Prophets and teachers and servants of God had foretold the events which would take place under the gospel message, and the interest of the wise men of all nations was awakened in the Desire of Ages who was soon to come. And at last the promised One came. "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth." [John 1:14.]14LtMs, Ms 114, 1899, par. 5

By the parable of the householder, who went into a far country after delivering to his servants his goods, Christ is represented. He is watching and waiting for fruit from those to whom He has entrusted His vineyard. The chosen people, refused to be convicted of sin, and when God sent His Son, they said, "This is the heir, come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours." [Mark 12:7.] Today the Lord is looking upon His vineyard. The walls are broken down through transgression of His law. He sees the ingratitude of His stewards, who refuse to render to Him the fruits of His ground. 14LtMs, Ms 114, 1899, par. 6

God does not design that men shall appropriate all that the earth produces for their own selfish purposes. He calls upon them to bring their tithes and offerings into His storehouse, that there may be meat in His house. In India, China, Russia, and the cities of America, thousands of men and women are dying of starvation. The monied men, because they have the power, control the market. They purchase at low rates all they can obtain, and then sell at greatly increased prices. This means starvation to the poorer classes, and will result in a civil war. 14LtMs, Ms 114, 1899, par. 7

There will be a time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation. "And at that time shall Michael stand up, the great prince which standeth for the children of thy people; and there shall be a time of trouble, such as never was since there was a nation, even to that same time; and at that time thy people shall be delivered, everyone that shall be found written in the book. ... Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly, and none of the wicked shall understand, but the wise shall understand.” [Daniel 12:1, 10.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 114, 1899, par. 8

Words of Exhortation to the Workers

NP

August 15, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 1MR 236-241. +<sup>NoteOne</sup> or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The Lord sends His messages again and again to urge His people to reach a higher standard. Christ humbled Himself to humanity, that He might give expression to the mind of God. "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth." [John 1:14.] The Son of God clothed Himself with humanity, and became a servant, that He might show human beings what constitutes true ministry. Man needed a divine Instructor to teach him what he might become in character and practice if he would be a son of God. The Word of the Eternal is given to the world in the teachings of Christ, not only in the New Testament, but in the Old Testament Scriptures as well. The lessons of Christ are to be sacredly cherished and obeyed. We shall not long behold Christ's example of ministry before our own lives will bear testimony to a reformation, and light will be reflected to all with whom we are connected. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 1

The church of Christ is very precious in His sight. It is the case which contains His jewels, the fold which encloses His flock. He places His people in church capacity, and makes them responsible for the medical missionary work which should be done. They are to minister to the sick and the needy. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 2

Many have chosen to work in medical missionary lines to the neglect of other work. Appeals have been made for medical missionary workers, and they have considered this a call from God, and have thought that it would be wicked for them to refuse to go.

But God does not design that this work shall become all-absorbing. There is a great work to be accomplished in our camp meetings, where all, rich and poor, educated and ignorant, are to hear the message of warning. Every child of God should have sanctified judgment to consider the work as a whole and the relation of each part to the other. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 3

Never again must eighty thousand dollars be invested in any one building; for this is a disproportionate outlay of means. We are not to build the tower without first considering what it will cost, and what effect the expenditure will have on other portions of the field. This large planning is closing the way for the erection of necessary buildings in other places, buildings which would not cost more than ten thousand dollars. It is not as though we as a people had hoarded up wealth, for we have been constantly drawn upon, and must continue to impart. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 4

The immense buildings which have been reared by the people in Battle Creek and other places bear witness against them, for while they have every facility, other portions of the Lord's vineyard lie barren and desolate. Some places must be centers, in which workers can be prepared for the different fields. We must have centers for the education of the youth. This will require more facilities than may be needed in other places. But in every undertaking let us count the cost. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 5

I have been called to behold things nigh and afar off, and at the sight my head is dizzy and my heart sick. God has not ordered things as they now stand. Are we not too fond of doing, when God would have us stand as minute men, watching and praying, prepared to do what He commanded through consecrated agencies? Men who want to do something for God say, "We will do this or that;" and so a line is marked out for all to follow. [See James 4:15.] Thus selfishness is growing all the time. Man is grasping all the advantages possible, bringing in all the material he can obtain for the work he wants to do, while he deprives his fellow workers of that which they need. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 6

Let not the men in responsible positions grow selfish and ambitious to accumulate buildings in one locality. The command is given,

“Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others.” [Philippians 2:4.] If men would work in Christ’s lines, they must yoke up with Him in meekness and lowliness of heart, pleading earnestly, “Lord, teach me thy way. What is thy purpose and will?” and asking at every step, “Am I trying to live for God or for myself?” 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 7

Work we must, and work cheerfully. We often neglect to work at the very time when our help is most needed and when a prompt attendance to duty would bring glory to God. Men interpose self between God and the work he could have done. My brethren, cut away from your large plans for any one place, and give a portion of your facilities to the more destitute fields. Consider that the Lord is impartial in all His work. If you will place your mind where God can come in and control, if you will prepare Him a place and give Him an opportunity to work, currents of life and truth will flow to all the barren places of the earth. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 8

Men bring upon themselves great and unceasing responsibility, and tax both brain and body, in seeking to carry the many plans they have devised. This is one of the greatest disadvantages we have to meet, and one the solving of which will wear out the human energies. Activity is needed in God’s cause, but let not this talent be misdirected. When men learn to be servants of Jesus Christ, they will understand that in every church workers are to be set to work to take the oversight of things. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 9

Pastors and teachers are to work intelligently in their lines, instructing church members how to work in medical missionary lines. When the professed followers of Christ have an indwelling Saviour, they will be found doing as Christ did. They will have no opportunity to rust through inaction. They will have enough to do. And the work which they do under the auspices of the church will be their greatest means of communicating light. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 10

The man who is working according to God’s plan will pray, Let it be known this day in my work for suffering humanity that there is a God in Israel, and that I am Thy servant. Let it be seen that I am working not according to my own impulse and wisdom, but according to Thy word. When man places himself in this attitude, and realizes that he is working out God's plan, and that God is working out His plan through him, he is in possession of divine power, which knows nothing of defeat. All the power of counter-agencies is of no more account than the chaff of the threshing floor. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 11

We must recognize God's absolute ownership of us. Our mind, our talents, our skill and money, are to be put to the best use to advance His work, that His character may be revealed in clear lines in every part of the world. God has given to every man his work, and He does not excuse those in high positions who get out of their place, and through some neglect get their work into a tangle. Let each man stand at his post of duty, and keep in right relation to God. There is important work to be done, and no man is to neglect his work in order to take hold of the work which belongs to another. God is not honored by such a course. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 12

There are some workers who feel superior in wisdom. They feel that they do not need to seek counsel from God. Nor do they consider whether their fellow workers have facilities with which to work. God needs all-sided men, men who will keep the windows of their soul open heavenward, and let His light shine into the chambers of the mind. The Lord has a large interest in His servants, and especially in those who are lowly in heart. He makes impressions upon the mind of the humble workers. They are just as precious in His sight as those who carry large responsibilities, and who look with superiority upon those who do not stand in such exalted positions. 14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 13

God cannot work with those who are lifted up in their own estimation, and He leaves them to be filled with their own doings. A Christian is a Christlike man, and for the very reason that he carries heavy responsibilities, he feels it degrading to himself to be in the slightest degree oppressive. If those who are in command have not self-control, they place themselves below the servant. God expects the steward whom He honors to represent the Master. If he cannot represent the patience, the kindness, the long-suffering love, the honesty and self-denial of Christ; if he forgets that he is a servant, and lifts himself up, it would be well for the people to discharge him.14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 14

God expects every man to be faithful in his stewardship. Self is not to be glorified. The man who is faithful to his trust will not stop to consider if he is going to be honored by any course of action, but will ask, Will God be honored? His soul will be filled with a holy desire to see God magnified. When something tries his patience, he will pray, "My soul, wait thou only upon God; for my expectation is from him." [Psalm 62:5.]14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 15

We are very eager to have our work present a good appearance, and if our plans and methods receive approbation, we are satisfied. If they languish, we groan in spirit. We cannot see afar off. The water must run freely in our pools, if other pools have to go dry as the hills of Gilboa. It is not easy for us to remember that the great fountain is from God. God will never give His glory to another or His praise to graven images of man's conceit or ambition.14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 16

The Lord is willing to do great things for those who have His mind and bear His credentials. But man cannot meet the high purposes of God unless he sinks self in Christ, and becomes a partaker of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. God is willing to help every soul who will yoke up with Christ and learn His meekness and lowliness of heart. When men learn of Christ, they will have the gentleness of Christ, and Christ will not be ashamed to call them His brethren. He will give them the richest experience, and bring them up to His lofty ideal.14LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 17

God's workmen must be refined and purified by test and trial. All corrupting ideas, all selfish grasping, irrespective of other's needs, must be cut away. Selfishness must be rooted out of every practice, for it will corrupt the whole man and defile everything it touches. The truth of God in the soul will make a man a laborer together with God. His growth is in Christ. It is natural for him to act the part of the compassionate Samaritan, who had only to see the bruised and wounded man to help him. The Samaritan was controlled by the Holy Spirit, and he gave evidence of an indwelling Christ.14LtMs,

Ms 115, 1899, par. 18

God will show us many ways in which we can work. Sometimes matters will so shape themselves that we cannot doubt they are of God. At others they will run contrary to our ideas and feelings. The Lord surprises us sometimes by revealing our duty in lines altogether different from what we have planned for, and we declare, It is not so. This is untrue. But nevertheless, it is true to the letter; and the message will not come to men again until they can discern the work of God. When they are ready to see and comprehend, the Lord will speak to them again. If we would have divine supplies, if we would keep step with the divine plan, we must move under divine guidance. The Lord wants us to yield to His molding, to be emptied of self and surrendered to God, that Christ may pervade the soul. The fire can only burn when we purify the altar according to the Word of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 115, 1899, par. 19

The Sin of Jezebel

NP

August 15, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 2BC 1038; 10MR 384.

With her seductive arts, Jezebel made Jehoshaphat her friend. She arranged a marriage between her daughter Athaliah and Jehoram, the son of Jehoshaphat. She knew that her daughter, brought up under her guidance, and as unscrupulous as herself, would carry out her designs. But did she? No; the sons of the prophets, who had been educated in the schools which Samuel had established, were steadfast for truth and righteousness. A correct education had been given them in regard to the living God. The past history of the people of God, the fall of Adam and Eve, through transgression, the preaching of Noah, the extended probation of one hundred and twenty years, and the final destruction of the old world by a flood was known to them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 116, 1899, par. 1

The crime and violence of the antediluvians, their repeated rejection of the messages He sent, wore out the long-suffering patience of God, and these despisers of His mercy were made to drink the waters of the flood. The children of Israel were instructed in the Word of God, that they might prepare for the advent of Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 116, 1899, par. 2

Jezebel fought determinedly against God in the person of His faithful people. The persecution of the prophets was so great that Elijah supposed he was the only one who had escaped her power. "I, only I am left," he said, "and they seek my life to take it away." [1 Kings 19:10.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 116, 1899, par. 3

Elijah was commissioned to bear a message to king Ahab, "The word of the Lord came to Elijah, ... saying, Go, shew thyself to Ahab; and I will send rain upon the earth. And Elijah went to show himself unto Ahab." [1 Kings 18:1, 2.] There was a famine in Samaria, and Ahab had sent Obadiah, the governor of his house, to find grass for the cattle. “And as Obadiah was in the way, behold, Elijah met him; and he knew him, and fell on his face, and said, Art thou that my lord Elijah? And he answered him, I am; go tell thy lord, behold, Elijah is here.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 116, 1899, par. 4

“And he said, What have I sinned, that thou wouldest deliver thy servant into the hand of Ahab, to slay me? As the Lord thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom, whither my Lord hath not sent to seek thee: and when they said, He is not here: he took an oath of the kingdom and nation, that they found thee not. And now thou sayest, Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here. And it shall come to pass as soon as I am gone from thee, the Spirit of the Lord will carry thee whither I know not; and so when I come and tell Ahab, and he cannot find thee, he shall slay me: but I thy servant fear the Lord from my youth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 116, 1899, par. 5

“Was it not told my lord what I did when Jezebel slew the prophets of the Lord, how I hid an hundred men of the Lord’s prophets by fifty in a cave, and fed them with bread and water. And now thou sayest, Go, tell thy lord Behold, Elijah is here: and he shall slay me. And Elijah said, As the Lord of hosts liveth, before whom I stand, I will surely show myself unto him today. So Obadiah went to meet Ahab, and told him: and Ahab went to meet Elijah. And it came to pass, when Ahab saw Elijah, that Ahab said unto him, Art thou he that troubleth Israel? And he answered, I have not troubled Israel; but thou and thy father’s house: in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord.” [Verses 7-18.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 116, 1899, par. 6

When Jezebel thought she stood victorious, the wrath of God came against the persecutor. God gave the message to Elijah to bear, “I have left me in Israel seven thousand which have not bowed the knee to Baal.” [1 Kings 19:18.] Then came the great test, when God answered Elijah by fire and consumed his sacrifice.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 116, 1899, par. 7

The Medical Missionary Work

NP

August 15, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in BCL 25-27. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

I have much to say, but when I see that the words I shall speak will be used to carry out the extravagant ideas of men, while the work of eternal interest is not considered, I feel like holding my peace.14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 1

The medical missionary work is God's work, and there should be branches of this work in every place where the gospel of present truth is preached; but medical missionary work does not consist in binding every power and facility to the work of lifting up the depraved classes, while fields all ripe for the harvest are left untouched. Workers need to be trained who will proclaim the truth in the dark places of the earth.14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 2

Work must be done not only for the outcasts but for the higher classes of society. Not half the effort is made that should be made to win this class to God. As I meet noble looking men and women, my heart yearns toward them. I think of the possibilities before them, for they have talents. But they are not aware of their dependence upon God for every spiritual and temporal favor. If they would give themselves to God, how grandly the truth would be displayed through their agency. God says to them, "Ye are not your own, for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.]14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 3

"Lay not up for yourself treasures on earth, ... but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven," where Christ is pleading for you. "Set your affections on things above, and not on things on the earth.” [Matthew 6:19, 20; Colossians 3:2.] To work for this class requires tact and ingenuity and individual effort by workers whose hearts are softened by the grace of God. While the world is heaping up treasures for the fires of the last days, let those who believe the truth work with all their God-given abilities to gain eternal treasure.14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 4

I would not have any of our people so narrow that they should say to Sister Henry, Sever your connection with the Women’s Christian Temperance Union. Sister Henry can sow the seeds of truth in this society. Not that she needs to give all the knowledge she has obtained on subjects that are objectionable. She can tell the glad tidings of salvation. Then when hearts have become warmed by the Holy Spirit’s working, and the walls of prejudice begin to give way, she can present the truth point by point. This work for the W.C.T.U. has a wearying and discouraging side, and we should unite in helping our sister. Only eternity will reveal what has been accomplished by this kind of ministry; how many souls, sick with doubt, and tired of worldliness and unrest have been brought to the great Physician, who longs to save to the uttermost all who will come unto Him. Christ is a risen Saviour, and there is healing in His wings.14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 5

The medical missionary work is to burst all barriers. All are to be invited to take a part in it, and help where help is needed. The wealthy are to be reached, and their sympathy and assistance solicited; for are they not the Lord’s stewards? Idle children are to be instructed; they are to enlist in the army of workers to help the sick and suffering. Train the children, for they are the Lord’s heritage.14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 6

As the children sang in the temple courts, “Hosannah to the Highest, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord,” so in these days children’s voices will be raised to give the last message of warning to a perishing world. [Mark 11:9, 10; Matthew 21:15.] We are not to shut ourselves away from our fellow beings. We are to be in the world, while not of the world.14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 7

The lads can take a part in medical missionary work, and by their jots and tittles help to carry it forward. Their investments may be small, but every little helps, and by their efforts many souls will be won to the truth. By them God's message will be made known, and His saving health to all nations. 14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 8

A solemn responsibility rests upon parents to teach their children to work for all who are unconverted. They are never to be ashamed to use their hands in lifting home burdens, or their feet in running errands. While they are thus engaged, they will not run in paths of negligence and sin. How many hours are wasted by the children and youth which might be spent in carrying home burdens and thus showing a loving interest in father or mother. They might take upon their strong young shoulders the responsibilities which someone must bear. 14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 9

The value of time is beyond computation. Time squandered can never be recovered. A king on his death bed was heard to exclaim, My kingdom for one hour of time. Every moment granted to the youth is precious. Not one can they afford to idle away, for they are stewards of God. They are sowing not only for time, but for eternity; and that which they sow they will also reap again. 14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 10

The improvement of wasted moments is a treasure. When Christ fed the five thousand people with five loaves and two small fishes, He taught a lesson which the youth would do well to heed. After all had satisfied their hunger He commanded the disciples, "Gather up the fragments, that nothing be lost." [John 6:12.] The hours, the days, the weeks, the years are passing into eternity. What record are they leaving behind? 14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 11

The youth who grow up careless and rude in words and manners reveal the character of their home-training. The parents have not realized the importance of their stewardship; and the harvest they have sown, they have also reaped. 14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 12

Children, never prove unfaithful stewards in the home. Never shirk your duty. Good hard work makes firm sinews and muscles. In promoting the prosperity of the home, you will bring the richest blessings to yourselves. 14LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 13

Parents cannot commit a greater sin than to neglect their God-given responsibilities in leaving their children with nothing to do, for these children will soon learn to love idleness and grow up to be shiftless, useless men and women. When they become old enough to earn their living, and are taken into employment, they will work in a lazy, droning way and will think they will be paid just the same if they idle away their time, as if they did faithful work. There is every difference between this class of worker, and the one who realizes that he must be a faithful steward. In whatever line of work they engage, the youth should be “diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord” [Romans 12:11]; for he that is unfaithful in that which is least is unfaithful also in much.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 117, 1899, par. 14

The Work in the South

NP

August 21, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 4MR 12-13. <sup>+Note</sup>One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

My mind is much troubled over the position some of our brethren are taking in regard to the work in the Southern States. One point is strongly impressed on my mind. Those who labor in that field will have to work in different lines in some respects. They must be very cautious. Let no rash moves be made. Our methods of working must be carefully and prayerfully considered. A crisis is just before Seventh-day Adventists, and the Lord would not have any of us [be] presumptuous and invite persecution. 14LtMs, Ms 118, 1899, par. 1

The question has been asked, Should not the workers in the Southern Field work on Sunday? This should not be made a rule among the believers in the South. Let the workers seek counsel of God. He has promised, "If any man lack wisdom, let him ask of God, which giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not, and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing wavering. For he that wavereth is like a wave of the sea, driven with the wind and tossed. But let not that man think that he shall receive any thing of the Lord." [James 1:5-7.] 14LtMs, Ms 118, 1899, par. 2

It will not do to encourage the people to do manual work on Sunday. Sunday-keeping is not yet the mark of the beast, and will not be until the decree goes forth causing men to worship this idol sabbath. The time will come when this day will be the test, but that time has not come yet. The colored people may work on Sunday as on other days of the week before the Sabbath truth is brought to them, but if they do this after they have accepted the truth, they will be noticed and condemned. Prejudice is strong in the South, and in presenting the Sabbath great care should be taken. The people will soon learn all you believe. Educate the people in the simplest manner, and make no great stir about it. Use every precaution, lest you be cut off from your work. 14LtMs, Ms 118, 1899, par. 3

The spirit which has held the colored people so long in slavery is alive today, and among the whites there are those who will work in every possible way against that which has a tendency to uplift the colored people. As soon as church members become arrayed against the truth, they will seek to hedge up the way of the workers, doing all in their power to make of none effect the Word of God. False statements will be made by the enemies of the truth in regard to the work of the servants of God, and the ignorant classes will become their ready dupes. This is the way the false teachers worked when Christ was on the earth. 14LtMs, Ms 118, 1899, par. 4

If you would make the Southern whites and the colored people your friends, you must meet them where they are, not to act as they act, to sin as they sin, but to present the truth to them in your daily life. This people must be taught as you would teach children their alphabet. The truth must be brought before them by presenting to them the lessons of Christ in their simplicity. It is impossible for man to convince the wrongdoer of sin, but the Holy Spirit will work upon human hearts. 14LtMs, Ms 118, 1899, par. 5

By unwise words the colored people will be led to think that they can defy their oppressors; therefore we must avoid stirring up their excitable natures. Speak no word that will prejudice the negroes against the whites. Satan is seeking for opportunities to work these ignorant, passionate colored people, by causing them to misunderstand the motives of the white people in laboring for them. Let no spirit of resistance be encouraged. Teach the people to conform in all things to the laws of their state, when they can do so without conflicting with the law of God. Counsel needs to be very guardedly given, for unless you are as wise as serpents and as harmless as doves, your way will be hedged up. 14LtMs, Ms 118, 1899, par. 6

Words to Parents

NP

August 21, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in AH 320, 526; CG 210, 237, 277, 303, 334-336; 5MR 338-339.

