lord.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 1

Traditions and customs have become so interwoven with the belief of the medical profession that physicians need to be taught the very first principles of the way of the Lord. The physician ministers to the body in healing, yet all the work is the Lord's. He must co-operate with the physicians, else there cannot be success.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 2

Please read carefully the fifteenth chapter of Exodus. The Lord gave Moses a message of encouragement for the children of Israel. They did not deserve the good He had done and was doing for them, yet He made a covenant of mercy with them, saying, "If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the Lord thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I will put none of these diseases upon thee which I have brought upon the Egyptians; for I am the Lord that healeth thee." [Verse 26.] Read also the seventh, eighth, and twenty-eighth chapters of Deuteronomy.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 3

The Lord had a lesson to teach the children of Israel. The waters of Marah were an object lesson, representing the diseases brought upon human beings because of sin. It is no mystery that the inhabitants of the earth are suffering from disease of every stripe and type. It is because they transgress the law of God. Thus did the children of Israel. They broke down the barriers which God in His providence had erected to preserve them from disease, that they might live in health and holiness, and so learn obedience in their journeying through the wilderness. They journeyed under the special direction of Christ, who had given Himself as a sacrifice to preserve a people who would ever keep God in their remembrance, notwithstanding Satan's masterly temptations. Enshrouded in the pillar of cloud, it was Christ's desire to keep under His sheltering wing of preservation all who would do His will. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 4

It was not by chance that in their journey the children of Israel came to Marah. Before they left Egypt the Lord began His lessons of instruction, that He might lead them to realize that He was their God, their Deliverer, their Protector. They murmured against Moses and against God, but still the Lord sought to show them that He would relieve all their perplexities if they would look to Him. The evils they met and passed through were part of God's great plan, whereby He desired to prove them. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 5

When they came to the waters of Marah, "the people murmured against Moses, saying, What shall we drink? And he cried unto the Lord; and the Lord showed him a tree, which when he had cast into the water, the waters were made sweet: there he made for them a statute and an ordinance, and there he proved them, and said, If thou wilt diligently hearken to the voice of the Lord thy God, and wilt do that which is right in his sight, and wilt give ear to his commandments, and keep all his statutes, I will put none of these diseases upon thee, which I have brought upon the Egyptians, for I am the Lord that healeth thee." [Exodus 15:24-26.] Though invisible to human eyes, God was the leader of the Israelites, their mighty Healer. He it was who put into the tree the properties which sweetened the waters. Thus He desired to show them that by His power He could cure the evils of the human heart. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 6

Christ is the great Physician, not only of the body, but of the soul. He restores man to his God. God permitted His only begotten Son to be bruised, that healing properties might flow forth from Him to cure all our diseases. Physicians are to act in Christ's stead. Every physician who has planted his feet upon the Rock of Ages draws from the great Physician His restoring power. Christ's plans are to be carried out more definitely by the Christian physician. As Christ was about to leave His disciples, those who were to represent Him to the world, He gave them a new commandment. "A new commandment I give unto you," He said, "that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another." [John 13:34, 35.] That love they knew not until they saw the suffering and death of Jesus Christ upon the cross of Calvary. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 7

The new commandment of love was given in behalf of the weak, the wretched, the helpless. To the heart of Christ the very presence of trouble was a call for help. The poor, the sick, the desolate, the outcasts, the discouraged, the desponding, found in Him a compassionate Saviour, a mighty Healer. "The broken reed will I not break, the smoking flax will I not quench, until I send forth judgment unto victory." [See Matthew 12:20.] Christ identifies His interests with those of suffering humanity, and He tells us that whatever we do to relieve a sufferer, we do for Him. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 8

God has declared that it means much to discard the Word of the living God, and accept the assertions of those who seek to change times and laws. "The Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily, my Sabbaths ye shall keep; for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generation, that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. Ye shall keep the Sabbath therefore; for it is holy unto you; everyone that defileth it shall surely be put to death; for whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 9

"Six days may work be done; but in the seventh is the Sabbath of rest, holy to the Lord. Whosoever doeth any work in the Sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death. Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel forever. For in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested, and was refreshed." [Exodus 31:12-17.]14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 10

Those who in the face of these specifications refuse to repent of their transgressions will realize the result of disobedience. Individually we need to inquire, In observing a day of rest, have I drawn my faith from the Scriptures, or from a spurious representation of truth? Every soul who fastens himself to the divine, everlasting covenant, made and presented to us as a sign and mark of God's government, fastens himself to the golden chain of obedience, every link of which is a promise. He shows that he regards God's Word as above the word of man, God's love as preferable to the love of man. And those who repent of transgression, and return to their loyalty by accepting God's mark, show themselves to be true subjects, ready to do His will, to obey His commandments. True observance of the Sabbath is the sign of loyalty to God.14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 11

There are great lessons to be learned by all who minister for Christ. The Sabbath mark must be placed upon God's commandment-keeping people. The Sabbath, if kept in the spirit of true obedience, will show that all God's commandments are to be practiced, "that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you." [Verse 13.]14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 12

The Lord has His eye upon every human being, and He has His plans concerning each one. He would have His commandment-keeping people a distinguished people, who practice the holy precepts specified in His Word. He would have the members of the medical profession expel from their practice everything which has been brought in by selfishness, avariciousness, injustice. He has given wisdom and skill to physicians, and He designs that nothing savoring of robbery and injustice shall be practiced by those who make the law of Jehovah the rule of their life. By His own working agencies He has created material which will restore the sick to health.14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 13

If men would use aright the wisdom God has given them, this world would be a place resembling heaven. God has given them light, educating them and endowing them with capabilities and with ability to choose the path of holiness, the path of obedience to the divine requirements. But the transgression of Adam and Eve has been perpetuated from generation to generation.14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899,

par. 14

Men have chosen to follow the suggestions of Satan, instead of the directions of God, and they have become active workers in the enemy's service, making void the law binding upon every member of the human family. They have exalted Satan's principles above the principles which rule in the heavens. By working contrary to God's commandments they have united with the great deceiver, and have brought unrighteousness into the world. God has given men a Sabbath, ordained and founded by Himself, but they have changed the rest day which God sanctified in Eden, which bears the mark of His government, placing in its stead a spurious sabbath, which bears the mark of the man of sin.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 15

Sin is the transgression of the law, and God has stated plainly the penalty which must fall on those who abuse their freedom by choosing Satan's path of self-gratification. Is it not important that we know whether we bear the mark of God's government or the mark of the kingdom of rebellion? By observing a spurious rest day, we acknowledge ourselves subjects of the kingdom whose mark we bear. God's Word is before us, and those who carefully study it will see that they have made a mistake in accepting the first day of the week as the Sabbath.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 16

We all need a far higher, purer, holier trust in God. Every physician should be true and honest. He is not in any case to defraud his patients. If he performs a simple operation, he is to charge a simple price. The charges made by other practicing physicians are not to be his criterion. The diseased bodies over which he works are God's property. He has said, "Ye are not your own ... for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your bodies and in your spirit, which are God's." [<sup>1</sup> Corinthians 6:19, 20.] The exorbitant price charged by physicians in this country when called upon to attend suffering humanity is robbery, fraud.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 17

God gave physicians their wisdom and skill. It is not man who saves life; it is the great Restorer. But poor men are often charged for services they never received. Many physicians merely speak a few words to the suffering fellow being they are called to visit, doing nothing to relieve his suffering, and then charge a large fee. This is dishonesty before God. They should go vigorously to work, as did the good Samaritan. God is not glorified as a Restorer when physicians demand such large sums for their services.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 18

God calls for physicians who will make reforms in the methods of treating the sick. He calls for physicians who will co-operate with Him. He calls for righteous judgment among medical practitioners, who are acting in His stead. The physician who loves his brother as he loves himself will not charge exorbitant prices. A change must take place. It is just as essential that there be reforms in medical lines as in other business lines. There is grave overreaching in the charges made by lawyers and doctors. The Lord views all these things. No tradition, custom, or practice condemned by God must be followed by the believing physician. He is God's servant, working in Christ's stead, as His representative, and his work, his weights and measures, pass in review before God. The commandments of God must be the physician's standard. He must measure his daily life by the principles of the law.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 19

Christ rebuked the Pharisees and doctors of the law because of the dishonest practices which they had brought into the temple courts. These men influenced the buyers and sellers to purchase cattle at the lowest prices, and then to sell them for a high price to those coming from a distance, who could not bring their offerings with them and were therefore compelled to buy them in Jerusalem. As these men sat at the table, counting the money they had gained by robbery and extortion, Christ stood before them. His eye flashed with indignation as He saw the fraudulent transactions which were carried on. Picking up a scourge of small cords, which had been used to drive cattle to the temple, He drove out those who sold and bought, and overthrew the tables of the money changers, and the seats of them that sold doves, saying, "It is written, my house shall be called the house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves." [Matthew 21:13.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 20

Then the Restorer practiced His medical missionary work. "The blind and the lame came to him in the temple, and he healed them."

[Verse 14.]14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 21

The market places, the merchandise stores need cleansing. Courts of justice, lawyers' offices, the medical fraternity, need purifying. Shall we say that the medical missionary work needs cleansing? Christ, who came to our world to reveal the Father's heart of tender compassion, has shown us the methods which Sabbathkeepers are to follow in their work. These are plainly specified in the fifty-eighth chapter of Isaiah. God will not be a party to any dishonest transaction. The soul who keeps the Sabbath is stamped with the sign of God's government, and he must not dishonor this sign. By closely examining the Word of God, we may know whether we have the King's mark—whether we have been chosen and set apart to honor God. Please read Deuteronomy 6:4-9; and Ezekiel 20:12-20.14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 22

Men have broken God's laws, and despised and trampled on His Sabbath. Thus they have broken their contract with God, and He cannot work in their behalf. The Lord tells us in words too plain to be misapprehended that metal of the faith of His once chosen people is corrupted. They have a spurious faith. They have changed leaders, and no longer bear the King's sign. They cannot be trusted in time of test or trial; for they will act the traitors part. They do not draw from the Lord's foundry. God will never, never allow any man to pass through the pearly gates of the city of God who does not bear the signet of the faithful, His government mark. Every soul who is saved will cherish pure principles, which proceed from the very essence of truth. He must fasten himself by golden links to the everlasting power and love of the God of truth. He must be loyal to the principles of God's Word, loyal to the everlasting covenant which is a sign between man and his Maker.14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 23

Righteousness, high and elevated, is to control the conduct, strength of mind, learning, power of influence, will not give man his eternal life insurance papers. God weighs the action. Each must form an individual character after the likeness of Christ. He must have a conscience taught of God. He must see behind every promise the All-powerful One, with whom he must work as an agent to do His will. If man will not take this position, he will make shipwreck of faith. God will never insure a man for everlasting life whose anchor is not securely fastened to heaven's unalterable law. He must reveal the Christ working in him, in his doctrinal precepts, in his practical obedience. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 24

The soul that converses with God through the Scriptures, who prays for light and opens the door of his heart to the Saviour, will not have evil imaginings, worldly scheming, or ambitious lust after honor or distinction in any line. He who seeks for the truth as for hidden treasure will find it in God's means of communication with man, His Word. David says, "The entrance of thy word giveth light; it giveth understanding to the simple." [Psalm 119:130.] This does not mean those who are weak in intellect, but those who, whatever their position, have a true sense of their need of conversing with God as did Enoch. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 25

The Word of God will ennoble the mind and sanctify the human agent, enabling him to become a co-worker with divine agencies. The elevated standard of God's holy law will mean very much to him, as a standard of all his life practice. It will mean holiness, which is wholeness to God. As the human agent presses forward in the path cast up for the ransomed of the Lord to walk in, as he receives Jesus Christ as his personal Saviour, he will feed on the Bread of life. The Word is Spirit and life, and if it is brought into the daily practice, it will ennoble the whole nature of man. There will be opened to his soul such a view of the Saviour's love as portrayed by the pen of Inspiration that his heart will be melted into tenderness and contrition. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 26

We are to see and understand the instruction given us by the great apostle, "As newborn babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby," in perception, in likeness to the character of Christ. [1 Peter 2:2.] Development of character, growth in knowledge and wisdom, will be the sure result of feeding on the Word. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 27

We present to all our workers, our ministers and physicians, the necessity of careful consideration in all their work, perfect and entire obedience to the precepts of the Word of God. Carefully inquire at every step, how would my Saviour act in this line of work? What impression will I leave upon the people? I am to yoke up with Christ in the work as a restorer of health to the body, the mind, the heart, the soul. How careful should every physician be to represent the Master!<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 28

In this country the greatest fraud is practiced by the physician. He receives a call to go twenty-five miles. He steps into the cars, and in one or two hours is at his post of duty. He comes in, looks at the patient, tells him to go to the hospital, or perhaps gives him a little liquid in a bottle, and for this charges the patient from five to ten pounds. This is extortion and robbery of the afflicted and is directly opposed to the precepts of the law of God. This physician could not have loved God supremely and his neighbor as himself. He buried principle, and in its place revealed selfishness and an avaricious spirit. The Lord cannot be pleased or His name exalted by any such practice. Every physician who has the sign of God is represented in Exodus 31:13, 17. These are a distinct and holy people unto the Lord.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 29

We have come to a time when God's sacred work is represented by the feet of the image in which the iron was mixed with the miry clay. God has a people, a chosen people, whose discernment must be sanctified, who must not become unholy by laying upon the foundation wood, hay, and stubble. Every soul who is loyal to the commandments of God will see that the distinguishing feature of our faith is the seventh-day Sabbath. If the government would honor the Sabbath as God has commanded, it would stand in the strength of God and in defense of the faith once delivered to the saints. But statesmen will uphold the spurious sabbath, and will mingle their religious faith with the observance of this child of the papacy, placing it above the Sabbath which the Lord has sanctified and blessed, setting it apart for man to keep holy, as a sign between Him and His people to a thousand generations.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 30

The mingling of churchcraft and statecraft is represented by the iron and the clay. This union is weakening all the power of the churches. This investing the church with the power of the State will bring evil results. Men have almost passed the point of God's forbearance. They have invested their strength in politics, and have united with the papacy. But the time will come when God will punish those who have made void His law, and their evil work will recoil upon themselves. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 31

It is time for the people of God, those who wear the sign of His kingdom, and whose authority is derived from "It is written," to work. The world is the field of our labor, and we are to strive to give the last message of mercy to the world. Our every action is being watched with jealous eyes. Be on guard as physicians. You can serve the Lord in your position by working with new methods and discarding drugs. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 32

As reformers we are to reform the medical practice by educating toward the light. Our work is to be done in the full recognition of God. We are to practice the strict principles of mercy and justice. Our work is not to be as a garment put together with basting threads. We must imitate God's perfection. "Ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] We are to make the foundation of every building thorough and solid, as for eternity. Nothing must be done carelessly or shabbily. Do not put two timbers where there ought to be three. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 33

Christ, the risen Saviour, possessed no haphazard habits. His work was not marred by disorder. He carefully folded the napkin that was about His head. Our work must be done just as we wish our character to appear. It is to be built so that it will stand the test of trial. The Lord help us to work solidly. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 34

No one need to spend sleepless moments in regard to his life insurance papers. His title deed as heir of God and joint-heir with Jesus Christ [is] to an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away. God is responsible for every soul who wears the sign of His government, who is loyal and true to the Sabbath, and through obedience to the Sabbath, true to every principle in the Decalogue. "He that keepeth my words, loveth me," Christ said. [John 14:23.] Thus faith and works are combined, the inward working of the Holy Spirit, and outward demonstration of practical godliness. The proof of heart-love is obedience to God's commandments. All who love God will study His words. They will eat His flesh and drink His blood, living and acting in constant submission to His will. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 35

These words must be heeded. Medical missionary work means the eternal law of right in daily practice. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 36

“At that time the Lord said unto me, Hew thee two tables of stone like unto the first, and come up unto me into the mount, and make thee an ark of wood. And I will write on the tables the words which were in the first tables that thou breakest, and thou shalt put them in the ark. And I made an ark of shittim wood, and hewed two tables of stone like unto the first, and went up into the mount, having the two tables in my hand. And he wrote on the tables, according to the first writing, the ten commandments, which the Lord spake unto you in the mount out of the midst of the fire in the day of the assembly: and the Lord gave them unto me. And I turned myself, and came down from the mount, and put the tables in the ark which I had made, and there they be, as the Lord commanded me.”
[Deuteronomy 10:1-5.] 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 37

God has preserved His commandments, written the second time with His own finger. We are to understand and obey them. The promises of God are to be repeated again and again. Read the second chapter of Deuteronomy. Here are presented before us the blessings of obedience, the warnings against disobedience. We should have more to say on the subject of transgression and disobedience. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 38

Build for eternity. Christ's lessons are before us. We are to do carefully, neatly, and with exactitude whatever is to be done. We are to study economy in every line of work. Builders, gather up the fragments. Let nothing be lost. In all that there is to be done, in planting and building, imitate God's perfect ways. Nurses and physicians, think of Jesus. How careful He was of the remnants of food left after feeding the five thousand. By His thoughtful care He would teach us order and economy. The great work of redemption weighed constantly upon His soul. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 39

As He was teaching and healing, all the energies of body and soul were taxed to the utmost, yet He noticed the most simple things in human life and in nature. His most instructive lessons were those in which He illustrated the kingdom of God by the simple things of nature. He did not overlook the needs of the humblest of His servants. His ear heard every needy cry. He was awake to the touch of the afflicted woman in the crowd. His divine nature, combined with the human, was so finely wrought, that the least touch of faith brought a response. When he raised from the dead the daughter of Jairus, he turned to the parents and reminded them that she must have something to eat. 14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 40

The little things become great in accordance with the attention given them. The one talent is not to be wrapped in a napkin and hidden in the earth. Do what you can for the Master. "He that is faithful in that which is least" will be "faithful also in much." [Luke 16:10.] The Master will use every talent that we consecrate to Him. Your worth is determined by the faithfulness with which you do the little things. Every one needs in the details of daily life to learn to build for time and for eternity. Then at last there will be written against his name in the books of heaven the most precious commendation, "Ye are complete in him." [Colossians 2:10.]14LtMs, Ms 63, 1899, par. 41

There are things which it is [well] for the people of God to keep in mind. Jesus paid a great ransom to redeem the soul of men and women from the penalty of sin. He gave His own life, that all who believe in Him should have pardon, grace, and eternal life. Let men and women remember that to save them from eternal ruin God made a sacrifice that cannot be surpassed. The Son of the infinite God took human nature, that He might give His life as a sacrifice for the sinful race. All heaven was included in the gift of God's Son. The heavenly universe is united with Christ in leading men and women to reach a high and holy standard. God calls upon us to be laborers together with Him, to put all our capabilities into the work of representing Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 1

God never contradicts Himself. His revealed Word is His wisdom and goodness, shadowed forth by His works. When in communication with God, we constantly advance. We find nothing in the religious life burdensome or oppressive. God's character, correctly estimated, leads us to reflect is love to others. The lives of those who know God are characterized by Christlike deeds and words. And the brightness of the rays of the Sun of Righteousness shines forth from them, flashing the illumination of the light of Christ upon the lives of others. 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 2

There is no such thing as a joyless religion. Addressing His disciples Christ said, "If ye love me, keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever; even the Spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you. ... He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him. ... If a man love me, he will keep my words; and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings; and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me." [John 14:15-17, 21, 23, 24.] 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 3

"If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love. These things have I spoken unto you that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full." [John 15:10, 11.] Who but the world's Redeemer could utter such precious words as these? This is no mere empty theory; it is a positive promise that there is joy in obedience. Upon the obedient the Sun of Righteousness arises with healing in His wings. He who wears the yoke of Christ will walk cheerfully, bravely bearing the cross. In so doing he becomes a partaker "of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust." [2 Peter 1:4.] 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 4

"Thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God: the Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth. The Lord did not set his love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people; for ye were the fewest of all people: but because the Lord loved you, and because he would keep the oath which he had sworn unto your fathers, hath the Lord brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondmen, from the hand of Pharaoh, king of Egypt. Know therefore that the Lord thy God, he is God, the faithful God, which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love him and keep his commandments to a thousand generations." [Deuteronomy 7:6-9.] A thousand generations will bring us through all the trials of this life to the victorious end, when the reward will be given to God's commandment-keeping people. 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 5

"Wherefore it shall come to pass, if ye hearken to these judgments, and keep, and do them, that the Lord thy God shall keep unto thee the covenant and the mercy which he sware unto thy fathers: and he will love thee, and bless thee, and multiply thee: he will also bless the fruit of thy womb, and the fruit of thy land, thy corn, and thy wine, and thine oil, the increase of thy kine, and the flocks of thy sheep, in the land which he sware unto thy fathers to give thee ... And the Lord will take away from thee all sickness, and will put none of the evil diseases of Egypt, which thou knowest, upon thee; but will lay them upon all them that hate thee.” [Verses 12, 13, 15.]14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 6

Shall we not teach our children that willing obedience to the will of God proves whether those claiming to be Christians are Christians indeed? The Lord means every word He says. Christ died that the transgressor of the law of God might be brought back to his loyalty, that he might keep the commandments of God, and His law as the apple of His eye, and live. God cannot take rebels into His kingdom; therefore He makes obedience to His requirements a special requirement. Parents should diligently teach their children what saith the Lord. Then God will show to angels and to men that He will build a safeguard round about His people. Fathers and mothers should feel that there is most sacred missionary work to be done in their own home, in their own family, that the members of the family may become missionaries in every sense of the word.14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 7

“Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day; lest when thou hast eaten and art full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein; and when thy herds and thy flocks multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied, then thy heart be lifted up, and thou forget the Lord thy God, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage; who led thee through that great and terrible wilderness, wherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions, and drought, where there was no water; who brought thee forth water out of the rock of flint; who fed thee in the wilderness with manna, which thy fathers knew not, that he might humble thee, and that he might prove thee, to do thee good at thy latter end; and thou say in thine heart, My power, and the might of mine hand hast gotten me this wealth.14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 8

“But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God; for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth, that he may establish his covenant which he sware unto thy fathers, as it is this day. And it shall be, if thou do at all forget the Lord thy God, and walk after other gods, and serve them, and worship them, I testify against you this day that ye shall surely perish. As the nations which the Lord destroyeth before your face, so shall ye perish; because ye would not be obedient unto the voice of the Lord your God. ... All the commandments which I command thee this day, shall ye observe to do, that ye may live.” [Deuteronomy 8:11-20, 1.] We cannot keep the commandments unless Christ, the Lamb of God, takes away our sins. He is willing to bear the penalty and to impute His righteousness to every believing, repenting soul. 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 9

“And now, Israel, what doth the Lord require of thee, but to fear the Lord thy God, to walk in all his ways, and to love him, and to serve the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, to keep the commandments of the Lord, and his statutes, which I command thee this day for thy good?” [Deuteronomy 10:12, 13.] Parents, you are to keep the commandments of God perfectly, through the power given you by God. “As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name, which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God. And the word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth. ... And of his fullness have all we received, and grace for grace.” [John 1:12-14, 16.] 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 10

Temporal and spiritual prosperity are made conditional upon obedience to the law of God. But we do not read God’s Word, and thus become familiar with the terms of the blessing that is to be given to all who hearken diligently to God’s law and teach it diligently in their families. Obedience to God’s Word is our life, our happiness. We look upon the world and see it groaning under the wickedness and violence of men who have degraded the law of God. He has withdrawn His blessing from orchard and vineyard. Were it not for His commandment-keeping people who live upon the earth, He would not stay His judgments. He extends His mercy because of the righteous, who love and fear Him. 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 11

The Lord has declared that His Sabbath “is a sign between me and the children of Israel ... throughout your generations, that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. Ye shall keep the Sabbath therefore; for it is holy unto you. Everyone that defileth it shall surely be put to death; for whoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people. Six days may work be done, but in the seventh is a Sabbath of rest, holy to the Lord: whosoever doeth any work in the Sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death. Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations for a perpetual covenant.” [Exodus 31:17, 13-16.] But men boldly transgress God’s Word regarding His Sabbath.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 12

The wickedness of man has almost reached its boundary. Parents have neglected the education of their children, permitting them to follow their own unsanctified wills. Thus have been added to the ranks of Satan’s army thousands upon thousands of rebellious transgressors, who war against God and the truth. Those parents who betray their sacred trust will have much to answer for. By allowing Satan to use their uninstructed, untrained children, they lose their spiritual eyesight. They are unable to distinguish between righteousness and unrighteousness. They close the windows of the soul heavenward, opening them earthward, and the malarious atmosphere of unbelief poisons the spiritual life-current. They are weighed in the balance, and found wanting.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 13

I lift up my voice in warning, both by pen and voice, saying, Let the professed commandment-keeping people of God awake; let them arouse; let them receive the holy oil from the two olive branches, which empty this oil out of themselves into vessels prepared for its reception. Then they will feel that they have a work to do. They will realize that they must let their light shine. They will see that God will not accept a wrong example in the home. Parents who allow the minds of their children to become estranged from God, because they do not take up their God-given work, but choose to do a work, which seems more agreeable, will stand condemned in the judgment; for through that one element, that one strange branch, an example is set which makes many strange branches. Parents are the natural guardians of their children, and if they refuse to do the work in the family which God has given them to do, the curse resting upon Eli will most assuredly rest upon them.14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 14

Can we be surprised, as we see how the words spoken by Christ from the pillar of cloud are disregarded, that the Lord cannot and will not bless the world? He cannot honor unfaithful stewardship in the home or in the church. Those who leave their children to be rebels against God rob Jesus Christ of souls. Parents, it is your duty to use every God-given talent in working to the utmost for your children. Those who neglect their work in the home cannot feel travail of soul for the children of others. They cannot carry the church up higher and higher to a purer, holier altitude. Fathers and mothers should study attentively how they can develop in their children sound minds in sound bodies. Any lax, loose, immoral, unclean habits, which are allowed to exist, will be revealed in the countenance; for the intellect is connected with the organic structure; it grows with its growth and strengthens with its strength.14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 15

Why do parents so terribly neglect their children? Why do they not feel the solemn responsibility that rests upon them as parents to co-operate with God in imparting to their children the knowledge they should have? God has given them plain directions in [His] law. They are to stand in the place of God to their children in imparting salutary knowledge. By every judicious means they are to use all their talents for the good of their children. The parasites of the natural temperament, the inclinations to wrong which have been inherited, God would have parents cut away from the life. This is a work that cannot be undertaken and carried out without prayer. If the mother is not herself under submission to God, if she does not purify her own soul, and subordinate her own will to the will of God, it will be a miracle if the child does not lose its soul.14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 16

One objectionable trait of character, left to grow, deforms the whole being, for it germinates and expands. One word spoken concerning matters that ought not to be spoken of will bear its fruit. Education must be all-round and uniform. Every mother needs to be diligent.

She must allow nothing to divert her mind. She must not allow her children to follow their uneducated will in handling things in the home. They should be taught that they are not to keep the house in perpetual disorder by handling things for their own amusement. 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 17

Mothers, teach your children from their earliest years that they are not to look upon everything in the home as playthings for them. By these little things order is taught. No matter what fuss the children may make, let not the organ of destruction, which is large in babyhood and childhood, be strengthened and cultivated. "Thou shalt," and "Thou shalt not," God says. Without loss of temper, but decidedly, parents are to say to their children, No, and mean it. With firmness they are to refuse to allow everything in the home to be handled freely and thrown about on the floor or in the dirt. Those who allow a child to pursue such a course are doing him a great wrong. He may not be a bad child, but his education is making him very troublesome and destructive. Children should be taught to be neat, cleanly, and orderly. Quench, when it first appears, any habit that is not desirable. There is order in heaven, and God requires every family to be disciplined to orderly ways. 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 18

A mother should know how to train her children aright, how to develop the best qualities in them. The first child especially should be trained with great care, for he will educate the rest. Children grow according to the influence of those who surround them. If they are handled by those who are noisy and boisterous, they become noisy and almost unbearable. Mothers, be sure that you properly discipline your children during the first three years of their lives. Do not allow them to form their wishes and desires. The mother must be mind for her child. The first three years is the time in which to bend the tiny twig. Mothers should understand the importance attaching to this period. It is then that the foundation is laid. 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 19

If these first lessons have been defective, as they very often are, for Christ's sake, for the sake of your children's future and eternal good, seek to repair the wrong you have done. If you have waited until your children were three years old to begin to teach them self-control and obedience, seek to do it now, even though it will be much harder. 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par. 20

When will parents become wise? Let not a mother allow her mind to be occupied with too many things. Her aspirations must not be feeble. Unceasingly she must manifest tenderness and firmness. With the greatest diligence and the closest watchfulness she must care for the little ones who, if allowed, will follow every impulse springing out of the fulness of their unpracticed, ignorant hearts. In their exuberance of spirit, they will give utterance to noise and turbulence in the home. This should be checked. Children will be just as happy if they are educated not to do these things. They are to be taught that when visitors come, they are to be quiet and respectful. Let mothers gain the confidence of their children. Show them that you love them, but never, never let them rule you or disobey you. Eternal vigilance must be practiced. Gentle, but firmly, wrong tendencies must be repressed and bound about. See that your expressed word is obeyed. The future happiness of your children depends on their home-training. 14LtMs, Ms 64, 1899, par.

Plans for the Sydney Hospital

NP

April 25, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 16MR 245-249. +<sup>NoteOne</sup> or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

At a counsel meeting held last Thursday forenoon, it was decided that Brother Thomson should look over the plan which had been drawn up for the hospital and cut out four feet, thus lessening the expense. I disliked very much to do this, but money matters have become a serious question with us, and I felt forced to confess that I knew of no other way to do. But during the silent hours of the night, when I was by myself, the structure of a building rose before me, and my attention was directed to it. I said, That building is disproportionate; it is too tall and narrow; it is not symmetrical. I pointed out its disagreeable appearance, and the answer was, "That is the very form of the structure you intend to build."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 1

There should be no contracting [i.e. reducing] in the plan for the hospital. Let your minds take in the situation, and then erect the building you really need, putting the cost of the verandas into the main building. The tread, tread that will be heard on the verandas will be annoying to any person, sick or well. We can better do without them than contract the plan. If a small building is erected, after a time you will have to enlarge. These additions cost too much to run the risk of now limiting the building. The bathroom should be a room where massage and other treatment can be given. This part of the building should in no case be crowded out. There should be two bathrooms, one for lady patients, the other for the men. A special building should be prepared for those who have typhoid fever and other contagious diseases, who may come right among us. There should also be a bathroom for those who minister in word and doctrine, who need toning up and rest. Rooms should be ready for persons who are not invalids, but who will be unless they take more care of themselves. 14LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 2

In every place where we have a church, there should be some place specially fitted up where treatment can be given—a bathhouse with appropriate rooms. This is as the Lord designs it should be. There are few families so situated that they can accommodate in their dwelling-houses the one needing treatment, and thus help to prevent disease. In every place a building, even though rude and inelegant, should be erected. It should be plainly and comfortably furnished with spring beds, easy chairs, etc. Treatment ought not to be given in sleeping rooms. 14LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 3

In the bathroom there should be a bench of suitable height, covered with mattress, oilcloth, and woollen blanket. On this the patient can be given packs, and colds broken up. Thus a great deal of money may be saved which would otherwise be spent on doctors' bills. When workers in the cause of God fail in health, the central sanitarium may not be within their reach. Every teacher of the Word can learn how to treat himself, with the aid of a helping brother. Instruction has been given on this point. 14LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 4

Physicians need to be instructed by the great Physician. They need to learn in the school of Christ. They receive their diplomas as competent physicians, but have they learned from the Chief of physicians the lessons contained in the first four and the last six commandments—"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself"? [Luke 10:27.] 14LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 5

There is to be a sanitarium in Australia, and altogether new methods of treating the sick are to be practiced. Drug medication must be left out of the question, if the human physician would receive the diploma written and issued in heaven. There are many physicians who will never receive this diploma unless they learn in the school of the great Physician. This means that they must unlearn and cast away the supposed wonderful knowledge of how to treat disease with poisonous drugs. They must go to God's great laboratory of nature, and there learn the simplest methods of using the remedies which the Lord has furnished. When drugs are thrown aside, when fermented liquor of all kinds is discarded, when God's remedies—sunshine, pure air, water, and good food are used, there will be far fewer deaths and a far greater number of cures. 14LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 6

Christ never planted the seeds of death in the system. Satan planted these seeds when he tempted Adam to eat of the tree of knowledge, which meant disobedience to God. Not one noxious plant was placed in the Lord's great garden, but after Adam and Eve sinned, poisonous herbs sprang up. In the parable of the sower the question was asked the master, "Didst not thou sow good seed in thy field? how then hath it tares?" The master answered, "An enemy hath done this." [Matthew 13:27, 28.] All tares are sown by the evil one. Every noxious herb is of his sowing, and by his ingenious methods of amalgamation he has corrupted the earth with tares. 14LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 7

Then shall physicians continue to resort to drugs which leave a deadly evil in the system, destroying that life which Christ came to restore? Christ's remedies cleanse the system. But Satan has tempted man to introduce into the system that which weakens the human machinery, clogging and destroying the fine, beautiful arrangements of God. The drugs administered to the sick do not restore, but destroy. Drugs never cure. Instead, they place in the system seeds which bear a very bitter harvest. 14LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 8

The Lord sees that great reforms are needed in this country. The people must be educated in right lines. In this work trials will come, but everything that possibly can be done must be done to keep our special work among ourselves, as far as the outlay of means is concerned. We are not to place ourselves as the helpless prey of the powers of darkness. Those who believe in Christ will be tried. Their faith and love, patience and constancy, will be proved. But God is their Helper. 14LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 9

Our Saviour is the restorer of the moral image of God in man. He has supplied in the natural world remedies for the ills of man, that His followers may have life, and that they may have it more abundantly. We can with safety discard the concoctions which man has used in the past. The Lord has provided antidotes for disease in simple plants, and these can be used by faith, with no denial of faith; for by using the blessings provided by God for our benefit we are co-operating with Him. He can use water and sunshine, and the herbs which He has caused to grow in healing maladies brought on by indiscretion or accident. We do not manifest a lack of faith when we ask God to bless His remedies. True faith will thank God for the knowledge of how to use these precious blessings in a way which will restore mental and physical vigor.14LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 10

The body is to be carefully cared for, and in this the Lord demands the co-operation of the human agent. Man must become intelligent in regard to the treatment and use of brain, bone, and muscle. The very best experience we can gain is to know ourselves. Let the soul be cleansed from all impurity. Then will be seen the necessity of reform in many other respects in order that the high standard of virtue and holiness may be reached.14LtMs, Ms 65, 1899, par. 11

Talk/Extracts From Talks Given by Mrs. E. G. White at the Opening of College Hall, Avondale, and in the Avondale Church

Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

April 17, 1899 [typed]

[April 13, 1899]

School work is a work of partnership. Those who have come to this school with an earnest desire to make of themselves all that it is possible by the help of the Lord, may be assured that One who is mighty in power will link up with them and teach them the way of the Lord. But those who have come here for their own amusement, who do not put their minds to the task of securing a right education, will lose much. They will miss the mark entirely.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 1</sup>

We are fitting for heaven, the higher school. We expect to see a company of workers raised up in this school who will win souls to Christ because they are laborers together with God, because it is their greatest desire to spread the knowledge of truth. This was Daniel's object, and we read that God gave Him knowledge and understanding in all learning and wisdom.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 2</sup>

Light is to go forth from this school to place after place, reaching to Sydney and Melbourne, to Queensland and the regions beyond. If every student will put his mind to the tax, deciding that he will make of himself all that God designed him to be, he will receive great light and rich blessing. God desires students to receive an education that will enable them to see the possibilities and probabilities within their reach, to see what they may become by co-operating with the great Teacher.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 3</sup>

He says, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." [Matthew 11:28-30.] You may go to this place and that place in search of amusement and self-gratification, but when these are found, what real happiness do they bring. Christ says, "Come unto me ... and ye shall find rest." This promise was uttered by lips that never lie. We have the positive assurance that by coming to Christ, we shall find rest. This rest each student may have if he will give to the Saviour the powers of his being. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 4

Students, you can be servants of God. It is possible for you to win the crown of life which fadeth not away. Set your aim high. Instead [of] indulging in frivolity and cheap talk, speak sound words, words which will be a blessing to those who hear them. Enter the school of Christ. Take firm hold of Him who is mighty, who will lift up for you a standard against the enemy. Close the windows of the soul earthward, against the malarious atmosphere of doubt, and open them heavenward, that the bright beams of the Sun of Righteousness may shine upon you. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 5

God loves children and youth. He greatly blessed Joseph in Egypt. He passed by the aged Eli, who had neglected to train his children in ways of obedience, and to the child Samuel communicated what should befall Israel because of their wickedness. Every student may hold communion with God. Every student may know what it means to be taught by the Holy Spirit. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 6

God longs to have you reach after Him in faith. He longs to have you expect great things of Him. He longs to give you understanding in temporal as well as spiritual matters. He can sharpen the intellect. He can give tact and ingenuity. All that we have God gave us, and in return He expects us to lay ourselves at His feet. He will accept this offering, and will sanctify every power of mind and body. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 7

Students, do not disappoint your Creator. Do not think that you have come to school to do very much as you please. Do not allow your mind to be filled with lightness and trifling. Keep yourselves in the channel of light. Consecrate yourselves to God. He will accept all who put away the evil of their doings. Your parents are watching your progress with intense interest. Do not disappoint them. Make them happy by following a right course. Make a covenant with God by sacrifice. He will accept your offering, and make you vessels unto honor.14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 8

Extracts from discourse given by Mrs. E. G. White in the Avondale Church, March 25, 1899*14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 9*

“I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God.” [Romans 12:1, 2.]14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 10

The Lord says this because He knows it is for our good. He would build a wall around us, to keep us from transgression, so that His blessing and love may be bestowed on us in rich measure. This is the reason we have established a school here. The Lord instructed us that this was the place in which we should locate, and we have had every reason to think that we are in the right place. We have been brought together as a school, and we need to realize that the Holy Spirit, who is as much a person as God is a person, is walking through these grounds, unseen by human eyes, that the Lord God is our Keeper and Helper. He hears every word we utter and knows every thought of the mind.14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 11

No one will be forced into the kingdom of heaven. Those who do not wish to enter show it by their actions. It is because we want to enter this kingdom that we have established a school here, and have called for the youth to come. We desire that they should be educated and trained aright, that they may learn what they should do in order to keep the intellect unimpaired. As we look at the world we know that iniquity abounds. Very little that is of God and heaven can be seen. We desire to bring all of heaven we possibly can into our homes, into the church, and into the school. We desire that the Lord shall see in us no perversity, no stubbornness, no disobedience. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 12

God has given each of us talents upon which to trade. To some He has given ten talents, to others two, and to others one; and He expects us to use wisely what He has given us. By exercise our talents may be improved, and as they are improved, we are given more upon which to trade. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 13

We are to strive most earnestly to place mind, soul, and body in the best condition for God's service. When the lawyer asked Christ what he should do to inherit eternal life, Christ said, "What is written in the law? how readest thou?" The lawyer said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul and with all thy strength and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself." "Thou hast answered right," said the great Teacher, "this do, and thou shalt live." [Luke 10:25-28.] 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 14

It is because we desire you to learn of God and His law that we have established a school here, and students are to understand that they must be obedient. They are to place themselves under the rules and regulations of the school. As soon as they persist in introducing into the school practices which the school was established to separate from students, they will be separated from the school, because we have not consented to engage in this expense, we have not hired hundreds of pounds to establish a school here to bring together students who will carry out wrong practices. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 15

No child need think that because he has been allowed to rule at home, he can rule here. Suppose we should let students come in to sway things in their own way, what kind of a school would we have? How could we train men and women to be missionaries? Every student who enters this school must place himself under discipline. Those who refuse to obey the regulations can return to their homes. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 16

We desire to bind the students to our hearts by the cords of love and kindness, but [with] strict discipline. Love and kindness are worth nothing unless they are united with the discipline which God has said should be maintained. We call upon every student who has a knowledge of God to exert an influence on the Lord's side.

We desire you to be in the Lord's army. We desire you all to stand under the bloodstained banner of Prince Emmanuel, to fight manfully the battles of the Lord. We want you to put on the whole armor of righteousness. We want you to gain everything that Christ suffered so much to make it possible for you to gain. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 17

Courting is not to be carried on in the school. That is not what you are here for. We are here to prepare for the future life, where we may see the King in His glory, where we shall have that life which measures with the life of God. If we do not live in harmony with the law of God here, we shall never see His face. The disobedient can never enter the city of God. The Word of Inspiration declares, "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." [Revelation 22:14.]14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 18

I wish to say to everyone here today, You can be a laborer together with God. As you seek to help and bless those who come to the school, you stand under the protection of God. But those who exert an influence which encourages disobedience and vice stand under the displeasure of God. He knows all about their course, and He will arrange matters so that they will not stay long at the school unless they are converted. But we very much desire that they shall be converted. We want this school to be a place where God can abide in answer to our prayers. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 19

We need to ask ourselves the question, What shall I do to inherit eternal life? Christ gave His own life that the transgressor of the law should not suffer the penalty of the law, that as our Redeemer He might stand before the Father with pierced, uplifted hands, and say, "Lay their sins on Me. I am responsible for them. I will bear their transgressions. I have graven them upon the palms of My hands." The sinner may be pardoned if he accepts Christ as a personal Saviour. There is only one condition—the acceptance of the robe of Christ's righteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 20

"I beseech you therefore, ... by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice." [Romans 12:1.] "Ye are not your own; for ye are bought with a price, therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.] When this is done, we shall expect to see every promise of God fulfilled. "And be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." [Romans 12:2.] If we walk in the footsteps of Jesus, we shall be an obedient people, because we shall keep the windows of the soul opened heavenward. Thus we may have the light, the peace, the joy of heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 21

"Present your bodies a living sacrifice, ... which is your reasonable service." [Verse 1.] God requires us to cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit. If there are those in the school who desire to indulge habits against which we have been working for the last thirty years, we would say to them, You are here to learn how to give up those things which destroy your vitality, or to separate from the school. The Lord of heaven marks every deceptive act. When the children of Israel came to Ai, they went out against the city with full confidence in their own power. But the record says that they fled before the men of Ai. "Wherefore the hearts of the people melted, and became as water." [Joshua 7:4, 5.] 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 22

Joshua was in deep distress at this calamity. He fell upon his face to the earth, and said, "O Lord, what shall I say, when Israel turneth their backs before their enemies! For the Canaanites and all the inhabitants of the land shall hear of it, and shall environ us round, and cut off our names from the earth; and what wilt thou do unto thy great name? And the Lord said unto Joshua, Get thee up: wherefore liest thou upon thy face? Israel hath sinned, and they have also transgressed my covenant which I commanded them; for they have even taken of the accursed thing, and have also stolen, and dissembled also, and they have put it even among their own stuff. ... Up, sanctify the people, and say, Sanctify yourselves against tomorrow; for thus saith the Lord God of Israel, There is an accursed thing in the midst of thee, O Israel; thou canst not stand before thine enemies, until ye take away the accursed thing from among you." [Verses 8-11, 13.] 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 23

Those now being educated in this school should go from it to educate others. They are to eat, drink, and dress to the glory of God. We shall not keep here those who say, I am not going to keep the rules. They can return to their homes if they are not willing to come into order. Let not the teachers think they are doing the students a kindness by allowing wrong to go unrebuked. We should stand where the Lord will not need to say to us, "Neither will I be with you any more, except ye destroy the accursed from among you." [Verse 12.] 14LtMs, Ms 66, 1899, par. 24

Counsel on Proper Buildings and the Treatment of the Sick

NP

April 25, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 2SM 284-285, 347-348; 8MR 258. +Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

I must write in regard to the way in which we are to work. No slipshod work is to be done on our cottages or school buildings. One month since, I was, in the night vision, passing a building, and I saw distinctly that this building was swaying. I said, "Why is this building swaying thus? What does it mean?" One of divine authority said, "There is not sufficient strong timber laid solidly in the foundation, and there will be a shaking of the building. Make the wrong right, though the work be ever so difficult." This is an error that should never be made in any building and especially in a school building. Every floor should have double the material in its foundation. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 1

Then the words were spoken, "You cannot give a correct object lesson in your buildings unless you build correctly. Let not the management of these buildings be left solely to any one man's mind or judgment. There are men on the ground whose judgments should be combined in the erection of such buildings. You may save one hundred pounds in erecting the building now, but in the end it will cost you a much larger sum. The builders must unite their judgment and wisdom in the putting up of all the buildings that are to be used for school purposes." 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 2

Last Wednesday night my attention was called to a two-story building. It was narrow, and rather disproportionate in appearance. I asked, What is that building? The answer was given, That is your hospital building, where you would take your sick for treatment. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 3

Cannot you see that it is out of proportion? Your first plan was none too large, and your cutting off from it was a mistake. Rooms should be prepared for the ministers who are overworked, and who need some place where they can have change and rest without having constant anxiety as to how they are going to meet their expenses. When the disciples were worn with labor, Christ said to them, "Come ye yourselves apart, and rest awhile." [Mark 6:31.] The Lord would have arrangements made whereby His servants may have a time in which to rest and recover strength. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 4

Our sanitariums are to be opened to our hard-working ministers who have labored to the best of their ability to create funds for the forwarding of the work. When the Health Home is in running order, a liberality should be manifested in the use of the facilities God has provided for His worn and overworked servants. God is dishonored when littleness and selfishness is revealed in any of His institutions. In every institution it should be remembered that when they receive Christ's servants, they receive Christ in the person of His messengers. God requires this at their hands. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 5

An institution is to be erected for the treatment of the sick servants of the Lord, and none who are ministering in word and doctrine, or laboring in the work of God in any line are to feel that they are beggars, or be treated as such, when they receive the hospitality of those who are in charge. It is such work as this that God looks upon as true and genuine medical missionary work. The souls of God's workers are bound to Him, and when they are treated indifferently, or charged for any little service, it displeases the Lord. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 6

There has not been among the medical fraternity a keenness of perception to discern these matters. They do not look at matters as they should. There are some workers who are so situated as to be able to lay by a little from their salary, and this they should do if possible to meet an emergency. Those who act as physicians of sin-sick souls have far greater difficulties to combat than physicians who treat diseased bodies. At every turn, when means are needed, they are called upon to do something to lead out and advance the cause of God, and this leaves them with very little surplus of means. They feel such an intense desire to plant the standard in new fields that they often hire money to help in these different enterprises. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 7

The building on the school ground is to be convenient and roomy, for it is to be used not merely for the treatment of the sick, but as a resting place for the servants of the Lord. This is the Lord's way, and it should be carried out in every institution in our land. To take a worn, sick minister, prescribe years of rest for him in order to get well, and then charge him from one to two pounds per week, is not a very encouraging way of treating him. To take our sisters, who have worked untiringly for the advancement of the cause of God, and charge them large sums of money for a short stay for treatment and board, is not God's way, and His blessing will not attend any such close figuring. The branch of the cause for which these worn-out laborers have worked should show their appreciation of their labor by giving them help in their time of need, and thus divide the burden of expense. We want a clear understanding of these matters before we begin to lay the foundation stone for our Health Home. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 8

We do not want this institution to pattern after any other medical institution in this country. We want God's blessing, and His blessing cannot attend the receiving of large prices for treatment, especially from poor people. Those who wear God's sign are not to take large sums of money for simple operations. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 9

They are not to charge exorbitant prices for visits and counsel and ministrations to the sick. There is to be no robbery. Fair, square dealing is to be revealed in every case. The Lord would have His people wear His sign, as subjects of His kingdom. They are to be distinguished from the world as men who follow in the footsteps of the greatest Teacher and Healer the world has ever known. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 10

In building our institutions, the less we accept from the people in Cooranbong, the better we shall feel in the future. If you call for money from the poor around, they will receive the idea that by giving now, they win for themselves a life-long right to be treated, nursed, and cared for at the Health Home. Do all you can for them, but do not exact large sums from them. The Lord does not need the pence and shillings of these poor souls. He would have His people help them when sick, but do not publish abroad the fact that this is a free institution, lest they harm themselves by their expectations. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 11

It is the privilege of every Christian physician to open wide his windows heavenward, and close them earthward. It is essential that the light of God's living principles illuminate the chambers of the mind and the soul temple. Heavenly love enters the heart that is opened heavenward, and this light irradiates the hearts and minds of others. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 12

In locating a sanitarium, much consideration should be given to its arrangement. The drawing room and sleeping rooms should have the morning sun. This will prove a great blessing, for there is healing in sunshine. Those who are arranging a private dwelling house, and especially a health home, should remember the benefit to be derived from having sunshine in the rooms. Let those who are making the plans for the Health Home in Cooranbong arrange the sleeping rooms so that they will get the morning sun, which is so beneficial to sick people. The sun is the Lord's doctor; there is healing in its beams. Faith and works are to be combined. Do all you can to obtain the sunshine of the first morning hours, and then ask the Lord to bless the means you have taken to secure cleanliness, pure air, and daily sunshine. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 13

Physicians who pray, as well as work to restore the sick make deep impressions upon the minds of those they attend. Our prayer and painstaking effort is not by any means to be confined to those who believe the doctrines we believe to be truth. God will bless the afflicted one, believer or unbeliever. Many not of our faith have often longed to understand what they should do to be saved. The hour of their greatest peril may be the hour of their resolve to accept Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 14

Ministers and doctors are deficient in this line. We need a much greater dependence on God and His power. We are to co-operate with God by using the simple remedies He has provided, discarding all drugs. The Lord God of Israel has provided for the success of faithful men and women who nurse the sick in faith, without depressing the invalid by referring to the question of money. Nature and nature's God work together in perfect harmony. An intelligent use of God's natural restoratives, water, pure air, sunshine, will work wonderful cures. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 15

In every case treatment is to be accompanied by prayer. Many who are sick have never exercised faith. They do not know how to believe. But if they will look to Jesus, believing that the great Healer can cure the sin-sick soul and the diseased body, they will not be disappointed. God is exalted and honored by him who in faith wrestles in prayer. Our institutions must be fragrant with prayer. Pray, "If it is for Thy glory to do this, heal for Thy name's sake." This is not weakening to our faith. "The Creator of the ends of the earth fainteth not, neither is weary. There is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth strength. Even the youth shall faint and be weary, and the young men shall utterly fall; but they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength: they shall mount up with wings as eagles; they shall run, and not be weary; and they shall walk, and not faint." [Isaiah 40:28-31.]14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 16

It is our privilege to use every God-appointed means in correspondence with our faith, and then trust in God, when we have urged the promise. If there is need of a surgical operation, and the physician is willing to undertake the case, it is not a denial of faith to have the operation performed. After the patient has committed his will to the will of God, let him trust, drawing nigh to the great Physician, the Mighty Healer, and giving himself up in perfect trust. The Lord will honor his faith in the very manner He sees is for His own name's glory. 14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 17

"Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace, whose mind is stayed on thee, because he trusteth in thee. Trust ye in the Lord forever; for in the Lord Jehovah is everlasting strength." "The way of the just is uprightness: thou most upright doth weigh the path of the just. Yea, in the way of thy judgments, O Lord, have we waited for thee. The desire of our soul is to thy name, and to the remembrance of thee. With my soul have I desired thee in the night, yea, with my spirit within me will I seek thee early; for when thy judgments are in the earth, the inhabitants of the earth will learn righteousness.” [Isaiah 26:3, 4, 7-9.]14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 18

This subject needs to be treated with great caution. We know of instances where the Lord has laid a case of diseased humanity upon the heart of His people, and put within them a longing of soul and they have prayed most earnestly for recovery, and have supposed they had a right to claim the promise, and yet the sick died. The Lord, who sees the end from the beginning, understood that should He work by His power to heal, the divine will would be misunderstood. At times, restoration would not be best, either for the friends or for the church, but would result in wild enthusiasm and fanaticism, leading some to the conclusion that impulse is the ground of our faith. The only safe course is to follow the written Word. After you have done all you can for the sufferer, place the case in the hands of the Lord. It may be that death will be for His glory. The Lord permits some to die who for months and years have lingered in sickness. He sees fit to give His suffering ones rest. “And I heard a voice from heaven, saying, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth, yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them.” [Revelation 14:13.]14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 19

In regard to spiritual blessings, look for the very blessing you need. The promise is, Ask, and ye shall receive. We are to ask for spiritual blessings, believing that we shall receive. Ask the Lord if it be in accordance with His will to grant your request, believing that He hears, and will answer the prayer you present in such a manner and at such a time as will be for your best good, and His name's glory.14LtMs, Ms 67, 1899, par. 20

Friday, April 14, 1899

This is the preparation day for the Sabbath. I wrote a letter of several pages to Elder Haskell and Elder Tenney, who are engaged in the work in Brisbane. We thank the Lord that a chapel has been erected there, and dedicated free from debt. The last letter from Elder Haskell reports that fifty souls have been converted to the truth. The ministers have now commenced work in another locality, where there is a deep interest. This is five miles from where the church building has been erected. The brethren are now contemplating the necessity of engaging in medical missionary work and the health food business, if they can obtain money to do it.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 1

The building work on our hospital has not yet commenced, but the land is being cleared preparatory to building. We need a hospital so much. On Thursday Sister Sara McEnterfer was called to see if she could do anything for Brother Palmer's little son, who is eighteen months old. For several days he has had a painful swelling on the knee, supposed to be from the bite of some poisonous insect. Pulverized charcoal, mixed with flaxseed, was placed upon the swelling, and this poultice gave relief at once. The child had screamed with pain all night, but when this was applied, he slept. Today she has been to see the little one twice. She opened the swelling in two places, and a large amount of yellow matter and blood was discharged freely. The child was relieved of its great suffering. We thank the Lord that we may become intelligent in using the simple things within our reach to alleviate pain, and successfully remove its cause.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 2

Sister McEnterfer had been home only a short time from this missionary visit, when a Mr. Johnson, living about ten miles away, came to her in great distress of mind. He said that his children had eaten unripe fruit, and he thought they would die before he could bring them help. He had sent for a doctor, who had given them some mixture of magnesia and water, but this had given them no relief. The father was scarcely able to restrain himself in his great anxiety, while Sara was getting her treatment facilities ready.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 3

Sabbath, April 15

We had a most interesting service. This was a most solemn day to those who love and fear the Lord. We have fears that those who have had light and truth, but do not practice it, will gradually lose all knowledge of the truth, and their light go out in darkness.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 4

On Sunday, April 16, we attended a meeting in the open air at Martinsville. I had special freedom in speaking, using as my text 1 John 3:1-4. There were present about sixty people. This was far more than we expected. We are trying to draw these people to the truth. We had as good singing as we could obtain without an instrument, and we think the meeting was quite interesting. An effort had been made to obtain seats, and these were arranged in a half circle. Some women and children were seated upon the ground on our lap robes. Some in their carriages were stationed close by the fence that enclosed the paddock. We were pleased with the perfect order manifested. My voice was clear, and all could hear. We are sure that some seed fell into good ground. In this place there are two men, Mr. Pringle and Mr. Conley, who are about ready to obey the truth. They listened with great attention. Some of the number were Catholics, and would not have entered a church. We thank the Lord that for the first time we have had the opportunity of speaking in Martinsville. We shall be obliged to speak in the open air at Morisset, for there is no house there in which we can convene.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 5

We feel deeply for the people here. We are on missionary soil, and we wish to have all who can cultivate their voices for speaking and singing. Altogether too little interest is taken in voice culture. The voice is a sacred gift from God. All the conditions and circumstances of life are solemn, and bring us under contribution to God, to use every talent to His glory. All our powers are for use. They are not to be wasted, but trained for the glory of God. We are to do Him service. In every season of worship we are to cultivate the voice, overcoming all harshness and strange accent. We advise every student in our school who has an ear for music to make the most of his opportunity for learning how to improve the voice. The Lord expects every one to do his best.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 6

Thursday, April 20

This morning I awakened at half past two o'clock. O, how I long that the Holy Spirit of God may be with us on all occasions, but especially at this time, when money is being raised to carry forward the Word of God. We long to see His cause prosper. There are many places that need our labor.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 7

Today we met at the school building to consider the plan for the hospital drawn up by our builder, Mr. Thomson. We worked with all our ingenuity to diminish the outlay of means, but there came to my mind several things that had been outlined before me, which made me feel that we would make a mistake if we attempted to curtail the expense by cutting out four feet of the plan. This will mean eight feet less of room, taking into account both stories.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 8

Some matters have been deeply impressed upon my mind, and one is the necessity for much better facilities in the bathrooms. This is where impressions will be made upon minds. We must have conveniences in these rooms: massage tables, and a cot on which to give packs. All these things make their impression. Conversation will sometimes arise, and words will be spoken that will open a flood of light to the patient as to the best methods of caring for the human body, the temple of God. Therefore the greatest care should be taken to observe decency and strict purity in conversation and in every action. A small, crowded bathroom leaves on the mind an impression of cheapness and commonness, and this should not be.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 9

Everything that pertains to the human structure should be spoken of as God's property. He made it, and will care for it. "Ye are the temple of the living God," He says. [2 Corinthians 6:16.] "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price." Therefore the solemn injunction is given, "Glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.] In no case should women nurses give treatment or massage or packs to men, or men to women. Let everything in the bathroom be done decently and in order. 14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 10

The Lord would have Seventh-day Adventists remember that they bear the badge of loyalty to God in the observance of the Sabbath which He has sanctified and blessed and honored. "And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, Verily, my Sabbaths ye shall keep, for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations, that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you." [Exodus 31:12, 13.] Israel was to be stamped with the government mark. 14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 11

All who keep the Sabbath in truth bear the mark of loyalty to God. They are representatives of his kingdom. Their light is to shine forth to others in good works. We are not merely to observe the Sabbath as a legal matter, we are to be intelligent in regard to its spiritual bearing upon all the transactions of life. God says, "Verily, my Sabbaths ye shall keep, for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations, that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you." [Verse 13.] This is sanctification through the truth. When we are thus sanctified, we shall not have a spurious faith, a spurious doctrine, a spurious experience. 14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 12

We need genuine faith and practical righteousness. Self is to be abased, Christ is to be exalted. Have you faith in the Sabbath? How do you show it? Are you seeking with all your heart for that grace which will make your words and deeds a savor of life unto others. Faith without works is dead, being alone. Have we surrendered the soul to Jesus Christ, and accepted Him as our personal Saviour? 14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 13

The true sign is placed upon every one who accepts the Sabbath, to keep it holy unto the Lord. The claims of the Sabbath, if obeyed, will sanctify you, soul, body, and spirit. In coming out from the world and being separated, in accepting the Sabbath of creation which God has sanctified and blessed, we give evidence of genuine conversion. We wear God's sign. We are stamped with the mark of His government. 14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 14

What is truth? Christ's prayer to His Father for His disciples was, "Sanctify them through thy truth, thy word is truth." [John 17:17.] All who earnestly desire to know whether they have the King's mark will examine His Word critically. A spurious sabbath is not exalted before the people. This is the mark, the sign, of a kingdom that stands in opposition to the King of kings, the Lord of hosts. This kingdom seeks to show its power and authority by taking a common working day, a child of the papacy, and giving it to the Protestant world as the Sabbath of the Lord. It has sought to discard the sign which God has said should be preserved to a thousand generations. Those who change this sign show that they have a spurious faith and cannot be relied upon. 14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 15

The sign of our faith is the seventh day. This has been ordained by God as His memorial of creation. It is by this sign that men are linked to the God of heaven as His loyal subjects, trusting in the everlasting veracity of God, and His power as the Creator of the heavens and the earth. Every link in the chain binding us to God is a promise that He recognizes us as His chosen people. 14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 16

"He that keepeth my words loveth me." [John 14:23.] Love for Christ changes the heart. This love is the first work in creation. The first proof of this love in the converted man is his obedience to the commandments of God. Obedience to the Lord's Sabbath, the seventh day, is the sign which we bear to the world that we are loyal subjects of the kingdom which endureth forever. In our perfect obedience to God's commands we give evidence that we are born again. 14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 17

All who understand that the Sabbath is a sign between them and God that He is the Lord who sanctifies them will represent the principles of His government by cherishing His words and bringing into the daily practice the laws of His kingdom. They will live in constant submission to His will. They will learn from Christ, having the very words of His law written in their hearts. His heavenly injunctions will be regarded as the spring of their existence. As faithful stewards they will heed every command given, and act out in their life the true religion which emanates from God.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 18</sup>

God's commandment-keeping people need not worry in regard to their future, for if they feed on the Word of God, they will work on the plan of addition revealed in the second epistle of Peter. The lesson in this chapter is not heeded as it should be. The plan of addition is plainly stated, and Christ says, "If these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins. Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall. For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ." [2 Peter 1:8-11.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 19</sup>

The light God has given me is that the medical missionary work is a grand work, and presents great opportunities for doing good. Loyalty to the principles of God's work binds the godly physician to everlasting right, because it is the way of righteousness and truth. He who practices the righteousness of Christ has eternal life. His life insurance policy is sure. It is not man's strength of intellect that saves him; this is only a lent talent. He is to labor in the service of God with every power of his being, sanctified day by day. Then he can represent the great Medical Missionary.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 20</sup>

Righteousness through faith in Jesus Christ is to control the conduct of every practitioner in missionary work. Our conscience must be molded and fashioned by the Lord, and upheld daily by His power, or we shall surely drift away from the great Pattern to follow the example of men who do not wear the sign of the Sabbath, who testify that they do not bear the seal of the living God. God never insures a man for eternal life unless he is fastened securely to the divine principles of right.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 21

Monday, April 24

I awaken at two o'clock, and commence my writing at three. I have important matter, which I wish to give to the doctors in our institutions. I hear that Dr. Caro and Brother Morse are to be here early this morning, before breakfast, to hear what I have to say to them.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 22

Later. I spoke with Dr. Caro and Brother Morse for about one hour, upon the principles which should be brought into our institutions. They felt that the Lord had given me a message for them. We then drove them to the Morisset station, and when we came back we took Dr. Rand to the Dora Creek Station.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 23

We have many perplexities to meet. We see everything pressing upon us, and we have no money to handle. Dr. Kellogg sent us £250, but this had to go at once to pay the workmen on the school buildings. We did think that the statement of our necessity would have brought immediate relief. Money has been raised, as we saw by the Bulletin, and this matter has gone into the papers, so that it is regarded as a sure matter that we are well supplied with funds. We are supplied with anticipations, and that is all, with the exception of the draft from Dr. Kellogg.14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 24

Yesterday I said to W. C. White, You must take hold of my writings; I can delay no longer. It is supposed that you are helping me, but you are not doing this. I need your help, and must have it. He gravely told me he must go to Sydney at once, to see if Elder Daniells, who has just returned from Melbourne, had brought means which could be used in the school, to let us out of this pressure; and that he had only one hour in which to get to the station. O, how we are hampered. Everyone is congratulating us, and yet we are pressed under a load of financial embarrassment which our brethren in America seem not to comprehend. I am left with a great burden upon me, and I must have help. Brother Colcord is not well, and he cannot help me. W. C. White is constantly trying to keep things going, so that they shall not quite stop.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 25

I wish to say, The light given me is that the towns on the way from Morisset to Sydney must be worked, and also those from Cooranbong to Newcastle. At Maitland and Singleton there is a decided interest to hear, and from Queensland and Western Australia the call for help comes. "Who shall go for us, and whom shall we send?" [See Isaiah 6:8.] We have no light as to who shall do this work, but it must be done.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 26

Tuesday

It is clear and cold this morning. I awaken at half past three. We see many perplexities, but if we trust in the Lord, He will work in our behalf. We will not look at the things which are seen, but at the things which are unseen, for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal. It is supposed by the people in Australia and America, who have read what has been published in the Bulletin and the Review and Herald regarding the funds raised for the work here, that the Lord will now go before us, to open new fields which have never yet been worked. But we are in just as great perplexity and real want as ever, and the pressure is just as close. The workmen on the school building, who have not been paid, seeing the facts published regarding money, come to us with importunate solicitations to pay them for their work, and we have not a pound to do it with.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 27

At Sunnyside we are employing three young men who are unused to labor. We give them half a crown each per day. They do as well as boys unused to physical labor can be expected to do. We could better afford to hire one able bodied man, but these boys come from a large family of several children, who are hearty and need food. What can we do if we have to stop paying them? It will cut off their every source of supply. Why were not our brethren in America as zealous to send the means they had raised as to publish the fact that they had raised means. As yet we have been in no wise helped.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 28

The President of the California Conference publishes the fact that he had sent Sister White fourteen hundred dollars, as though it was a gift. It was my own money, invested years ago to save the Healdsburg school from the trouble caused by Mrs. Scott. I agreed to settle Mrs. Scott's indebtedness to me by taking shares in the Healdsburg College, with the assurance that the brethren would help me by taking these shares off my hands. Statement is made that the California Conference ordered one thousand dollars sent to me, but we have not seen the one thousand dollars. We wish we had it. If our brethren in America had had any idea of our situation, a portion of that which has been raised would have come into our hands, for we are in a great strait, tied up fast for want of money. Why do not our brethren send the means, and not keep us bound about? How long this stress will last we cannot tell, but God forbid that His name should be dishonored. 14LtMs, Ms 68, 1899, par. 29

Words of Counsel in Regard to the Publishing Work

NP

May 8, 1899

Previously unpublished.