At this time in the history of the world, we should have but one object in view—to gain eternal life. Every other desire should be subordinated to this. The work of regeneration must go on in every soul until perfection of character is reached, for nothing short of this will meet the mind of God. Parents and teachers, do not leave for some future time the work that should be done today. The present time is the golden opportunity. Your every word and look and act should be a living sermon to the youth, for these will be reproduced in their lives. Children are the heritage of the Lord. Christ has purchased them; they are His property. They are to be educated, not to please themselves, but to please God. They are to be brought to Christ, trained in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 1

God designs that every Christian family shall be Christ's school, where the youth can breathe a holy atmosphere. Christ must be brought into all the studies, that they may drink in the knowledge of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 2

In this age the youth are not trained for Christ in their very childhood. Parents are themselves often self-willed, independent, self-sufficient, and unwilling to advise or be advised; and the same haughty, high-minded spirit is seen in their children. There are unwise, selfish parents who indulge rather than restrain their children; and left to themselves, these youth are taken under the control of the enemy of all good. Parents have disregarded the requirements of God in the training of their children, and this is why so many are growing up in sin, impenitence, and folly. Their conscience is harder than the nether millstone, and many are on the broad road to ruin. God holds parents accountable for the characters of their children. They must give an account in the day of God for their neglect to follow God's plan in the formation of their characters. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 3

God has set bounds for His children. He has made laws and given injunctions, and all who love and fear Him will respect His authority and discipline. Children should early be trained to submit their will and inclination to the will and authority of their parents. When parents teach their children this lesson, they are educating them to submit to God's will and obey His requirements, and fit them to become members of Christ's family. Right training in childhood has kept many a youth from the haunts of vice and dissipation. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 4

Children and youth of different stamps of character are brought together in school capacity. Some of these children have been corrected only when their parents were in a passion. They have been indulged and allowed to do as they please without restraint. They have been taught to regard themselves as ladies and gentlemen and old enough to decide for themselves. They have gone just where they pleased and chosen their own companions. Other youth have been taught obedience, and trained to respect the opinions and judgment of their parents, and those older in years and experience than themselves. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 5

These youth must be placed under judicious guardianship. Those who have the care of them are not only to feel that they have to provide them with temporal necessities, but that they are called to watch for their souls as they that must give an account. Those parents who allow their children to have their own way, and be amenable to no one, cannot exert a proper influence in the school or in any of our institutions. We want men and women who will understand the perils of the youth, and will make earnest, determined efforts to press back the powers of evil. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 6

Many parents who do not exert a judicious authority over their children are very jealous lest others shall do their neglected work. They do not want their children dictated to by the ones to whom they trust them, and by words and deportment they give their children to understand that it is not the business of the teachers to exercise authority or require them to submit to school regulations. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 7

Some parents who have sent their children to Battle Creek have told them that if anything unreasonable were required of them, not to submit, whoever might require it. What a lesson is this to give to children! In their inexperience, how can they judge between what is reasonable or unreasonable? They may wish to be away at night, no one knows where, and if required by teachers or guardians to give an account of themselves, will call this unreasonable and an infringement on their rights. Their independence must not be interfered with. What power can rules or authority have upon these youth, while they consider any discipline an unreasonable restriction of their liberty? 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 8

In many cases these youth have remained in school but a short period, returning home with an unfinished education, that they may have liberty to follow the bent of their untrained, undisciplined wills, which they could not have at school. The lessons of indulgence taught them by an unwise father or mother have done their work for time and for eternity, and the loss of these souls will be set to their account. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 9

It is not to be left to children to judge whether the discipline of the college is reasonable or unreasonable. If the parents have confidence enough in the teachers and in the system of education adopted by the school to send their children to it, let them show good sense and moral stamina and support the teacher in enforcing discipline. All children sent to the schools in Battle Creek, Lancaster, or Healdsburg will be placed under rule whether they are living in the school or reside at the homes of their parents; and those parents who are fearful lest their children will not have free scope to exercise their independent and unsanctified wills had better keep their children with them, or send them to other schools where they can have more freedom to do as they please. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 10

We are not so anxious for large numbers in our colleges that we will welcome children and youth who will teach others to disregard the authority of their guardians and teachers; for we do not want those children, who have been educated to respect rule, and [to] restrain their inclinations demoralized by those who do not respect their parents or reverence God. The chaff will soon be winnowed from the wheat. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 11

Those who are too perverse to come under discipline, and who refuse to pursue a steady course of study, will be returned to their homes, that their untamable wills may not be communicated to others, and thus leaven the school with a spirit of insubordination. Parents who are wise will feel very grateful that there are schools where lawlessness of any kind will not be tolerated, where children will be trained to obedience rather than indulgence, and where good influences will be brought to bear upon them. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 12

There are some parents who purpose sending their demoralized children to school because they are incorrigible at home. Will these parents support the teachers in their work of discipline, or will they stand ready to believe every false report. If the parents will not cooperate with the teachers, they will do the school a favor by not sending their children to exert their baleful influence upon other youth who are ready to take up with wrong influences rather than right ones. This is not a house of correction. Provision has been made for those children who are incorrigible, made so by mismanagement and association with evil companions. We want the school to be a safe place for parents to send their children. This is the great need of the age. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 13

At times I find myself wishing that God would speak to parents with an audible voice as He spoke to the wife of Manoah, telling them what they must do in training their children. We are sustaining terrible losses in every branch of the work through the neglect of home training. It was this that impressed upon our minds the need of schools where a religious influence should predominate. If anything can be done to counteract the great evil, in the strength of Jesus we will do it. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 14

The world is becoming like Sodom in its moral corruption, and more than common efforts must be made to elevate the standard of discipline and correct the lax government that is so general in this age. We cannot leave the youth alone and still be clear in the sight of God. Unremitting care is needed to preserve them from destruction. They cannot reach a high standard if they are permitted to follow their own wills. In this age it is a generally acknowledged fact that depravity and rebellion in children and youth are increasing, and unless they are restrained by a firm yet kindly hand, they will grow up in sin. A counteracting influence must be brought to bear upon them in early childhood, for this is the time in which to mold the mind. Children are susceptible to impressions, and in their early years they can be molded for good or evil.14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 15

It is heart-saddening to see the imbecility of parents in the exercise of their God-given authority. Men who in everything else are consistent and intelligent fail to understand the principles that should be brought into the training of their little ones. They fail to give them right instruction at the very time when right instruction, a godly example and firm decision are most needed to lead in right lines the inexperienced minds that are ignorant of the deceptive and dangerous influences that they must meet with everywhere.14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 16

Fathers and mothers who should understand the responsibility which rests upon them relax their discipline to meet the inclinations of their growing sons and daughters. The will of the child is the law recognized. Mothers who have been firm, consistent, and unbending in their adherence to principle, maintaining simplicity and fidelity, become indulgent as their children merge into manhood and womanhood. In their love of display they give their children to Satan with their own hands, like the apostate Jews making them pass through the fire to Moloch. This evil is manifesting itself, not only in the cities where fashion rules, but in the more retired country towns.14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 17

Christian parents are giving way to the world-loving propensities of their children. They open the door to amusements which, from principle, they once prohibited. Instead of trying to raise the standard as God's peculiar people, they are going backward. Concerts, operas, theatres, are all patronized by children of professing Christians. The simplicity of true godliness is almost a thing of the past. This fashionable worldly religion is contagious. It is leavening the whole lump, and there is need of schools of altogether a different order than those already in existence, where the youth may learn moral excellence and heavenly wisdom. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 18

A terrible mistake is made in the home life when lessons relating to a religious life and faith in God are left unlearned until the children are considered old enough to judge for themselves. Many parents will not teach their children of the saving grace of Christ, and they grow up to be irreligious men and women. These children go to church if they wish, or spend their time sauntering about the streets, or reading fictitious story books, or perhaps the writings of infidel authors. They are present or absent from family worship just as they please. Like Eli, parents advise their children in regard to their amusements and the company they shall keep, but like Eli, they exercise no control, enforce no discipline. The ungodly propensities of the youth lead the parents to connive at evil, and sustain their course of wrong, until the wrath of God falls upon both parents and children. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 19

Parents stand in the place of God to their children to tell them what they must do, and what they must not do with firmness and perfect self-control. Every effort made for them with kindness and self-control will cultivate in their characters the elements of firmness and decision. But when parents neglect the plot of ground which God has given them to cultivate, Satan occupies the field, and as a result thorns and briars spring up. 14LtMs, Ms 119, 1899, par. 20

Fathers and mothers are in duty bound to settle this question early, so that the child will no more think of breaking the Sabbath, neglecting religious worship and family prayer, than he would think of stealing. Parents' own hands must build the barrier. They are not like Eli to say, "My sons, why do ye thus so wickedly?" and think their duty done. [1 Samuel 2:23-25.] By firm, judicious discipline in religious matters, the door will be closed against Satan's temptations. They will learn to respect and reverence religion, and fear to offend God. The Lord can use the minds that are thus prepared for His service by the influences of the Holy Spirit. 14LtMs,

“Go, Work Today in My Vineyard.”

NP

August 23, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in TDG 244.

Of every soul the Lord demands service. Those to whom the living oracles have been opened, who see the truth, and yield themselves body, soul, and spirit to God, will understand the words of the Saviour, “Go, work today in my vineyard,” to be a requirement, but not a compulsory one. [Matthew 21:28.] God’s will is made known in His Word, and those who believe in Christ will act out their belief. They will be doers of the Word. 14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 1

The test of sincerity is not in words, but in deeds. Christ does not say to any man, “What say ye more than others?” but, “What do ye more than others?” [Matthew 5:47.] Full of deep meaning are His words, “If ye know these things, happy are ye if ye do them.” [John 13:17.] Words are of no value unless they are spoken in sincerity and in truth. The talent of words is made effective and of value when they are accompanied by appropriate deeds. It is of vital consequence to every soul to hear the Word and be a doer of it. 14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 2

“Enter ye in at the strait gate,” Christ said, “for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth unto destruction, and many there be which go in thereat; because strait is the gate and narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it. Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep’s clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves. Ye shall know them by their fruits. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but a corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit; neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.” [Matthew 7:13-18.] 14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 3

This entire chapter contains encouragement and warnings, which we would do well to heed. There is a right and a wrong side. Be careful that you obey the word of the Lord and respond to the leadings of the Holy Spirit. Your words and works will testify on which side you stand. Christ said, "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say unto me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in [thy] name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity." 14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 4

"Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man which built his house upon a rock. And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock. And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand: and the rain descended and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell, and great was the fall of it." [Verses 21-27.]14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 5

We have evidence that there are many deceivers in the world, men who say, "I go, sir," but go not. [Matthew 21:30.] They may speak smooth words, and make fair speeches; but they deceive; they reveal in their lives that their works are not wrought in God. The practical life is a genuine index of the character. By our words and works we reveal to the world, to angels, and to men whether we believe in Christ as a personal Saviour.14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 6

Good works do not purchase the love of God, but they reveal that we possess that love. If we surrender our will and way to God, we will not work for God's love; we will obey the commandments of God because it is right to do thus. The disciple John wrote, "We love him, because he first loved us." [1 John 4:19.] The true spiritual life will be revealed in every soul who is doing service for Christ. Those who are alive to Christ are imbued with His spirit, and they cannot help working in His vineyard. They work the works of God. Let every soul think prayerfully, that he may act consistently. 14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 7

When they transgressed Adam and Eve could no longer cultivate their beautiful Eden home. They were shut out of the garden, to work among the thistles and brambles which Satan had sown. Satan had told them that by eating of the forbidden fruit they would have higher perceptions to know good and evil, that they would be like the angels in heaven. They had believed the great apostate, but they proved his words a lie. Henceforth they must work among the thorns and weeds brought by the curse. 14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par.

Christ came to the world with the invitation, Go, work today in my vineyard. Satan will seek to allure by his temptations, but listen to My voice today. What blessings are here offered to every man, woman, and child. It is the privilege of all to say, "We are laborers together with God, God's husbandry, God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.]14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 9

"Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling," says the apostle; "for it is God which worketh in you, to will and to do of his good pleasure." [Philippians 2:12, 13.] As laborers together with God, we are to build our characters according to the divine similitude, according to the spirit and mind of Christ. The apostle Peter instructs us as to the plan on which we must work. "Grace and peace be multiplied unto you," he says, "through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called you to glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust." [2 Peter 1:2-4.]14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 10

We are to climb higher and still higher. Cultivate to the fullest extent the fruits of the true vine. Look to the living Oracles which give you the precious promise of becoming a partaker of the divine nature. If you work on the plan of addition, God will work on the plan of multiplication. Therefore, "add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall be neither barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 11

“But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off; and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins. Wherefore the rather brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly, into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.” [Verses 5-11.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 12

If you cultivate faithfully the vineyard of your soul, you will not boast; for it is God which worketh in you. He is making you a laborer together with himself. Receive the instruction and grace of God, that you may impart to others a knowledge of how to care for the precious plants. Thus we may extend the vineyard of God. The Lord is watching for evidences of our faith and love and patience. He looks to see if we are using every spiritual advantage to become skilful workers in His vineyard before we enter the Paradise of God, that Eden home from which Adam and Eve were excluded by transgression.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 13

It is ours to have that beautiful garden to cultivate under the supervision of God. Eden restored, how grand, how beautiful it will be! Let us prove our industry in His service by doing faithful work. Do not say as the faithless sinner, “I will not,” or like the untrue son, “I go sir,” and go not. [Matthew 21:29, 30.] But at the call of Christ let us engage ourselves in sincere service.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 14

God has claims upon us which we can evade only at eternal loss to ourselves. But in God’s service there is perfect freedom. Consider the life of Christ. Standing at the head of humanity, serving His Father, He is the Pattern of what every son should and may be. He was given to our world to show us how to live the commandments of God. He counted no sacrifice too great, no toil too hard, in order to accomplish the work He came to do. At the age of twelve He said to His earthly parent, “Wist ye not that I must be about my Father’s business?” [Luke 2:49.] He had heard the call and taken up the work. At another time He said, “I must work the works of him that sent me while it is day; the night cometh when no man can work.” [John 9:4.]14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 15

He only serves who acts up to the highest standard of obedience. Of Christ it is said, “Though he were a son, yet learned he obedience by the things which he suffered.” [Hebrews 5:8.] All who would be sons and daughters of God must prove themselves workers in the great firm with God and Christ and the heavenly intelligences. This is the test for every soul. Will we prove our submission and obedience? Only those who bear the test will be given work in the garden of God. Of those who faithfully serve Him, the Lord says, “They shall be mine, ... in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him.” [Malachi 3:17.]14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 16

Christ declared to the leaders and teachers of the Jewish nation, “The publicans and harlots go into the kingdom of heaven before you.” [Matthew 21:31.] Why? Because their religious life was not sincere. Christ did not say, You cannot enter the kingdom of heaven, but He showed them that the obstacles which hindered them from entering were of their own manufacturing.14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 17

The publicans and harlots were ignorant; these learned men knew the way of truth, but they refused to walk in the path which leads to the Paradise of God. The truth which they knew, and which should have been unto them a savor of life unto life, became a savor of death unto death. Open sinners who loathed themselves could receive baptism at the hands of John; but these men were hypocrites. Their own hearts were the obstacles to their receiving the truth. They resisted the conviction of the Spirit of God; they refused obedience to the commandments of God.14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 18

The prophet Isaiah had spoken concerning this people: “Hear the word of the Lord, ye rulers of Sodom: give ear unto the law of God, ye people of Gomorrah. To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me? saith the Lord. I am full of the burnt offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts; and I delight not in the blood of bullocks or of lambs, or of he goats. When ye come to appear before me, who hath required this at your hands, to tread my courts? Bring no more vain oblations; incense is an abomination unto me: the new moon, and sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with; it is iniquity, even the solemn meeting. Your new moons and your appointed feasts my soul hateth; they are a trouble unto me; I am weary to bear them. And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide my face from you; yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear: your hands are full of blood.” [Isaiah 1:10-15.]14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 19

Still the Lord holds out His hand to take the hand of Israel, and help them to the narrow path of self-denial and self-sacrifice, to share with him the heirship as sons of God. Will they be entreated? Will they discern their only hope? “Wash you,” He says, “make you clean; put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes; cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek judgment; relieve the oppressed, judge the fatherless, plead for the widow. Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord; though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land: but if ye refuse, and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.” [Verses 16-20.]14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 20

Israel was fulfilling the vision of the prophet Isaiah, but the heart of Christ pleads for the rebellious son. He weeps over the beloved city: “How is the faithful city become an harlot; it was full of judgment; righteousness lodged in it; but now murderers. Thy silver is become dross, thy wine mixed with water; thy princes are rebellious, and companions of thieves; every one loveth gifts and followeth after rewards: they judge not the fatherless, neither doth the cause of the widow come unto them. Therefore thus saith the Lord of hosts, the mighty one of Israel, Ah, I will ease me of mine adversaries, and avenge me of mine enemies.” [Verses 21-24.] “O if thou hadst known in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes.” [Luke 19:42.]14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 21

There are lessons for the people of God to learn in these last days. The history of the children of Israel was written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come. We need large donations to advance the work of God for this time; but I fear we shall not receive them because we are not ready for them. We need faith and hope proportionate to the greatness and value of the truth. We need to see the necessity of entire conformity to the will of God and to be worked in God's way. We must pray with the spirit and with the understanding also. 14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 22

Ministers and church members, are you not coming short here? We must give ourselves wholly to the work of seeking the Lord—parents and children, households, and churches in every place. Our institutions must seek the Lord with heart and soul. We must consecrate ourselves to God to follow and obey Him as Christ obeyed Him. The Son of God stood at the head of humanity to teach us the lesson of service. "I came not to do mine own will," He said, "but the will of him that sent me." [John 6:38.] 14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 23

In the place of having fewer weeks of prayer, we need to have more, that our schools may be called to earnest supplication; for the students are to be qualified to enter soul, body and spirit into the missionary work. Then pray more. We may desire money, but this will never do the work alone, [even] if we had the revenue of the world at our command. Our success cannot be measured by our means. "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." [1 John 5:4.] 14LtMs, Ms 120, 1899, par. 24

Lessons From Israel

NP

August 24, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 1BC 1112; 1MCP 241; 3MR 347; 6MR 394; 16MR 277. +<sup>Note</sup>One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The nation of Israel was God's church, and special directions were given regarding His claims upon it. Jesus Christ was the invisible Leader of the children of Israel in their wilderness wandering. The congregation numbered more than a million people, and they must have needed continual instruction. This was not withheld from them. To them were committed the laws of heavenly origin, God's holy oracles. It was of great importance that they should know and understand the purposes of heaven concerning them. They must be educated before they were given possession of the vineyard. God's directions and requirements were written out in plain terms, and these were to be impressed on their minds by every possible means. By pleasant methods of instruction the children also were to be taught. As soon as they could speak, they were to be taught to sing the words of instruction Christ had given to Moses.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 1

Certain men were appointed to perform certain parts of the holy service. Moses and Aaron and his sons were most closely connected with the sanctuary service. They were to minister before the tabernacle of witness. "The Lord said unto Aaron, Thou and thy sons and thy father's house with thee shall bear the iniquity of the sanctuary; and thou and thy sons with thee shall bear the iniquity of the priesthood ... Ye shall keep the charge of the sanctuary, and the charge of the altar; that there be no wrath any more upon the children of Israel. ... Thou and thy sons with thee shall keep your priest's office for everything of the altar, and within the veil: and ye shall serve: I have given you your priest's office unto you as a service of gift; and the stranger that cometh nigh shall be put to death.” [Numbers 18:1, 5, 7.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 2

The tribe of Levi was given a specially significant position. They were to unite with others in taking charge of the tabernacle. “Thy brethren also of the tribe of Levi,” God said, “bring thou with thee, that they may be joined unto thee, and minister unto thee; but thou and thy sons with thee shall minister before the tabernacle of witness. ... Behold, I have taken your brethren the Levites from among the children of Israel; to you they are given as a gift for the Lord, to do the service of the tabernacle of the congregation. ... They shall keep thy charge and the charge of all the tabernacle: only they shall not come nigh the vessels of the sanctuary, and the altar, that neither they, nor ye also, die. They shall be joined unto thee, and keep the charge of the tabernacle of the congregation, for all the service of the tabernacle; and a stranger shall not come nigh unto you.” [Verses 2, 6, 3, 4.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 3

Christ the great Teacher gave every specification necessary to show the people that they were not to become jealous of their brethren, thinking that they placed themselves in an exalted position. God Himself had appointed men to do Him service. Men were not managing, but God.14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 4

A special blessing was promised the Israelites on condition that they were obedient to the divine laws. God declared that He would be with them as long as they in simplicity obeyed His statutes and judgment, as long as pure, undefiled religion prevailed among them in their public service and family relations. The divine laws were given for their good, to preserve health, unity, peace, and purity. If obeyed, these statutes would give them temporal as well as spiritual advantages.14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 5

Christ gave His commandments, and then declared that those who did them would live in them. This statement He repeated when here upon earth. A lawyer came to [Him] with the question, “What shall I do to inherit eternal life?” Christ asked him, “What is written in the law? how readest thou?” The lawyer answered, “Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.” “Thou hast answered right,” Christ said; “this do, and thou shalt live.” [Luke 10:25-28.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 6

Spiritual and temporal prosperity was to be granted to the Israelites on condition of obedience. “Moses describeth the righteousness which is of the law, That the man which doeth those things shall live in them.” [Romans 10:5.] And he declared to the people, “See, I have set before thee this day life and good, and death and evil; in that I command thee this day to love the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to keep his commandments, and his statutes and his judgments, that thou mayest live and multiply; and the Lord thy God shall bless thee in the land whither thou goest to possess it.”<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 7

“But if thine heart turn away, so that thou wilt not hear, but shalt be drawn away, and worship other gods, and serve them; I denounce unto you this day, that ye shall surely perish, and that ye shall not prolong your days upon the land, whither thou passest over Jordan to go to possess it. I call heaven and earth to record this day against you, that I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing; therefore choose life, that both thou and thy seed may live: that thou mayest love the Lord thy God, and that thou mayest obey his voice, and that thou mayest cleave unto him; for he is thy life, and the length of thy days.” [Deuteronomy 30:15-20.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 8

Special laws were given to the Israelites in regard to the tilling of the soil. “The Lord spake unto Moses in mount Sinai, saying, speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, When ye come into the land which I give you, then shall the land keep a sabbath unto the Lord. Six years shalt thou sow thy field, and six years shalt thou prune thy vineyard, and gather in the fruit thereof; but in the seventh year shall be a sabbath of rest unto the land, a sabbath for the Lord; thou shalt neither sow thy field, nor prune thy vineyard. That which groweth of its own accord of thy harvest thou shalt not reap, neither gather the grapes of thy vine undressed; for it is a year of rest unto the land. And the sabbath of the land shall be meat for you; for thee, and for thy servant, and for thy maid, and for thy hired servant, and for thy stranger that sojourneth with thee, and for thy cattle and for the beasts that are in thy land, shall all the increase thereof be meat.” [Leviticus 25:1-7.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 9

These laws seem peculiar to those who have not known God’s statutes; but the Lord knew better than man what arrangements to make with His people. These laws were written down, and the seventh year after they settled in Canaan was to be a Sabbath year. All agricultural business was to stop. There was to be no planting or sowing. For one year the people were to depend wholly on the Lord, having faith in His arrangements as the Householder. The land needed a rest in order to renew the forces necessary for growth. That which grew of itself was the common property of the poor and the stranger, the cattle and the herds. Thus the land was to receive rest, and the poor and the cattle a feast.14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 10

This was to show that nature was not God, that God controlled nature. God designed that from nature His church should constantly learn important lessons. They were to cherish a vivid sense that God was the Manager, the Householder. They were to know the reality of His presence and His providential care over all the earth. They were to realize that all nature was under His supervision, all the productions of the ground under His ministration. This was to give them faith in His providence. He could withhold His blessings or bestow them.14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 11

Every fiftieth year, the year of jubilee, every inheritance in the land was to be restored to its original owner. “In the year of jubilee ye shall return every man unto his possession,” God declared. [Verse 13.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 12

Thus in His infinite wisdom the Lord educated His people. His requirements were not arbitrary. Connected with all the instruction received by the people from the Source of all light was the consequence of obedience and disobedience. They were taught that obedience would bring them the richest spiritual grace, and would enable them to distinguish between the sacred and the common. Disobedience would also bring its sure result. If the people chose to manage the land in their own supposed wisdom, they would find that the Lord would not work a miracle to counteract the evils He was trying to save them from.14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899,

The Lord presented to His people the course they must pursue if they would be a prosperous, independent nation. If they obeyed Him, He declared that health and peace would be theirs, and under His supervision the land would yield its increase. The tithing system was instituted by the Lord as the very best arrangement to help the people in carrying out the principles of the law. If this law were obeyed, the people would be entrusted with the entire vineyard, the whole earth. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 14

“Wherefore ye shall do my statutes, and keep my judgments,” He declared, “and ye shall dwell in the land in safety. And the land shall yield her fruit and ye shall eat your fill, and dwell therein in safety. And if ye shall say, What shall we eat the seventh year? behold, we shall not sow, nor gather in our increase; then will I command my blessing upon you in the sixth year, and it shall bring forth fruit for three years. And ye shall sow the eighth year, and eat yet of old fruit until the ninth year; until her fruits come in ye shall eat of the old store.” [Verses 18-22.] 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 15

The children of Israel were given laws and regulations which would give all nations on the earth a true idea of God’s kingdom and government. As a nation, as families, as individuals, they were to obey these laws. They were to be a kingdom of priests and princes. Those who felt their entire dependence on God, looking to Him for instruction and relying upon Him for power to carry out His plans in the vineyard they were to cultivate, would receive the largest blessing and revenue. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 16

Adam and Eve lost Eden, and because of their sin the land was cursed; yet if God’s people obeyed His requirements and followed His directions in regard to tilling the soil, the land would be brought back to a prosperous and beautiful condition. Men were to cooperate with God in restoring the diseased land to health, that it might be a praise and a glory to His name. And as the land they possessed would if managed with skill and earnestness, produce its treasures, so their hearts, if controlled by God, would reflect His character. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 17

But if because of selfishness and covetousness men felt capable of managing without the wisdom of God, if they looked upon the land as their own, and refused to give it a sabbath, it would lose its vigor, and dearth and sickness would testify to their disobedience. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 18

In the laws which God gave for the cultivation of the soil, He was giving the people opportunity to overcome their selfishness and become heavenly-minded. Canaan would be to them as Eden if they obeyed the word of the Lord. Through them the Lord designed to teach all the nations of the world how to cultivate the soil so that it would yield healthy fruit, free from disease. The earth is the Lord's vineyard, and is to be treated according to His plan. Those who cultivated the soil were to realize that they were doing God service. They were as truly in their lot and place as were the men appointed to minister in the priesthood and in work connected with the tabernacle. God told the people that the Levites were a gift to them, and no matter what their trade, they were to help to support them. Especially were those tilling the soil to bring in the rich treasures of the earth for the sustenance of the Levites. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 19

The poor of the congregation of Israel were not left to haphazard feelings or impulses. God declared, You are to cultivate the land six years, but the seventh year leave it to Me. During that time it is to be cared for by Me. There is to be no planting or sowing, no reaping or gathering. All who would were to use what the ground produced. The poor were to partake of its spontaneous productions, and the stranger was to have free access to them. Thus did the Lord provide a table for the poor. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 20

Let those who believe the word of the Lord read the instruction contained in Leviticus and Deuteronomy. There they will learn what kind of an education was to leave its impress on the families of the nation of Israel. God's chosen people were to stand forth distinct and holy, separate from the nations who knew not God. But they were given directions to treat the stranger kindly. He was not to be looked down on because he was not of Israel. The Israelites were to love the strangers, because Christ died as verily to save them as He did to save Israel. The Lord God of Israel would receive them if they chose the society of those who knew and acknowledged Him.