Some matters have been presented to me, of which I will speak. The question of restitution has been brought before my mind. My attention was called to The Gospel Primer, which was prepared for the benefit of the people and work in the Southern Field. The management of this little book has not been carried on in correct lines, and those whose eyes are opened can better understand the curious way in which the work has been done. The Gospel Primer was a cheap, simple book, prepared for a special object. Its large sale has proved that many others, besides the people in the Southern Field, have desired to possess it. The profits from these sales should have been given to the work in the Southern Field, for the beginning of the work in that field needs all the profits that can be brought in from this source. 14LtMs, Ms 69, 1899, par. 1

In the management of The Gospel Primer justice and righteousness were confused. Another book was brought in, but it could not take the place of The Gospel Primer, which was the ABC of gospel instruction to ignorant, benighted souls. A strange work has been done in regard to this little book, and this work stands recorded in the books of heaven, revealing the character of those who turned from its rightful place the means which should have been used for the advancement of the work. 14LtMs, Ms 69, 1899, par. 2

Another book, The Coming King was published, in the hope that the means received from its sale would help in upbuilding the work in the Southern Field. But scarcely had it begun its work when another book from the Pacific Press was brought in, calling the attention of the people from The Coming King. I have not seen this book, but from the light given me, I know that it will cut directly across the path of the book preceding it, because it will cover almost the same ground and speak almost the same things. I have been shown that evils which have existed in the past will come in. This book will get in the way of the other book. These strange movements have not in them one thread of the Spirit of God. They plainly reveal the devising of men.14LtMs, Ms 69, 1899, par. 3

The publishers should have foresight, if the author has not, and weigh the result of such a course of action upon a brother's prospects. There has been much of this work done, and there needs now to be a careful consideration of the matter, else the publishing work will call for the appointment of men whose principles enable them to discriminate between right and wrong, justice and injustice, who can appreciate equality and fair dealing. These things are not regarded as they should be. Matters are not managed with discretion as they should be and as they must be, else God will not be glorified. Means which should have been used to sustain the work in the Southern Field has been diverted to other channels.14LtMs, Ms 69, 1899, par. 4

Will our brethren now follow the principles of the law of God, and give others a chance to do the work God designs them to do? I feel sorry to see books crowded on the market, without a thought of what reference they have to books that have preceded them. Will Brother Tait and other brethren study the cause and effect of every movement made? The publishing of books is a matter that can be so treated that God will look upon it with a frown instead of a blessing.14LtMs, Ms 69, 1899, par. 5

I have not heard a word in regard to this matter from Edson. Things have happened in connection with the publishing of his books that have been trying to mind and spirit; but we have great hope that the Lord will strengthen Edson to do His will in the hard field he is in, which is fraught with many dangers and perils. If Edson could be connected with me in my work of bookmaking, it would be a great blessing to me; but this cannot be.14LtMs, Ms 69, 1899, par. 6

I desire that in the publishing work my brethren shall not move in a haphazard manner, and thus do injustice to their brother, who has worked hard, and who borrowed money to invest in his book, The Coming King. This book has only been on the market a short time, and now the attention of the canvassers is diverted to another book, before The Coming King has had a fair chance.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 69, 1899, par. 7

Fairness must be observed in the publishing work. Edson has not said one word to me in regard to this matter; but I see danger ahead. A recklessness is coming into the publishing work which will place this work where it will need adjustment. The rule should be observed that one book is not to be crowded into the market before the book preceding it has had a fair chance. I leave these words with you.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 69, 1899, par. 8

Laborers Together with God

NP

February 26, 1899

How wonderful are the Lord's dealings with His people. By circumstances over which we have had no control, the providence of God has led us to advance, and day and night our prayers have ascended to heaven that the Lord would give us means that His name might be glorified. The Lord is never at a loss for resources. He will set circumstances in operation that will bring relief to His people. The words spoken of Christ, "He will not fail nor be discouraged," reveal to us that the Saviour had great temptations to resist. [Isaiah 42:4.] Though at times we may be sorely tried, we must have faith. We must work intelligently, doing the part God has assigned us, believing that He will work in our behalf.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 1

"God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ." [2 Corinthians 4:6.] Christ commissions us to shine as lights in the world, by reflecting the light of God as seen in the face of Jesus Christ. Who among us are doing this? Are our lives all aglow with this wondrous light? God expects every one of us to reflect His image to the world. We have been led on step by step to make advancement. We have walked and worked by faith, and we need to discipline ourselves to endure hardship as good soldiers of Jesus Christ. We want good, strong minds that are not easily discouraged, minds that are educated to grapple with the difficulties we shall meet and wrestle with and conquer hard problems. We must lift the standard of truth in the towns and cities around us. We must see what is to be done, and do it in the love and fear of God. When we have gone just as far as we can by faith, then the Lord will undertake in our behalf.14LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 2

It is God who has inspired us to commence this work. We have gone forward step by step, praying, believing, working. God is the Author of our faith, and when we each act our individual part, He perfects the work, glorifying His own name in the finishing of it. The Lord inspires His consecrated workmen to work not from what they see, but from what the Lord sees.14LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 3

We need to strengthen ourselves with hope, the twin sister of faith. God's workers must live in perfect submission to the will of God. There is danger of working at cross-purposes with God, for man wants to work his way which he supposes is the very best way in which to bring about the purposes of God. But we cannot succeed in having our own will and way. God must work in us, and by us, and through us. We are to be in the hands of God, as clay in the hands of the potter, for Him to fashion and mold after the divine similitude.14LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 4

Our hearts need to be wholly sanctified to God. Let us not seek to retain our own way and will. God has given us His truth, that it may sanctify, refine, and ennoble the whole man. "This is the will of God concerning you," He said, "even your sanctification." [1 Thessalonians 4:3.] "His divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue, whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.14LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 5

"And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins. Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall; for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.” [2 Peter 1:3-11.]14*LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 6*

My heart is full of hope in going forward. The ways and means are under God’s control, and His workers must move forward in faith. There is a great work to be done all through Newcastle, and no divided work must be done. Meetinghouses must be built in at least two parts of the city, and when the field is thoroughly worked, no less than three houses of worship must be erected. Maitland is twenty miles from Newcastle, and twenty-five miles from Cooranbong. This place must soon be entered. We must not wait until the means are in our hands, but believe that the Lord will supply our lack from His abundant resources. Those who are in possession of property are God’s stewards of means. The Lord has men who will be faithful to their trust. His work will go forward, and we must advance with the work, or we shall be left behind, while others will take our place, to be honored in carrying out the purposes of God unto victory.14*LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 7*

“The anointing which ye have heard of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you; but as the same anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye shall abide in him. And now, little children, abide in him; that when he shall appear, ye may have confidence, and not be ashamed before him at his coming. If ye know that he is righteous, ye know that every one that doeth righteousness is born of him.” [1 John 2:27-29.]14*LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 8*

The Lord sees all the possibilities there are in man to work out His divine end, and those who are called to be laborers with Him will receive His ideas regarding those who are His by creation and by redemption. As co-workers with Christ they will labor for the higher classes as well as for the poor, the outcast, the depraved. They will not fail nor be discouraged, for, imbued with the Spirit of Christ, they will see hope for the most hopeless. They will work according to God’s plans, realizing that man must be sought for and labored for in order to be made Christlike. God must plan with and for His workers. 14LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 9

A great work is to be done by physicians. They are to be laborers together with God. All their work must be done to the glory of God. The Lord wants honest lawyers and physicians. He says to these professional men, I have a work for you to do. You are to make me your criterion. You are not to do injustice to any man. You are called to share in the work of redemption. Every man called to the law is to become God's honest lawyer, and is to do justice and judgment, to alleviate the distress of the oppressed, to lift up the helpless. God says to them, I want justice done in this world, and you cannot be fit for the kingdom of heaven unless you obey My law in all your administration. He calls the merchant and says to him, You are My agent to carry out My will and purpose. You are trading upon my goods. I call you to clothe the naked, to feed the hungry, and be the poor man's friend. 14LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 10

God calls men to be physicians, but He does not require them to practice drug medication. He never designed that the medical profession should become what it is today. To every physician He says, "I have given you reason and knowledge and skill, to deal not only with the poor, but with the rich. Take no advantage of the poor man. Make no dishonest charges to the wealthy. You are to be a sanctified physician, and I have pledged Myself to work with you, if you will work on righteous principles." 14LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 11

The lawyer, the physician, the politician, are to be representatives of Jesus Christ. His government must be established in the earth. The law of truth and righteousness must be the foundation of every business transaction. God's work in the world must be after the divine order, that His workers may be vindicated by the law of eternal justice and equity. The work that has been directed in wrong channels through selfishness must be righted, and brought into harmony with the original design of God. Then every obstacle will be removed from between the work and the Lord. If God's work is to be perpetuated through eternal ages, it must be begun on right principles on earth. 14LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 12

The burning ambition to excel in various lines leads to the breaking of the law of God. It reveals that man does not love God with all his heart and his fellow man as himself. No man, whatever his profession, is fitted for the kingdom of Christ who charges exorbitant sums for his services. God will not admit a dishonest man into his kingdom, for that man would carry on the same practices in heaven that he has adopted in his business on earth. The real estate agent, if he would have a place in the kingdom of God, must see the necessity of working according to God's plan. But this is seldom done.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 13

To every man and woman who professes to be a child of God, an heir of God, and a joint heir with Christ to the immortal inheritance, God says, "I will render to every man as his work shall be. If you will make my law your criterion, I will fit you for every work you undertake. That law is the transcript of My character, and you are not fit for the society of the saints in light unless you walk in the light of that law. My kingdom is to be symbolized on this sin-cursed earth by every one of My subjects."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 14

God's law is love, for it proceeds from the God of love. The Bible is God's great law book, and if the multitudinous volumes of law were consumed, if every man would make the Word of God his guide, we would see a different world from that which we have today. God has a high church principle, and He has a high church training for the fitting up of a people for the higher church above. As professed Christians, you do not know what God can do for you. Take hold of the work somewhere, and God will signify to you the education you should have for the higher church in the kingdom of heaven. God calls for service in His lines. We have only one perfect photograph of God, and this is Jesus Christ. In entering into any line of service we need to ask, "Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? By taking heed thereto according to thy word. With my whole heart have I sought thee; O let me not wander from thy commandments. Thy word have I hid in my heart, that I might not sin against thee."<sup>[Psalm 119:9-11.]</sup><sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 70, 1899, par. 15

“Abide in Me.”

NP

May 11, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in TDG 140. <sup>Note</sup>One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The parable of the vine and the branches was given by Christ in explanation of genuine sanctification, and by it the mystery of the Christian life is made known. “I am the true vine,” Christ said, “and my Father is the husbandman. Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away; and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit. Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me. I am the vine, ye are the branches; he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing. If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned. If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you.” [John 15:1-7.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 1

There are many who get above the simplicity of Jesus Christ, supposing that they must do some great thing in order to work the works of God. Things of a temporal nature absorb the attention of others, and they have little time or thought for eternal realities. Wearied out with cares that draw their minds from spiritual things, they cannot find time for communion with God. Constantly they ask themselves the question, How can I find time to study and practice the Word of God? Christ is acquainted with the difficulties that try every soul, and He says, “Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me. I am the vine, ye are the branches; he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing.” [Verses 4, 5.]14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 2

Our first and highest duty is to know that we are abiding in Christ. He must do the work. We are to seek to know “What saith the Lord,” yielding our lives to His guidance. When we have the spirit of an abiding Christ, everything will take on a changed aspect. The Saviour alone can give us the rest and peace we so much need. And in every invitation He gives us to seek the Lord that He may be found of us, He is calling us to abide in Him. This is an invitation not merely to come to Him, but to remain in Him. It is the Spirit of God that moves us to come. When we have this rest and peace, our daily worries will not lead us to be coarse and rough and uncourteous. We shall no longer follow our own way and will. We will want to do the will of God, abiding in Christ as the branches in the vine.14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 3

Christ declares Himself “The Way, the Truth, and the Life.” [John 14:6.] The way to heaven is represented as a narrow path, cast up for the ransomed of the Lord to walk in. But truth illuminates this path at every step. Christ is “the true light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.” “The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father), full of grace and truth.” “And of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace.” [John 1:9, 14, 16.] Every grace we receive is given us to impart, and when we make others the recipients of the grace we have, our souls are prepared to receive new grace.14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 4

Those who are obedient to the law of God are not under its condemnation, but are free from sin. “Where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. But we all, with open face beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord.” “Thanks be unto God, which always causeth us to triumph in Christ, and maketh manifest the savor of his knowledge by us in every place. For we are unto God a sweet savor of Christ, in them that are saved and in them that perish; to the one we are a savor of death unto death: and to the other the savor of life unto life. And who is sufficient for these things?” [2 Corinthians 3:17, 18; 2:14-16.] This is the working of the Holy Spirit upon human minds. It is thought strange by some that our salvation should demand our entire submission. But the Lord could not do a more cruel thing than to save man in his rebellion. No one can be saved unless he comes under the rule of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 5

Salvation means to us complete surrender of soul, body, and spirit. Because of the unruly elements of our nature, our passions often gain the mastery. The only hope for the sinner is to cease from sin. Then his will will be in harmony with the will of Christ. His soul will be brought into fellowship with God. Those who enlist in the army of Christ must submit to His authority, and consult His will in all things. Implicit obedience is the condition of our salvation. God's will must be obeyed in every particular. It is our salvation to make His law our rule, His life our pattern, His glory our chief end. To keep ourselves in the love of God, to be bound to obedience by His requirements, is to be free in Christ Jesus. 14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 6

“He that will come after me,” Christ said, “let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it; and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it. For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?” [Matthew 16:24-26.] Those who accept Christ as their Saviour must accept Him as their King and their Ruler. It is the defects in our characters which cause us unhappiness, and our lives cannot be brought into harmony with Christ unless these defects are placed under His control. Very little submission to Christ is revealed in the lives of His professed people. He is dishonored by outbursts of passion which are unreasonable and unholy. Then follows remorse, darkness, reproach. How much we need to be holy and pure. How much we need the sense of an abiding Christ, who will speak to the soul, saying, “Peace, be still.” [Mark 4:39.] 14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 7

Christ can redeem only those who will come under His control. He speaks to every needy soul, saying, “Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke”—the yoke of submission and obedience—“upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls.” [Matthew 11:28, 29.] No coming to Christ in genuine or complete which does not bring the soul out of self, out of its Christless state, to find Christ its chief good. When we are one with Christ in everything, He enters into the life and soul, directing, pervading, and giving character to all. 14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 8

The words of Christ, "If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you," should have weight with each one of us. [John 15:7.] The privilege is granted us of eating Christ's words, taking them into the very soul. The Saviour declared, "Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed. He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him. As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father; so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me." [John 6:54-57.]14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 9

Many of Christ's disciples could not understand these words, and they murmured at them, saying, "This is an hard saying; who can hear it? When Jesus knew in himself that his disciples murmured at it, he said unto them, Does this offend you? What and if ye shall see the Son of man ascend up where he was before? It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." [Verses 60-63.]14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 10

Christ's object in presenting before His disciples the parable of the vine was to impress upon their minds the necessity of their having the moral excellence revealed in His own character. "Learn of Me," He said. [Matthew 11:29.] He desired to create in them a desire for the Holy Spirit. He reproached them for their dullness of comprehension, for many of the truths He sought to teach them were lost to them because of their lack of spiritual intuition. 14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 11

After His resurrection He said to them, "These are the things which I spake unto you while I was yet with you, that all those things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses and in the prophets concerning me. Then opened he their understanding that they might understand the Scriptures, and said unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day; and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. And ye are witness of these things.” [Luke 24:44-48.] The Bible now seemed a new book to the disciples, containing definite instruction. They saw that the events that had taken place in the suffering and death of their beloved Master were a fulfilment of prophecy. 14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 12

“Now ye are clean, through the word which I have spoken unto you,” Christ said. [John 15:3.] In receiving and obeying His word, the disciples were cleansed and purified. Praying to His Father Christ said, “I have given them thy word, and the world hath hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil. They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth.” [John 17:14-17.] 14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 13

In no other way can Christ’s followers be cleansed but through obedience to the truth. The apostle Paul said, “Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy, and without blemish.” [Ephesians 5:25-27.] 14LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 14

“Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently: being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever. For all flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, the flower thereof falleth away; but the word of the Lord endureth forever. And this is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you.” “Wherefore laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings, as newborn babes desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby: if so be ye have tasted that the Lord is gracious.” [1 Peter 1:22-25; 2:1-3.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 15

In this lesson Christ sought to bring before His disciples the false union with Himself in contrast with the true. Those who have not a living connection with Christ may to outward appearance be in fellowship with Him. Their house may appear to be swept and garnished. Their names may be enrolled on the church books, but they are not members of His body. They do not bear fruit to the glory of God. “By their fruits ye shall know them,” Christ said. [Matthew 7:20.] “Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire.”<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 16

“Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them. Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father that is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity.” [Verses 16-23.] We need to study the symbol closely. A profession of piety may connect men and women with the church, but if there is not a vital connection with Christ, they cannot bear good fruit; and this unfruitfulness will in time make their separation as complete as that of the dead branch, which is cast into the fire, and burned.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 17

The true union with Christ is represented by the words, “Abide in me.” [John 15:4.] Christ has provided means whereby your whole life may be an unbroken communion with Himself. He invites you, “Come unto me ... and I will give you rest.” [Matthew 11:28.] How full of compassion is the invitation. This sense of Christ’s abiding presence can only come through living faith, through connection with the vine. There must be a personal consecration to Him. Self must be hid with Christ in God, and Christ declares, “He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit.”

[John 15:5.] The grace received will be constantly imparted, as a gratitude offering to God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 18

In this union Christ identifies Himself with man before God and the heavenly universe. “As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name.” [John 1:12.] Our sins are reckoned to Jesus Christ. His righteousness is imputed to us. “He was made sin for us, who knew no sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him.” [2 Corinthians 5:21.] Because of His atoning sacrifice our prayers go up to the Father laden with the fragrance of Christ’s character, and, one with Christ, we are accepted in the Beloved.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 19

Christ’s connection with His believing people is illustrated by this parable as by no other. We should study the lesson, that we may know what the parent stock is to the branch, and in what light the Lord regards those who believe and abide in Christ. Let the youth and those of mature age contemplate the completeness it is their privilege to have in Christ. Let them ask themselves the question, Is my will submerged in Christ’s will? Is the fullness and richness of the living vine—His goodness, His mercy, His compassion and love—seen in my life and character?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 73, 1899, par. 20

Thoughts on 1 Corinthians 3

NP

May 11, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 6BC 1082, 1086.

The third chapter of First Corinthians should be read with careful and prayerful consideration by every church member. The first and second chapters of this epistle prepare the way for the third, and in this are lessons for every church in our world. The cause of their difficulties is plainly revealed. 14LtMs, Ms 74, 1899, par. 1

Paul longed to speak to the church in Corinth of spiritual things. But to his sorrow he found it in great weakness. The church members could not even bear to hear the truth concerning themselves. "I, brethren," he said, "could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk, and not with meat, for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able." The spiritual growth of this people was so dwarfed that a plain "Thus saith the Lord" was an offence to them. Paul knew that by giving them the truth he would be ranked as an accuser and faultfinder. He said, "Ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men? For while one said, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos; are ye not carnal? Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man. I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase." [1 Corinthians 3:1-6.] 14LtMs, Ms 74, 1899, par. 2

These professed converts were not converted. They carried into the church the same dispositions and character which they had before they professed to believe. They were not conformed to the Spirit of Christ. Paul declared to this people, "The preaching of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us which are saved it is the power of God. For it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and will bring to nothing the understanding of the prudent." [1

Corinthians 1:18, 19.]14LtMs, Ms 74, 1899, par. 3

In the year 1898 we find the same difficulties existing in the church which Paul found in his day, and which prevented him from presenting advanced truths to the people. The messages which the servants of God bring, condemning the selfishness, and the irreligious course of action, and exposing their defects of character, offend them, and they become enemies of their brethren and of the church. They pursue a course which not only leads to the ruin of their own souls, but which deceives others as well. These poor, dwarfed, spiritually feeble souls are under the spell of Satan.14LtMs, Ms 74, 1899, par. 4

A noble, pure, true character, with all its grand possibilities, has been provided for every soul. But man has not an earnest longing for this character. He is not willing to part with the evil that he may have the good. Great opportunities are placed within his reach. But he neglects to take hold of the blessings which would bring him into conformity with the will of God. He works at cross-purposes with God and with all who seek his good. It is the Lord's purpose that every God-given faculty shall be recognized and acknowledged by the one to whom the gift is entrusted, and put into the service of God.14LtMs, Ms 74, 1899, par. 5

There are two classes brought to view in the Word of God—the wise and the foolish. “Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine,” Christ said, “and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house, and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock. And everyone that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell, and great was the fall of it.” [Matthew 7:24-27.]14LtMs, Ms 74, 1899, par. 6

These two classes are again represented in the parable of the wise and foolish virgins—those who receive the oil of grace, and keep their lamps filled and burning, and those who feel no anxiety to be watchful of their words and careful of their behavior. Those who prayerfully study the Word of God, and with a heart of obedience choose to obey, will always have the oil of grace in their vessels with their lamps. They will hear, and be ready to respond to the midnight cry. 14LtMs, Ms 74, 1899, par. 7

God and man must co-operate in the work of character-building. "We are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building. According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise master-builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon; for other foundation can no men lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. Now if any man build upon this foundation gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble; every man's work shall be made manifest; for the day shall declare it, because it shall be revealed by fire, and the fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is." [1 Corinthians 3:9-13.] 14LtMs, Ms 74, 1899, par. 8

Comprehending the Deep Things of God

NP

May 11, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in 1888 1687-1692.

Those who have been separating from Christ by reason of false theories and maxims and customs hear the truth sent from God as a strange thing and inquire, "Doth he not speak in parables?" [Ezekiel 20:49.] They lose sight of God and His manner of working, which is often as unexpected to the agent whom He uses as to the people to whom the agent is sent. In some characters, prejudice is so strengthened by the first resistance of the truth that they take false positions, and hold to them, notwithstanding the most positive evidence from the Word to the contrary. With many there is an apparent desire to be much in prayer with God, and yet when the word comes from the Lord, they are startled into resistance, and they exclaim against it and the messenger as did the Jews, saying, "He is tearing away the very pillars of our faith." In their blindness they do not comprehend what constitute the pillars of <genuine> faith. 14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 1

This departure from God and His Word has for a long time been coming in; and it was God who called the attention of several of our brethren to the Scriptures, calling upon them to dig for the truth, which had been buried beneath customs and traditions, as for hidden treasure. Truths which to many minds have been a great mystery are to be unfolded. "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us." [John 1:14.] This Word is in a special sense to be proclaimed, that those who believe in Christ as a personal Saviour may have eternal life. 14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 2

When the Israelites were dying from the sting of the fiery serpents, a brazen serpent was uplifted in the midst of them, that all might look and live. But there were those who stopped to reason regarding the foolishness of looking for relief to this means, that they should be healed by looking at a piece of brass was absurd to their minds, and they said, "We will not look." This decision was fatal, and all who would not accept the provision made perished.14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 3

The brazen serpent was uplifted in the wilderness that those who looked in faith might be made whole. In like manner God sends a restoring, healing message to men, calling upon them to look away from man and earthly things, and place their trust in God. He has given His people the truth with power through the Holy Spirit. He has opened His Word to those who were searching and praying for truth. But when these messengers gave the truth they had received to the people, they were as unbelieving as the Israelites. Many are cavilling over the truth brought to them by humble messengers. They question, How can this message be truth? How is it possible that by looking to Jesus and believing in His imputed righteousness, I may gain eternal life? Those who have thus refused to see the truth do not realize that it is God with whom they are in controversy, that in refusing the message sent them, they are refusing Christ.14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 4

Nicodemus was surprised that Jesus should tell him he must be born again. "How can these things be?" he asked. "Jesus answered and said unto him, Art thou a Master in Israel, and knowest not these things?" [John 3:9, 10.] The same question may be applied to those today who while standing in positions of truth know not the truth God has sent to His people. After years of refusal, they see glimmerings of light, but they have not entirely put away their sinful unbelief, and all heaven is ashamed of them. If these souls would only make the experiment, taking their burden of sin to Jesus for His forgiveness, they would understand what it means to be justified by faith, and their testimony would be heard in the congregation, "The Saviour has cleansed us from all sin. We have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 5

Christ's lessons were not a new revelation, but old truths which He Himself had originated and given to the chosen of God, and which He came to earth to rescue from the error under which they had been buried. He Himself was the great center of light and truth, but His instruction to the Jewish people was a new revelation to them. The Jewish economy is not yet fully comprehended by men today.

Truths vast and profound are contained in Old Testament history. The gospel is its interpreter, the key which unlocks its mysteries. The plan of redemption is unfolding these truths to the understanding. For a few years in the past, and especially since the Minneapolis meeting, truths have been made known that have been of great value to the world and to the people of God. The way has been made so plain that honest hearts cannot but receive the truth. But there are still treasures to be searched for. Let the shaft which has begun to work the mine of truth sink deep, and it will yield rich and precious treasures. 14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 6

My heart aches for the heritage of the Lord. Precious souls in whom I have been interested for years are refusing the light which would place them under the guardianship of the Holy Spirit, to be moulded after the divine similitude. They have taken their stand on the wrong side of the question, and view everything in the light of their previous opinions. How sad I have been made to see them turning from light, and choosing to walk in the sparks of their own kindling. Human wisdom and knowledge has taken the place of the Holy Spirit's teaching. Men who do not walk in the light will walk in darkness and know not at what they stumble. They choose their own way, and not the way of the Lord. We would echo the words of Christ, "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me." "The words which I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life." [John 5:39; 6:63.]14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 7

God designs that the plan of redemption shall come to His people as the latter rain, for they are fast losing their connection with God. They are trusting in man, and glorifying man, and their strength is proportionate to the strength of their dependence. Some matters have been opened before me which will be fulfilled ere long. We are to know more than we do at the present time. We are to comprehend the deep things of God. There are themes to be dwelt upon which are worthy of more than a passing notice. Angels have desired to look into the truths which are revealed to the people who are searching God's Word and with contrite hearts praying for wisdom, for greater lengths and breadths and heights of that knowledge which God alone can give. 14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 8

Hundreds of commentaries have been written upon the gospel by men who are called great, and as we near the closing scenes of this earth's history still more wonderful representations will be made. We need to study the Scriptures with humble, contrite hearts. Those who will devote their powers to the study of God's Word, and especially the prophecies referring to these last days, will be rewarded by the discovery of important truths. The last book of the New Testament Scriptures is full of truths that need to be understood. Satan has blinded the eyes of men, and they have been glad of any excuse for not making a study of this Book. Here Christ has declared through His servant John what shall be in the last days. 14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 9

Every Bible student in our school should study these prophecies with diligence. As we search the Scriptures, the character of Christ will appear in its infinite perfection. He is the One in whom our hopes of eternal life are centered. He is eternal life to all who will eat His flesh and drink His blood. Those who will look to Him may be healed of the serpent's sting; for He is the Sin-bearer, the only remedy for sin. By beholding Him, we may become changed into the same image. Nothing must interpose between the soul and God. Faith, love, adoration, are to grow in the soul of the student. We are in possession of the richest treasures of truth, and if we follow on to know the Lord, we shall have a large field in which to work. 14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 10

The Word records the deeds of mercy and the wonderful restoring power of Jesus. With aching hearts we read of His sorrow because of the sins we have committed. We may learn, too, how through His suffering and sacrifice in our behalf, we may be complete in Him. Inspiration tells the story which is of more importance to us than all human learning, however broad and deep. 14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 11

"This is life eternal," Christ said, "that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." [John 17:3.] Why do we not realize the value of this knowledge? Why are not these glorious truths glowing in our hearts, trembling upon our lips, and pervading our whole being. 14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 12

In giving us His Word, God has put us in possession of every truth essential for our salvation. The storehouse of the unsearchable riches of Christ is open to heart and mind. Thousands of men and women have drawn water from the wells of salvation, yet there is no diminishing of the supply. Thousands have set the Lord before them, and by beholding been changed into the same image. Their spirit burns within them as they speak of His character, telling what Jesus is to them and what they are to Jesus. But these men have not exhausted the grand and holy themes. Thousands more may engage in the work of searching out the mysteries of salvation. 14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 13

The life of Christ and the character of His mission may be dwelt upon, and rays of light will shine forth more distinctly at every attempt to discover truth. Each fresh search will reveal something more deeply interesting than has yet been unfolded. The subject is inexhaustible. The study of the incarnation of Christ, His atoning sacrifice and mediatorial work, will employ the mind of the diligent student as long as time shall last, and looking to heaven with its unnumbered years, he will exclaim, "Great is the mystery of godliness!" [1 Timothy 3:16.] 14LtMs, Ms 75, 1899, par. 14

God's Law Immutable

NP

May 14, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in LDE 18, 217; 1BC 1102; 4BC 1147-1148; 5BC 1131.

The Jews as a people claimed to be very particular in keeping the law of God, but they completely ignored the principles underlying the law—love for God and for their fellowmen. Though blessed with every temporal and spiritual advantage, they remained in spiritual ignorance, and led the people in false paths. Teaching for doctrine the commandments of men, they made void the law of God. The messages sent them they misinterpreted to suit their own ideas. Christ declared them ignorant both of the Scriptures and the power of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 1

Because of their spiritual degeneracy, Christ uttered against the leaders of the nation scathing denunciations. “Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites,” He said, “for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men: for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in. ... Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye are like unto whited sepulchres, which indeed appear beautiful outward, but are within full of dead men’s bones, and of all uncleanness.”<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 2

“Even so ye also appear outwardly righteous, but within ye are full of hypocrisy and iniquity.” Then in words of lamentation He declared, “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, Ye shall not see me henceforth, till ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.” [Matthew 23:13, 27, 28, 37-39.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 3

The ceremonial piety of the Jews was of no value with God, and calamity was permitted to come upon the nation, because they refused the only means which would bring them light and knowledge. Christ forewarned His disciples of the destruction of Jerusalem and the signs to take place prior to the coming of the Son of man. The whole of the twenty-fourth chapter of Matthew is a prophecy concerning the events to precede this event, and the destruction of Jerusalem is used to typify the last great destruction of the world by fire. "This gospel of the kingdom," He said, "shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come. When ye therefore shall see the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel the prophet, stand in the holy place, (whoso readeth let him understand:) then let them which be in Judea flee unto the mountains. ... But pray ye that your flight be not in the winter, neither on the Sabbath day." [Verses 14-16, 20.]14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 4

Christ did not tell His disciples that after His crucifixion they were to have a new Sabbath. The Sabbath of creation was still to be observed.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 5

In His answer to the lawyer Christ revealed the spiritual condition of the Jews. "Behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life? He said unto him, What is written in the law? how readest thou? And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy strength, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. And he said unto him, Thou hast answered right; this do: and thou shalt live." [Luke 10:25-28.] While the Jews claimed to be so exact in keeping the law, they ignored its principles. The question asked by the lawyer received the answer, You must obey the law of God, which requires that you love God supremely, and your neighbor as yourself. Your only hope as a transgressor is to believe in Christ as your Redeemer.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 6

All the sacrificial offerings of the Jews pointed to the Saviour, who was to give Himself an offering for sin. The disciple John writes: "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled of the word of life; (for the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and shew unto you that eternal life, which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us:) that which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly, our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 7

“And these things write we unto you that your joy may be full. This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, that God is light, and in him is no darkness at all. If we say we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth. But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ His Son cleanseth us from all sin.” [1 John 1:1-7.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 8

A belief in Christ is the only hope of the world. Paul declares: “If thou shalt confess with the mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness; and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. For the Scripture saith, Whosoever believeth on him shall not be ashamed. ... The same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him. For whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call upon him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? ... So then faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God.” [Romans 10:9-14, 17.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 9

“He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things? Who shall lay anything to the charge of God’s elect? It is God that justifieth. Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea, rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us. Who shall separate us from the love of Christ, shall tribulation, or distress, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword? ... Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us. For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.” [Romans 8:32-35, 37-39.]14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 10

The twentieth chapter of Exodus should be studied by everyone who professes to keep the commandments of God. The proclamation of that law from Sinai will stand to witness against the world in the day of judgment; its principles will decide the destiny of every soul. In the twenty-first and twenty-second chapters also, the keeping of the law is plainly enjoined. Those who keep the law of God in truth and righteousness will obey every command. God requires that His people shall respect the laws He instituted in Eden. In the bosom of the Decalogue He has placed the fourth commandment which declares who is the living God.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 11

He who created the world in six days, and rested on the seventh, blessed and hallowed it and gave it to the world as a memorial of His creative work. The record states, “Thus the heavens and the earth were finished and all the host of them. And on the seventh day God ended the work which he had made; and he rested on the seventh day from all the work which he had made. And God blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it: because that in it he rested from all the work which God had created and made.” [Genesis 2:1-3.]14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 12

God was particular in regard to every specification He gave to Moses for the children of Israel. When He was about to build the tabernacle He commanded Moses to “speak unto the children of Israel that they bring me an offering: of every man that bringeth it willingly with his heart shall ye take my offering.” [Exodus 25:2.] In asking these offerings of His people, God was only asking a return of the gifts He had entrusted, that He might have everything necessary for His service.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 13

In Exodus twenty-five the furniture of the sanctuary was described. An ark was made to contain the law of God which had been written by His finger on two tables of stone. God commanded, "In the ark thou shalt put the testimony that I shall give thee. And there I will meet with thee, and I will commune with thee from above the mercy seat, from between the two cherubims which are upon the ark of the testimony, of all things which I shall give thee in commandment unto the children of Israel." [Verses 21, 22.] This chapter should be read and studied. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 14

By a miracle God preserved the Sabbath law through the forty years of wilderness wandering. When the children of Israel murmured against the Lord saying, "Would God we had died by the hand of the Lord in the land of Egypt, when we sat by the flesh pots, and we did eat bread to the full," "the Lord said unto Moses, Behold, I will rain bread from heaven for you: and the people shall go out and gather a certain rate every day, that I may prove them, whether they will walk in my law or no. And it shall come to pass that on the sixth day, they shall prepare that which they bring in, and it shall be twice as much as they gather daily." 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 15

"And Moses and Aaron said unto all the children of Israel, At even, then shall ye know that the Lord hath brought you up out of the land of Egypt; and in the morning, then shall ye see the glory of the Lord. ... And it came to pass, that at even, the quails came up and covered the camp: and in the morning the dew lay round about the host. And when the dew that lay was gone up, behold there lay upon the face of the wilderness a small round thing, as small as the hoar frost on the ground. And when the children of Israel saw it, they said, It is manna: for they wist not what it was. And Moses said unto them, This is the bread which the Lord hath given you to eat. ... 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 16

"And they gathered it every morning, every man according to his eating: and when the sun waxed hot, it melted. And it came to pass that on the sixth day, they gathered twice as much bread, two omers for one man: and all the rulers of the congregation came and told Moses. And he said unto them, This is that which the Lord hath said, Tomorrow is the rest of the holy Sabbath unto the Lord: bake that ye will bake today, and seethe that ye will seethe: and that which remaineth over lay up for you to be kept until the morning. And they laid it up until the morning, as Moses bade: and it did not stink, neither was there any worms therein. And Moses said: Eat that today, for today is the Sabbath unto the Lord: today ye shall not find it in the field. Six days shall ye gather it: but in the seventh day, which is the sabbath, in it there shall be none.” [Exodus 16:3-7, 13-15, 21-26.]14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 17

Satan would deceive men into the belief that Christ died that He might abolish the law of God. But Christ did not die to immortalize transgression. He died that the probation we are now having might be granted us. Every blessing that heaven could bestow was given to man in Christ. He clothed His divinity with humanity, that humanity might touch humanity, and divinity lay hold with the throne of God. He desired to demonstrate to man that humanity connected with divinity by faith in Christ, might become partaker of the divine nature. It is possible for every man to keep the law of God, for Christ in His humanity kept the law, and he says to every soul, If ye love me, keep my commandments.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 18

Christ is “the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature: for by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible, and invisible; whether they be thrones or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him and for him: and he is before all things, and by him all things consist.” [Colossians 1:15-17.] This first chapter of Colossians is a wonderful chapter to enlighten the mind as to the truth as it is in Jesus. If we will study it, we will understand how it is that Christ has made it possible for man, fallen through disobedience and transgression, to keep all the commandments of God.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 19

The death of Christ reveals that not one jot or tittle of the law of God can be altered to meet man in his fallen condition. The Saviour assures us that as long as the heavens and the earth remain, not one jot or tittle of the law shall fail. Christ’s death on the cross did not exterminate the heavens or the earth; both still remain; therefore God’s law remains unchanged. Far from lessening the claims of God’s law, Christ’s death testifies through all generations to the immutability of the law of Jehovah. Its claims are eternal.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 20

“God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him, should not perish, but have everlasting life.” [John 3:16.] What speech is to thought, so is Christ to the invisible Father. He is the manifestation of the Father, and is called the Word of God. God sent His Son into the world, His divinity clothed with humanity, that man might bear the image of the invisible God. He made known in His words, His character, His power and majesty, the nature and attributes of God. Divinity flashed through humanity in softening, subduing light. He was the embodiment of the law of God, which is the transcript of His character.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 21

The world saw God imaged in the purity and benevolence of Christ, but because of their depravity and darkness men did not recognize Him as the Son of God. “The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us and we beheld his glory, (the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth.” [John 1:14.] He was “that true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world. He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not. He came unto his own, and his own received him not.” [Verses 9-11.] In spite of overwhelming evidence, men manifested an unbelief which only Satan could inspire.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 22

It was not alone by dying on the cross that Christ accomplished His work of saving men. The ignominy and suffering and humiliation was a part of His mission. “He was wounded for our transgressions, and bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed.” [Isaiah 53:5.] This penalty Christ bore for the sins of the transgressor; He has borne the punishment for every man and for this reason He can ransom every soul, however fallen his condition, if he will accept the law of God as his standard of righteousness. He who sees the guilt of his transgression, and sees the infinite sacrifice made in his behalf will not continue in sin. He asks, “What must I do to be saved?” and is pointed to the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. [Acts 16:30; John 1:29.] He accepts the truth as it is in Jesus and commences his life of loyalty to God.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 23

It is a great and blessed truth that God is love. The superhuman efforts God has put forth for the good of humanity, in taking away their sins, reveals that His love is without a parallel. Through Christ the love of God is constantly expended for men. In the gift of His Son, He has made every provision that they may be prepared for the courts of heaven. The heavenly universe is in constant activity in behalf of the sons of men. They work that sinners may be convicted of sin. The cry of despair from souls calls forth the tenderest love of God, and this is salvation to every one that believeth. His love is freely bestowed upon all. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 24

But man is not to deceive himself with the idea that because God is a God of love, He has not a perfect standard of righteousness. The revelation of His love, in giving His Son to die the shameful death of the cross, shows that God has a standard of character. If men continue to resist light and evidence, they will exhaust God's forbearance and mercy and then will come the ministry of wrath. The love of God is immeasurable to those who repent, but His justice is firm and uncompromising to those who abuse His longsuffering love. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 25

Why was it that God destroyed the inhabitants of the old world by a flood? The record states, "God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. And it repented the Lord that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at the heart. And the Lord said, I will destroy man whom I have created from the earth, both man and beast, and the creeping thing, and the fowls of the air; for it repenteth me that I have made them." [Genesis 6:5-7.] Had they not eaten of the tree of knowledge and every kind of wickedness, God would not have destroyed them. But God "looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth. And God said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and, behold, I will destroy them with the earth." [Verses 12, 13.] 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 26

Human beings do not consider these things. Satan gives them no time, hurrying them from one temptation to another. Man may repulse the enemy on one point and think himself secure. But rest assured that the wily foe has still another scheme in readiness to present. He follows them at every step. He will use every circumstance of life to cause men to regard him with favor, for he is playing the game of life for the soul. He institutes every amusement he can devise to absorb time and keep God out of the thoughts. He is at work also in the religious world. He has had a practical experience in this line. He began this work with our first parents, using his powers to cause them to distrust God. If he could interpose himself between their souls and God, he knew he would succeed. These tempted ones knew not the subtlety of the serpent. They realized that they were listening to a false god, but the prospect of becoming gods to know good and evil was powerful, and they yielded. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 27

This temptation has come down the line to our time. The result of this knowledge of good and evil does not confine itself to one's self; it extends to and decides the cases of others. In gaining a knowledge of good and evil men, feel that a great honor is being conferred upon them; but the tempted ones do not understand the real purpose of Satan. There is a great desire on the part of men to be in authority, to control minds, to be able to judge between good and evil; and the world today supposes that it has reached this point. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 28

Men do not seem to understand that they are taken in Satan's snare when they attempt to tamper with the law of God. Satan has them in just the position he wants them when they manufacture laws to control the world and place those laws where God's laws should be. The enemy knows that if the church can be controlled by political enactments, she will lose her garments of light as did Adam and Eve. If he can lead the church to unite with the world, and accept worldly enactments, they virtually acknowledge him as their head. Then the authority of man-made commandments will work to oppose the rule of the government of heaven. Under the leadership of Satan the knowledge of good and evil will work to dispense with the righteous, holy enactments of God concerning the Sabbath, the observance of which is to be a sign between God and His people forever. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 29

Satan's plan has taken with the religious world. He has created an order of things entirely his own, making void the law of God. He sits in the temple as God. Through his deceptive workings he has gained in the professedly Christian world all that he thought to gain in heaven—an abrogation of the law of Jehovah. Through the Roman power he has worked to remove God's memorial and has erected a memorial of his own, to sever God from His people; and today the Protestant world is estranged from God by their worship of a spurious sabbath. They cannot find one iota of divine authority for doing this, yet, full of zeal, they assert that the Lord's memorial given at creation should be ignored, despised, and trampled upon, and the first day of the week take its place.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 30

We need at this time to send up the prayer to God, "Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart that I may judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad." [1 Kings 3:9.] This discernment between good and evil is righteous judgment. There is a time coming when every case will be judged. Then those who have given themselves to the Lord to do His will will know in the fullest sense what it means to judge between good and evil. "Know ye not," says the apostle, "that the saints shall judge the world?" [1 Corinthians 6:2.]14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 31

If we will study the fifty-eighth chapter of Isaiah we will understand the work to be done by the people of God. God declares, "They that be of thee shall build the old waste places; thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in." [Verse 12.] What is this breach? It is the broken Sabbath of the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 32

"If thou turn away thy foot from the sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day, and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words: then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride on the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." [Verses 13, 14.]14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 33

“Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men. And being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.” [Philippians 2:5-8.] There must be no assumption of power on the part of God’s chosen people. Those who take their orders from Christ must not snatch at power and seek to compel everyone else to observe the law of Jehovah. This is not to be. Even Christ, as the Prince of life, could not seize the scepter of power and carry out His laws of righteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 34

Man must wait patiently until the time when the work shall be accomplished, and every human being has had an opportunity to decide upon the light given. Decisions will be made for and against God. The Sabbath of the fourth commandment will be the test. Every man will decide his own case by his decision in regard to the law of Jehovah. Then the world will be ripened for the harvest. Both classes will be developed, the sentiment of every heart will be revealed. Each party will gather under the chosen leader, as loyal to God and His commandments, or as transgressors of the law, with the first great rebel at their head. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 35

All must wait for the appointed time, until the warning shall have gone to all parts of the world, until sufficient light and evidence has been given to every soul. Some will have less light than others, but each one will be judged according to the light received. Not until the fullness of the time shall come will the crucified and risen Saviour assume His equality with God. Patiently has He waited in the heavenly courts in behalf of His people who have suffered for their loyalty to Him. Patiently has He waited for the gospel of the kingdom to be preached in all parts of the world, until all nations, kindreds, tongues, and peoples have received the light of God’s Word. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 36

Christ secured probation for man at an infinite cost. He must suffer for the life of the world, that God’s purpose in creating man might not be defeated. He must destroy the apostate, for His death meant life to all who believe and death to all who will not be obedient.

Nothing less than His own life would atone for man's life. He must restore men by placing them on vantage ground, everyone who would believe in Him as a personal Saviour.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 37

God's thoughts are not man's thoughts, neither are man's ways God's ways. When there was no eye to pity, His arm brought salvation. God laid help on One that was mighty, saying, Save them from destruction. The Son of God accepted the work joyfully. He became man's substitute and surety, not to save him in his sin, but from his sin, to call him away from continual transgression to obedience. He pledged himself to take man's nature, and stand at the head of the human race. He took upon His divine soul all the depths of sin, and satisfied every claim made against the human race as a people bound in the slavery of sin. Through this gift of God to the world man has been given every opportunity of knowing God and the laws of His government.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 38

Christ was the image of the invisible God. The divine signature was upon His words and works. He declared, I can do nothing of mine own self, but what I see the Father do, that I do. Christ represented the power and glory of the Father. All that humanity could bear of the glory of God was revealed in Christ. Had He come to them in all His glory, the human race would have been consumed. The truth could only come to man through the humanity of Jesus Christ. In Him the Father was imaged. He was truth and light and life.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 39

It is because the gospel is a communication from heaven that it gains a hold upon human hearts. "This is life eternal," Christ said "that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." [John 17:3.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 40

"What more could I do to my vineyard, that I have not done?" Christ asks. [Isaiah 5:4.] No deeper wound could be inflicted upon God than to ignore His holy day, and place in its stead a spurious sabbath that bears no mark of sanctity. God gave His Sabbath to the world to remind men that in six days He made the world, and that the seventh He set apart for His name's glory. He says, "It is a sign between me and you throughout your generations, that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. ... The children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath throughout their generations for a perpetual covenant." [Exodus 31:13, 16.] 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 41

God means just what He has said. The day He has sanctified and blessed is to be a sign between Him and His people. Let all ask themselves if they have made of no account God's sign. Those who discard a plain "Thus saith the Lord" will cast off their allegiance to God and exalt in His stead human power. The Christian world is reposing her faith in this deception. She is revealing the same spirit that was manifested at the trial of Christ. Professing Christians are bringing in a false, deadly, murderous administration. By thus placing themselves in opposition to the law of the God of heaven, they fail to receive the mark or sign by which the people of the world are to know God's true followers. There is no justification for those who, having the light, close their eyes to a plain "Thus saith the Lord." They have taken up the weapons of their warfare against God, and their guilt is made manifest. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 42

The sign of God is sanctification through obedience to the truth. Sanctification makes the loyal subject like his great head, Jesus Christ. He is brought into peculiar and eternal relation to Christ on condition that he maintains his allegiance and stands fast to the end. It is by sanctification through the truth that humanity may reveal the attributes of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 77, 1899, par. 43

“He Casteth Out Devils.”

“And he was casting out a devil, and it was dumb. And it came to pass, when the devil was gone out of him, the dumb spake, and the people wondered, but some of them said, He casteth out devils through Beelzebub, the chief of the devils.” [Luke 11:14, 15.] This charge against Christ was blasphemy. Had the Jews not been convicted, their sin would not have been so great. But they had seen the great power of God. They had felt the converting power of the Holy Spirit, and had braced themselves to resistance. They had been given sufficient evidence to convince them that Jesus was the Son of God, but they charged Him with working through satanic agencies. 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 1

Jesus, “knowing their thoughts, said unto them, Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and a house divided against itself falleth. If Satan also be divided against himself, how shall his kingdom stand? because ye say that I cast out devils through Beelzebub. And if I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom do your sons cast them out? Therefore shall they be your judges. But if I with the finger of God cast out devils, no doubt the [kingdom] of God is come upon you.” [Verses 17-20.] 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 2

By a parable Christ made known to His hearers the subtlety and deceptive working of Satan, who holds the bodies and minds of men by his power. “When a strong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are at peace; but when a stronger than he shall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armor wherein he trusted, and divideth his spoil.” [Verses 21, 22.] How true is this parable, showing what man is under the guardianship of Satan. 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 3

Those who know not God and Jesus Christ whom He has sent are under the rule of the enemy, in bondage to his will. He rules the mind and the affections by his satanic spirit. But Satan was made to understand the meaning of the words spoken in Eden, “I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed; it shall bruise thy head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.” [Genesis 3:15.] The seed of the woman that he would have crushed out of existence, God said should bruise his head. Christ came into the world to dispute the claims of Satan. A stronger than the strong man armed was on the field of battle. He alone could dispossess him of his weapons and limit his power. 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 4

“When the unclean spirit is gone out of a man,” Christ continued, “he walketh through dry places, seeking rest, and finding none, he said, I will return unto my house whence I came out. And when he cometh, he findeth it swept and garnished. Then goeth he, and taketh to him seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in, and dwell there; and the last state of that man is worse than the first.” [Luke 11:24-26.] Christ shows that there can be no such thing as neutrality in His service. The soul must not be satisfied with anything short of entire consecration—consecration of thought, voice, spirit, and every organ of mind and body. It is not enough that the vessel be emptied; it must be filled with the grace of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 5

Every person enlightened by the truth must represent Christ. He is to be formed within, the hope of glory. Man cannot accept the righteousness of Christ to be a living, abiding principle in the soul unless it transforms the entire character. He must eat the flesh and drink the blood of the Son of God, which is eternal life to all who receive it. Those who are convinced that Jesus is the Christ, and are converted to God, must understand that they are to use all their powers in co-operating with their Redeemer. They are to wear His yoke. The man in whose heart Christ is abiding by faith must understand that he is privileged in being in such blessed companionship. 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 6

Those who wear Christ's yoke of restraint and obedience to the commandments of God will gather with Christ. They will work in Christ's lines. Like the Samaritan woman, as soon as they are convinced that they have found the Messiah, they will work for Him and magnify His name. They will be branches of the living Vine. "Abide in me, and I in you," Christ said. "As the branch cannot bear fruit of itself, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me. I am the vine, ye are the branches: he that abideth in me, and I in him, the same bringeth forth much fruit; for without me ye can do nothing. If a man abide not in me, he is cast forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and cast them into the fire, and they are burned." [John 15:4-6.]14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 7

"He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth." [Luke 11:23.] He who is with Christ, maintaining His unity, enthroning Him in the heart, and obeying His orders, is safe from the snares of the wicked one. He who unites himself with Christ will gather to himself the graces of Christ, and will give strength and efficiency and power to the Lord by winning souls to Christ. When Christ takes possession of the citadel of the soul, the human agent becomes one with Him. By co-operation with the Saviour, He becomes the instrument through which God works. Then when Satan comes and strives to take possession of the soul, he finds that Christ has made him stronger than the strong man armed.14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 8

The garnished house represents the self-righteous soul. Satan is driven out by Christ. But he returned, in the hope of finding entrance. He finds the house empty, swept, and garnished. Only self-righteousness is abiding there. "Then goeth he, and taketh to him seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in, and dwell there: and the last state of that man is worse than the first." [Verse 26.]14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 9

Self-righteousness is a curse, a human embellishment, which Satan uses for his glory. Those who garnish the soul with self-praise and flattery prepare the way for the seven other spirits more wicked than the first. In their very reception of the truth these souls deceive themselves. They are building upon a foundation of self-righteousness. The prayers of congregations may be offered to God with a round of ceremonies, but if they are offered in self-righteousness, God is not honored by them. 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 10

The Lord declares, "I will declare thy righteousness, and thy works; for they shall not profit thee." [Isaiah 57:12.] In spite of all their display, their garnished habitation, Satan comes in with a troop of evil angels and takes his place in the soul, to help in the deception. The apostle writes, "If after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein, and overcome, the latter end with them is worse than the beginning. For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after they had known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them." [2 Peter 2:20, 21.] 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 11

Those who have not sanctified themselves to the Lord are of the class who profess righteousness but do not maintain good works. These are brought to view in the first chapter of Second Peter. There are many like the scribes and Pharisees who, lacking these things, are "blind, and cannot see afar off," who have forgotten that they were purged from their old sins. [Verse 9.] Because they do not gather with Christ they lose their impressions for good. As unfaithful stewards they do not guard their own house. If those who have been under the special conviction of the Spirit of God, who have known the truth, and understand the reasons of our faith, would be blessed by the means provided at infinite cost, they will not cease their fervent prayers until the Sun of Righteousness abides in their hearts by faith. 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 12

The apostle Peter encourages all who are abiding in Christ and seeking a knowledge of His ways. Those "that have obtained like precious faith with us through the righteousness of God," he calls to an increased growth in the knowledge of God. "Grace and peace be multiplied unto you," he says, "through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 13

“And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. ... Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall; for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.” [Verses 1-8, 10, 11.]14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 14

If the professed followers of Christ possessed living faith in a personal Saviour, if they would look to Him as their entire dependence, the One in whom their hopes of eternal life are centered, they would be pure, holy, and undefiled. They would walk with God. “We have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in every time of need.” [Hebrews 4:15, 16.]14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 15

Two classes are set before us in the Word of God, those who “follow their pernicious ways, by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of,” and those who with Paul can say, “We are not as many, which corrupt the word of God, but as of sincerity, but as of God, in the sight of God speak we in Christ.” [2 Peter 2:2; 2 Corinthians 2:17.] We are to decide between the false and the true. 14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 16

May the Lord help His people to have clear discernment, to live and speak and act as children of the light, trying in everything to please Him who gave His life that we might become His representatives in the world. “We are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men.” [1 Corinthians 4:9.] “By one offering he hath perfected forever them that are sanctified, whereof the Holy Ghost also is a witness unto us.” [Hebrews 10:14, 15.] Are these people wearing the yoke of bondage? They know no other yoke than that of Christ, who in His human life declared, “I have kept my Father’s commandments.” [John 15:10.]14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 17

He says of His people, “Their sins and iniquities will I remember no more.” “Having an high priest over the house of God, let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water. Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised;) and let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching.” [Hebrews 10:17, 21-25.]14LtMs, Ms 78, 1899, par. 18

“How Much Owest Thou Unto My Lord?”

Cooranbong, Australia

May 1, 1899

Previously unpublished. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

I address all who suppose that they have not been treated as they should in regard to book making. It is the will of God that we consider these things and say to the Lord, “Forgive my great indebtedness, and cancel this debt. For my part I will forgive wherein I have not received what I suppose was my right. I have robbed God in not making a full consecration of myself to Him—body, soul, and spirit.” 14LtMs, Ms 79, 1899, par. 1

The lawyer asked Christ, “What shall I do to inherit eternal life?” And the Saviour answered, “What is written in the law? how readest thou? And He answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy strength and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. And he said unto him, Thou hast answered right. This do, and thou shalt live.” [Luke 10:25-28.] Every soul has robbed God in not improving the advantages God has given him at such infinite cost. Because of a refusal to do the will of God, great mistakes have come into the churches everywhere, and now, when the question arises in regard to royalty, and every man and woman is left to set their own value upon their productions, the sin of selfishness will be revealed, and this, unrestrained, will bring in a worse condition of things than has yet existed. 14LtMs, Ms 79, 1899, par. 2

A voice is heard, asking, “How much owest thou unto my Lord?” [Luke 16:5.] When you can settle this account, then you can safely require the last farthing that you think is due you from your fellow men. The subject takes on too fearful a significance for me to enter into it. I dare not be exacting, nor should any other man or woman.

The different phases of character make this matter altogether an uncertainty. I would not under any consideration demand any part of the losses I have sustained. I would blot out the account.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 79, 1899, par. 3

And I would say to all who are interested in this matter, whether you have met with loss or not, say from the heart, "Lord, the debt I owe Thee is very large. I have not loved Thee with the whole heart. I have loved self and have served my own selfish purposes. I have robbed Thee, in that I have not served Thee with heart and mind and soul and strength, and have withheld help from my neighbor, who needed the benefit of every jot of ability I have received from the Lord, that the divine image might be restored in him. My unconsecrated life has led to unconsecration in my fellow men. Had I earnestly sought for that perfection of character which the Word shows me I must have in order to see God's face, how many souls I might have brought as sheaves to the Master. But I have served self far more than I have served the Lord. I have failed when if I had surrendered my way and will to God, I might have had complete success."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 79, 1899, par. 4

"I had every assurance that God could give me that He would use me in a good work. But my life has been lived apart from Christ, and as a result God has been robbed of the talents entrusted to me. The unseen but all-seeing God has taken the measure and weight of my influence, and He has declared me to be weighed in the balance, and found wanting. The record stands engraven with an accurate pen on tablets that are imperishable. My destitution of the grace of Christ has kept me in a shiftless state of mind, and my opportunities for doing a good work have been lost because of my unfaithfulness. There is no thing hidden that shall not be revealed. All things that I have ever done are open to the eyes of Him with whom I have to do. I understand now what it means to be a Christian. No, Lord, I will not claim a farthing. Only Christ can know the weight of my own unfulfilled obligations."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 79, 1899, par. 5

Seventh-day Adventists need a new conversion. God gives us the promise of justification, sanctification, and redemption. "This is the covenant which I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord. I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them; and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more.” [Hebrews 10:16, 17.] Let us awake and realize our individual responsibility. Let us take ourselves in hand. God will do His part in co-operation with the human agent if man will be converted and emptied of self. Christ will take possession, and make of him a vessel unto honor to work the works of God.14LtMs, Ms 79, 1899, par. 6

I have been instructed by the Lord to send in no claims to the conference or to the publishing house. But He has commanded me to say to all our brethren, Turn over a new page in the book, and let us all begin anew to make a record of sanctification. The Lord is waiting to pardon all our transgressions. Then let us humble ourselves before Him, and realize how much we owe to our Lord. This is a problem that human minds cannot handle, for our sins have been many.14LtMs, Ms 79, 1899, par. 7

It is time now to make a new departure from the old life of sin, that our record in the books laid up in the great library above may be read by the heavenly host with joy and thanksgiving, because the character of Christ is revealed in humanity, and we bear testimony that “whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight. And this is his commandment, That we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another as he gave us commandments. And he that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him. And hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he has given us.” [1 John 3:22-24.]14LtMs, Ms 79, 1899, par. 8

The Selection of Articles for Our Papers

NP

May 16, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in CW 17-19; PH070.
+NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Our power and efficiency as Seventh-day Adventists is largely dependent on the literature which comes from our presses. An indiscriminate class of articles should not be published in our periodicals. Cheap, worthless stories should find no place in them. There are articles of romance and fiction which contain no seeds that will bear good fruit. I would say to our editors, Be careful in the selection of the matter which is to go to the world. Show the greatest caution and discernment. Be careful that the Review and Herald, and The Signs of the Times are kept free from worthless matter. Precious matter from what has already been printed can be found for our papers. 14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 1

I hope that God will sanctify the perceptive faculties of our editors. I read an article in the Signs of a few weeks back which would have done very well for a comic almanac, but for such a paper as the Signs, it was only as hay, wood, and stubble. My heart ached as I read it. If there was any germ of truth in the seed sown, I could not find it. I do not think the article could in any way benefit those who read it. 14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 2

The tastes of some who write for our papers need to be educated and refined. The editors of The Review and Herald and The Signs of the Times should refuse to fill the columns of these papers with articles manufactured by minds which reveal themselves in their productions. Articles in any way coarse should be refused as matter unworthy of notice—the production of those who know nothing of pure, elevated, and sanctified communion with God. Let no rough, uncouth presentation find place in our papers. The articles which go to thousands of readers should show purity, elevation, and sanctification of soul, body, and spirit on the part of the writer. The pen should be used as a means of sowing seed unto eternal life. This is a "Thus saith the Lord."14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 3

The articles published in our papers should contain pure provender, thoroughly winnowed from chaff. We are living in a most solemn time. Let our editors call for articles giving living experiences. Let the ministers regard it as a part of their duty to send short articles of experience to our papers. It will be food for those who are laboring in isolated places, in foreign countries and the islands of the sea, to hear in this way from the friends with whom they have been associated. These experiences may be to the readers as a love-feast, because the writers have been eating the bread which came down from heaven.14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 4

We do not need romance, for in the daily life we meet with real experiences, which if told in short articles, and in simple words, would be helpful to many. Let our workers try this. We want truth, solid truth, from solid, consecrated men, women, and youth. You who love God, whose minds are stored with precious bits of experience, and with the living realities of eternal life, kindle the flame of love and light in the hearts of God's people. Help them to deal with the problems of life.14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 5

Speech and pen are to be under the control of the Holy Spirit. If this is not the case with the writers for our periodicals, they might better lay aside the pen, and take up work of another order. God calls us into the Mount to talk with Him, and when by faith we behold Him who is invisible, our words will not be cheap and common. The space in our papers is too precious to be filled up with articles that are not the best. Crowd in subjects weighty with eternal interests. Put not the crib too high for the minds of the common people. Let the articles be written with Christlike simplicity, and let them be free from all chaff and stubble, for this will be consumed as worthless. God calls for consecrated pens. The articles published in our papers should be full of practical, elevating, ennobling thoughts, which will help and teach and strengthen the mind that reads them. God help our editors to choose wisely.14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 6

Words of Counsel in Regard to the Publication and Sale of Books 14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 7

Letters have come to me with inquiries regarding the publication of books, asking whether there was not danger of placing before the people many things which do not relate to the truths so important to us as a people. I have been instructed that the common stories put into book form are not essential to our well-being. The world is flooded with this class of literature, and the fact that such books find a ready sale is by no means evidence that they are the books which should be circulated. The passion for stories is bringing into existence many thousands of worthless books, which are as hay, wood, and stubble. These books are written by those whose minds have been educated to run in a channel of romance. Everything that the imaginative mind can think of is woven into the book, and presented to the world as mental food. But very often it has no food value. "What is the chaff to the wheat?" [Jeremiah 23:28.] We do not need novels, for we are dealing with the stern realities of life. 14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 8

Cheap, worthless romances are not to be advertised or sold by our publishing houses. Many of the books now offered for sale are not after God's order. There might have been a time when the sale of these books would have been more seemly, but we are now altogether too near the close of this earth's history to keep before the attention of the people a class of books which do not contain the message which our people need. Draw their attention to books treating on practical faith and godliness. Cleanse and sanctify the camp. There is an abundance of books which will give light to the world. 14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 9

I cannot understand why our papers should contain so many notices of books unessential for this time. Plenty of such books can be obtained in all bookstores. Why not draw the minds of the people to subjects relating to the words of eternal life? Why not make an effort to obtain communications simple, real, and true, from our workers in all parts of the world? God calls for this class of reading. We have no time to devote to commonplace things, no time to waste on books which only amuse. 14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 10

The matter published in our papers should be such as will help those who read it. The space in these papers should be devoted to the publication of living, earnest matter, which concerns the salvation of the soul. Will our brethren consider this matter, and keep hay, wood, and stubble out of our papers? 14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 11

The work of ministers and writers is to prepare a people to meet God. The standard of truth has been lowered in the dust. Family religion, family holiness, is now to be honored as never before. As a sanctifier, reprover, and comforter, the Holy Spirit is to do the work essential for this time. If ever a people needed to walk before God as did Enoch, Seventh-day Adventists need to now, showing their sincerity by pure words, clean words, words full of sympathy, tenderness, and love. But it is not to end here. 14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 12

There are times when words of reproof and sharp rebuke are called for. Those who are out of the right way need more than soft words to bring them back. Moral renovation must take place in every heart, else souls will perish in their sins. If we brought the instruction contained in the twelfth chapter of Romans into the practical life, we would be true believers. Those whose faith is spurious will show by their daily exhibition of character that they are not true Christians. Those who have put on Christ are transformed by the renewing of their minds. By their own experience they prove what is the good and acceptable and perfect will of God. 14LtMs, Ms 80, 1899, par. 13

The Parable of the Talents

NP

May 21, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in WM 245.

The Parable of the Talents<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 1

The master leaves all his possessions in the hands of his servants. "Who then is that faithful and wise steward, whom his lord shall make ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season?" [Luke 12:42.] The apostle Paul writes: "Let a man so account of us, as of the ministers of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God. Moreover it is required in stewards, that a man be found faithful." [1 Corinthians 4:1, 2.] There are great responsibilities resting upon the human agent to whom have been entrusted the Master's goods.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 2

It is not alone to the minister that the talents are given. They are lent to every man as verily as they were lent to the exalted angel in the courts of heaven. Paul speaks to all when he says, "Ye are laborers together with God, ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] Christ taught this trust by a parable:<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 3

"For the kingdom of heaven is as a man travelling into a far country, who called his own servants, and delivered unto them his goods. And unto one he gave five talents, to another one, and to another one; to every man according to his several ability: and straightway took his journey. Then he that had received the five talents went and traded with the same, and made them other five talents. And likewise also he that had received two, he also gained other two. But he that had received the one went and digged in the earth, and hid his lord's money."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 4

"After a long time, the lord of those servants cometh, and reckoneth with them. And so he that had received five talents came and brought other five talents, saying, Lord, thou deliveredst unto me five talents: behold, I have gained beside them five talents more. His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things: enter thou into the joy of thy lord. He also that had received two talents came and said, Lord thou deliveredst unto me two talents, behold, I have gained other two talents beside them. His lord said unto him, Well done, thou good and faithful servant, thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of thy lord. Then he which had received the one talent came and said, Lord, I knew that thou wast an hard man reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed: and I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth: lo, there thou hast that is thine.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 5

“His lord answered and said unto him, Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reaped where I sowed not, and gathered where I had not strawed: thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury. Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents. For unto every one that hath shall be given, and from him which hath not shall be taken away, even which he hath. And cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.”
[Matthew 25:14-30.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 6

When the master comes in to receive his goods, he sees the servant to whom he has entrusted five talents. This servant has proved faithful, for he has gained five talents more. He has worked on the plan of addition, as represented by the apostle Peter. The servant with the two talents has gained beside them two talents more. Both have worked on the plan of addition, adding grace to grace, and each receives his reward. Now the man to whom has been given the one talent is called to account for his stewardship. But he can only look with confusion upon the face of his lord, for he has followed the suggestions of the enemy and done his bidding. If he had been convinced that he could not use that one talent for his lord, he should have passed it on for some faithful man to use; but instead of this, he has hidden it in the earth. And now he comes to his lord with a falsehood upon his lips. "I knew thee that thou wast an hard man," he says, "reaping where thou hast not sown, and gathering where thou hast not strawed: and I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth." [Verses 24, 25.] 14LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 7

This parable was given by Christ to impress upon the human mind the relation man sustains toward God. He would have man render to Him His own. He who has [been] blessed with reasoning powers may reach a high standard, meeting with success in everything he undertakes. The Saviour charges, "Enter ye in at the strait gate: for wide is the gate and broad is the way which leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat. For strait is the gate and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be which find it." "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." [Matthew 7:13, 14; 6:33.] This is to be our first consideration. Then make not second in interest that which should come first. 14LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 8

No man whose heart is converted could utter such a speech as did the unprofitable servant, for no man can return anything to the Lord which is not his own. But how many there are who do not render to God His due. They make the world no better for the talents the Lord has lent them, but heap together treasures for the last days. They do not heed the cry of the orphan, the widow, and the unfortunate, as they struggle from day to day for a mere existence. Of such men, who love money for its own sake, and that they may be called rich, God says, "Naked came they into the world, and naked shall they go out." [See Job 1:21.] 14LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 9

To every man God has appointed his work, and the talents are given in proportion to the capabilities of the receiver. To all God has given talents to use and improve, and every soul, in taking his position as a member of Christ's body pledges himself to act faithfully his part as a steward of God. He is to work with the same prudence and wisdom in the behalf of his Master that he would use if he were himself to be enriched by all that is gained. But who of those whose names are registered on the church books are identifying themselves with Christ and following the instruction He gave when He was on earth as the great Teacher? God confers upon us a special honor when he commits to us the treasure of His Word, and He designs that this shall be understood, appropriated, and in every circumstance of life employed to the glory of God. To some He entrusts five talents, to others two, and to others only one, but He gives to every man according to his ability to use them.14LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 10

There are many who, while honestly thinking that they are doing God service, are working at cross-purposes with Him. They are not doers of His Word. Christ declares: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity."14LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 11

"Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a man, which built his house upon a rock: and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon a rock. And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand: and the rain descended, and the flood came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house: and it fell, and great was the fall of it." [Matthew 7:21-27.]14LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 12

God has given evidence that He has a special interest in this world of human beings. He "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.] Christ has given His life for men that they may have another opportunity. We would come close to every soul, and inquire, What are you doing with your Lord's entrusted capital. Every man is to understand that his God-given advantages are to be carefully cherished, that he may do the best work in the Lord's service. It is required of a steward that he be found faithful.14LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 13

Christ illustrated the spiritual blessings of the gospel by a temporal feast, the invitation to the supper. He set forth the wonderful condescension of God in the earnest invitation of the master of the feast to all who would come. The special call of the gospel to be given near the close of earth's history is also presented. The invitation was to go first to the highways, bidding all Come to the marriage supper of the Lamb. That message to the people so highly favored was rejected. The next call was made to the poorer class—the poor, the halt, the maimed, the blind. These were not exalted by ambitious projects; if they would accept the invitation, they might come. This message was given, and the servants brought the report, Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded, and yet there is room. Then the master said to his workers, Go and seek in the byways, for the most degraded and the helpless, and compel them to come in that my house may be filled.14LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 14

The talents of women can be used to the glory of God; women will take their place in the work at this crisis, and the Lord will work through them. They have just the thoughtful perception and self-possession required for the time. They are imbued with a sense of their duty, and under the influence of the Spirit of God, they will stand in their lot and place. And the Saviour will reflect upon these self-sacrificing women the light of His countenance, and this will give them a power which will exceed that of men.14LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 15

We recognize this work being accomplished in the medical missionary work. The net is being cast into the sea, and is gathering of all kinds both good and bad. This work among the lower classes is in God's order. A large part of the Lord's vineyard is yet unfenced, an open common, and He is calling men and women to act their part as coworkers with Christ. Those who have been rescued and brought to the feet of Jesus know how to labor for souls that are perishing. All the energies of their being are called forth to be ministers of mercy.14LtMs, Ms 81, 1899, par. 16

In the Master's Service

NP

May 21, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 4BC 1172; RH 04/17/1900. †Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“This is life eternal,” Christ prayed, “that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent.” [John 17:3.] There is a greatness in this prayer which no human language can express. Thousands upon thousands long for the knowledge of God. Some have a partial knowledge of Him, but not the fullness of knowledge. Others, filled with unrest, long for something which they have not. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 1

Christ longed to help and save the perishing, and He expressed His longing in the words, “Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? Behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the hills; for they are white already to harvest. And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal, that both he that soweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together. And herein is that saying true, One soweth and another reapeth. I sent you to reap that whereon ye bestowed no labor; other men labored and ye have entered into their labors.” [John 4:35-38.] 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 2

To each one is committed his work. Each one is invited to take Christ's yoke and learn of Him. Thus we may find rest to our souls. The labor for which Christ said there was so much need was harvesting. Harvesters are few. The work of gathering in the grain takes tact and skill, that none be lost. Winnowers of souls are needed in every place where the standard of truth has been uplifted, on which is inscribed, The commandments of God and the faith of Jesus. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 3

“The harvest truly is great, but the laborers are few.” [Luke 10:2.] When Christ made this statement there were scribes and Pharisees, priests and rulers, in every city and town in the land. The Saviour saw that these religious teachers were wholly unfitted to minister to the spiritual needs of the people. “Ye know not the Scriptures, nor the power of God,” He said to them. “Ye do teach for doctrine the commandments of men.” [Matthew 22:29; 15:9.]14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 4

Intensity of soul is needed in the work of seeking to save those who are perishing out of Christ. Those who are laborers together with God will be contrite because they are compassionate. Satan is intense in his efforts to deceive souls and gather them under his banner of apostasy and rebellion, and his laborers are without number. The Lord has a great work to do. He has decisive battles to fight, and He calls upon young men and young women to fight for Him. He calls upon old men to act as counsellors who can teach the young men what to do in cases of emergency. Aged workers are to bear, as did John a living testimony of real experience. And when these faithful workers are laid to rest with the words, “Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord” [Revelation 14:13], there should be found in our schools men and women who can take the standard and raise it in new places.14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 5

The experienced workers, who have in the past anticipated the wants of the cause, do a noble work when in the place of carrying all the burdens themselves, they lay them upon the shoulders of younger men and women, and educate them as Elijah educated Elisha. David offered to God a tribute of gratitude because of the divine teaching and guidance he had received. “O God, thou hast taught me from my youth,” he declared. [Psalm 71:17.] Those who in the message have borne the burden and heat of the day are to remember that the same Lord who taught them in their youth, inviting them, “Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me” [Matthew 11:29], and giving them the light of truth, is just as willing to teach young men and young women today as He was to teach them.14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 6

It is wisdom for the men who have borne heavy loads to come apart and rest awhile. These faithful workers should be appreciated as educators. They should be relieved of every taxing load. The Lord Himself will co-operate with them in their efforts to educate. They should leave the wrestling to those who are younger; the future work must be done by strong young men and women. The work is under the control of the Author and Finisher of our faith. He can and will give fitness to men of opportunity. He will raise up those who can fight His battles. He never leaves His work to chance. His work is a great and solemn work, and it is to go forward. While the aged standard-bearers are in the field, let those who have been benefited by their labors care for and respect them. Do not load them down with burdens. Appreciate their advice, their words of counsel. Respect them as fathers and mothers who have borne the burden of the work. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 7

God calls upon young men to consecrate themselves to His work. “I have written to you, young men,” John says, “because ye are strong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome the wicked one. ... Ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things. I have not written unto you because ye know not the truth, but because ye know it, and that no lie is of the truth.” [1 John 2:14, 20, 21.] 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 8

And the apostle Paul wrote to his brethren, “Finally, my brethren, be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breast plate of righteousness, and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of truth. Above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God.” [Ephesians 6:10-17.] 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 9

It is not God’s will that the fathers in His cause should use up their remaining vitality in bearing heavy loads. Let the young men shoulder every responsibility that they can, and fight manfully the good fight of faith. The Lord knows better whom to select to do His work than do the wisest men, however interested they may be in His work. It is God who implants His Spirit in the hearts of young men, leading them to fight for Him against great odds. Thus He inspired Paul of Tarsus. He fought with all his entrusted capabilities for heaven's revealed truth, against apostates who ought to have upheld him. God's servants today will have the same difficulties to meet that Paul met. This experience some have had who are now raising the truth. These are the men who can stand in defense of the truth. If they continue to be learners God can use them to vindicate His law. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 10

Let not the aged workers think that they must carry all the responsibilities, all the loads. New fields of labor are constantly opening before us. Let the young men unite with experienced laborers who understand the Scriptures, who have long been doers of the Word, who have brought the truth into the practical life, relying upon Christ day by day, who seek the Lord as Daniel did. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 11

Three times a day Daniel offered his petitions to God. He knew that in One mighty in counsel was the source of wisdom and power. The truth as it is in Jesus—the sword of the Spirit, which cuts both ways—was his weapon of warfare. In word, in spirit, in principle, the men who have made God their trust are an example to the youth connected with them. These faithful servants of God are to link up with young men. They draw them to them with the cords of love, because they themselves are drawn to them by the cords of love. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 12

“For a Perpetual Covenant”

A powerful foe, who puts on a very inviting appearance, is ever soliciting the youth for their companionship. Glowing advantages are presented to them, which they are told will be theirs if they will follow his advice. Thus thousands upon thousands are drawn into the broad road which leads to destruction. As he tempted Eve, so the enemy tempts the youth by promising that in disobedience and transgression they will find liberty and freedom that will make them as gods. He who has endeavored to change God's law by instituting a spurious sabbath uses every device to induce men and women to unite with him in his apostasy, and under his leadership the Christian world has chosen another mark than that of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 13

I will copy a few lines from an item I have read, called "The Changed Signpost":<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 14

"Some years ago, when [the world was] more boisterous than it is at present, (a questionable assertion), it was thought a good joke to turn round a signpost erected at a junction where two roads met. Of course the perplexity and misery which this often caused was great. Once a signpost was erected by God for those who journeyed through this world. The road to happiness was as clearly defined as was the road to the city of refuge under the Jewish dispensation. One finger of the signpost pointed out loving obedience to the Creator as the road to felicity, while its other arm indicated disobedience, or sin, as the path to misery. In an evil hour for our race, the great enemy turned the signpost round, so that ever since, multitudes have mistaken the true road to happiness."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 15

No one who has the Word of God need make a mistake in regard to the true Sabbath. "The Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my Sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations: that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. Ye shall keep the Sabbath therefore, for it is holy unto you: every one that defileth it shall surely be put to death; for whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 16

"Six days may work be done; but in the seventh is the Sabbath of rest, holy to the Lord; whosoever doeth any work in the Sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death. Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel forever, for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested, and was refreshed. And He gave unto Moses, when He had made an end of communing with him upon Mount Sinai, two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God.” [Exodus 31:12-18.]14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 17

In these words the Lord has clearly defined the road to the city of God; but the man of sin, who is working at cross-purposes with God, has changed the signpost, setting up a false one—a spurious sabbath. Thus he leads men and women in an opposite direction to the city of refuge, and by the multitudes who follow him, it is demonstrated that Adam and Eve are not the only ones who have accepted the words of the wily foe.14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 18

The Lord has stated expressly that truth and life are to be found in the path of obedience. Obedience is the waymark all must follow. God has declared that the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord. He has exalted this day as a memorial of His work of creation, plainly stating that it is to be a sign between Him and His people throughout their generations. Twice this is repeated in the thirty-first chapter of Exodus, and the speaker is Jesus Christ.14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 19

But the great apostate says, “I will work at cross-purposes with God. I will empower my delegate, the man of sin, to take down God’s memorial, the seventh-day Sabbath. Thus I will show the world that the day sanctified and blessed by God has been changed. That day shall not live in the minds of the people. I will obliterate the memory of it. I will place in its stead a day bearing not the credentials of God, a day that cannot be a sign between God and His people. I will lead the people who accept this day to place upon it the sanctity that God placed upon the seventh day. Through my vicegerent I will exalt myself. The first day will be extolled, and the Protestant world will receive this spurious sabbath as genuine.”14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 20

“Through the non-observance of the Sabbath God instituted, I will bring His law into contempt. The words, ‘A sign between me and you throughout your generations’ [verse 13], I will make to serve on the side of my sabbath. Thus the world will become mine. I will be ruler of the earth, prince of the world. I will so control the minds under my power that God’s Sabbath will be an object of contempt.

A sign? I will make the observance of the seventh day a sign of disloyalty to the authorities of earth. Human laws will be made so stringent that men and women will not dare to observe the seventh-day Sabbath. For fear of wanting food and clothing they will join with the world in transgressing God's law; and the earth will be wholly under my dominion." 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 21

The man of sin has created a false sabbath, and the professed Christian world has adopted this child of the papacy, refusing to obey God. The enemy of all good has turned the signboard round, so that it points to the path of disobedience. He has insulted Jehovah by refusing to obey a plain "Thus saith the Lord." He has thought to change times and laws, but has he done this? The words of the thirty-first chapter of Exodus are the answer. With His own finger the Lord wrote the commandments upon the tables of stone. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 22

"In six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh he rested and was refreshed." [Verses 17, 16.] "Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant." The Creator has plainly stated that after making the world in six days, He rested on the seventh [day], sanctifying and blessing this day as a memorial of creation, and giving it to His people as a rest day, "that ye may know," He says, "that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you." [Verse 13.] Thus He desires to test their obedience. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 23

Shall we set aside the command of Christ, given in such positive language, and follow the path of the transgressor? Who will venture to change the signpost, so that it points in the wrong way, vindicating the man of sin? It is a terrible thing to place a human institution, the papal sabbath, where the Lord's great memorial should be. It is a terrible thing for men to arrogate to themselves the power to set aside the day which God has sanctified and blessed, declaring it to be His holy day, and put in its place a common working day; to try to compel men to respect and reverence this day, while those who thus try to compel their fellow men are trampling under their feet God's great memorial. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 24

Human theories are exalted, honored, and placed where God and His law should be. But God has not altered the thing which has gone out of His lips. His Word will stand fast forever, as unalterable as His throne. When every case is decided in the courts of heaven, this covenant will be brought forth, plainly written with the finger of God. The world will be arraigned before the bar of Infinite Justice to receive sentence—a life measuring with the life of God for obedience, and death for transgression.14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 25

The Lord's Word is verity and truth. It is so plain that we cannot mistake its meaning. It is not evidence that people need, for this they have. But they do not desire to walk in the way of the [Lord's] commandments. The world is walking contrary to the divine will; but God has a people on the earth, and between Him and them His Sabbath is a sign, whereby they know that He is the Lord that sanctifies them. Upon them His mark is placed.14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 26

“They that shall be of thee shall build the old waste places; thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in. If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day, and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words; then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father.” [Isaiah 58:12-14.] Here is presented a people who turn aside their feet from trampling on the fourth commandment. Please read this Scripture in connection with the words found in Exodus 31:12-18.14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 27

It is obedience to the Word of the living God that brings men into close relationship with Christ. Today He is saying as He said to the Jewish people, “O that thou hadst known, even thou in this thy day the things that belong unto thy peace!” And soon will be heard the irrevocable sentence, “But now they are hid from thine eyes.” [Luke 19:42.] He said again as He wept over the devoted city, “O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not." [Matthew 23:37.] It was not that the Jewish people could not receive Christ; they would not. Thus it will be with many in our day. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 28

What does the Lord require of us? The observance of His Sabbath, "as a perpetual covenant." [Exodus 31:16.] God wants every family to bear this sign. Thus we may show that we are loyal and true to His commandments. Look at our world, full of disregard for God, in open rebellion against Him who in a moment could extinguish every soul that breathes the breath of life. What has made the world so full of violence? A disregard of God's law. This was what filled the earth with rebellion and corruption in the days before the flood. See the regard shown today for the spurious Sabbath. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 29

And those who make laws to guard this false rest day make laws also which legalize the liquor traffic, a curse which is brutalizing the beings made in the image of God, taking away their reason, and placing them under the enemy's control. Knowing full well the sure result, man takes the wages of his fellow man, giving him in return poison which destroys his reason, and sends him from the saloon full of false ideas. He has sold his reason for liquor, and is led into all kinds of violence. Satan presents before his mind things which, though unreal, seem real to him. He is filled with a determination to kill the one who, he supposes, stands in his way. Terrible crime and sometimes murder is often the result. Yet notwithstanding its fearful effects, the liquor curse is protected by law. 14LtMs, Ms 82, 1899, par. 30

Why do not those who make laws abolish this debasing traffic? Because they do not bear God's sign. They do not keep His commandments. Therefore they tolerate that which is making the world a second Sodom. As it was in the days of Noah, when the wickedness of men was so great that God swept from the face of the earth every living thing save those which found refuge in the ark, so also shall it be when the Son of man is revealed. "They were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away. Thus shall it be when the Son of man shall be revealed.” [Matthew 24:37-39.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms

“That They All May Be One.”

May 17, 1899 [typed]

In the plan of redemption a place is allotted to every soul, and each one is to take the place assigned him and do the work appointed him. The work of God's people may and will be varied, but one Spirit is the mover in it all. God calls upon the members of His church to receive the Holy Spirit, to come together in unity and brotherly sympathy, to bind their interests together in love. Christian unity is a mighty agency. When God's chosen people are of one mind, barriers of selfishness will disappear as by magic, and many, many more souls will be converted, because of the unity which exists among believers. There is one body and one Spirit. Those who have been building territorial lines of distinction, barriers of color and caste, might better take these down much faster than they put them up. Man is to obey the Word of God declared in the seventeenth chapter of John. He is to be one with his fellow man and with Christ, and in Christ one with God. Then of him can be spoken the words, “Ye are complete in him.” [Colossians 2:10.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 83, 1899, par. 1

Christ declared, “And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me.” [John 12:32.] Christ must be uplifted. His name is all-powerful. Many who have dwelt much upon doctrinal subjects, but who have not learned of Christ, have been found unable to control themselves. They need the Holy Spirit's power. Christ is the only true center. When He draws us to Himself, we are hidden with Him in God, and we show to the world that God loves us as He loves His Son. God imparts His Spirit to us. Truth, with its divine power and influence, takes possession of us, making of us one harmonious whole, of which Christ is seen to be the soul. Every element of working in right lines, every worker who fills his appointed place, is helping to uplift the cross of Calvary. 14LtMs, Ms 83, 1899, par. 2

God imparts His power to those who believe in the One who gave His life for the life of the world. Through His appointed agencies He is convincing the world of sin—"the transgression of the law." [1 John 3:4.] Christ is glorified as the One who exalted the law and made it honorable in that He permitted not the law to be changed to save man from perishing, but instead gave Himself as a sacrifice for sin, that by suffering the penalty of the broken law in His own body, He might reconcile God to man and man to God. God's law stands firm, unimpeached by Satan, pure, changeless, perfect, immutable—the great moral standard for every created intelligence. 14LtMs, Ms 83, 1899, par. 3

Every soul is to be obedient to the law of God. Those who are loyal to this law bear the insignia which is its distinguishing mark, the Sabbath of the fourth commandment. The enemy has made an effort to get rid of the true Sabbath. Seeing what they must do if they admit the fourth precept of the Decalogue, the religious world has been trampling under foot the law of Jehovah. Holy, just and good, this law is the expression of God's character. Christ prayed, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." [John 17:3.] God is high and lifted up, and the train of His glory fills the temple. A knowledge of His law is essential to a knowledge of His character. To Moses God gave instruction to be given to His chosen people, and in all our schools this knowledge is to be made as clear as possible. It is a power which nothing can equal. 14LtMs, Ms 83, 1899, par. 4

The world is filled with storm and war and variance. Under one head, the papal power, it has united to oppose God in the person of His faithful witnesses. This union is cemented by the great apostate; all jealousy, evil-surmising, and evil-speaking is of him, and tends to produce discord and disunion. Then shall God's people be at variance with one another? Shall they not be cemented together by the Holy Spirit, each worker filled with love and sympathy for his fellow worker, each fulfilling his appointment with faithful, undivided effort, seeking earnestly to prepare the way of the Lord?14LtMs, Ms 83, 1899, par. 5

The sword of the Spirit, which cuts both ways, is to be in the hands of God's servants. His inspiration is to be upon them, leading them all to speak as the voice of one. The Holy Spirit will work with the consecrated human instrument, for this is God's purpose. God has opened a door between heaven and earth which no power can close. He calls upon every human being to be pure, holy, sanctified, in order that the work for this time may be accomplished. When God's people place themselves in proper relation to Him, there will be a full impartation of the Holy Spirit, for the combination of the whole.14LtMs, Ms 83, 1899, par. 6

To each man is given his work. Every member of the church of Christ has a work to do. No one can be a member of Christ's body, and yet be inactive. Various lines of work are committed to different men, according to their several ability. But all the work done for the Master is to be connected with the great whole. All are to work together in concert, each one controlled by divine power, putting forth undivided effort to draw those around him to Christ. Hearts must blend. All must move like well-adjusted machinery, each part dependent on the other part, yet standing distinct in action.14LtMs, Ms 83, 1899, par. 7

This is the unity God requires in His service. He in whose heart Christ abides recognizes Christ abiding in the heart of his brother. Christ never wars against Christ. Christ never exerts an influence against Christ. Christians are to do their work, whatever it may be, in the unity of the Spirit, for the perfecting of the whole body. The church is to be purified, refined, ennobled. The members are to cast from their hearts the idols which have hindered their advancement in spirituality. By the influence of the Spirit, the most discordant may be brought into harmony.14LtMs, Ms 83, 1899, par. 8

Unselfishness is to bind God's people together with firm, tender bonds. There is a vast power in the church when the energies of the members are under the control of the Spirit, gathering good from every source, educating, training, and disciplining self. Thus is presented to God a powerful organization, through which He can work for the conversion of sinners. Thus heaven and earth are connected, and all the divine agencies cooperate with human instrumentalities.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 83, 1899, par. 9

The Sanitarium—Where Shall It Be Located?

NP

June 5, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in 10MR 234-248.

I am much burdened and perplexed. Matters have been presented to me which I wish to comprehend fully, that I may not make any mistake. Again and again the question arises, Where shall we locate our sanitarium? We who cannot read the future may make plans for the present which appear altogether consistent, the very plans in our human judgment which should be made. But with our finite judgement we cannot discern the future perplexities involved in our selection of a location for a sanitarium. Candid, prayerful consideration must be given to this subject, and great caution must be exercised in regard to it. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 1

Beautiful locations are fascinating, and from a human standpoint it would seem to be the very best thing we could possibly do to select a site among the wealthy. We might think this would give character to the work and secure patronage. But this is only seeing things from a human standpoint. If the grandees living near such a locality have religious prejudices, they will communicate this to their friends and in the place of favorable results, just the reverse will be seen. The sanitarium will be looked upon as an innovation and will be an eyesore to many who would look upon it with favor if the seeds of prejudice had not been sown to produce their evil crop of tares. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 2

Humility is a hard lesson for fallen humanity to learn, especially for rich, self-indulgent men who do not relate themselves to God as accountable to Him for all the goods they possess. They exalt self as though the riches comprehended by land and bank stock made them independent of God. Full of pride and conceit, their characters are estimated by themselves and the world as being as elevated and powerful as the value of their supposed inheritance. Their riches would be much less if they distributed to the poor and relieved suffering humanity. This would make them of value in God's sight because they would be rich in good works.14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 3

It is best to consider these matters carefully on all sides, asking counsel from God, for it is God who weighs all things in His scales of eternal justice. He will reward every man according as his works shall be. There are many rich men upon whom God has had His searching eye during their life-time. He has seen in all their worldly acquirements a robbery of Him. They have been laying up for themselves wrath against the day of wrath because they have not relieved the oppressed, because they have neglected the great Proprietor of all. In coming to His vineyard to receive the fruit thereof, He has received only abuse. This robbery of their Lord's goods has continued. These men worship themselves, not God. Every unfaithful steward will surely supplant and intrigue. He will put justice and mercy out of his mind, replacing it with avarice and strife. God says, "Shall I not judge for these things? I love righteousness, but hate iniquity." [See Jeremiah 5:9; Hebrews 1:9.]14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 4

The locality in which wealthy men dwell may appear desirable, but the heavenly intelligences are not welcomed to their houses as divine messengers. They want God afar off, that they may not be reminded of their evil works. The Lord would not be pleased for any of our institutions to be permanently erected in such a supposedly advantageous locality, for this would be like Lot choosing Sodom without any reference to the associations among which he was to abide. In the selection of a location for a sanitarium, we are to choose with the thought ever in mind that our work and purpose is to restore the moral image of God in man. We are connected with Christ, co-workers with the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. Each soul is of value with God, and those who are ever abusing His mercies, misappropriating and embezzling the goods of heaven, are not the men whom God can use to co-operate with Him in the grand work of redemption. They are fixing their own destiny in this world and in the future, eternal world.14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 5

God seeth not as man seeth. Man looks at the outward appearance, as did Lot. God looks at the heart. The fewer grand buildings that surround our institutions, the less vexation we shall experience. Irreligious and irreverent are many of those who own landed property. They have an influence upon other minds which moulds their sentiments. Evil associations are always detrimental to piety and devotion, and principles that are approved by God may be undermined by unfavorable circumstances. God would have none of us like Lot, who chose his residence without reference to his associations. Lot went into Sodom rich; he left with nothing, led by an angel's hand, while messengers of wrath waited to pour forth the fiery blast which was to consume all the inhabitants of Sodom and blot out the entrancing beauty of that highly favored city and its suburbs, making bleak and bare and uninteresting a place which God had once made very beautiful. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 6

Christ came to our world to show how man should live in order to secure eternal life. The infinite sacrifice made by our heavenly Father in giving His Son to our world is a lesson we do not fully comprehend. Our minds need to be refined, purified, and sanctified in order that we may take in the mysteries of godliness. The price to be paid for our redemption brought the Commander of the heavenly host from the royal courts. He who was sinless, the Perfection of heaven, came to our world in human likeness to reach humanity. When He came He ranked Himself among the poor and suffering ones, that He might become acquainted with the fallen humanity, and uplift them by restoring the moral image of God in them. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 7

The great price heaven has paid for our redemption should give us exalted views of what we, united with Christ, may accomplish in doing the same work that Christ did in our world. "Behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God. Therefore the world knoweth us not, because it knew him not." [1 John 3:1.] "We are laborers together with God." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] What value this places upon man. In order for us to co-operate with God, we must work in Christ's lines. By assuming human nature, the Lord Jesus gave all humanity the lesson that it is a living connection with Him that constitutes us valuable in God's sight. Men and women have been granted another trial. They have been placed where through a connection with Christ they may learn of Him. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 8

It is not ostentation or outward show which gives a correct representation of the work we should do as God's chosen people who bear His sign, of which no one should be ashamed. All should bear the sign as the Lord's peculiar people. "Verily my Sabbaths ye shall keep," the Lord declares; "for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations: that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. Ye shall keep the Sabbath therefore; for it is holy unto you: every one that defileth it shall surely be put to death; for whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 9

"Six days may work be done; but in the seventh is the Sabbath of rest, holy to the Lord; whosoever doeth any work in the Sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death. Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel forever; for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested and was refreshed. And he gave unto Moses, when he had made an end of communing with him upon Mount Sinai, two tables of testimony, tables of stone, written with the finger of God." [Exodus 31:13-18.]14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 10

This is the sign which is to distinguish the obedient, commandment-keeping people of God from the disobedient. Those who read their Bibles and then misinterpret the Word of God to suit their friends and worldly associates, who transgress the Sabbath command after light has come, will be cut off from among the people of God. Thus God reveals the great law of His divine plan. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 11

The history of the world from the beginning is contained in Genesis. There it is revealed that all nations who forget God and discard His way and His sign of obedience, which distinguishes between the just and the unjust, the righteous and the wicked, the saved and the unsaved, will be destroyed. The first books of the Bible, which trace down the history of nations, including the destruction of the old world, show the overruling providence of God, which from generation to generation has provided for the education of a chosen people. The plainly written Word in regard to the just and the unjust is a living testimony in regard to those whom the Lord will sanctify. None who live in disobedience can receive His blessing. Only those who are obedient can receive this. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 12

The Lord calls upon all to study the divine philosophy of sacred history written by Moses under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit. The first family placed upon the earth is a sample of all families which will exist till the close of time. There is much to study in this history in order that we may understand the divine plan for the human race. This plan is plainly defined, and the prayerful, consecrated soul will become a learner of the thought and purposes of God from the beginning till the close of this earth's history. He will realize that Jesus Christ, one with the Father, was the great mover in all progress, the One who is the source of all the purification and elevation of the human race. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 13

As the chosen people of God we cannot copy the habits, aims, practices, or fashions of society. The Lord Jesus Christ redeemed Israel from the land of bondage. God's power was displayed in delivering His people from Egyptian slavery with a strong hand and an outstretched arm. By signs and wonders He wrought to take them from under the yoke of bondage. He exalted them by His favor, setting them apart from the world to observe the Sabbath of the fourth commandment as a sign between Him and them. He designed that if they obeyed Him they should stand throughout their generations as a hope, a light, and a deliverance till the end of time. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 14

He made it plain and distinct to His chosen people that the richest lands, the highest monuments raised to glorify man, the largest possessions, could never procure eternal riches or the salvation of the human soul. Men may possess houses and lands of great money value. They may obtain these possessions honestly or dishonestly, but none of these things can make them happy or contented, sweet-tempered or self-controlled. They may at the same time be slaves to appetite, slaves to passion and vice, estranged from God by sin. Satan may control their minds, and when he does this they are rendered superstitious. 14LtMs, Ms 85,

Satan puts his interpretation upon events, and they think, as he would have them, that the calamities which fill the land are a result of Sunday-breaking. Thinking to appease the wrath of God, these influential men make laws enforcing Sunday observance. They think that by exalting this false rest day higher and still higher, compelling obedience to the Sunday law, the spurious sabbath, they are doing God service. Those who honor God by observing the true Sabbath are looked upon as disloyal to God, when it is really those who thus regard them who are themselves disloyal, because they are trampling under foot the Sabbath originated in Eden.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 16

The Lord expects His people to have faith in the living God who made all things. The chosen people of God will be proved and tried before they are pronounced good and faithful servants, worthy to inherit eternal life, with its endowment of heavenly riches. “Unto you who believe, he is precious,” the apostle writes, “but unto them which be disobedient, the stone which the builders rejected, the same is made the head of the corner.” [1 Peter 2:7.] Those who believe in Christ will be exalted with their great Head. But to those who do not appreciate Christ He is a stone of stumbling and a rock of offense. The reason is given—they are disobedient.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 17

Addressing the obedient, the apostle says, “Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people: that ye should show forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light.” [Verse 9.] The Lord brought Israel out of bondage, desolating the fertile land of Egypt to accomplish His purpose, to teach them the first and highest lesson—that God was their God, the only true and living God, and that in Him they must trust.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 18

We are to have faith in the living God, who made the world and all things that are therein, and who overrules all events to His own name’s glory. We are to be examples to the world, as those who uphold the everlasting principles of truth, justice, and purity. We are to have faith in Christ, faith in His power to redeem the soul and keep it in perfect peace. The world's Redeemer will draw us to Himself with the cords of a man, with bands of love. This is riches beyond estimate. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 19

This faith must be the great element in the power which rules the characters of God's people. He displayed great signs and wonders in Egypt, showing His command over all the natural world and over the powers which the Egyptian oppressors worshipped. Once again the Lord God of Israel is to execute judgment upon the gods of this world as upon the gods of Egypt. With fire and flood, plagues and earthquakes, He will spoil the whole land. Then His redeemed people will exalt His name and make it glorious in the earth. Shall not those who are living in the last remnant of this earth's history become intelligent in regard to God's lessons? 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 20

As God's commandment-keeping people, we must leave the cities. As did Enoch, we must work in the cities, but not dwell in them. Nothing that savors of extravagance is to be seen in the outlay of means for buildings or for furnishings, because we have a prospect of receiving donations. Find a location which has a favorable atmosphere and carry on your work, but keep away from the residences of the rulers of the land. Exert your God-given powers for the people who need to be uplifted. Place not your institutions in the midst of the homes of wealthy men. If possible we must secure for the sanitarium a site that will not be crowded, where there is ground that can be cultivated. Nothing is to be done for display. By strict economy we are to show that we realize that we are strangers and pilgrims on the earth. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 21

Man was made for happiness, not to be kept in continual worry. At his creation man was perfectly happy. The Garden of Eden was an emblem of heaven and the love of God. The flowers exhibited their beauty and loveliness, ever giving out a fragrance grateful to the senses. Fruit trees bore their burden of precious treasures for the good of man. On every tree the birds caroled forth their songs of praise to God. In their untainted purity Adam and Eve delighted to listen to these glad songs of praise. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 22

These sights and sounds are just what God would have men and women rejoice in today. It is not in His order that people should be crowded into cities, huddled together in terraces and tenements. It is sin that has marred God's purpose. Sin has brought into the world all the care and anguish that rends our hearts. But the image of God is once more to be impressed upon souls. The angels of God are to fill human hearts with the peace of heaven. These are the sights and sounds that are to delight our eyes and ears. The Lord's people are to be a joyful people because they can repose in Him, realizing His goodness, mercy, and love. God has not yet abandoned the earth. Sinners are to be converted to Him.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 23</sup>

In Eden, on the very spot of Adam's transgression, the Star of hope appeared, shining through the darkness of disobedience. There God promised that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head and it should bruise His heel.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 24</sup>

The reception of the truth as it is in Jesus will make melody in the heart. Men will be blessed in receiving the One in whom their hopes of eternal life are centered. And as far and as fast as possible the standard of truth is to be uplifted among all nations. God never designed that the light of truth should be centered and bound up in one locality. For a time the Jewish nation was required to worship at Jerusalem. But Jesus said to the Samaritan woman, "Believe me, the hour is coming when ye shall neither in this mountain nor yet at Jerusalem worship the Father. Ye worship ye know not what. We know what we worship; for salvation is of the Jews. But the hour cometh, and now is when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in Spirit and in truth; for the Father seeketh such to worship him. God is a Spirit, and they that worship him must worship him in Spirit and in truth." [John 4:21-24.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 25</sup>

This is the work that is to be done. The truth is to be planted in every place to which we can possibly gain access. Institutions are not to be crowded together in any one place. God's truth is to be carried to regions which are barren of truth and righteousness.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 26</sup>

Disappointment and a dearth of success will be the result of settling in any location surrounded by the residences of the great men of the world, for if they do not accept the light all their powers will be used by Satan to extinguish the light that God designs shall shine forth. This will greatly hinder the progress of the work. Select places for your educational and medical work where the Sun of Righteousness can arise with healing in His wings. The more closely Christ is followed, the more wonderfully God will work to restore suffering humanity. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 27

Christ's first advent to our world is not studied as it should be. He came to be our example in all things. His life was one of strict self-denial, and never are we to expend means unnecessarily. Never are we to seek for outward show. Let our showing be such that the light of truth can shine forth from our good works, so that God will be glorified by the good deeds done to restore the sick and relieve physical disorders by correct methods. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 28

Instruction should be given in cooking and habits of neatness. In every room in our sanitarium, and in all our institutions, the sacred fire is to be used. All things are to be set in order. Human selfishness is in no case to be mingled with the work of God. This evil must be purged away. God's human instrumentalities are to be purified and sanctified. God declared to Moses, I will be sanctified in all who shall approach Me. Constantly we are to press upward and forward to the light. It is the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit that is of value with God. Ornaments of gold and silver are of value only to please the eye and to be commented upon. "Looking unto Jesus," is the motto we are ever to keep in mind. [Hebrews 12:2.] "Men shall be blessed in him; yea, all nations shall call him blessed." "Great shall be the peace of thy children." "Blessed are the people whom thou chooseth." [Psalms 72:17; Isaiah 54:13; Psalm 65:4.]14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 29

"Blessed is the man whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Blessed is the man to whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile. ... For this shall every one that is godly pray unto thee in a time when thou mayest be found: surely in the floods of great waters they shall not come nigh unto him. Thou art my hiding place; thou shalt preserve me from trouble; thou shalt compass me about with songs of deliverance. ... I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way which thou shalt go. I will guide thee with mine eye." [Psalm 32:1, 2, 6-8.] These promises are the assurance of God. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 30

When as God's peculiar people we take heed to His words, then will every one of us be able to say, "Our soul waiteth for the Lord. He is our help and our shield; our heart shall rejoice in him. Because we have trusted in his holy name." "I will bless the Lord at all times; his praise shall continually be in my mouth. My soul shall make her boast in the Lord, the humble shall hear thereof, and be glad. O magnify the Lord with me, and let us exalt his name together. I sought the Lord, and he heard me, and delivered me from all my fears. They looked unto him, and were lightened, and their faces were not ashamed." "Blessed are the people who hear the joyful sound." [Psalm 33:20, 21; 34:1-5; 89:15.] I will "create Jerusalem a rejoicing and her people a joy." [Isaiah 65:18.] 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 31

This is the condition of the minds of those whom the Lord will make a light to the people among whom they may be established. But we shall not please God by building our sanitarium among the wealthy who worship those who can make a great show. Our modesty and humility would not bear the test. Thousands of dollars of the Lord's money would be absorbed in seeking to make a display. This does not make the human agent any happier. His course displeased God and brings reproach upon the sacred work which we are handling. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 32

As a people we are to bear God's sign by keeping the Sabbath. This is God's memorial and it is to receive our special attention. The rich men of the world build their residences in the most desirable places. Worldly thoughts occupy their minds. Worldly amusements, mirth and merriment occupy their time. Selfish extravagance in dress and eating uses the money which should be given to God. Their brains are confused by the use of wine, and this leads to great evils, for Satan is their counselor. Shall we choose to keep this class ever before us? The enemy would work through them to hedge up our way so that success shall not attend the Lord's work. 14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 33

In erecting our buildings we must keep away from the great men of the world, and then let them seek the help they need by moving away from their associates into more retired localities. Let their attention be drawn to a people who love and fear God. If the sanitarium is not near the houses of rich men they will not have opportunity to comment unfavorably upon it because it is understood to be a place which receives suffering humanity of all classes.14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 34

No means is to be spent extravagantly. Every shilling is to be dedicated to the work of providing healthful rooms, healthful surroundings, and healthful food. The furniture is to be comfortable and convenient, but not costly. Men of common sense appreciate comfort above elegance and display. All the surroundings, inside and outside the institution, must be in harmony with the teaching of Christ and the expression of our faith.14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 35

Much more money than was necessary has been expended upon our institutions in America. Those who have done this have supposed that this outlay would give character to the work. The words in Zechariah come to us: "This is the word of the Lord unto Zerubbabel, saying, Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the lord of hosts. Who art thou, O great mountain? Before Zerubbabel thou shalt become a plain, and he shall bring forth the head-stone thereof with shoutings, crying, Grace, grace unto it." [Zechariah 4:6, 7.]14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 36

It is not the imposing building or the tables provided with delicacies, with everything that patients may be pleased with, that will give the work influence; it is that faith that works by love and purifies the soul. Then the Word of the Lord becomes assurance, and those who come as patients to our sanitarium will be convinced that this people are not following cunningly devised fables, that they are not controlled by an imaginative religion which merely inspires enthusiasm. Their reason convinces them that the truth we are teaching is a reality to us.14LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 37

What is needed to give success, a large, expensive building? If so, we cannot have success. But this does not give success. It is the atmosphere of grace which surrounds the soul of the believer, the Holy Spirit working upon mind and heart, which makes him a savor of life unto life and enables God to bless his work. God would bind His family of workers together by common sympathy, pure affection. Love and respect for one another has a telling influence and is a representation of practical godliness. Unbelief is cold and repulsive, dark and forbidding, and can only deny and destroy, while the work of faith under all circumstances can lift the head in conscious dignity and firm trust in God. Even youthful hearts may reveal surpassing beauty and glory in the path of self-denial and self-sacrifice by following where Christ leads the way, lifting His cross and bearing it after Him to His Father's home in heaven, walking in the path cast up for the ransomed of the Lord to walk in.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 38

If the workers connected with the sanitarium individually love and obey their Leader, they may in their connection together in work symbolize the pure and holy family of saints who will be brought to the mansions prepared for them above. They bear Christ's name before the world, and they will be united with Christ when all the sons and daughters of God shall meet in the courts above.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 39

Let all our buildings be prepared for health and happiness, being so arranged that every unnecessary step shall be saved. Let the sanitarium be so located that the patients will have the benefits of the sunlight. There should be a fireplace in every sleeping room where patients live. These inside arrangements must be made, even though the building is not in an exact line with roads or other buildings. The rooms should be furnished with comfortable chairs, not all made after the same pattern. The results will be far more satisfactory if the precision of the furniture is broken up. God has given us a plan for this in the variety of form and color seen in the things of nature. Means must be expended to obtain comfortable, restful articles of furniture. Patients will be much better pleased with them than if the furniture is all precisely the same.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 40

Faith in Jesus Christ is to make all the working forces laborers together with God. United as branches of the parent stock, they bear fruit to the glory of God. Pure and undefiled religion makes those who are children of God one family, bound up with Christ in God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 41

False philosophy is proud, partial, exclusive, favoring only a few. In those who have this spirit the lowly awaken little sympathy. They possess no power or disposition to uplift the lowly. But Christ binds men to Himself, to God, and to one another. True, sanctified philosophy makes all human elements in Christ Jesus one. It builds up no walls of separation between man and his fellow man. Through Christ men and women have been adopted into the divine family as sons and daughters of God. They are given every advantage of the Saviour's power and redeeming love.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 85, 1899, par. 42

The Review and Herald and the College Debt

NP

June 6, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in SpM 147-150. +<sup>NoteOne</sup> or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

I read in the G. C. Bulletin proposals that the Review and Herald forgive the indebtedness of the Battle Creek College. That night instruction was given me from the Lord that there were debts upon the Review and Herald, which would make it unjust for the Review and Herald Publishing Company to do this. The General Conference and the Review and Herald are acting for the whole of the people in the Sabbath-keeping ranks. They take the people's money that is there invested and use it to relieve the school of debt. If the word of the Lord had been heeded these debts would not now exist. The light the Lord gave years ago was that the school building last proposed should not be erected. But unwise advisers turned from the counsels of God. There should be no more necessities made, no more inducements offered to bring people to Battle Creek. 14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 1

Over and over the word of the Lord has come to us that plants, both of churches and schools, should be made in other localities. Get the people of the cities and establish interests in other places. There were too many weighty responsibilities in one place. 14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 2

So many students need not come to Battle Creek if there were other schools in different places. This was the instruction given. But the additional building was erected just the same. That building should have been located in some favorable situation outside of the city, in some place where there was plenty of land to be cultivated. Thus the standard would have been lifted in a new place. Had two-thirds of the students been taken out of Battle Creek, and a division been made, the money expended on the extra building would have abundantly provided for two new plants in other localities, and there would have been the growing of the tree, and the bearing of the fruit that has not been, because men chose to follow their own wisdom. The gathering together of so many students in one school is not wise. If two-thirds of the people in Battle Creek would become plants of the Lord in other localities, they would have a chance to grow.14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 3

The time and energy bestowed upon the large school in Battle Creek to make a growth would be far more favorable for a growth of the Lord's plants in other localities, where there is room for agricultural pursuits to be carried on as a part of the education. If there had been a willingness to follow the Lord's ways and His plans, there would have been light shining in other places. The great expense incurred to add new buildings where there was all there should be, called for additional expense in furnishing, and the tuition was placed too low, for students must be secured to fill the building. When a school is found to be constantly increasing its debt, let the faculty come together and study how the school can be made self-sustaining. This should be done in every school that shall be established. Let teachers lessen their wages by making some personal sacrifice. Let the price of tuition be raised. It is far better to let a whole school share the expense than to run in debt.14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 4

The debt for the additional building has been hanging over the school as a discouragement, and thus it will ever be until there shall be a deeper consecration and self-sacrifice all through our churches. Every true character, and no other, ill be qualified to cope with difficulties in following a "Thus saith the Lord." Men are not prepared to understand their obligation to God until they have learned in Christ's school to wear His yoke of restraint and obedience. Sacrifice <was exercised> at the very beginning of our work in advancing the truth and in establishing institutions. Sacrifice must become habitual in all our character building in this life if we would have a building of God not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 5

There are lessons to learn daily in regard to offering praise and thanksgiving to God. To praise God and glorify Him in the fullness and sincerity of heart is as much the duty of those who love God as is prayer. We are to show to all the heavenly intelligences that we appreciate their ministrations, and that we are expecting and waiting for the goodness and mercy and large blessings of God. Never should we lose sight of His wondrous love for the fallen human family. We are under obligations to God to offer thanksgiving. Whoso offereth praise glorifieth God. After a special outpouring of His Holy Spirit, our cheerfulness, our helpfulness, our joy in the Lord will be increased by recounting His goodness and His wonderful works to the children of men. This will make the Christian courageous and yet simple and trustful as a little child. Read Matthew 18:1-6. 14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 6

True humility will be evidenced by recounting the mercies of God. Think of His goodness and praise His name. The more we see and tell of the love and goodness and compassion of God, the more will gratitude spring up in our hearts. This will put a stop to grumbling. Distrust, censuring, jealousy, and evil surmisings are never cherished in a heart that is thankful because of the mercies of God. True Christian life is that of higher and still higher education. Christians must grow up to the full stature of men and women in Christ Jesus. This is the character we must form if we have the wisdom of the Lord with us. 14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 7

But I am almost forgetting my subject. The Lord does not require the General Conference or the Review and Herald that is now under a burden of debt to bear the burden of the college debt. That would be doing injustice to the general necessities of the cause in new fields and in foreign lands. Methods must be devised to stop this continual accumulation of debt. The whole cause must not be made to suffer because of these debts, which will never be lifted unless there is an entire change and the work is carried forward on some different basis. 14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 8

Under the present embarrassment, I would not advise that the interest of the money due from the college to the Review and Herald should be remitted. It cannot be done as though the Review and Herald were a person dealing with another person, or even as though it were handling its own goods. Those who are bearing responsibilities in the Review and Herald Office, or in any of the interests relating to the General Conference, are dealing with capital which is not their own, which has been brought in by the people; and they have no right to handle these goods as they have been doing. The means should not be grasped as it has been by selfish men who have not helped to build up the work, but whose selfish hearts, knowing little of sacrifice, have grasped all the wages they could obtain. God has been dishonored by those men who have worked as worldlings work. The means which is in the hands of responsible men should be carefully and faithfully handled.14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 9

The publishing institution was built up by sacrifice, but by the examples men in responsible places have given to the people this spirit has been lost. The Lord has not stirred hearts to give for the advancement of the cause, and selfishness has leavened the churches. Unfaithful stewardship has been revealed in the payment of large wages to men who have made God's work and cause a matter of merchandise by which to enrich themselves. Those at the very heart of the work have displeased the Lord, and He has turned away from His people. Temptations came to the people, and backsliding was the result. If they had called together the men of the conferences and demanded an investigation of matters—which it was their right to do—decisive measures would have been taken to stop the existing evil. But this was not done.14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 10

Had they changed the order of things and brought in the same principles which were revealed in the work when the first buildings were erected, the spirit of self-sacrifice would have been retained, and the work have moved onward and upward. God's people would have understood that the way and work of the Lord cannot prosper when His people are unwilling to sacrifice self. Heavenly intelligences would have helped them to climb to higher levels to understand by experimental knowledge that they were to be laborers together with God. God desires that His people shall be conquerors, moving bravely through all difficulties. God is faithful. He will make His people complete in Him.14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par.

There has been a mistake all round; and it is a great work to come back from every wrong path and choose the right. The Lord has honored men by allowing them to unite with His work, but to manifest sympathy for the tempted, to encourage them in an evil course by showing confidence in them, will not help the wrongdoer or enrich the experience of those who by their course become partakers of their evil deeds. Those men who should have stood firm as a rock to principle spoiled their influence by succumbing to temptation when brought into a strait place. The saving power of Christ was not with them. Christ's sympathy was not impaired by His sinlessness. It was His steadfast adherence to righteousness and truth that made Him a power of grace to redeem.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 12

All emergencies will call the faithful ones to action. All combinations of difficulties which arouse us to seek God's help are really working together for good to those who love God, and who will maintain their integrity at all hazards. When emergencies force men to a decision and the ones who act their part unselfishly, bravely, are called to resist the working of evil men, they are obtaining a clearer self-knowledge. They see the necessity of standing steadfast to pure, unadulterated principles, if they would save the souls ready to perish, such a sympathy Christ had when He rebuked wrong.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 13

When men were bringing in wrong principles and were criticizing those who would not vindicate their course of selfishness, if those entrusted with holy interests had refused every approach to selfishness, refused to cover selfishness in anyone connected with the work, they would have become followers of Christ, strong in uplifting faith, determined to press close to the side of Christ. They would have realized the ideal of His Sonship, which God has revealed in and through Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 14

These thoughts I cannot possibly express in the few moments I have to write. I will say, The college has no right to draw from the General Conference or the Review and Herald to pay its indebtedness. Let all who have acted a part in allowing this cloud of debt to cover them now feel it their duty to do what they can to lessen it. Lessen expenses and raise the fee for tuition.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms

Brother Sutherland, be careful not to go to opposite extremes. We very much dislike to present wrongs to be corrected, lest the opposite extreme shall be taken. You must not let the students suppose that their education is to be loose and haphazard. Let the students, the young especially, study books that are free from infidelity. As fast as possible let the youth perfect their knowledge of the common branches. Bring in the Word of God and its principles as the foundation of solid education. Not all the youth are to receive a medical education in order to be fitted for labor. Young boys and girls need to go through the proper period of discipline in the study of the common branches and Bible lessons. But let them have no encouragement that they can engage in medical missionary work unless they give evidence of thorough conversion.14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 16

When men and women are sent to our schools to learn how to work for the Master, do not teach them that they must have a five-years' drill in Latin and Greek. Many who take this course come from the school deficient in a knowledge of the Bible. They know scarcely anything of the reasons of our faith. Teach the students solidly. Teach them how to learn, and how to keep learning. Let them become as efficient as possible, that they in their turn may be educators. Ministers and those who have been fitting themselves for missionary work should not spend years in medical missionary classes. Little boys and girls need thorough discipline in study, but there are those who need only a short time at school.14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 17

It seems to be unnecessary to go into all these particulars, but I fear lest some may go to extremes that will weaken in the place of strengthening the work of God. May the Lord give sanctified understanding is my prayer.14LtMs, Ms 86, 1899, par. 18

“The Last Shall Be First, And The First Last.”