In this way they would learn of Jehovah, and glorify Him as they beheld His works in behalf of His chosen people.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 21

God declared, "If thy brother be poor and fallen into decay with thee, then shalt thou relieve him; yea, though he be a stranger and a sojourner, that he may live with thee. Take not thou usury of him or increase, but fear thy God; that thy brother may live with thee. Thou shalt not give him thy money upon usury, nor lend him thy victuals for increase. I am the Lord thy God which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, to give thee the land of Canaan, and to be thy God." [Leviticus 25:35-38.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 22

God will reveal Himself as the friend of justice and mercy. He always has been and always will be the enemy of selfishness and covetousness. No one can obtain His favor and blessing who practices fraud, oppressing his brother or a stranger because it is in his power to do so. God blesses those only who love mercy, showing this not only in word but in deed, giving evidence by their courtesy and kindness that they walk with God. "Wherewith shall I come before the Lord, and bow myself before the high God? Shall I come before him with burnt offerings, with calves of a year old? Will the Lord be pleased with thousands of rams, or with ten thousands of rivers of oil? Shall I give my firstborn for my transgression, the fruit of my body for the sin of the soul? He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy, and to walk humbly with thy God?" [Micah 6:6-8.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 23

The world's Redeemer was brought up in a lowly village, which was not noted for its high standard of morality. In this despised town of Galilee He lived till He was thirty years of age. The greatest gift that heaven could send was born and brought up in lowliness. Thus God would teach His people that they are not to put their trust in outward show and parade. Jesus knew the wrong steps which the Jewish nation had taken in this direction, and He would not come in a way that would meet their expectations. The Lord would bless His church only through their obedience. He permitted the Roman power to have control over them, but notwithstanding this, it was only a remnant of Israel that received Him.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 121, 1899,

par. 24

Because of their pride, their belief in their own superiority, the Jews as a nation refused to accept Jesus as their Messiah. It was because of this that He declared, "Therefore I say unto you, The kingdom of heaven shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." [Matthew 21:43.] All the advantages the Jewish people enjoyed had come to them through the mercy and benevolence of God, and it was their duty to respond to the favors shown by rendering to God His own in tithes and offerings and in willing obedience. They were to be teachable and obedient to God's commands. Thus they would stand among the Gentiles, people who knew not God, as representatives of the good and right. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 25

When Christ came, literal Israel had long been trodden down by the Gentiles, but the Lord had a people who were to be spiritual Zion. "The remnant of Jacob shall be in the midst of many people as a dew from the Lord, as the showers upon the grass, that tarrieth not for man, nor waiteth for the sons of men." [Micah 5:7.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 26

Let all who claim to be the chosen of God understand that they are to be what they claim to be. The Israelites failed grievously to fulfil God's plans for them. Ezekiel writes of them, "He said unto me, Son of man, get thee unto the house of Israel, and speak with my words unto them. For thou art not sent to a people of strange speech and of an hard language, but to the house of Israel; not to many people of a strange speech and of an hard language, whose words thou canst not understand. Surely had I sent thee unto them, they would have hearkened unto thee. But the house of Israel will not hearken unto thee; for they will not hearken unto me; for all the house of Israel are impudent and hard-hearted."14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 27

"Behold, I have made thy face strong against their faces, and thy forehead strong against their foreheads. As an adamant harder than flint have I made thy forehead; fear them not, neither be dismayed at their looks, though they be a rebellious house. Moreover he said unto me, Son of man, all my words that I shall Speak unto thee receive in thine heart, and hear with thine ears. And go, get thee to them of the captivity, unto the children of thy people, and speak unto them, and tell them, Thus saith the Lord God; whether they will hear, or whether they will forbear.” [Ezekiel 3:4-11.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 28

And Christ said concerning the Jewish people, “Remember the word that I said unto you, The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you; if they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also. But all these things will they do unto you for my name’s sake, because they know not him that sent me. If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin; but now they have no cloak for their sin. He that hateth me hateth my Father also. If I had not done among them the words which none other man did, they had not had sin; but now have they both seen and hated both me and my Father.” [John 15:20-24.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 29

These Scriptures should be a warning to those living in 1899 who have been given many privileges and opportunities, and great light and knowledge. Let them remember that whatever their position, if they do not respond to the word the Lord sends them, the severity of their visitation will be proportionate to the light and knowledge given them. There is great need that the people whom God has exalted to positions of trust as teachers of His Word be refined and purified. The Bible is to be studied as the Word of God. It is to be received just as it reads, and then obeyed. It is to be the daily food of believers, for in it is their strength. Eating the flesh and drinking the blood of the Son of God brings eternal life. Those who do this have a religious experience after the divine similitude.14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 30

The Lord requires those who have any connection with His work to honor Him. They will be held accountable for the influence for good they might have exerted by maintaining correct principles. By their words and deeds they are to bear a distinct, solemn message to the world. The watchmen are to purify their own souls by obeying the truth, the living Word of God. They are no longer to be self-centered. They are to understand that their work is nigh and afar off. Their neighbors need their labor. The churches claiming to believe the truth, but not practicing it, need to be plainly warned in regard to the perilous position of those who know the truth but do it not. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 31

For years Christ has been warning His people as He warned the Jewish people when here on earth. The cities wherein most of His mighty works were done were upbraided because the people repented not. They were convicted, their hearts were stirred; but they were not willing to humble themselves. They acted as though they thought it beneath their dignity to humble their hearts to confess and forsake their sins. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 32

Who among those now claiming to believe the truth are in a position similar to this—enjoying great light, yet standing in impenitence. Listen to the words of the Saviour: “Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethsaida! for if the mighty works which were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in sackcloth and ashes. But I say unto you, That it shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the day of judgment than for you. And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted unto heaven, shalt be brought down to hell: for if the mighty works which have been done in thee had been done in Sodom, it would have remained until this day.” [Matthew 11:21-23.] 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 33

In Capernaum Christ made His home during the greater part of His public ministry. Constantly the people had before them the example of His perfect life. In this city Christ did many of His mighty works. Angels communed with Him and guarded Him from harm. But notwithstanding the wonderful works they witnessed, and the gracious words they heard, the people repented not to give God the glory. Thus they could have rendered Him the fruit of His vineyard, but they refused to do it. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 34

Christ’s words should come home to the hearts of those in our institutions who have enjoyed great light and many spiritual blessings, yet have not shown repentance and reformation which in any way correspond with the privileges bestowed. The husbandmen have not given the fruit of the vineyard to the Householder. Let those at the centers of the work, connected with the instrumentalities by which God reflects light to the world, remember that the Lord will call for fruit from His vineyard. Proportionate to the blessings bestowed will be the returns required. Heavenly angels have visited and ministered in every place where God's institutions are established. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 35

Unfaithfulness in these institutions is a greater sin than it would be elsewhere, because it has a greater influence than it would have elsewhere, as coming from men who have been favored with greater light than any others in the world. Christ is in these institutions as a Watcher and a Healer. "In him was life, and the life was the light of men" [John 1:4]; and any unfaithfulness, any injustice, any dishonesty, any conniving at wrong, obstructs the light which God designs shall shine forth from these institutions. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 36

God should be honored by all who connect with His instrumentalities. If wrongs are tolerated there, the work that should be done—the glorifying of God's name—is hindered. The people have been educated to look upon God's institutions as places where truth and righteousness are to be found. Those who pursue a course in business deal that does not rightly represent God are like the unfaithful husbandmen, who refused to give the householder the fruit of the vineyard in its season. Such unfaithfulness is contagious. The practice of principles that are not according to truth and righteousness is doing its baleful work. Light which should go to the people, to all who come in contact with the men placed in positions of trust, is being shut away from them. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 37

In the relation of men to God's institutions there must be revealed something higher and holier than natural love. If the truth as it is in Jesus abides in the heart, it will be revealed by the love of which Christ told His disciples not long before He left them to be offered up for the sins of the world. "A new commandment I give unto you," He said, "That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another." [John 13:34, 35.] Nothing short of this love will be accepted by God. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 38

Writing to the Colossians, Paul speaks of “the mystery which hath been hid from ages and from generations, but now is made manifest to his saints; to whom God would make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles; which is Christ in you, the hope of glory; whom we preach, warning every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus.” [Colossians 1:26-28.] Holiness to the Lord is required in all who come nigh God in service. Self-exaltation is to find no place in the heart. Devotion to self cannot exist in the life that is ruled by Christ. By selfishness Christ is dishonored, and He can never bless those whom it controls. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 39

The devotion which God requires reveals itself in unfeigned love for the souls for whom Christ gave His life. Christ dwelling in the heart will be manifested by the love which He enjoins upon His disciples. His true children will prefer others to themselves. They do not seek for the lion’s share at any time or in any place, because they do not look upon their talents as superior to those of their brethren. When this is indeed the case, the sign will be given in a revelation of the love which Christ manifested for the souls of men—an unselfish, unfeigned love, which preferred the welfare of others before His own. They “look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others.” [Philippians 2:4.] Holiness will bear fruit in good works. The character formed in true holiness will hate greed and everything of a selfish nature. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 40

God calls the church His body. The church is the bride, the Lamb’s wife. God is the Father of the family, the Shepherd of the flock. But a mere outward connection with any church will not save a man. It is personal faith in a personal Saviour which brings the soul into spiritual union with Christ. This truth Christ plainly teaches in the sixth chapter of John. “Labor not for that meat which perisheth,” He said, “but for that meat which endureth unto eternal life, which the Son of man shall give unto you; for him hath God the Father sealed. ... I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall never hunger; and he that believeth on me shall never thirst. But I say unto you, That ye also have seen me, and believed not. All that the Father giveth me shall come to me; and him that cometh to me I will in no wise cast out. For I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that sent me. 14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 41

“And this is the Father’s will which hath sent me, that of all things which he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up again at the last day. And this is the will of him that sent me, that every one which seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life. ... I am the Bread of life. ... This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die. I am the living bread which came down from heaven: if any man eat of this bread he shall live forever; and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world.” [Verses 27, 35-40, 48, 50, 51.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 42

“Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man and drink his blood, ye have no life in you. Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed. He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him. As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father, so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me. This is the bread that came down from heaven; not as your fathers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead; he that eateth of this bread shall live forever.” [Verses 53-58.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 43

The second chapter of Revelation presents a church in a condition which calls for reformation. The church possesses excellent qualification, but there is need of individual heart-searching. “Unto the angel of the church of Ephesus write: These things saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, who walketh in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks: I know thy works, and thy labor, and thy patience, and how thou canst not bear them which are evil: and thou hast tried them which say they are apostles, and are not, and hast found them liars: and hast borne, and hast patience, and for my name’s sake hast labored, and hast not fainted.” [Verses 1-3.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 44

The True Witness mingles commendation and encouragement with His reproof and warning. The reproof comes because they have lost from their hearts something which they once had. “Nevertheless I have somewhat against thee," He says, "because thou hast left thy first love. Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works: or else I will come to thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent." [Verses 4, 5.]14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 45

These warnings and encouragements are needful for the church in all ages. The specifications mentioned should be earnestly considered and studied by our teachers in every line of work. When church members are deficient in these things, they should be reproved and earnestly labored for. The love of Christ must be revived in their hearts. God will not accept a profession of love for Him which does not embrace love for their brethren. If we are Christ's disciples, we shall love one another as He has loved us. This truth was taught by Him who holds the seven stars in His right hand, thus expressing His power and knowledge, and His authority over all who minister in the churches. From Him they receive their office, and He it is who imparts to them strength and efficiency to fill that office. To Him they must render an account in the day of God.14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 46

"These things saith he that holdeth the seven stars in his right hand, that walketh in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks." [Verse 1.] These words assure us of Christ's constant presence with His church. Those who are knit together in love will find Him an ever present Friend. Though they are in the deepest poverty and abasement for Christ's sake, they are never alone, never without His sympathy and love. The light of His presence shines upon all who are united in Him, and this light they in turn are to reflect to the world.14LtMs, Ms 121, 1899, par. 47

The Canvasser and His Work

NP

July 2, 1899 [typed]

A collection of extracts largely taken from 5T 396-407. See also 1MCP 51; 6MR 271-273. +Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Importance of the Canvassing Work. The canvassing work is more important than many have regarded it. If there is one work more important than another, it is that of getting our publications before the public, thus leading them to search the Scriptures.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 1

Selection of Canvassers. As much care and wisdom must be used in selecting the workers as in selecting men for the ministry. In all parts of the field, colporteurs and canvassers should be selected, not from the floating element in society, not from among men and women who are good for nothing else, and have made a success of nothing, but from among those who have good address, tact, keen foresight, and ability.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 2

Persons of uncouth manners are not fitted for this work. Men and women who possess tact, good address, keen foresight, and discriminating minds, and who feel the value of souls, are the ones who can be successful.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 3

Those of the best talent and ability, who will take hold of the work understandingly and systematically, and carry it forward with persevering energy, are the ones who should be selected. There should be a most thoroughly organized plan; and this should be most faithfully carried out.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 4

Men should be at work who are willing to be taught as to the best way of approaching individuals and families. Their dress should be neat, but not foppish, and their manner such as not to disgust the people. There is a great want of true politeness among us as a people. Much is gained by courtesy. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 5

Canvassers need self-culture and polished manners, not the affected and artificial manners of the world, but the agreeable manners that are the natural result of kindness of heart and a desire to copy the example of Christ. They should cultivate thoughtful, caretaking habits—habits of industry and discretion—and should seek to honor God by making of themselves all that it is possible for them to become. Jesus made an infinite sacrifice to place them in right relations to God and to their fellow men, and divine aid, combined with human effort, will enable them to reach a high standard of excellence. The canvasser should be chaste like Joseph, meek like Moses, and temperate like Daniel; then a power will attend him wherever he goes. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 6

Preparation for the Work. Very much more efficient work can be done in the canvassing field than has yet been done. The canvasser should not rest satisfied unless he is constantly improving. He should make thorough preparation, but should not be content with a set form of words; he should give the Lord a chance to work with his efforts and impress his mind. The love of Jesus abiding in his heart will enable him to devise means to gain access to individuals and families. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 7

The work of the colporteur is elevating, and will prove a success if he is honest, earnest, and patient, steadily pursuing the work he has undertaken. His heart must be in the work. He must rise early, and work industriously, putting to proper use the faculties God has given him. Difficulties must be met. If confronted with unceasing perseverance, they will be overcome. ... The worker may continually be forming a symmetrical character. Great characters are formed by little acts and efforts. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 8

Young men are wanted who are men of understanding, who appreciate the intellectual faculties that God has given them, and cultivate them with the utmost care. Exercise enlarges these faculties, and if heart-culture is not neglected, the character will be well-balanced. The means of improvement are within the reach of all. Then let none disappoint the Master, when he comes seeking for fruit, by presenting nothing but leaves. A resolute purpose, sanctified by the grace of Christ, will do wonders.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 9

Energy and courage in Workers. Among the people professing present truth there is not a missionary spirit corresponding to our faith. The ring of the true gold in character is wanting. Christian life is more than they take it to be. It does not consist in mere gentleness, patience, meekness, and kindliness. These graces are essential; but there is need of courage, force, energy, and perseverance also. Many who engage in the work of canvassing are weak, nerveless, spiritless, easily discouraged. They lack push. They have not those positive traits of character that give men power to do something—the spirit and energy that kindle enthusiasm. The canvasser is engaged in an honorable business, and he should not act as if he were ashamed of it. If he would have success attend his efforts, he must be courageous and hopeful.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 10

The active as well as the passive virtues must be cultivated. The Christian, while he is ever ready to give the soft answer that turneth away wrath, must possess the courage of a hero to resist evil. With the charity that endureth all things, he must have the force of character which will make his influence a positive power for good. Faith must be wrought into his character. His principles must be firm. He must be noble-spirited, above all suspicion of meanness.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 11

The canvasser must not be self-inflated. As he associates with men, he must not make himself conspicuous, talking of himself in a boastful way; for by this course he would disgust intelligent, sensible people. He must not be selfish in his habits, nor overbearing and domineering in his manners. Very many have settled it in their minds that they cannot read one in ten thousand of the books that are published and put upon the market, and in many cases when the canvasser makes known his business, the door of the heart closes firmly. Hence the great need of doing his work with tact, and in a humble, prayerful spirit. He should be familiar with the Word of God, and have words at his command to unfold the precious truth, and to show the great value of the pure reading matter he carries.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 12

Well may every one feel an individual responsibility in this work. Well may he consider how he may best arrest the attention, for his manner of presenting the truth may decide the destiny of a soul. If he makes a favorable impression, his influence may be to that soul a savor of life unto life; and that one person, enlightened in regard to the truth, may enlighten many others. Therefore it is dangerous to do careless work in dealing with minds.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 13

The canvassing work is God's means of reaching many who would not otherwise be impressed with the truth. The work is a good one, the object high and elevating; and there should be a corresponding dignity of deportment. The canvasser will meet men of varied minds. He will meet those who are ignorant and debased, and who can appreciate nothing that does not bring them money. These will be abusive; but he should not heed them. His good nature should never fail; he should take a cheerful, hopeful view of every perplexity. He will meet those who are bereaved, disheartened, and sore and wounded in spirit. To these he will have many opportunities of speaking kind words, and words of courage, hope, and faith. He may be a well-spring to refresh others if he will; but in order to do this, he must himself draw from the Fountain of living truth.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 14

The Need of Integrity. If the canvasser pursues a wrong course, if he utters falsehood or practices deception, he loses his own self-respect. He may not be conscious that God sees him, and is acquainted with every business transaction, that holy angels are weighing his motives and listening to his words, and that his reward will be according to his works; but if it were possible to conceal his wrongdoing from human and divine inspection, the fact that he himself knows it is degrading to his mind and character. One act does not determine the character, but it breaks down the barrier, and the next temptation is more readily entertained, until finally a habit of prevarication and dishonesty in business is formed, and the man cannot be trusted.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 15

In families and in the church there are too many who make little account of glaring inconsistencies. There are young men who appear what they are not. They seem honest and true; but they are like whited sepulchers, fair without, but corrupt to the core. The heart is spotted, stained with sin; thus the record stands in the heavenly courts. A process has been going on in the mind that has made them callous, past feeling. But if their characters, weighed in the balances of the sanctuary, are pronounced wanting in the great day of God, it will be a calamity that they do not now comprehend. Truth, precious, untarnished truth, is to be a part of the character.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 16

Whatever way is chosen, the path of life is beset with perils. If the workers in any branch of the cause become careless and inattentive to their eternal interest, they are meeting with great loss. The tempter will find access to them. He will spread nets for their feet, and will lead them in uncertain paths. Those only are safe whose hearts are garrisoned with pure principles. Like David they will pray, "Hold up my goings in thy paths, that my footsteps slip not." Psalms 17:5. A constant battle must be kept up with the selfishness and corruption of the human heart. Often the wicked seem to be prospered in their way; but those who forget God, even for an hour or a moment, are in a dangerous path. They may not realize its perils, but ere they are aware, habit, like an iron band, holds them in subjection to the evil with which they have tampered. God despises their course, and His blessing will not attend them.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 17

I have seen that young men undertake this work without connecting themselves with Heaven. They place themselves in the way of temptation to show their bravery. They laugh at the folly of others. They know the right way; they know how to conduct themselves. How easily they can resist temptation! How vain to think of their falling! But they make not God their defense. Satan has an insidious snare prepared for them, and they themselves become the sport of fools. ...14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 18

One safeguard removed from the conscience, the indulgence of evil habit, a single neglect of the high claims of duty, may be the beginning of a course of deception that will pass you into the ranks of those who are serving Satan, while you are all the time professing to love God and His cause. A moment of thoughtlessness, a single misstep, may turn the whole current of your lives in the wrong direction. ...14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 19

No one whose hands are defiled with sin, or whose heart is not right with God, should have any part in the work of the canvasser or the colporteur, for such persons will surely dishonor the cause of truth. Those who are workers in the missionary field need God to guide them. They should be careful to start right, and then keep quietly and firmly on in the path of rectitude. They should be decided, for Satan is determined and persevering in his efforts to overthrow them.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 20

Economy. Economy is needed in every department of the Lord's work. The natural turn of youth in this age is to neglect and despise economy, and to confound it with narrowness and stinginess. But economy is consistent with the most broad and liberal views and feelings. There can be no true liberality where it is not practiced. No one should think it beneath him to study economy and the best means of taking care of the fragments. After Christ had performed a notable miracle, He said, "Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be lost." John 6:12. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 21

Quite a sum may be expended in hotel bills that are not at all necessary. The cause of God lay so near the heart of the pioneers in this message that they seldom took a meal at a hotel, even though the cost was but twenty-five cents each. But young men and women generally are not educated to economize, and everywhere waste follows waste. In some families there is a wicked waste of enough to support another family if reasonable economy were used. If, while traveling, our youth will keep an exact account of the money they spend, item by item, their eyes will be opened to see the leak. While they may not be called upon to deprive themselves of warm meals, as the early workers did in their itinerant life, they may learn to supply their real wants with less expense than they now think necessary. There are persons who practice self-denial in order to give means to the cause of God; then let the workers in the cause also practice self-denial by limiting their expenses as far as possible. It would be well for all our workers to study the history of the Waldensian missionaries, and to imitate their example of sacrifice and self-denial. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 22

Wages. The efficient colporteur, as well as the minister, should have a sufficient remuneration for his services if his work is faithfully done. The worker who has the cause of God at heart will not insist in receiving the highest wages. He will not plead, as some of our youth have done, that unless he can make a stylish and elegant appearance, and board at the best hotels, he will not be patronized. What the canvasser needs is not the faultless apparel, or the address of the dandy or the clown, but that honesty and integrity of character which is reflected in the countenance. Kindness and gentleness leave their impress upon the face, and the practiced eye sees no deception, detects no pomposity of manner. ... 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 23

Our brethren should show discretion in selecting canvassers and colporteurs, unless they have made up their minds to have the truth misrepresented and misapprehended. They should give all real workers good wages; but the sum should not be increased to buy canvassers; for this course hurts them. It makes them selfish and spend-thrifts. Seek to impress them with the spirit of true missionary work, and with the qualifications necessary to insure success. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 24

Many of the workers in the canvassing field are making no sacrifices. As a class, they have less of the missionary spirit than the workers in any other denomination. When the way is all prepared for them, when they can command the highest wages, then they are willing to enter the field. Many inducements are presented to canvassers to handle popular books. Large wages are offered them, and many refuse to work for less wages to circulate books treating on present truth. Therefore the inducements have been increased to correspond to those offered by other publishers, and as a consequence the expense of getting our publications before the people is large. Many of the canvassers obtain their money easily, and spend it freely. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 25

Young men can be trained to do much better work than has been done, and on much less pay than many have received. Lift up the standard, and let the self-denying and the self-sacrificing, the lovers of God and of humanity, join the army of workers. Let them come, not expecting ease, but to be brave and of good courage under rebuffs and hardships. Let those come who can give a good report of our publications, because they themselves appreciate their value. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 26

Debts to the Publishing Houses. The loose way in which canvassers, both old and young, have performed their work shows that they have important lessons to learn. Much haphazard work has been presented before me. Some have trained themselves in deficient habits, and this deficiency has been brought into the work of God. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 27

The International Tract and Missionary Society has been deeply involved in debt through the failure of canvassers to meet their indebtedness. Canvassers have felt that they were ill-treated if required to pay promptly for the books received from the publishing house. Yet to require prompt remittal is the only way in which to carry on business. It has been neither kind nor just for the managers at the Office to deal with canvassers in a way that has been called merciful. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 28

One man, who has been asked to settle his account, feels as though he has been personally abused, and has written an unchristian answer, as if those who hold responsible positions had no right to require prompt and honest dealing on the part of canvassers. This man is not the only one who has felt in this way. One after another has dealt in the same manner, until the publishing houses and the missionary society are wading in debt. God's cause is left in embarrassment, and He is dishonored. There must be an entire change in the workers who have brought embarrassment upon the Lord's cause by their careless and irresponsible manner of dealing. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 29

*****

When men in the canvassing work get into difficulties, they expect that money is to be drawn from the treasury to help them out, only to get into straightened places again, and again to require help. Those who are stewards of the means in the treasury must keep a sharp lookout to see that the supply is not exhausted by these draughts upon it. When men cannot by canvassing bring into the treasury every dollar that belongs rightly to it, let them stop where they are. They should not engage in canvassing unless they can bring means into the treasury, instead of robbing it. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 30