NP

June 13, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 2SM 182. <sup>+Note</sup>One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“The kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is an householder, which went out early into the morning to hire laborers into his vineyard. And when he had agreed with the laborers for a penny a day, he sent them into his vineyard. And he went out about the third hour, and saw others standing idle in the market place; and said unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard, and whatsoever is right, I will give you. And they went their way.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 1

“Again he went out about the sixth and ninth hour, and did likewise. And about the eleventh hour he went out, and found others standing idle, and saith unto them, Why stand ye here all the day idle? They say unto him, Because no man hath hired us. He saith unto them, Go ye also into the vineyard; and whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 2

“So when even was come, the lord of the vineyard said unto his steward, Call the laborers, and give them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first. And when they came that were hired about the eleventh hour, they received every man a penny. But when the first came, they supposed that they should have received more; and they likewise received every man a penny. And when they had received it, they murmured against the goodman of the house, saying, These last have wrought but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day. But he answered one of them, and said, Friend, I do thee no wrong; didst not thou agree with me for a penny. Take that thine is, and go thy way; I will give unto this last, even as unto thee. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil because I am good? So the last shall be first, and the first last; for many be called, but few chosen.” [Matthew 20:1-16.]14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 3

In this parable Christ compares the kingdom of heaven to a man in search of workmen. Those who wanted work took their position in the market place, and at several different hours during the day the husbandman went there and engaged men. The steward was directed to call them together in the evening, that they might receive their wages. Beginning with those hired last, he paid them all the same sum. This offended those who had begun work early in the day. Had they not worked for twelve hours, they reasoned, and was it not right that they should receive more than those who had worked for only a few hours in the cooler part of the day? “These last have wrought but one hour,” they said, “and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day.” [Verse 12.]14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 4

“Friend,” the householder said to one of them, “I do thee no wrong; didst not thou agree with me for a penny? Take that thine is, and go thy way; I will give unto these last even as unto thee. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? Is thine eye evil, because I am good? So the last shall be first, and the first last; for many be called, but few chosen.” [Verses 13-16.]14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 5

On another occasion Christ said, “Which of you, having a servant ploughing or feeding cattle, will say unto him by and by, when he is come from the field, Go and sit down to meat? And will not rather say unto him, Make ready wherewith I may sup, and gird thyself, and serve me, till I have eaten and drunken; and afterward thou shalt eat and drink? Doth he thank that servant because he did the things that were commanded him? I trow not. So likewise ye, when ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants we have done that which it was our duty to do.” [Luke 17:7-10.]14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 6

By these parables Christ would teach us a lesson of humble service. He who reads the hearts of all men knew that in the spiritual life of men and women traits of character would appear which would lead them to indulge in proud boasting and in demeriting others, as though they understood the value of service. Those indulging these attributes would regard their work as of much value, while the work of their fellow laborers would be looked upon as inferior.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 7

The law of nature is that we reap that which we sow. But Christ was here dealing with the principles of the law of His kingdom. He did not care how other people regarded Him, but steadily worked out His purpose according to His own standard. His management of the workers in His vineyard represents God's dealing with the human family. God declares, "My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are my ways your ways. ... For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts." [Isaiah 55:8, 9.] Christ came to this earth to represent God, and He was not bound about by the actions of any other householder. He worked according to the laws of the kingdom which is not of this world. He did not aim to follow any human standard.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 8

The gospel of the kingdom is not to be confined by any precise regulations. Christ dealt with men in a way that cultivated their moral and spiritual capabilities. He does not reward His servants according to the amount of labor done or according to the visible results, but according to the spirit brought into the work. To observers this dealing may seem unequal, and their sympathy goes out to those who say, "These last have wrought but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, which have borne the burden and heat of the day." [Matthew 20:12.] But the Lord makes no excuse for this supposed unfairness. "Those who came first," He says, "received the amount for which they agreed to work. The last made no stipulated terms. They left the matter of payment with Me, having faith that I would do what is right and just."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 9

The steward represents Christ; and no one should enter His service with the spirit of a hireling. Such ones continue in their work for the remuneration they receive. They think their work is of greater value than the work of those who come in later; but in the estimation of God they are last. Those with this spirit try to make terms with God, saying they will work for a certain sum, that for a stated reward they will do a stated amount of work. Thus did those in the parable who were first called. There are many professed believers who possess a large measure of the hireling spirit. They work for the wages they hope to receive. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 10

Those who came at the eleventh hour were so thankful for a chance to work that they left the matter of payment with their employer. They were glad to work at any price. Their hearts were full of thanksgiving, full of love for the one who had accepted them, and they showed their faith in him by asking no questions in regard to reward. And when at the close of the day the householder began with them and paid them for a full day's work, they were greatly surprised. This was unlike any treatment they had ever received. They knew they had not earned the money given them. The kindness expressed in the countenance of their employer went to their hearts and filled them with gratitude. They never forgot the goodness of the householder and the gracious compensation they received. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 11

Thus it is with the poor sinner who knows his unworthiness, who has long neglected to enter the Master's vineyard, but who comes at the eleventh hour. His time of service seems so short and his wages so large. He expects very little, and is satisfied with little, if only Christ will accept Him in His service. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 12

Those who made a definite demand received their wages—nothing more. Does not this teach us that faith is needed in the service of Christ? To the hireling God shows Himself true to the bargain made. He holds them to the exact sum they specified. Thus He would teach us to trust implicitly in Him. To the humble and confiding, who are willing to accept any sum, however meagre, He surprises with a large reward because they put thankfulness and joy into their work. David declares, "Therefore hath the Lord recompensed me according to my righteousness, according to the cleanness of my hands in his eyesight. With the merciful thou wilt show thyself merciful; with an upright man thou wilt show thyself upright; with the pure thou wilt show thyself pure; and with the forward thou wilt show thyself forward. For thou wilt save the afflicted people, but will bring down high looks.” [Psalm 18:24-27.]14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 13

Those who think more of their wages than of the privilege of being honored as a servant of the Lord, who take up their work in a self-congratulatory spirit because they are to receive wages, do not bring self-denial and self-sacrifice into their work. The last men hired believed the word of the householder, “Whatsoever is right, that shall ye receive.” [Matthew 20:7.] They knew that they would receive all that they deserved, and they were placed first because they brought faith into their work. If those who had labored during the whole day had brought a loving, trusting spirit into their work, they would have continued to be first. The Lord Jesus estimates the work done by the spirit in which it is done. At a late hour He will accept penitent sinners who come to him in humble faith and are obedient to His commandments.14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 14

Christ warns those in His service that they are not to bargain for a stipulated sum, as though their Master would not deal truly with them. He gave this parable that murmurers would not receive sympathy on account of their supposed grievances. Grumblers will find something to grumble at if they possibly can. Their hearts need to be purified. If the hearts of those first called had been purified, they would have seen only liberality in the action of the householder. Those who are in the service of Christ must have faith in Him. The men and women who watch for something in their brethren and sisters of which they can make capital demonstrate before the heavenly universe that to them the goodness and liberality of God is an occasion of murmuring.14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 15

The disposition to find fault and complain too often finds place among believers. Many professed Christians manifest the spirit of the elder brother. They may be first in enduring hardship, privation, and trial, but the spirit they indulge is unchristlike, and renders them untrustworthy. They think that they are entitled to a large reward because of the work they do. Thus it was with the Jews. They depended for reward on the long years of service they had given, believing that a certain amount of work must receive a certain remuneration, and that therefore they would be more highly rewarded than those who had done less, who had not borne the heavy taxation. They represented service as earning salvation. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 16

The gift of God is eternal life on condition of entire obedience. But we should not think selfishly of the reward we are to receive. Of ourselves we have nothing. Our time, our talents, our capabilities, all are entrusted to us by the Lord to be used in His service and thus returned to Him. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 17

God has given to every man his work. In temporal and spiritual lines we are to work for Him. Never are we to boast of our endowments. "Ye are not your own; for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.] The apostle Paul reached the point where faith in God's Word had become assurance. He wrote to Timothy, "Watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 18

"For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing." [2 Timothy 4:5-8.] This is the battle cry of one who had been faithful with his Lord's goods, and who was waiting to receive the benediction, "Well done, good and faithful servant, ... enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." [Matthew 25:23.]14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 19

In the book of Malachi God specifies the reward to be given to those who are faithful. All nations will see the power of God exercised in behalf of those whom He can safely bless as His chosen ones. "I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes," He declares, and "he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground, neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field. ... And all nations shall call you blessed; for ye shall be a delightsome land." [Malachi 3:11, 12.]14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 20

There is another class, who complain of God. "Your words have been stout against me,” He says. “Ye have said, It is vain to serve God; and what profit is it that we have kept his ordinance, and that we have walked mournfully before the Lord of hosts? And now we call the proud happy; yea, they that work wickedness are set up; yea, they that tempt God are even delivered.” [Verses 13-15.] These weigh God’s actions in human scales. Their words are stout against Him, as they strive to vindicate themselves. By their words and actions they dishonor God and create an atmosphere of evil about their souls. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 21

“Many are called, but few are chosen.” [Matthew 22:14.] The Lord’s invitation continued from early morning till the last hour of the day. But many who accept His invitation possess only the theory of the truth. They have not that faith which works by love and purifies the soul. They think they are entitled to large wages because of their service. They claim to have served God all their lives, as did the Jews, but they reveal a spirit that is querulous and faultfinding. Thus they show that there is no connection between God and their souls. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 22

The indulgence of this spirit of self-exaltation makes those who might have been first last. They will be placed last because self has not been hid with Christ in God. We are not to esteem our work as worthy of large recognition. God will reward us in accordance with the spirit that has characterized our work. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 23

In strong contrast to the murmurers are the ones of whom God says, “Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another, and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in the day when I make up my jewels, and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall ye return and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God and him that serveth him not.” [Malachi 3:16-18.] The Lord has a people on the earth, and His working with them reveals the supernatural results which are seen when the human will is under the control of the will of God. Of them He says, “Ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye should show forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvellous light." [1 Peter 2:9.]14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 24

This parable does not excuse anyone who after hearing the truth assents to it, saying, "That is all true," and then fails to comply with it. These refuse to walk in the light, because by so doing they would displease their friends or disturb their satisfied condition of self-righteousness. The parable does not mean that the Lord will vindicate those who, because they want their own time and their own way, refuse the first call to work. When the householder went to the market and found men unhired, he said, "Why stand ye all the day idle?" and the reply was, "Because no man hath hired us." [Matthew 20:6, 7.] None of those called later in the day were there in the morning. They had never refused the call. Those who refuse and afterward repent, do well to repent; but it is not safe to trifle with the invitations of mercy. God will not be trifled with.14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 25

The Lord requires that sacred fire be used in His service. We are to bear the message of the divine Householder to our fellow men. This will impress hearts. In whatever part of the Lord's vineyard men and women are working, they need to closely examine their own hearts. If they are inclined to exalt themselves and demerit others, their hearts need to be changed, till they shall no longer place their own estimate upon their own work and the work of others.14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 26

We need a spirit of love and true dependence upon God. When we have implicit faith in Him who is Truth, we shall realize that worry and anxiety are unnecessary.14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 27

Whatever work we do, we are to do it for Christ. There is temporal work to be done in the missionary fields, such as bookkeeping. An unbeliever would do this work mechanically, for the wages he receives. He does not know the joy of co-operation with the Master-worker. Those who are truly united with Christ do not work for the wages they receive. Laborers together with God, they do not strive to exalt self. There is no spirituality in the work of him who serves self. Common motives, common inspirations, an aspiration to be thought smart by men, rule in his life. Such a one may receive praise from men, but not from God. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 28

In the last great day decisions will be made that will be a decided surprise to many. Human judgment will have no place in the decisions made in the last day. This point is to be carefully studied. Christ can and will judge every case, for all judgment has been committed to Him by the Father. Christ estimates service by that which is invisible to men. The most secret things lie open to His all-seeing eye. When the Judge of all men shall make His investigation, many of those whom human estimation has placed first will be placed last, and those who have been put in the lowest place by men will be taken out of the ranks and made first. 14LtMs, Ms 87, 1899, par. 29

Lessons from the Christ-Life

“And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple and overthrew the tables of the money changers, and the seats of them that sold doves, and said unto them, It is written, My house shall be called a house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.” [Matthew 21:12, 13.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 1

As the priests and rulers looked upon the face of Him who said this to them, terror took possession of them, for divinity was flashing through humanity. They fled from the humble, travel-stained Nazarene as though He had been surrounded by an avenging army of heavenly beings. What a revelation this was to them! But as they hurried with their cattle and sheep away from the sacred precincts of the temple, they found that they had received no bodily harm, and their terror-stricken souls began to recover. They said, “We will return to the temple, and demand by what authority he is doing this work.”<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 2

But they did not confront Jesus with the assurance that they thought they would when they saw the work He had been doing since their expulsion. On their ears fell the sound of thanksgiving from the lips of children who were singing the praises of God and waving palm branches. The people were rejoicing, for those among them who had been sick and dying were now restored to perfect health. But the lowing of cattle and the bleating of sheep was as music in the ears of the priests when compared with these sounds of rejoicing. Cattle sales meant money to them. But the gladness and joy of the people who had been restored was not acceptable to them. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 3

“Hearest thou what these say?” they asked Christ; and He answered, “Yea; and have ye never read, out of the mouths of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?” [Verse 16.]14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 4

After Christ had cleansed the temple courts and healed the sick, “he went out of the city into Bethany. Now in the morning as he returned into the city, he hungered. And when he saw a fig tree in the way, he came to it and found nothing thereon, but leaves only, and he said unto it, Let no fruit grow on thee henceforward forever. And presently the fig tree withered away. And when the disciples saw it, they marvelled, saying, How soon is the fig tree withered away! Jesus answered and said unto them, Verily I say unto ye, If ye have faith, and doubt not, ye shall not only do this which is done to the fig tree, but also if ye shall say unto this mountain, Be thou removed, and be thou cast into the sea, it shall be done.” [Verses 17-21.]14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 5

The fig tree was covered with promising, pretentious leaves, but was entirely destitute of fruit. It represented impenitent Israel, who had failed to do the work of God’s appointment. And not only does this lesson apply to the Jews, but in its terrible significance it reaches to every age, warning each soul of the sure result of profession without practice. Let the professing Christians inquire into the meaning of the curse pronounced upon the fig tree. It was full of promise, but investigation revealed its barrenness. It bore no fruit, and because of this defect words were spoken which caused it almost immediately to wither away. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 6

A fig tree is created to bear fruit, and if it does not do this, it is not fit for a place in the orchard. It is treated as a cumberer of the ground. So the Lord created men and women to bear fruit to His glory and for the good of their fellow creatures, and He has provided them with every facility necessary to enable them to do this. By creation and by redemption we are God’s. Christ came as our substitute and surety, that we might bear fruit for Him. A probation has been granted us that we might not be like the fig tree, full of flourishing leaves, making great pretensions of success, yet destitute of good works.14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 7

Soon after this Christ again entered the temple, and as He was teaching, the chief priests and elders of the people came to Him with the question, "By what authority doest thou these things, and who gave thee this authority?" [Verse 23.] They had been given unmistakable evidence of Christ's power. Amazed and terrified they had fled from His presence, returning to find Him healing the sick and suffering, who were rejoicing, not only in the courts, but in the temple itself. And yet after passing through this wonderful experience, the Jewish rulers asked Christ, "By what authority doest thou these things?" 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 8

In answer the Saviour said, "I also will ask you one thing, which if ye tell me, I in like wise will tell you by what authority I do these things. The baptism of John, whence was it? From heaven, or of men? And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven, he will say unto us, Why did ye not then believe him? But if we shall say, Of men, we fear the people; for all hold John as a prophet. And they answered Jesus, and said, We cannot tell. And he said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things." [Verses 24-27.] 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 9

"We cannot tell." [Verse 27.] What an admission this was for men to make who had the living Oracles of God as their guide, who by their privileges were exalted to heaven. This answer was a falsehood. But they saw the position they were in, and falsified to save themselves. John had preached the coming of the Messiah. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 10

In trumpet tones the words of the forerunner of Christ had rung in their ears: "There shall come forth a Rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a branch shall grow out of his roots: and the Spirit of the Lord shall rest upon him, the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of counsel and might, the spirit of knowledge and of the fear of the Lord, and shall make him of quick understanding in the fear of the Lord; and he shall not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears; but with righteousness shall he judge the poor, and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth; and he shall smite the earth with the rod of his mouth, and with the breath of his lips shall he slay the wicked, and righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins.” [Isaiah 11:1-5.]14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 11

“He saw that there was no man, and wondered that there was no intercessor; therefore his arm brought salvation unto him; and his righteousness, it sustained him. For he put on righteousness as a breastplate, and an helmet of salvation upon his head; and he put on the garments of vengeance for clothing, and was clad with zeal as a cloak. According to their deeds, accordingly will he repay, fury to his adversaries, recompense to his enemies; to the islands he will repay recompense. So shall they fear the name of the Lord from the west, and his glory from the rising of the sun. When the enemy shall come in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord shall lift up a standard against him. And the Redeemer shall come to Zion, and unto them that turn from transgression in Jacob, saith the Lord.” [Isaiah 59:16-20.]14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 12

John came bearing witness of the One whose divinity they were now questioning. He had pointed Him out, saying, “Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world.” [John 1:29.] He had baptized Him, and after the baptism, as Christ was praying, the heavens were opened, and the Spirit of the Lord descended upon Him like a dove, while a voice from heaven was heard, saying, “This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.” [Matthew 3:16, 17.]14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 13

Remembering the power with which John had repeated the prophecies concerning the Messiah, and the scene at the baptism, the priests and rulers dared not say that his baptism was from heaven. If they had acknowledged John to be a prophet, as they believed him to be, how could they deny the testimony of John that Jesus of Nazareth was the Son of God? Neither could they say his baptism was from men, because of the people who believed John to be a prophet. So they said, “We cannot tell.” [Matthew 21:27.]14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 14

Then Christ gave the parable of the father and the two sons. A certain man had two sons, and he went to the first, saying, “Son, go work today in my vineyard.” He promptly answered, “I will not.” [Verses 28, 29.] He refused to obey, and gave himself up to wicked ways and association. But afterward he repented and obeyed the call. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 15

The father went to the second son, saying, “Go work today in my vineyard.” He promptly made reply, “I go, sir;” but he went not. [Verse 30.] 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 16

Christ gave this parable to the multitude which surrounded Him. In the company there were scribes and Pharisees, priests and rulers, and when, in making an application of the parable, Christ asked, “Whether of them twain did the will of his father?” They answered, “The first.” [Verse 31.] This answer was correct, but they gave it without realizing that they were pronouncing sentence against themselves. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 17

Then there fell from Christ’s lips the denunciation, “Verily I say unto you, That the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you. For John came unto you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not: but the publicans and the harlots believed him; and ye, when ye had seen it, repented not afterward, that ye might believe him.” [Verses 31, 32.] John came teaching truth, and by his teaching sinners were convicted and converted. These would go into the kingdom of heaven before those who in self-righteousness had resisted warning which abandoned sinners had received. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 18

The second son said, “I go, sir;” but he went not. [Verse 30.] Like this Son the Jewish leaders were impenitent and self-sufficient. The religious life of the Jewish nation had become a pretense. When the law was proclaimed upon Mount Sinai, God spoke with a voice of divine authority; and all the people intended to obey. They said, “I go, sir;” but they went not. Christ gave the Jewish leaders abundant evidence of His authority and divine power, but although they were convinced, they would not receive this evidence. He showed them that they continued to disbelieve because they had not the spirit which leads to obedience. He said to them, Ye make void the law of God by your traditions. In vain do ye worship Me, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 19

Today God speaks to professing Christians, saying, "Go work today in my vineyard." Many say, "I go sir," but they go not. [Verses 28, 30.] Their pretensions are not acknowledged by God. There are many who while they promise obedience have no intention of obeying any law but one of their own invention. God's law is holy, just, and good. It is perfect, converting the soul. This law is plainly defined; and yet the professed Christian churches of today do not obey it, but set up a standard of their own. How many there are today who hear the truth and do it not. They refuse to obey the first four commandments, which reveal their duty to their Creator, and the last six, which command them to love their fellow men as themselves. Many make false promises to God, saying, "I go;" but they do not obey Him. They have never surrendered the will to God. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 20

Are not professing Christians making void the law of God by setting aside the Sabbath of the fourth commandment, and exalting in its place the first day of the week? The law of God requires nothing short of unquestioning obedience and spiritual perfection. The words found in (Exodus 31:12-18) make this matter perfectly plain. God there declares, "Verily my Sabbaths ye shall keep; for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations." [Verse 13.] Should not those now living in delusion arouse to the true state of things? The time is coming when disobedience will be called by its true name. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 21

God requires His followers to devote heart, mind, soul, and strength to Him in perfect obedience. He has given the Sabbath to be a sign between Him and His people, and they should obey no law which is contrary to His law. Many regard themselves as religious because they trust in a delusion. They are inventing laws to take the place of God's law, and trust in a gospel which excuses their disobedience. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 22

There are millions in our world who do not make any attempt to look to the uplifted Saviour. Instead they obey the laws of the great apostate, who thought to change times and laws, and they bear his sign. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 23

The gospel of Christ recognizes God's law, but men have substituted for the law of God laws which are entirely contrary to the mind of God; and this they call the gospel. They forget that there is a penalty for all transgression. Christ came to save sinners from transgression, but today He sees those who claim to be Christians violating the fourth commandment by accepting a sabbath which God has not instituted, while they trample on the Sabbath instituted in Eden as their fancy shall dictate. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 24

Obedience was ever the Lord's due from the creatures He formed, and His requirements have not been relaxed one jot or tittle to meet man in his fallen condition. Christ made a full atonement for man. He bore the penalty of transgression that the human race might return to their loyalty. He imputes His righteousness to repentant, believing sinners. The provisions of heaven are pledged to those who believe the promises, for Christ has made a peace offering, and He presents our penitence and obedience to God. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 25

Thousands of professing Christians say, like the second son, "I go, sir;" but they go not. [Matthew 21:30.] The promise of positive obedience is fulfilled if they find that they can lift the cross without inconvenience to themselves. But self-denial is required to do this, and as time passes the conviction of truth wears away; known transgression of God's commandments becomes habit. There are many who do not realize that God is holy, and that He requires holiness in all who serve Him. Nadab and Abihu used common fire in the service of God, and the record says that fire went out from God and destroyed them. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 26

In the fifty-eighth chapter of Isaiah God has given us direct warning and encouragement. The positive statements contained in this chapter must be repeated over and over again. "Is not this the fast that I have chosen?" God asks, "to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke? Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked that thou cover him, and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh? Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily; and thy righteousness shall go before thee: and the glory of the Lord shall be thy rereward. 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 27

“Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger and speaking vanity; and if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul, then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noon day; and the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones, and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not. And they that be of thee shall build the old waste places; thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations, and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in.” [Verses 6-12.] 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 28

A breach has been made in God’s law by the papacy, and God calls for those who will build up that which has been broken down. He declares, “If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words, then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.” [Verses 13, 14.] 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 29

And again He says, “This commandment which I command thee this day, it is not hidden from thee, neither is it far off. It is not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it? Neither is it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go over the sea, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it? But the word is very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it. See, I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil; in that I command thee this day to love the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments and his statutes and his judgments, that thou mayest live and multiply; and the Lord thy God shall bless thee in the land whither thou goest to possess it.” 14LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 30

“But if thine heart turn away, so that thou wilt not hear, but shalt be drawn away, and worship other gods, and serve them; I denounce unto thee this day that ye shall surely perish, and that ye shall not prolong your days upon the land whither thou passest over Jordan to go to possess it. I call heaven and earth to record today against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing; therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live; that thou mayest love the Lord thy God, and that thou mayest obey his voice, and that thou mayest cleave unto him: for he is thy life and the length of thy days; that thou mayest dwell in the land which the Lord swore unto thy fathers, to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob, to give them.” [Deuteronomy 30:11-20.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 31

The teaching in the parable of the two sons should be carefully and thoroughly studied. On every hand may be seen vice and irreligion. Disobedience to God’s law is taught from the pulpits throughout our land. Those who have had their duty clearly laid out before them, and yet continue in transgression of the law, will not meet their record with joy in the great day when every man shall be judged according to his works. What answer can they give when their cases are tested by the great standard of character for every one—the law of God?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 32

Those who by pen or voice are aping the supposedly great men of the world, who say, “I go, sir,” but do not go, are hindering others instead of helping them. [Matthew 21:30.] Their own hearts are not controlled by the Holy Spirit. A personal religious experience has not found place in their life. Their stewardship will not bear the inspection of the great Judge. They say to the Master, “I go, sir,” but they are exalting self in the place of Jesus. Precious truth is buried under a display of fancied merit and smartness. They wear their own garments in the place of the garments Christ has prepared for them, and in the day of final reckoning they will find themselves last and least.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 88, 1899, par. 33

Shall We Erect Homes for Consumptives?

NP

June 19, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in 9MR 281-284.

Sanitariums that are erected for consumptive patients should be placed some distance out of the city, where there is plenty of open space, a clear stream, and land which can be cultivated. Then the patients can be drawn out into the fresh air, while those who are strong can cultivate the soil. The institutions built for consumptives which has not these accompaniments cannot benefit the patients. Such an institution Seventh-day Adventists are at the present time unable to maintain. 14LtMs, Ms 89, 1899, par. 1

The Lord has not laid upon our people the burden of erecting a sanitarium exclusively for consumptive patients. Large numbers of persons with this disease should not be gathered together in one home. Many who come to such institutions are hopeless invalids. Others have but faint hope of recovery. The very fact that there are kept before them daily those in the various stages of the disease, and that they are called upon to see their fellow sufferers wasting away before their eyes, is sufficient to destroy in them their last hope of recovery. In no case would I feel inclined to send a friend or relative to such a place. With these consumptives at the table coughing and spitting as so many do, who could retain their appetite for food? 14LtMs, Ms 89, 1899, par. 2

The very best talent is required in those who have charge of these homes, but no one person should be confined to this line of work for a long period at a time. It is not pleasant for persons to go to an institution where they are called upon to see daily those whose lives are gradually wasting away. The coughing and expectoration also is very objectionable. To place persons of tact and ability in such a place is to entail upon them a tax that might better come upon the relatives of the patient. 14LtMs, Ms 89, 1899, par. 3

I know what I am talking about; for my husband's brother, Nathanael White, died of consumption in my home, also sister Annie White, and the foreman of our printing office in Rochester, New York. I could not bring on these the painful experience of being separated from their family, and placed in a home with a large number of consumptives. I placed them where they would be comfortable, and where they could receive the attention of their friends to the last. Every precaution can be taken when one in a family is afflicted with this disease, and his friends can give him loving attention and watch care. But separate him from his home, and he is painfully conscious of the cause. And the sight of the sick and the dying around him hastens his life to its close.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 89, 1899, par. 4

When you come to number those who have money who would be willing patients, you would find that there would be few who would patronize a home for consumptives. The fewer consumptives a person attacked with this disease is required to associate with, the better it is for him in every way. The number of poisoned breaths brought together in one place not only hastens the course of disease in the patients, but entails death upon those who care for them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 89, 1899, par. 5

I never supposed that an institution was to be built by our people exclusively for consumptives. Some with throat and lung trouble would be benefited by treatment, but there are many who would receive no help in such an institution. The fact that such an institution means a constant outlay of money, with no hope of returns, must be considered. If a home for consumptives is to be established, let it be near streams of living water, away from the city, near forests of pine and hemlock; for there are healing properties in them. Then publish the fact that such an institution has been established and call for volunteers to carry on the work. As the sanitarium in Colorado has been established, let it be appropriated to the use of those who are sick and who have some hope of recovery.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 89, 1899, par. 6

We are to be awake to the necessity of suffering humanity, but it would be no mercy to sacrifice lives to the special work of treating consumptives. I have not one word to give in encouragement of this. It may be necessary to provide a place where patients who are dying of consumption can be cared for, but such a building should not be placed in the city, but isolated from the city. Let all who are troubled in regard to this question remember that it means much to impress upon individuals that it is their duty to take charge of an institution for consumptives. Persons may come to such an institution who are said to have consumption, but who are really suffering from stomach trouble. If these associate with consumptive patients, they will certainly contract the same disease, for they have lost the power to resist the effects of any exposure.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 89, 1899, par. 7

I would not, could not, from the light I have, encourage our people to build up an institution for consumptives, or to take charge of such an institution. There are many others suffering from various diseases who could be treated with some hope of saving life. As far as possible, I would dispose of consumptives in their own homes, to be care for by their friends, whose duty it is to do this. Let those who can, aid these friends with means and religious counsel. But is it not a hopeless task to appoint any one to care for a large number of consumptives? The same care thus extended could be employed in behalf of patients whose lives would be preserved. Thus many would learn of the truth. Those going from the institution would impart that which they have received, and many lives would be dedicated to the work of saving souls.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 89, 1899, par. 8

The Needs of the Southern Field

NP

July 3, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in SWk 94-96. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

I cannot sleep past eleven o'clock. Several times I have had a pointed testimony in regard to the Southern Field. On one occasion I was in the tabernacle at Battle Creek when the Spirit of the Lord came upon me. What a scene of selfishness was presented before me. I was greatly distressed as I heard this one and that one calling for his wages for work done in the past. I heard many speak in reference to the royalties on books; and in every case they urged that they had been dealt with unjustly. There were some present who seemed unwilling to speak of the matter, and these I was shown were the ones who had good reason to speak, for harm had been done them. But others manifested a selfish, covetous, grasping disposition.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 1

The Spirit of the Lord came upon me, and I said to those assembled, Will you leave the vestry and come into the Auditorium, for we were very crowded. Then I spoke: I see the development of self to a large and uncomely degree. I will now give you my decision. I shall not claim any back dues. I have been wronged, but I will not oppress the publishing institutions, either in Battle Creek or on the Pacific Coast. I desire to relieve and not to oppress.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 2

I awoke, but my soul was burdened. I felt that peculiar trials were to come upon the people of God. Then was presented before me the situation of the Southern Field. The work which should have been done in that field has not been done. The means sent in by the people to the General Conference for the advancement of the work there was devoted to other purposes. This is where the work of restitution must be done. The Lord is displeased with the men in responsible positions who have not discerned the great need of this field. The work there needs means. God has given warnings, but they have not been heeded. 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 3

Church members in America, who have pleasant homes and surroundings, should remember the Southern Field. It is in need of special attention and support. I addressed the president of the General Conference, "Why do you neglect this work? God has made it your duty to deal with this poor, oppressed race as their circumstances demand. Let the work go forward. Encourage the people who are favorably situated to help in this field. The Lord does not call families to work in the South who have young children who would thus be exposed to evil associations; but He calls those who can work to advantage in the different localities." 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 4

There are men who will tell you that the work in the South has been misrepresented, that it is not so arduous as it is made to appear. Let no one suppose that the Southern Field is an easy place to work, for it is the most difficult portion of the Lord's vineyard, and soon it will be even more difficult. The greatest wisdom must be exercised. All connected with the work, and especially those who have to do with the publications sent to this field, must be as wise as serpents and as harmless as doves. Be careful what your pens shall trace for publication. There are many things which it will do only harm to make public. 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 5

If the greatest caution is not exercised, bitterness and hatred will be aroused in the white people in the South, who are yearning for power to oppress the colored race as they have in the past. Those who are in the habit of speaking without consideration might far better remain in their homes than attempt work in this field. Those who think that the precautions given are unnecessary should heed the warnings the Lord has sent. If you would have a part in the work in the South, my brethren, you must hide self in Christ, walking humbly and circumspectly before God. 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 6

Common association with the blacks is not a wise course to pursue.

To lodge with them in their homes may stir up feelings in the minds of the whites which will imperil the lives of the workers. Goods have been sent to this field which have helped to relieve the necessities of suffering humanity. But this work does not please the white people. In some localities they do not want help to be given to this down trodden race. They desire that they shall ever feel their dependence. 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 7

I tell you of a truth that this field with its neglect will come up in judgment to condemn those who have been admonished, but who have refused to lend their aid. The Lord demands restitution from the churches in America. You are to relieve the necessities of this field. In the day of final accounts men will not be pleased to meet the record of their deeds with reference to the books that have been prepared to help in carrying on the work in the South, by which means was diverted from the most needy portion of the Lord's vineyard. 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 8

This matter has been before you a long time, and what have you done to relieve the situation? Why have you kept so quiet? O, that you would do this work of restoration speedily. The Lord calls upon you to restore to His people the advantages of which they have so long been deprived. The evil work done will one day be seen, not in the light in which responsible men now see it, who like the priest and Levite have passed by on the other side, but as God views it. 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 9

God's people have no excuse to offer as to why the years which have passed into eternity do not show better results. The way in which some of the teachers have managed the work in the South has not been right, and yet many have looked with great enthusiasm on the work of those who through incorrect methods have given a wrong mould to the work. Should these methods be encouraged? No; for the material worked upon is not being in the least qualified to help the southern people. The breaking down of distinctions between the white and the colored races unfits the blacks to work for their own class, and exerts a wrong influence upon the whites. 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 10

The gentlemen whites consider it degrading to wait upon themselves, to cultivate their land or raise produce. They think that the colored population should be slaves to them. These so-called gentlemen, supposing themselves to be lords of creation, look upon all labor as drudgery, and they crowd into the cities, obtaining their living by scheming rather than by patient toil. These wrong methods for obtaining money are not lacking in evil results. Laziness, which lies at the foundation of many a shipwrecked life, extravagance, and every evil, are to be seen in their lives. 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 11

If no way is opened whereby the blacks can obtain a knowledge of how to cultivate and raise their own food, they are still dependent upon the white people for work in the cotton fields, and the white population can still hold to their non-working sentiments, and make themselves dependent upon the labor of the blacks. Gentlemen are they? Where are the gentlemen who are worthy of the name? It is the humane, compassionate, Christlike man who is the true gentleman. Patient, joyous labor brings health to the mental, moral, and physical powers. How many need to understand that the highest and most abiding missionary work they can render to God and to their fellow men is to educate themselves how to engage in useful physical labor. 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 12

The light has recently come to me that the Lord does not require Edson White to carry so heavy a load without the co-operation of his brethren. His efforts to do so much have broken down his health, and unless a change is made, he will be unfitted for labor anywhere. The climate in the South is not a favorable one, and Edson and his wife can no longer work against such great odds without sacrificing their lives. Edson will soon be obliged to leave the work in the South, and who have you trained to take his place? That field needs strong helpers, men who possess tender hearts, who can gain the affections of the people. Hard and denunciatory words will close the door against the worker. 14LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 13

Those who labor in the Southern Field—the hardest portion of America—need encouragement, both spiritually and financially. You have chosen to largely withhold your encouragement from Edson. You have neglected to co-operate with him. Now choose a man who will take up his work, for it will be at the sacrifice of his life if he remains in the South. It would have pleased the Lord if you who have been so well situated yourselves had given your sympathy and help to the workers in the Southern Field. I know Edson White will be loath to leave the South, but God does not ask him to sacrifice his life. There are earnest workers in that field, and the Lord will help them if they trust Him fully.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 14

Again I place this matter before you. Will you act upon the light given?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 90, 1899, par. 15

Words of Counsel Regarding the Management of the Work of God

NP

June 19, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 13MR 179-191. +<sup>NoteOne</sup> or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

There are many things which need to be said. May the Lord help me to say with my pen the very words that should be said. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 1

God's people should stand as a distinct, holy people, separate from the world. But the Lord has been greatly dishonored because they have consulted lawyers in regard to church matters. They have lost their spiritual discernment, and in the place of using the sacred fire of God's own kindling, they have used the common fire. Some act like men who are destitute of the Spirit of God, and under the control of Satan. God's people should be working in different lines. There is earnest, solemn work to be done in all our institutions. These institutions have not been guarded as they should have been. Too little dependence is placed upon God, and altogether too much upon unsanctified men. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 2

The subject I wish now to bring before our people is that of the special management of the general interests of the cause of God at the present time. For years light has been given me that the one selected to preside over the General Conference should not be left to bear all the burdens alone. He is to be a man of clear discernment, who will not swerve from right principles, and he is to have as his counselors staunch men who will not sway or be swayed in wrong directions, who are as firm as a rock to principle. He is not to be left to follow his own inclinations in the choice of his counselors. This has been done for years, to the detriment of the work. His associates are to be chosen men, who have the confidence of the people; God-fearing men upon whom he can rely. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 3

The president of the General Conference should not select his son to be a counselor or a judge, for if such a relative is connected with him, there is danger that correct principles will not be carried out. The very fact that the counselor is a relative will be a source of temptation to those who have been swayed from truth and righteousness to carry things in their own way, the son thinking he has no right to question his father's decisions or work. The president of the conference should choose as his counselors "able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness." [Exodus 18:21.] 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 4

Sometimes the men chosen to preside over the state conferences are not the best and most trustworthy men. Some cannot reason correctly, because they have lost their spiritual eyesight. "Spiritual things are spiritually discerned." [See 1 Corinthians 2:13, 14.] Much careful consideration should be given to the matter of appointing state conference presidents. Much prayer should be offered to God. He should be sought most earnestly, that the presidents of the state conferences may show themselves to be men of ability in spiritual understanding. The Lord requires this of all who come near to Him. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 5

In the eighteenth chapter of Exodus we are shown what kind of men are to be chosen to share the burdens and responsibilities of the work of God. Moses had a great charge, and it was necessary that others should bear the burdens with him. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 6

"It came to pass on the morrow, that Moses sat to judge the people: and the people stood by Moses from the morning unto the evening. And when Moses' father-in-law saw all that he did to the people, he said, What is this thing that thou doest to the people? Why sittest thou thyself alone, and all the people stand by thee from morning until even? And Moses said unto his father-in-law, Because the people come unto me to inquire of God: when they have a matter, they come unto me; and I judge between one and another, and I do make them know the statutes of God, and his laws. And Moses'

father-in-law said unto him, The thing that thou doest is not good. Thou wilt surely wear away, both you, and this people that is with thee: for this thing is too heavy for thee; thou are not able to perform it thyself alone. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 7

“Hearken now unto my voice, I will give thee counsel, and God shall be with thee: Be thou for the people to Godward, that thou mayest bring the causes of unto God: And thou shalt teach them ordinances and laws, and shalt show them the way wherein they must walk, and the work that they must do. Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness; and place such over them, to be rulers of thousands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens: and let them judge the people at all seasons: and it shall be, that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, but every small matter they shall judge, so shall it be easier for thyself, and they shall bear the burden with thee.” [Verses 13-22.] This is the kind of men who should be chosen to carry forward the work of God. Lessons from God’s Word should be learned by those who are carrying heavy responsibilities. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 8

“Moses chose able men out of all Israel, and made them heads over the people.” [Verse 25.] Speaking to the congregation afterward, he said, “I charged your judges at that time, saying, Hear the causes between your brethren, and judge righteously between every man and his brother, and the stranger that is with him.” [Deuteronomy 1:16.] 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 9

God’s directions have not always been followed. Men have been selected to fill places on the Foreign Mission Board who had not sufficient experience for the work. They needed to lift up their eyes and behold the field white unto the harvest. The decisions which have been made in various lines have shown that some of the men chosen were not men of consecrated ability, men who were of value because of their experience in living connection with God. They became self-important, wise in their own conceit. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 10

Men have been given the work of judging whether or not a book was of value, who were not sufficiently intelligent in regard to the matter to be entrusted with this work. They needed to realize their ignorance, to become educated. They needed to wear Christ's yoke, and learn of Him who is meek and lowly in heart. They needed to heed the injunction, "Therefore shall ye keep all the commandments which I command you this day, that ye may be strong, and go in to possess the land whither ye go to possess it." "Lay up these my words in your heart and in your soul, and bind them for a sign upon your hand, that they may be as frontlets between your eyes. And ye shall teach them your children, speaking of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, when thou liest down, and when thou risest up." [Deuteronomy 11:8, 18, 19.]14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 11

Eternal vigilance is the price of safety. Had these requirements, which are even more essential at this time when everything is ripening for the great day of God than they were in the time of the children of Israel, been heeded, a different condition would now be seen. The most decided strength of purpose should have been shown lest Satan should beguile through his specious devices. The people should have been taken into the counsels, and interested in the work. Matters should have been laid out before them that they might have known how the means which they had invested were being handled.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 12

The president of the General Conference has altogether too many burdens for one man to carry. For years this has been presented to me. My husband fell under the heavy draughts made upon him. Elder Butler was counseled by the Lord to share his burdens with men who could counsel with him. They were to be given a portion of the load. But this counsel was unheeded. Elder Butler linked with him his own son, who could only be a worker under his father. Thus the relief which it was pointed out Elder Butler should have, he did not have, because he did not manage wisely.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 13

Elder Olsen was advised to share his burdens with men who could help him. The work of the General Conference should never have rested on one man. At first one man could carry it, but as believers multiplied, the man must suffer as well as the work, which needed careful thought and the utmost firmness, in order that right principles might be maintained. The Lord did not give Elder Olsen the work of engaging in the publishing business. The publishing institutions were established to carry forward important interests. But men who were not under the divine guidance were given management in them. At the very heart of the work erroneous principles were pressing for recognition. All matters should have been laid before the people. The Lord should have been sought in humble prayer. Then the Holy Spirit would have been their teacher. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 14

But the conferences at large were not enlightened in regard to what was being done. Men were linked up with Elder Olsen who led him and imbued him with their spirit. Unrebuked, corruption was going on at the heart of the work. The cause of God in our institutions was being perverted. Men were exalted, regardless of the advice God was giving. Covetousness held sway. Judas-practices were contaminating the workers. No language can be framed to describe the result of placing unfaithful, unconverted men in holy places. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 15

Some have been trying to struggle to the light, but there are secret things which have not come to light. Many poor souls will not be able to enter in at the strait gate; for it is altogether too narrow to admit any of Satan's intrigue and deceptions. When the Holy Spirit breaks away the barriers, the lawyers will no longer be called upon to adjust difficulties for God's people. God will take the matter in hand and bring to light every hidden thing. He will bring men into places where they will speak, and things which are now involved in mystery will be revealed, and their bearing on His cause will be seen. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 16

Lessons From Israel

The Jewish nation had a history of a most remarkable character. The Christ of the New Testament was the Christ of the Old. The Lord did indeed hedge His vineyard about to guard it. He guarded it with His law. In Eden the marriage law and the Sabbath law were plainly and distinctly defined, that there might be no ignorance or misunderstanding on the part of the people. When God had finished the work of creation, He rested on the seventh day. He blessed the day of His rest, while the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 17

The Lord spoke to Abraham when he was living in a nation of idolaters. He desired to make him a chosen instrument, by giving him the light of the laws of His kingdom. But first Abraham must break his connection with his father's family, separating from their influence that he might be taught by God. Jehovah was to be the object of his worship.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 18

Abraham obeyed God. He left his father's house, and went into a strange land. There the Lord educated him. He spoke to him, saying, "Fear not, Abram: I am thy shield, and thy exceeding great reward." [Genesis 15:1.] Again, when Abraham was ninety-nine years old, the Lord appeared to him, and said, "I am the Almighty God; walk before me, and be thou perfect. And I will make my covenant between me and thee, and will multiply thee exceedingly. And Abram fell on his face: and God talked with him, saying, As for me, behold, my covenant is with thee, and thou shalt be a father of many nations." [Genesis 17:1-4.]14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 19

Abraham was called the father of the faithful. His connection with God showed that he was determined to walk in the fear of the Lord in his home life. "I know him," said the Searcher of hearts—He who blesses the habitation of the faithful—"that he will command his children and his household after him, and they shall keep the way of the Lord, to do justice and judgment." [Genesis 18:19.] He will keep the law instituted in Eden as the standard of character.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 20

The Lord made Abraham His husbandry, His building. He was material upon which God could work. In the fear of the Lord he cultivated home religion, and the love of God circulated through his entire household. He had a church in his home. He was the instructor of the many souls connected with him. He began and carried forward a grand work. He and his family were subjects of God's kingdom. By the combined influence of authority and love, he ruled his house. He walked in his home in perfect, trusting obedience to a "Thus saith the Lord."14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 21

The Hebrew nation went down to Egypt, and for four hundred years they were kept in Egyptian servitude. After Joseph's death the worship of the Egyptians made such an impression on their minds that the sight of their eyes and the hearing of their ears were corrupted. They lost the true knowledge of God.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 22

According to His promise to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, God delivered the Israelites from slavery, desolating the fertile land of Egypt to rescue His people. In awful grandeur He delivered them from the Egyptian host who pursued them. Not one of those who entered the Red Sea in pursuit of the people the Lord had chosen as His own, was saved.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 23

One equal with God, His only-begotten Son, Christ carried out His Father's mind in the deliverance of the Israelites. God had promised Moses, "My presence shall go with thee" [Exodus 33:14], and He fulfilled this promise by giving Christ to be the invisible Leader of His people, while Moses was chosen to be their visible general. Christ guided them in their travels through the wilderness, indicating where they should encamp. Through Moses He communicated His will and purpose to more than a million people. Through forty years of wilderness-wandering He was their Instructor.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 24

They had reached the river Jordan, and spies were sent to view the land of Canaan. Under the working of the wily foe, ten of these brought back an evil report, and when the people heard it, "they murmured against Moses and against Aaron and the whole congregation said unto them, Would God that we had died in the land of Egypt! or would God we had died in this wilderness! And wherefore hath the Lord brought us unto this land, to fall by the sword, that our wives and our children should be a prey? Were it not better for us to return into Egypt? And they said one to another, Let us make a captain, and let us return into Egypt." [Numbers 14:2-4.] For this rebellion and perversity the Lord declared that for 40 years they were to wander in the wilderness.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 25

God designs that His glory shall appear in the working out of His will. His wonderful deliverance of the children of Israel was ever to be repeated by the people. By what He had done they were to know that He would accomplish what He had undertaken. All man's resistance would only make the victory more signal and triumphant. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 26

The camp of Israel was not easily managed. Murmurers, complainers, and faultfinders were constantly met with, and the management of the camp was a serious undertaking for Moses. But patiently the Lord cared for and worked with His vineyard. He had selected His people, not from the rich and powerful of the world, but because they were the smallest of all people. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 27

From Sinai the Lord spoke His law, making a wonderful display of His glory. There He made a covenant with all who promised to be obedient to His law. Obedience to the Sabbath was to be a sign between Him and His people, "that ye may know," He said, "that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. ... Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel for ever." [Exodus 31:13, 16, 17.] 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 28

The wonderful deliverance of the Jewish church reveals God's great care and love. He designed that through the channel of this people His blessings should flow to the whole world. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 29

Lessons From the History of the Early Christian Church

"And in those days, when the number of the disciples was multiplied, there arose a murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministrations. Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables." [Acts 6:1, 2.] 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 30

This matter was not decided by one man. Had it been, many things would have been neglected. "The twelve called the multitude of the disciples” together. They did not call a lawyer who had no personal interest in the prosperity of the church. They called the multitude of the believers, and said to them, “It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables.” [Verse 2.]14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 31

More was said regarding the matter than is given in this record. But the conclusion is stated: “Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business. But we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word. And the saying pleased the whole multitude.” They chose seven men, “whom they set before the apostles; and when they had prayed, they laid their hands on them. And the word of God increased; and the number of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly; and a great company of the priests were obedient to the faith.” [Verses 3-7.]14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 32

The Lord here gives us an example of the care that should be exercised when choosing men for His service. In this case, one man was not made the only burden-bearer of great responsibilities. Seven men were chosen, and they were to be closely united in their work.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 33

Those chosen were not to be like Ananias, who had appropriated to his own use certain sums of money, representing at the same time that he had given the whole amount to the cause of God. At that time, we read, that “as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the price of the things that were sold, and laid them at the apostles’ feet.” [Acts 4:34, 35.] This was an occasion of temptation to the selfish and covetous, notwithstanding the fact that the Holy Spirit was working among the people. Hereditary and cultivated traits of character developed, showing that all were not cleansed from their evil tendencies, but dared to practice lying and fraud. None of them were compelled to give up their possessions.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 34

Ananias and Sapphira wished to be regarded as giving all, and yet keep part. In order to do this, they falsified. Both of them agreed to practice deception, but they did it at the cost of their lives. God struck them both with death. Thus He passed judgment on those who, while His grace and light and power were working, dared to commit sin against the Holy Spirit. This God did to warn the believers against fraud and deception and every species of dishonesty. He knew that doors of temptation would open before those who were bringing in of their means to sustain His cause. He knew that those not under the control of His Spirit would be tempted to work as they had done before they were brought under gospel principles. Some would think that they were not paid sufficient for their work, and would appropriate money or goods to supply this fancied deficiency. This would bring in untold evil.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 35

For this reason the Lord directed Peter to deal as he did with the first departure from truthful dealing. A severe warning must be given at the very first instance of dishonesty. Thus it was shown that all unjust, selfish actions are known to God, and will be searched out. Every hidden evil, however secret, will be punished. God will be glorified in those who serve Him.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 36

As with Ananias and Sapphira, so it was with Judas. His covetousness led him to steal from the Lord's treasury. He carried the bag containing the gifts made by Christ's followers to sustain the work, and he appropriated sums of money which he never allowed to appear on the account. He reasoned that his labors were not sufficiently appreciated, and therefore that it was right for him to pay himself in accordance with his own ideas. This principle, acted upon, perverted his conscience. Had he allowed himself to be controlled by the Holy Spirit, he would have retained righteousness and preserved integrity. He would not have accused Mary of extravagance in anointing Christ with precious ointment. But from the very first act of dishonesty, his character began to deteriorate.14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 37

This history is given that corruption may not be brought into the church by men who sell themselves to Satan to carry out his suggestions. Such men not only take themselves from under God's protection, and lose peace and happiness, but they will betray the cause of God into the hands of sinners. All their work is against God. Their talents of usefulness are used to forward the work of the great deceiver. They will lose eternal life. Their misappropriation of the Lord's goods, their robbery of His treasury, may ever be kept secret, but it is at the loss of their souls. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 38

This is one reason why Brother Ballenger's proposed enterprise of establishing a settlement in the South would not be a safe one. There are those who are supposed to be excellent men, but they have some flaw in their character which, under special temptation, becomes as a dead fly in the ointment. The whole character will be perverted by one unconfessed sin. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 39

Then let all plans to establish a community in the Southern field be abandoned. Let not one or two men devise methods of work which according to foresight promise to be a success, but which aftersight will reveal to be a mistake, involving the work of God in difficulty. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 40

The workers in God's service need to be as wise as serpents and as harmless as doves. This kind of talent is especially needed in the work in the South. There are men who if they choose can make it very hard for those who take hold of the work in any part of the field, because their hearts are not linked with the heart of the great Worker. They need to be controlled by the Spirit of God, else they will make great blunders, which will imperil their own souls and the souls of their fellow men. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 41

God calls for a living, straightforward testimony to be borne. Testimonies have been borne, but a new impulse must be given to the work. Jesus Christ is the Captain of the Lord's host. He must be recognized as the Leader. All who heed the words, "Follow me," will reveal the fruit of obedience. The ground upon which we are to stand unitedly in doing God's service is that the Bible is the true guide, and not the idle sophistry of men. The Bible is our Counselor, and is to be obeyed. 14LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 42

Justification by faith is the article of our true standing in the sight of God. Sanctification through the Holy Spirit binds up man's will and purpose with the will and purpose of God. If we have not these features in our experience, the church will be sickly and feeble. The safety of God's people is in coming to His living Word. When no human authority is put before this Word, then will men unite in gospel harmony, for the doing of the Word binds heart to heart, causing the workers to blend as one in Christ Jesus. The living Oracles are fresh and beautiful. To study them is to eat the flesh and drink the blood of the Son of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 43

Greater care should be taken in regard to the spirit circulating through the institutions at the heart of the work. All should bear the signature of God. All the workers are to humble their hearts before the Lord, acknowledging His sovereignty. All are to work in humility of mind, as servants of Christ, yoked up with Him. All are to live lives of self-denial and self-sacrifice. They are to learn Christ's meekness and lowliness. No vestige of an overbearing spirit will then be seen.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 91, 1899, par. 44

The Importance of Christ's Lessons to His Church in the Wilderness

NP

July 12, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in CG 79-80, 7BC 932-933, 936; 7ABC 460, 4MR 245. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the use of edifying, that it may minister grace unto the hearers. And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are sealed unto the day of redemption. Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamor, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice; and be ye kind one to another, tenderhearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you.” [Ephesians 4:29-32.] “Be ye therefore followers of God as dear children; and walk in love, as Christ also hath loved us, and hath given himself for us an offering, and a sacrifice to God for a sweet smelling savor.” [Ephesians 5:1, 2.] 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 1

Here are presented the possibilities and probabilities before the Christian. The talent of speech ranks with the highest gifts. “If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle also the whole body.” “Who is a wise man, and endued with knowledge among you, let him show out of a good conversation his works with meekness and wisdom. But if ye have bitter envying and strife in your heart, glory not, and lie not against the truth.” [James 3:2, 13, 14.] Words, spoken under the sanctification of the Spirit, are of great value. The voice is a talent which if improved cannot be measured. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 2

Industry is a talent. God has given to men and women a body, and members which compose the body. The head, the hands, the feet, the eyes, the ears, the heart, and every organ, are parts of the living machinery. "We are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] Education does not consist in using the brain alone. The hands must act their part in the education. Physical employment is a part of the education essential for every student. Education is lacking in an important line if the students are not taught how to exercise their muscles in useful labor. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 3

Students who have not been educated to be practical men and women, able to work in business lines, cannot claim to be educated. The energies which should have been devoted to business of various lines have been neglected. The students have obtained book knowledge without a knowledge of physical labor. Their object is to obtain a professorship, and then, if they have a school, they in their turn educate the youth without teaching them how to use their physical powers to obtain knowledge in various lines. They have a defective education. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 4

The physical, mental, and moral powers combined must be used in working together with God. There must be a union of action, an equal taxation of all the powers. In His great goodness God has endowed the human agent with capabilities, so that he may co-operate with God in the great work Christ came to our world to do. The Saviour gave His life, His whole being, for the accomplishment of the work. We are laborers together with God. Every worker in the Lord's vineyard should know how to carry on the great trust left in his charge as a faithful steward for God. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 5

Man must gather more and more knowledge, adding to the abilities God has given him, contributing rays of light for the benefit of those who shall take up the work after him. New, fresh ideas and appliances should be added to the general stock, developing more and more perfectly the Lord's plans for the education of the youth in our schools, taking up the instruction the Lord Jesus Christ gave when He was the invisible Leader of more than a million people, which His own right hand had delivered from Egyptian bondage. We can gather no purer and stronger intelligence than Christ gave as the Leader of that vast congregation. The instruction coming from Him is the higher education. He taught His people to educate and train their children to be practical in all their service to God, to be pure, clean, holy in obeying all His commandments.14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 6

The work of building the tabernacle is a lesson book for all the students in our schools. The method, organization, discipline, [and] tact shown in the work teach important lessons. All was to be done according to the education given to Moses in the mount. And the children had their part to act as they journeyed through the wilderness. There were to be no idlers in the encampment. To every one was assigned a part. This was to give the people increasing confidence in the soundness of the methods and lessons given to Moses to be given to them. As they travelled, their march was a lesson in order and unity. The under-educators were to learn the commandments of God, which were set to song, and the very tread of the people through the wilderness was to teach order and discipline. They were to follow where their educators led the way.14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 7

Their Leader gave special directions to Moses, to be given to the responsible men, that as they advanced step by step, the children were to be taught, singing as they journeyed. Through the forty years of wilderness-wandering the people, young and old, were given a variety of exercises, which demanded the exercise of brain, bone, and muscle. Christ was their Teacher, and every lesson given was preserved in writing, to be given by Moses to the people in their travels. Nothing in the plan or management was to be criticized, for it was the higher education.14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 8

Had modern teachers in literary and physical lines drawn their lessons and principles of action from the principles of the Old Testament, there would be today a vast difference in the text books used in our educational institutions. There are a mass of valueless lesson books. The very best thing that teachers can do is to take the words of the great Teacher to the congregation of Israel, for the mental, physical, and moral improvement of the powers of the whole being, for the formation of right sentiments, for the development of practical usefulness.14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 9

All the knowledge which can be imparted in philosophy, mathematics, languages, history, law, and medicine is not sufficient to bring forth from our schools well-trained, educated scholars. All that is learned through the medium of books and experiments, through the teaching of professors, the student can take from school with him; but he is not educated unless he has the highest knowledge that a human being can possess, knowledge which is after the divine similitude of the teaching given by Christ when enshrouded in the pillar of cloud. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 10

He who understands the laws of God's kingdom, and how to conduct himself in this world as a citizen of heaven, works upon the highest principles for his present and eternal good. If he takes heed to the instruction which fell from the lips of Jesus Christ as He educated His church in the wilderness, he possesses a mind habituated to dwell upon, to observe, the teaching of the great I AM. He has the higher education. He has a clear perception of what constitutes higher education. The mental powers will become strengthened, as in the case of Daniel, when students shall, like Daniel, place themselves, in the fear of the Lord, under the most favorable conditions to learn the lessons given to our world regarding the knowledge of the only true God and Jesus Christ whom He has sent. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 11

Mental discipline is required in our schools that the students may understand that Christ, the greatest of all Teachers, is giving them correct lessons. Knowledge is obtained by the practical working out of these lessons. All the efforts of our teachers are to be made to keep one definite object before the students—the outline of God's expressed will. The books that have been issued by infidels should not find place in our schools. What is God's covenant with the people He is seeking to save today, in 1899? What are the terms of salvation? What is the education which is of the most value today. We are told in the forty-second, forty-ninth, fifty-first, fifty-second, fifty-fifth, and fifty-eighth chapters of Isaiah, and in the twenty-eighth and twenty-ninth chapters of Exodus. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 12

It has been ever a grievous dishonor to God, our Creator and our Redeemer, that so little attention is given to the incarnation and mediation of Christ. He offered Himself as a sacrifice to God. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Why should not the students in our schools be taught that it was Christ who gave Himself for the sins of the world because of Adam's transgression? Christ has purchased the world by making a ransom for it, by taking human nature. He was not only the offering, but He Himself was the Offerer. He clothed his divinity with humanity, and voluntarily took upon Him human nature, making it possible to offer Himself as a ransom. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 13

"I am the living bread which came down from heaven," He said. "If any man eat of this bread he shall live for ever." It is the tree of life. "And the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world. ... Whoso eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood hath eternal life, and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed. He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood dwelleth in me and I in him. As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father; so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me. ... It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the flesh profiteth nothing; the words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." [John 6:51, 54-57, 63.]14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 14

Christ was without sin, else His life in human flesh and His death on the cross would have been of no more value in procuring grace for the sinner than the death of any other man. While He took upon Him humanity, it was a life taken into union with Deity. He could lay down His life as priest and also victim. He possessed in Himself power to lay it down and take it up again. He offered Himself without spot to God. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 15

The atonement of Christ sealed forever the everlasting covenant of grace. It was the fulfilling of every condition upon which God suspended the free communication of grace to the human family. Every barrier was then broken down which intercepted the freest fulness of the exercise of grace, mercy, peace, and love to the most guilty of Adam's race. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 16

The diligent, painstaking teacher will present an education to his students that is as broad as the world, reaching to the highest heaven, and education which cannot be completed in this world. This education will be continued through eternal ages in the higher grade. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 17

Christ's priestly intercession is now going on in the sanctuary above in our behalf. But how few have a real understanding that our great High Priest presents before the Father His own blood, claiming for the sinner who receives Him as his personal Saviour all the graces which His covenant embraces as the reward of His sacrifice. This sacrifice made Him abundantly able to save to the uttermost all that come unto God by Him, seeing He liveth to make intercession for them. May the Lord teach His people the importance of the subjects and principles which concern the preparation for the higher school. They know so little compared with what they might know if they understood what is comprehended in higher education. May the Lord increase our perceptive faculties, enabling us to learn the lessons which mean so much to every soul. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 18