*****

Economy must be practiced on all sides. No worker should manage his affairs in a way to incur debt. The state of the treasury will not admit of this. The practice of drawing money from the treasury before it is earned is a snare. In this way the resources are limited, so that laborers cannot be supported in missionary work. When one voluntarily becomes involved in debt, he is entangling himself in one of Satan's nets, which he sets for souls. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 31

*****

Last night I was exercised in mind. I seemed to be in an assembly where were gathered ministers and leading men connected with the various branches of the work. There was a dearth of money in the treasury, and these men were discussing as to the best plans and methods for doing a large work with the smallest possible expenditure of means. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 32

Statements were made that some of the canvassers conducted their business in such a slack, loose way as to be constantly sapping the funds needed for carrying on the work. They were selling books, and giving the impression that they were working for the cause; but instead of bringing in the means so much needed to advance the work, they were taking many pounds from the treasury. The means which came into their hands, which was not their own, they appropriated to defray their own expenses, the expenses of their families, or to give to their family connections. Both in _____ and _____ the slack, loose methods followed by the canvassers have been a great hindrance to the progress of the work. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 33

By appropriating to their own use that which belongs to the cause of God, canvassers involve themselves in difficulties, separate their souls from God, and create a feeling of uncertainty, a want of confidence, in those who are laboring with them in the field. At the same time they do injustice to their fellow laborers. Men who do their very best are liable to be regarded with suspicion, and thus are made to suffer because of the course of untrustworthy persons.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 34

Those who deal in this manner are making themselves channels of darkness instead of channels of light. Satan, instead of the Holy Spirit, is working with human agencies. The result is that the cause of God is involved in perplexity and brought into embarrassment, and a heavy burden is cast upon those who were appointed to bear weighty responsibilities. If this loose way of doing business is permitted to continue, it will not only drain the treasury of means, but will cut off the supplies that flow from the people. It will destroy their confidence in those who have the management of funds, and will lead many to discontinue their gifts and offerings.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 35

The course of these careless workmen has brought upon men in leading positions a burden that grieves them to the heart. They are perplexed to know how they can guard the cause of God from every species of robbery, and yet save the souls of those who have such perverted ideas as to what is true honesty. When men accept the truth, will it not work by love and purify the soul? Will not those who are converted manifest a decided change in spirit and character? Will men continue to move on recklessly after they claim to be the children of God? Will they so deal with their Lord's goods that their characters and principles shall be against the truth? Can it be possible that men are converted who embezzle the Lord's goods, and take from His treasury the very means by which His cause lives and moves forward successfully? Shall men be entrusted with the Lord's goods while they cherish vanity, and indulge their selfish propensities, yielding to temptation which leads them into a course of action condemned by God?14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 36

The demoralizing practice of borrowing money to relieve some pressing necessity, and making no calculation for cancelling the indebtedness, has been common among the people of this country, but it has not worked for their elevation of character. The Lord would have all who believe the truth converted from these self-deceiving practices. They should choose rather to suffer want than to commit a dishonest act. No soul can resort to prevarication or dishonesty in handling the Lord's goods and stand guiltless before God. All who do this deny Christ in action, while they profess to keep and teach the commandments of God. They do not maintain the principles of God's law. If those who see the truth do not change in character corresponding to the sanctifying influence of the truth, they will be a savor of death unto death. They will misrepresent the truth, bring a reproach upon it, and dishonor Christ, who is truth.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 37

The Lord's goods should be handled with faithfulness. God has given men life, health, and reasoning powers. He has given physical and mental strength to be exercised. Shall not the time and talents which are His gifts be faithfully and diligently employed to His name's glory? Have our brethren considered the fact that they must give an account for all the talents placed in their possession? Have they traded wisely with their Lord's goods, or have they spent His substance recklessly, so that they are written in heaven as unfaithful servants? A record has been kept in heaven of all that has been done.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 38

In the assembly at which I seemed to be present, the question was asked by what means the work could be carried forward, and canvassers be prevented from embarrassing the cause and casting a burden upon the publishing houses by their careless, selfish way of doing business. This question is of consequence. How can order be brought out of confusion, and how can the work be carried on according to principles which God can approve? What will be the wisest way to remedy the existing evil? Already it has taken from the treasury a large amount of means and brought a heavy weight upon the poverty-stricken cause. It has laid a heavy burden of debt upon the instrumentalities ordained for the advancement of the work and cause of God.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 39

The present manner of working must be changed. Some way must be devised by which the robbery of the cause of God will be discerned and checked before it is too late to prevent great loss. The men who are not exact and trustworthy must either be converted or they must be discharged, and seek some other employment. We must have workmen who will not imperil the cause of God by robbing His treasury. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 40

Our brethren who hold responsible positions of trust must be faithful sentinels. They have to deal with those who have proved to be unfaithful men, who have revealed the fact that they cannot be relied upon in doing business connected with the cause of God. Unless these men are converted, and are transformed in character, unless they will maintain their integrity at any cost to themselves, they must be separated from the work; for the heavenly intelligences will not co-operate with them. "Without me," says Christ, "ye can do nothing." [John 15:5.] These men have lost discrimination of correct principles. God's work must have men connected with it who have solid principles, men who in all lines of the work will do right because it is right. They must be led by the Lord in all their methods. Then they will take the right path, because they are doers of the words of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 41

The greater problem we have to solve is how to prevent the loss of the souls of those who have been guilty of unfaithfulness. Brethren, work with the Spirit of Christ, with the mind of Christ, to correct existing evils. The wrongdoer will have the sympathy of wrongdoers; but faithful shepherds of the flock must maintain an elevated standard, and yet teach that the Star of hope is shining still. Work on patiently, but rebuke sin firmly, giving it no sanction. The world is soon to be left by the angel of mercy, and the seven last plagues are to be poured out. Sin, shame, sorrow and darkness are on every side. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 42

God still holds out to men the precious privilege of exchanging darkness for light, error for truth, sin for righteousness; but His patience and mercy will not always wait. The storm is gathering; the bolts of God's wrath are soon to fall; and when He shall begin to punish the transgressors, there will be no period of respite until the end. He shall come forth to punish the inhabitants of the world for their iniquity, and "the earth shall disclose her blood, and shall no more cover her slain." [Isaiah 26:21.] Only those will stand who are sanctified through the truth in the love of God. They will be hid with Christ in God until the desolation shall be overpast. 14LtMs, Ms 122,

Let no one think that he can escape God's wrath by hiding behind a lie; for God will strip from the soul the refuge of lies. That refuge for the covering up of sin must now be torn away, in order that poor deluded souls may not sleep on to their everlasting ruin. Let this work be done with faithfulness, and in love.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 44

Soliciting Subscriptions for our Periodicals. A mistake has been made in soliciting subscriptions for our periodicals for only a few weeks, when by a proper effort much longer subscriptions might have been obtained. One yearly subscription is of more value than many for a short time. When the paper is taken for only a few months, the interest often ends with the short subscription. Few renew their subscriptions for a longer period, and thus there is a large outlay of time that brings small returns, when, with a little more tact and perseverance, yearly subscriptions might have been obtained. You strike too low, brethren, you are too narrow in your plans. You do not put into your work all the tact and perseverance that it deserves.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 45

While short subscriptions are accepted, some will not make the effort necessary to obtain them for a longer time. Canvassers should not go over the ground in a careless, unconcerned manner. They should feel that they are God's workmen, and the love of souls should lead them to make every effort to enlighten men and women in regard to the truth. Providence and grace, means and ends, are closely connected. When His laborers do the very best they can, God does for them that which they cannot do for themselves; but no one need expect to succeed independently and by his own exertions. There must be activity united with firm trust in God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 46

Canvassing for Secular Books. In this age the trivial is praised and magnified. There is a call for anything that will create a sensation and make a sale. The country is flooded with utterly worthless publications, which were written for the sake of making money, while really valuable books are unsold and unread. Those who handle this sensational literature, because by so doing they can make higher wages, are missing a precious opportunity of doing good. There are battles to be fought to arrest the attention of men and women and interest them in really valuable books that have the Bible for their foundation; and it will be a still greater task to find conscientious, God-fearing workers who will enter the field to canvass for these books for the purpose of diffusing light. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 47

My heart aches as I see those who profess to be looking for Christ's coming devoting their time and talents to circulating books that contain nothing concerning the special truth for our time—books of narrative, books of biography, books of men's theories and speculations. The world is full of such books; they can be had anywhere; but can the followers of Christ engage in so common a work, when there is crying need for God's truth on every hand? It is not our mission to circulate such works. There are thousands of others to do this, who have as yet no knowledge of anything better. We have a definite mission, and we ought not to turn from it for side issues, employing men and means to bring to the attention of the people books that have no bearing upon the present truth. The angels of God do not accompany those who do cheap service for worldly profit when there is earnest service to be done in which they can be laborers together with God. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 48

*****

The world is deluged with books that might better be consumed rather than be circulated. Books upon Indian warfare and similar topics, published and circulated as a money-making scheme, might better never be read. There is a satanic fascination in such books. The heart-sickening relation of crimes and atrocities has had a bewitching power upon many youth, exciting them to see what they can do to bring themselves into notice, even by the wickedest deeds. The enormities, the cruelties, the licentious practices, portrayed in more strictly historical writings, have acted as leaven in many minds, leading to the commission of similar acts. Books that delineate the satanic acts of human beings are giving publicity to evil work. These wicked, horrible particulars need not be lived over, and none who believe the truth for this time should act a part in perpetuating the memory of them. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 49

There is another class of books, love stories and frivolous and exciting tales, that are a curse to every one who reads them. The author may attach a good moral, and religious sentiments may be woven all through these books, yet in most cases Satan is but clothed in angel robes, to deceive and allure the unsuspecting. The mind is affected in a great degree by that upon which it feeds. The readers of frivolous, exciting tales, become unfitted for the duties lying before them. They live an unreal life, and have no desire to search the Scriptures, to feed upon the heavenly manna. The mind that needs strengthening is enfeebled, and loses its power to contemplate the great problems which relate to the mission and work of Christ, the plan of salvation.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 50

I have been shown that the youth are exposed to the greatest peril of being corrupted by improper reading. Could a large share of the books published be consumed, a plague would be stayed that is doing a fearful work upon human minds, and corrupting human hearts. Satan is constantly leading both the youth and those of mature age to be charmed with feeble stories. None are so confirmed in right principles, so secure from temptation, that they can feel safe, and think that no one need be anxious about them. All this trashy reading should be resolutely discarded.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 51

We have no permission from the Lord to engage in either the printing or the sale of such publications, for they are the means of destroying many souls. I know what I am writing, for this matter has been opened before me. Let not those who believe the truth engage in this kind of work, thinking to make money. The Lord will put a blight upon the means thus obtained; He will scatter more than is accumulated.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 52

A Caution. No canvasser should exalt the book for which he is working above others that set forth the truth for this time. Should our canvassers drop all but one book, and concentrate their energies on that, the work would not be carried on as God would have it. It is necessary that a variety of books should be in the field, as minds are not constituted alike, and what would be food to one might fail to interest another. Some classes would be more benefited by papers and tracts than by books, and it will be necessary for the canvasser to make a wise selection of his books. Let no one who is doing the work of God become one-sided and short-sighted. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 53

The Lord has many instrumentalities through which He designs to work. When one book is exalted above another, there is danger that the very work best adapted to give light to the people will be crowded out. There is no need of contrasting different books, and judging as to which will do most good, and then pushing to the wall the one that is weakest, for the advancement of another. God has a place for all the voices and all the pens that He has inspired to utterance for Him. It will be difficult for some minds to fathom our most profound works, and a simpler way of putting the truth will reach them more readily. Let the leading workers encourage the weaker ones, and show an equal interest in every one of the instrumentalities set in motion to prepare a people for the day of the Lord. ... 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 54

Papers and pamphlets and tracts all need attention in the canvassing work, for they are as little wedges that open the way for larger works. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 55

Extracts from a letter written, May 27, 1896: 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 56

“I have been shown that you also are in danger of making serious mistakes. You feel a deep interest in the circulation of the health publications; and this is right; but that special branch is not to be made all-absorbing. The health reform is as closely related to the third angel’s message as the arm to the body, but the arm cannot take the place of the body. The proclamation of the third angel’s message, the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus, is the burden of our work. The message is to be proclaimed with a loud cry, and is to go to the whole world. The presentation of health principles must be united with this message, but must not be independent of it, or in any way take the place of it. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 57

“I was shown that the strong presentation of the health line of work is causing it to absorb more attention than should be given to any one branch. There must be a well-balanced, symmetrical development of the work in all its parts. You, my brother, should not press the workers to handle the health books as Bible Readings was handled. Matters are now taking that phase. The glowing impressions given to the canvassers in regard to this one branch result in excluding from the field other works that must come before the people. You know I would have the health books occupy their proper place, but they are only one of the many lines in the great work to be done. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 58

“Canvassers should not be taught that one book or one class of books is to occupy the field to the neglect of all others. Among the workers are always some who can be swayed in almost any direction. Those who have charge of the canvassing work should be men of well-balanced minds, who can discern the relation of each part of the field to the great whole. Let them give due attention to the circulation of health books, but not make this line so prominent as to draw men away from other lines of vital interest. It is my prayer that you may not move unadvisedly in this matter, and exercise an influence that shall lead men to dishonor God by neglecting the very things essential to come before the people at this time.” 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 59

*****

The Canvasser and Bible Work Letters have been received by me making inquiries in regard to the particular duties that devolve upon the canvasser. Some have said that in their experience in visiting the people, they have found favorable opportunities for presenting the truth for this time, and have even been forced into holding Bible readings. They have said they could not conscientiously pass by those who were interested, or neglect these favorable opportunities for presenting to earnest inquirers the great truth that means so much to us. On the other hand, letters come, saying that our canvassers are not doing the work which is given them to do, but are occupying their time in giving Bible-readings upon doctrinal points of faith, and that thereby prejudice is roused and canvassers have difficulty in delivering their books; and some are asking in what way they shall deal with this difficulty. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 60

We think that there is truth in both these statements—that canvassers find favorable opportunity for leading the people to a better understanding of the Bible, and that, because of the way they meet these opportunities, prejudice is aroused and the work hindered. When the canvasser enters upon his line of work, he should not allow himself to be diverted from his work, but should intelligently keep to the point with all diligence. And yet, while he is doing his canvassing, he should not be heedless of opportunities to help souls who are seeking for light, and who need the consolation of the Scriptures. There are many who have met with trial and disappointment, whose hearts have been made tender by sorrow or affliction, whom the Holy Spirit is drawing unto Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 61

If the canvasser walks with God, if he prays for heavenly wisdom that he may do good and only good in his labor, he will be quick to discern his opportunities and the need of souls with whom he comes in contact. He will make the most of his opportunities to draw souls to Christ, not dwelling on doctrinal subjects, but upon the love of God, upon His mercy and goodness in devising the plan of salvation. He will not hold a controversy with the people. In the spirit of Christ he will be ready to speak the Word of Christ to him who is weary. If, as faithful, true workers, canvassers have learned the trade to which they are called, from the nature of their work, they will be equipped with right words and actions, adapted to the circumstances of those with whom they come in contact. It would not be proper, nor would good results ensue, to present doctrines to souls who are entirely ignorant of our faith.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 62

The great need of the soul is to know God and Jesus Christ whom He has sent. The Bible abounds in practical lessons, which the canvasser may safely present to the people. If he can by this means enlighten their darkened minds, and bring into the sanctuary of the soul a knowledge of what practical religion means, he will be feeding the people. The inexhaustible theme of the love of God in giving His Son to die for the sins of the world can safely be presented. The canvasser can say to the inquiring soul, “Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.” [John 1:29.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 63

Let the canvasser go forth with this prayer upon his lips, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" [Acts 9:6.] Let him labor as in the light of God and in the presence of heavenly angels; let him desire to be approved of God in all things, having an eye single to His glory, and he will not be fruitless in the work which he has undertaken. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 64

The claims of God are to be ever before our eyes, and we are never to forget that we are to give an account of the deeds done in the body. Weighted with this thought, canvassers will watch for souls, and their prayer will go forth from unfeigned lips, asking for wisdom to speak a word in season to those who need help. Workers of this kind will continually be elevating and purifying the soul through the sanctifying influence of the truth. They will feel the value of souls, and will make the most of the priceless opportunities granted them to make known the riches of the grace of Christ to those who are in poverty and darkness. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 65

In order to enlighten souls, it is not necessary to bring up controverted points of doctrine, and thus create opposition. Christ is the center of all our faith and hope. Those who can preach the matchless love of God, those who with softened heart can lift up Jesus, and inspire hearts to give Him their best and holiest affections, are doing a high and holy work. By diligence in canvassing, by faithfully presenting to the people the cross of Calvary, the canvasser doubles his powers of usefulness. But while we present these methods of work, we cannot lay out an undeviating line in which every one shall move, for circumstances alter cases. God will impress those whose hearts are open to truth, who are longing for guidance, and He will say to His human agent, Speak to this one or that one of the love of Jesus. No sooner is the name of Jesus mentioned in love and tenderness than angels of God draw near, and soften and subdue the heart. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 66

Doctrines of all kinds are proclaimed with no special effect, for men expect that others will seek to press upon them their doctrines; but when the matchless love of Jesus is dwelt upon, the grace of Christ is there to make its impression upon the heart. There are many who are sincerely seeking for light, who know not what they must do to be saved. O tell them of the love of God, of the sacrifice Christ made on Calvary's cross to save souls from perishing. Tell them to place their will on the side of God's will, and the Lord will open the way before them. Tell them, "If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God." [John 7:17.] 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 67

We are individually put on the Lord Jesus Christ. To each one of us He must become wisdom, righteousness, sanctification, and redemption. As we have living faith in Christ to appropriate Him as our personal Saviour, we shall have power to place Him before others in a new light. When the people see Christ as He is, they will not begin to wrangle over doctrines, but will flee to Jesus for pardon, purity, and eternal life. No one can be a successful soul-winner till he himself has settled the question of surrender to God. In laboring for others we shall find that many are slow to comprehend the simplicity of godliness, but when once they look and live, the condition is met upon which the approval of God is bestowed. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 68

The difficulty most to be dreaded is that the canvasser who meets these inquiring souls has not himself been converted, has not himself experienced the love of Jesus which passeth knowledge. If he has not himself experienced the love of Christ, how can he tell souls the precious, old, old story? The people are in need of having presented before them the very essence of true faith, of having brought to their minds the very way to accept Christ, and to confide in Him as their personal Saviour. They need to know how they may follow His steps whithersoever He goeth. Let the feet of the worker follow step by step the footprints of Jesus, and mark out no other way in which to proceed onward and heavenward. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 69

When a soul has been brought to Jesus through this kind of personal labor, leave the surrendered, humbled heart for God to work with, and let God impose upon him just such burdens and urge upon him just such service as He sees fit. God has given His pledge that His grace shall be sufficient for every one who will listen to His invitation and come unto Him. Jesus says, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me; so shall he be my disciple.” [See Matthew 16:24; John 15:8.]14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 70

This is the kind of enlightenment the people need. They have heard doctrines until they are disgusted. Let the Lord Jesus Christ be the sum and substance of everything. If the people surrender to Jesus, if they open the door of their hearts and invite Him in, they will be in safe keeping. Jesus says, “I am the Way, the Truth, and the Life.” [John 14:6.] Possessing Jesus, they will possess truth; for if they follow on to know the Lord, they will know that His goings forth are prepared as the morning. They will be complete in Him. In our work we need far less controversy, and far more presentation of Christ.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 71

Many professed Christians make themselves a center. They have broken away from the great Center, Jesus Christ; but if they would attract souls to Him, they must flee back to Christ, and realize their utter dependence upon Him. Satan has tried his uttermost to lay hold of and sever the chain that unites and binds men to God, that he may bind the souls for whom Christ has died to his own car, and make slaves of them in his service; but we are to work against him, and draw men to the Redeemer of the world. By exemplifying the love of Jesus in the life, by telling men what they must do in order to be saved, canvassers will themselves be blessed, and will receive light as they impart light to others.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 72

Let canvassers be faithful students, learning how to be most successful, and while they are thus employed, let them keep their eyes and ears and understanding open to receive wisdom from God, that they may know how to help those who are perishing for lack of a knowledge of Christ. Let every worker concentrate his energies and use his powers for the highest of all service—to recover men from the snare of Satan and bind them to God, making the chain of dependence through Jesus Christ fast to the throne encircled with the rainbow of promise.14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 73

I cannot see why the canvassing work is not as good and successful a work as can be done for the Lord. Canvassers can become acquainted with the people. They can pray with them, and can understand their true necessities. From the light which God has given me, there is much responsibility resting upon the canvassers. They should go to their work prepared to explain the Scriptures, and nothing should be said or done to bind their hands. If they put their trust in the Lord as they travel from place to place, the angels of God will be round about them, giving them words to speak which will give life and hope and courage to many souls. Were it not for the work of the canvasser, many would never hear the truth. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 74

The canvasser should carry with him books and pamphlets and tracts to give away to those who cannot buy books from him. In this way the truth can be introduced into many homes. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 75

Of all the gifts which God has given to man, none is more noble or a greater blessing than the gift of speech, if it is sanctified by the Holy Spirit. It is with the tongue that we convince and persuade; with it we offer prayer and praise to God; and with it we convey rich thoughts of the Redeemer's love. By this work, the canvasser can scatter the seeds of truth, causing the light from the Word of God to shine into many minds. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 76

There are some who are adapted to the work of a colporteur, and who can accomplish far more in this line than in preaching. If the Spirit of Christ dwells in their own hearts, they will find opportunity to present His words to others, and to direct their minds to the special truths for this time. But they will need wisdom to know what to say, and what to leave unsaid. All points of our faith are not to be introduced indiscriminately. We should be careful not to arouse a combative spirit. There is enough to talk about that will not excite opposition, and that will open the heart to desire a deeper knowledge of God's Word. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 77

The love of Jesus in the soul will lead the canvasser to feel it a privilege to labor to diffuse light. He will study, plan, and pray over the matter. Jesus and holy angels will give success to the efforts of intelligent, God-fearing men who do all in their power to save souls. Quietly, modestly, with a heart overflowing with love, let them seek to win minds to investigate the truth, engaging in Bible readings when they can. By so doing they will be sowing the seed of truth beside all waters, showing forth the praises of Him who has called them out of darkness into His marvelous light. Those who are doing this work from right motives are doing an important work of ministry. They will manifest no feeble, undecided character. Their minds are enlarging, their manners are becoming more refined. They should place no bounds to their improvement, but every day be better fitted to do good work. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 78

*****

We have a grand work to do for the Master, to open the Word of God to those who are in the darkness of error. Young friends, act as though you had a sacred charge. You should be Bible students, ever ready to give to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you. By your true Christian dignity, give evidence that you know you have a truth which it is for the interest of the people to hear. If this truth is inwrought in the soul, it will manifest itself in the countenance and demeanor, in a calm, noble self-possession and peace, which the Christian alone can possess. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 79

The Canvassing Work as a Preparation for the Ministry. There are more difficulties in this work than in some other branches of business; but the lessons that will be learned, the tact and discipline that will be acquired, will fit you for other fields of usefulness, where you will minister to souls. Those who poorly learn their lesson, and are careless and abrupt in approaching persons, would show the same defects of manner, the same want of tact and skill, in dealing with minds should they enter the ministry. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 80

*****

I was shown some men whom God was calling to the work of the ministry entering the field as canvassers. This is an excellent preparation if their object is to disseminate light, to bring the truth revealed in God's Word directly to the home circle. In conversation the way will frequently be opened to speak of the religion of the Bible. If the work is taken hold of as it should be, families will be visited, the workers will carry with them tender hearts and love for souls, and will bear, in words and deportment, the fragrance of the grace of Christ, and great good will be the result. This would be an excellent experience for any who have the ministry in view. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 81

*****

Missionary work—introducing our publications into families, conversing, and praying with and for them—is a good work, and one which will educate men and women to do pastoral labor. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 82

*****

But many are attracted into the canvassing work to sell books and pictures that do not express our faith and do not give light to the purchaser. They are induced to do this because the financial prospects are more flattering than can be offered them as licentiates. These persons are obtaining no special fitness for the gospel ministry. They are not gaining that experience which would fit them for the work. They are losing time and opportunities by this kind of labor. They are not learning to bear the burden of souls, and daily obtaining a knowledge of the most successful way of winning people to the truth. These men are frequently turned aside from the convictions of the Spirit of God, and [they] receive a worldly stamp of character, forgetting how much they owe to the Lord who gave His life for them. They use their powers for their own selfish interest and refuse to labor in the vineyard of the Lord. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 83

The Danger of Diverting Men from the Canvassing Work Men suited to this work undertake it; but some injudicious minister will flatter them that their gifts should be employed in the desk, instead of simply in the work of the colporteur or canvasser. Thus this work is belittled. They are influenced to get a license to preach, and the very ones who might have been trained to make good missionaries to visit families at their homes, and talk and pray with them, are caught up to make poor ministers. And the field where so much labor is needed, and where so much good might be accomplished for the cause, is neglected. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 84

Ministers as Canvassers. I sincerely hope that no mind will receive the impression that it belittles a minister of the gospel to canvass. Hear the testimony of the apostle Paul: "Ye know, from the first day that I came into Asia, how I have been with you at all seasons serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears and temptations, which befell me by the lying in wait of the Jews; and how I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have showed you, and have taught you publicly, and from house to house, testifying both to the Jews and also to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ." Acts 20:18-21. The eloquent Paul, to whom God manifested Himself in a wonderful manner, went from house to house, with all humility of mind, and with many tears and temptations. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 85

I have been shown that the most precious ministry can be done by canvassing, and that by ministers. By doing this work, they will obtain a varied experience, and will be doing the very work that the apostle Paul did. I copy an extract from an appeal made to our brethren in regard to canvassing for our periodicals and books. "The canvassing work is an important field for labor; and the intelligent, God-fearing, truth-loving canvasser occupies a position equal to that of the gospel minister. Then should the canvasser feel at liberty, any more than the ordained minister, to act from selfish motives? Should he be unfaithful to all the principles of missionary work, and sell only those books that are cheapest and easiest to handle, neglecting to place before the people the books which will give most light, because by so doing he can earn more money for himself?" 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 86

"The canvassing work is a missionary work, and the field must be worked from a missionary standpoint. Selfish interest, love of dignity and position, should not be once named amongst us. The thought of seeking to be greatest should never come into our minds." 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 87

Closing Words. May the Lord help every one to improve to the utmost the talents committed to his trust. Those who work in this cause do not study their Bibles as they should. If they did, its practical teachings would have a practical bearing upon their lives.

Whatever your work may be, dear brethren and sisters, do it for the Master, and do your best. Do not overlook present, golden opportunities and let your life prove a failure, while you sit idly dreaming of ease and success in a work for which God has never fitted you. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 88

Do the work that is nearest you. Do it, even though it may be amid perils and hardships in the missionary field. But do not, I beg of you, complain of hardship and self-sacrifice. Look at the Waldenses. See what plans they devised that the light of the gospel might shine into benighted minds. We should not labor with the expectation of receiving our reward in this life, but with our eyes fixed steadfastly upon the prize at the end of the race. Men and women are wanted now who are as true to duty as the needle to the pole—men and women who will work without having their way smoothed, and every obstacle removed. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 89

I have described what canvassers ought to be. May the Lord open their minds to comprehend this subject in its length and breadth, and may they realize their duty to represent the character of Christ by their patient courage and steadfast integrity. Let them remember that they can deny Him by a loose, lax, undecided character. Young men, if you take these principles with you into the canvassing field, you will be respected, and many will believe the truth you advocate—because your daily life is as a bright light set upon a candlestick, which gives light to all that are in the house. Even your enemies, as much as they may war against your doctrines, will respect you; and when you have gained this much, your simple words will have a power, and will carry conviction to hearts. 14LtMs, Ms 122, 1899, par. 90

The Vineyard

NP

August 25, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in 16MR 328-331. +<sup>NoteOne</sup> or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“Hear another parable,” Christ said. “There was a certain householder, which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country: and when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it. And the husbandmen took his servants, and [beat] one, and [killed] another, and [stoned] another. Again he sent other servants more than the first: and they did unto them likewise. But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son. But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir, come, let us kill him: and the inheritance will be ours.” [Matthew 21:33-38; Mark 12:7.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 1

The householder is designed to represent God, the Husbandmen the Jewish nation, whom God had appointed to cultivate His vineyard, the world. The servants whom God sent to receive the fruits of the vineyard were the prophets and teachers through whom God had called Israel to render to Him His dues. Had God’s professed people been heeding the Word of the Lord, it would have not have been necessary to remind them of this and call them to a sense of their responsibility. But them had become selfish and covetous, and they were systematically robbing Him of the means and facilities He had entrusted to them for the carrying on of His work.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 2

God had wrought mighty wonders before Pharaoh to show that He was the ruler of the whole earth. He designed that His church should be composed of the very ones who were bondmen in Egypt. By His mighty power He delivered them out of the hand of Pharaoh, and made them His church which was a representation of His church in all ages. Christ had purchased this people, they were His property. All that they held in trust was the Lord's. But they were misappropriating their talents so that others could not be benefitted by the riches and grace of God. 14LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 3

God had taught them that His kingdom embraced the whole world. He was definite in all His arrangements, and positive in all His requirements. His kingdom was to succeed all other kingdoms, and cover the whole earth. It was never to be transferred to another ruler. This kingdom was God's peculiar treasure. Its principles were to test and purify His subjects, and fashion them after the image of God. 14LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 4

The lessons of Christ in the parables preceding the parable of the vineyard present the Jewish nation as unfaithful in their stewardship. Men of God's appointment had come to the vineyard for fruit, and had found none. Christ compared them to the barren fig tree, which while laden with luxuriant foliage, and apparently flourishing, was destitute of fruit. Christ searched from the topmost branch to the lowest bough, but He found nothing but leaves, and He cursed the unfruitful tree. "Let no fruit grow on thee henceforth and forever," He said. [Matthew 21:19.] 14LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 5

Christ had declared, The kingdom of God is not meat nor drink. Form and ceremony do not constitute the kingdom of God. Ceremonies become multitudinous and extravagant as the vital principles of the kingdom of God are lost. But it is not form and ceremony that Christ requires. He hungers to receive from His vineyard fruit in holiness and unselfishness, deeds of goodness, mercy, and truth. 14LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 6

Gorgeous apparel, fine singing, and instrumental music in the church do not call forth the songs of the angel choir. In the sight of God these things are like the branches of the unfruitful fig tree which bore nothing but pretentious leaves. Christ looks for fruit, for principles of goodness and sympathy and love. These are the principles of heaven, and when they are revealed in the lives of human beings, we may know that Christ is formed within, the hope of glory. A congregation may be the poorest in the land, without music or outward show, but if it possesses these principles, the members can sing, for the joy of Christ is in their souls, and this they can offer as a sweet oblation to God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 7

“If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love,” Christ says. [John 15:10.] God looks for the fruit of obedience. “Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit, so shall ye be my disciples. As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love. If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father’s commandments, and abide in his love. These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full. This is my commandment, that ye love one another as I have loved you.” [Verses 8-12.] Who among us realize these things, and cultivate love one for another?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 8

A fashionable religion that consists of ceremony and pretension is not acceptable to God, for the love of God is not there. A church with such a religion can call forth no response from the heavenly angels, for their hearts are not receiving the rich currents of love which are flowing from heaven to earth, and which make glad the hearts of God’s people. When the love of Christ in the soul flows forth in pure, rich currents to those [who] need tenderness and kindness, it is like a draught from the river of God which flows from beneath His throne to refresh the parched and thirsty soul.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 9

These are the fruits that Christ would have from His vineyard, and from His saints who assemble to worship Him from year to year. Obedience to God’s commandments makes our souls precious in His sight. The church is very dear to the heart of God. He would have His people sing with the heart and with the understanding also: “Thou hast brought a vine out of Egypt: thou hast cast out the heathen and planted it.” [Psalms 80:8.] “Now will I sing to my beloved a song of my beloved touching his vineyard. My well beloved hath a vineyard in a very fruitful hill. And he fenced it, and gathered out the stones there of, and planted it with the choicest vine, and built a tower in the midst of it, and also made a winepress therein. ... The vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel.” [isaiah 5:1, 2, 7.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 10

Let songs pour forth from lips that the live coal from off the altar has touched. Lift up your voices in the words of the one hundred and twenty-first, one hundred and twenty-fifth, and one hundred and twenty-sixth psalms. The angelic host will join with those who sing with the spirit and with the understanding also.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 123, 1899, par. 11

Words of Warning

NP

August 28, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 2BC 998; CM 29; 3MR 239. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Some things have been opened before me. I seemed to be present with others in a meeting in which the debt on Battle Creek College was being discussed. The interest on the principal had not been paid, and thus twenty thousand dollars, besides the large principal, had accumulated. After some discussion, it was decided to strike off the interest; and an appeal was made that the whole debt be cancelled. It was urged that the Lord would bless this liberality. Some pressed this matter as though it were duty to forgive the debt. They said that a great blessing would be the result of doing this.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 1

One present, who bore on His face an expression of heavenly dignity, said, The Conference has not money in the treasury to give for this purpose. It has not the wherewithal to cancel its own debts. And if it were free from debt itself, it would have no moral right to place the indebtedness of the school upon the center, the heart of the work. The school interest should be considered, but in an altogether different way. There has been a misapplying of the means taken from the Lord's treasury. Men not led and taught by God have been swaying lines of the work in wrong directions. There is a large debt upon the school, which as been left to accumulate.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 2

This debt has been increased by the creation of buildings directly contrary to the warning not to build. Men concluded that they knew best, and the building went on. The words of Christ were not thought of: "Which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first, and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it? Lest haply after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finish it, all that behold it begin to mock him.” [Luke 14:28, 29.] Christ’s words should lead us to follow this precaution.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 3

God’s people are not to manage any part of His work, spiritual or temporal, with carelessness. The cause of God must not be imperilled, as it has been, by men neglecting to take inventory, and know how they stand financially. You all have reason to examine yourselves closely, and see why you are thus bound about for means to work with. Is there not a cause? It is not an honor to God to carry on schools when by so doing a mountain of debt is piling up to weaken the hands of the teachers and to discourage the people. The confidence of the people is shaken in the wisdom of the managers who year after year make no change, who show little determination to change the manner of carrying on the schools. They do not seek to find out how this matter could be reformed. Religious light is to shine through those who know the truth, and men of understanding should be appointed to change the order of things.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 4

Sanitariums are not to be built on borrowed capital. It has not been wisdom to incur large debts by erecting buildings. Adding building to building, without becoming free from debts previously incurred, is a snare to the soul. Embarrassment should not be thrown on the Lord’s instrumentalities by placing on them debts incurred by human mismanagement. Wisdom is not exercised in these things. God’s people need to remember that the world is to be illuminated by light. The servants of God, who are engaged in the last grand work that is to be accomplished for the world, should not hasten to erect buildings in large indebtedness. This is contrary to faith and consistency.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 5

There are great changes to be made. Ancient Israel was directed to dispossess the land God has given them of the corrupt, idolatrous inhabitants, and [to] take possession of the land. This warfare the Lord assured them would be His, and He would give them the victory if they would obey His commandments. But they were constantly working half according to the Lord’s plan and half according to their own convenience. They pleaded that it was so much more to their advantage, and cost so much less, to be a consolidated company, so that if their adversaries made an attack upon them, they would not prevail against them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 6

The Lord assured them that they must dispossess the land of those who were a snare to them, who would be thorns in their side. This was the word of the Lord, and His plan was that under His guardianship His people should have larger and still larger territory. Wherever they should build houses and cultivate the land, business firms should be established, that they would not have to borrow from their neighbors, but their neighbors from them. Their possessions were to enlarge, and they were to become a great and powerful people. But they stopped halfway. They consulted their own convenience, and the very work God could have done for them, by placing them where the knowledge of God should be made known and the abominable practices of the heathen banished from the land, was not done.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 7

With all their advantages and opportunities and privileges, the Jewish nation failed to carry out God's plans. They bore little fruit, and continually less, until the Lord employed the barren fig-tree, with His curse upon it, to represent the condition of the once chosen nation. The work we do must be done with the unworked portions of the Lord's vineyard in mind. But today it is in a few places only that means are expended and advantages provided. The Lord would have the means and advantages more equally distributed. He would have provision made for many places that are now unworked. The present condition of things is very disappointing to the Lord Jesus Christ, who gave His life for the life of the world.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 8

The Lord calls upon all who have the light to work in His vineyard, to take up some decided line of service for the Lord. He calls for most earnest, vigilant working, as well as for waiting, preparing, and watching for His appearing. All who believe in Christ as a personal Saviour are to show active virtues, that others may see that they too are to illustrate the truth and its saving power upon the life. The parable of the vineyard shows that it is not alone the priests and rulers who bear responsibilities. To every man God has given talents, from the lowliest and most obscure to the highest and most influential. A diligent use of these talents, whether they be great or small, will bring returns. This is the Lord's portion, which He expects to receive from His vineyard. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 9

It was God's purpose that His work should be far in advance of what it now is. By spending so much money in one locality, you are intercepting the light which God has given to go to many places. Thus the impression is left upon minds that the work bears not the signature of God. Careful consideration must be given in regard to the means invested in land and buildings. The cost must be counted. All must be united. Every laborer for God is to act his part, investing the Lord's entrusted capital of means with due regard to the needful illumination of other localities. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 10

Activity is needed, yet this may be carried too far. Responsibilities may be gathered which will work disaster and defeat to the healthful, solid carrying forward of the work. Men must now come to the front. There is to be conscientious consideration given to every part of the whole vineyard. Centers are to be made in places which the Lord shall designate. From these special centers light is to radiate to regions beyond. God's people hold in their power, through a living connection with Him, the great remedy which will heal all who receive and obey the Word of God. The Lord has made His church the great depository of light, and from it the truth is to go forth with efficiency to heal the spiritual and physical maladies of those who are hungering for the bread of life. Make no more extravagant outlays which will place on the cause a heavy burden of debt. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 11

Had the General Conference walked in the counsel of God, the Lord would have given wisdom in every movement. The evangelizing movements would have been carried forward harmoniously. But pride, self-assertion, and self-will has greatly dishonored God, and placed the people in a position where they have not confidence in the men in positions of responsibility, who do not plan as God would have them. The erection of so many large buildings in one place as there are in Battle Creek is not according to the light and wisdom received from God. Scattered in many places, these buildings would be so many luminaries, from which light would shine. This would be more after God's order. Plants should be made in many places. Interests should be created in many cities; many lights should be kindled to shine forth brightly. This is the Lord's plan. Holy, beneficent actions will be rewarded. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 12

Embarrassment has come upon the Lord's instrumentalities because the work has not been aggressive. Sufficient efforts have not been made to bring to a knowledge of the truth those who full of joy would prove their sincerity by making offerings to God. Jesus was rich, but for our sakes He became poor, that through His poverty we might be made rich. There are precious souls in the darkness of error who would have accepted the truth if they had only had a few of the abundant opportunities that have been brought to Battle Creek, until the people there have groaned under the burden, and have lost the sense of the preciousness of the truth. The labor that has been bestowed in Battle Creek, the money there expended, was needed in other portions of the Lord's vineyard, and if proportionately spread over a large territory, would have brought the angels of heaven to the help of human agencies. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 13

The vineyard is the world, but the enemy is working to intercept every ray of light sent from God to man. Those who know the truth are to impart this knowledge to those who know it not. This work is not to rest merely upon the ministers but upon the church members also. If this work were done as it should be, those now in darkness would rejoice in the light. Men and their means would be converted. These men would hunt for opportunities to signalize their gratitude to God as almoners of His gifts. This is what the Lord desires to see. Angels of God will work with human hearts when ways are opened for them to work. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 14

Strange, eventful history is being recorded in the books of heaven. You are appealing to human judgment and speaking of compassion. But from whence will the compassion come to reimburse the treasury of the General Conference if they settle the school debt? Can you not reason from cause to effect? The Lord's cause has been betrayed. You can replenish the treasury only by quickening and converting the hearts of the men who carry responsibilities. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 15

It is not the great buildings you erect in disregard of the work God requires to be done in regions beyond, not the robbery of God by human methods and plans, that will place His work on a high and exalted basis, where He can be glorified. It is not changing men from the heart of the work to different places that will remedy the difficulties. The education of years has been molding and fashioning the work of false theories. False theories, human policy, selfishness, pride, self-esteem, and corrupting principles have been brought in, to sacred things. It is righteousness that exalteth a nation. Sin, selfishness, and covetousness are the ruin of any people. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 16

Everything in our world is in agitation. Events are changing to bring about the day of God, which hasteth greatly. It becomes those who are now in positions of trust not to catch the spirit of confusion, and drift, drift, they know not where. God's people need thorough conversion of heart, revealing harmony amid the disorderly elements of the world. In the general discord there should be one place where harmony and unity should exist because the Bible is the study book. When its principles are followed, it becomes a bright light shining in a dark place. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 17

All who build on the Rock can be sure that, their house will stand amid the tempest. Speculations have spoiled the piety and purity which should have been strictly guarded. Unholy principles have been mingled with sacred responsibilities. Disjointed, disconnected, erratic movements have placed uncertainty upon the sacred work of God. But the Word of God liveth and abideth forever, and when God's faithful people stand forth upon this Word, human calculations will appear as they are. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 18

You talk of the mercy and compassion to be exercised by the Conference, which has been stripped of its means and influence by mismanagement, so that the people are ashamed, and have lost heart and courage. Where is the mercy and compassion to come from to heal the wounds that sin has made by false theories and false principles? The General Conference had no moral right to invest its funds in buildings, even though they were to relieve the sufferings of humanity in any special location, when the money was needed to carry on aggressive warfare. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 19

Little attention was given to the various entreaties for help to carry forward the work in new fields, but means are still called for—to erect more buildings in the very places where thousands upon thousands of dollars have already been spent in erecting buildings, which it was not positively the duty of the General Conference to erect, for there were new fields to be entered. The truth was to be preached in camp meetings, the standard of truth was to be uplifted, and humble houses of worship built in new territories, where people have never heard the last message of mercy that is to be given to the world. An immense amount of money has been expended in America in opposition to the light God has given. This abundant outlay of means has not been after the Lord's devising. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 20

The Lord has a lesson for His people to learn. It was not His purpose that so many buildings should be erected in Battle Creek. He would have had plants made in many directions, that His truth might make an impression on the people. A light goes forth from those who have a knowledge of the law of God, a knowledge that the Sabbath is the Lord's memorial of creation. The Sabbath is a sign between Him and His people, that they may know that it is God who sanctifies them. There should be double the number of Sabbathkeepers that there now is upon the record books of heaven; and there would be if the standard of truth had been planted in many localities. 14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 21

It was the departure from the Lord's plans that caused the discomfiture of the Hebrew people. It is the working away from God's plan, the failure to give heed to His counsel, that is the cause of the dearth of means to carry forward advanced work today. There is much more of a showing in Battle Creek than there should be, to the neglect of other places. Had the word of the Lord been regarded, there would now be many more smaller centers. There would be settlements of Sabbathkeepers in every city in our land.

The light would be shining amid the moral darkness of an apostate religious world, who are boldly lifting their human laws against the divine law of Jehovah. There would be an accumulation of interests and an increase of light, which would penetrate to regions beyond.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 22

As a sacred trust the truth was to be given to the world, but in Battle Creek a world has been made of an atom. A return proportionate to the privileges given has not been made to the Lord. The banner of truth has not been uplifted in places which have never heard the truth. There has been a great neglect of duty, and the Lord cannot and will not prosper a people who study their own convenience and spend means in places where there are already abundant advantages. By the numerous buildings and facilities in Battle Creek, a large number of people are called there who should be scattered in the barren portions of the world. The consecration and sanctification that comes to the people is as dew upon the grass, and will be until the self-centering principle is broken up.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 23

Men and women have been tied in Battle Creek who should have taken the light to other localities, where it would have been communicated to souls worth saving, for whom Christ died. If a portion of the means invested in medical missionary work, in order to get into touch with the lower classes, were spent in lines of work which would bring the workers in touch with the higher classes; if those in the highways were labored for as earnestly and perseveringly as the outcasts, money and talent, the Lord's lent treasures, would have been brought into His service.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 24

Each place is to have its proportion of work done in it. When this is done, God will co-operate with the workers. Churches will be built to establish the work. The saving message of eternal truth will be heard. Sinners will learn that obedience to God will bind up the souls ready to perish, that united with Christ in God we may become partakers of His holiness, partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruptions that are in the world through lust.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 25

When we might have had large increase, only a few have been added to the number of believers because of our lack of faith. But it is not the Lord who has failed. Had there been a deep consecration to God, had the principles of self-denial and self-sacrifice been constantly practiced, there would have been a limit to the location of buildings in one or two places. This would have relieved the difficulty. Centers would have been made in many places where God's vineyard now lies a barren waste. In the place of having immensely large gatherings for convocation meetings, there would have been smaller gatherings in more places. Thus the people would have been better educated, and many more would have been sharers of the knowledge and presence of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 26

There is a selfish ambition to make a grand display and multiply advantages. If the Lord had been honored, there would have been less of man's devising and more of God's wisdom. God declares, "I will instruct thee ... in the way which thou shouldest go; I will guide thee with mine eye." "The meek will he guide in judgment; the meek will he teach his way." [Psalm 32:8; 25:9.] Ministerial institutes have been held where many have been taught and blessed; but when this is continued, and institutes are held at great expense, thus incurring debt, the matter becomes a species of selfishness. Ministers are withdrawn from the field to be held for weeks in meetings, because a few young men design to enter the ministry. Thus the field is robbed of ministerial help, and the flock of God is not supplied with meat in due season.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 27

A better way to educate young ministers is to place them for a time in connection with experienced, stable ministers, who are well grounded in the faith. Then set them at work in small places to teach the truth. Canvassing is the best way in which to obtain experience. Be sure that these souls are soundly converted before encouraging them to labor in any line. Then let them work, and God will work with them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 28

Souls converted are talents gained, and one talent gained often brings in a hundredfold, and even more, in return. It is unbelief in God that blocks the wheels. It is unfaithful stewardship in God's vineyard that brings such large numbers to Battle Creek, to the weakening of their own souls. They are exposed to many temptations which have a corrupting influence upon the church. If the many who have moved into Battle Creek could only see that they have done so without counsel from God, changes would be made.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 29

Many who have thought to gain much knowledge in medical missionary work by studying in Battle Creek would have gained far more by taking hold of the work in some place, and in the fear of God practicing what they did know. In the canvassing work many lines of work present themselves, in doing which, men learn how to labor for God, for the Lord impresses the mind in regard to what to do in an emergency. There are some who need to learn much before they engage in giving treatment. In getting ready to work, some are losing the opportunity to save souls who are ready to perish. There are some who might study a lifetime, and then not be successful in medical missionary work.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 30

Money, time, and workers must now be improved, that one hundredfold more work may be done than has been accomplished. Seek the Lord in prayer. Urge your petitions before Him, and He will help you. He will open your understanding. He will give you knowledge. Begin to work just where you are, and do the work nearest you, praying earnestly and with faith. Many have heard the invitations from the Lord's servants. Their spirit is stirred within them because the Lord has sent His Spirit to write the truth on the tablets of the soul. These are not to waste time by attending classes and hearing a large amount of matter which they cannot retain because it is thought that this will fit them for the ministry or medical missionary work.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 31

Isaiah had a marked experience. "In the year that king Uzziah died," he says, "I saw the Lord sitting upon a throne, high and lifted up, and his train filled the temple. Above it stood the seraphims; each one had six wings; with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly. And one cried unto another, and said, Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of hosts: the whole earth is full of his glory. And the posts of the door moved at the voice of him that cried, and the house was filled with smoke.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 32

“Then said I, Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips; for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of hosts. Then flew one of the seraphims unto me, having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar; and he laid it upon my mouth, and said, Lo, this hath touched thy lips; and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin purged.”14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 33

Some have had this experience, but, not depending on God, they placed them where, as they thought, they could learn, and circumstances connected with the instruction, which was supposed to be fitting them for the work, confused their ideas and marred their experience, so that they were less qualified for doing the work the Lord had given them than before they were encouraged to take time for education.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 34

“Also I heard the voice of the Lord, saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I; send me. And he said, Go, and tell this people, Hear ye indeed, but understand not; and see ye indeed, but perceive not?” [Isaiah 6:1-9.]14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 35