Love brought Christ down from heaven to be our Teacher. All the words spoken by Him when enshrouded in the pillar of cloud are of the highest value to fathers and mothers in teaching their children. Lessons may be learned from the preparation made in following the precise directions given by the One who was leading that vast congregation in the wilderness. His words are of the highest value also to the educators in our schools. The neglect to practice the principles given by Christ to His church in the wilderness is the explanation of the destruction of Jerusalem, and the dispersion of the Jews to all parts of the world. Had they been faithful to their sacred trust, they would have advanced in experience, and would have stood above every nation upon the face of the earth. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 19

These lessons God designed should be kept before every family. "All Scripture is given by inspiration, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." [2 Timothy 3:16, 17.] What is to be done in this our school in Cooranbong? Teach those things that will keep Christ ever before the students. They should receive this instruction into their hearts, and should practice it. This would be to them as eating of the tree of life. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 20

The Lord is soon to come, and the great burden of all who love God should be to co-operate with Him, and by repentance and faith accept the provisions made, that the covenant of God may be fulfilled in them. We must first receive the holy oil which is emptied out of the two olive branches, that we may impart it to others. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 21

There is abundant encouragement for every teacher, fathers, mothers, educators in our schools, to educate, educate, line upon line, and precept upon precept. Everything else is of a secondary consideration. Christ is their sufficiency. In taking the nature of man He was exposed to all the sharpness of temptation, all the bitterness of the keenest sorrow, as He saw so many yielding to Satan's devices. He can sympathize with all who are tempted. He was made like unto them in all things, that He might know how to deliver the godly out of temptation. We have every encouragement to draw nigh unto God through Christ; for we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feelings of our infirmities, but who was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 22

“Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy, and find grace to help in time of need.” [Hebrews 4:16.] “The Word was made flesh and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth. ... And of his fullness have all we received, and grace for grace.” “He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life, and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him.” [John 1:14, 16; 3:36.]14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 23

This is the education that is to be given to our students. The manner of Christ's instruction is to be followed. His words are to be voiced. Of those who will lay hold of Him in earnest faith, conforming themselves to Him in soul, body, and spirit, by self-denial, as did Daniel, that their mental powers may be sharp and clear, of all who place themselves in right relation to God, it may be said as of the Hebrew captives: “As for these four children, God gave them knowledge”—bear in mind that education is knowledge only through practice—“and skill in all learning and wisdom, and

Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams.14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 24

“Now at the end of the days that the king had said he should bring them in, then the prince of the eunuchs brought them in before Nebuchadnezzar. And the king communed with them; and among them all was found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; therefore they stood before the king. And in all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king inquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm.” [Daniel 1:17-20.]14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 25

This may be the history of the youth who attend our schools if they are willing to practice self-denial, and to learn that the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. Like Aaron, who symbolized Christ, the Saviour bears the names of all His people upon His heart in the holy place. Our great High Priest remembers all the words by which He has encouraged them to trust, for He is ever mindful of His covenant.14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 26

“He hath made his wonderful works to be remembered: the Lord is gracious and full of compassion. He hath given meat unto them that fear him; he will ever be mindful of his covenant. ... The works of his hands are verity and judgment. All his commandments are sure. They stand fast forever and ever, and are done in truth and uprightness. He sent redemption unto his people; he hath commanded his covenant forever. Holy and reverend is his name. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom: a good understanding have all they that keep his commandments: his praise endureth forever.” [Psalms 111:4, 5, 7-10.]14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 27

The standard that Christ gave by word of mouth to Moses is a standard of absolute completeness—the perfection of the Saviour’s character. By beholding Christ today, tomorrow, in our families, in the church, we are to educate the youth to behold Him, to teach diligently His words spoken to the children of Israel. We are to regard these words as the words of God.14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 28

“And Moses went up unto God, and the Lord called unto him out of the mountain, saying, Thus shalt thou say to the house of Jacob, and tell the children of Israel: Ye have seen what I did unto the Egyptians, and how I bare you on eagles' wings, and brought you unto myself. Now therefore, if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people; for all the earth is mine; and ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests, an holy nation." [Exodus 19:3-6.]14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 29

"Behold, I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the Lord my God commanded me, that ye should do so in the land whither ye go to possess it. Keep therefore and do them; for this is your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people. For what nation is there so great, who hath God so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is in all things that we call upon him for?" [Deuteronomy 4:5-7.]14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 30

"These are the commandments, the statutes, the judgments, which the Lord your God commanded to teach you, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go to possess it, that thou mightest fear the Lord thy God, to keep all his statutes and his commandments, which I command thee, thou, and thy son, and thy son's son, all the days of thy life, that thy days may be prolonged. Hear therefore, O Israel, and observe to do it; that it may be well with thee, and that ye may increase mightily, as the Lord God of thy fathers hath promised thee, in the land that floweth with milk and honey." 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 31

"Hear, O Israel; the Lord our God is one Lord, and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be in thine heart: and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up." [Deuteronomy 6:1-7.]14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 32

The life of Christ was one of obedience. Let fathers, mothers, and the educators in our schools remember that it is a higher branch of education to teach children obedience. Altogether too little importance is attached to this line of education. The Old Testament Scriptures contain lessons taught by Christ, the One who loved us, and gave Himself for us. The history of Adam and Eve's disobedience in the very beginning of this earth's history is fully given. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 33

By that one act of disobedience our first parents lost their beautiful Eden home. And it was such a little thing! We have reason to be thankful that it was not a larger matter, because if it had been, little disregards in disobedience would have been multiplied. It was the least test that God could give the holy pair in Eden. Disobedience and transgression are ever a great offense to God. Unfaithfulness in that which is least will soon, if uncorrected, lead to transgression in that which is great. It is not the greatness of the disobedience, but the disobedience itself, which is the crime. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 34

Christ was obedient unto death. He prayed, "If it be possible, let this cup pass from me. Nevertheless, not my will, but thy will, O God, be done." [Matthew 26:39.] "If by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous." [Romans 5:19.] The garden of Eden, with its disobedience and transgression, and its penalty of death, stands before us in contrast with the garden of Gethsemane, where Christ agonized at the thought of standing as a sinner against the Father He loved, to be separated and bear the chastisement, to be treated as an enemy, that through Him the world might be saved. The thought wrung from His pale and quivering lips the words, If it be possible to save man in any other way, let this cup pass from Me. But Thy will, not Mine, be done. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 35

A great agony was upon the Saviour, and sweat drops of blood fell from His brow and moistened the sods of Gethsemane. His intercession of agony brought a strong angel from glory to soothe and strengthen the divine Sufferer. Let every parent, every educator, with the love of Jesus in his heart, present the scenes of Gethsemane and the judgment hall. 14LtMs, Ms 92, 1899, par. 36

Words of Instruction from the Apostle Paul

NP

July 13, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 6BC 1089; 7BC 912, 924; TDG 203. +Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“Know ye not,” Paul asks, “that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run, that ye may obtain. And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things. Now they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible. I therefore so run, not as uncertainly; so fight I, not as one that beateth the air.” [1 Corinthians 9:24-26.] 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 1

Thus Paul presents the conditions which God imposes upon every soul who enlists in His service. The apostle fears for himself, lest he shall fail of bearing the examination test and be found wanting, and he places himself under severe training. So the Christian today needs to keep strict guard over his appetite. He needs to subject himself to severe training, that he may not run uncertainly or at random, without seeing his standard and striving to reach it. He must obey the laws of God. The physical, mental, and moral powers must be kept in the most perfect condition if he would obtain the approval of God. “I keep under my body,” the apostle says. [Verse 27.] This means literally to beat back its desires and impulses and passions by severe discipline, even as did those competing for an earthly prize. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 2

Paul continues, “Moreover, brethren, I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses, in the cloud and in the sea.” [1 Corinthians 10:1, 2.] By the power of that invisible Presence all Israel were enshrouded in the pillar of cloud, and all were baptized unto Moses, in the cloud and in the sea. The signs given by God to Moses placed the children of Israel under his guidance, as the acknowledged, visible leader of the chosen people of God. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 3

Though Paul sat, a diligent student, at the feet of Gamaliel, he also learned a trade. He was an educated tentmaker. It was the custom among the Jews, the wealthy as well as the poorer classes, to train their sons and daughters to some useful employment, so that should adverse circumstances come, they would not be dependent on others, but would have educated ability to provide for their own necessities. They might be instructed in literary lines, but they must also be trained to some craft. This was deemed an indispensable part of their education. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 4

The testimony of Paul and Aquila is that by their occupation they were tentmakers. While they preached the gospel Paul and his companion wrought at their trade as tentmakers, and in doing this they could give a more thorough knowledge of Christ to those who heard them. They labored that they might obtain means for support. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 5

Paul taught the Scriptures, as well as working at his trade. The twentieth chapter of Acts gives the history of his earnest labors. "From Miletus he sent to Ephesus, and called the elders of the church. And when they were come to him, he said unto them, Ye know, from the first day that I came into Asia, after what manner I have been with you at all seasons, serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and in many tears, and temptations, which befell me by the lying in wait of the Jews: and how I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but had showed you, and taught you publicly, and from house to house, testifying both to the Jews, and also to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ. ... 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 6

"And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, shall see my face no more. Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men. For I have not shunned to declare unto you all the counsel of God. Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood. For I know this, that after my departure shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them. Therefore watch, and remember, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn everyone night and day with tears. And now, brethren, I commend you to God and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are sanctified. I have coveted no man's silver or gold or apparel. Yea, ye yourselves know, that these hands have ministered unto my necessities, and to them that were with me.”

[Verses 17-21, 25-34.]14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 7

Paul is not speaking mysteries. He is appealing to their knowledge of his manner of life. In Corinth he had lived and labored with Aquila and Priscilla, instructing them more perfectly in the truth. The great apostle was not ashamed or afraid of work, and he did not treat this subject as in any way lowering to his work in the ministry. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 8

Again he says, to the brethren in Thessalonica, “Finally brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free course, and be glorified, even as it is with you, and that we may be delivered from unreasonable and wicked men; for all men have not faith. But the Lord is faithful, who shall stablish you, and keep you from evil, and we have confidence in the Lord touching you, that ye both do and will do the things which we command you. And the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ. Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which ye received of us. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 9

“For yourselves know how ye ought to follow us; for we behaved not ourselves disorderly among you; neither did we eat any man's bread for nought; but wrought with labor and travail night and day, that we might not be chargeable to any of you; not because we have not power, but to make ourselves an ensample unto you to follow us. For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat. For we hear that there are some which walk among you disorderly, working not at all, but are busybodies. Now them that are such we command and exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread. But ye, brethren, be not weary in well doing." [2 Thessalonians 3:1-13.]14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 10

The greatest care is necessary that every obstruction may be removed from the church, that no stumbling block shall be placed in the way of sinners by an inconsistent course in those who profess the faith. The name of the Lord is to be glorified in the virtuous, honest, godly character of those who believe; for if men walk humbly and prayerfully with God, manifesting His divine power, and co-operating with Him in the work of salvation, righteousness will be the fruit they will bear.14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 11

The apostle in his day considered idleness a sin, and those who indulge this evil today disgrace their profession. They will criticize the faithful worker, and bring reproach upon the gospel of Christ. Those who would believe, they turn from the way of truth and righteousness. We should be warned not to associate with those who by their course of action lay a stumbling block in the way of others. "If any man obey not our word by this epistle," the apostle says, "note that man, and have no company with him, that he may be ashamed. Yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother." [Verses 14, 15.] If he refuses the admonition of the Lord's servants, and follows his own will and judgment under the inspiration of his leader, Satan, he will bring ruin upon himself, and must bear his own sin.14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 12

The custom of supporting men and women in idleness by private gifts or church money encourages them in sinful habits, and this course should be conscientiously avoided. Every man, woman, and child should be educated to do practical, useful work. All should learn some trade. It may be tentmaking, or it may be business in other lines; but all should be educated to use the members of their body to some purpose, and God is ready and willing to increase the adaptability of all who will educate themselves to industrious habits.14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 13

If a man in good physical health has property, and has no need of entering into employment for his own support, he should labor to acquire means that he may advance the cause and work of God. He is to be “not slothful in business; fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.” [Romans 12:11.] God will bless all who guard their influence <in regard to> others in this respect. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 14

Health and physical strength are established by the use and improvement of every opportunity to be useful. Diligence in business is highly appropriate, and in no case need it quench fervency of spirit in our service for the Lord. The apostle Paul was not ashamed of honest labor. He did not consider it demeaning that teachers, educators of the youth, or ministers of the gospel should labor with their hands as circumstances demanded. Physical development is essential if we would preserve all parts of the living machinery in health. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 15

This education in physical lines would save many men in high positions from premature death. Intemperance in eating and drinking has cut short millions of lives. Many influential men have sacrificed health and life itself by their indulgence at feasts and dinners and late suppers, by indulging in wine and liquor drinking. The history of Daniel and his fellows is written for our instruction. These youth practiced total abstinence from all intoxicating drinks. We should abstain from everything that is hurtful, and we should be temperate in our use of that class of food which, if taken in proper quantities and at proper times, will build up the human structure, keep the brain clear, the breath pure, the stomach strong to do its appointed work. Do not crowd the hours for eating too closely together. Give the stomach periods of entire rest, and the food that is placed in the mouth, do not bolt it down without masticating it, thus leaving to the digestive organs the work which the teeth should do. As a rule men in official positions eat food at all times and on all occasions, and this is the cause of so much disease and suffering. Gout, apoplexy, paralysis, and death are the result. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 16

As a child and youth Jesus worked with His father Joseph and learned the trade of a carpenter, a builder. His trade was significant. He was indeed a character-builder, and as such all His labors were perfect. At the age of twelve, on His return from His first visit to Jerusalem, His parents lost Him, and returning to Jerusalem they sought Him sorrowing. They found Him in the temple, sitting among the doctors, hearing them and asking them questions. He was imparting light to their darkened and confused minds, and all who heard Him were astonished at His understanding and answers. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 17

When His parents saw Him, and heard His questions and answers to the dignitaries of the temple, they were amazed, and scarcely knew what to say. His mother said, "Son, why hast thou dealt thus with us? Behold, thy father and I have sought thee sorrowing." The wise doctors were surprised to hear His answer, "How is it that ye sought me? wist ye not that I must be about my Father's business?" [Luke 2:48, 49.] As He said these words, He raised His hand to heaven. Divinity flashed through humanity. His countenance was lighted up like the face of an angel. Neither parents or doctors understood His words. They were a mystery which they could not understand, but a solemn awe fell upon them. "And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was subject unto them; but his mother kept all these sayings in her heart. And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." [Verses 51, 52.] 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 18

To His chosen church in the wilderness Christ taught the lessons essential for them to know in order to win a crown of life. All are bound to obey the law of God. All may be educated to see the grievous result of sin. No man can feel the justice and mercy of God in the destruction of the sinner until he beholds Christ as the Sin-bearer, bearing the stroke of the justice of God. Christ, as our Substitute and Surety, stands at the head of the offending order, and says, Lay the sins of man to My account. All who will may find pardon for their transgressions. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 19

The temptations to which Christ was subjected were a terrible reality. As a free agent He was placed on probation, with liberty to pass under Satan's jurisdiction, to work at cross-purposes with God. If this were not so, if there was no possibility of His falling, He could not be tempted in all points as the human family is tempted. If it were impossible for Him to yield to temptation, it was no temptation to Him. And the temptations of Christ, and His suffering under them, were proportionate to His exalted, sinless character. Says the apostle, "Ye have not resisted unto blood, striving against sin." [Hebrews 12:4.] Christ did resist unto blood in that hour when the fear of moral failure was as the fear of death. As the world's Redeemer bowed in Gethsemane, His soul-agony was so great that drops of blood fell from the pores of His skin, and moistened the sods of the earth. He prayed with strong crying and tears, and He was heard in that He feared. God strengthened Him as He will strengthen all who humble themselves as Christ humbled Himself, all who will throw themselves, soul, body, and spirit, into the hands of a covenant-keeping God. 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 20

Upon the cross Christ knew as no other can know the awful power of Satan's temptation, and His heart was called out in pity and forgiveness for the dying thief who had been ensnared by the enemy. How marvelously that power has been exercised against the human family, against Him who has undertaken their cause! 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 21

The disciple John writes, "My little children, These things write I unto you that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous. And he is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world. And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected." [1 John 2:1-5.] 14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 22

The Captain of our salvation was perfected through suffering. His soul was made an offering for sin. It was necessary for the awful darkness to gather about His soul because of the withdrawal of the Father's love and favor, for He was standing in the sinner's place, and this darkness every sinner must experience. The righteous One must suffer the condemnation and wrath of God, not in vindictiveness; for the heart of God yearned with greatest sorrow when His Son, <the Guiltless,> was suffering the penalty of sin. This sundering of the divine powers will never again occur throughout the eternal ages. In His expiring agony nature sympathized with her suffering, dying Author. The sun was darkened. The rocks were rent. There was a great earthquake, and many graves were opened as Christ with a loud voice cried, "It is finished. Father, into thy hands I commit my spirit." "Now when the centurion saw what was done, he glorified God, saying, Certainly this was a righteous man." [John 19:30; Luke 23:46, 47.]14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 23

I know not how to trace these words. I would try to make sin appear as the terrible thing that it is, that students and teachers may not feel it a small thing to sin. It was sin that caused all this suffering to the Son of God. These things should be considered. Let not teachers refrain from exercising all their God-given power to restrain sin in the students. Let ministers and all who claim to be children of God work as never before to counterwork iniquity. We must respect and reverence Christ and all who are laboring with God to eradicate evil. Let teachers and ministers and all who handle sacred things depart from all iniquity. "Blessed are they that do his commandments," John declares, "that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." [Revelation 22:14.]14LtMs, Ms 93, 1899, par. 24

Ms 93a, 1899

Sermon/Closing Address at the Australasian Union Conference Session

[Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia]

July 23, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 1SAT 304-311.

“These words spake Jesus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee: As thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent. I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do.” John 17:1-4. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 1

While we know Christ in one sense, that He is the Saviour of the world, it means more than this. We must have a personal knowledge and experience in Christ Jesus, an experimental knowledge of Christ, what He is to us, and what we are to Christ. That is the experience that everyone wants. Now, I cannot have it for any of you, nor can you have it for me. The work that is to be done for us is to be through the manifestation of the Holy Spirit of God upon human minds and human hearts. The heart must be purified and sanctified. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 2

I need not tell any of you that it is so, because you know it. Not one of us needs to feel a doubt as to where we are, or to think, “I wish I knew where I stood before God,” but, by living faith, we must sink ourselves in God; and when we do that, His life will shine upon us. There is not a particle of need of our being in a state of inefficiency and coldness. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 3

What is the matter with us? “If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him.” [James 1:5.] It shall be given him. There are no “ifs” nor “ands” about it. “But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering.”

[Verse 6.]14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 4

You pray, and ask God for wisdom, strength, and efficiency, and feel that you must have them, but perhaps, right after that prayer, it will seem as though a hellish shadow of Satan was cast right athwart your pathway, and you see nothing beyond. What was that? Why, the devil wanted to obscure your faith in that cloud. But there is no necessity for you to do that. Is feeling that is to be our criterion, or is it to be the Word of the living God? Are we to sink our faith in the cloud? That is what Satan wants us to do. But we should not give him so much pleasure as that. What are we going to do?14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 5

I have had that cloud settle upon me at times, but I knew that God was there just the same. Since this conference began, I have hardly been able at times to sit up. When I first came to the meeting here, I came by faith, and I didn't know as I could say anything. I had been in such terrible weakness that I could hardly tell my own name. But I said, "I shall go. I am going to put myself in the channel of light, and there I am going to remain. Then I shall expect the Lord to help me." I have a great deal of talking to do with the Lord in the night, and I always know He will help me. When I came in here I was so weak I did not know if I could speak or not. But you know how He gave strength to me, and the last time, when I read that long paper to you, He gave me strength, and I thank Him that I had strength to do it. I have been astonished at the measure of strength given me.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 6

"Ask in faith, nothing wavering." Don't let one single suggestion of the devil come in. It is to be "nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea." [Verse 6.] The Lord will do great things for us if we will only show our trust in Him.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 7

I remember when I was in Switzerland, the darkness of the enemy came over the pathway when I was trying to do a work for God there. I wanted them to do a special work in erecting some buildings, and I tried every way to bring them around, and finally, after standing there so long, and I could do no more, the meeting closed, and I went in my room. I said, I will take right hold of the promises of God, and those promises are ‘yea, and amen,’ and I believe they are mine. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 8

“Well,” I said, “Lord teach me what to do in this emergency, for I am not going to give this up, or waver in the matter at all.” Now, the Lord helps them that are of one mind, and it had seemed that there were as many different minds as there were different people. We wanted a school building and a meeting place. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 9

While I was praying, I said, “I put my trust in Thee. Thou wilt keep that which I have committed to Thee. Thou must strengthen my faith.” I kept holding right on, and as I prayed it seemed that the sweet Spirit of God just went right through the room, wave after wave, and every particle of unbelief or anything like it was brushed away, and we carried every point. And so the building was put up. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 10

What we want is that faith that will not let go, a faith that will not fail or be discouraged. I know your faith is to be tried, and I know the banner of truth has got to be lifted in places all around here. “Why,” says one, “how can we do all this if the Lord is coming so soon?” Why, the Lord can do more in one hour than we can do in a whole lifetime, and when He sees that His people are fully consecrated, let me tell you, a great work will be done in a short time, and the message of truth is to be carried into the dark places of the earth, where it has never been proclaimed. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 11

When we first came to Melbourne I was very sick. Some of you know something about that. I had to be propped up with pillows, and they would carry me in their arms up into their hall, and there I would speak to the people. But all the time I had the presence and blessing of God. It was a most precious time to me. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 12

When we come to the hardest places we may know that all heaven is interested, and will bear us up if we will not fail or be discouraged. Cling to the Mighty One. Do not talk unbelief at all, because the more you talk unbelief, the more you will have unbelief; and the more you talk darkness, the more darkness you will have; the more you talk light, the more light you will have. And the more you talk faith, you will have faith. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 13

I want to read a few verses more. "I have given them thy word, and the world [hath] hated them, because they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil. They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world. Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth. As thou hast sent them into the world, even so have I sent them also into the world. And for their sakes I sanctify myself, that they also might be sanctified through the truth." John 17:14-19. The truth of God must sanctify the whole man, body and soul. It is not the truth to you unless you practice it. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 14

Our precious Jesus gave up all heaven to come to this world that He might sanctify us through the truth. Will we be sanctified? In His life and example, His lessons and His words, there was the sanctification of the Spirit of God. Sanctification was upon Him for us. God Himself worked through humanity, just as humanity must work through humanity. That is why He took humanity upon Himself that He might teach humanity how to work for itself. He took humanity that He might experience death in our behalf, that we might have life and immortality through His life and death. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 15

"Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word." [Verse 20.] Now that prayer of Christ is for us, that we may be sanctified through the truth. "That they all may be one, as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." [Verse 21.] Get out the coldness from your heart; get out the evil surmisings; get out every bad thought, and let the Lord Jesus take the throne of the heart and reign there. 14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 16

"And the glory which thou gavest me, I have given them." The character that God gave Him, He has given us, "that they may be one, even as we are one: I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me." [Verses 22,

23.]14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 17

Can we take that in? It is a wonderful thing, that God loves them that believe on Him, as He loves Christ Himself. We are made one with God, and we want that oneness. We want to seek Him earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints, and we want the spirit of the third angel's message. We want to realize that the end of all things is at hand, that speech is a talent, and that faith is the gift of God. We must work and pray that God may preserve that faith.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 18

You must put your foot right on the Word, and say, I believe, I will believe, I will press to the mark of the prize; and everything that hinders me shall be swept away. I will not allow anything to interpose between my soul and God.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 19

Now the dark shadow of Satan will come right across our pathway if we let our faith sink into it. But we must do as the eagle does when he is in the cloud and bewildered in the fog. He does not go one way and another as though distracted, but he does not wait to see the light, but presses upward through the cloud until he comes into the light above. And so we should press upward, beyond the hellish shadow of Satan, when he tries to eclipse the rays of light that come from God.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 20

Now we want the life of Christ in our hearts to make us one, and [then] there will be united action. We must press to the mark of the prize of the high calling which is in Christ Jesus our Lord. What we need is that living active faith that takes God at His Word. We must have it, and God will let us have it if we will.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 21

But we must not be discouraged. We want to get rid of unbelief, we do not want to talk it or act it or think it, but press forward to the mark of the prize of the high calling that is in Christ Jesus our Lord. I feel anxious because I know that the time has come when God's people should put on their beautiful garments. "Arise, shine; for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee." [Isaiah 60:1.] It is the Word of infinite power that He wants you to eat and drink. He wants you to eat His flesh and drink His blood, and then the power of God will be in your midst. Then the voice will be touched with a peculiar power.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 22

After the passing of the time in 1844, I remember we were a sorrowful little company. There was a little boy who had twenty-five cents, and he threw it into the mud puddle, because he said he would not need it, for the Lord was coming. And afterward he was seen hunting in the mud puddle for his twenty-five cents. I thought, How many of us would do just like that. There was one brother who had been out praying with others, and he began to say in a loud voice, "Great, great, great is the Lord; and greatly to be praised," and I think he repeated that over many times, and his face was shining. Before he finished, the power of God was upon us. While it is true that we were disappointed, yet we had the blessing of God.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 23

"And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people: and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation even to that same time: and at that time thy people shall be delivered, every one that shall be found written in the book." [Daniel 12:1.] Let everyone inquire, "Is my name written there?" Do not think about your brethren and sisters for fear they are not ready, but think about yourself. You want to know where you are, and to know that Christ is formed within, the hope of glory. You want to be constantly singing, and when you do that you will stop your criticizing. If you are beholding Him, you will not have time for anything else. And if you see His face, it will be reflected in your face. All this mourning and groaning is dishonoring God, for "whoso offereth praise, glorifieth God." [Psalms 50:23.]14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 24

You are going to have trials in your churches, because there are murmurers and complainers and faultfinders there. Go straight ahead and be cheerful. And when Brother Irwin and Brother Haskell return to America, they are going to have trials there. Do not let your head be cast down, or feel discouraged, but go forward, firm in Jesus Christ, keeping your eye fixed on the crown of life which Christ, the righteous Judge, shall give you in that day.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 25

Just keep praising God, and when the devil tempts you, sing. When Christ was a child He was tempted in every way, and what did He do? He sang psalms, and praised God, and there was music in His voice. And there was an impression made upon the hearts and minds of those who heard Him. He wants you to have heaven in view, and heaven is a good deal nearer than you think. God's holy anointed ones are right by you, and here is His church, the greatest object of His love that it is possible for Him to have. He is watching over every one of us.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 26

I love Him because He first loved me. I love Him because He gave His life for me. And God forbid that I should be a coward. When the children of Israel went out to fight, God told them to sing, and as soon as they began to sing, their enemies fled, for they saw the whole army of heaven before them. They were afraid of their destruction and fled. God wants us to vanquish the enemy. Let us pray as we never prayed before. We do not pray half enough. We ought to pray and have regular praise meetings together. May God bless you, and may the Spirit of God be with you.14LtMs, Ms 93a, 1899, par. 27

“To Do Justly, to Love Mercy, and to Walk Humbly with Thy God.”

NP

July 18, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in HP 236; 1MR 272-273; GCB 4th Qtr 1899 +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth.” [Matthew 5:5.] Meekness is a precious, Christian attribute. The meekness and lowliness of Christ is only learned by wearing Christ’s yoke. It springs from fellowship with God. If meekness and lowliness do not manifest itself in our characters, we are not His disciples, we need to humble ourselves under the hand of God, and wear Christ’s yoke. The absence of meekness and lowliness reveals that many who claim to believe are not wearing the yoke of Christ. That yoke signifies entire submission. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 1

The heavenly universe looks upon an absence of meekness and lowliness of heart. The self-exaltation, the feeling of swelling importance, makes the human agent so large in his own estimation that he feels that he has no need of a Saviour, no need to wear Christ’s yoke. But the invitation to each soul is, “Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls.” [Matthew 11:29.]14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 2

The power of God is waiting our demand upon it. One may say, I was converted a long time ago. But unless you are converted today, you need the converting power of the Holy Spirit, else you will have a feeble experience. Pure, spiritual power is fresh every morning and new every evening. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 3

It lifts men above worldly ambition, and expels all selfishness from the soul. The working of the Holy Spirit is not reserved for special times and occasions. Daily we may appropriate the water of life to our souls. Then the forgiveness of sin is felt and appreciated, and its fruit is seen in the forgiveness of those who injure us and do us harm. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 4

You may have a theory of truth, and yet have no special fellowship with Christ. It is essential that we be sanctified through the truth. Christ prayed, "Sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth." [John 17:17.] Men may give sermons in special order, and yet not be sanctified through the truth. Those who are sanctified through the truth speak under the inspiration of the Spirit. Thus Christ taught, and the people said of Him, "Never man spake like this man." [John 7:46.] They were astonished at His doctrine, "for he taught as one having authority, and not as the scribes." [Matthew 7:29.] When men are baptized by the Holy Spirit, they put on the robes of Christ's righteousness. They take their place at His feet, to learn of Him. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 5

Sanctification through the truth bears fruit to the glory of God. Under its power men are stripped of the ambition that contends for the supremacy, stripped of the selfishness which leads men connected with our institutions to grasp, in their covetousness, all they can obtain from the treasury in large wages, when they know that their brethren, laboring just as hard in fields where the wear and tear is great, and often under heavy pressure of circumstances, do not receive much more than half of what they receive. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 6

The men in our institutions who have placed such a high estimate upon their own services are not sanctified by the Holy Spirit. They have not that sanctification which gives them sensitive consciences, leading them to love God supremely and their neighbor as themselves. Their influence and example are detrimental. They do that which they would not wish their brethren to know—they grasp from the treasury. They are blind, and cannot see that by so doing they are depriving others of the wages they should receive. Their selfishness shuts them away from the sanctification of the Spirit of God. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 7

There is great need of believing the Word, appropriating it as is represented in the sixth chapter of John. Read it and understand it.

“Wherefore laying apart all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness, and receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save your souls. But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own selves. For if any man be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass. For he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 8

“But whoso looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the word, this man shall be blessed in his deeds. If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man’s religion is vain. Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.”
[James 1:21-27.]14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 9

Selfishness and covetousness have spoiled many lives. The spiritual eyesight has become beclouded, leading men and women, if not to say, to act, the words, “I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing.” Christ says to them, “I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot; I would thou wert cold or hot. So then, because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth.”14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 10

“Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing,”—they may be honest in these suppositions, but they are woefully deceived—“and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked; I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve that thou mayest see. As many as I love, I rebuke and chasten; be zealous therefore, and repent. Behold, I stand at the door, and knock: If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will sup with him, and he with me. To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcome and am set down with my Father in his throne.”
[Revelation 3:15-21.]14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 11

When the men who have been selfishly drawing what they should not from the Lord's treasury shall turn to God with full purpose of heart, they will abhor their selfish covetousness. Why? Because they will see that Christ, the Majesty of heaven, the King of glory, came to our world to live the commandments, to give the world an example of the character all must form who would live in God's presence. Those who have estimated their services above the services of those who are doing harder work than they, those who set their own price on their work, and supply themselves from the Lord's treasury, are not laying up treasure in heaven.14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 12

Those who behold Jesus lose sight of self. By the eye of faith they behold Him who is invisible. They see the King in His beauty and the land that is very far off. They practice economy, and reveal justice and righteousness, mortifying self in the place of exalting self. They do not expend unnecessary means upon themselves. They do not confederate together to follow underhand methods in order to draw a large supply of means from the treasury. They see that they have no more right to high wages than have those who work for smaller wages, who bind about their wants, practicing the economy which they teach to others. The means which others use for display, they give to the cause, practicing self-denial as did Christ.14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 13

To save us, Jesus came to the world in the form of humanity. He became poor, that through His poverty fallen beings might be uplifted and made rich. He is the greatest Teacher, the greatest Worker, the world has ever known, and He has left an example which His servants must follow. "He that will come after me," He says, "let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." [Mark 8:34.]14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 14

Those in our institutions who grasp at the surplus means disqualify themselves to understand what it means to be a partaker with Christ in His suffering. The barbed arrows of the Lord, sent by an angel's hand, come to such ones; but they are not wounded. So far have they departed from correct principles that they are blind. They listen to convincing truths, spoken with great earnestness, but still they do not reform, for they have turned aside and warded off every salutary impression. If they would be content with lower wages, their spiritual danger would be far less. A reform must take place in their lives, else they will never see the King in His beauty. Their experience in this life will decide their eternal destiny. In earnest, authoritative, solemn tones, the voice of the great Teacher has been making appeals to them, but still they are not converted. They have not turned from false, unscrupulous principles. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 15

The submission which Christ demands, the self-surrender of the will which admits truth in its sanctifying power, which trembles at the Word of the Lord, are brought about by the work of the Holy Spirit. There must be a transformation of the entire being, heart, soul, and character; for if this does not take place, some masterly temptation will sweep them off their feet. Only at the altar of sacrifice, and from the hand of God, can the selfish, grasping man receive the celestial torch which reveals his own incompetence and leads him to submit to Christ's yoke, to learn His meekness and lowliness. As learners we need to meet with God at the appointed place. Then Christ puts us under the guidance of the Spirit, who leads us into all truth, placing our self-importance in submission to Christ. He takes the things of Christ as they fall from His lips, and conveys them with living power to the obedient soul. Thus we may take a perfect impress of the Author of truth. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 16

God calls for a reformation among Seventh-day Adventists. He calls upon His people to prepare themselves to do the highest service. He calls upon them to humble their proud hearts at His altar, confessing their sins, banishing human ideas from their plans. Christ's standard of perfection adjusts the matter of every man's salvation. He says, "I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world." "If ye love me, keep my commandments." [John 17:6; 14:15.] We are not to keep only those commandments which do not interfere with human inclination, thinking this is our whole duty. God requires full and willing obedience. The day of final reward will be a day of great astonishment to those who have done well in serving themselves, making everything convenient for self, placing their own value upon the work they perform, and requiring the highest wages, but failing to keep the commandments of God and having no interest in their fellow workers. They did not bring the commandments into their practical life. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 17

Christ declares, "Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit. Every tree that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire. Wherefore by their fruits ye shall know them. Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity." [Matthew 7:16-23.] Then to illustrate His teaching, Christ gave the parable of the men who built upon the rock and upon the sand. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 18

The Lord is greatly dishonored by those who teach the truth, yet who are not themselves doers of the Word. They are looked up to as those who know and understand what it means to be a Christian; and if they do not make straight paths for their feet, the lame are turned out of the way. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 19

What a strange history was Solomon's! The Lord declared that he had chosen him to build the temple. Thrice he was called the beloved of God. But he departed from the way of the Lord, and transgressed the law that forbade marriage with the heathen. He united with idolatrous women, and misled by them, he built groves for their idols. By their enchantment and their wiles these women led Solomon away from God. The wisest king that ever swayed a scepter was thus seduced into idolatry. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 20

The work of men in positions of trust in connection with the work of God needs to be closely investigated. The Lord sends warnings and reproofs, but they are not heeded. The feet of the people are diverted into paths in which the Lord has said they shall not walk. It is difficult for the blanketed conscience to arouse. This will be the sin that will condemn the transgressor. Faith without works is dead, being alone. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 21

Christ Our Example

God saw that the world was destitute of true knowledge, and He sent Christ into the world to live the law and represent Him. This was the revelation of God in Jesus Christ. The knowledge of God was the chief treasure Christ brought to man. It was His prerogative to impart this knowledge, and He gave it to His disciples to be given to the world. Christ gave lessons that men might be impressed with His justice, condescension, and love. To the just and the unjust He gives a distinct representation of the divine goodness God has manifested in their behalf. He leads men abroad into the open field of nature, and touching the eyes of their senses He shows them the hand that sustains the world, the power ever working in behalf of human beings, good and evil. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 22

He spreads before them the beautiful flowers, the lily of the valley, the fragrant pinks and roses, delicately tinted by the great Master Artist, and He declares, "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth; where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal; for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also. ... Behold the fowls of the air; for they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; yet your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they?" [Matthew 6:19-21, 26.]14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 23

Jesus gave His life to make it possible for men and women to secure eternal life. The Father appreciates every soul whom His Son has purchased by the gift of His life. Every provision has been made for us to receive divine power, which will enable us to overcome temptations. Through obedience to all God's commandments, the soul is preserved unto eternal life. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 24

The dumb animals have no souls, yet God cares for them. "Are ye not much better than they?" Christ asks. "Which of you by taking thought can add one cubit unto his stature? And why take ye thought for raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: and yet I say unto you, That even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. Wherefore, if God so clothe the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith? Wherefore take no thought, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed? (For after all these things do the Gentiles seek:) for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." [Verses 26-33.] 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 25

This lesson is given to all who love God and keep His commandments. The One who gave His life that we should not perish is the divine Teacher, and He appeals to every blessing of the natural world, the showers that fall upon the earth, the dew, the glorious sunlight, given alike to thankful and unthankful. The bounties of God's providence speak to every soul, confirming Christ's testimony to the supreme goodness of His Father. The Lord would have His people realize that the blessings bestowed upon any object of creation are proportionate to the place that object occupies in the scale of creation. If even the wants of dumb animals are supplied, can we appreciate the blessings which God will bestow upon the beings formed in His image? 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 26

Christ would elevate and refine man's mind, purifying it from all dross, that he may appreciate the love that is without a parallel. He leads them up to the higher grade, unfolding before them the treasures of eternity. He opens before them the volume of his providence, and bids them, as far as possible, take in the whole revelation. He tells them that in this book is written the name of every individual, that in the page assigned each individual is written every particular of his history, even to the numbering of the hairs of the head. He leads the human agent to think of the love God manifested by giving His only begotten Son to die for the world. "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” [John 3:16.] 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 27

Thus God showed His love for man. With Christ He gave all heaven, that the moral image of God might be restored in man. Our part is to appreciate the means provided, and in harmony with the divine mind work out our own salvation. God could do no more to express His love. His gift could not be greater; for it embraces infinity. His grace is all its vastness is provided for all. There is no excuse for any to retain selfishness. In the hearts of all who receive Him Christ will be formed, the hope of glory. The Saviour says to everyone for whom He has died, You must receive the Holy Spirit, the Spirit of adoption. You must become so united with God that you will impart the grace you have received. Thus you become a living channel, by which God can communicate His light to the world. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 28

God cannot approve our work while it has in it one thread of selfishness. It was apparently a small transgression that closed the gates of Paradise against Adam and Eve. But ever since then sin has been increasing in volume and prevalence, and it is still increasing. But notwithstanding this, the divine benevolence has not been cut off. God’s love and care still flow earthward. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 29

This should make man afraid of his littleness, of his sin-loving propensities. God calls upon us to receive and impart the love which passeth knowledge. He is looking upon His prostrate law, upon His Sabbath trampled under foot by a race of rebellious subjects. He could have come forth out of His place to punish the inhabitants of the world for their iniquity. He could have swept them away by a flood, as He did in Noah’s day. But He did not do this. He has spared them because of the covenant made with Noah. The Lord God is full of compassion, mercy, and love. When His servants, the stewards of His business, misrepresent Him, and act out unsanctified self, contrary to His arrangements, they greatly dishonor Him. History will testify against them. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 30

Those who are in the service of God, who profess to believe the truth, should closely examine themselves, to see whether they are in the faith, whether they are using sacred or common fire. At the death of Nadab and Abihu, Moses declared to Aaron, "This is that the Lord spake, saying, I will be sanctified in all them that come nigh me, and before all the people I will be glorified." [Leviticus 10:3.] Let all who name the name of Christ depart from iniquity. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 31

The Lord Jesus Christ when in human flesh successfully resisted every temptation of the enemy. His efforts of superhuman love, made to save the race, were successful. From Him men and women may receive power to overcome, if they will consent to cease from sin. Christ gave every son and daughter of Adam unmistakable evidence that through the provisions God has made they may overcome. Each one must rely on the merits of a crucified and risen Saviour. He takes every repenting soul into covenant relation with Himself. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 32

Christ regarded the enemies of the human race as His enemies. In our behalf he overcame Satan, gaining an everlasting victory for all who will receive him. He engaged in the warfare, and did not give up, but resisted even unto death; and in dying He gained the victory for which He came to our world. Before He died He cried out, "It is finished." "Father, into thy hands I commit my spirit." [John 19:30; Luke 23:46.] To His disciples He said, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." [John 16:33.] Christ has left us a perfect, sinless example. His followers are to walk in His footsteps. If they are not transformed in character, they can never dwell with Him in His kingdom. Christ died to elevate and ennoble them, and those who retain hereditary tendencies to wrong cannot dwell with Him. He suffered all that it is possible for human flesh to suffer and endure, that we might pass triumphantly through all the temptations Satan may invent to destroy our faith. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 33

In Christ is our only hope. God has daily victories for His people to gain. After His resurrection Christ said to His disciples, "Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day; and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name to all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. And ye are witnesses of these things, and, behold, I send the promise of my Father upon you; but tarry ye in Jerusalem, until ye be endued with power from in high.” [Luke 24:46-49.] 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 34

The very ones who had rejected Christ were to hear His message. Those who had lived in close alliance with the leaders of rebellion were to bear to them a message of pardon and forgiveness. Some who had been united with those who had planned and compassed Christ’s death, who had said, “This is the heir, come, let us kill him” [Matthew 21:38], were to be reclaimed from disobedience and apostasy. “Ye have not chosen me,” Christ said, “but I have chosen you.” [John 15:16.] The Lord forgave them; for they had not known what they were doing; and He sent them forth to proclaim a risen and ascended Saviour. They published the truth that Jesus of Nazareth was the Messiah. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 35

By his heavenly gifts the Lord has made ample provision for His people. An earthly parent cannot give his child a sanctified character. He cannot transfer His character to His child. God alone can transform us. Christ breathed on His disciples, and said, “Receive ye the Holy Ghost.” [John 20:22.] This is the great gift of heaven. Christ imparted to them through the Spirit His own sanctification. He imbued them with His power, that they might win souls to the gospel. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 36

Henceforth Christ would live through their faculties and speak through their words. They were privileged to know that hereafter He and they were to be one. They must cherish His principles and be controlled by His Spirit. They were no longer to follow their own way, to speak their own words. The words they spoke were to proceed from a sanctified heart, and fall from sanctified lips. No longer were they to live their own selfish lives; Christ was to live in them and speak through them. He would give to them the glory that He had with the Father, that He and they might be one in God. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 37

The Lord Jesus is our great High Priest, our Advocate in the courts of heaven. The solemn position in which we stand to Him as worshipers is not appreciated. For our present and eternal good we need to understand this relation. If we are His children, we are bound together in the bonds of Christian brotherhood, loving one another as He has loved us, united in the sacred relation of those washed in the blood of the Lamb. Bound up with Christ in God we are to love as brethren. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 38

Thank God that we have a great High Priest, who has passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God. Christ has not entered into the holy place made with hands, but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us. By virtue of His own blood He entered in once for all into the holy place above, having obtained eternal redemption for us. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 39

Now is the time for us to make sure work for eternity. Christ is pleading in our behalf. Shall we offer ourselves as a free, acceptable sacrifice? Shall we cover up our sins, or shall we confess them, that we may find mercy and grace to help in every time of need? While Christ is pleading in our behalf, shall we not put away and loathe the sins that caused the Son of God such great suffering? While Jesus is showing compassion for us, shall we not have compassion for ourselves and for our brethren? Shall we not pour out our souls in repentance and contrition, and receive the promise of a new heart? God says, "As far as the east is from the west, so far will I remove thy transgressions from thee." [Psalm 103:12.] 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 40

If you are violating the law in the least, you stand under the wrath of an offended God. You may have the mercy of God. If you plead for it, you will obtain it. Cast yourself just as you are upon His mercy and compassion. Lay hold of Him by faith. Put away all selfishness, all covetousness. By faith in the blood of Jesus cleanse your soul from moral defilement. Full and free salvation is offered to every one who will fall on the Rock and be broken. There are many who are saying, Lord, Lord, but they trust in their own self-righteousness. Every day they are practicing sin. They are no honor to God; for wherever they go they are like evil leaven. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 41

Why do you not cease from sin? You may overcome if you will cooperate with God. Christ's promise is sure. He pledges Himself to fill the office of personal Intercessor, saying, "I will pray the Father for you." [See John 14:16.] He who could not see human beings exposed to destruction without pouring out His soul unto death to save them from eternal ruin will look with pity and compassion upon every soul who realizes that he cannot save himself. He will see no trembling suppliant without raising him up. He who through His own atonement provided for them an infinite fund of moral power will not fail to employ this power in their behalf. He will impute to them His own righteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 42

Christ accepts the surrender of the soul. He has pledged Himself to be our substitute and surety, and He neglects no one. There is an inexhaustible fund of perfect obedience accruing from His obedience. How is it that such an infinite treasure is not appreciated? In heaven the merits of Christ, His self-denial and self-sacrifice, are treasured up as incense, to be offered up with the prayers of His people. As sincere, humble prayers ascend to the throne of God, Christ mingles with them the merits of His life of perfect obedience. Our prayers are made fragrant by this incense. Christ has pledged Himself to intercede in our behalf, and the Father always hears His Son. Pray then; pray without ceasing; an answer is sure to come. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 43

But let me speak in warning. "If any man regard iniquity in his heart, the Lord will not hear him." [See Psalms 66:18.] 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 44

It is our privilege to avail ourselves of Christ's mediatorial influence. Let us then increase in wisdom and knowledge by praying much, being instant in prayer at all times, looking unto Jesus, the Author and Finisher of our faith. The name of Jesus must be in our hearts and fall from our lips. The eye of faith must behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world. 14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 45

According to justice and retribution God might have placed in the hands of His angelic ministers the vials of His wrath, to be poured out upon a rebellious world, to punish the inhabitants for their treatment of the Prince of heaven. But He did not do this. "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and sent his Son to be the propitiation for our sins." [1 John 4:10.] Isaiah tells us who and what our Redeemer is: "Unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace.” [isaiah 9:6.]14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 46

Christ had two natures, the nature of a man and the nature of God. In Him divinity and humanity were combined. Upon His mediatorial work hangs the hope of the perishing world. No one but Christ has ever succeeded in living a perfect life, in living a pure, spotless character. He exhibited a perfect humanity, combined with Deity; and by preserving each nature distinct He has given to the world a representation of the character of God and the character of a perfect man. He shows us what God is and what man may become—Godlike in character.14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 47

Christ is our example. He placed Himself at the head of the human family to accomplish a work the importance of which men do not comprehend because they do not realize the privileges and possibilities before them as members of the human family of God. We may understand the subject of the work of Christ. His object was to reconcile the prerogatives of justice and mercy, and let each stand separate in its dignity, yet united. His mercy was not weakness, but a terrible power to punish sin because it is sin; yet a power to draw to it the love of humanity. Through Christ justice is enabled to forgive without sacrificing one jot of its exalted holiness.14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 48

Justice and mercy stood apart, in opposition to each other, separated by a wide gulf. The Lord our Redeemer clothed His divinity with humanity, and wrought out in behalf of man a character that was without spot or blemish. He planted His cross midway between heaven and earth, and made it the object of attraction which reached both ways, drawing both justice and mercy across the gulf. Justice moved from its exalted throne, and with all the armies of heaven approached the cross. There it saw One equal with God bearing the penalty for all injustice and sin. With perfect satisfaction justice bowed in reverence at the cross, saying, It is enough.14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 49

By the offering made in our behalf, we are placed on vantage ground. The sinner, drawn by the power of Christ from the confederacy of sin, approaches the uplifted cross, and prostrates himself before it. Then there is a new creature in Christ Jesus. The sinner is cleansed and purified. A new heart is given to him. Holiness finds that it has nothing more to require.14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 50

The work of redemption involved consequences of which it is difficult for man to have any conception. There was to be imparted to the human beings striving for conformity to the divine image, and outlay of heaven's treasures, an excellence of power, which would place him higher than the angels who had not fallen. The battle has been fought, the victory won. The controversy between sin and righteousness exalted the Lord of heaven, and established before the saved human family, before the unfallen worlds, before all the host of evil workers, from the greatest to the least, God's holiness, mercy, goodness, and wisdom. Christ's sacrifice exalted the law, proving that it was from the beginning, and would be through all eternity, from everlasting to everlasting.14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 51

Satan, the first apostate, looked upon the fruit of his apostasy in the vast army under his banner, and his mind was made to comprehend the meaning of warfare against God and His Son. He saw how many he had by his subtlety led away from God, from happiness and holiness. The truth of his position and his efforts to overthrow God and assume His place, when he took with him vast numbers of angels who might have been a happy family in heaven, flashed over him. Never had the arch-deceiver such an appreciation of God and His throne, His holiness, His justice, His goodness, His amazing love, as when Christ hung on the cross. Mercy and truth had met together, righteousness and peace had embraced each other.14LtMs, Ms 94, 1899, par. 52

The Apostle Paul and Manual Work

NP

July 20, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 6BC 1065.

After Christ's ascension the apostles went everywhere preaching the Word. They bore witness to Christ's work as a teacher and healer. Their testimony in Jerusalem, in Rome, and in other places was positive and powerful. The Jews who refused to receive the truth could not but acknowledge that a powerful influence attended Christ's followers because the Holy Spirit accompanied them. This created greater opposition; but notwithstanding this opposition, twenty years after the crucifixion of Christ there was a live, earnest church in Rome. This church was strong and zealous, and the Lord worked for it. Angels protected the Lord's people. The envy and rage of the Jews knew no bounds, and the unbelieving residents were constantly stirred up. They made complaints that the Christian Jews were disorderly and dangerous to the public good. Constantly they were setting in motion something which stirred up strife. This caused the Christians to be banished from Rome. They were banished because they preached that Jesus was the Messiah.14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 1

Among those banished were Aquila and Priscilla. Expelled from Rome, they went to Corinth, and there established a business as manufacturers of tents. Paul came to Corinth, and he solicited work from Aquila, for he too was a tentmaker. His father was a man of reputation. He was a Cilician, but still a Roman citizen; for Paul declares that he was free born. Others obtained this freedom with a great sum, but Paul was free born.14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 2

Paul had been educated by the most learned teachers of the age. He had been taught by Gamaliel. Paul was a rabbi and a statesman. He was a member of the Sanhedrin, and was very zealous for the suppression of Christianity. He acted a part in the stoning of Stephen, and we read further of him, "As for Saul, he made havoc of the church, entering into every church, and haling men and women, committed them to prison.” [Acts 8:3.] But he was stopped in his career of persecution. 14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 3

As he was on his way to Damascus to arrest any Christians he could find, “suddenly there shined round about him a light from heaven: and he fell to the earth, and heard a voice saying unto him, Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me? And he said, Who art thou, Lord? And the Lord said, I am Jesus whom thou persecutest; it is hard for thee to kick against the pricks. And he trembling and astonished said, Lord, what wilt thou have me to do? And the Lord said unto him, Arise, and go into the city, and it shall be told thee what thou must do. And the men which journeyed with him stood speechless, hearing a voice, but seeing no man. And Saul arose from the earth, and when his eyes were opened, he saw no man: but they led him by the hand, and brought him into Damascus.” [Acts 9:3-8.] 14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 4

Saul converted was called Paul. He united with the disciples, and was among the chief of the apostles. Why should such a learned man seek to work? Why should Paul be dependent on the labor of his hands? 14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 5

There are some men, especially among the nations of Europe, who regard physical labor as degrading to a gentleman. The opinion of men has changed the order of God in their minds. They do not think it fitting for a man who works with his hands to take his place among gentlemen. 14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 6

The Lord’s purposes are not the purposes and thoughts of men. In the beginning He created man a gentleman, which means a man who can do useful work cheerfully. Men have worked hard to make money, and having gained wealth, have supposed their money would make their sons gentlemen. But many such men fail to train their sons, as they were trained, to useful labor. Their sons spend the money earned without understanding its value. Thus they misuse a talent which God designed to be used in such a way as to accomplish the most good. 14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 7

The public opinion is that manual labor is degrading. But men may play as hard as they like at cricket, at baseball, in pugilistic games, without being degraded! Satan is delighted to see human beings using their physical and mental powers in that which does not educate, which is not useful, which does not help them to be a blessing to those who need their help. While they are becoming experts in games, which are not of the least value to themselves or to others, Satan is playing the game of life for their soul, taking from them the precious talent God has given them, and placing in its stead his own evil attributes, which not only destroy them, but through their influence, those who have any connection with them. 14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 8

Satan's work is to lead men to ignore God, to so engross and absorb the mind that God will not be in their thoughts. The education they have received in school has been of a character to confuse their minds, to eclipse with darkness and uncertainty the true light. Satan does not want the people to have a knowledge of God; and if he can invent and set in operation games and theatrical performances that will confuse the senses of the young, so that human beings will perish in darkness while light shines all around them, he is well pleased. 14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 9

Jesus Christ, the greatest Teacher the world ever knew, was constantly coming into conflict with Satan. He healed the souls and bodies of those whom the enemy had afflicted. He forgave their sins, and by parables taken from the things of nature, He educated them in the things of God. He did not take the books that were in circulation and place them in the hands of the youth. The Bible was the book from which He gave His education. 14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 10

The Word of God lies at the foundation of all true education. Jesus Christ, who offered up His life to give the human family a correct knowledge of God, gave to His church in the wilderness the education which would be for their highest good in this life, and qualify them for the kingdom of God. He taught them that to love God and keep His commandments is the whole duty of man. 14LtMs, Ms 95, 1899, par. 11

The Bible as our Study-Book

NP

July 20, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in 13MR 260-268.