The fields are ripe for the harvest. Let souls solemnly dedicate all their talents to the Lord, and go forth in His name. As they advance by prayer and in faith, the Lord will surely be their Instructor. Altogether too much reliance is placed upon men and too little upon God. At this time there should be representatives of the truth in every city and in the remote places of the earth. Those whose hearts the Lord opens will listen to the message God sends them by His servant. The heart will be touched. The faith of the hearers is mixed with the Word, and the message is remembered. No one can be benefited by a forgotten message.14LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 36

We know and believe the truth in vain, unless we cultivate the memory of the Word. “By which also ye are saved, if ye keep in memory what I preached unto you, unless ye have believed in vain.” [1 Corinthians 15:2.] Many are hearers of the Word, but not doers; and “if any man be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glass; for he beholdeth himself, and goeth his way, and straightway forgetteth what manner of man he was." [James 1:23, 24.] He does not look closely enough into the mirror to see the defects that need to be corrected. Many things are brought before him, but he soon forgets what the mirror revealed to him as needing reformation. God calls for an earnest, thorough change in the manner of working for the advancement of His truth in the world.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 126, 1899, par. 37

The Parable of the Two Sons

NP

September 5, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in OHC 81; HP 42; CG 248; 5BC 1097; RH 02/20/1900, 02/27/1900. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that sold and bought in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money changers, and the seats of them that sold doves.” [Matthew 21:12.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 1

Christ drove the dishonest traffickers from the temple courts with heaven’s authority flashing from His face. His voice spoke to the conscience and soul with the power of God. “Take these things hence,” He said, “it is written, my Father’s house shall be called a house of prayer, but ye have made it a den of thieves.” [John 2:16; Matthew 21:13.] The guilty ones knew what these words meant. They feared the wrath of the Lamb. This was evidence which they had not looked for. Amazed and terrified they obeyed the command of Christ without excuse or resistance.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 2

When their terror was abated, they returned to the temple to find still further evidence of Christ’s Messiahship. The Saviour was healing the sick and dying. “The blind and the lame came to him in the temple; and he healed them.” [Verse 14.] They heard the voice of rejoicing and the song of praise. In the very temple itself, the children who had been restored to health were waving palm branches and singing praises and hosannahs to the Son of David. Baby voices were lisping the praises of the mighty Healer.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 3

The scene was indelibly impressed on the minds and hearts of those who had come up to attend the feast. What greater evidence than this could Christ give? If such evidence as this could find no entrance into the hearts of those resisters of light, if such a scene as this did not bring conviction, if this light were not sufficient to drive away their prejudice and jealousy, what evidence should Christ give to break their rock-bound hearts? No evidence that He could give would break their stubborn wills.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 4

“And when he was come into the temple, the chief priests and the elders of the people came unto him as he was teaching, and said, By what authority doest thou these things? And who gave thee this authority?” [Verse 23.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 5

Christ answered them by asking a question, “I also will ask you one thing,” He said, “which if ye tell me, I in like wise will tell you by what authority I do these things. The baptism of John, whence was it? from heaven, or of men?” [Verses 24, 25.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 6

The priests and rulers were perplexed. “They reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven; he will say unto us, Why did ye not then believe him? And if we shall say of men: we fear the people; for all hold John as a prophet. And they answered Jesus and said, We cannot tell. And he said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.” [Verses 25-27.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 7

In His wonderful deeds of healing, Christ had answered the question of the priests and elders. He had given them evidence of His authority, which could not be controverted. But it was not evidence that they wanted. They were anxious that He should proclaim Himself as the divine authority, that they might misapply His words, and stir up the people against Him. They wished to destroy His influence and put Him to death. Christ knew that if this people could not recognize God in Him, they could not believe His assurance that He was the Christ. They had seen the sick healed, and the dead raised to life. They had witnessed the resurrection of Lazarus after he had been in the grave four days.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 8

thought to take Him by guile, and cause Him to speak something which they could use to His condemnation. But Christ not only evades the issue they hope to bring about, but turns the condemnation upon themselves. In the purity of John's life and his self-denial, they had felt the power of God. Conviction had been sent to every soul. If they would not heed John's warning, they would not heed the words of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 9

"But what think ye," Christ continued. "A certain man had two sons; and he came to the first, and said, Son, to work today in my vineyard. He answered and said, I will not: but afterward he repented, and went. And he came to the second and said likewise, And he answered and said, I go sir, and went not." [Verses 28-30.] 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 10

In these two sons are represented the obedient and the disobedient, the righteous and the unrighteous. The son who refused to obey the command, saying, I will not, represented the open transgressor, who cared neither for God nor man—those who make no pretension of piety, and who openly refused to come under the yoke of service to Christ. But these afterward repented and went. When the gospel came to them in the message of John the Baptist, "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand," they repented and confessed their sins. [Matthew 3:2.] This class was in a much better condition to do the will of God than those who said, "I go, sir," but went not. [Matthew 21:30.] 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 11

In the son who said, "I go, sir," and went not, the Pharisees were revealed in their true character. The scribes and Pharisees knew the law. They professed to be obedient sons, but they did not keep the commandments of God. They arrayed themselves against Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 12

The Saviour contrasted the two classes. The ones whom the Pharisees looked upon with contempt at first refused the invitation, but they afterward repented and went. The Pharisees who said, "I go, sir," but went not, acted a deceptive part. The two cases thus presented, Christ asked, "Whether of them twain did the will of his Father?" Forgetting themselves the Pharisees answered, "The first."

Christ said to them, “Verily I say unto you, That the publicans and harlots go into the kingdom of heaven before you.” [Verse 31.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 13

The door was open for them still. They could enter if they would. Christ longed to see them convicted and converted. What is it that holds them back? It is pride of their spiritual advantages. But the invitation is still held out to them.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 14

This parable is far-reaching and comprehensive. The work of John the Baptist is referred to by the great Teacher. This work was foretold by the angel who visited Zacharias in the temple: “And it came to pass that while he (Zacharias) executed the priest’s office before God in the order of his course, according to the custom of the priest’s office, his lot was to burn incense when he went into the temple of the Lord. And the whole multitude were praying without at the time of incense. And there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord standing at the right hand of the altar of incense. And when Zacharias saw him, he was troubled, and fear fell upon him.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 15

“But the angel said unto him, Fear not, Zacharias, for thy prayer is heard, and thy wife Elisabeth shall bear thee a son, and thou shalt call his name John. And thou shalt have joy and gladness; and many shall rejoice at his birth. For he shall be great in the sight of the Lord; and he shall drink neither wine nor strong drink; and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost, even from his mother’s womb. And many of the children of Israel shall he turn to the Lord their God. And he shall go before him in the spirit and power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just; to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.” [Luke 1:8-17.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 16

The third chapter of Matthew tells of the work of the Holy Spirit through John the Baptist: “In those days came John the Baptist, preaching in the wilderness of Judea, and saying, Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. For this is he that was spoken of by the prophet Esaias saying, The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord; make his paths straight.” [Verses 1-3.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 17

The words of the preacher in the wilderness were with power. He made no compromise with sin, and many were turned from their unrighteousness. "But the Pharisees and rulers believed not." When John saw the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said unto them, "O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Bring forth therefore fruits meet to repentance, And think not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham." 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 18

"And now also the ax is laid unto the root of the trees; therefore every tree which bringeth not forth good fruit, is hewn down, and cast into the fire. I indeed baptize you with water unto repentance: but he that cometh after me is mightier than I, whose shoes I am not worthy to bear: he shall baptize you with the Holy Ghost and with fire: whose fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and gather his wheat into his garner: but he will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." [Verses 7-12.] 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 19

Had the conversion of the Jews been genuine, they would have received this testimony of John, and would have accepted Christ as the Messiah, the one to whom all their sacrificial offerings pointed, He who was the foundation of their whole economy. But the Pharisees and Sadducees did not produce the fruits of repentance and sanctification and righteousness. They were of the class who said, "I go sir," but went not. [Matthew 21:30.] 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 20

Christ declared John the Baptist to be the greatest prophet born of women. He bore his message unflinchingly, rebuking the sins of the priests and Pharisees, and enjoining upon them the works of the kingdom of heaven. He pointed out to them their sinful disregard of their Father's authority in refusing to do the work incumbent upon them. Christ showed His hearers that they had had sufficient evidence that John was a messenger from God. And the Pharisees before that large concourse of people dared not deny that the messenger, who proclaimed the coming of One greater than himself, was sent of God. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 21

Christ Himself had gone to the Jordan, not to repent of sin, but to fulfill every specification required of the sinner. The Baptist saw the Saviour walking at a distance from him, and his face lighted up. "Behold the Lamb of God," he cried, "which taketh away the sin of the world." [John 1:29.] There Christ stood revealed before the people. The glory of God descended upon Him in the form of a dove like burnished gold, and the voice of the Infinite One declared, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." [Matthew 3:16, 17.] Then John knew him to be the Christ, for God had told him that He would give him a sign pointing out the Promised One. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 22

Christ reminded the priests and Pharisees of this recognition by God of John's message and work. If you believe John to be a prophet, why do you not believe My testimony? He said. He told you plainly who I was, but you believed him not. You have refused to do the work God has appointed you in revealing Christ to an apostate world. You refuse to believe in the Son of God. You now ask Me for My authority for cleansing the temple courts, which you have defiled. You profess to be anxious to know God's will, but you reject the evidence given in such abundance. The publicans and harlots whom you despise are receiving the message, and pressing into the kingdom of God before you. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 23

Christ explained why it was that the son who at first refused to comply with the request afterward repented. The Spirit of God was working in the disobedient hearts, and under the sharp, clear-cut preaching of John the Baptist, many sinners were brought to repentance. Publicans and harlots heard and accepted the invitation. We read that on one occasion, when the disciples of John had come to question the Saviour, when they "were departed, he began to speak unto the people concerning John. What went ye out into the wilderness for to see? A reed shaken with the wind? But what went ye out for to see? A man clothed in soft raiment? 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 24

"Behold, they which are gorgeously apparelled, and live delicately, are in kings' courts. But what went ye out for to see? A prophet? Yea, I say unto you, and much more than a prophet. This is he of whom it is written, Behold I send my messenger before thy face, to prepare the way before thee. For I say unto you that of those that are born of women, there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptist: but he that is least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. And all the people that heard him, and the publicans, justified God, being baptized of the baptism of John. But the Pharisees and lawyers rejected the counsel of God against themselves, being not baptized of him.” [Luke 7:24-30.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 25

Christ said to the unbelieving ones, “John came unto you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not; but the publicans and the harlots believed him; and ye when ye had seen it, repented not afterward that ye might believe him.” [Matthew 21:32.] This unbelief is not an impulse. You criticized John because of his self-denying life and strict, abstemious habits. You find fault with Me because I sit at the table with publicans and sinners. The Lord set His seal to the mission of John when publicans and harlots believed him. But you cherished unbelief. You did not repent. “I came not to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance.” [Mark 2:17.] You claim to be righteous. Why do you then object to My calling publicans and sinners to partake of the waters of life?14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 26

When Christ appeared in the garb of humanity, these souls who were not under the jurisdiction of priests and rulers heard His word, were converted, and believed and acknowledged Him. This work was foretold by the prophet Isaiah:14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 27

“Wherefore the Lord said, Forasmuch as this people draw near to me with their mouth, and with their lips do honor me, but have removed their hearts far from me, and their fear toward me is taught by the precept of men: therefore, behold, I will proceed to do a marvelous work among this people, even a marvelous work and a wonder: for the wisdom of their wise men shall perish, and the understanding of their prudent men shall be hid. Woe unto them that seek deep to hide their counsel from the Lord, and their works are in the dark, and they say, Who seeth us? and who knoweth us?14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 28

“Surely your turning of things upside down shall be esteemed as the potter’s clay: for shall the work say of him that made it, He made me not? or shall the thing framed say of him that framed it, He had no understanding? Is it not yet a very little while, and Lebanon shall be turned into a fruitful field, and the fruitful field shall be esteemed as a forest? And in that day shall the deaf hear the words of the book, and the eyes of the blind shall see out of obscurity and out of darkness. The meek also shall increase their joy in the Lord, and the poor among men shall rejoice in the Holy One of Israel.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 29</sup>

“For the terrible one is brought to nought, and the scorner is consumed, and all that watch for iniquity are cut off: that make a man an offender for a word, and lay a snare for him, that reproveth in the gate, and turn aside the just for a thing of nought. Therefore thus saith the Lord that redeemed Abraham concerning the house of Jacob, Jacob shall not now be ashamed, neither shall his face now wax pale. But when he seeth his children, the work of mine hands, in the midst of him, they shall sanctify my name, and sanctify the holy One of Jacob, and shall fear the God of Israel. They also that erred in spirit shall come to understanding, and they that murmured shall learn doctrine.” [Isaiah 29:13-24.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 30</sup>

The priests and elders of Israel were not what they professed to be. They spent their lives in outward ceremonies, and considered these services too sacred to be mingled with any secular business. Therefore their life was supposed to be wholly a religious one. But they performed their ceremonies to be seen of men, to be considered pious and devoted by the world. While professing to obey, they refused to render to God the obedience to which he had called them. They made the requirements of the law very exacting when it was for their interests to do this; but when they were shown that strictest obedience was required of them they reasoned away the force of God’s precepts to favor themselves. They were not doers of the Word which they professed to teach to others, and Christ declared, “Ye teach for doctrine the commandments of men.” [Matthew 15:9.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 31</sup>

In vision the Lord revealed to His servant Isaiah the true condition of ancient Israel: “Hear O heavens, and give ear, O earth: for the Lord hath spoken: I have nourished and brought up children, and they have rebelled against me. The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib: but Israel doth not know, my people doth not consider. Ah, sinful nation; a people laden with iniquity, a seed of evildoers, children that are corrupters: they have forsaken the Lord: they have provoked the Holy One of Israel unto anger, they are gone away backward.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 32

“Why should ye be stricken any more? Ye will revolt more and more, the whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint. From the sole of the foot even unto the head there is no soundness in it: but wounds, and bruises and putrifying sores: they have not been closed, neither bound up, neither mollified with ointment. Your country is desolate, your city is burned with fire: your land, strangers devour it in your presence, and it is desolate, as overthrown by strangers. And the daughter of Zion is left as a cottage in a vineyard, as a lodge in a garden of cucumbers, as a besieged city.” [Isaiah 1:2-8.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 33

This chapter faithfully presents the spiritual condition of the once favored people of God. The reason for their chastisement is given. The Lord had called Judah and Jerusalem to hold universal dominion. To the seed of David He had given the scepter. But now the Lord presents them as a people whom He will utterly destroy for their iniquities:14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 34

“Hear the word of the Lord, ye rulers of Sodom; give ear unto the law of our God, ye people of Gomorrah. To what purpose is the multitude of your sacrifices unto me? saith the Lord: I am full of the burnt offerings of rams, and the fat of fed beasts: and I delight not in the blood of bullocks or of lambs, or of he goats. When ye come to appear before me, who hath required this at your hand, to tread my courts? Bring no more vain oblations: incense is an abomination unto me; the new moons and sabbaths, the calling of assemblies, I cannot away with: it is iniquity, even the solemn meeting.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 35

“Your new moons and your appointed feasts, my soul hateth: they are a trouble to me: I am weary to bear them. And when ye spread forth your hands, I will hide mine eyes from you: yea, when ye make many prayers, I will not hear: your hands are full of blood. Wash you, make you clean, put away the evil of your doings from before mine eyes: cease to do evil; learn to do well; seek judgment; relieve the oppressed; judge the fatherless, plead for the widow. Come now, and let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be like wool. If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land; but if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it.” [Verses 10-20.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 36

The condition of the men whom Christ drove out of the temple courts is here delineated. And these words show us in what light the Lord regards those who, while claiming to be righteous, transgress His holy law.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 37

But among this apostate nation there were some genuine conversions. By a wonderful revelation of God’s power, Paul was brought to Christ, and his case is set forth as one of genuine conversion. The priests and rulers had not the deep conviction of sin that Paul had. They would not admit that they needed conversion. Speaking of his experience, Paul said, “I was alive without the law once, but when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died. And the commandment, which was ordained to life, I found to be unto death. For sin, taking occasion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it, slew me. Wherefore the law is holy, and the commandment holy, and just, and good.” [Romans 7:9-12.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 38

This lesson is placed before us for our consideration. Every soul is amenable to the law of God. The knowledge of the law brings the repenting, believing soul to Christ, to learn of Him and wear His yoke. “Learn of me,” Christ says, “for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.” [Matthew 11:29, 30.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 39

Self-righteousness is not true righteousness, and those [who] cling to it, and refuse to give it up, will be left to take the consequences of holding to a deception. Those who claim to keep the commandments of God, but who are unsympathetic and cold, self-important and self-centered, have not the love of God in their hearts to flow forth to others. They say, "I go, sir," but they do not go. [Matthew 21:30.] The open sinner has far better prospects of gaining eternal life than have these pretentious ones.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 40

He who sees himself as a sinner, with no cloak for his sin, who sees that he is corrupting soul, body, and spirit before God, becomes alarmed lest he be eternally separated from the kingdom of heaven. He realizes his diseased condition, and finds healing in Christ who has promised, "Him that cometh to me, I will in no wise cast out." [John 6:37.] And God puts upon the repenting one the robe of Christ's righteousness, and the angels of heaven rejoice over the one soul saved.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 41

No man can accept the gospel of Christ who refuses the admonitions of the Word of God, and follows a way of his own choosing. "Woe to the rebellious children, saith the Lord, that take counsel, but not of me; and that cover with a covering, but not of my spirit, that they may add sin to sin. That walk to go down into Egypt, and that have not asked at my mouth, to strengthen themselves in the strength of Pharaoh, and to trust in the shadow of Egypt! Therefore shall the strength of Pharaoh be your shame, and the trust in the shadow of Egypt your confusion." [Isaiah 30:1-3.] Will there be among the people of God in these last days those who pursue a course of action similar to that of rebellious Israel? Will those who have had privileges and opportunities, and before whom the Lord has worked in a marked manner, oppose righteousness? Shall there be among us those described by the prophet as "rebellious people, lying children, children that will not hear the law of the Lord, which say to the seers, See not; and to the prophets, Prophecy unto us right things, speak unto us smooth things, prophecy deceits. Get you out of the way, turn aside out of the path, cause the Holy One of Israel to cease from before us"? [Verses 9-11.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 42

The Lord calls upon His people in 1899 to be converted. Great light has come to them, but the principles of the Word of God have not been carried into the practical life. If pride and selfishness and covetousness are not eradicated from the heart, they will poison every lifespring of the soul, and true liberality and Christian courtesy will not be exercised. The attributes of the unrenewed heart are cherished. The Lord cannot purify the soul until the entire being is surrendered to the working of the Holy Spirit.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 43

The Word of God is plainly expressed in His law. But only those who eat the flesh and drink the blood of the Son of God can understand that Word to the saving of their souls. "The flesh profiteth nothing," Christ said, "The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit, and they are life." [John 6:63.] No man can believe the Word of God, believing it to be inspired of God, without himself catching the inspiration of the Spirit that inspired the Word. A glory will flash before his eyes. He will learn the mysteries of heaven, and will unite in things unseen by mortal eyes. Perfect obedience to the Word will bring a sweetness, an assurance and confidence in God that cannot be described.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 44

It is right for us to love the Scriptures. We have for a teacher One who will mold and fashion our hearts and minds to understand the Word in its true light. If we will practice the truth at whatever self-denial and self-sacrifice to ourselves, we shall follow on to know the Lord, and we shall know that his goings forth are prepared as the morning. The Bible may be read in such a way as to glorify God. Not one word that has proceeded from the mouth of God will become null and void until prophesy becomes history, as in the case of the sacrificial offerings which prefigured Christ. Type met antitype in the death of the Son of God.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 45

In the cross of Calvary we may read the binding claims of the law of God. God could not change one iota of His law to meet man in his fallen condition, but He "so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.] Those who venture to disregard the claims of the law of God may read their condemnation in the cross of Calvary. The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul. That which distinguishes God's people from every other people is their obedience to the commandments of God.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 46

In our day we can see the great power of the adversary upon the human mind. Men professing godliness openly transgress the law of God. In every congregation there is a mixed multitude. Those who claim to be righteous, but who do not those things which God has commanded, are like the self-righteous Pharisees. They say, and do not. Like the Pharisees, they stand aloof from their fellow men. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 47

Christ gives us the test by which we prove our loyalty or our disloyalty. "If ye love me," he says, "keep my commandments. And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever. Even the spirit of truth; whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him; but ye know him, but he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you ... He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me shall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifest myself to him." [John 14:15-17, 21.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 48

"If a man love me, he will keep my words, and my Father will love him; and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me." [Verses 23, 24.] "If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love. These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you; and that your joy might be full. This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you." [John 15:10-12.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 49

Christ had educated the Israelites while He was their invisible leader in the wilderness. For forty years He had addressed them as His sons, and had commanded them to teach every requirement of the law both by precept and example. He taught them that their very prosperity and life depended on their obedience to all He had given in statutes and judgments. They were to be righteous in all their transactions one with another. It would make every difference to them whether they were obedient or disobedient, for God could not sustain them in transgression. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 50

The children of Israel made a solemn vow to God that they would be obedient. But they disregarded the Lord's requirements. Some remained loyal to God, but the majority disregarded the Word and its requirements, and chose for their educational text books the written commandments of the rabbis. Man made laws were in abundance to confuse the senses. They taught for doctrine the commandments of men, setting the law of God at defiance. This men are doing today. In their observance of the first day of the week, they are exalting human enactments, and refuse to hear a plain, "Thus saith the Lord." Because of this transgression, the Lord was about to divorce Himself from the disobedient nation. He had spoken to them through the prophets, and through Christ, the great teacher, the light of the world. If they desired to do right, the way was plainly revealed to them. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 51

They had before them the example of Nadab and Abihu. The disobedience of these men cost them their lives. Through the use of wine their senses became confused, and they used the common fire in the place of the sacred. They were slain before the Lord. Moses looked with agony of soul upon their punishment. He said to Aaron, "This is that the Lord spake, saying, I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me, and before all the people will I be glorified." [Leviticus 10:3.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 52

God forbade any manifestation of grief for Nadab and Abihu, even on the part of their nearest relations; "lest ye die," he said, "and lest wrath come upon all the people. But let the whole house of Israel bewail the burning which the Lord hath kindled." [Verse 6.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 53

There is a lesson to learn from this by all who have anything to do with God's work. They are required to observe habits of strict temperance, to keep body, soul, and spirit under the protecting shield of God. Never tempt the Spirit of God. This sin has often led to the sin against the Holy Ghost, which has no forgiveness in this life or the life to come. Bear in mind that we shall reap that which we sow, whether it be good or whether it be evil. Those who sow to the flesh will of the flesh reap corruption; and we can none of us afford to do this. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 54

Let none flatter themselves that the sins of their youth can easily be given up by and by. This is not so. Every sin cherished weakens the character and strengthens the habit; and physical, mental, and moral depravity result. You may repent of the wrong you have done, and set your feet in right paths; but the mold of your mind and your familiarity with evil will make it difficult for you to distinguish between right and wrong. Through the wrong habits you have formed Satan will assail you again and again. You have so often been overcome by his specious reasoning, and he has his nets prepared to take you captive on those points where you have so repeatedly failed. In obedience to the requirement, "Go work in my vineyard," your safety lies. [Matthew 21:28.] Heartily, boldly answer, I go sir. Do not wait a moment to consult with your friends in sin. Press right in to Christ's ranks. Stand under Christ's banner. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 55

Christ did not condemn the first son for refusing the command. At the same time He did not commend him. The class who act the part of the son who said, "I will not," deserve no credit for holding the position they do. [Verse 30.] This open frankness is not to be commended as a virtue. This openness of character, sanctified by truth and holiness, will make them bold witnesses for Christ; but used as it is by the sinner, it is insulting and defiant, and approaches to blasphemy. Because a man is not a hypocrite he is nonetheless a sinner. When the appeals of the Holy Spirit come to the heart, our only safety lies in responding to them without delay. 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 56

When the call comes, "Son, go work today in my vineyard," do not refuse the invitation. [Verse 28.] Cease working on the enemy's side and take your position under the bloodstained banner of the Prince of life. He is the Way, the Truth, and the Life. While it is called today, if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts. It may be you will never hear the invitation again. A mere answer in the affirmative is not sufficient. We are to repent and forsake every sin and work the works of righteousness. Will the sinner acknowledge God's claims? Will he serve the Lord God, or will he continue in sin? 14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 57

By pledging his own life Christ has made Himself responsible for every man and woman on the earth. He stands in the presence of God, saying, Father, I take upon Myself the guilt of that soul. It means death to him if he is left to bear it. If he repents, he shall be forgiven. My blood shall cleanse him from all sin. I gave my life for the sins of the world.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 58

If the transgressor of God's law will see in Christ his atoning sacrifice, if he will believe in Him who can cleanse Him from all unrighteousness, Christ will not have died for him in vain. By giving Himself a sacrifice to sin, Christ has given to every sinner opportunity to repent and be converted and become a laborer with God.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 59

Parents should ever keep the present and future good of their children in view by requiring strict obedience of them. When you ask your child to do a certain thing, and he answers, "Yes I will do it," and then neglects to fulfill his word, you must not leave the matter thus. You must call your child to account for his neglect. If you pass it by without notice, you educate your child to habits of neglect and unfaithfulness. God has given to every child a stewardship. Children are to obey their parents. They are to help bear the burdens and responsibilities of the home; and when they neglect to do their appointed work, they should be called to account, and required to perform it. Your children are to be instructed and trained in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 60

We have before us the example of the Jewish nation, who jealously cherished their self-righteousness. They had not that faith which works by love and purifies the soul from all defilement. If the rejectors of life in Christ's day had, on this and previous occasions, opened their hearts to appeals of the Spirit of God, they would have sympathized with the purpose and work of Christ. They would have seen in Him the antitype of all their sacrificial offerings, and the Jewish nation would have been saved from the terrible doom pronounced upon them by the One who gave His life for them.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 61

Israel would have had a God to deliver them from the bondage of the Roman yoke—a God who would have done more for them than a loving father could do for his child. Christ wept over the obdurate city, saying, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto you, how often would have I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and you would not! Behold, your house is left unto you desolate." [Matthew 23:37, 38.]14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 62

The history of Israel as presented in this parable should be studied by all who would practice the teachings of Christ. The vineyard represents the church. The two sons are the two classes of men and women in the world. The Lord calls every member of His church to work in His vineyard. We are to understand our relation to Christ. Christ must abide in our hearts, that we may keep before us pure principles, high incentives to moral rectitude. Our work is not merely to promise, but to do.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 63

Honesty and integrity must bind us up with God to fulfill His word to the letter. Let those who hear the message God sends today beware, lest they follow the example of the self-exalted Jews. God does not propose to remove from our path everything that creates question or doubt in regard to the working of His servants. He gives ground for faith sufficient to convince the candid, sincere mind; but more evidence than this will never change the inward determination to resist light.14LtMs, Ms 127, 1899, par. 64

Christ's Entry Into Jerusalem

NP

September 7, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in CTr 253-255.