God calls upon teachers to behold the heavens and study the works of God in nature. "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his handywork. Day unto day uttereth speech, and night unto night showeth knowledge. There is no speech nor language where their voice is not heard." [Psalm 19:1-3.] Shall we not commit to memory the lessons nature teaches? Shall we not open the eyes of our senses; and take in the beautiful things of God? We would do well to read often the nineteenth psalm that we may understand how the Lord binds up His law with His created works.14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 1

We cannot make too much of the Bible as a lesson book in our schools. "Verily, verily," Christ declared, "Moses gave you not that bread from heaven; but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven. For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world. ... I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst." [John 6:32, 33, 35.] Can we find any text book for our schools filled with such deep and earnest declarations as the Word of the living God? Then why should this Word be laid aside for the writings of infidel authors? What more precious book could be placed in our schools than that which teaches us how we may inherit eternal life? The lessons of Bible history should be kept before the students, old and young, that those who have no love for God, and no interest in spiritual things, may become interested, and learn to love the Word.14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 2

The Word of God contains all necessary information. Writing to Timothy the apostle Paul says, "Continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them. And that from a child thou hast known the Holy Scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus. All Scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." [2 Timothy 3:14-17.]14*LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 3*

Christ declares, "No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him; and I will raise him up at the last day. It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me." [John 6:44, 45.] Christ is the Center of all true doctrine. All true religion is found in His Word and in nature. He is the one in whom our hopes of eternal life are centered, and the teacher who learns from Him finds a safe anchorage.14*LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 4*

All that the mind can grasp is opened before us in the Word. This is our spiritual food. We are to contemplate the wonderful works of God, and repeat the lessons learned from them to our children, that we may lead them to see His skill, His power, His grandeur in His created works.14*LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 5*

What a God is our God! He rules over His kingdom with diligence and care, and He has built a hedge—the Ten Commandments—about His subjects, to preserve them from transgression. In requiring obedience to the laws of His kingdom, God gives His people health and happiness, peace and joy. He teaches them that the perfection of character He requires can only be attained by becoming familiar with His Word. The psalmist declares, "The entrance of thy word giveth light; it giveth understanding to the simple." [Psalms 119:130.]14*LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 6*

It is written in the prophets, "O thou afflicted, tossed with tempest, and not comforted, behold, I will lay thy stones with fair colors, and lay thy foundation with sapphires. And I will make thy windows of agate, and thy gates of carbuncles, and all thy borders of pleasant stones. And all thy children shall be taught of the Lord; and great shall be the peace of thy children. In righteousness shalt thou be established: thou shalt be far from oppression; for thou shalt not fear; and from terror; for it shall not come near thee.” [Isaiah 54:11-14.]14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 7

“And this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel: After those days saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord: for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more.” [Jeremiah 31:33, 34.]14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 8

“And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths; for the law shall go forth of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem.” [Micah 4:2.]14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 9

The Old Testament Scriptures were the lesson book of Israel. When the lawyer came to Christ with the question, “Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?”—consider this question, for the answer is for every one who asks a similar question—the Saviour said, “What is written in the law? how readest thou? And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.” Christ said, “Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live.” [Luke 10:25-28.]14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 10

This knowledge is essential for every student in our schools. If there were not another text in the Bible, this statement carries sufficient light and knowledge and assurance for every soul. The lawyer had answered his own question, but, willing to justify himself, he said to Jesus, “Who is my neighbor?” [Verse 29.] Then by the parable of the good Samaritan Christ showed who is our neighbor, and gives us an example of the love we should manifest toward those suffering and in need. The priest and Levite, whose duty it was to minister to the needs of the stranger, passed by on the other side.14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 11

At the conclusion of the narrative Christ asked the lawyer, “Which now of these three, thinkest thou, was neighbor unto him that fell among thieves? and he said, He that showed mercy upon him. Then said Jesus unto him, Go, and do thou likewise.” [Verses 36, 37.] 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 12

There are practical lessons in the Word of God, lessons that Christ would have teachers and parents present to their children in the home and in the school. That Word teaches living, holy principles, which prompt men to do unto others as they would have others do unto them, principles which they are to bring into the daily life here, and carry with them into the school above. This is the higher education. No learning of human origin can reach these heights, for they reach into eternity, and are immortalized. The altar and the plough are the experiences for all who seek eternal life. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 13

We know altogether too little of the greatness of the love and compassion of God. Let students put to the stretch the faculties of their mind, that they may comprehend the forty-fifth chapter of Isaiah. Such chapters as this should be placed in form and brought into our schools as valuable studies. They are better than romance or fables. Why have our schools been so dependent upon books which tell so little of the city we claim to be seeking, whose Builder and Maker is God? Our lesson books should contain the loftiest themes of thought. Heaven is our home. Our citizenship is above, and our lives must not be devoted to a world which is soon to be destroyed. We need the Word of God revealed in living characters. What pure, excellent language is found in the Word of God! What elevating ennobling principles! 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 14

The question has been asked, Shall we have no study book but the Bible? I answer, Take the Bible as a study book, and see if you are not filled with the love of God. Your heart may be barren, your intellect feeble, but if you will prayerfully study the Word of God, light will flash into your mind. God works with every diligent student. Teachers who will learn from the great Teacher will realize the help of God as did Daniel and his fellows. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 15

The record states of these youth, “As for these four children, God gave them knowledge and skill in all learning and wisdom: and

Daniel had understanding in all visions and dreams. ... And the king communed with them; and among them all was found none like Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; therefore stood they before the king. And in all matters of wisdom and understanding, that the king inquired of them, he found them ten times better than all the magicians and astrologers that were in all his realm." [Daniel 1:17, 19, 20.]14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 16

I could refer to chapter after chapter of the Old Testament Scriptures which contain precious encouragement. These scriptures are a treasure house of precious pearls, and you all need them. How much time is spent by intelligent human beings in horse racing, cricket matches, and ball playing! But will indulgence in these sports give men a desire to know truth and righteousness? Will it keep God in their thoughts? Will it lead them to inquire, How is it with my soul? All the powers of Satan are set in operation to hold the attention to frivolous amusements, and he is gaining his object. He is interposing his devisings between God and the soul.14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 17

God calls men to look upon the heavens. <See Him in the wonders of the starry heavens.> "Lift up your eyes on high," He says, "and behold who hath created these things, that bringeth out their host by number: He called them all by name by the greatness of his might." [Isaiah 40:26.] We are not merely to gaze upon the heavens; we are to consider the works of God. He would have us study the works of infinity, and—then what?—<from this study learn> to love and reverence and obey Him. The heavens and the earth with their treasures are to teach the lessons of God's love, care, and power.14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 18

Satan will manufacture his diversions, that men may not think about God. The world, filled with sport and pleasure-loving, is always thirsting for some new interest. And how little time and thought are given to the Creator of the heavens and the earth. God calls upon his creatures to turn their attention from the confusion and perplexity around them, and admire His handiwork. The heavenly bodies are worthy of contemplation. God has made them for the benefit of man, and as we study <His> works, angels of God will be by our side to enlighten our minds and guard them from Satanic deception. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 19

As you look at the wonderful things God's hand has made, let your proud, foolish heart feel its dependence and inferiority. As you consider these things, you will have a sense of God's condescension. "The Lord doth build up Jerusalem; he gathereth together the outcasts of Israel." [Psalm 147:2.] "Look unto me, and be ye saved, all the ends of the earth; for I am God, and there is none else. I have sworn by myself, the word is gone out of my mouth in righteousness, and shall not return, That unto me every knee shall bow, every tongue shall swear. Surely, shall one say, In the Lord have I righteousness and strength. Even to him shall men come; and all that are incensed against him shall be ashamed." [Isaiah 45:22-24.]14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 20

How terrible it is when the acknowledgment of God is not made when it should be made! How sad to humble one's self when it is too late. Why, O, why, do not men heed the invitation? The psalmist said, "When thou saidst, Seek ye my face, my heart said unto thee, Thy face, Lord, will I seek." [Psalm 27:8.] The whole of this psalm is excellent, and should <find a place> in the reading and spelling lessons of the classes. The twenty-eighth, twenty-ninth, and seventy-eighth psalms tell of the rich blessings bestowed by God upon His people, and of their poor returns for all His benefits. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 21

The eighty-first psalm explains why Israel was scattered. They forgot God, as the churches in our land are forgetting Him today. Read the eighty-ninth, ninetieth, ninety-first, ninety-second, and ninety-third psalms. My attention has been called to these matters. Shall we not consider the word of the Lord? These things were written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come, and should they not be the objects of study in our schools? The Word of God contains instructive lessons, given in reproof, in warning, in encouragement, and in rich promises. Would not such food as this be meat in due season to the youth?14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 22

In an assembly where the school question was being discussed, the question was asked, Why has not appropriate matter for reading and lesson books been selected and compiled? Why has not the Word of God been extolled above every human production? Have you thought that a better knowledge of “what saith the Lord” would have a deleterious effect on teachers and students? There was a hush in the assembly, and self-conviction came upon students and teachers. Men who had considered themselves wise and strong saw that they were weak and lacking in the knowledge of that Book which concerns the eternal destiny of the human soul. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 23

The Speaker took from the hands of the teachers those books which they had been making their study—some of which had been written by infidel authors and contained infidel sentiments—and laid them on the floor. Then he placed the Bible in their hands, saying, You have little knowledge of this book. You know not the Scriptures nor the power of God. When you have taken your students through the course of study you have followed in the past, they will have to unlearn much that they have learned, and this they will find a more difficult work. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 24

“Objectionable things have taken root in their minds like weeds in a garden, and some will never be able to distinguish between right and wrong. The good and the evil is mingled in their work. The faces of men will be uplifted <to behold>, and the theories of men to be exalted. They repeat for doctrine a little truth with which is woven the judgments and sayings and doings of men. This will be given as food to the youth, who will never know the way of life as long as they depend on such instructors. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 25

By every teacher in our schools the only true God is to be uplifted. The prayer of Christ for His disciples was, “And this is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was. I have manifested thy name unto the men which thou gavest me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gavest them me; and they have kept thy word. Now they have known that all things whatsoever thou hast given me are of thee. For I have given unto them the words which thou gavest me; and they have received them, and have known surely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didst send me.” [John 17:3-8.] 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 26

This is the work God has given to every teacher. As educators you have not that knowledge that comes from God. Had you this knowledge, your whole being would proclaim the truth of the living God to a world dead in trespasses and sins. You know not the message God has given for this time. You are as blind men leading the blind. Students leave the school with a false education, which it takes them years to unlearn. The time past has shown that both teachers and students know very little in regard to the message which should be proclaimed at this time. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 27

Should the third angel’s message be proclaimed in all its lines to many who profess to be educated, it would not be understood by them. Human theories and wisdom are exalted, and men are becoming too wise to follow a plain “Thus saith the Lord.” I read from a certain writer, “The old theology of Old Testament Scripture has been left a long way behind by the teachings of Jesus Christ. The ethics of the Old Testament fall far short of the holiness of the New.” But it was He who gave to the New Testament its sacredness that spoke the lessons of the Old Testament. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 28

The first page of the periodical for our youth bears the pictures of men, with a footnote explaining that the publishers have received permission to place them there. Books and papers that contain little of present truth are exalted. When the hearts of converted men are filled with the great and awful truths that are living issues for this time, they will understand the deep importance of the message they are to bear to a perishing world. But many of the watchmen are asleep. The day of the Lord is right upon us. As a thief it is coming, with stealthy, muffled tread, and it will take unawares all who are not watching. God pity the people when the watchmen are asleep. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 29

Who among our teachers are awake, and as faithful stewards of the grace of God are giving the trumpet a certain sound? Who are voicing the message of the third angel, telling the world to make ready for the great day of God? The message we bear to the world has the seal of the living God. The Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are to be combined in the work of fitting up a people to stand in the day of the Lord. 14LtMs, Ms 96, 1899, par. 30

The Minister and Physical Work

NP

July 24, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in TDG 214; 2SM 196-197. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Useful physical labor is a part of the gospel. The great Teacher, when enshrouded in the pillar of cloud, gave direction that every youth should learn a trade. Thus the people would be enabled to earn their own bread. And knowing how hard it was to obtain money, they would not spend their means foolishly. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 1

Paul, the great apostle to the Gentiles, learned the trade of a tentmaker. There were higher and lower branches of tentmaking. Paul had learned the higher branches, and he could also work at the common branches when circumstances demanded. Tentmaking did not bring returns as quickly as some other lines of business, and at times it was only by the strictest economy that Paul could supply his necessities. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 2

Why did Paul thus connect mechanical labor with the preaching of the Gospel? Was not the laborer worthy of his hire? Why did he not spend all his time in preaching? Why waste time and strength in making tents? But Paul did not regard the time spent in making tents lost by any means. As he worked with Aquila, he kept in touch with the great Teacher. He gave Aquila needed instruction in spiritual things, and he also educated the believers in unity. While working at this trade he gave an example in diligence and thoroughness. He was diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. He and Aquila and Priscilla had more than one praise and prayer meeting with those associated with them in tentmaking. This was a testimony to the value of the truth they were presenting. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 3

Paul was an educator. He preached the gospel with his voice, and by intelligent labor he preached it with his hands. He educated others in the same way that he had been educated by one regarded as the wisest of human teachers. As Paul worked quickly and skillfully with his hands, he related to his fellow workers the specifications Christ had given Moses in regard to the building of the tabernacle, as found in the twenty-fourth, twenty-fifth, twenty-sixth, and twenty-seventh chapters of Exodus. He repeated chapter after chapter to them, for his own and their benefit. He taught that supreme honor is to be given to God. He told them that the skill, genius, and wisdom brought into the work of building the tabernacle were given by God, to be used for His glory. He repeated the communications from God to Moses found in Exodus 35:20-35, and 36:1-7. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 4

After leaving Philippi, Paul went to Thessalonica, on the sea coast. The history of his work there is recorded in the first and second chapters of first Thessalonians. He labored in the gospel and worked also with his hands. "We were gentle among you," he writes, "even as a nurse cherisheth her children. So being affectionately desirous of you, we were willing to have imparted unto you, not the gospel of God only, but also our own souls, because ye were dear unto us. For ye remember, brethren, our labor and travail; for laboring night and day, because we would not be chargeable unto any of you, we preached unto you the gospel of God." [1 Thessalonians 2:7-9.] He declares that if a man will not work, neither shall he eat, and by his own example he illustrates his teaching. He says, "Neither did we eat any man's bread for nought; but wrought with labor and travail day and night, that we might not be chargeable to any of you." [2 Thessalonians 3:8.] 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 5

"And it came to pass, that, while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul having passed through the upper coasts came to Ephesus." Here he remained three years and six months, "disputing and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God." [Acts 19:1, 8.] Here he toiled at his craft also. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 6

He writes to the Corinthians, "For I think that God hath set forth us the apostles last, as it were appointed to death: for we are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men. We are fools for Christ's sake, but ye are wise in Christ; we are weak, but ye are strong; ye are honorable, but we are despised. Even unto this present hour we both hunger, and thirst, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling place; and labor, working with our own hands, being reviled, we bless; being persecuted, we suffer it; being defamed, we entreat: we are made as the filth of the world, and are the offscouring of all things unto this day. I write not these things to shame you, but as my beloved sons I warn you. For though ye have ten thousand instructors in Christ, yet have ye not many fathers, for in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel." [1 Corinthians 4:9-15.] 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 7

Lifting up his toilworn hands, Paul makes his appeal, "Ye yourselves know that these hands have ministered unto my necessity, and to them that were with me." [Acts 20:34.] Those hands speak to us with remarkable impressiveness. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 8

Why did Paul, an apostle of the highest rank, spend on mechanical labor time which to all appearances might have been put to better account? Why did he not devote his time and strength to preaching the Word? By laboring with his hands Paul was preaching the Word. Thus he set an example which spoke against the sentiment, then gaining influence, that the preaching of the gospel excused the minister from mechanical and physical labor. Paul knew that there were many who loved ease and indulgence much better than useful labor. He knew that if ministers neglected physical work, they would become enfeebled. He desired to teach young ministers that by working with their hands, they would become sturdy; their muscles and sinews would be strengthened. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 9

The gospel of Christ is an educator. It teaches us not to pamper and indulge self and waste the means that should be employed to extend the triumphs of the cross of Christ. There are ministers now dead whose lives would have been prolonged had they not yielded to the temptation to indulge appetite. When they should have eaten abstemiously, they were tempted to eat largely of rich foods, though they knew that what they were eating could not be assimilated by the system, but would only be an extra burden to be gotten rid of in some way. The unnecessary food taken into the system poisoned the blood, and produced evils that resulted in disease.14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 10

The apostle states plainly that if a man does not work, if he does not use his physical powers, neither should he eat. The healthful and equal exercise of all the powers of the being is required to keep the living machinery in the best condition. He who would have a system unclogged by feebleness and disease must use every part of the system harmoniously. The muscles are not to be allowed to become weak through inaction, while the brain carries too large a share of the work. Each part of the human structure is to bear its burden.14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 11

Paul recognized physical work as composing a part of the education he was to give. He realized that his teaching would lack vitality if he did not keep all parts of the human machinery equally exercised. His labor to support himself and others should have been commended, rather than regarded as belittling to his position as a minister of the gospel.14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 12

The Greeks on the seacoast were sharp traders. They had educated themselves to sharp practice in deal, and had come to believe that gain was godliness, and that an ability to acquire gain, whether by fair means or foul, was a reason why they should be honored. Paul was acquainted with their practices, and he would not give them a chance to say that he and his fellow laborers preached in order to be supported by the gospel.14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 13

Although it was perfectly right for him to be supported in this way, (for the laborer is worthy of his hire), yet he saw that if he were, the influence upon his fellow laborers and those to whom he preached would not be the best.14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 14

Paul feared that if he lived by preaching the gospel, he might be suspected of selfish motives in doing the work. He must show that he was willing to engage in any useful labor. He would not give any an excuse to demerit the work of the gospel by imputing motives of selfishness to those who preached the Word. He would not give the sharp Grecians any occasion to hurt the influence of God's servants. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 15

Paul reasoned, How could he teach the commandments, which required him to love God with heart, and soul, and strength, and mind, and his neighbor as himself, if he gave any one reason to think that he loved himself more than his neighbor or his God, that he followed the practices of the Grecians, trading sharply upon his office for the sake of gain, instead of following the principles of the gospel. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 16

How could he lead the people to Christ if he took all he possibly could from them? Paul decided that he would not give these keen, critical, unscrupulous money traders occasion to suppose that God's servants were working as sharply and following as dishonest methods as they were. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 17

The apostles talked and prayed over the matter, and decided that they would preach the gospel as it should be preached, in disinterested love for the souls perishing for want of knowledge. Paul said that he would work at tentmaking, and that he would teach his fellow laborers to work with their hands, so that in an emergency they could support themselves. But some of his ministering brethren presented the inconsistency of such a course, saying that by so doing they would cheapen their influence as teachers of the gospel. The tenth chapter of Second Corinthians records the difficulties Paul had to contend with and his vindication of his course. "Now I Paul myself beseech you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, who in presence am base among you"—because he humbled himself to do mechanical work—"but being absent am bold toward you." [Verse 1.]14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 18

He was about to speak decidedly. "Do ye look on things after the outward appearances? If any man trust to himself that he is Christ's, let him of himself think this again that as he is Christ's, even so are we Christ's. But thou I should boast somewhat more of our authority which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your destruction, I should not be ashamed." [Verses 7, 8.] God had placed special honor upon Paul, and had called him to do a special work. He had given him visions. He had given him his credentials, and had laid upon him the most weighty responsibilities. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 19

“That I may not seem as if I would terrify you by letters. For his letters, say they, are weighty and powerful; but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech contemptible. Let such an one think this, that, such as we are in word by letters when we are absent, so will we be also in deed when we are present. For we dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves; but they measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves, are not wise.” [Verses 9-12.] Paul could see evils coming into the church, and he declared, “I am jealous over you with a godly jealousy; for I have espoused you to one husband, that I may present you as a chaste virgin to Christ. But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ.” [2 Corinthians 11:2, 3.]14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 20

This is the evil which today threatens our schools, our institutions, our churches. Unless corrected, it will imperil the souls of many. One man will think that he should be greatly favored, because he is doing a line of work which among unbelievers would command large wages. Becoming dissatisfied, he will sell himself to the highest bidder. For the safety of the principles which should control all who labor in our institutions, the Lord bids me say to all who carry responsibilities, Disconnect from all such without any delay; for this is the evil leaven of selfishness and covetousness. They are measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves. The worst thing you can do for them is to seek to retain them, even though they be editors or managers. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 21

God is not with such a man, and you cannot with any safety hold on to him. An atmosphere of unbelief surrounds his soul. The comparisons he has made have led him to double-dealing. He says to himself, If such a one receives such a sum, I should receive just as much. He becomes wise above what is written in the law, and appropriates means for his own use. Thus he robs the treasury. God looks upon this as He looked upon the sin of Achan. He sees that such men cannot give the right mold to the work. They cannot supply the necessities of those who are laboring in hard fields, who have to give part of their wages to the needs of these fields. God sees every such case, and He will pass judgment on those who thus measure themselves, selfishly taking care that they receive all they think they should have. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 22

Paul declares, "But we will not boast ourselves of things without our measure, but according to the measure of the rule which God hath distributed to us, a measure to reach even to you. For we stretch not ourselves beyond our measure, as though we reached not unto you; for we are come as far as to you also in preaching the gospel of Christ; not boasting of things without our measure, that is, of other men's labors; but having hope, when your faith is increased, that we shall be enlarged by you according to our rule abundantly, to preach the gospel in the regions beyond you, and not to boast in another man's line of things made ready to our hand. But he that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. For not he that commendeth himself is approved, but whom the Lord commendeth." [2 Corinthians 10:13-18.]14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 23

God desires that meekness and gentleness, the distinguishing characteristics of Christ, shall be brought into the lives of His followers. The Saviour gives to all the invitation, "Come unto me, all ye who labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." [Matthew 11:28-30.] He will give rest to all who yoke up with Him. Those who learn His meekness and lowliness will find His rest. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 24

Those who think highly of themselves do not deny self. They boast of their capabilities. But whose are the capabilities they are using? God's, lent to them in trust. Do not boast, lest God take away your reason, as He did Nebuchadnezzar's. Let your excellence be demonstrated by your Christlikeness, by your meekness and lowliness, usefulness and love. 14LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 25

Those who in business transactions depart from the principles of God's law, and make a law for themselves, will find that their house is not riveted to the eternal Rock, but is built upon the sand of human ideas regarding Christian character. Could they see the record of their lives in the books of heaven, they would see a record of self-commendation and pride, weakness and folly. They do not know what it means to be controlled by the Holy Spirit.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 26

Who are the true ministers of God? Those who represent Christ. "He that will come after me," He says, "let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." [Mark 8:34.] Men are to stand and fall, not by their own judgment, or by the opinions of their fellow men, but by the unchangeable law of God. We are to keep self in subordination, and work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. "I am jealous over you with godly jealousy," Paul said, "for I have espoused you to one husband, that I may present you as a chaste virgin to Christ." [2 Corinthians 11:2.] Paul did not seek to attach the church to himself, but to lead it to Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 27

Separation from the world, obedience to the word of God, is the sure evidence that we love God. Christ declared, "If ye love me, keep my commandments. ... He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me: and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and manifest myself to him." [John 14:15, 21.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 28

Sin has divorced man from God. Christ alone can bring him back. He has bridged the gulf that sin made, and He declares, "I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life." [Verse 6.] Paul sought to lead all to understand that the gospel is the knowledge of a personal Saviour. The answer to the question, "What must I do to be saved?" is, Believe in Christ as your personal Saviour. [Acts 16:30, 31.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 97, 1899, par. 29

Need of Liberality

NP

July 24, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 6BC 1103-1104.

The apostle Paul had a special work to present before the Corinthian brethren. In Jerusalem there was a famine, which had been predicted by one Agabus who, "signified by the Spirit that there should be a great dearth throughout all the world." "Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea: which also they did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul." [Acts 11:28-30.]14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 1

The disciples expected to receive a small sum for the relief of the needy saints in Jerusalem, and in prayer they presented before the Lord the necessity. But the Macedonian brethren, moved by the Spirit of God, first made an entire consecration of themselves to God, and then gave all that they had. They felt it a privilege to thus give an expression of their trust in God. The Macedonian churches were exceedingly poor, but they contributed of their means with cheerfulness. They did not have to be urged and compelled to do this work. Rather they rejoiced in the opportunity of doing it.14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 2

Of themselves they came forward and made the offering, denying themselves of food and clothing in cases where they had no money. And when the apostles would have restrained them, they importuned them to receive the contribution, and carry it to the afflicted saints. In their Christian simplicity, integrity, and love for their brethren, they found something in which they could deny self, and thus abound in the fruit of benevolence.14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 3

The apostle Paul was happily disappointed, as we have been again and again in our experience. The self-denial and self-sacrifice revealed by the Macedonians so far exceeded his expectations that he was filled with thanksgiving; and taking courage by this example, by epistle he exhorted that Titus stir up the church in Corinth to the same good works. He desired that Titus should present before this church the subject of Christian liberality, and seek to add to the means which he had collected in Macedonia. He writes, "Moreover, brethren, we do you to wit of the grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia; how that in a great trial of affliction the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality." 14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 4

"For to their power, I bear record, yea, and beyond their power they were willing of themselves; praying us with much entreaty that we should receive the gift, and take upon us the fellowship of the ministering to the saints. And this they did, but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God. Insomuch that we desired Titus, that as he had begun so he would also finish in you the same grace also. Therefore, as ye abound in everything, in faith, and utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us, see that ye abound in this grace also." [2 Corinthians 8:1-7.] This movement was of the inspiration of God to arouse in the Corinthian church the same spirit. 14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 5

The apostle would keep before the Corinthians the duty devolving upon them of making spiritual advancement in the grace of God. He would have the plant of selfishness uprooted, for the character cannot be complete where self love and covetousness are retained, and the Lord's talent of means invested in worldly business and buildings. The love of Christ in the heart would lead them to help their brethren in their necessities, both spiritual and temporal. He would have their love aroused by a consideration of the sacrifice Christ had made in their behalf. The proof of that love is given in a Christlike spirit, a willingness to impart the good things God has given, in spiritual grace and temporal relief, a readiness to practice self-denial and self-sacrifice in order to help advance the cause of God and suffering humanity. Never should we pass by the object that calls for our liberality, even though it requires self-denial and a binding about of our conveniences and supposed necessities. 14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 6

“I speak not by commandment,” the apostle continues, (that is, he does not command them to do that which he sets before them), “but by occasion of the forwardness of others, and to prove the sincerity of your love. For ye know the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for our sake he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich.” [Verses 8, 9.] Here was the apostle’s mighty argument. It is not the commandment of Paul, but of the Lord Jesus Christ. The Son of God had left His heavenly home, with its riches and honor and glory, and clothed His divinity with humanity—not to live in the palaces of kings, without care or labor, and to be supplied with all the conveniences which human nature naturally craves. 14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 7

In the councils of heaven He had chosen to stand in the ranks of the poor and oppressed, to take His part with the humble workers, and learn the trade of His earthly parent, which was that of a carpenter, a builder. He came to the world to be a reconstructor of character, and He brought into all His work of building the perfection which He desired to bring into the characters He was transforming by His divine power. 14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 8

Paul presents his pattern, his ideal. Christ had given Himself to a life of poverty that they might become rich in heavenly treasure. He would refresh their memories in regard to the sacrifice made in their behalf. Christ was Commander in the heavenly courts, yet He took the lowest place in this world. He was rich, yet for our sakes He became poor. It was not spiritual riches that He left behind; He was always abounding in the gifts of the Spirit. But He was of poor parentage. The world never saw its Lord wealthy. Though He was in the form of God, He “thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men: and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.” [Philippians 2:6-8.] 14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 9

In Himself Christ possessed absolute right to all things. How small are the riches of the most wealthy in comparison with the riches of Christ. His scepter is a scepter of righteousness. All the money and reputation of the most wealthy, do they not belong to God? For a little time the Lord allows man to be His steward, that He may test his character, to see how he will use his opportunities. In the time given him he decides his character. If he is not in harmony with the will and work of God, he cannot belong to the royal family. He is a self-seeker, and the Lord will not place him in a position where he can manifest his greed for money and display. The silver and the gold are the Lord's, but he has misapplied his Lord's money, and he has a serious account to settle for his greed and covetousness. A day of probation has been granted him, but he has abused it, and he receives the reward of the unfaithful servant. 14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 10

Evidence of the work of grace in the human heart is given, when we do good to all men as we have opportunity. But when we come to the work of the gospel ministry, the most substantial evidence we can give that we have passed from death unto life is a willingness to act the part God has assigned us as faithful stewards of His grace. God has given us His goods, and He has given us His pledged word that if we are faithful in our stewardship we will impart that which the Lord has given us in spiritual and temporal gifts, that others may receive. Thus we shall lay up in heaven treasures that are imperishable. 14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 11

Men and women need to understand that nothing they have is their own. "Ye are not your own," says the apostle, "for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.] To withhold anything would not be for our interest or for God's glory. The Lord will use all who will give themselves to be used by Him to His name's glory. The Lord requires heart service. "My son," He asks, "give me thine heart." [Proverbs 23:26.] When the heart is given to God, the talents entrusted, our energy, our property, all we have and are, will be devoted to His service. 14LtMs, Ms 98, 1899, par. 12

Talk/Concerning the Opening of the Health Retreat

NP

July 20, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 11MR 158-159.

I want to say that I am very thankful that the movement to erect a health retreat here has been made. My heart has been deeply pained as I have seen parents here who did not know what to do when their children were sick. It hurt my soul to see that these parents were not intelligent in regard to these things. 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 1

This institution is to be a place where an education will be given in right principles of health reform, so that those who receive help in it will go forth with an understanding of how to take care of themselves, and thus prevent sickness, and also how to treat sickness if it shall come upon them. They should be taught by example how to take care of themselves in regard to diet. Men and women need an intelligent knowledge of how to care for the sick wherever they are, and how to give rest from suffering. 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 2

We have felt the burden of these things as we have seen little children sitting on the wet ground, after it had been raining as much as it has lately. The next thing we heard was that they had influenza. Why are they not intelligent in regard to these things? They need instruction, and we have felt the necessity of just such a building as is being erected here. In talking with Elder Daniells, I told him I wished we could have such a building, furnished with proper facilities for treating patients. But where were we to get the means? 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 3

In the night season I was looking at a building. "What is it?" I asked. "The building in which you shall take care of the sick and suffering." "But," I said, "I did not know that we had such a building." "No," was the answer, "but you must have it." This building was very nearly as presented before us in the building now being erected here. 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 4

When we were talking about this building, it was said that we must make it straight with the road, though this would cut off some of the sunshine. I said, "I shall not consent to this. The building must be so placed that it will get all the sunshine possible, not only in the sleeping rooms, but in the rooms where the patients sit. The sun is God's doctor, which brings health and strength, purifying and giving color to the blood, and we must have it." It was objected that the building would be askew with the road. "Askew let it be," I said; "that building must be where it will get the sunshine, in whatever position it is." The building is just right as it now is. It will get the sunshine, and I am well pleased with it. 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 5

When in the night season the building was standing before me, I said, "We have no money; how can we put up such a building?" I was asked, "Where are you going to put your worried, worn-out ministers? Are you going to let them go wherever they can find a chance?" I said, "We are going to take care of them." The answer was, "You need a building fully as large as this in which to take care of them, and you need another building in which the very sick can be accommodated." This is the work that must be done, but we must move carefully, so that we shall not incur a heavy debt. 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 6

I never have seen such carelessness in regard to the health as I have seen in this community. We need to educate, educate, educate. If human beings are worth all that has been paid for them, should they not be uplifted? For us the Majesty of heaven, the King of glory, laid aside His royal robe and kingly crown, and clothed His divinity with humanity. This He did that humanity might touch humanity and divinity lay hold of divinity. Thus the help that the sick and suffering need [may] be brought to them. As we follow Christ in doing this work, we shall awaken an interest in the God we love and serve. We shall find that this is the way to save soul and body. Medical missionary work is the entering wedge to the work of saving souls. 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 7

You will remember the poor paralytic who was brought to Christ.

This man had heard that the Saviour was healing the sick, but he did not know how to get to Him. His friends decided to take him to Christ, but when they reached the house where He was teaching, it was so crowded that they could not get in. Christ saw them bringing that man to Him. He saw them leaving their home, and His heart went with them at every step. 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 8

As the sick man's friends stood round the house where Christ was speaking, unable to get in, some one suggested that they take off part of the roof, and let him down at Christ's feet. The priests had told this man that his sins were the cause of his sickness, and they could give him no hope that there was any way in which he could be saved from sin. With this burden of sin upon him, the paralytic was let down before Christ. The Saviour knew just where to commence His work for the sufferer. He knew that he was longing for help, and He said, "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee." [Mark 2:5.] Hope sprang up in the man's heart. But the wrath of the priests was roused, and they said, "Who can forgive sins, but God alone?" [Luke 5:21.] 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 9

"When Jesus perceived their thoughts, he answering said unto them, What reason ye in your hearts? Whether is easier to say, Thy sins be forgiven thee; or to say, Rise up and walk? But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power on earth to forgive sins, (he said unto the sick of the palsy) I say unto thee, Arise, and take up thy couch, and go into thine house. And immediately he rose up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own house, glorifying God. And they were all amazed, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear, saying, We have seen strange things today." [Verses 22-26.] 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 10

I am glad we have a health retreat here. It is not ready for use yet, but it soon will be. We are going to move out by faith. We have already moved out by faith in putting this building on the ground. God knows all about it. I would ask you all, instead of investing your means in something you can do without, help us in furnishing our health retreat. We desire that everyone shall become interested in this institution, where an education is to be given in the science of healing. Every student in the school is to understand that he is to be economical in everything, in dress, in time, that he may have something to divide with the suffering poor. If those to whom the Lord has entrusted means use their money to glorify themselves instead of helping suffering humanity, they dishonor their Maker. God has entrusted men with His goods, His capital, and they are to use this capital aright. 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 11

This institution is to be a blessing to the afflicted and suffering. There are souls to be saved. Christ left His home in glory in order to do this work. He came as a man. Unless He had come thus, He could not have reached the suffering ones. Satan had the field, and he was doing all he could to keep men and women in affliction. 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 12

Christ is touched with the feelings of our infirmities. Why was He poor? Why did He not come with splendor and power? Because He wanted to bring to every human being the test that all must bear. Humanity must be touched with the sufferings of humanity, that men and women might learn how to show tenderness, kindness, and pity, and thus character be developed in humanity. In this way they were to be fitted to be missionaries. This is the work that is to be done everywhere. 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 13

God declares that in the last day there will be only two parties, one on the right hand and one on the left. To those on the left hand He says, "I was an hungered, and ye gave me no meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me not in; naked, and ye clothed me not; sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not." [Matthew 25:42, 43.] They have no part with Him, for they know nothing about Him. They could not enjoy life in His kingdom, and He says to them, "Depart from me." [Verse 41.] 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 14

They are surprised. They did not think that they had done anything particularly wrong. "Lord, when saw we thee an hungered," they ask, "or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee?" Christ answers, "Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these ye did it not to me." [Verses 44, 45.] 14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 15

To those on the right hand Christ says, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: for I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and ye came unto me.” [Verses 34-36.]14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 16

These also are surprised. They did not think that they had done anything worthy of commendation. “Lord, when saw we thee an hungered, and fed thee?” they ask, “or thirsty, and gave thee drink? when saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee? Then the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.” [Verses 37-40.]14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 17

They are co-workers with Christ. They believed and lived the words, Ye are not your own; for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God’s. This responsibility rests upon every one of us. The students in this school are daily to strive to form characters for the future immortal life. God is testing us, to see whether we will prove ourselves worthy to enter in through the gates into the city. Why are we here? It seems strange to everybody that we should be located in the woods. But we do not want our students to be near the city.14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 18

We know that even though we bring them into the country, we cannot escape from all evil. We have a public house here, and not long ago a man left this public house drunk. As he was crossing a bridge, he fell from his horse and was killed. But in the country the youth are away from the sights and the sounds of the city. We desire to take the students away from the foul atmosphere of the city. Not that Satan is not here. He is here, but we are trying to do all we can to place the students in the very best circumstances in order that they may fasten their eyes on Christ. In the country they are not near the temptation of horse racing and cricket matches.14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 19

Once in Sydney I saw a great multitude on one of the streets.

Hundreds and hundreds, and I might say thousands, were gathered together. "What is the matter?" I asked. "It is because of the cricket match," was the answer. And while men were playing the game of cricket, and others were watching the game, Satan was playing the game of life for their souls. Therefore we decided to locate our school where the students would not see cricket matches or horse races. We are just where God wants us to be, and many conversions have been made right in this school. Did the teachers make these conversions? No indeed; it was the One who gave His life to redeem us, the One who suffered and died that He might make it possible for all to be saved. Men cannot wash away one stain of sin.14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 20

The work of education must begin in the home. It must be carried on in the schoolroom. Parents and teacher must unite in doing all they can in order to place the youth on firm ground. Children have hereditary tendencies to wrong which must be overcome.14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 21

Christ came to restore the moral image of God in man, and if parents and teachers will do all in their power, with prayer, working to bring their children into a right position, God will bless them.14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 22

Missionary work is to be done on this ground, for this is missionary soil. Efforts are to be made to save body and soul. In order that the soul may be saved, attention must be given to the sufferings of the body.14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 23

In the Word of God is found the education of God. This Word tells what Christ will do in behalf of everyone who will co-operate with Him. This Book should be our lesson book, for it contains the higher education. Christ prayed, "This is life eternal, that they might know thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." [John 17:3.] Do we not all wish to know how to gain life eternal? It is gained by knowing God and Jesus Christ. We are to make our teaching in regard to this as plain and clear as possible, and then students will fall in love with it.14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 24

This morning I was reading the nineteenth psalm and the psalms following, and I thought, What beautiful lessons these psalms teach.

“The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth his handiwork.” [Psalm 19:1.] What is the matter with us? We have lost sight of God. The world has lost the knowledge of God. Our work is to bring the knowledge within the reach of all we possibly can. Our message is, “Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.” [John 1:29.]14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 25

Some parents, because their children say, I am tired of the Bible, try in every way to manage so that they will not have so much Bible. I say, Give children and youth the Bible as their study book. God will work with children and youth who give themselves to Him. Samuel was educated for the Lord in his youth, and God passed by the hoary-headed Eli and conversed with the child Samuel.14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 26

The history of Joseph and Daniel contain lessons which all should learn. How full their lives are of patience, of noble, sanctified independence. What better instruction than this could be given to the youth? How was it with Daniel? God gave him knowledge and understanding in all visions and dreams. He strengthened Daniel’s mind, increasing his power and ability, and the record states that when, with other youth, he and his companions were brought before the king of Babylon, they were found ten times better than any of the wise men throughout the realm of Babylon.14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 27

Let us place ourselves where we may gain the very best knowledge in regard to our accountability to God and to the souls for whom we must give an account. As we help these souls to reach a higher standard, God will help us. “Dare to be a Daniel, dare to stand alone, dare to have a purpose firm, and dare to make it known.” This is what the youth should be taught to do. We need to catch the inspiration of God’s Spirit, and then work with all the power He has given us to co-operate with Him in restoring the moral image of God in man. When we have done this, we shall feel indeed that we have not lived in vain.14LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 28

May God let His blessing rest upon every one here today. Let us come to Him in sincerity and sit at His feet. Let us seek to learn of Him, for He says, “I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls.” [Matthew 11:29.] May God’s blessing rest upon us. May the heavenly current of health and life and love flow into our hearts, and then flow forth to those who need it most.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 99, 1899, par. 29

Talk/An Appeal for Help

July 24, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in AUCR 07/28/1899
+NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

When I read in the General Conference Bulletin that twenty thousand dollars had been donated to Australia, and that large donations had been made to the General Conference to help in other places, a feeling of sadness came over me. I felt that if this donation came to our people in this way, it would deprive them of a blessing a large number who were ready to take hold and deny themselves, according to the eighth and ninth chapters of Second Corinthians, so that rich blessings might flow in upon God's people because of their self-denial and self-sacrifice. 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 1

God says, "He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." [Mark 8:34.] You have read your Bibles, and you know of the cross the Saviour bore when He laid aside His royal robe and kingly crown and clothed His divinity with humanity. He did not come to <take His position among> the wealthy, where He could have had all the luxuries and conveniences of life. For our sakes He became poor, that we through His poverty might become rich. He is our example. We can deny ourselves, and we can do a great deal more of this than we have any idea of. 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 2

Just as soon as we place ourselves where we realize that all that we have and are is the Lord's, it will be easy to give. When we accepted Jesus Christ, we accepted not only the advantages that we are entitled to by the Word of God, but the suffering and humiliation also. All the spiritual and temporal advantages which we have come from Christ. All the blessings we receive come through Him. He bridged the gulf between heaven and earth, and thus made finite man of value in God's sight. Through Christ, our Mediator and Intercessor, the human race has been placed on vantage ground. Whatever our capabilities, whatever our poverty or riches, we are to show that we realize that we are accountable to God and dependent on Him. By our liberality and self-denial we are to strive to co-operate with Him. <And we have pledged ourselves to cooperate with God to advance His work as faithful laborers together with God. This is our stewardship.>14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 3

The work of God is to be carried on by us as a people. We know how it started. My husband said, Wife, let us take only sixteen shillings a week. We shall live very plainly and dress very plainly, and take the means that otherwise would come to us, and invest it in the publishing work. The publishing house then was a plain, square building, twenty-four by thirty-six. Some narrow-minded men, who wanted the money for themselves, said, This is altogether too large a building. They brought such heavy pressure to bear regarding this question that a meeting was called.14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 4

I was asked to go and explain why, if the Lord was coming so soon, the publishing work should need such a large building. I said, You that have ears, I want you to hear. It is because the Lord is coming that we want a building as big as this is, and more than that, it will grow larger as the work progresses. The Lord has a work to do in the world. The message must go to all parts of the earth. It is because we believe this that we have started this work. We are going to deny ourselves.14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 5

My husband and I decided to take lower wages. Other pledged themselves to do this also, and the money thus saved was used in starting the work. Some of our brethren donated quite liberally, because they believed what we said. In after years, when prosperity attended the work, and these brethren had grown old and become poor, we took their cases into account, and helped them all we could. My husband was a man full of sympathy for the needy and the suffering. "Brother _____ put his means into the work when it was in need of help, and now we must help him,” he would say.14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 6

A lady came to my husband, saying, I have some means, and I want you to invest it in the work. “I am afraid to take it,” he said, “You have no one to depend upon, and I hardly like to take your means.” She said, “But I must have a part in the work. Can you not take my means?” “If you feel like that,” my husband said, “I will take it.” But at the same time he made a note in the books, saying that if at any future time Sister _____ were to be in need, the means she had given to the work in its necessity was to be handed back to her.14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 7

After my husband’s death Sister _____ came back. She was poor, and wanted her means. But the men in the publishing house knew nothing about refunding donations. “Then,” she said, “I shall go to Sister White.” She asked me, “What am I going to do?” “Sister _____,” I said, “do not have any fear. You shall have the means just as soon as you want it.” I took her over to the office, and told those there to produce the books. There they found just what my husband had written. I said to them, “Hand Sister _____ back her means. I know just how it was given.” Sister _____ received her money just as she needed it.14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 8

There are cases where people will give as those did when the apostles were unwilling to receive it, so liberal was the gift. There have been cases where my husband has said, “I cannot take your means.” I believe Christ will make us willing to do just as the Israelites did when they were building the tabernacle in the wilderness. The tabernacle was to be built, and the Lord was very particular about the building, as He is about anything connected with His service.14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 9

In Egypt the Israelites had been accustomed to see splendor and grandeur connected with anything kingly. God knew they would not be impressed unless there was some outward display. He let them have this, and gave men of His appointment skill and tact to do the work. Jesus Christ talked with Moses and gave him directions. He told him that He had given men understanding and intelligence. “The Lord spake unto Moses, saying, See, I have called by name Bezaleel, the son of Uri, the son of Hur, of the tribe of Judah: and I have filled him with the Spirit of God in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship. ... And in the hearts of all that are wisehearted I have put wisdom, that they may make all that I have commanded thee.”

[Exodus 31:1-3, 6.]14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 10

You can see what the Lord does when He takes hold of the work. We want God to take hold of this work.14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 11

But to say, We will not receive any loans, with or without interest, would not be wise. There may be those who could loan us money while they would not feel authorized to make a gift. Newly come to the faith, they might hardly feel that they could give the money. We need a sanitarium, and we must have it. I have not had much to do with this institution, but I feel that it is my sanitarium as much as it is yours, because my prayers and interest are in it.14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 12

We need a sanitarium, and it is a necessity that we have a sanitarium; but I cannot go so far as to say that there will be no debt upon it. For years I have been hiring money from America. I am responsible for this money. Those who have loaned it want Sister White to keep it as long as she will pay the interest on it. Their position is such that they do not feel free to make an out-and-out donation. Nevertheless, from those who can make donations we shall be very thankful to receive donations. There are many who can give. But to say to our brethren, “You must make a donation, because we will not take a loan, with or without interest,” would be unwise.14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 13

One brother said to me not long ago, “You are in a heavy pressure for means. I will loan you sixty pounds for one year without interest.” We were under heavy pressure in order to put up the Health Retreat, and I knew this means would help us. I felt as though it was a God-send, and I was very grateful for it. I believe the Lord stirred up our brother’s mind to loan this money, and I felt very thankful, for I had reached the bottom of my pile. I had no more. I draw all that I have to draw. I do not keep any purse for myself. I help as long as I have any means to help with. And for laying up money, I do not do it; and I do not expect to do it.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 14

The sanitarium in Summer Hill, as it is now, does not properly represent the grand and ennobling work we have to do for the Master. In the sanitarium we shall erect there should be no extravagant display. The site should not be chosen in a locality surrounded by the residences of the great men of the land, the government officials. We must locate where we shall not feel that we have to keep up an appearance in order to make a right impression. We must begin, as has been stated, with a building that will accommodate one hundred patients, and then as the Lord gives prosperity, we must enlarge, if His Spirit leads in that direction. But we must make sure that we are treading on safe ground, and then God will help us.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 15

Our work is to educate men and women to understand their responsibility to God, to understand that everything they have comes from Him through Jesus Christ. "Ye are not your own; for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body, and in your Spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.] Each one of us should stand where we realize our responsibility and accountability to the God of heaven. When we realize this, divine blessing will rest upon us.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 16

God declares, "Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me; and the Lord whom ye seek shall suddenly come to his temple, even the messenger of the covenant, whom ye delight in; behold, he shall come, saith the Lord of hosts." [Malachi 3:1.] The Lord comes to His temple to find those who are sincere. He measures the worshipers. He knows those who are truehearted and self-sacrificing. "Who may abide the day of his coming? and who shall stand when he appeareth?" Who will stand in the day of investigation? This does not mean the time when the books are opened. It is a preparatory work. "For he is like a refiner's fire and like fuller's soap." [Verse 2.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 17

To those who have felt unconcerned, the Spirit comes as a reprover, and shows them that they need to do something to cleanse the temple. He investigates the temple and the worshipers thereof. "He shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver; and he shall purify the sons of Levi, and purge them as gold and silver, that they may offer unto God an offering in righteousness." [Verse 3.] It will be as it was in the days of old, when the people were bringing their gifts for the building of the tabernacle. Their offerings were accepted, and they brought so much that the word went forth, Bring no more; there is enough. Even though an offering may be small, the Lord will receive it as wholly acceptable; and He can make it go a long way. "Then shall the offering of Judah and Jerusalem be pleasant unto the Lord, as in the days of old, and as in former years." [Verse 4.] 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 18

"I am the Lord, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed. Even from the days of your fathers ye are gone away from mine ordinances, and have not kept them. Return unto me, and I will return unto you, saith the Lord of hosts. But ye said, Wherein shall we return? Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse; for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation." [Verses 6-9.] 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 19

Today men are robbing God. For the costly, massive structures they are rearing, they will have to give an account. The means thus used is needed to send the gospel to the dark places of the earth. The owners are accountable to God for the misuse of the means God has given them. 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 20

"Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vines cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed: for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith the Lord of hosts." [Verses 10-12.] 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 21

God speaks to the class who are always complaining. "Your words have been stout against me, saith the Lord. Yet ye say, What have we spoken so much against thee? Ye have said, It is vain to serve God; and what profit is it that we have kept his ordinance, and that we have walked mournfully before the Lord of hosts?" [Verses 13, 14.] Who asked them to walk mournfully? God wants us to walk in the light of the Sun of Righteousness. He wants His people to reflect the light of heaven. He wants us to lift up our heads and rejoice, because our redemption draweth nigh. 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 22

"And now we call the proud happy; yea, they that work wickedness are set up; yea, they that tempt God are even delivered." Thus the murmurers talk. But a different class is brought to view. "Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another: and the Lord hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels. And I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serveth God, and him that serveth him not." [Verses 15-18.] 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 23

When God's people show that they realize their accountability to Him, and their dependence on Him, by carrying forward His work, the Lord blesses them. We are to do the very best we can. We must have a sanitarium, and we must have it out of the city, in a convenient location where there is plenty of water, because we use water in the place of drugs. 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 24

There is a power in water, a great power; and there are some here who know this. The sanitarium is to be located in a restful place, where trams are not passing all the time. It should be away from the smoke of the chimneys of a city, where the atmosphere is as pure as can be found. We can be in touch with Sydney, and yet be out of Sydney. Christ prayed for His people, "I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil." [John 17:15.] We are not to leave the world, but we are to avoid all the evil possible. 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 25

The Lord God of Israel is going to help us in this matter, and we are going to seek Him with heart and soul. We are going to plead that God will let His Holy Spirit rest upon us. He will hearken to the testimony of faith, and I believe we shall see the salvation of God. I believe He will furnish good counsellors, men who can think in right lines, and He will work with them. I have no confidence in the smartest men that ever lived unless they are under the control of God. They may have natural capabilities and talents, but unless they are guided by the Holy Spirit, they will be controlled by some one else. God has given us talents, and He wants us to place ourselves under His working power. And just as sure as we do this, He will give us power to work. 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 26

Brother Wessels is a little diffident in taking hold in a new place. But though he is in a new country, he has not a new God. He has the same God that he had in Africa, and he can put himself under his teaching here. Christ says, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls." [Matthew 11:28, 29.] Let us lay hold in order that we can lift. Let us behold the grace and glory in the face of Jesus Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 27

The Lord God of Israel wants to work with every man who will be worked, and I believe, Brother Wessels, that you are the very man who wants to be worked. May the Spirit come upon you in rich measure, that you may find rest in learning of Jesus Christ. He says, "My yoke is easy, and my burden is light." [Verse 30.] I have always found it so. Christ's yoke is easy because He bears the heavy end. His burden is light because He lifts with us. He says, "Learn of me, and ye shall find rest." [Verse 29.] We need this rest. We need to find it by living experience, and then go right to work, as though we knew that the God of Israel was at our right hand to help us. 14LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 28

By self-sacrifice the work was started in America, and now the Lord has seen fit to send us here to commence the work. Even in my old age I have come. The Lord has given me strength, and I call upon you today to help us. I have been sick, but you have been praying for me, and He has heard your prayers. I did not think that I could have talked as I did yesterday. The Lord God of Israel is the hope of

His people. He has said, Build a sanitarium, and a sanitarium we are going to build. He is going to help us to this. We are going to call upon all to take hold and do what they can. The Lord's blessing will rest upon the work if we only have a willing mind. God has always helped us, and He will continue to help us. I praise His holy name.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 100, 1899, par. 29

The Avondale School and Its Work

God designs that this place shall be a center, an object lesson. Our school is not to pattern after any school that has been established in America or after any school that has been established in this country. We are looking to the Sun of Righteousness, trying to catch every beam of light that we can. Why? Because we want that light in our school. Why have we gone to such an expense in putting up buildings here, if we are not to be separate from the world? We are to stand in Christ, learning of Him, the greatest Teacher the world has ever known. His Word is to be the foundation of all the education given.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 1

Our greatest need is converted families, parents and children who are under obedience to God. From the light given me by God, I know that if the students in this school will learn of Jesus Christ, teachers can be sent from here to take charge of schools for smaller children; teachers who have learned the greatest of all lessons, who understand the Word of the Lord; teachers who will help the children to obtain a knowledge of the Scriptures.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 2

From this center we are to send forth missionaries. Here they are to be educated and trained, and sent to the islands of the sea and other countries. The Lord wants us to be preparing for missionary work. But if while here the students show no aptitude for missionary work, how can we know that they are fitted to go to other countries? They are to be tested and proved here, and that it may be seen what their adaptability is, and whether they have a right hold from above. If they have a firm hold on Christ, they will have a right hold on all with whom they come in contact. 14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 3

In this place students are to be prepared to enter the work of God in different places. Why were workers sent to this country? Were there no fields to be worked in America? There was much work to be done there; but God designed that here an institution should be established from which workers should go forth to the islands of the sea. Persons of other languages are to be brought here and taught the English language. These will go back to their different countries to educate others. 14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 4

This work will take money. Then let none of us go into any extravagance, for we cannot afford it. We must bind about our wants, because the Master tells us to. We must be laborers together with Him who left the royal courts and for our sakes became poor, that we through His poverty might be made rich. He says to us, "Follow me." I have been instructed that we need to wake up and cut off every needless expense. Come right down to self-denial and self-sacrifice, that the work of God may be advanced, and places entered where people know nothing about the truth. The souls of those in darkness are just as precious as our souls, and they are to be won to God. 14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 5

We are to work in these lines. This is why light was given me that there should be a center here, that we should have a school where men and women can be prepared to go as missionaries to different countries. One missionary is not to stay in the same place for years. He is to work as a laborer together with God, and when he has served for a time in one place, let him leave that field. He is then better prepared to tell those in the home field what is needed in the field he has left, and to educate workers for that field. 14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 6

We are to have at this school an office of publication. A printing press is to be established here, not one so fully equipped, perhaps, as the one in Melbourne. An education in printing is to be given here to those who shall come from the islands and other places. They are to learn to print in their own languages, and to translate from the English into these languages. Then they are prepared to give valuable help. At the same time they can give instruction in the island languages to those who are fitting themselves to go to the islands.14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 7

These things can be done, and they can be done right on this ground. God designs that they shall be done. He wants us to realize that we are under responsibility to reach the very highest standard in spirituality and usefulness. There is a world to be warned. This field has been presented to me, in every case, as a world by itself. We cannot always send to Battle Creek for our publications, or even to the Echo office, for we cannot get them soon enough. We must have a printing press here, where pamphlets and leaflets can be printed, and more especially that students may be educated in the art of printing. If there are two or three presses, it would not be too many. I am talking of what I know. We need to wake up. The third angel's message is to prepare a people to stand in the day of the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 8

In this school workers are to be educated to enter families after a camp meeting is over, and give Bible readings. As these workers learn the meekness and lowliness of Christ, they can enter families, and give a right impression. It is the after-work of camp meetings, the house to house work, that gathers sheaves for the Master. It is then that opposing ministers come in with their objections; and workers need to be on the ground to meet these objections, for the truth is new to the people, and they must be taught line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little. In this work there is need of a great deal of prayer. There must be a taking hold of God.14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 9

Students are to be trained for this work. But if those here show foolishness, if they are not solid and sound when here on the ground, where the influence tends to press them right ahead, what good will it be to send them into new fields to work for unbelievers?14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 10

God designs that every soul shall be tested, tried, and proved, to see if he is prepared to join the heavenly family, to see if he can endure temptation so that he will not do Satan's work. There is a great and grand work to be done for God. Some who are here may feel that they must go to China or other places to proclaim the message. These should place themselves in the position of learners. Above everything else, God wants us to have a right hold on Him. 14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 11

Every teacher and student is to be linked together, and be determined to press the battle to the gates, refusing to allow the enemy to come on to this ground. This is holy ground. God's Spirit moves upon persons to come here, to make something of them. Those who have no appreciation of this work might better be one thousand miles away than to be in the school. We want students who will be subordinate to rule, who will learn in the school of Christ, who can be prepared for the higher school, so that God can say to them, "Come up higher. I have lessons to teach you. In my school you shall learn throughout all eternity." 14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 12

God wants to do something for each one of us. This work is an individual work, a personal work. Students, do not depend on your teachers to form your character. For Christ's sake make your characters for yourselves. Take hold of God, and do not think that you have to be always with your teachers in order to be solid workers. We are to represent God to the world, to show what the truth has done for us right on this ground. We want to see the moving of the Holy Spirit. You will remember that the Spirit so worked in the schools of the prophets that when Saul, when hunting for David, came in connection with one of these schools, the Spirit came upon him, and he prophesied. But we need something more lasting than Saul had. Take hold of God. You have little enough time in which to form characters fit for the future immortal life. 14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 13

To those who tie up their money in worldly enterprises, I would say, We want that money, that we may set the work of God in operation in places where the people are still in darkness. The towns from here to Queensland are to be worked, and yet there are regions beyond. There are those who, when the Spirit of God comes upon them, can go to western Australia, where a great work is to be done. Get hold of God, and God will get hold of you. Reach the people through Christ; you cannot reach them through yourself. Reach them through the Spirit of God. God calls upon us to put on the armor. We do not want Saul's armor, but the whole armor of God. Then we can go forth to the work with hearts full of Christlike tenderness, compassion, and love. 14LtMs, Ms 101, 1899, par. 14

Talk/Remarks in the School Chapel

Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

July 9, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in AUCR 07/12/1899.

I desire that we shall know the very path we are to travel, the very grace we are to receive, in order that we may obtain our life insurance policy in the kingdom of God. "Simon Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained like precious faith with us through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ: Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust." 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 1

"And beside this, giving all diligence add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins." [2 Peter 1:1-9.] 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 2

How many there are that forget. They forget that they were baptized, to rise out of the water to live in the likeness of Christ's resurrection. 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 3

"Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things ye shall never fall." [Verse 10.] Every one of us can make our election sure, or we can make it a failure. "If ye do these things ye shall never fall." If we live on the plan of addition, God will work for us on the plan of multiplication. 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 4

The one who appreciates the word of eternal life will be a most diligent worker. He is to work out his own salvation with fear and trembling. Why the fear, you say, why the trembling? Lest he shall in some way make crooked paths for his feet. He is to place himself in such a position that he can keep his eyes fixed on Jesus. He is to behold Him and His character. Those who do this live on the plan of addition, not the plan of subtraction. 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 5

"Add to your faith." [Verse 5.] You have faith in Jesus Christ as your Saviour. All should have faith in Him as a Saviour. We are to work in accordance with that faith. We show our faith by working, by keeping our eyes fixed on the mark of the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus. 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 6

He who beholds Jesus, realizing what He is to us and what we are to Him, will be diligent. He will live on the plan of addition, adding to his faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity. This is a process of growth. He who co-operates with Christ will not be found tomorrow where he is today. Every day he will follow on to know the Lord, that he may know that his going forth is prepared as the morning. Of those who live in this way it will be written at last, "Ye are complete in him." [Colossians 2:10.] 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 7

We are to work not merely for our own souls, but for the souls of all with whom we are connected. Parents are to keep before them the point to which they should work—the perfection of the characters of their children. They are to strive earnestly to perfect the characters of their children, because the future immortal life will show the result of the work they have done. Those parents who educate their children aright, weeding out every unruly trait, are fitting them to become missionaries for Christ in truth, in righteousness, in holiness. 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 8

He who in his childhood does service for God, adding to his faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity, is fitting himself to hear the words, "Child, come up higher. Enter the higher school." Do you think we shall not learn anything there? We have not the slightest idea of what will then be opened before us. With Christ we shall walk before the living waters. He will open before us the beauty and glory of nature. He will show us what he is to us and what we are to Him. There are lessons we do not know now that we shall know hereafter. 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 9

The education that is to be given in our families is this: The child that lives the life of Christ, studies the character of Christ, the child who is prayed with and prayed for, will be prepared to enter the higher grade. 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 10

Can we suppose that parents who have neglected or indulged their children, letting them, because it is easier, follow their own way, stand on the same footing as parents who have followed the will and way of God? Churches have been troubled by the defective characters of parents and the defective characters of their children. What have they been bringing to the foundation? Only wood, hay, and stubble. They may be saved, and their children may be saved, because they have at last awakened to their defects, but will they be regarded in the same light as are those whose lives have been devoted to the service of Christ? As one star differeth from another star in glory, so it will be with the saints in light. 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 11

It means everything to us to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. God works in us, to will and to do of His good pleasure. If we let Him work, He will work. Our reward in heaven above depends on our daily walk and conversation here below. We can be Christians here. And to be a Christian, it is not necessary that we live in depression, mourning because we cannot have our own way. If we are Christians indeed, Christ is formed within, the hope of glory. This brings a light into the chambers of the mind and the soul-temple which nothing can put out. We need religion in the soul. We need to carry out the principles of true godliness. 14LtMs, Ms 102, 1899, par. 12

Remarks at a Special Meeting Held in the Avondale School Chapel

Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

July 25, 1899

Previously unpublished. +Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

[Beginning remarks missing.]