The time of Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem was the most beautiful season of the year. The Mount of Olives was carpeted with green, and the groves were beautiful with varied foliage. Very many had come to the feast from the regions round about Jerusalem with an earnest desire to see Jesus. The crowning miracle of the Saviour in raising Lazarus from the dead, had had a wonderful effect upon minds, and a large and enthusiastic multitude was drawn to the place where Jesus was staying. 14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 1

The afternoon was half spent when Jesus sent His disciples to the village of Bethphage, saying, "Go into the village over against you, and straightway ye shall find an ass tied, and a colt with her loose them, and bring them unto me. And if any man say ought unto you, ye shall say, The Lord hath need of them, and straightway he will send them." [Matthew 21:2, 3.]14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 2

This was the first time during His life of ministry that Christ had consented to ride, and the disciples interpreted this move to be an indication that He was about to assert His kingly power and authority, and take His position on David's throne. Joyfully they executed the commission. They found the colt as Jesus had said, "and they loose him. And certain of them that stood there [said unto them], What do ye, loosing the colt? And they said unto them even as Jesus had commanded, and they let them go. And they brought the colt to Jesus, and he sat upon him." [Mark 11:4-7.]14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 3

As Jesus takes His seat on the animal, the air becomes vocal with acclamations of praise and triumph. He is the object of the homage of all. He bears no outward sign of royalty. He wears no dress of state, nor is He followed by a train of men of arms. Instead He is surrounded by a company brought up to the highest pitch of excitement. They cannot restrain the joyous feelings of expectancy that animates their hearts. 14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 4

Many flatter themselves that the hour of Israel's emancipation is at hand. In imagination they see the Romans dispersed and driven from Jerusalem, and the nation once again free from the yoke of the oppressor. From lip to lip the question passes, Will He at this time restore the kingdom to Israel? Many in the throng recall the words of the prophet, "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion: shout, O daughter of Jerusalem: behold, thy king cometh unto thee; he is just and having salvation; lowly and riding on an ass, and upon a colt, the foal of an ass." [Zechariah 9:9.] Each strives to excel the other in responding to the prophetic past. The shout echoes from mountain and valley, "Hosanna to the Son of David!" "Hosanna in the highest! Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord!" [Matthew 21:9.]14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 5

No mourning or wailing is heard in that wonderful procession. No captives are to be seen in chains of humiliation. Those who have once been blind, whose eyes have felt the healing touch of the Son of God, are the first to lead the way in that wonderful procession. They press as close as possible to the side of Jesus, while one whom He has raised from the dead leads the animal on which He is seated. The once deaf and dumb, with ears opened and tongues unloosed, help to swell the glad hosannas. 14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 6

Cripples, [with] buoyant steps and grateful hearts, are now most active in breaking down the palm branches and strewing them in His path as their tribute of homage to the mighty healer. The leper, who has listened to the dread words of the priest, "Unclean," which shut him out from intercourse with his fellow men, is there. [Leviticus 13:3.] The curse of the loathsome disease no longer contaminate those within touch of him. He has felt the compassionate touch of the Saviour, and has been cleansed by His power. Now he lays his untainted garments in the path of the Saviour, exclaiming, "O give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good; for his mercy endureth forever." [Psalms 106:1.]14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 7

The widow and the orphan are there to tell of His wonderful works. The restored dead are there. Their tongues once palsied by the power of Satan, take up the song of rejoicing, "He hath brought the dead from their graves, I will open my lips in praise to him." The demoniac is there, not now to have the words wrenched from his lips by Satan's power, "Let us alone." [Mark 1:24.] Clothed, and in his right mind, he adds his testimony to that of others, "The Lord hath done great things for me, whereof I am glad." [Psalms 126:3.] Little children are inspired by the scene. There are present little ones who have been healed of suffering, and brought back from the dead by the word of the Lifegiver; and these with palm branches and flowers bestrew the path of the Redeemer.14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 8

On the crest of Olivet the procession pauses. Before them lies the city of Jerusalem, with the temple of pure white marble which is gilded with glory by the rays of the setting sun. It is a picture of unsurpassed loveliness, and well might the people apply to her the words of the prophet, "A crown of beauty in the hand of the Lord; and a royal diadem in the hand of thy God." [Isaiah 62:3.] At the entrancing sight, the throng join with renewed fervor in their shouts of praise. Branches are stripped from the palm trees and placed in the path of the Saviour, while hill and mountain gives back the glad shouts of the joyous and triumphant multitude. They suppose that Christ is now to take the throne of David and reign as a temporal prince. Their eyes turn to Him to see how He is impressed by the scene. But lo, the Son of man is in tears!14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 9

As Christ's eyes rest upon the temple, so soon to be desolated and its veil rent when the final act of the Jews would consummate His death, He wept over the disobedient city. The Israel of God, the son of His care, to whom He had given every advantage, would soon reject their King and their God. In a few short hours the world's Redeemer would be taken by wicked hands and crucified. Not the Roman nation, not the Gentiles, but the people for whom He had done so much, and of whom He hoped so much, were to be His murderers. Christ's prophetic eye took in the future of Jerusalem. The glory which God designed should rest upon the chosen nation would be removed.14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 10

The grace that bringeth salvation would no longer be heard in the city. This was the cause of the Saviour's intense sorrow. He wept not for Himself, He wept for those who had despised His love and rejected His mercy. The tender tears He shed over Jerusalem were the last tears of rejected love. In a voice full of anguish and lamentation and remorse for those who felt no remorse for themselves, He said, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together as a hen doth gather her chickens under her wings, and ye would not! Behold your house is left unto you desolate; and verily I say unto you, Ye shall not see me until the time come when ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." [Luke 13:34, 35.] 14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 11

The glad throng could not understand the cause of the Saviour's sorrow. They did not know [that] the iniquities of Israel were bringing her final calamities upon her. But a mysterious awe falls upon the procession, and calms in a degree its enthusiasm. 14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 12

"And when he was come to Jerusalem, all the city was moved, saying, Who is this? And the people said, It is Jesus the prophet of Nazareth of Galilee." [Matthew 21:10, 11.] A large number in that throng bear in their own bodies the evidence that divine power is among them, and each has His story to tell of the merciful works of Christ. The relation of those wonderful works increases the fervor of their feelings until it reaches an intensity that is indescribable. Disciples and people join in the songs of praise. 14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 13

Then came the priests and rulers to Him, requesting Him to silence these acclamations of praise. "Master, rebuke thy disciples," they say. Christ answered them, "If these should hold their peace, the stones would immediately cry out." [Luke 19:39, 40.] 14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 14

Christ had come to earth to reveal the principles of the kingdom of heaven. His character as Saviour and Lifegiver had been demonstrated only a short time before at the grave of Lazarus; but in their pride the Jews rejected the One who was mighty and having salvation. How different would have been Christ's attitude had the priests and rulers been true to the trust reposed in them. Had they done the work God designed they should do, the glory of the Lord would have been revealed to the idolatrous nations. To the Hebrew nation had been committed the oracles of God. They had been taught the commandments and statutes and judgments of God. God designed that the faith of this people should be communicated to all other peoples in the earth. 14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 15

“And Jesus went into the temple of God, and cast out all them that bought and sold in the temple, and overthrew the tables of the money changers, and seats of them that sold doves.” [Matthew 21:12.]14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 16

The temple courts were filled with cattle, sheep, and oxen, and doves. Above the noise of the lowing of cattle, the bleating of the sheep, and the cooing of the doves could be heard the voice of the traffickers, as they offered for sale at the highest rates the animals and birds to those who had come to the passover to offer sacrifice. Jesus said, “It is written, My house shall be called a house of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.” [Verse 13.]14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 17

This act on the part of Christ was a deeply significant one, more significant than any of the beholders realized.14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 18

When the priests and Pharisees had recovered from the terror which had taken possession of their guilty souls at the words of Christ, they returned to the temple. They were not converted or even humbled. They determined to challenge Christ as to his authority for expelling them from the temple courts. When they reached the temple they found that a wonderful work had been done during their absence. The sick and dying had been restored to health. They were astonished, but they would not yield their stubborn unbelief. They had already determined to put Christ to death, and Lazarus also, who had been raised from the dead. They knew that the people would still believe in Christ as long as there lived among them one who had been raised from the dead by His power.14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 19

The evidence Christ had given was calculated to convince every sincere mind; but it was not evidence which these people wanted. It was the rejection and condemnation of Christ by the people for which they were seeking. Every additional evidence given only increased their aversion to Christ. To have Christ in the world performing His wonderful works, to have Him live before the people His life of goodness and self-denial and self-sacrifice; to have Him exercise for others the tender compassion which had long since departed from their lives, was the very thing they did not want.14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 20

Christ was fulfilling the commission given Him of His Father, "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me," He said, "because the Lord hath anointed me to preach good tidings unto the meek; he hath sent me to bind up the broken hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives, and the opening of the prison for them that are bound, to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord, ... to comfort all that mourn; to appoint unto them that mourn in Zion, to give unto them beauty for ashes, the oil of joy for mourning, the garment of praise for the spirit of heaviness; that they might be called trees of righteousness, the planting of the Lord that he might be glorified." [Isaiah 61:1-3.]14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 21

Through Isaiah the Lord had declared, "I the Lord love judgment; I hate robbery for burnt offerings; and I will direct their work in truth, and I will make an everlasting covenant with them. And their seed shall be known among the Gentiles, and their offspring among the people: all that see them shall acknowledge them, that they are the seed which the Lord hath blessed. I will greatly rejoice in the Lord, my soul shall be joyful in my God; for he hath clothed me with the garments of salvation, he hath covered me with the robe of righteousness, as a bridegroom decketh himself with ornaments, and as a bride adorneth herself with her jewels. For as the earth bringeth forth her bud, and as the garden causeth the things that are sown in it to spring forth; so the Lord God will cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all the nations." [Verses 8-11.]14LtMs, Ms 128, 1899, par. 22

The Wicked Husbandmen

NP

September 6, 1899 [typed]

Previously unpublished.

“Hear another parable: There was a certain householder, which planted a vineyard and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country. And when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it. And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another. Again, he sent other servants more than the first: and they did unto them likewise. But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son. But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir, come, let us kill him: and the inheritance will be ours. And they caught him and cast him out of the vineyard and slew him.” [Matthew 21:33-39.]14LtMs, Ms 129, 1899, par. 1

Before the world was created Christ promised that if man, whom God should create, should fall from his high estate, He Himself would come to earth and bear the penalty of transgression.14LtMs, Ms 129, 1899, par. 2

Adam and Eve listened to the sophistry of Satan, and God was forced to expel them from the garden of Eden which He had given them to cultivate. Angels were placed toward the tree of life, that they might not partake of its fruit and thus immortalize transgression. God’s curse was pronounced on the earth.14LtMs, Ms 129, 1899, par. 3

Satan had no control of any part of the Lord’s vineyard until Adam transgressed. But when man fell, he began the work of sowing the seeds of evil in the earth. We come down to the time when the inhabitants of the world so far departed from God that the whole earth was corrupt before him. “God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. And it repented the Lord that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart. And the Lord said, I will destroy man whom I have created from the face of the earth, ... for it repenteth me that I have made them.” [Genesis 6:5-7.]14LtMs, Ms 129, 1899, par. 4

The living oracles of God had been committed to the Jewish nation, that they might give to the world the knowledge of God. They were to give evidence to the world of the superiority of that nation which worshipped the only true God and regarded His righteous law as supreme.14LtMs, Ms 129, 1899, par. 5

The church of God was ever His peculiar treasure. Its formation and foundation was of God. He had called them out from Egyptian servitude, from slavery the most rigorous, cruel, and unjust, to become His servants, free to serve Him, free to honor His Sabbath and obey Him without restriction.14LtMs, Ms 129, 1899, par. 6

In this parable Christ holds up to the Jews their own history. He presents their future as the result of their course of action. For thousands of years they had been forging the fetters which were binding them in a bondage which no human power could break. Read the sixteenth chapter of Second Kings. The Lord declared to this people, “The Lord, who brought you up out of the land of Egypt with great power and a stretched out arm him shall ye fear, and him shall ye worship, and to him shall ye sacrifice.14LtMs, Ms 129, 1899, par. 7

“And the statutes of the ordinances and the laws, and the commandment, which he wrote for you, ye shall observe to do for evermore; and ye shall not fear other gods. And the covenant that I have made with you, ye shall not forget: neither shall ye fear [other] gods. But the Lord your God, ye shall fear: and he shall deliver you out of the hand of your enemies. Howbeit they did not hearken, but they did after their former manner. So these nations feared the Lord, and served their graven images, both their children and their children’s children: as did their fathers, so do they unto this day.” [2 Kings 17:36-41.]14LtMs, Ms 129, 1899, par. 8

Christ came to the world to save the people over whom Satan was exercising his power. He came to work out the purposes which had been planned in the counsels of heaven. God's vineyard had been worked by the unrighteous scribes and Pharisees, but Christ came to set things in their right light. In the 59th, 60th, 61st, and 62nd chapters of Isaiah His work is defined. "For Zion's sake," He said, "will I not hold my peace, and for Jerusalem's sake I will not rest, until the righteousness thereof go forth as brightness, and the salvation thereof as a lamp that burneth." [Isaiah 62:1.] 14LtMs, Ms 129, 1899, par. 9

The Test of Obedience

In the eighth chapter of Deuteronomy is given a description of the blessings to be bestowed on the Hebrew nation. How often it is repeated that their prosperity in the land of Canaan would be continual if they kept the commandments of God. In plain, simple language the Lord Jesus gave His direction to Moses to give to the people. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 1

“All the commandments which I command thee this day shall ye observe to do, that ye may live, and multiply, and go in and possess the land which the Lord sware unto your fathers. And thou shalt remember all the ways which the Lord thy God led thee these forty years in the wilderness, to humble thee, and to prove thee, to know what was in thine heart, whether thou wouldst keep his commandments, or no. And he humbled thee, and suffered thee to hunger, and fed thee with manna, which thou knewest not, neither did thy fathers know, that he might make thee know that man doth not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord doth man live. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 2

“Thy raiment waxed not old upon thee, neither did thy foot swell these forty years. Thou shalt also consider in thine heart, that, as a man chasteneth his son, so the Lord thy God chasteneth thee. Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to fear him. For the Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of valleys and hills: a land of wheat and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates; and land of oil, olives, and honey; a land wherein thou canst eat bread without scarceness. Thou shalt not lack anything in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass.” [Verses 1-9.]14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 3

Then a warning is given. “When thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land which he has given thee. Beware that thou forget not the Lord thy God in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day.” [Verses 10, 11.] This is where a decided failure has ever been made. The thankfulness of God’s people has been in no way proportionate to the favors and blessings God has liberally bestowed. Is it not strange that those who claim to be Bible readers and to have a knowledge of God do the very things the Lord has commanded them not to do?14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 4

“Lest when thou hast eaten and art full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwelt therein, and when thy herds and thy flocks multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied; then thine heart be lifted up, and thou forget the Lord thy God, which brought thee out of the land of Egypt, from the house of bondage; who led thee through that great and terrible wilderness, wherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions and drought, where there was no water; who brought thee forth water out of the rock of flint; who fed thee in the wilderness with manna, which thy fathers knew not, that he might humble thee, and that he might prove thee, to do thee good at thy latter end; and thou say in thine heart, My power and the might of mine hand hath gotten me this wealth.” [Verses 12-17.]14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 5

The children of Israel were to remember that when the Lord favored them, they were not to become lifted up unto vanity, thinking that it was because of their own piety and righteousness that they were blessed. They were to realize that their blessings came because of the undeserved mercy and lovingkindness of God. “Thou shalt remember the Lord thy God, for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth, that he may establish his covenant, which he sware unto thy fathers, as it is this day. And it shall be, if thou do at all forget the Lord thy God, and walk after other gods, and serve them, and worship them, I testify against you this day that ye shall surely perish. As the nations which the Lord destroyeth before your face, so shall ye perish; because ye would not be obedient unto the voice of the Lord your God.” [Verses 18-20.]14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 6

The children of Israel did not heed this instruction. They did not keep the statutes and judgments of God’s law. Their prosperity was promised on condition of their obedience, but they became unthankful and selfish. They transgressed God’s holy law, making it impossible for him to fulfill his agreement with them. The Lord bore long with their impatience and self-exaltation because he would not suffer his name to be dishonored before the heathen. Is it not strange that with such incentives to obedience—the promises so great and full—the chosen people did not obey? Obedience was for their prosperity and happiness, but though they knew this, it did not keep them from disloyalty.14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 7

How many there are in our day who are regardless of God’s warnings and cautions against self-exaltation. They are self-satisfied, and they look upon the blessings God has given them as the result of their genius and skill. They flatter themselves that they possess talents of a superior order.14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 8

God’s great object in the working out of His providences is to try men, to give them opportunity to develop character. Thus He proves whether they are obedient or disobedient to His commands. A record is kept of all willing obedience, which flows from an appreciation of God’s love, goodness, and abundant liberality. Obedience is God’s test of character. Those who would be permitted to enter the city of God must honor and respect God by obeying His law. Those who disregard His commands in this life, notwithstanding their knowledge of the reward of obedience—immortal life in the presence of God—would disregard His commandments in heaven above.14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 9

The Lord’s Entrusted Gifts

The Christian is a husbandman, who is made a steward of his Lord’s goods. To him is given the management of the vineyard.

Great trust is reposed in him, and he is to treat the property in his hands with as much care as though it were his own; yea, he is to be more exact in his treatment of it, putting more thought, more energy, more devotedness into his work, because he has been trusted to stand in his Master's place. His interests are to be bound up with the interests of his Master. He is to lose all selfishness in working for the one who has honored Him by trusting Him. Did he use any portion of the goods entrusted to him for his own advantage, he would prove himself to be unworthy. His honor would be sacrificed at the shrine of mammon. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 10

Every Christian is entrusted with talents—the property of his Lord. God speaks to each human being, saying, I have a claim on you. Those who have been given advantages and privileges are to make a faithful return in fruit, for all they are handling is the Lord's. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 11

The apostle Paul writes, “Let a man so account of us, as of the ministers of Christ, and stewards of the mysteries of God. Moreover it is required in stewards that a man be found faithful.” [1 Corinthians 4:1, 2.] Let those to whom God has committed a work labor so as to please Him who has given them their trust. God's ministers are not to seek to stand at the head of political parties because certain ones wish to choose them for this position. Their work is a spiritual one. They are to seek to convert men and women to the truths of the Word of God. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 12

Lessons for Christians

The third chapter of First Corinthians contains instruction which all who claim to be following Jesus should study. Contentions in the body of believers are not after the order of God. They are the result of the manifestation of the attributes of the natural heart. To all who bring in disorder and disunion the words of Paul are applicable: “I brethren could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ. I have fed you with milk, and not with meat; for hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able.” [Verses 1, 2.] 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 13

Paul addresses a people whose advancement has not been proportionate to their privileges and opportunities. They ought to have been able to bear the hearing of the plain Word of God, but they were in the position that Christ's disciples were in when He said to them, "I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now." [John 16:12.] They ought to have been far advanced in spiritual knowledge, able to comprehend and practice the higher truths of the Word; but they were not sanctified, soul, body, and spirit. They had forgotten that they had been purged from their hereditary and cultivated tendencies to wrong, and that they must not cherish their carnal attributes. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 14

It was impossible for the apostle to reprove wrongdoing without some who claimed to believe the truth becoming offended. The inspired testimony could do these no good. Jealousy, evil surmising, and accusing closed the heart to the working of the Holy Spirit. They lost their spiritual discernment. Paul would gladly have dwelt upon higher and more difficult truths, which were rich in nourishment, but his instruction would have cut directly across their tendency to jealousy. The divine mysteries of godliness, calculated to enable them to grasp the truths necessary for that time, could not be spoken. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 15

The apostle must select lessons which, like milk, could be taken without irritating the digestive organs. Truths of the deepest interest could not be brought before them, because they would misapply and misappropriate them, presenting them to young converts, who needed only the plain truths of the Word. "The natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God; for they are foolishness unto him, neither can he know them; for they are spiritually discerned." [1 Corinthians 2:14.]14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 16

"Ye are yet carnal," Paul declared, "for whereas there is among you envying and strife and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men? For while one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos, are ye not carnal? Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man." [1 Corinthians 3:3-5.] Their contentions revealed that they had not the mind and spirit of Christ, that they were walking after the wisdom of their narrow, conceited minds. Their views and feelings were bound about by selfishness. They did not show the liberality, the generosity, the tenderness, which reveals an abiding Christ.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 17

Holiness to God through Christ is required of Christians. If there are wrongs in the church, they should receive immediate attention. Some may have to be sharply rebuked. This is not doing the erring one any wrong. The faithful physician of the soul cuts deep, that no pestilent matter may be left to burst forth again. After the reproof has been given, then comes repentance and confession, and God will freely pardon and heal. He always pardons when confession is made.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 18

The Lord would have the soul temple kept free from all defilement. “Let no man deceive himself. If any man among you seemeth to be wise”—in his own eyes—“let him become a fool, that he may be wise.” [Verse 18.] Let him who seeks the highest place learn to think far less of his worldly wisdom, and humble himself, that God may give him the wisdom which is bestowed only when true humility is shown. The world may call him a fool, but God calls him wise; for “the fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom.” [Psalms 111:10.] Obedience to God is of far higher value than the estimation of the world.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 19

God’s servants are engaged in doing work in one common vineyard. “All ye are brethren.” [Matthew 23:8.] Their object should not be to make a show, not to exalt self, but to convert souls, to do a work that will stand the assaults of the enemies of truth and righteousness. Let no man belittle another man’s work because it is not in exactly the same line as his own. The souls for whom we labor are not to be converted to the minister, but to Jesus Christ. Let man keep himself in the background; let Christ appear. Talk of Christ. Exalt Christ. Lift him up, the Man of Calvary.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 20