A. G. Daniells: Then, instead of stopping with securing property they became financially responsible for institutions that swamped all that property. There is where they made the mistake. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 1

E. G. White: The light that I had was this: It was a reproof brought to one that was appointed for the special work of visiting and gathering in the means and seeing how this one or that one would donate or make his will—people who were old and feeble—what they would do with it after they got through with it. Well, did they have the privilege themselves of choosing how that should be appropriated, or did they put it right into the conference to be used as it pleased? 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 2

G. A. Irwin: It was both ways. In some it was indicated, in others it was put in to be used as seemed fit. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 3

Mrs. E. G. White: The first I knew anything about this was [when] it came out in the Bulletin, I think, where they invited, or urged, that the General Conference should give the interest of the school debt—£20,000. They thought they had quite a good slice from this bogus man—which we do not know who he is nor what he is—while they were going to kind of ride on that, and make that a lever to give them the interest; and I understand they did. Then they had got so far that they concluded [that] they wanted the whole debt of pretty nearly £18,000; make it a jubilee and give the whole thing. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 4

Well, after that came, in the night season we were in a company very much like this, there were a few more, and the talk was pro and con. One could not see how that it was a liberal, Godlike thing to give the interest and the whole debt; they could not understand it. And others were urging, "Oh, give it, give it, give it right out. Show your liberality," and all this. I thought then, just as it has been so many times, one full of dignity stepped forward from the company, and he turned toward the authorities, and those in responsible places in our institutions and in the General Conference, and with great decision commanded them. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 5

With great decision he said, The Conference has no moral right to make naught of that debt, to give it. It is not theirs to do it. It belongs to the people, the people who have sustained the Conference. It is the people's money, and they have no right, loaded with debt, to take and assume another debt, because they are stewards of the means that should be rightly appropriated. The means were not rightly appropriated when the addition was put up upon that school ground—[the] addition of the building. It was devoted away from its proper channel. All over the field is God's vineyard. No one that shall carry on our school institutions or our sanitariums or any such thing should demand of the Conference, if they get a great burden of debt, that they [the Conference] have got to shoulder it, and then talk of mercy and compassion and all that. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 6

Where is the mercy and compassion, he said, to the fields that never have had the standard of truth uplifted in them? Here, where the great light has been shining all around you in messages of warning, in messages of encouragement, and in messages of truth, had you followed the light that God has given, there would not have been a debt on the school. There would not have been an institution established in Boulder, for the Conference to appropriate these means that do not belong to them. They had no right to appropriate the means that they appropriated in the Boulder institution. And here it is, eating out the vitals of the things that ought to have the most vitality now existing, to support the foreign missions. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 7

The fields are all ripe, and everything should be used that it is possible to be used. It should not, he said, be invested in buildings; it should not be invested in worldly enterprises. God will blow upon it all if they do, because the cause of God calls for His money now, and He wants everyone that can to lift and to advance His work in the earth. In the sanitariums, instead of adding building to building, and building to building, let them go into communities, [go] where there are cities, and where there are sick to be cared for. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 8

Everything is to be carried, this Instructor said, everything is to be carried as God carried the work. It is not to be carried to pretense in show, to gain popularity. It is not to be carried to extremes to gain the opinions of people. We are to let it be understood that we are doing a work for God, and [do] everything that we can do, in behalf of the work of God, in a plain and simple manner, but with helpful facilities to carry that on. And all the surplus will be because God helps the physicians, because God helps the nurses. It is not to be grasped right in their arms. They are not to say, "Now, all that there is in this institution belongs to me to say where it shall go, and I will have this and that and the other." 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 9

From the light that has been given me a substantial company of men should understand how it shall go. It is impossible for me to describe it. It is no kind of use. It is a despairing thing. Doctor Kellogg was placed before me, his situation, his leading in this direction, and his leading in that direction; his getting this institution, and that, and the other institution established, for what? Why to help a class of people that cannot show the solidity of the work, or the true bearing of the message that we have to bear to the people. The great work that is to be a warning, and the whole earth is to be filled with its glory, is the third angel's message. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 10

That message, he said, was to be the great testing message. It is to the law and to the testimonies, if they speak not according to this word there is no light in them. Now, here it is, to raise up a people among the downcast. The flaming notices go out of what good is done. There are a few souls that stand. But it is much like a rolling stone. You push it and pull it, and drag it, and get it part way up the hill, and down it goes again. You pull with all your might and get it halfway up again, and down it goes again; and there are a few that will be rolled up to the top, a few that will enter the kingdom. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 11

I wrote him [Dr. Kellogg], and said I, For Christ's sake do not you, or anyone else, ever write any more, or allow anything to go into your health papers, how we prayed with a man who was drunk, and who gave himself to God and is saved. Saved, said I, when is he saved? This man that stood before us gave just the very same interpretation of the work that was being done. It was a work to gather up all round in certain places, to do a certain work, [but] not a solid work. It is not a work that can say, This is the chosen of God. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 12

When churches are built up, why, people can see that it is something substantial, something to last, and it is not something that is to run right down the hill, and you cannot see where it is going to. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 13

This was presented by the one that stood before us, that everything that was of the character of the Gospel Wagon that was going through the country meant just nothing. You go to gather up afterwards, and what do you see? The whole aftersight is before me, and what did I see? There was nothing substantial or solid in it all; and there it was, presented to me in that light. All these things coming out form the branches of the work. It is as the body to the arm. All the medical missionary work is the arm to the body. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 14

The truth of God is to go forth [from our] sanitariums as was laid out before me again and again. And at this time, when the conversation was going on, he pointed to the Doctor. Putting his hand on his shoulder he said: "You are building pyramids to tumble down and crush you, because there is nothing to hold it." If we do a thing for foreign countries, to gather in the means, why, we cannot swamp it all in this work. In that [which] they call the medical missionary work everything, everything in the way of means, is grasped at now, to get the Doctor out of the debt that has placed him where everything is in a perilous condition. This speaker set before them how it was, how that he had spoken to the discredit of the ministers and the ministry, and a portion of the work.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 15

They should have taken hold of the work so that they could carry it, that this medical missionary work, and the ministry should be connected; but it belonged more to every state, more to every city. And there is a home to be established to educate workers. And in regard—let me tell you—in regard to homes for infants, the light that I have has not been strong in that direction at all. Here are those that are perishing for want of knowledge, and the outside interests should be taken care of, but to hang upon a people all these great enterprises makes them tired—to hang these things upon them, and take every drop of blood out of them, so that they have no power to carry the message and uplift it where it has never yet been lifted.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 16

Well, now, if I should tell the Doctor I expect it would [be] the finishing stroke, and I have withheld it. About the Gospel Wagon, I have said to him over and over again, “Doctor, you are getting too many responsibilities. From the light given me the third angel’s message, the banner, was in your hands, and you were riding prosperously. But,” said I, “there was a company all around you; and they were working upon you until that banner was trailing right on the ground, and they were about to take it right out of your hand. That was written, from time to time, for two or three years. And as you have gathered all these responsibilities upon you, there is nothing to support them.”14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 17

As long as the world will come forward, and it is a new thing ... but now you have got the institutions. He has written to me that he broke up one. What are you going to do? This question was asked. What are you going to do? There is no foundation, so what are you going to do? Where is your man to sustain them? The people of God who have been raised up with a knowledge of the truth have become confused. They have lost their confidence in the General Conference because of the misappropriation of means, and the Lord does not move upon their hearts to pass in their means to the Conference. That is why Elder Haskell is going to help Elder Irwin.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 18

These things have been laid out before me from time to time ever since before I left Battle Creek. Not the things about the medical missionary work, but about getting these great buildings, etc. to give character, etc. to the work. There was one that stood in our midst on one occasion, and he said: "What gives character to the work like character? It is the character that gives character to the work. It is not any show in buildings, it is the integrity of character." We have got to take a straightforward course, just the same as we have taken from the commencement [of] the work. And when we go back to that simplicity, we will see the power of God manifested, because the time has come. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 19

These things have been presented to me over and over again; but about the doctor I do not know what to do. I gave him a caution, and sent it to Brother Irwin, too. He is the only man that received it besides Dr. Kellogg, but I knew that he had to have it. I knew just what was coming at the Conference. I knew that Dr. Kellogg was going to say, We will grasp the medical missionary work and be entirely dependent from the Conference. I knew that was what was going to be done. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 20

I produced everything encouraging that I could, just as I told you about the angel's hand holding his hand, and how the Lord had placed him in that position as a steward. That is what the Lord showed me, and if he would not be like Nebuchadnezzar he would become a power. As soon as he began to feel that he was a man of power, and he began to demerit the ministry and make the medical missionary work the body and not the hand, the Lord would just as surely leave him in the position in which Nebuchadnezzar was left. The last [thing to do] is to present it to Brother Irwin that he may present it to the people. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 21

Well, the Doctor understands it, and he says: "You have forsaken me. I thought you would stand by me." He wrote to me: "If you will send me word, I will raise you $5,000 in sixty days," but no word came from me. Why? Because from the light that had been given me, he was making large speeches in every meeting where he could get access, to make the medical missionary work the body and not the hand. Therefore he was putting a sentiment into the hearts of the people to sustain the medical missionary work and make donations. Why, of course you can go and pick up all the poor and all these, and you can make a draft upon the cause that will bankrupt every institution that we have got in existence; but, you see, the thing has to move, [but] not disproportionately. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 22

In every city, wherever there is a company, we should move there and pitch the tent and labor. The light given in regard to Stanmore was that the work must be done afterwards, and we had got to establish a church. But they had all their preparations made to have a great spread and great expense. But they did just as I said, and you know how it came out. We got in and had our tents up before the enemy knew what it was. And we preached on the first Sabbath and Sunday before the ministers had a chance to warn the people. The ministers had all gone for their vacations, and when they came back they found their whole camp had been taken, and they were left out. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 23

Then Dr. Caro came in and raised an intense interest in the health work. There was the arm brought in; and so the work is to move solidly. Well, we have moved in that way in Brisbane, and in Newcastle. Now the medical missionary work is working in; it is the arm. And you see it works both ways. It has created confidence, and it has created an interest. Then shall we drop everything else and make everything of the medical missionary work? No, we have got to go hand in hand. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 24

In every place where there is a church established, we want such men to come in as Dr. Caro has come. It has not been easy work, and he has worked hard all through. That is the way that we leave something solid behind us. And then there was the cooking school, and that left an interest. There is a church there now that begins to pay tithe, and as that church pays tithe, there is money coming into the conference to help in those other places, to raise a fund to send ministers to every place. That is just the way the Lord wants it worked. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 25

But the words spoken by this man that stood before us were that the General Conference had no moral right to use the funds of the people to do that, to take up and absorb that work, as Dr. Kellogg would absorb it, to do a work for scattered bodies. Now, these that come to sanitarium are treated, and have an opportunity to see and hear the light there.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 26

The light came to me only about two weeks ago: "There, Doctor, is your place. You are to work and to bring facilities in talent into the sanitarium. And there is your meetinghouse built, which you said was especially to have a converting influence upon the people." And that was all right, but not to go right out, and his influence cannot work the people. He makes it appear, in a queer way, that he abounds in money, and that he has got [an] abundance. Well, then you know why they think they can all come right in and be clothed and fed, and many that are fed and clothed are brought up out of their degradation and reformed. They print the facts of the reformations, but they do not print the facts of the backsliders, those that do not amount to anything.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 27

The light I have is that our sanitariums that we build up, and that we invest our money in, and that we try to get others to put their money in and build up, that those sanitariums were to grasp all the money that the General Conference had for missionary purposes, and ministers to go out and elevate the standard, it was not to do that. Now things have got to come on a right basis.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 28

Well, I have written and written and written. I do not know how far it would reach if it were all put in one line. There must be a fund to support foreign missions, and this work is to go forward, to advance, and [to] establish the truth wherever it has been. But the first place is the English-speaking people. We are to make centers among the English-speaking people. Here is a center, and we are to make it the very strongest force and educate these people. Let them bring in the people of other languages, here to the center, to be educated in their language, and they will go out from this people to the different parts of the world. We are the nearest, we are nearer than the General Conference.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 29

Instead of building those great buildings in Battle Creek, let them build less places for the orphans in that and other localities. Let the very churches, the very places where they are, care for the sick and the suffering that are around them. When you begin to build institutions for them, there is no end to it; and it embraces everything that we shall have to carry the last message to the world. It takes up everything, and God does not want it thus. This has been opened before me again and again, yet I do not dare to say, "You shall not do any medical missionary work," because it is a power—just as the arm [is] connected with the body.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 30

But the body has to work the arm and not the arm the body, and it is there the Doctor has made his mistake. He wants that the arm should work the body. He is determined to bring it to pass, but he cannot do it. Now the man is in a condition where he finds himself all worn out, and who is going to take care of all his responsibilities? He has been the moving one, it is his voice that has run these things. And if that voice had kept proportionate with, and sustained, the ministry, it would have been altogether more appropriate.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 31

W. C. White: As you have spoken quite fully of the relation between the medical and religious work, I would like to ask one or two questions that are on the mind of several of us. In Battle Creek the Conference was asked to support a chaplain in the sanitarium, and it was done for a while. Then the sanitarium managers proposed that the tithes of the workers should go toward the support of the religious work in the sanitarium, and toward this benevolent work. Do you think that that would be a right principle for us, to let the tithes of the workers in medical lines be separated from the Conference, and go to the Medical Association? Or should the tithes all go to one treasury, and then the Conference be liberal in sending ministers to work in connection with the medical work?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 32

E. G. White: How could it be like the body and the arm unless it worked in just that way? There is to be no division.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 33

W. C. White: It has been proposed by some that our institutions, not the individuals but the institutions themselves, should recognize the sovereignty of God, and should pay tithes on its increase. If the institutions were to pay tithes, could we make a division there, and let the publishing house and the school pay to the union conference, and let the medical institutions all pay to the Medical Association? Would you favor that kind of a division?14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 34

E. G. White: I could not say unless I should have it all laid out before my mind. I tell you as nearly as I can what light I have, and that is the best I can do. I cannot tell you anything that has not been specified to me.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 35

W. C. White: I have thought of how God intended that the unity of Israel should be restored by all going to Jerusalem to worship. And when Jeroboam saw that their going to Jerusalem was likely to make a union and bring about a united kingdom again, he set up two calves to save the people from going to Jerusalem. And I have felt as though we need to study that before we suggested tithe-paying to two different places. I have thought what we ought to look out that we do not establish two places for tithe-paying and two places for worship.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 36

E. G. White: I know that the medical work and the ministry, the medical work and the church work, should all be one interest; that I know. And there should not be a separation concerning the medical missionary work, for we are all laboring to one end.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 37

G. A. Irwin: Have you any more to say to us on these general principles rather than that we should ask you questions?14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 38

E. G. White: The general principles that I have spoken upon weighed the heaviest upon my mind, and that was the way that Dr. Kellogg is running things. It is going to kill everything. We have no right to create any more that we can carry. God does not want us to create responsibility after responsibility. It is presented to me as a selfish ambition. I expect that [it] is what hurt the Doctor. It is a selfishness to create all he can. When we have created, we have got to see that we can keep the breath of life in it. We may create and the breath of life may go out, and then what is to be done with the object of our creation?14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 39

W. C. White: Could we not do the medical missionary work in different localities without taking upon ourselves the burden and the expense of building up big sanitariums anywhere? Could we not get along without building a sanitarium, and do the medical missionary work without expense or burden?14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 40

E. G. White: In a center like this there should be a sanitarium, and yet we are never to pile up buildings as they have in Battle Creek, because it is a wrong principle. It has been sounding forth for the last twenty years that it should not be done. But it is done; and it is not because God wanted it so. There are Detroit, Kalamazoo, and different cities in America; take those buildings [in Battle Creek] in a cluster together; if they could have been separated, and part of them [had] gone to Chicago, Detroit, part to Grand Rapids, and part to these different localities, there they would have had a representation large enough to raise the confidence of the people, and that would give character to our work.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 41

But, you see, they have piled it into Battle Creek. They have got an enormous church; the more they build, the bigger the church is. The people leave the little churches, where they were a support and strength, and come into Battle Creek where there is nothing for them to do, only to be jealous, suspicious, and accusing of one another. That great center should not have existed. But they got in the way, and it seems as though neither the word of the Lord nor anything else will hinder them from carrying it out until they have nothing. There is trouble coming there, but it is coming, and our people are in a very poor condition to meet it.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 42

There is trouble coming, you may be sure; but because our own people have betrayed us to the enemy, they have destroyed that influence that God wanted to exist with the people there. The sanitarium has done a good work in the conversion of many, many souls, and the light has gone out to all people because God has moved on the hearts of the people that have come in connection with the truth. The Doctor is in danger of taking glory to himself on account of those responsibilities that he has carried. It is true that God has helped him, but it will not do for man to take glory to himself. We see how it is now. Here are all those responsibilities, and the man is crushing under it.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 43

E. W. Farnsworth: If we go into these places scattered all around and hire buildings for our sanitarium work, I suppose it will cost from £100 to £150 a year to get rent. We will have to do that or build a small place. Have you any light in regard to which is best?14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 44

E. G. White: The Lord will give you light when you come right on the ground. He will not have you create anything unless He will give you knowledge and wisdom to do it. Do think of that, everybody. You want wisdom; believe that the wisdom comes from God. You can begin very little, and see and feel your way along until you can see how you can go. The Lord does not make the rose in full bloom; it is first the bud and then the bloom, that is how the Lord works.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 45

W. C. White: Shall New Zealand, when they think the time has come to build a sanitarium, begin to build without counsel, or shall they counsel with the members of the Medical Association Board?14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 46

E. G. White: I think so, because the light was that this is a center, and the center for the work here. We ought not to leave a center where God has established us to do a work, and people that are responsible here, and people that understand the work, and have been in the work. You do not want us to feel that we cannot establish anything until we go to Battle Creek, because you had the very power that He would use, the very intelligence, and the very understanding of the field. We may call those that have knowledge and wisdom right in our midst here. You take those in New Zealand; they should counsel with those that have been at work in this very same kind of a work that they want to do, and take their counsel about that thing.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 47

J. J. Wessels: Should this association work with the object of establishing a large sanitarium in New South Wales, with the view of establishing branch institutions in Victoria, New Zealand, and other places?14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 48

E. G. White: The people need enlightening, and if it is right in their reach, they will. A big institution lays upon the one that stands at the head a great responsibility, and if he is a man that has intense sympathy, he will be an old man before he is hardly a young or middle-aged one.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 49

W. C. White: We have planned to have our buildings and institutions here that would accommodate one hundred patients, and one hundred physicians, helpers, and students; that we would build the first building so that it would accommodate a family of one hundred fifty patients, and fifty helpers, but afterwards it could be enlarged.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 50

E. G. White: Get them educated, get them educated; special plans must be made for that. [When] a call comes, “We want you to send us help,” then, they are prepared to say, “We will send this one.” That is the way it should be done. We have got to co-operate, and the Lord God of heaven will be our Helper.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 51

G. B. Starr: This morning the great question was in electing a chairman to this board, whether it should be a medical man, or whether it should be a business man. Shall it be a physician who has a knowledge of the work, or shall it be a business man?14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 52

E. G. White: If the one that has the great responsibility has got the intellect enough to take these patients and carry them through successfully with the help of God—[he] should be [qualified to be] chairman for this medical missionary work that he has to do.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 53

E. R. Caro: Your idea is that the medical missionary work is the essential part of the association, and that the business is secondary.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 54

E. G. White: The business is important; they should go together.14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 55

In closing Sister White said: I have said nothing at this time to accuse, or for anyone to make use of, in reference to Dr. Kellogg at all. It is only because he wants to do so much that he is killing himself. And do not anyone feel that I have said one word to discount Dr. Kellogg; only [that] he wants to do so much that he is embracing too much. So do not anyone use any of my words that shall in any way hurt Dr. Kellogg, or present it that I have tried to hurt him, because I have not. 14LtMs, Ms 103a, 1899, par. 56

The Battle Creek Sanitarium and Large Buildings

NP

1899 and 1900

This manuscript is compiled from other letters and manuscripts. Previously unpublished.

[From Ms 103a, 1899:]

These things have been laid out before me from time to time, ever since before I left Battle Creek, not the things about the medical missionary work, but about getting these great buildings to give character, etc., to the work. There was One that stood in our midst on one occasion, and He said, "What gives character to the work like character? It is the character that gives character to the work. It is not any show in buildings; it is the integrity of character."
...14LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 1

There must be a fund to support foreign missions, and this work is to go forward, to advance and establish the truth where it never has been. But the first place is the English-speaking people. We are to make centers among the English-speaking people. Here is a center, and we are to make it the very strongest force, and educate these people. Let them bring in the people of other languages here to the center to be educated in their language, and they will go out from this people to the different parts of the world. We are never to pile up buildings as they have in Battle Creek, because it is a wrong principle. It has been sounding forth for the last twenty years that it should not be done. But it is done; it is not because God wanted it so. There are Detroit, Kalamazoo, and different cities in America; take those buildings [in Battle Creek] in a cluster together; if they could have been separated, and part of them [had] gone to Chicago, Detroit, part to Grand Rapids, and part to these different localities, there they would have had a

They have got an enormous church; the more they build, the bigger the church is. The people leave the little churches, where they were a support and a strength, and come into Battle Creek, and there is nothing for them to do, only to be jealous, suspicious, and accusing of one another. But they got in the way, and it seems as though neither the Word of the Lord nor anything else will hinder them from carrying it out until they have nothing. There is trouble coming there, but it is coming, and our people are in a very poor condition to meet it. There is trouble coming, you may be sure, but because our own people have betrayed us to the enemy, they have destroyed that influence that God wanted to exist with the people there. 14LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 3

[From Lt 40, 1899:]

I have just been reading over the testimony written when the sanitarium was started in Battle Creek. The entreaties and supplications made then for help for that sanitarium and for our school were just as strong as the entreaties I am making now for the help I ought to have had here. In the establishment of the work in Oakland, California, I felt the same distress of mind. I have spent many sleepless nights over the establishment of work in these places. Now they stand on vantage ground, and the workers in them should have understood the situation without compelling me to plead in behalf of a field where there is nothing to give character to the work. It makes me ashamed to think they have not. 14LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 4

My brother, you are on test and trial, and if you throw your arms about so many responsibilities that are unending in their duration, and make them first, you will not do right. You must consider that it absorbs means to sustain the increasing demands which your devising creates. To whom shall those who are in hard and trying fields look for strength and financial support? If they could receive anything approaching to the donations that you have received, they would be able to work with far more courage, and, having facilities, could accomplish far more work. 14LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 5

All these things need to be considered. There is the sanitarium in Battle Creek—a place of great influence. You have been honored by God; and I do not want you to increase and increase a certain line of work that absorbs so much that other fields are left with little or nothing. 14LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 6

[From Lt 10, 1899:]

One-quarter of the buildings now piled up in Battle Creek are all that should have been centered there. Twenty years ago centers should have been made in other cities, and the banner of truth uplifted. Light has been centered too much in one locality. ... 14LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 7

A portion of the abundant facilities in America should have been used to establish the work in Australia and England—countries where the least expense is entailed in advancing the work. The Lord is displeased by the selfishness manifested by leading His servants in such destitution. One hundredfold more could have been accomplished in London than has been accomplished, if the workers had been provided with some of the abundance seen in America. 14LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 8

Men who can help to bear responsibilities are needed here. Christ is at work to redeem and restore, and this is a time of special grace. It is essential that the efforts made to advance the work in America be made to advance the work in Australia and England. With facilities we can do much to reach the people. With added forces rallying round the standard, men can be prepared to go into regions beyond, to foreign countries. 14LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 9

[From Lt 45, 1900:]

The deceptive power of the enemy has led you to leave God's banner trailing in the dust, while Dr. Kellogg has committed himself as working "undenominationally" in a work which has taken the money from a people who are decidedly a denominational people under God's theocracy. God's signature they bear as the loyal, commandment-keeping subjects of His kingdom, a peculiar people, zealous of good works. No man's name is to be exalted as creator. God has not set him to create. Your influence no one dares to dispute but myself. God says you are not right. You have a greater ambition to exalt self than to honor God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 10

If the institutions established are to be conducted, as is stated, on the undenominational plan, what have Seventh-day Adventists to do with this work? Seventh-day Adventists have a special work to do in building sanitariums in our world as necessity demands. These buildings are to be small or large, as is appropriate to the situation and the surrounding circumstances. Our work is to be aggressive, and is to belt the world.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 11

[From Lt 33, 1900:]

If the ensign of truth can be lifted in educational institutions and in sanitariums for the sick, in the islands of the sea and in many countries, more would be accomplished in bringing souls to the truth than can be accomplished by all other methods that can be devised.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 12

[From Ms 6, 1900:]

The sanitarium in Battle Creek was ordained by God to do a special work, to give character to the third angel's message by making an impression upon the world. But the presentation of the medical missionary work, the appeals made to the people assembled in camp-meetings, has put almost out of [sight] the great solemn testing work to be done for this time. The living oracles have been made little of by those engaged in the so-called medical missionary work. The Lord took Dr. Kellogg in hand to do a special work, but it was not the work he has been doing. God did not give him a work to do that would wear away his physical, mental, and spiritual efficiency, and He says to him, Who hath required this at your hands? You have engaged in a work which has bound up both money and laborers. This work is not according to My appointment. My cause all over the world is suffering for need of the money that has been under your control. A large amount of means has been unnecessarily expended, and My servants who have entered new and untried fields have been robbed in various ways of the means that would have relieved their difficulties. In the multitude of your achievements you have left undone the work which God appointed you.14LtMs, Ms 103b, 1899, par. 13

The Board of Directors

NP

July 30, 1899 [typed]

Previously unpublished. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

We feel deeply our need of understanding the true position of our counsellors and board of directors. The board of directors has inquired of me to know what is expected of them. I referred them to the experience of Moses: "It came to pass on the morrow, that Moses sat to judge the people; and the people stood by Moses from the morning until the evening. And when Moses' father-in-law saw all that he did to the people, he said, What is this thing that thou doest to the people? Why sittest thou thyself alone, and all the people stand by thee from morning unto evening?"<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 1

"And Moses said unto his father-in-law, Because the people come unto me to inquire of God; when they have a matter, they come unto me; and I judge between one and another, and I do make them know the statutes of God, and his laws. And Moses' father-in-law said unto him, The thing that thou doest is not good. Thou wilt surely wear away, both thou, and this people that is with thee: for this thing is too heavy for thee; thou art not able to perform it thyself alone."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 2

"Hearken now unto my voice, I will give thee counsel, and God shall be with thee: Be thou for the people to Godward, that thou mayest bring the causes unto God: and thou shalt teach them ordinances and laws, and shalt show them the way wherein they must walk, and the work they must do. Moreover thou shalt provide out of all the people able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness; and place such over them, to be rulers of thousands, and rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens; and let them judge the people at all seasons: and it shall be, that every great matter they shall bring unto thee, but every small matter they shall judge: so shall it be easier for thyself, and they shall bear the burden with thee. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 3

“If thou shalt do this thing, and God commands thee so, then thou shalt be able to endure, and all this people shall also go to their place in peace. So Moses hearkened to the voice of his father-in-law, and did all that he had said. And Moses chose able men out of all Israel, and made them heads over the people rulers of thousands, rulers of hundreds, rulers of fifties, and rulers of tens; and they judged the people at all seasons: the hard causes they brought unto Moses, but every small matter they judged themselves.” [Exodus 18:13-26.]14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 4

Again, in the days of the early church, “when the number of the disciples was multiplied, there arose a murmuring of the Grecians against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministrations. Then the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not reason that we should leave the word of God, and serve tables. Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you seven men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business. But we will give ourselves continually to prayer, and to the ministry of the word. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 5

“And the saying pleased the whole multitude, and they chose Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas, a proselyte of Antioch: whom they set before the apostles, and when they had prayed, they laid their hands on them, and the word of God increased; and the numbers of the disciples multiplied in Jerusalem greatly: and a great company of the priests were obedient to the faith. And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.” [Acts 6:1-8.]14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 6

Something has been opened before me of which I must speak. A president has been chosen, _____. He has never served in this capacity, and it is important that you make a careful selection of men for the board. It is essential that changes be made, and that the directions given by Jethro to Moses be considered. The president, because he is president, is not to feel at liberty to follow his own individual judgment. _____ is not to decide who shall stand as his helpers. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 7

The men chosen to compose the board are to be unselfish, God-fearing, chosen men, who understand how to control and discipline themselves, “able men, such as fear God, men of truth, hating covetousness;” “men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and wisdom.” [Exodus 18:21; Acts 6:3.] A hasty, passionate, impulsive man should never have a place on a board of directors, for he is not under the rule of God. It will be better to have fewer men, than to place in office those who have not the faith and humility of Christ, and who will block the wheels of progress by their hereditary and cultivated tendencies to evil. We must have in connection with God’s service men who are as true as steel to the work they are called to perform. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 8

The question has been asked, Should the man placed by the side of [the president] be a minister? I answer, Not necessarily. He should be a man of business ability, and his office is to be just as much respected as that of the president, for it is fully as responsible. The business agent is to stand in close connection with the president, and he should have a helper, on whom he can rely when business is pressing to keep an accurate account of how all money spent is expended, and be prepared to lay all business matters before the Board. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 9

There is need of an altogether different class of men standing on the board of directors. The president of the General Conference should not have as laborers with him men who will take it for granted that it is right for them to voice all that the president shall devise and plan. The president of the Conference is not to carry so great a load, but is to consult with the men appointed to work with him. As president of the Conference, he is exposed to strong temptations, and he may be led to think that his position gives him freedom to act upon his own individual responsibility. This is a mistake. Brother Butler was not willing to accept counsel from the Lord, and he followed his own judgment until he was unable to act any part in the work. When temptation swept over his soul, his physical strength was unable to endure. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 10

There is danger of the business manager becoming molded by the mind and judgment of the president, but this should not be. The man chosen to be a business agent is amenable to God, and he is to be a faithful standard-bearer. The president may have had an experience which would lead him in wrong lines. There may be a tendency on his part to divert means into channels which will not be for the best interests of the work. Therefore he needs to be guarded in the expenditure of means. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 11

The business steward has a position of high honor, which is not a whit less than the president's; and he may well be called vice president, for he serves with the president as an adviser in all enterprises and in every outlay of means. The money that comes into the Conference is not to be disposed of by the president of the Conference without the knowledge of the business director and the board. All matters are to be placed before the board, and if there is not an agreement upon them, men who are trustworthy, who fear God and work righteousness, should be chosen to decide the question. Then everything will be guarded, and a decided work will be done. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 12

The president and business manager are to be regarded as bearing a united responsibility. The work is great, and if the business of financiering is so conducted that there is a departure from the simplicity of the work; if money is absorbed for the sake of appearance, in order, as men suppose, to give character to the work, weakness and not strength will result. In the board of directors and counsellors, two or three men are not to confederate together to carry out their own ideas. This must be strictly guarded against, for in pursuing such a course there is danger that injustice will be done. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 13

Our work is being watched to see if there is prosperity or waste in its construction. By our own course of action a state of things may be created which will cripple the work and bring reproach upon the cause of God. In every conference we are to give character to the work, not by exalting self, not by display, but by becoming living stones in the building of God. Let everything be done decently and in order. But never suppose that buildings, dress, and outward show give character to the work. “Ye also, as living stones, are built up a spiritual house,” God says. [1 Peter 2:5.] Prayer and grateful thanksgiving to God will give solidity and character to the work. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 14

God’s great work cannot be carried on by one man’s mind or one man’s judgment. A board of the most substantial, solid men we can find is needed for the successful carrying forward of the work. In ancient time the Lord had connected with his work men of varied talents. Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses with his meekness and wisdom, and Joshua with his various capabilities, were enlisted in God’s service. The music of Miriam, the courage and piety of Deborah, the filial affection of Ruth, the obedience and faithfulness of Samuel—in such contrast with the proud, passionate Saul—were all needed. Elijah, with his stern traits of character, God used at his appointed time to execute judgment upon apostate Israel. Elijah bore his testimony unflinchingly to King Ahab. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 15

In every age God calls His men, and when the divine voice asks, “Who will go for us?” the response comes, “Here am I; send me.” [Isaiah 6:8.] Whenever God has a special work to be done at a special time, He always has men prepared to meet the demand. But no one or two men are to stand alone to follow their own judgment. God will establish His counsellors, and furnish the men of His appointment with talents, whether they are required to break down or to build up. These men, living under the power of the Holy Spirit, will express in their very features the likeness of Christ, and their holy characters will be a rebuke to the unconverted. It is not a purification of soul once, now and then, that we need, but the full and abiding righteousness of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 16

Then if, as in the case of Elijah, one man apparently stands against a nation, that one, like Elijah, will stand in defense of the right, conscious that he is working in the presence of One before whom the nations of the earth are as grasshoppers. 14LtMs, Ms 104, 1899, par. 17

Words of Instruction to Responsible Men

NP

July 30, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in WM 123, 228-229.
+NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Altogether too many buildings have been erected in Battle Creek and other localities, and they are eating up the resources which should be used in doing thorough, substantial work in other countries. It is high time for a decided reform in those who are standing in responsible positions. Men are needed who have sound judgment, men who in every enterprise will consider the words of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 1

The man who designs to erect a building should have calculating talent, that he may count the cost, lest he begin to build and is not able to finish. Wise judgment will lead to wise calculations. He is not to invest the Lord's entrusted talent of means where it will be continually absorbed in sustaining the enterprise. Men of sound judgment are needed, who will not be so ambitious to create, but will study how to preserve the vitality of the institution after the building has been erected. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 2

There has been too much enthusiasm to rush buildings into existence, without consulting the mind and judgment of the people. These buildings have been represented as a positive necessity. They have been erected irrespective of the necessities in other portions of the Lord's vineyard. Necessities have been created in buildings, and these must be fed with money and facilities in order to be carried forward healthfully and prosperously. And where are the funds? This is not as God would have it, and He calls for a decided change in the manner of working. These methods and plans, which are carried on in a few localities, rob the other portions of the great field. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 3

All need to counsel together in regard to the so-called medical missionary work and the way in which it shall be conducted, for there is danger by our own course of action of our closing against ourselves the fields which need to be worked. My Guide presented before me many things which need our close, critical attention. He represented the case as it really is, and not in as favorable a light as it has been represented, in which the objectionable features have not appeared, while the more favorable ones are brought out in large proportions. No line of work should be carried forward in such a way as to divert the minds of the workers from the work which God has given His people to do for these times. In order to advance the cause of God in a few localities, men have taken from the Lord's treasury as fast as the means have come in; in order to build debts have been incurred, while the work in foreign countries has been neglected. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 4

The Lord does not encourage one thread of selfishness in the workers in His service; but herein has been the fault. All that is needed to confirm the truth of this is the showing of the work today which does not bear the divine credentials. It is not after God's order. No longer must the workers become absorbed in a class of work which demands a constant supply of means and facilities to sustain it, while other portions of the field are left untouched. God wants a different showing from this. He is not glorified. The ministerial work must be revived. The medical missionary work is not to be separated from the work of the ministry. This is and will continue to be the temptation. The work must be properly balanced, that it may move forward solidly in every line. The work of the Holy Spirit is needed. God calls for perfect unity in all who labor in word and doctrine. They must carry with them the Spirit of Christ to every congregation. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 5

In every large assembly there should be men who will give the trumpet a certain sound. Persons are not to be encouraged to take the stand as teachers who have all their life been sunk in the depths of pollution, intemperance, and sin. Such men are not to be exalted as speakers, for they will cast reproach on the work of the gospel ministry. The chosen messengers of God are to stand in their God-given rights to carry the warning to the world, and in every place where they exalt the Lord's memorial, there a church will be raised up. This will require much labor. They will need to reason from the Scriptures, giving the truth in clear lines, both by precept and example. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 6

The call is to sound forth now, just now, "Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and the cage of every unclean and hateful bird. For all nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the merchants of the earth have waxed rich through the abundance of her delicacies. And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. For her sins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities." [Revelation 18:2-5.]14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 7

"And I saw another angel come down from heaven, having great power; and the earth was lightened with his glory, and he cried mightily with a strong voice, saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen." [Verses 1, 2.] The Lord would have each soul work in harmony with the first, second, and third angels, who bear His messages to the world in no whispered tones, showing the people where they stand. Nothing must be allowed to rise to dim the light of the third angel's message. The work of this angel is to lighten the world with his glory. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 8

Satan will employ every means in his power to prevent God's people from doing their work for this time, but the Lord calls upon His people to present to the world the gospel message, whatever the consequence to themselves. Buildings are now standing which have cost large sums of money, [and] which might better never have been erected. Such movements should not be made without serious, painstaking calculation to find out how much was required to build and equip it. In every city and town the gospel message is to be borne by means of camp meetings and tent meetings, followed by house to house labor. Let nothing divert the strength and power of the ministry from the work which God designs it should do in arousing the people and bringing them to repentance. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 9

The medical missionary work ought always to have existed in the work of reform. But it is never to become the means of separating the workers in the ministry from their work. Christ united these two branches in all His labors. The medical missionary work is a part of the great whole, as the arm is a part of the body. But the arm is not to say to the head, I have no need of thee. The body has need of the head and the arms in order to do active, aggressive work. The body is not to become the arm. Each member has its appointed work to perform. The so-called medical missionary work will result in great harm if it is made the body in the place of the arm. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 10

In every church genuine medical missionary work is to be done. In the place of erecting more buildings to call the people from the smaller churches, let each company in these churches be instructed to do its appointed work. Let the minister educate the families, and he will strengthen the church to care for its own sick and poor. Set at work the God-given faculties and a great blessing will come into the church. If one church becomes over worked in this line, let the sister churches help with them. The money invested so largely in buildings might better be spent in caring for the needy saints, who after practicing self-denial and self-sacrifice for the good of others, have not sufficient to care for their own sick and afflicted. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 11

This is the education to be given. Every church needs strength and money, that it may keep its own poor without using the tithe money. Erect fewer buildings, and you will need less means. These large institutions become largely dependent upon the Conference, and by drawing from this source, you cripple its power to sustain the work in nigh and afar off fields. When a call comes for help, it is forced to say, We have no funds. Thus its poverty is revealed, and God's people stand in a questionable light before the world. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 12

There are still other plans being devised for the erection of buildings, but before you erect these buildings, I would say to you, Before you begin to build, sit down and count the cost. See if you are able to finish. Do justice to the cause of God. The ministry of the gospel in word and doctrine must be sustained. The money which in the past has been expended for the erection of buildings would do a large work through God's appointed agencies in establishing small churches in new fields in far off lands, where God's people have no place in which to worship Him. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 13

Sound principles have been laid down for every Christian in the world, principles which will develop the characters of those who profess godliness. Those who possess true godliness will bear the sign. They will love God supremely and their neighbor as themselves. The devisings of men are removing from the churches the blessings they should have. God has placed in our care the poor and the suffering, and these are to be cared for as Christ cared for them. The Lord would have this work done in the different churches, rather than that they should depend so largely upon institutions, for this will take out of the hands of the churches the very work God has appointed them to do. When fathers and mothers die, and leave their children unprovided for, the orphans should be cared for by the church. Open your hearts, you that have the love of God, and take them into your homes. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 14

This is the lesson God would teach us through His servant when he says, "Is it such a fast that I have chosen? a day for a man to afflict his soul? Is it to bow down his head as a bulrush, and to spread sackcloth and ashes under him? Wilt thou call this a fast and an acceptable day to the Lord? Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke?" 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 15

"Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked, that thou cover him; and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh?" [Isaiah 58:5-7.] (See Malachi 3.) You are not to do this work by proxy. You are to give evidence to the world that you are Christlike. You are to practice self-denial and self-sacrifice. Then a light will shine in every Christian home, which will reveal itself in behalf of the ignorant, leading them to the source of all knowledge. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 16

Full and complete redemption may be taught from the Word of God to enlighten those who are in darkness. Christ gave His life that men might have salvation. But by their indifference the churches of today are losing the most precious opportunities which it is their privilege to have. The burdens which they should bear they are placing upon some institution. If they would take up their God-given work, they would receive a knowledge of what practical godliness means. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 17

Christ is revealed in every place where the standard of truth is uplifted. He is revealed to your neighbors when the truth which you believe leads you to the performance of good works. They see that your faith means something. They realize that your belief is not cunningly devised fables or idle speculations. They will see that it is not your own imaginings inspired by enthusiasm. People are watching and weighing those who claim to believe the seventh-day Sabbath. They watch to see wherein your dress, your life and conduct, represent Christ. And your influence will tell in every town and city where the truth has found a place for itself. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 18

The churches are chilled to death because they do not take up their appointed work right where they are. If they would do this, God's richest blessing would rest upon them. All the attributes of Christ are awaiting our reception as we work in His lines. Heaven's blessings are guaranteed to us. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 19

"Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy rereward. Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger, and speaking vanity; and if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul, then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noonday." [Isaiah 58:8-10.]14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 20

Should not this instruction from the Lord be valued by every church member? Shall we not take heed to every word that proceeds from the mouth of God? Shall not we who claim to be children of God begin right where we are to make manifest our personal interest in these blessings? They are for every family, for every soul in every family. As we individually appropriate these blessings, we will impart to others. This is the sure result of genuine faith. Faith without works is dead, being alone. In our lives we must reveal that faith which works by love and purifies the soul from selfishness. All that heaven contains is waiting the draft of every laborer with God. We must have true sympathy with Christ, and then will come the fellowship of the Spirit. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 21

Christ's joy and peace arise from a belief in the Word of God. Christ's work of reform is to be carried on in every place by the members of the church. They are not to disregard the work of the Holy Spirit. For what saith the Scriptures? "The Spirit also helpeth our infirmities; for we know not what we should pray for as we ought. But the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us, with groanings which cannot be uttered. And he that searcheth the hearts knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit, because he maketh intercession for the saints," indited by the will of God. [Romans 8:26, 27.]14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 22

"And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones; and thou shalt be like watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not. And they that shall be of thee shall build the old waste places; thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in." [Isaiah 58:11, 12.] We are not left to human conclusions in reference to where this instructions applies, and the time of its marked fulfillment. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 23

"If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words, then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father, for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." [Verses 13, 14.]14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 24

The genuine medical missionary work is bound up with the third angel's message. It cannot be divorced from it. This work is a reform which needs all parts combined to make it solid and efficient. "They that be of thee shall build the old waste places; thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations." [Verse 12.] God's memorial, the seventh-day Sabbath, the sign of His work in creating the world, has been displaced. Who has displaced it? The man of sin. God's people have a special work to do in repairing the breach which has been made in the law of God. All who love God will show that they bear His sign by keeping all His commandments. They are the restorers of paths to dwell in. Their work is specified. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 25

"If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day, and call the Sabbath a delight, ... then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord, and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth." [Verses 13, 14.] The work for this time is to make prominent the truths presented in Exodus 31:12-18. And medical missionary work is bound up solidly and inseparably with all God's commandments, of which the Sabbath is mentioned especially, for it is the great memorial of God's creation work. Its observance is bound up with the work of restoring the moral image of God in man. This is the ministry God's people are to carry forward. 14LtMs, Ms 105, 1899, par. 26

Remarks/Report of Committee Meeting

NP

July 26, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in CS 275-276. <sup>+NoteOne</sup> or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Elder Daniells: In our meeting two or three days ago, we met for the organization of the Medical Board. Elder Irwin was elected chairman pro tem, and Brother Morse secretary. Brother White moved that Brother Wessels be chosen president of the board; Brother Robinson seconded the motion. I think that is as far as we got with our work. In the afternoon we had another meeting, and Sister White spoke to us. I do not just understand what the object of this meeting is, unless it is to proceed with the organization of the board.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 1

Elder Starr: The other night the meeting closed after I had asked a question. I had another question to ask, which I would like to ask this morning. What is the relation of a president to his board, or a chairman to his board? This includes the relation of conference presidents to their boards. I have felt very anxious that this relation should be clearly defined. I think it would help us in the selection of such men. I think this question has a vital bearing on the election of a chairman for the Medical Board.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 2

Dr. Caro: I also would like to hear the answer to this question, for the reason that it was an explanation of the relation of a chairman to his board, given by Sister White in a person[al] conversation, that has led me to take the stand I have taken here. I would very much like to hear this question answered.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 3

Elder Starr: It has seemed to me as I have listened to the discussions on the great danger of chairmen of boards running into heavy financial investments involving the whole Cause, that difficulties have arisen because of a misapprehension of the chairman's position. As I understand it, the chairman voices the [thinking of the] board, and if the board numbers five, he is acting in concert with five minds; if the board numbers seven, he is acting in concert with seven minds, and if the board numbers ten, he is acting in concert with ten minds. Any one who thinks that the position of president of a board makes it possible for the man occupying it to involve the cause in financial difficulties does not understand the position of chairman, as I understand it.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 4

Elder White: I wish to state some of the considerations I presented in behalf of the motion which I made. They were these: The organization of our Medical Missionary Association, with the distinct understanding that it is to control the food factory and other enterprises, places it in a position where enterprises will look to the Association for funds. They look to the Association for funds, and especially to the Chairman of the Committee, as he is one the people look to as the one to whom they can entrust their funds. The people of Australasia want to lend their money to the biggest enterprise; and when we ask for money to be loaned to the Food Company, to the School, or to the Echo Company, they say, "Yes, that is very well, but we have confidence in the Union Conference. We will lend our money to the Union Conference, and it can lend it to whatever it pleases." So the natural tendency is for the Union Conference and the Medical Association to assume large responsibilities.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 5

Another feature. To whom do the people look? They look to the president, and not only do the people do this, but the members of the board are getting more and more into the habit of looking to the president to do anything they want done. For instance, if enough funds are not being raised for the school, if the school is not receiving proper attention, complaint is made to the Executive Committee of the Union Conference. If the Echo Company finds that its circulating department is getting a little out of order, it looks to the Union Conference Committee to take hold of the matter, and make the circulating department what it ought to be. If the Food Company is short of funds, instead of the managers feeling that it is their duty to go to the people and raise money, they say to the Union Conference Committee, We cannot go on with the work; for we have no funds. If you who hold the purse strings will provide us with funds, we will go on with the work.14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 6

And the very persons who make this demand on the Union Conference are themselves members of the Union Conference Committee. I am a member of that committee, and so are the representatives of the Health Food business, the Echo Company, and other enterprises. Thus the logic of the complaining is that the president of the Committee is not doing enough. We centralize the responsibility on the President, and look to him to make things go.14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 7

The fact is, we love to have kings. The people want kings. We want somebody to fight our battles for us. The school wants the Union Conference to fight its financial battles. The Echo Company wants the Union Conference to see that the Echo is properly edited, and that the circulating department is properly managed. The Food Company looks to the Union Conference to provide workers for its various branches. The people look to the center. They say, We will lend our money to the general organization.14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 8

This all tends to place us where the General Conference Association was. The committee bears the burden of the general work, and the president bears the burden of the committee. That is the logic of our history, the road over which our experience has brought us.14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 9

In the matter of choosing a president for the Association, when the brethren said that it should be a medical man, I argued that the position was more financial than medical, and that until we made a radical change in our system of operations, it will necessarily be more financial than medical, and that it will be necessary to have a strong financial man at the head.14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 10

This is the position I took. I do not say it was a right one. It may be that it was based on wrong data. But these are the opinions that my observation of our experience have given me.14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 11

Sister White: I wish I had what I have written to the General Conference in regard to this matter. When they began swerving matters in objectionable lines, light was given me. Elder Butler was told decidedly that he should have a strong man to stand by his side, not to voice his words, not to feel that he must do what Elder Butler said because he was president. That would be an entirely wrong thing to do. A man must be chosen to stand as Elder Butler's helper, every one understanding that he was business manager.14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 12

Before I left the meeting Tuesday evening, the question was asked whether a medical man or a businessman should stand at the head of the board. I began to search for something I had written on this point, and I found it. This was written in regard to some difficulties that had come up.14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 13

But there was a great burden resting upon me. I felt like a cart pressed beneath sheaves. I did not close my eyes till half past eleven. I thought, I ought not to have gone to that meeting. I have my work, and I ought to attend to it.14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 14

After a while I fell asleep. Then I seemed to be in a meeting, and those present were in conversation regarding the question we had been discussing that afternoon. One of dignity and authority stood before us, and all present listened attentively to what he said. "The question was asked," he said, "whether the business agent stands lower than the president."14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 15

"Upon a business manager rests great responsibility. He should take charge of the finances, and stand by the president's side. He has charge of all business arrangements. The president will not then be left to follow his own judgment, his own ideas, as a president might be supposed to do, because another man has the responsibility of financial arrangements. The position of business manager is, if anything, a more responsible one than that of the president. The business manager has a connection with the work that it is not possible for the president to have. His work is as deserving of honor and respect as the work of the president."14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 16

These are the words that were spoken. In the past, careless work has been done in putting men into positions who did not know anything about the work. They were unproved. From the instruction given in God's Word, we see that the men chosen to fill places on boards are to be men who will not tie themselves to any man, to be molded and fashioned after his ideas, because when men do this, the whole work is injured. Men must stand in their own individuality. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 17

The president and the business manager are to work unitedly together. The business manager is to see that the expenditure does not exceed the income. He is to know what there is to depend on, so that the work here shall not be burdened with debt as it is in Battle Creek. The condition of things there need never have existed. It is the result of men not being under God's rule. When men are under God's rule, the work moves harmoniously; but when men of strong temperament, who are not controlled by God, are placed in responsible positions in the work, the cause is imperilled, for their strong temperaments lead them to use money which is only in prospect. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 18

The enemy is working in every possible way to bring embarrassment upon our people. The Medical Board should be composed of picked men, and when the president sees an opening which should be improved, let him counsel with the one who has charge of the finances. He knows where the money has come from and should know just how it should be appropriated. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 19

There is to be perfect unity and harmony among the members of the board, but the members are not to take the mold of the president, whoever he may be. His independent judgment is not to be followed before the matter has been brought before the board. Everything is to be laid before the board, and the decision of the members is to control the matter. The business manager carries heavy responsibilities, but he has no moral right to say to the president, "You can go ahead, and do what you propose. It is according to my mind." The judgment of the board is to control in all matters. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 20

As this was laid before me, the burden that has rested on me rolled away. I felt that my feet were upon the sure foundation. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 21

Dr. Caro: In the terms I used, perhaps I expressed in words what I did not mean in heart. My idea was that in a Medical Association God wants medical work done. If there were no medical work to be done, there would be no Medical Association. Sister White told me that there should be two separate men at the head of the Union Conference Committee and all such bodies. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 22

Sister White: That is what I have been trying to express. As for Dr. Caro trying to exalt himself, I do not think that at all. When the question was asked the other afternoon, I did not answer as thoughtfully as I should have done. When I went home, the burden upon me was so great that I cried to the Lord earnestly. I was shown that individual work must be done in our associations. The members of the board are to work together in harmony, but they are to be no more blended than the branches of a vine are blended. Yet the branches are supported by one parent stock. They draw their sustenance from the parent vine. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 23

In all the associations we have, this principle must be recognized. God never designed that the presidents of our conferences should take upon themselves the responsibility of managing and carrying things according to their own judgment. This will not answer. They should have associated with them men who have a sense of the fitness of things. Then if the president should propose a wrong move, his fellow-worker can correct him. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 24

When new enterprises are to be started, the plans should be submitted to the board, and those who start the enterprise should carry with the approval of the board. If means are to be invested, the board should know of it, so that it will be responsible for the financial success of the work. Had this always been done, the state of things now existing in Battle Creek would never have existed. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 25

When Elder Butler was president of the General Conference Association, the people thought they must bring all their troubles directly to him, and that all their help must come through him. But this is not God's design. A man in such a position should have as a helper a man of business ability, who can take the management of the finances, with whom the president can counsel. These men are to hold nothing back from each other. When difficulty arises, let them both take time to think and pray, and if together they can see a way to success, let them lay their plans before the board. They are not to act on their own responsibility. They may think the way is perfectly clear, but even if they do, they have no right to go ahead in their own judgment. The matter is to be laid before the board for the decision of the members. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 26

Elder Daniells: I believe every word Sister White has said. I think that it is good sense. For years we have talked about this, because of instruction we have received from Sister White regarding the Union Conference. We have talked about getting someone to take the management of financial affairs, but we have not yet found anyone. During the last conference period, the brethren have frequently talked about this matter and acknowledged the truth of the principle; but they have not found anyone to take this place. I had greatly hoped that at this conference the Lord would lead us to find such a man. I dread the thought of starting another term of two years with no prospect of a businessman as helper. What can we do to fill this place? I know not who to select. I have felt that I would like to impress this matter on my brethren, that it may not be left for another two years. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 27

Sister White: I would not allow it to be left. You have your line of work. Again and again I have been instructed that one man's mind and one man's judgment is not to decide everything. One man is not to take the responsibility of saying to the different laborers, You go to that field, and, You leave this field. This is work of grave responsibility, and one man alone cannot do it. Brother Daniells, it is not best for you to try to do it, because it brings on you a heavy burden. If the men prove treacherous, this burden falls on you. You should have a man who can stand by you, who can help you where you need help. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 28

Men's minds are not cast in the same mold, any more than the branches of a vine are alike. Yet each man has his office, and each is to be related to the other, because they are related to the True Vine. The way in which things have gone in the past has not been just to you, Brother Daniells, because a man is wearing when he does not know it. He comes into a pressure when his energies are called out, and he throws himself into the work, using more vitality than is required. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 29

Every man needs rest. Dr. Caro must have a time of repose. He is not treating himself justly when he allows himself to be broken up in his habits of sleep and eating. If his usefulness is preserved, he must not use all his strength up because he sees so much work to be done. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 30

Great care should be taken in choosing the men to stand by the presidents of the various associations. When I wrote to Brother Butler that he must have a helper, he wrote back that he had secured his son. This was not the right thing to do. When I spoke to Brother Olsen about the same thing, he too got his son, who would not say a word if he saw his father making mistakes. What boy could see anything to correct in his father? 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 31

We are not to feel that our brethren have no right to speak to us in regard to a wrong course we are taking, because we are workers together with God. We must think over what they have said, and see where we can reform. We must take hold of the hand of God, saying, Do not let me go until I do reform. We must do this in order to perfect a Christian character. We are not to make a confederacy with our fellow workers, saying, "I will not say anything of your faults if you will not of mine." 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 32

We are to work together, in accordance with the words, "All ye are brethren." [Matthew 23:8.] We are to try to bring all the perfection possible into our own characters and into the characters of those connected with us. We are not to act as though we were better than those around us. If we have the sunshine of Christ's righteousness in our hearts, if Christ is abiding in us, we will recognize Christ in our brethren, and therefore we shall work together harmoniously. 14LtMs, Ms 106, 1899, par. 33

The Debt on Battle Creek College

NP

August 2, 1899 [typed]

In the General Conference Bulletin there appeared the statement that a man by the name of Norman had made large donations to the General Conference. This brightened up the prospect wonderfully. It was thought that thus relief would be brought to the various lines of work. With this impression, a request was made that the unpaid interest on the Battle Creek College debt, amounting to twenty thousand dollars, be cancelled. After this a request was made that the entire debt, about eighty thousand dollars, be cancelled; but this was not considered advisable. 14LtMs, Ms 107, 1899, par. 1

In the night season I appeared to be in a meeting. Some present were earnestly advocating the matter of cancelling the college debt, saying that this would be a great blessing to the institution. Voices were raised saying, Give the school the debt. Show your liberality. One of authority stepped forward, and said to those in charge of responsibilities in our institutions and of the Conference funds, The debt upon the Conference must not be increased. The Conference has no moral right to use its money to cancel the college debt. Had the managers of the various lines of work in the publishing business and the Conference heeded the warnings graciously given them by the Lord, this debt would not have existed. Instruction was given that the principles of self-sacrifice must be maintained, in order that the gospel might go to all nations, kindreds, tongues, and peoples. 14LtMs, Ms 107, 1899, par. 2

“When men walk in the counsel of the Lord, they will maintain the principles of self-denial which the Lord outlined in the establishment of the work. God will work with all who follow the example of Christ.

He will be magnified in their councils. He will give them clear intellect, and will answer their sincere prayers. Their humility and charity will come up before him as did the prayers and alms of Cornelius. The Lord will be with those who search the Scriptures and obey the instruction and warnings He has given them to save them from dishonoring His name.”14LtMs, Ms 107, 1899, par. 3

Our Instructor spoke with great earnestness, saying, “The light God has given has been regarded by some as foolishness. Spiritual things are spiritually discerned. Every institution which claims to be the Lord’s instrumentality should be sanctified by pure, holy principles. To those connected with these institutions God says, ‘Be ye clean that bear the vessels of the Lord.’ [Isaiah 52:11.] When these words are heeded, the golden oil will be emptied from the two olive branches into the golden pipes, which will empty themselves into the vessels prepared for the anointing oil.” With great sadness our Instructor said, “Many of you have lost your connection with God. Therefore your hearts are not softened by the grace of God, represented by the holy oil.”14LtMs, Ms 107, 1899, par. 4

The stewards of the Conference have no moral right to transfer the debt from the school to the Conference. The Conference needs to come near to God, and to understand as never before the exalted character of the work of Christ in this apostate world. Those in positions of trust are to act in all things as faithful stewards, guarding conscientiously and religiously the funds which have been created by the people. In the past this has not been done, and men have an account to settle with their God.14LtMs, Ms 107, 1899, par. 5

The Lord would be pleased to see revealed today the self-denial and self-sacrifice which was revealed in the establishment of the work. Means are not to be drawn from the treasury to establish institutions at a risk of crippling the advancement of truth in regions beyond. The Lord has moved upon the hearts of His people by His Spirit, and they have given of their substance; but the men who have held office have not represented the Author and Finisher of their Faith. The hearts of the managers of the work must be broken under the power of the Holy Spirit. When those who are handling sacred things reveal the Spirit of Christ, God will work with them

Had the cautions and warnings given by God been heeded, the work would now stand clear, pure, and exalted, and the Lord would be honored in all His instrumentalities. But unsanctified men have been connected with the work, and they have misapplied the resources and have defiled the sacred place of God. By men with uncleansed hearts and hands holy things have been handled as common things. Selfish, covetous men have committed the sin of idolatry. If men could only see what their course of action has resulted in, they would fear and tremble, as they will in the day when they stand before God. But they are not cured. Even in this their day they know not the things which belong unto their peace. If they did, there would be a repentance that would not need to be repented of. Cleansed by the renewing of their minds, they would be able to distinguish between the sacred and the common, between honor and rectitude and dishonor and fraud. But Satan rules the minds and hearts of all those who know not the day of their visitation.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 107, 1899, par. 7

All hidden things are open before God. He measures outward acts by the motives which originated those acts. He reads the heart of the man whose motives were once pure and clean, but who parts with these principles to advance his selfish interests. The motives of such a man decide the character of his actions. The intellect takes its coloring and character from the ideas upon which the mind is encouraged to dwell. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." [Proverbs 23:7.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 107, 1899, par. 8

If the mind is not compelled at all times to act from right principles, the man will deviate from justice; and in the day that he does this there is written opposite his name in the books of heaven, "He departed from merciful, righteous principles. He over-reached his neighbor. He robbed him, and thus transgressed the law of God." He that offends in one point is guilty of breaking all the commandments of God; for virtually he does this. The man who is entrusted with responsibilities should carry himself as did Daniel, the faithful statesman. He is to be guided by right principles, so that when his affairs are examined, no books will be found to be hidden, no accounts mystified; every transaction will be as clear as the light of day, so that the scrutiny of the keenest can find no fault in him.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 107, 1899, par. 9

Every day a man in a position of trust has decisions to make on which depend results of great importance. He has often to think rapidly, and this can only be done successfully by those who practice strict temperance. The mind expands under the correct treatment of the physical and mental powers. New vigor comes with every taxation if the strain is not too great. Men are best prepared for work when the mental and physical powers are equally exercised. God's servants must keep a high standard before them. The Lord wants those who are in his service to enlarge their minds by giving the intellectual faculties plenty to do, by harnessing the mind for the stern duties of life, which require close thought.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 107, 1899, par. 10

There is need of contemplating God. The man who would be uplifted must be good and do good. If his brethren ask favors of him, he has not a refusal at the end of his tongue or his pen. God's money is to be used not only in your immediate locality, but in regions beyond, in distant countries, in the islands of the sea. If God's people do not engage in this work, God will surely remove the power that is not rightly appropriated. If church members are not active, wide-awake missionaries, they will lose their vitality. They are not living stones. They do not shine, and therefore are not of the least value. God calls for a higher piety, for a pure, sanctified people.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 107, 1899, par. 11

“He That Loveth Not His Brother Abideth in Death.”

NP

August 2, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 7BC 962-963, 11MR 274. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

I am instructed to bear a message to all who are in positions of holy trust. The Lord would have them do honor to Him by cherishing tenderness, by showing confidence in their brethren. One man is not to seek to grasp all for himself, withholding from those who are doing missionary work in hard fields their just and righteous dues. Men’s hearts become like flint when they take means from the treasury for themselves, refusing to relieve the necessities of those who are doing a severe and trying work. 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 1

In the ministration of the gospel of Jesus Christ the Lord uses diverse gifts. He has not given any man authority to hold in low esteem the various instrumentalities and gifts of the gospel. He has not given any man the privilege of looking upon the Lord’s work through His appointed agencies as inferior, while he is carrying the work in his own way because he thinks it superior. This is dangerous for himself and all who are connected with him. 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 2

“And he gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ: till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ: that we henceforth be no more children, tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, and cunning craftiness, whereby they lay in wait to deceive.” [Ephesians 4:11-14.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 3

All these gifts are to be blended in the work of building upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets. Jesus Christ Himself is the chief corner stone, “in whom all the building fitly framed together, groweth into an holy temple in the Lord.” [Ephesians 2:20, 21.] “Fitly framed together.” Study these words, and seek to understand all that they comprehend. “Fitly framed together,” each acting his respective part unitedly. Thus we grow “into an holy temple in the Lord.” Have a care how you build. Take heed to the admonitions of the Lord. We are to work unitedly to one end, “till we all come into the unity of the faith and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ.” [Ephesians 4:13.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 4

“For by grace are ye saved, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God; not of works, lest any man should boast.” Whence comes our power to work? “We are his workmanship, created in Jesus Christ unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them. ... God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, ... and hath made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus.” [Ephesians 2:8-10, 4-6.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 5

I am instructed to bear a message to the managers of every institution that has been established. You must change in heart and character. You must show that you have yoked up with Christ, to learn of Him His meekness and lowliness, that you have opened your heart to the Saviour’s love, so that it may flow forth in pure, rich currents of tenderness, courtesy, and kindly deeds. If the heart is not speedily unlocked, that Christ the light and life of men, may take possession, if there is not a reformation in the soul, a determination to obey the injunctions Christ gave His disciples, you will lose all the attributes He came to give.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 6

Addressing His disciples as “little children,” Christ said to them, “A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.” By this manifestation of love “shall all men know that ye are my disciples.” [John 13:33-35.] There is need of far more childlike simplicity. This love God now demands His disciples to show for each other. He is greatly dishonored because His professed followers are drawing in their own lines, and closing their hearts to the softening, subduing influence of Christ’s Spirit. Instead of exerting the pure, holy, uplifting influence that dwelt in Christ, many are manifesting Satan’s attributes. 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 7

My brethren, how long will you be satisfied to remain unconverted, unsanctified, unholy? How long are you going to remain as you are? You may have some excellent qualifications, but if you padlock the door of the heart against Christlike love for your brethren, you do not possess the attributes which will give you an entrance into the kingdom of God. This statement applies to every church. 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 8

To the church at Ephesus John wrote by the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, the words of Christ, “I know thy works, and thy labor, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear them which are evil; and thou hast tried them which say they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars: and hast borne, and hast patience, and for my name’s sake hast labored, and hast not fainted. Nevertheless I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love. Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works, or else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent.” [Revelation 2:2-5.] 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 9

Shall we not all ascertain for ourselves whether we are destitute of love for each other? Why will brethren cherish selfishness and covetousness? Why will they allow the root of bitterness to spring up in their hearts? Would it not be well to take heed to the words of the True Witness, and find out what it is that makes the hearts of brethren as hard as steel toward each other? The Lord is measuring the temple and the worshipers thereof. Will you not heed His warning? He declares, “I know thy works, that thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead. Be watchful, and strengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die: for I have not found thy works perfect before God. Remember therefore how thou hast received and heard, and hold fast, and repent. If therefore thou shalt not watch, I will come on thee as a thief, and thou shalt not know what hour I will come upon thee.” [Revelation 3:1-3.]14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 10

Read the whole of the third chapter of Revelation, and seek to understand the work to be done. The Holy Spirit has come with convicting power to you in Battle Creek; but though there has been some stir, the work of true conversion has not been perfected. Self has not been crucified, and until it is, hardness of heart, want of love for your brethren, will be seen. You will sustain your own opinions, you will not bend from your self-exaltation to consider the necessities that should be relieved.14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 11

Those whom Christ warns have some excellent qualifications, but they are neutralized by <all who have> a diseased self-love, self-deception, self-justification for gross neglect to help brethren in the service of God by encouraging words and deeds. There is a dead fly in the ointment. They are being weighed by One who never makes a mistake. He tells the result of actions which demonstrate that the love of Christ is not an abiding principle in the soul. God calls upon you all to learn from Christ His meekness. Put away your faculty for seeing the mistakes of others. Turn your attention to your own defects. Your self-righteousness is nauseating to the Lord Jesus Christ.14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 12

He declares, “I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot. So then because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold or hot, I will spew thee out of my mouth. Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing, and knowest not that thou art wretched, and miserable, and poor, and blind, and naked; I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, and that the same of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see.” [Verses 15-18.]14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 13

These words apply to the churches and to many of those in positions of trust in the work of God. Your position does not make your character. To all who are in responsible positions Christ says, "Be ye therefore perfect." [Matthew 5:48.] This command is an application of the great lesson of love Christ gave the lawyer who came to Him with the question, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" [Luke 10:25.] This lawyer had heard the words which just previous to this Christ had spoken to His disciples.14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 14

The Saviour had been giving those who kept on His track to criticize, cavil, or condemn, unmistakable evidence that He was the Sent of God. He had healed the sick and worked many other miracles; but still the people did not believe on Him, and He denounced them for their resistance of light and knowledge.14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 15

Christ had appointed seventy disciples, and sent them "into every city and place whither he himself would come." [Verse 1.] These returned with joy, saying, "Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name. And he said unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven. Behold I give you power to tread on serpents and scorpions, and over all the power of the enemy; and nothing shall by any means hurt you. Notwithstanding, in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you, but rather rejoice, because your names are written in heaven."14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 16

"In that hour Jesus rejoiced in spirit, and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes; even so, Father, for so it seemed good in thy sight. All things are delivered unto me of my Father, and no man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father; and who the Father is, but the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal him. And he turned him to his disciples and said privately, Blessed are the eyes which see the things which ye see; for I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them." [Verses 17-24.]14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 17

The lawyer had been deeply convicted, but he made an attempt to carry out the purposes of Christ's enemies by asking the question,

“What shall I do to inherit eternal life?” Christ answered, “What is written in the law? how readest thou? And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.” “Thou hast answered right,” Christ said; “this do, and thou shalt live.” [Verses 25-28.] 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 18

Willing to justify himself, the lawyer asked, “And who is my neighbor?” [Verse 29.] In answer Christ told him of the man who had been robbed by thieves, and then left by the roadside, wounded and half dead. “And by chance there came down a certain priest that way; and when he saw him he passed by on the other side. And likewise a Levite, when he was at the place came and looked on him, and passed by on the other side.” [Verses 30-32.] Those who should have helped him did not. They looked upon their suffering fellow-creature, and then passed by on the other side. Thus it is today. 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 19

How many of those whose hearts should be tender and compassionate refuse to admit Christ into their hearts. Therefore they fail to speak kindly and tenderly to those who may be in trouble. Their brother may be very much in need of encouragement, but they have none to give. They have lost the dear Saviour, if they ever had Him. They are strangers to his tenderness and love. A stern, cold, forbidding steel-like spirit controls them, and works of mercy and love are barred out. All such should remember that they do not belong to Christ’s family. He does not acknowledge them. Selfishness and not love is the controlling element in their lives. They do not represent the Saviour. The image of God is not stamped upon the soul. 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 20

The completeness of Christian character is attained when the impulse to help and bless others springs constantly from within, when the sunshine of heaven fills the heart and is expressed in the countenance. There is no such thing as a loveless Christian. It is not possible for the heart in which Christ abides to be destitute of love. The heart that is cold and stern is not catching the bright, softening beams of the Sun of Righteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 21

Hear the testimony of the apostle John: "These things write we unto you, that your joy may be full. This then is the message which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, That God is light, and in him is no darkness at all. If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth; but if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." "He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occasion of stumbling in him." [1 John 1:4-7; 2:10.] 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 22

"In this the children of God are manifest, and the children of the devil: whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother. For this is the message that ye heard from the beginning, That we should love one another. Not as Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil, and his brother's righteous. ... We know that we have passed from death unto [life], because we love the brethren." 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 23

"He that loveth not his brother abideth in death. Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer; and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him. Hereby perceive we the love of God, because he laid down his life for us; and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren. But whoso hath this world's goods, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" [1 John 3:10-12, 4-17.] 14LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 24

Take this question to your own hearts, and answer it as if before the Judge of all the earth. A reformation must take place in every church, in every institution. "Let us not love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth. And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and shall assure our hearts before him. For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart, and knoweth all things. Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence toward God. And whatsoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight. And this is his commandment, That we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and love one another, as he gave us commandment.” [Verses 18-23.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 25

These sacred lessons, if received into the heart, will work the reformation essential. Many will lose heaven unless they change their selfish, unlovable, unsympathetic ways, and learn that the Spirit of Christ is not selfish and forbidding, uncourteous and loveless. Unless those who stand in responsible positions in our institutions make decided changes in heart and character, they will be condemned as lukewarm, knowing not that they are “wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked.” [Revelation 3:17.] Unless we practice Christ’s ways and receive His Spirit, we are none of His. He desires us to reveal His love in our words and actions. All that we do should flow from a deep, abiding principle of love that is after the similitude of Christ, who is love and light and peace. But how little, how very little, of Christ’s character is revealed. The spirit of self-denial is becoming a rare thing.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 26

But there is love in our churches. There are those who love God supremely and their neighbor as themselves. Their prayers and their alms come up before God as a memorial. The Lord does not lose sight of them. He is watching those who are walking in the light as fast as they receive the light. They are the objects of His special care. The law of Christ’s kingdom is in every respect to be carried out in this world. The inspired apostle declares, “Ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the saints and of the household of God.” [Ephesians 2:19.] “For our conversation is in heaven, from whence also we look for the Saviour our Lord Jesus Christ, who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his most glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself.” [Philippians 3:20, 21.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 108, 1899, par. 27

The Need of Equalizing the Work

NP

August 3, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 1MR 229-231; 3MR 324. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The whole world is the Lord's vineyard, and he would have every part of it worked. Those who have been placed as stewards of the Lord's goods should see that everything is managed in such a way as to bring the Lord the greatest revenue. A wise steward will not select a few portions of the vineyard and absorb in them the means which God has intended for the entire field. He will open the eyes of his understanding to see the necessity of equalizing the work, that beauty and harmony and solidarity may be seen in every part.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 1

"It is the spirit of selfishness," said the Teacher who was giving us instruction, "which leads men to absorb everything in that work which is under their own supervision, that their portion of the field may be enriched to the neglect of other portions. This is a species of selfishness which many do not discern. Large accumulations are drawn to one section of the world as though that were the only part which the Householder designs to have worked."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 2

God designs that not one thread of selfishness shall be woven into His work. Every man's work is to be done with reference to his fellow laborers, for all have their appointed work. The vineyard must be cultivated, vines must be planted, that crops may be gathered. To every man is not committed the same task, and the work in the different lines must be done in unselfishness. The minds of the workers are first to be molded by God through His appointed agencies. The Word of the Lord is to be communicated to men, to supply their minds with suggestions and methods for working the field in such a way as to present to God the very best returns from all parts of His vineyard.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 3

The worker is to feel an interest in every line of work, and if God has given him foresight and capability and knowledge that will help in any of these lines, he is to feel it is his duty to communicate that which he has received. All the workers, in their various occupations, are to train their minds to do the very highest service. The exactitude, skill, tact, wisdom, and perfection, which God required in the building of the earthly tabernacle, He would have brought into every work that shall be done in His service. Workers are to desire mental strength, that they may do everything according to the pattern shown to Moses in the mount. God requires perfection in every line of work that has to do with His service, and the workers must understand this. Read the thirty-first, thirty-fifth, and thirty-sixth chapters of Exodus.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 4

The experience of Nadab and Abihu should be a lesson to all who bear any responsibilities in the service of God. An example of unrighteousness greatly dishonors God, and He will not tolerate it. The tenth chapter of Leviticus records the sin of Aaron's sons and their punishment. The sacred fire which God commanded should be used in the service of the sanctuary represented God. This fire never went out day nor night, and this was to be used in all their service. But "Nadab and Abihu, the sons of Aaron, took either of them his censor and put fire therein, and put incense thereon, and offered strange fire before the Lord, which he commanded them not. And there went out fire from the Lord and devoured them, and they died before the Lord. Then Moses said unto Aaron, This is it that the Lord spake, saying, I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me, and before all the people I will be glorified." [Verses 1-3.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 5

It is not man who is to be praised and honored, but God. Of all who engage in His service He demands strict obedience to every word that proceedeth out of His mouth. All the refined and elevated and worthy ideas of our mind we need to place in connection with God that He may co-operate with them. He would have us reason from cause to effect in every undertaking which has reference to His work. The sacredness of His work is to be preserved fully as much now as in the days of ancient Israel. Then the workers will obtain, not a selfish tact, but high and sacred developments which will reflect back all the glory to God.14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 6

The Old Testament Scriptures Our Study

The lessons of the Old Testament Scriptures had far better be studied than human productions and theories. Let a plain “Thus saith the Lord” become the study of teachers and students. We need to do solid work now.14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 7

The Lord has given to each a special work, and we are not to ignore the work of our fellow laborer, because he is not doing the same work as ourselves. God can only acknowledge our work as it shall blend with the gospel ministry. The Bible places us in possession of grand and sacred truths. It is the Word of the Most High. Those who are forming their religious faith need to be educated that they may not be turned against the ministers whom the Lord has set to give the gospel to all nations and kindreds and tongues and peoples. This Word is the great teacher. It alone can enlighten us in regard to the voice of God in nature, and lead us, step by step, through nature to nature’s God. The voice of God is revealed in nature to lead us to higher contemplation. In the government of God is revealed the benevolence, justice, steadfast integrity, mercy and truth, and His subjects are to become acquainted with these elements.14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 8

The Old Testament Scriptures reveal Christ, and bring to us a knowledge of His prerogatives and high authority as Captain of the Lord’s host. What manifestations of His glory are revealed that we may obtain a knowledge of His character! He was an example of truth and purity; enshrouded in the pillar of cloud, He gave His gospel to the children of Israel as verily as He gave it from the mount of beatitudes. And when He became flesh and dwelt among men, and they beheld Him full of grace and truth, His standard of purity, righteousness, and love gave to the human race the perfect standard of their practice. And with this standard He gave them the bright prospect of immortal life in the paradise of God.14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 9

Lest self rise to great proportions, and the credit and glory which belongs to the great I AM be given to man, there must be a mental growth in sanctified lines of study. The highest knowledge it is possible to gain is found in the instruction which fell from the lips of Christ both before His incarnation and after He appeared in human form. If a worker accepts the position of teacher to students who are to be fitted to do all kinds of missionary work, he should read his Bible with greater care, realizing that all that is sacred and elevated should be connected with the instruction he gives. 14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 10

The Work of the Ministry

Those who have any work to do in lines of God's appointment need to study the manner in which the work is to be done. The plan of the work is not to be brought down to the low level of human minds. It is to stand on a high and holy platform. Souls in the depths of iniquity must be rescued; their intellect must be restored and elevated and their hearts cleansed from the leprosy of sin. But they are not to be treated as wiser than the saints of God who minister in word and doctrine. God's ministers are to be respected. And if one man fails at the work of the ministry, help him to his restoration, manifesting for him the same pity you show for the corrupted and polluted and unholy. 14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 11

The Lord commanded Moses for Israel, "And thou shalt make a plate of pure gold, and grave upon it, like the engravings of a signet, HOLINESS TO THE LORD. And thou shalt put it on a blue lace that it may be upon the mitre; upon the forefront of the mitre it shall be." [Exodus 28:36, 37.] So great a departure has there been from purity and holiness in the service of the ministry that but little respect is revealed in those who should above all others maintain ennobling ideas and give an elevating representation of the Lord's appointed agencies. 14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 12

The Medical Missionary Work

The Lord sees that things are swaying heavily in medical missionary lines, while the work in other branches is calculated to give wrong impressions which will not easily be effaced from the mind. Ideas which should be strictly guarded in any service God has appointed have been perverted, and impressions have been made, displeasing to God. One man's mind and judgment is not to become a controlling power. God forbid that this should be. "All ye are brethren." [Matthew 23:8.]14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 13

The so-called medical missionary work gathers into the net both good and bad; and the larger proportion of these will not stand as overcomers by the blood of the Lamb and the word of their testimony. It is very necessary that we keep before the degraded the law of God, as the standard of righteousness. "Holiness unto the Lord" must be our standard, else the work of rescuing this class will lower their ideas of what God requires in practical character building. There can be no such thing as a cheap class of Christians who, like Moab, keep their scent in themselves, because they have not changed from vessel to vessel—from character to character.14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 14

The time has come for us to have a decided understanding of what shall be comprehended in medical missionary work—what shall go forth by pen or voice to be discredited, and what to be exalted. As the train of human reasoning is heard, it will be made apparent that the character must be determined by the inward work of grace upon the heart. If the law of God is written in the heart, men will prove the excellence of their resolutions. Their conduct will be after the divine similitude. "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes, the fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever: the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward. Who can understand his errors?" [Psalms 19:7-12.]14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 15

This is a serious question indeed, and from every soul the prayer should go forth, "Cleanse thou me from secret faults. Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression. Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my Redeemer.” [Verses 12-14.]14*LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 16*

“Unto thee, O Lord, do I lift up my soul. O my God, I trust in thee: let me not be ashamed, let not mine enemies triumph over me. Yea, let none that wait on thee be ashamed: let them be ashamed that transgress without cause. Show me thy ways, O Lord; teach me thy paths. Lead me in thy truth, and teach me: for thou art the God of my salvation; on thee do I wait all the day. Remember, O Lord, thy tender mercies and thy loving kindnesses; for they have been ever of old. Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions: according to thy mercy remember thou me for thy goodness sake, O Lord. Good and upright is the Lord: therefore will he teach sinners in the way. The meek will he guide in judgment: and the meek will he teach his way. All the paths of the Lord are mercy and truth unto such as keep his covenant and his testimony.” [Psalm 25:1-10.]14*LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 17*

“Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him: fret not thyself because of him who prospereth in his way, because of the man who bringeth wicked devices to pass. Cease from anger, and forsake wrath: fret not thyself in any wise to do evil, for evildoers shall be cut off: but those that wait upon the Lord, they shall inherit the earth.” [Psalm 37:7-9.] While we desire to know the way of the Lord, let us examine ourselves critically and see wherein we refuse to walk in the light when our ideas and plans are thwarted. Do we behave like foolish, disobedient children because the Lord, seeing the peril that threatens the prosperity of His cause, deprives us of some seeming good? Is not the Lord He who searcheth the heart? Will He not reveal the mistakes made in planning and handling His own work? Will He allow the work that is not being carried forward symmetrically to remain imperfect?14*LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 18*

High intellectual culture and refinement of sentiments and manners follow a transformation of character after the divine similitude. Worldly culture and artifice are of little consequence. The Holy Spirit will remove from every one who makes Christ his personal Saviour the hereditary and cultivated tendencies to evil. Beholding Christ, he will become like Him. Listen to the words of Paul to the church in Colosse, "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God. Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." [Colossians 3:1-4.]14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 19

Again he says: "And you hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins: wherein in times past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit which now worketh in the children of disobedience: among whom also we all had our conversation in times past in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind; and were by nature the children of wrath even as others. But God, who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by grace ye are saved;) and hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. ... For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast, for we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God had before ordained that we should walk in them." [Ephesians 2:1-6, 8-10.]14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 20

"And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain the enmity thereby: and came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh. For through him we both have access by one spirit unto the Father. Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief cornerstone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto a holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the spirit." [Verses 16-22.]14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 21

Let us heed the teachings of Paul which were given to him in visions and revelations by God. All that this chapter contains it would be well for us to understand more fully.14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 22

“Wherefore laying aside all malice, and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envies, and all evil speakings, as new born babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby: if so be ye have tasted that the Lord is gracious. To whom coming, as unto a living stone, disallowed indeed of men, but chosen of God, and precious, ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ. Wherefore also it is contained in the Scripture, Behold, I lay in Zion a chief cornerstone, elect, precious, and he that believeth on him shall not be confounded.” 14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 23

“Unto you therefore which believe he is precious: but unto them which be disobedient, the stone which the builders disallowed, the same is made the head of the corner, and a stone of stumbling, and a rock of offense, even to them which stumble at the word, being disobedient: whereunto also they were appointed. But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye should show forth the praises of him who hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light.” [1 Peter 2:1-9.] 14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 24

No advice or sanction is given in the Word of God to those who believe the third angel’s message to lead them to suppose that they can draw apart. This you may settle with yourselves forever. It is the devisings of unsanctified minds that would encourage a state of disunion. The sophistry of men may appear right in their own eyes, but it is not truth and righteousness. “In Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were afar off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us; ... that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross.” Christ is the uniting link in the golden chain which binds believers together in God. There must be no separating in this great testing time. The people of God are, “fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief cornerstone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord.” [Ephesians 2:13, 14, 16, 19-21.] 14LtMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 25

The children of God constitute one united whole in Christ, who presents His cross as the center of attraction. All who believe are one in Him. Human feelings will lead men to take the work into their own hands and the building thus becomes disproportionate. The Lord therefore employs a variety of gifts to make the building symmetrical. Not one feature of the truth is to be hidden or made of little account. God cannot be glorified unless the building, “fitly framed together, groweth into an holy temple in the Lord.” [Verse 21.] A great subject is here comprehended, and those who understand the truth for this time must take heed how they hear and build and how they educate others to practice.<sup>14</sup>LiMs, Ms 109, 1899, par. 26

The Unfaithful Husbandmen

NP

August 6, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in UL 232. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“Hear another parable: There was a certain householder which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country.” [Matthew 21:33.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 1

This parable is of great importance to all who are entrusted with responsibilities in the Lord’s service. God selected a people to be educated by Christ. He brought them into the wilderness to be trained for His service, and there gave them the highest code of morality—His holy law. To them was committed God’s lesson book, the Old Testament Scriptures. Enshrouded in the pillar of cloud Christ led them in their wilderness wandering. By His own power He transplanted the wild vine from Egypt to His vineyard. Well might God ask, “What more could I have done for my vineyard?” [saiah 5:4.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 2

It is impossible to enumerate the advantages the Lord prepared for the world in making the Jewish nation the repository of His rich treasures of knowledge. They were the subjects of His special favor. As a people who knew and worshipped the true God, they were to communicate the principles of His kingdom. They were instructed by the Lord. He withheld from them nothing favorable to the formation of characters which would make them fit representatives of His kingdom. Their feasts, the Passover, the Pentecost, and the Feast of Tabernacles, and the ceremonies attending these gatherings, were to proclaim the truths which God had entrusted to His people.14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 3

At these gatherings the people were to show gladness and joy, expressing their thanksgiving for their privileges and the gracious treatment of their Lord. Thus they were to show to a world that knew not God that the Lord does not forsake those who trust in Him. With joyful voices they were to sing, "Why art thou cast down, O my soul; and why art thou disquieted within me? Hope thou in God; for I shall yet praise him, who is the health of my countenance and my God." [Psalm 42:11.]14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 4

By obedience the children of Israel were to show their faith and confidence in God and their genuine love for Him. God made the world in six days, and rested on the seventh. He was satisfied with His work, and pronounced it very good. He blessed the seventh day and sanctified it, and His people were to keep sacred His Sabbath, the memorial of creation. Thus God was to be acknowledged as the One who sanctified them.14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 5

As they were about to enter the promised land, God bade Moses recount their past history; and Moses said to them, "Now therefore, hearken, O Israel, unto the statutes and unto the judgments, which I teach you, for to do them, that ye may live, and go in and possess the land which the Lord God of your fathers giveth you. Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish ought from it, that ye may keep the commandments of the Lord your God which I command you. Ye have seen what the Lord did because of Baal-peor; for all the men that followed Baal-peor, the Lord thy God hath destroyed them from among you. But ye that did cleave unto the Lord your God are alive every one of you this day."14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 6

"Behold, I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the Lord my God commanded me, that ye should do so in the land whither ye go to possess it. Keep therefore, and do them; for this is your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely this great nation is a wise and understanding people. For what nation is there so great who hath God so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is in all things that we call upon him for? And what nation is there so great, that hath statutes and judgments so righteous as all this law, which I set before you this day?<sup>14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 7</sup>

“Only take heed to thyself, and keep thy soul diligently, lest thou forget the things which thine eyes have seen, and lest they depart from thy heart all the days of thy life; but teach them thy sons, and thy sons’ sons. Specially the day that thou stoodest before the Lord thy God in Horeb, when the Lord said unto me, Gather me the people together, and I will make them hear my words, that they may learn to fear me all the days that they shall live upon the earth, and that they may teach their children. And ye came near, and stood under the mountain, and the mountain burned with fire unto the midst of heaven, with darkness, clouds, and thick darkness. And the Lord spake unto you out of the midst of the fire; ye heard the voice of the words, but saw no similitude; only ye heard a voice. And he declared unto you his covenant, which he commanded you to perform, even ten commandments; and he wrote them upon two tables of stone.” [Deuteronomy 4:1-13.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 8</sup>

The Lord commanded these words to be recorded for the benefit of those who today claim to be His commandment-keeping people. The history of the children of Israel is written for our admonition and instruction upon whom the ends of the world are come. Those who would stand firm in the faith in these last days, and finally gain an entrance into the heavenly Canaan, must listen to the words of warning spoken by Jesus Christ to the Israelites. These lessons were given to the church in the wilderness to be studied and heeded by God’s people throughout their generations forever. The experience of the people of God in the wilderness will be the experience of His people in this age. Truth is a safeguard in all time to those who will hold fast the faith once delivered to the saints.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 9</sup>

God tried ancient Israel, and in these last days He will refine and purify His people by trial. Trials have come and will come to the people of God. Thus the Lord corrects them for their departure from Him, that they may fear and tremble and humble their hearts before Him when they return to their loyalty, and keep His commandments in truth and not in pretense. Trials are not sent to drive any to despair, but to refine and purify them, as gold is purified in the furnace. God watches until the process of purification is complete, that He may bestow His covenant blessings on all who keep His commandments and do those things that are pleasing in His sight. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 10

He does not willingly afflict or grieve the children of men, but He knows that in the furnace of trial His people must be cleansed from selfishness and covetousness. He declares, "If they break my statutes and keep not my commandments, then will I visit their transgression with the rod, and their iniquities with stripes." [Psalm 89:31, 32.] He will not vindicate those who have had great light, many opportunities, and abundant evidence of His mercy, goodness, and love, yet who yield to temptation, listen to the specious reasoning of the enemy, and do as those who do not claim to know God. For their good, to lead them to humble their hearts and seek His face, He permits disappointment, trial, and affliction to come to them. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 11

God pities His disobedient children, who by the disregard of the laws of His kingdom deprive themselves of His rich comfort. But He will not permit the impression to be given that those who have been called by His name are blessed by Him in doing the wrong things done by worldlings. Christ declared, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." [John 14:15.] Those who obey Satan, following the impulses of the natural will, are under the control of the enemy, and God cannot sanction their transgression. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 12

"Nevertheless my lovingkindness will I not utterly take from him, nor suffer my faithfulness to fail." [Psalm 89:33.] The Lord is gracious to His people, imparting to them when they are most needy His grace and consolation, although they are undeserving. In their conflicts with satanic agencies they are to turn to the Stronghold for strength. If they seek Him with all the heart, He will be found of them. They will understand the Lord better than ever before. They will realize that He sent them trial because He loved them. Christ causes His people to sing of His mercy even in the midst of disappointment and failure because He would not gratify their desires. If they will take His yoke upon them, and learn of Him His meekness and lowliness, strength will come in the hour of weakness, and succor in the hour of danger.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 13

When like a flood the enemy comes in with his temptations, the Spirit of the Lord will lift up a standard for them. To those who repent and turn to God with confession and reformation, the promise will be fulfilled, "The wilderness and the solitary place shall be glad for them." [Isaiah 35:1.] "I will open rivers in high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys; I will make the wilderness a pool of water, and the dry land springs of water. I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the shittah tree, and the myrtle, and the oil tree; I will set in the desert the fir tree, and the pine, and the box tree together; that they may see, and know, and consider, and understand together, that the hand of the Lord hath done this, and the Holy One of Israel hath created it." [Isaiah 41:18-20.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 14

Christ led the children of Israel through the wilderness, but their history is one of rebellion and murmuring. When told to go up and take Jericho, they refused; and then when Christ said, Ye shall die in the wilderness, they were determined to go up and take Jericho. Moses told them distinctly that God would not be with them, but they would not heed the warning. They went out to battle contrary to the Lord's direction, and they were overcome by their enemies.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 15

The rebellion of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram is a fearful example of how the Lord will punish the rebellious. These three men were rulers in Israel, but they became dissatisfied; and they used their influence to such a degree that they succeeded in drawing to their side "two hundred and fifty princes of the assembly, famous in the congregation, men of renown." "And they gathered themselves together against Moses and against Aaron, and said unto them, Ye take too much upon you, seeing all the congregation are holy, every one of them, and the Lord is among them; wherefore then lift ye up yourselves above the congregation of the Lord?" [Numbers 16:2, 3.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 16

The Lord had appointed the Kohathites to take part in the service of the tabernacle. "He spoke to Moses and Aaron, saying, Take the sum of the sons of Kohath from among the sons of Levi, after their families, by the house of their fathers. From thirty years old and upward even unto fifty years old, all that enter into the host, to do the work in the tabernacle of the congregation. This shall be the service of the sons of Kohath, in the tabernacle of the congregation, about the most holy things. ...14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 17

“When Aaron and his sons have made an end of covering the sanctuary, and all the vessels of the sanctuary, as the camp is to set forward; after that the sons of Kohath shall come to bear it; but they shall not touch any holy thing, lest they die. These things are the burden of the sons of Kohath in the tabernacle of the congregation.” [Numbers 4:2-4, 15.] Korah, with Dathan and Abiram, had been honored and placed in positions of trust. But they were not contented. They wanted to be commanders. They forgot that God and not Moses had placed them where they were, and they charged Moses with taking too much upon himself.14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 18

“And Moses said to Korah, Hear, I pray you, ye sons of Levi: Seemeth it but a small thing unto you, that the God of Israel hath separated you from the congregation of Israel, to bring you near to himself, to do the service of the tabernacle of the Lord, and to stand before the congregation to minister unto them? And he hath brought thee near to him, and all thy brethren the sons of Levi with thee; and seek ye the priesthood also?” [Numbers 16:8-10.]14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 19

“And the Lord spake unto Moses and unto Aaron, saying, Separate yourselves from among this congregation, that I may consume them in a moment. And they fell upon their faces, and said, O God, the God of the spirits of all flesh, shall one man sin, and wilt thou be wroth with all the congregation? And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak unto the congregation, saying, Get you up from about the tabernacle of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram. And Moses arose and went unto Dathan and Abiram, and the elders of Israel followed him. And he spake unto the congregation saying, Depart, I pray you from the tents of these wicked men, and touch nothing of theirs, lest ye be consumed in their sins. ...14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 20

“Hereby shall ye know that the Lord hath sent me to do all these works; for I have not done them of mine own mind. If these men die the common death of all men, or if they be visited after the visitation of all men, then the Lord hath not sent me. But if the Lord make a new thing, and the earth open her mouth, and swallow them up, with all that appertain unto them, and they go down quick into the pit, then shall ye understand that these men have provoked the Lord. And it came to pass, as he had made an end of speaking all these words, that the ground clave asunder that was under them; and the earth opened her mouth, and swallowed them up. ... They and all that appertained to them, went down alive into the pit, and the earth closed upon them; and they perished from among the congregation.” [Verses 20-26, 28-33.] 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 21

The Jewish people betrayed the sacred trust committed to them. They would not listen to the voice of God reproving their sins, and the Lord visited their iniquity upon them. He did not help them in transgression, but punished them because of their disregard of warning and reproof, because at Satan’s instigation they had sinned in defiance of the law of God’s kingdom. Their selfishness, their self-exaltation, their masterly, oppressive, authoritative power was not from God, but from Satan. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 22

In Christ’s day the rulers of the church, those in responsible positions, who should have been examples of purity, goodness, and mercy, who should have represented Christ’s kingdom, were selfish, money-loving, grasping, covetous, favoring themselves irrespective of the needs of those who had been made to suffer through their selfishness. Because of the example of these unfaithful stewards, many became discouraged and lost the true sense of God and His holy commandments. The Gentile world was given every occasion to misinterpret God and the laws of His kingdom. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 23

“We are sure,” Paul writes, “that the judgment of God is according to truth against them which commit such things. And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God? ... who will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality, eternal life; but unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile; but glory, honor, and peace, to every man that worketh good, to the Jew first, and also to the Gentile. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 24

“For there is no respect of persons with God ... For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified.” [Romans 2:2, 3, 6-11, 13.] This instruction will condemn all who have had the truth laid before them, yet continue the things condemned by the inspired record. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 25

In the parable of the vineyard Christ opened before the Jews the past history of their nation, showing the deeds of unrighteousness they had done, notwithstanding the great light given them. The day before, Christ had made His triumphal entry into Jerusalem and this had created a deep, enthusiastic interest among the people. In the immense congregation surrounding Christ there were many priests and rulers. The divine Teacher’s gaze took in past, present, and future as He presented before the Jewish rulers their own course of action. Messenger after messenger had been sent by God to the husbandmen in charge of His vineyard, to receive the fruits thereof. These messengers bore to the husbandmen a most solemn message regarding their responsibility. But they were shamefully treated by the husbandmen, who beat one, stoned another, and killed another. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 26

Last of all the owner of the vineyard sent his son, saying, “They will reverence my son.” But when the husbandmen saw him, they said, “This is the heir, come, let us kill him, and cast him out of the vineyard, that the inheritance may be ours.” [Luke 20:14, 15.] 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 27

As Christ described His vineyard, fenced by the commandments of God, and the treatment His messengers had received, the chief priest, with scribes and Pharisees, stood as if riveted to the spot; and when Christ asked, “When the Lord therefore of the vineyard cometh, what will he do unto those husbandmen?” they joined with the people in answering, "He will miserably destroy those wicked husbandmen, and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their season." [Matthew 21:40, 41.] With their own lips they pronounced their sentence.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 28

Jesus looks upon them, and seeing His look they know that He reads the secrets of their hearts. His divinity flashes out before them with unmistakable power, and seeing in the husbandmen a photograph of themselves, they involuntarily exclaimed, "God forbid." [Luke 20:16.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 29

With heavenly light shining from His countenance Christ said, "Did ye never read in the scriptures, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner?" [Matthew 21:42.] What an impression these words made upon those who heard them! If they had received Christ as the Sent of God, saying, "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord. ... Thou art my God and I will praise thee; thou art my God, I will exalt thee," how different would have been their future. [Psalms 118:26, 28.] But they rejected Christ, and He declared, "Therefore I say unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof. And whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder." [Matthew 21:43, 44.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 30

The husbandmen had yielded no returns to God, and in these words is portrayed their final doom. The stone lies passive under the treatment it receives. It is discarded, stumbled over, mocked at; but at last a living power takes possession of it. It seems to rise from the earth, and falls upon those who have treated it with such contempt. On those who do not fall upon it and become broken, whose hearts are not cleansed from hereditary and cultivated tendencies to wrong by the mercy and forgiveness of God, that stone will fall, and grind them to powder.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 31

"And when the chief priests and Pharisees had heard his parables, they perceived that he spake of them." Their hearts were filled with hatred toward Him, "but when they sought to lay hands on him, they feared the multitude, because they took him for a prophet.” [Verses 45, 46.]14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 32

Those who are true learners in the school of Christ will study with intense earnestness the parable of the vineyard. In giving this parable Christ presented the true condition of the once chosen people of God. He revealed to them their sinful breach of trust.14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 33

He designed this parable to be a lesson to all who should receive light from God, warning them that unless they walk in the ways of the Lord, keeping all His commandments, He cannot bless and sustain them.14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 34

The church on earth is greatly beloved by God. It is the fold provided for the chosen sheep of His pasture. But the Lord will not serve with the sins of His people. Many times He has suffered calamity and defeat to come upon them because they have glorified themselves, weaving false principles into their practice. He willingly forgives those who repent, but He will remove His favor from those who go on sinning, exalting self, and mingling the sacred with the common. Terrible judgments will destroy those who have misrepresented Him, saying, The temple of the Lord, The temple of the Lord are we, when their example is misleading.14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 35

In His daily life Christ gave men an example of the work they were to do. In the temple, in the highways and byways, by His parables, His miracles, His divine compassion and sympathy, He was declaring, I came not to do My own will, but the will of Him that sent me. He went about doing good, healing the souls and bodies of those who were sick; and when Pilate gave Him up to the rage of the people for whom He had done so much, it was with the words, “I find no fault in him.” [John 19:6.] His was a perfect humanity, combined with divinity.14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 36

In His life activity and devotion were harmoniously blended. The day found Him teaching in the temple or healing the sick, and the night praying in Olivet for strength to complete His work. The Son of man, He must brace Himself for duty and temptation. He must have vigor of soul and body. He must leave His followers a perfect example of how to combat the enemy. And He prayed earnestly to His Father for strength to do this. For everyone who would follow Him His practice is left on record. Prayer sanctified His ministry. Strength and vigor for daily duties is derived from worshipping God in the beauty of holiness. The lamp must be filled with holy oil before its light can shine amid the moral darkness. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 37

The Lord has a warning for every one. When men in exalted positions of trust grow careless, when they disregard the requirements of God, when they abuse the influence and misappropriate the talents God has given them, making the signpost point to the wrong road, they are abusing their power, and punishment will surely come. Those who bear Christ's name are to carry His credentials, showing that they have learned His meekness, His lowliness, His compassion, His love for others. When Christians do this, there will be a different condition of things in the church, for Christ will be revealed. Humanity will be under the influence of divinity. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 38

For the good of His church God has entrusted to men of His appointment the work of representing Him by their well-chosen words and their firm resistance of evil. Their hearts are to be tender and their characters symmetrical, that they may rightly represent the Saviour. But many in God's service are harsh and discourteous. Their spirits are loveless, for they are eaten up by selfishness and covetousness. They think they have a right to make their own terms regarding the value of their labor, and they become oppressive. By taking from the treasury money which should go to supply the needs of their brethren in God's service, they rob God. If after testing them, God sees that they will not repent, He removes them, and gives their places to men who were looked upon as not being qualified for any such responsibility. If those who are thus raised up by the Lord remain true and loyal, the Lord will work through them in a remarkable manner. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 39

The confusion which weakens the church of God is the result of the work of unconsecrated men, whose narrowness of vision prevents them from seeing the lovingkindness shown them by God. They fail to see that they receive to impart. All the counsels of God are faithfulness and truth. He disciplines His people, to lead them into Christ's way. If they will not be instructed, if they will not heed the command to impart what they receive, God cannot use them. When God's people become so blind as to lose sight of principle, when they partake of the same spirit that is stirring the hearts of the ungodly, they cannot bear God's sign or seal. The severity of their punishment will be proportionate to the light which they had but did not practice. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 40

Satan is constantly using mighty principalities and powers to destroy the chosen people of God. Unconsecrated Christians are aiding him in his work. All who fail to keep Christ in view are working away from Him. They are not gathering with Him, but are scattering abroad. The life-giving power of Jehovah is more needed now than at any former period in the history of the church. God's people are to stand firm in the acknowledged strength of Jesus Christ. He is their refuge and defense. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 41

True faith and sanctified work is now so much needed. God says to His people, Press together, press together; and you will not be destroyed as was Jerusalem. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 42

"Come, my people, enter thou into thy chambers, and shut thy doors about thee; hide thyself as it were for a little moment, until the indignation be overpast. For, behold, the Lord cometh out of his place to punish the inhabitants of the earth for their iniquity; and the earth shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain." [Isaiah 26:20, 21.] Persecution is coming, and God calls upon all to stand firm in Christian love, their hearts knit together, of one mind and one judgment. His people are to cleave to Him and love one another as He has loved them. Christ's life is to be their example. In love, in meekness, in humility, they are to follow Him. 14LtMs, Ms 110, 1899, par. 43

Talk/Our Sanitarium and Its Work

NP

July 17, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in AUCR 07/21/1899.

It is a question whether I shall have strength to say more than a few words. I felt desirous of speaking on this question at length, but I can only speak for a short time. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 1

My husband and I took an interest in the sanitarium in Battle Creek from the time it was first started. It was very hard work to get right ideas fixed in the minds of the workers in regard to what the sanitarium should be. We had to go over the ground again and again and again, teaching them line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little. We had to draw back in some lines, and encourage advance in others. It seemed as though it were next to impossible to impress them with right principles. We had to work against every objection that could be raised, in order to get the institution established. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 2

The work of the sanitarium was started in New South Wales in a dwelling house. We did not know how the rent for this was to be paid. I took one room, and Brother Baker took two, and with this help the rent was paid. The work has been continued in this house ever since. Those in charge of the sanitarium have done the very best they could under the circumstances. We have been hoping and praying that help would come. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 3

We have been trying in every way to get out of the premises now occupied, and get a piece of land away from the noise and confusion of the city. The smoke from the chimneys makes it impossible for the atmosphere in a city to be pure. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 4

From the light I have received, I know that if ever there was a country where a sanitarium was needed, it is New South Wales, and I may say also, Victoria. There is indeed a great necessity for such an institution. The people say, "But we have our hospitals." Some may go to the hospitals and get benefit from the treatment, but it would mean death for others to go there. We should have a sanitarium under our own regulations, that the truth of God on health reform may be given to the world. Those connected with such an institution, who are being educated as nurses, should be trained to go forth from the institution as solid as a rock upon the principles of health reform and other points of the truth. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 5

Why should we have a sanitarium? Because a class of patients will come to it who know nothing of the truth we believe. They may, perhaps, have heard something, and as they become acquainted with the workers, if these workers are what they should be, they will carry an influence with them when they leave that will have a right impression on the minds of those with whom they come in contact. This should be our aim. Each worker in the sanitarium can exert a favorable or unfavorable influence upon the patients. If by their deportment and conversation, their patience and kindness, they exert a right influence, the patients will see that they practice the truth they profess. These patients will carry a good impression away with them. Thus the truth can be given to a class which it would be impossible to reach in any other way. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 6

How should our sanitarium be conducted? In such a way that it will be an educator. In all its departments it should be a sample of what we are as a people. I have never asked to see the bathrooms in the sanitarium at Summer Hill but once, and that is all I wish to see of them. I have never wanted to look into them again, because there is a pain at my heart every time I think of the representation being given to the patients by these bathrooms. Every time I have thought of the bathrooms I have said, I do not want to go to the sanitarium. The doctor has asked me why I did not go. What was the use of my telling him that I was pained and distressed when there, for he could do no better than he was doing. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 7

The Lord God of Israel would not have given directions to have everything according to the pattern shown in the mount if He had not meant us to work according to those directions. That is, in whatever institution we establish, in whatever we do, our work should be a fitting representation of the most elevated, ennobling principles that have ever been given to man. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 8

The Lord has instructed me that we can have a sanitarium here if everyone will do as I was reading this morning in the eighth and ninth chapters of Second Corinthians:14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 9

“Moreover, brethren,” Paul writes, “we do you to wit of the grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia; how that in a great trial of affliction the abundance of their joy and their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality.” [2 Corinthians 8:1, 2.] What was their trial? After the death of Stephen, the Christians were driven from Jerusalem and scattered to different places, and some of them came to Macedonia. How many of us have been brought into such straits? They had had to flee from their homes. It had been prophesied that there would be a famine in Jerusalem. This famine had come, and now the ones who had been driven from Jerusalem must help. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 10

“Their deep poverty abounded unto the riches of their liberality; for to their power, I bear record,” Paul says, “yea, and beyond their power they were willing of themselves.” [Verses 2, 3.] Some who had no money gave part of their wearing apparel. Some divided the store of food they had, living poorly that those who were suffering in Jerusalem might be fed. “Praying us with much entreaty that we would receive the gift.” [Verse 4.] Because of their poverty the apostle tried to restrain them, but they prayed him to receive the gift. They did not know how to get their gift to Jerusalem, but Paul and Barnabas were going there, and they rejoiced to think they could send their gift by them. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 11

“And this they did, not as we hoped.” [Verse 5.] They gave beyond the expectation of the apostles, who had looked for only a small amount. They brought so much that the apostles had to be entreated to receive the gift. They did not weight the matter, wondering whether there would be anything left for them. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 12

“This they did, not as we hoped, but first gave their own selves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God.” [Verse 5.] How did they do this? When the wants of those in Jerusalem were made known in the church, they went down on their knees and told the Lord that they would consecrate themselves to Him, and asked Him to make them willing to do all they could. Those in Jerusalem had nothing; they had something, and they would divide.14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 13

I think that if the brethren in America had acted on the dividing principle, we would have seen our sanitarium in running order before now; but as they have not done it, and as there is no prospect of them doing it, we shall have to carry the load.14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 14

“And unto us by the will of God.” [Verse 5.] How did they know it was the will of God? Because they had first made the surrender. They had made the sacrifice of themselves. They were willing to make any sacrifice to relieve the afflicted ones. “Insomuch,” the apostle addresses the church at Corinth, “that we desired Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also finish in you the same grace also. Therefore as ye abound in every thing, in faith, in utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us, see that ye abound in this grace also. I speak not by commandment, but by occasion of the forwardness of others, and to prove the sincerity of your love.” [Verses 6-8.]14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 15

I speak this to you who are here before me. Let us see what we can do. We need to consecrate ourselves to God. “For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for our sakes he became poor, that we through his poverty might be rich.” [Verse 9.] Rich in what? In possessing the eternal riches, a life which measures with the life of God. What suffering, what anguish Christ endured to gain this for us! Who can describe it!14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 16

We need to feel the influence of the willing Spirit of God. We are to give ourselves to the Lord. We belong to Him because we have been bought with a price. Those connected with institutions which have been established should feel it their privilege and duty to help the institutions God would have established where there is nothing to give character to the work. There can be an imparting which will bring blessing. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 17

The pattern given in the mount was a perfect pattern, and God says to us, Whatever you do for Me, let it be perfect. But this does not mean that our buildings must be embellished. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 18

“And herein I give my advice,” Paul continues, “for this is expedient for you, who have begun before, not only to do, but also to be forward a year ago.” [Verse 10.] How many years have we occupied that dwelling house as a sanitarium? About three years. It was engaged for two years, and we hoped that by the time the two years were over we would have a building of our own. But meetinghouses had to be built, and we do not regret building one that has been built. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 19

“Now, therefore, perform the doing of it; that as there was a readiness to will, so there may be a performance also out of that which ye have. For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not. For I mean not that other men be eased, and ye burdened; but by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for their want, that their abundance also may be a supply for your want, that there may be equality. As it is written, He that had gathered much had nothing over, and he that had gathered little had no lack.” [Verses 11-15.] Why? Because the Lord made the little go as far as the great. By the blessing of God the smallest offering may become a most precious gift. The Lord blesses our gifts in accordance with the self-denial, the self-sacrifice manifested. And when we deny ourselves for the benefit of others, we shall find that others will deny themselves to help us. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 20

I will not stop to read the rest of these chapters, but I want you to read them for yourselves. I want you to see the blessing that comes to those who do the very work at the very time and in the very crisis that God would have done. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 21

When our people are imbued with the spirit of liberality that prompted the church in Macedonia, they will be led to say, We will arise and build, because we are losing time. We have been losing time ever since we went into the dwelling house in Summer Hill. Not losing time in one sense. In one sense the best that could be done has been done. But we have been losing time because we have not been able to do what we might have done if our brethren living where institutions have been established had said, "We have made a beginning. We will now bind about our wants and help those who have nothing." 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 22

This might have been done, but it has not been, and the burden now falls upon us in this country. Two things now demand our means and attention—the sanitarium and the meetinghouse at Newcastle. Which, you say, shall receive the first attention? I hardly want to say. The necessity for both buildings is great. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 23

I wish to say, as I wrote to the brethren in America, God will bless you as you take hold of this work and help to the best of your ability. We can deny ourselves. But we cannot spread ourselves over the whole field. We must take hold of one thing at a time, and make it a success. Then we shall be prepared to take hold of the next thing. Every health reform institution that is established is to be conducted in accordance with its name. It is to be a health reform institution, not a health deform institution. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 24

I give Dr. Caro a word of praise and commendation, because he has not become discouraged at not being able to carry out what he wanted, and what those connected with him wanted. He saw so many lines to which the means must be given, and he kept thinking, "Our time will come." And has it not come? How soon will your lease be up? The thirty-first of December. There are then a few months before the lease is up. Shall we not do something before that time? 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 25

I desire that everyone of us shall feel that this is the very work we are to have an interest in. Let every one do something when if it is necessary to put up a building in some other locality, we shall work to the very best of our ability to help. But one thing must be done at a time. If the sanitarium is established, let everything in it be appropriate to the name. God will help us; then let us have it

so. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 26

No extravagance must be seen in our institutions. We cannot locate in a place where land is expensive, where we would have to put up an expensive building to correspond with the place. We must put up a building which will answer our purpose. Time is short, and in the name of the Lord I say that we should take these things to heart. Everyone of us should feel that he must do something, and do it without delay. God will help us if we will come up to His help. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 27

Do you not want to have a place where, if you are sick, you can have good treatment, where you can be under the care of physicians who are attended by the angels of God? I know that God has put a burden upon Dr. Caro, and if he is allowed to carry a great many more burdens with it, he will break down. We want him to carry a burden which none of you can carry. We want him to be free and happy, able to welcome the patients, rich or poor; not because of the extravagant display in the building, but because of its neatness and order, because of the presence of facilities which are essential in any sanitarium. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 28

God has just as surely put His Spirit upon Dr. Caro as He has upon Dr. Kellogg. He is with him as he takes up the cases of his patients. Our doctors have burdens to bear. Their responsibilities are terrible. I have seen Dr. Kellogg fall on his knees in an agony of distress when an operation was to be performed which meant life or death. One false movement of the instrument would cost the patient's life. Once, in a critical operation I saw a hand laid upon his hand. That hand moved his hand, and the patient's life was saved. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 29

Dr. Kellogg once wrote to me, telling me of a most critical case. He said that as he was cutting the flesh, he came to a spot where something hard seemed to hinder his knife. He did not know what it was, and thought he must press harder. But he could not, for something seemed to hold him back. When the facts in the case were seen, after the operation had been performed, he found that had he gone one hair's breadth farther, the life of the patient would have been sacrificed. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 30

The Lord will preside in our institutions here, but the living principles of truth must be kept pure, uncontaminated by anything that would mar their luster. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 31

The medical work has been represented as the right hand of the body of truth. This hand is to be constantly active, constantly at work; and God will strengthen it. But it is to remain a hand. It is not to be made the body. I desire that this point shall be understood. The living truth of God is to be made known in our medical institutions. This does not mean that the doctor or any of the workers are to introduce the truth to everyone. That is not the way to do. The truth can be presented without doing this. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 32

The nurses and workers are not to go to the patients, saying, We believe in the third angel's message. That is not their work, unless the patients desire to hear, unless their objections have been removed and their hearts have been softened. Act so that the patients will see that Seventh-day Adventists are a people who have common sense. Act so that they will feel that the institution is a restful place. Bible truth is to be presented, but special points of the truth are not to be brought out before all the patients. If they ask you questions, give them the reasons of your faith. In this way light will shine forth. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 33

Patients may be asked to attend our meeting, and there they will hear the truth, knowing at the same time that it is not pressed upon them. Then when they leave the sanitarium, and hear people saying, I do not want to go there to be made a Seventh-day Adventist, they will tell them that the workers at the sanitarium press the truth upon no one. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 34

It will be impossible to keep patients from inquiring in regard to our faith. There are those who hunger and thirst for truth, and such ones will find it. That is why we want our institution established at once. We wish it would have been established before the legislation on Sunday laws, for we think that if it had, many eyes would have been opened, and many souls would have pursued a right course. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 35

We need a sanitarium. We desire that every soul here shall be interested in this work, because God is interested in it, and we should be interested in what God is interested in what God is interested in. We want to see this institution as God sees it. He sees a class reached by its work who can be reached in no other way. Thus many will gain a knowledge they never had before. This is the work the Lord desires to have done. Then let it be hindered no longer. God help us to take hold of it. No one man is to do the whole work. Let us all help to the best of our ability. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 36

Everything is to be done according to right principles. May the Lord inspire us with His Spirit, and help us to give ourselves to Him. Nothing that we have is our own. All is the Lord's, and we are to do His work. God will put His Spirit upon those who will do something, and do it now. 14LtMs, Ms 111, 1899, par. 37

The Wages of Unrighteousness

NP

August 11, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 1BC 1111-1112; 1MR 271-272. +Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished: but chiefly them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness, and despise government. Presumptuous are they, self-willed, they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities. Whereas angels, which are greater in power and might, bring not railing accusation against them before the Lord. But these, as natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of the things that they understand not; and shall utterly perish in their own corruption; and shall receive the reward of unrighteousness, as they that count it pleasure to riot in the day time. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 1

“Spots they are and blemishes, sporting themselves with their own deceivings while they feast with you; having eyes full of adultery, and that cannot cease from sin; beguiling unstable souls; an heart they have exercised with covetous practices; cursed children: which have forsaken the right way, and are gone astray, following the way of Balaam the son of Bosor, who loved the wages of unrighteousness.” [2 Peter 2:9-15.]14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 2

This chapter gives a note of warning which all would do well to heed. Now, just now, we should examine ourselves and inquire, What are the wages of unrighteousness? “Examine yourselves whether ye be in the faith,” the apostle Paul says; “Prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates? But I trust he shall know that we are not reprobates. Now I pray God that ye do no evil; not that we should appear approved, but that ye should do that which is honest, though we be as reprobates. For we can do nothing against the truth, but for the truth.” [2 Corinthians 13:5-8.]14*LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 3*

Those who think they cannot make money if they obey the commandments of God, and in order to get wealth work on the Lord’s day, are taking the wages of unrighteousness, and their transgression will bring its sure reward. The time which the Lord set apart and blessed, He gave to the world to be kept holy. “Verily my Sabbaths ye shall keep,” He says, “for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. Ye shall keep the Sabbath therefore; for it is holy unto you; everyone that defileth it shall surely be put to death; for whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people.”14*LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 4*

“Six days may work be done; but the seventh is the Sabbath of rest, holy to the Lord: whosoever doeth any work in the Sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death. Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel forever; for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested, and was refreshed.” [Exodus 31:13-17.] Those who, having once observed the Sabbath, refuse to acknowledge its claims, and dishonor their Creator, that they may do their own work, are classed among those who “have forsaken the right way, and are gone astray, following the way of Balaam the son of Bosor, who loved the wages of unrighteousness.” [2 Peter 2:15.]14*LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 5*

Men give up their souls’ highest interests for worldly advantages. The pride of the human heart craves for worldly distinction; and in order to gain their ends men disregard the prohibitions of God. But those who rob God of the day He has set apart for Himself, the day He has sanctified and blessed, reveal that they are unable to see afar off, and have forgotten that they were purged from their old sins. They are working at cross purposes with God, and they cannot prosper. However, much advantage they think to gain, they will reap only loss in the end.14*LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 6*

When these souls see that they are not gaining, why do they not stop to consider? Why do they not fear and tremble before God? What kind of an example are they giving those who know not the truth? Many souls might be brought to a knowledge of God if these men would fear and honor Him. But their consciences are violated, their hearts are hardened. And they teach those who are in their employ to transgress the law of God. These men have known the Master's will, but refuse to do it, and they will be beaten with many stripes. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 7

There are many ways in which men receive the wages of unrighteousness. It is no righteous act for a man in any line of business to lose sight of principle. God requires the strictest integrity. When men, for the sake of gain, descend to any crooked deal, any dishonest act, they dishonor God, and they must give an account to Him. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 8

The business of the real estate agent is always a temptation to men to take the wages of righteousness. Representations that are untrue are made, and false inducements are held out to hire money or purchase land; and those who love money too well, catch at the chance, but some lose their means in the transaction. This is no uncommon thing, but has been repeated over and over again. Persons who suppose the investment to be perfectly safe place their hard-earned money in the hands of these men, only to lose it. They might have done far better with their means. They might have placed it in the bank of heaven, which is always secure. But a burning desire to accumulate wealth leads man to speculate, and in the end he loses all. The real estate agent would do well to get out of this line of business; for he is surely taking the wages of unrighteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 9

O that men would study as for eternity to know how they may form characters for everlasting life! We cannot afford to play at religion. We must have an earnest purpose, a sincere determination to fear God and work righteousness, if it costs all that we have, that we may be approved by heaven. When we consider that our probation cost the life of God's only Son, we should cherish the highest principles of integrity, for we are to be like Christ in character. "Ye must be born again," Christ says, or you will never see the kingdom of God. [John 3:7, 3.] You will not appreciate it here or hereafter. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 10

How many things there are in our institutions and in our commercial work that bear the mark of unrighteousness. I have been instructed that there are very many whose work will not bear the investigation of the judgment. They attend meetings, and say many good things; but there is a dead fly in the ointment. They would be shocked if one should call them unfaithful stewards, yet without scruple they pervert their best abilities to the most unworthy ends. The love of the truth is not in their hearts. They tamper with conscience, and adulterate the pure principles of the Bible with their own fallacious reasoning, that they may justify their course in taking the gain of unrighteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 11

How these men would shrink from a close investigation of their work. They would be ill-pleased to have their methods brought to light. And yet they are all written in the books of heaven. In the light of God's countenance their deeds are no better than theft. I warn church members to remember that there is a church above which is marking every transaction. Every deed, great or small, is written in the pages of eternal history, and is deciding your future destiny. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 12

Parents, God calls upon you to consider your work in business lines as well as in the home. How does your account stand? In the education you are giving your children, you are serving either God or Satan. Are you giving the enemy opportunity to lead your children away from truth and righteousness? Remember that all who are not constantly engaged in serving God, practicing righteousness and pressing toward the mark of the prize of their high calling in Christ Jesus, are serving the enemy. Many parents by their course of action are teaching their children to transgress the laws of God, and encouraging them in an evil course by sustaining them with their money and helping them out of their difficulties. It is the Lord's money they are employing thus, and he cannot bless them in their use of it. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 13

Standing in important positions of trust are selfish, covetous men, who are receiving higher wages than they should take. Less wages would be far better for them and for their children, for this would lead them to economy and self-denial. But each week's record in the books of heaven shows that there are men who in their selfishness are ready to grasp every dollar they can obtain, while men working in much harder fields, and with far fewer advantages, work for half of what these men receive.14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 14

It is not for the spiritual advantage of any man to take such large wages. In doing so he deprives his fellow laborers who work fully as hard as he of the means they should have for the work in other parts of the field. The covetous man sees the many fields unworked. He sees that money is needed to lift the standard of truth in new places. But he does not consider the necessities of those who break these unworked fields. He takes the highest wages he can obtain, because, as he supposes, his position entitles him to them.14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 15

It would be well for the workers in receipt of large salaries to study the principle of equality. When they empty their hearts of selfishness, and humble themselves before God, they will see that during the many years they have been taking from the treasury their unrighteous wages, others, who have done just as much and as faithful work, have been receiving just one half the amount. Had they loved God supremely and their neighbor as themselves, they would have been a large work to be done in fulfilling the commission of Christ to preach the gospel to all the world, and they would not have dared to use the means which God designed for destitute fields.14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 16

Those men who place so high an estimate on their own merits and service will be surprised to see in the day of final rewards that they are regarded as least, while those who have worked earnestly and faithfully and unselfishly, with small wages, receive the highest reward from Him who makes no false estimate.14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 17

Our established institutions, which are provided with facilities, are to understand that God requires them to bind about their supposed wants and consider other fields, just as important, which have nothing; for souls are souls for whom Christ died to save the world over. The Lord will greatly bless those who have entered into other men's labors if they will work in His lines. A wide awake interest should be manifested for the advancement of the work in new fields. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 18

God's principle for every institution is that while they shall appreciate their own advantages, they must be prepared to repress the inclination to enrich themselves, and ask, What can we do in new fields? We have an abundance. Let us bind about our wants and provide our brethren with facilities wherewith they can work. When the Holy Spirit takes possession of the hearts of the workers, self will shrink to much smaller proportions. The love of God will pervade the soul, and this will lead them to works of righteousness and justice. Unselfish principles will be revived. God will establish His people, and the work will be advanced. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 19

It is because God's means have been misapplied, because institutions have been provided with every convenience to the neglect of new fields, that the work has been retarded. Had men limited their selfish desires, had they bound about their ambitions desires, there would have been money in the treasury to make plans in new fields. God forbid that this work of selfishness shall continue, and unrighteousness be practiced in covetousness and greed. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 20

If the workers in the old fields refuse to weave selfish principles into the work, if they submit to the Holy Spirit's working, the shaping and advancement of the cause in new territories will show that God's hand is with His people for good. The leaven of truth and righteousness will have a telling influence upon preachers, publishers, and workers in every line. But self fills a large place, and God is crowded out. If men would die to self and understand that the law of God requires them to do unto others as they would have others do to them, there would be a transformation among them. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 21

There has been a great departure from Christ's principles, and this is the reason we are engaged in the warfare today. We might have been in the promised land ere this; but the gospel has not yet been proclaimed to every nation, kindred, tongue, and people. In the parable of the sower Christ attributes to Satan the work of catching away from men's minds the seeds of truth. In the parable of the tares He says, "The field is the world; the good seed are the children of the kingdom; but the tares are the children of the wicked one. The enemy that sowed them is the devil." [Matthew 13:38, 39.] Since the fall, the controversy between Christ and Satan has continued. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 22

Christ warned His disciples, "These things have I spoken unto you that ye should not be offended. They shall put you out of the synagogues; yea, the time cometh that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service. And these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me. But these things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them." "Nevertheless," He said, "it is expedient for you that I go away; for if I go not away, the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart, I will send him unto you. And when he is come, he will reprove the world of sin, and of righteousness, and of judgment: of sin, because they believed not on me; of righteousness, because I go to my Father, and ye see me no more; of judgment, because the Prince of this world is judged." [John 16:1-4, 7-11.] The agency of the Holy Spirit, which Christ purchased by His death, will bring condemnation to the world. 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 23

When Christ was betrayed, the record states that "Satan put it into the heart of Judas to betray him." Another writer says, "Satan entered into him." [John 13:2, 27; Luke 22:3.] When the band led by Judas seized the Saviour, he said to Peter, "Thinkest thou that I cannot now pray to my Father, and he shall presently give me more than twelve legions of angels? But how then shall the Scriptures be fulfilled that thus it must be?" [Matthew 26:53, 54.] 14LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 24

As the high priest laid aside his pontifical dress, and officiated in the white linen dress of a common priest, so Christ emptied himself, and took the form of a servant, and offered sacrifice, Himself the priest, Himself the victim. As the high priest, after performing his service in the holy of holies, came forth to the waiting congregation in his pontifical robes, so Christ will come the second time clothed in glorious garments of the whitest white, “such as no fuller on earth can whiten them.” [Mark 9:3.] He will come in His own glory, and in the glory of His Father, as King of kings and Lord of lords, and all the angelic host will escort Him on His way.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 25

If the workers would realize the necessity of emptying themselves, and giving Christ place in their hearts, they would reveal in their lives that faith which works by love and purifies the soul. But very much of self and very little of Christ is seen. Love is an element foreign to the hearts of many who claim to believe the truth. Self occupies the throne, and Christ has no place. Practice of the truth has become a rare thing. The end of all things is at hand. Shall we not change in these things?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 113, 1899, par. 26

God's Provision

NP

August 13, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in LHU 62; 5MR 305-306.

“And there came a man from Baal-Shalisha, and brought the man of God bread of the first fruits, twenty loaves of barley, and full ears of corn in the husk thereof, and he said, Give unto the people, that they may eat. And his servitor said, What, should I set this before an hundred men? He said again, Give the people, that they may eat; for thus saith the Lord, They shall eat, and shall leave thereof. So he set it before them, and they did eat, and left thereof, according to the word of the Lord.” [2 Kings 4:42-44.] 14LtMs, Ms 114, 1899, par. 1

He who worked this miracle in behalf of one hundred men in Old Testament times wrought a similar wonder for five thousand when as a man He preached the gospel to men. In the wilderness Christ supplied His people not only with bread but with clear flowing streams. The Coming One cast His glory upon the people He was guiding as upon those He educated in His humanity, and to whom He declared, “Before Abraham was, I AM.” [John 8:58.] Christ walked this earth in lowliness and poverty, but He was greater than Moses. 14LtMs, Ms 114, 1899, par. 2

It is the grace of God on the small portion that makes it all-sufficient. God's hand can multiply it an hundredfold. From His resources He can spread a table in the wilderness for more than a million of people. By the touch of His hand God can increase His scanty provision and make it sufficient for all. It was His power that increased the loaves and corn in the hands of the sons of the prophets. 14LtMs, Ms 114, 1899, par. 3

The Lord has given His life to the trees and vines of His creation. His word can increase or decrease the fruit of the land. If men would open their understanding to discern the relation between nature and nature's God, faithful acknowledgements of the Creator's power would be heard. Without the life of God, nature would die. His creative works are dependent on Him. He bestows life-giving properties on all that nature produces. We are to regard the trees laden with fruit as the gift of God, just as much as though He placed the fruit in our hands. 14LtMs, Ms 114, 1899, par. 4