Paul declares, “I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase.” [1 Corinthians 3:6.] Paul preached the gospel first at Corinth. He organized the church there. Apollos came after, winning his way to the hearts of the people, and instructing them. But God alone gave the increase. The success of both came from Him. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 21

God's servants do not all possess the same gifts, but they are all His workmen. Each is to learn of the great Teacher, and then to communicate what he has learned. All do not do the same work, but under the sanctifying influence of the Holy Spirit they are all God's instrumentalities, through whom He works for the success of the work. God employs a diversity of gifts in His work of winning souls from Satan's army. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 22

"Now he that planteth and he that watereth are one; and every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labor." [Verse 8.] God, and not man, is the judge of man's work, and He will apportion to each his just reward. Every man will be rewarded according to his work. It is not given to any human being to judge between the different servants of God. The Lord alone is the judge and the rewarder of every good work. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 23

"Now he that planteth and he that watereth are one," engaged in the same work—the saving of souls. "We are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [Verse 9.] Here the church is compared to a cultivated field, in which the husbandmen are to labor, caring for the vines of the Lord's planting; and to a building, which is to grow into a holy temple for the Lord. Christ is the Master-worker. All are to work under His supervision, letting Him work for and through His workmen. He gives them tact and skill, and crowns their labor with success if they heed His instructions. None are to complain against God, who has appointed each man his work. He who murmurs and frets, and who wants to alter his fellow laborers to suit his own ideas, needs the divine touch before he is qualified to labor in any line. Unless he is changed, he will surely mar the work. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 24

Remember that we are laborers together with God. God is the all-powerful, effectual mover. His servants are His instruments. They are not to pull apart, everyone laboring in accordance with his own ideas. They are to labor together, fitting together in kindly, courteous, brotherly order, in love for one another. There is to be no unkind criticism, no pulling to pieces of another's work. Together they are to carry the work forward to completeness.14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 25

There are to be no separate parties in God's work. Every man to whom God has entrusted a message has his specific work, and this is to be done under the great Master-worker. Ye are laborers together with God. Form no separate parties. In their service and ministry God's workers are to be essentially one. Each person has an individuality of his own, which he is not to sink in any other man. Yet he is to work in perfect unity with his brethren, "in honor preferring one another." [Romans 12:10.] No one worker is to set himself up as a criterion, and speak disrespectfully of his fellow worker, treating him as an inferior. Under God each is to do his appointed work, respected, loved, and encouraged by his fellow workers.14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 26

"Make straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame be turned out of the way; but let it rather be healed. Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord: looking diligently lest any man fail of the grace of God; lest any root of bitterness springing up trouble you, and thereby many be defiled." [Hebrews 12:13-15.] "If there be therefore any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfill ye my joy, that ye be likeminded, having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind. Let nothing be done through strife or vain glory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves." [Philippians 2:1-3.] We are to study and obey every caution in the Word of God. The Lord desires all to work under His direction. His Word is an unerring counsellor.14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 27

"According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise master-builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon." Others afterward bore their message, and gathered in the souls of those who believed and were converted. "But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon." [1 Corinthians 3:10.] God's servants are to use the greatest care in regard to the doctrines they teach, the example they set, and the influence they exert on those associated with them. The great apostle appeals to the church and to God to witness to the truth and sincerity of his profession. "Ye are my witnesses, and God also,” He says, “how holily and justly and unblamably we behaved ourselves among you.” [1 Thessalonians 2:10.] 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 28

“For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ.” [1 Corinthians 3:11.] Isaiah declares, “Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation; he that believeth shall not make haste. Judgment also will I lay to the line, and righteousness to the plummet. And the hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place.” [Isaiah 28:16, 17.] Christ has been crucified for us. He is the propitiation for our sins. He is the atoning sacrifice, the true, immovable foundation. He has gathered the believers in church capacity, that they may labor unitedly, strengthening and building up one another in the faith. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 29

“Now if any man build upon this foundation, gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble, every man’s work shall be made manifest, for the day shall declare it; because it shall be revealed by fire, and the fire shall try every man’s work, of what sort it is.” [1 Corinthians 3:12, 13.] It is for our eternal interest to place the right material upon the right foundation. Christ is the great necessity for every one. It will be to the peril of our soul that we mingle selfishness with the offering laid on the foundation. The laborer for God is to do thorough work, that he may present to his fellow workers a pure, clean mind, free from all cheapness, which is represented as wood, hay, and stubble. The work of those who bring their offerings to God in humility and love, depending hour by hour on the grace of Christ to sanctify and cleanse from moral impurities, bears the impress of God, who estimates our work, not according to the outward appearance, but according to the heart-purity brought into it. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 30

In our character-building, each person is responsible for the way in which he builds. We are to lay on the foundation stone material that will do honor to God. There are many in our world who teach speculative theories, rather than the simple truths which Christ taught. Every one will be tested, to see whether his conversion is real. The pure doctrines that are taught in working faith, the gold, silver, and precious stones that are brought to the foundation, will elevate and ennoble the receiver. But the teaching which is mingled with human philosophy can never sanctify. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 31

The long-expected day of God will soon test every man's work. "The fire shall try every man's work of what sort it is." [Verse 13.] In the great day of God the worthless material will be consumed; but the gold of true, simple, humble faith will never lose its value. It can never be consumed; for it is imperishable. All selfishness, all false religion, will then appear as they are. One hour of transgression will be seen to be a great loss, while the fear of the Lord will be seen to be the beginning of wisdom. The pleasure of self-indulgence will perish as stubble, while the gold of steadfast principle, maintained at any cost, will endure forever. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 32

Let all remember that it makes every difference what material is used in the character building. As fire reveals the difference between gold and silver and precious stones, and wood, hay, and stubble, so the day of judgment will test characters, showing the difference between character formed after Christ's likeness, and character formed after the likeness of the selfish heart. May God help us to take heed how we build. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 33

There are many who are careless and self-indulgent, estimating their work as of more value than the work of others, and placing a money value on their services, while they know that men toiling as missionaries are compelled to support their families and help distressed, needy ones on half the means they receive. If like Job, we kept these cases before us, we should see many things needing our consideration. Job declares, "The things that I knew not, I searched out." [Job 29:16.] The Lord knows every case; He keeps a record in His books in the courts above; and in the day of judgment every man's work shall be made manifest. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 34

Men invest in perishable material, in buildings erected to bring themselves glory or profit, when that money is needed in God's work. Those who have divine enlightenment will bring their money freely to the foundation stone. Man has been bought with a price which cannot be estimated, and he should cooperate with God by practicing self-denial and self-sacrifice, by giving of his earthly possessions to make it possible for those in the darkness of error to see and practice the truth, giving themselves up to be laborers together with God. Each soul saved is worth more than a world, for he is saved unto eternal life. Those who invest their means in this work double their talents. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 35

If those who claim to believe the truth today could see the way in which the Lord estimates earthly treasure in comparison with the human soul, they would realize the work to be done. They would see fields ripe for the harvest. They would hear a voice saying, "Follow me. Go, work in my vineyard." [Matthew 21:28.] 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 36

Though you may not be called to the ministry, you may still do a most precious work by placing in the Lord's treasury means that will defray the expenses of those who labor in word and doctrine. Through the teacher your money has supplied with means with which to labor, you can do a work for time and for eternity. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 37

Entertaining Angels Unawares

There is much human devising in regard to the estimate to be placed on work that is done. Some say, "The work that I am doing is very necessary. In my position I will have to do much entertaining. I will put this on my account, and draw from the treasury accordingly." But the Lord has given the work of entertaining to all His people as a blessing. He says, "Be not forgetful to entertain strangers, for thereby some have entertained angels unawares." [Hebrews 13:2.] Yes, angels have entered the homes of human beings, and been entertained by them. Those who for Christ's sake entertain their brethren, doing their best to make their stay profitable to their visitors and themselves, are recorded in heaven as worthy of receiving blessings in full for their willingness to work for God in this way; and heaven settles the account. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 38

Christ supplies all that is necessary for this work; and it is not in God's order for a worker occupying a position of responsibility to be credited with a certain sum for entertaining his brethren. This is an invention borne of selfishness, and angels of God make account of these items in their reckoning.14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 39

There are those who toil for a livelihood, and who have a difficulty in making the wages received meet the demand. But they love Jesus in the person of His saints, and welcome believers and unbelievers, trying to make their visit profitable. The season of prayer leaves its impression on those who are being entertained, and that one visit may mean the saving of a soul from death. For this work the Lord makes a reckoning, saying, I will repay. Jesus keeps an account of all money expended in entertaining for His sake.14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 40

The material we bring to the foundation is a sample of our character, and it makes every difference to us what this material is. Christ is our only dependence, our only hope of salvation. He made a sacrifice so large, so infinite, that it cannot be excelled. It is the privilege of all to bring to the foundation stone thank offerings and praise offerings, kindly deeds and self-denying sacrifices. These can never perish. They are more enduring, more valuable, than the gold of Ophir.14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 41

Stinginess and selfishness are current coin, and are very abundant. God calls them covetousness, which is idolatry. But every man's work is to be made manifest. God keeps the ledger of heaven, and measures every action and the spirit which prompted it. "If any man's work abide, which he hath built thereon, he shall receive a reward. If any man's work be burned, he shall suffer loss. But he himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire." [1 Corinthians 3:14, 15.] He may have been, as he thought, a sincere believer of the truth, but notwithstanding this, he has placed worthless material on the foundation stone. Self has been the mainspring of action; and if he is saved at all, it is as though his house, with all his goods, were burned, and he only saved as by fire. But he will be saved only by repentance and conversion.14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 42

A man's work may be of that character that it is condemned by the Lord. Yet if for some reason that man has been deceived and repents, he will be saved; but his lifework is valueless. He traded unwisely on his Lord's goods. He did not increase his talents by doing the right kind of work. He felt himself able to take care of himself, supposing he was too wise to need instruction, until at last he was assured he was bankrupt—the labors of his life lost through miscalculation. The good work he might have brought to the foundation, material which nothing could consume, he did not bring. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 43

The Temple of God

“Know ye not,” the apostle continues, “that ye are the temple of the Holy Ghost, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are.” [Verses 16, 17.] Man is God's workmanship, His masterpiece, created for a high and holy purpose; and on every part of the human tabernacle God desires to write His law with His own Almighty finger. Every nerve and muscle, every mental and physical endowment, is to be kept pure. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 44

God designs that the body shall be as a temple for His Spirit. Solemn is the accountability resting upon every soul. Your individual influence is exercised for good or for evil. If you defile your body, you are not only doing harm to yourself, but to many others. Christians are under obligation to God to keep soul, body, and spirit free from all that will defile, for they have been bought with a price. He who defiles himself by false doctrine or by any unholy practice, is helping to defile the church, for his influence is corrupting. A careless example, criticism, faultfinding, are like evil leaven, which defiles the church of God. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 45

How many there are, blessed with reason and intelligence, talents which should be used to the glory of God, who wilfully degrade soul and body. Their life is one continual round of excitement. Cricket and football matches and horse racing are brought into prominent notice in the columns of the daily papers. The liquor curse, with its world of woe, is defiling the temple of God; but it brings a revenue to the public treasury; therefore it is legalized. By the use of liquor and tobacco men are debasing the life given them for high and holy purposes. Their practices are represented by wood, hay, and stubble. Their God-given powers are perverted, their senses degraded, to minister to the desires of the carnal mind. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 46

The drunkard sells his reason for a cup of poison. Satan takes control of his reason, affections, conscience. Such a man is destroying the temple of God. Tea drinking helps to do this same work. Yet how many there are who place these destroying agencies on their tables, thereby quenching the divine attributes. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 47

No man or woman has any right to form habits which lessen the healthful action of one organ of mind or body. He who perverts his powers is defiling the temple of the Holy Ghost. The Lord will not work a miracle to restore to soundness those who continue in the use of drugs which so degrade mind, soul, and body that sacred things are not appreciated. Those who give themselves up to the use of tobacco and liquor do not appreciate their intellect. They do not realize the value of the faculties God has given them, to be cultivate and improved. Thus men allow their powers to wither and decay. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 48

God desires all who believe in Him to feel the necessity of improvement. Every entrusted faculty is to be enlarged. Not one gift is to be laid aside. As God's husbandry and building, man is under His supervision in every sense of the work, and the better he becomes acquainted with his Maker, the more sacred will his life become in his estimation. He will not place tobacco in his mouth, knowing that it defiles God's temple. He will not drink wine or liquor, for like tobacco, it degrades the whole being. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 49

Christ gave His own life that the mind and heart might be lifted above the cheap, common, perishable things of this world to the life which measures with the life of God. But Satan has thrown his hellish shadow athwart the pathway of thousands of souls. He desires to darken the spiritual horizon of every soul by eclipsing the light shining from the throne of God. He is pleased when man uses his God-given powers in games and amusements, in selfish nothingness.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 50

When a man accepts Christ as a representative of the Father, his faith makes him a representative of Christ, and to him the words are spoken, "Ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [Verse 9.] "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling; for it is God that worketh in you, to will and to do of his good pleasure." [Philippians 2:12, 13.] Those engaged in the work of character-building should educate themselves to acknowledge the workmanship of God. Have faith that you can use every entrusted capability to God's glory. He has not given us talents to hide away in a napkin. We are to impart as we receive. The mind is to be brought into contact with the things that are unseen. No amount of profession can take the place of honesty and fidelity.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 51

Faith without works is dead, being alone. When God gives many talents to one person, it is not that he shall exalt himself, as though he has not received these talents from God. He who depends on his own merits, placing great confidence in his knowledge and judgment, has faith without works, which is not accepted by God. But the faith that works by love and purifies the soul is wholly acceptable to God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 52

God's test of heathen, who have not the light, and of those living where the knowledge of truth and light has been abundant, is altogether different. He accepts from those in heathen lands a phase of righteousness which does not satisfy Him when offered by those of Christian lands. He does not require much where much has not been bestowed.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 53

All man's powers are talents which God requires him to improve. "Ye are not your own; for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.] Not one of God's gifts is to be demerited, perverted, or discarded. With His own life Christ has bought man and given him a probation in which to work out his own salvation. God requires his children to live the purest, highest life. He has given his life that we may attain to this standard. He has made every provision necessary to enable man to live, not for his own animal satisfaction, like the beasts that perish, but for God in heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 54

God is not satisfied when human beings live merely an animal life. Christ gave His life that the moral image of God might be restored in humanity, that men and women might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. We are to use no power of our being for selfish gratification, for all our powers belong to Him, and are to be used to His glory. He who does nothing to glorify God might better never have been born. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 55

Those who live a mere animal life are not glorifying their Maker, for by precept and example they are teaching others to leave eternity out of their reckoning. The violation of a moral obligation, which man owes to himself, means robbery of God. Thus we work contrary to our highest interests, and utterly fail to represent God. The physical penalty of this course will appear in the form of sickness, ruined constitutions, and even death itself. But there is also a settlement to be made by and by with God. He keeps an account of every work, whether it is good or evil, and in the day of judgment every man will receive according to his work. Every transgression of the laws of physical life is a transgression of God's laws, and punishment must and will follow every such transgression. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 56

God has purchased every man by the gift of His Son. Our time, our strength, our intellect, our every capability, belongs to God. We are to remember that we are under His control. We are to obey the laws of His kingdom, making of ourselves all that it is possible for us to be. Earnestly we are to cultivate the highest powers of our being, remembering that we are God's property, God's building. We are required to improve every day. Even in this world of sin and sorrow, we may, by earnest, persevering effort, rise to the highest spiritual efficiency. "Ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] In spirit and word, in every phase of our character-building, we are to please God. This we may do; for Enoch pleased <God,> though living in a degenerate age. And there are Enochs in this our day. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 57

The human house, God's building, His temple, requires close, vigilant, watchful guardianship. With David we can exclaim, "I am fearfully and wonderfully made." [Psalm 139:14.] God's workmanship is to be preserved, that it may be revealed to the heavenly universe and to the apostate race, that men and women are temples of the living God. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 58

The perfection of character which God requires is the fitting up of the whole being as a temple for the indwelling of the Holy Spirit. The Lord requires the service of the entire human machinery. He desires men and women to be all that He has made it possible for them to be. It is not enough for certain parts of the machinery to be used. All parts must be brought into action, or the service is deficient. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 59

A lawyer came to Christ with the question, "Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Christ placed the burden of the answer upon the questioner by asking him, "What is written in the law? how readest thou?" Before the whole multitude the lawyer replied, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." And Christ said, "Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live." [Luke 10:25-28.] The whole being—the heart, the soul, the mind, and the strength—is to be used in God's service. What is there left that is not devoted to God? 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 60

The physical life is to be carefully educated, cultivated and developed, that through men and women the divine nature may be revealed in its fullness. God expects men to use the intellect He has given them. He expects them to use every reasoning power for Him. They are to give the conscience the place of supremacy that has been assigned it. The mental and physical powers, with the affections, are to be so cultivated that they can reach the highest efficiency. Thus Christ is represented to the world. By this painstaking effort man is qualified to co-operate with the great Master Worker in saving souls unto life eternal. This is why God entrusted us with endowments—that we might have life, eternal life, in the kingdom of God. 14LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 61

Is God pleased to see any of the organs and faculties He has given to man neglected, misused, or deprived of the health and efficiency it is possible for them to acquire through exercise? Then cultivate the gift of faith. Be brave, and overcome every practice which mars the soul temple. We are wholly dependent on God, and our faith is strengthened by still believing, though we cannot see God's purpose in His dealing with us, or the consequence of this dealing. Faith points forward and upward to things to come, laying hold of the only power that can make us complete in Him. "Let him take hold of my strength, that he may make peace with me," God declares, "and he shall make peace with me." [Isaiah 27:5.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 130, 1899, par. 62

The Danger of Extravagance in Illustrating Our Books

NP

September 12, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in 15MR 105-113. +<sup>NoteOne</sup> or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

In order to reach unbelievers, a manifestation of outward display is seen among our people; but this display will not accomplish the good that is represented. Our books are being filled with expensive pictures, and this makes them too costly to give away, and too costly for those persons to buy who need them most. The matter of illustrating is being carried to extremes. The extra money put into the cover of a book, or into pictures, will not convert the soul to the truths that are contained in the book. That so much space should be occupied with pictures is not in the order of God. There have been long delays in the publication of our works, waiting for illustrations—delays that could be ill-afforded, and which have kept from the people the truths which they should have had.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 1

The canvassers are not obtaining that healthful experience in their work which they should have. In their handling of the books they are being educated to present before the public the beautiful cover and many illustrations rather than the points of truth contained in the books. In doing this they are patterning after the world, and they fail to make God their dependence and trust. “What is the chaff to the wheat?” God asks. [Jeremiah 23:28.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 2

The artist may do his best to represent the things his eyes have never seen, but his representations are so far beneath the reality that I am pained as I behold them. Neither God nor heaven nor Christ, who is the image of the Father, can be truly represented by the art of man. If the Lord had thought it advisable to represent

Christ in this way, His person would have been described in the writings of the apostle. In the words of the disciple John, Christ is presented before us:14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 3

“In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God and the Word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made. In him was life, and the life was the light of men. And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not. ... That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world. He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not. He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believed on his name: which were born, not of blood, not of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God. And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us ... full of grace and truth ... And of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace.” [John 1:1-5, 9-14, 16.]14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 4

There were times when Christ spoke with the authority of true greatness. “He that hath ears to hear,” He said, “let him hear.” [Matthew 11:15.] He called for submissive attention to His words, for although He was in human form, He bore His commission from the Excellent Glory. “The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, ... full of grace and truth.” [John 1:14.] God summons the world to listen while He speaks, and to receive every word He utters as law and life.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 5

Satan is working with masterly power to corrupt the experience of human beings, so that the influence of the truth will not appear in their lives and become a savor of life unto life to all who believe. Those who are purified and sanctified will have that faith that works by love and purifies the soul. The principles of Christ’s life are to be received into the soul by wearing His yoke, and learning of Him the lesson of obedience. “Learn of me,” says the great Teacher, “for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls.” [Matthew 11:29.] In following My example of meekness and lowliness, you will find rest. There will be no strife for the supremacy, no envy, no evil surmising. The soul will rest in the pure, holy love of God. The speech is pure, for it comes from lips that have been touched with the live coal from off the altar, thus [are we] prepared to deliver the message God shall give.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 6

Christ is to be all and in all to the believer. There must be none of self, and all of Christ, whose we are by creation and by redemption. The Holy Spirit takes the most attractive excellencies of the One who is altogether lovely, and presents them in such a way as to engage the attention and receive the best attention of the renewed heart. God designs that the Holy Spirit shall keep before the mind's eye scenes that will attract and absorb all there is of the new-born soul. We need not any external representations of the person of Christ. The imagination must take in the only begotten of the Father, "full of grace and truth" [John 1:14], the One altogether lovely, and the chiefest among ten thousand.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 7

I have been commissioned to say to you that the Holy Spirit will work your minds if you will let Him. You are in danger, my brethren and sisters. You are spending large sums of money for our books and papers, and in doing this you are on the wrong track. It is mere supposition that this abundance of illustrations will accomplish great good in the sale of the book. Your large investment of money for illustrations do not bear the credentials of heaven. God does not approve of them. Much has been said in favor of this elaborate work, but nevertheless, God is not pleased with it. The impression left upon human minds is not good. Even worldlings cannot understand why so much time and money and talent should be given to this class of work.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 8

Our books can be tastefully prepared, as all books should be; but our publishing houses are making a mistake in departing from the simplicity of the gospel. We are using the Lord's talent of means, and we must handle it wisely. The returns from this work of illustrating do not warrant such a large outlay of means. The income is not proportionate to the time and means spent in securing the cuts.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 9

Every item in connection with this extravagant outlay was not presented before me. We must no longer consume the Lord's capital in expensive book making. Whatever is presented in favor of this work, one objection remains which cannot be overcome—its influence upon the author, the publishing house, and the canvasser. The Lord has measured it all, and He is displeased with the showing.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 10

I have not presented before you all that has been opened before my mind, but I would warn our publishing houses to be careful in every move they make. God has greatly humbled the publishing institution at Battle Creek. It was not His pleasure to do this, but He has declared, "I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me." [Leviticus 10:3.] While the Lord is laying His stroke on our institutions by removing from them the favor of the people, a close investigation should be made of the cause of the chastisement. Let us study the light which the Lord has given for every line of work that has any relation to His service. Let us put away the principles that are not after the mind of God, but which have existed for many years.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 11

The Lord has not given up His people to their own way. In mercy He holds them back, although they have pursued a course contrary to His Word. They have partially seen the evil of this course, but they have closed their eyes, refusing to make thorough reform, to change their wrong ways and practices. Let them humble their hearts before God. Let them set things in order. Let them move every stumbling block out of the way, that sinners may not fall over them and their lack of Christlike love and tenderness. Let them remember that this is the only way in which they can recover their lost prosperity. It can never come in any other way.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 12

When God's people are born again, when they live the new life in Christ, with His love abiding in their hearts, their candlestick will stand securely in its place. But the principles they have followed in their connection with one another need revising. In their unity with one another and with God through Christ is their strength.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 13

Christ has specified the measure of love we are to show for one another. "A new commandment I give unto you," He declared, "That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another." By this practical love, seen by the world, "shall all men know that ye are my disciples." [John 13:34, 35.] When the softening, subduing influence of the Spirit of God rules the hearts of those who are connected with His service, they will honor Him by keeping the new commandment, new because Christ said, "As I have loved you, that ye also love one another."14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 14

The disciples never realized Christ's love for fallen man until they saw it expressed on the cross of Calvary, until He rose from the dead and proclaimed over the rent sepulcher of Joseph, "I am the resurrection and the life." [John 11:25.] Lessons have been given in regard to this love which are just as new to us, as far as practice is concerned, as they were to the disciples before the death and resurrection of our Lord. When these lessons are brought into the practical life, when God's people love one another as He requires them to do, there will be an entire change in the experience of the churches.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 15

I am entrusted with a message for every church: "Repent ye: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." [Matthew 3:2.] In every line of service all rivalry must be quenched. Heart must be bound to heart. Christian love must be manifested. Then allegiance will be given, as God requires, to Christ and to the brethren for Christ's sake. No mean, cheap actions will grieve the Spirit of God.14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 16

The light God has given me is that we are treading in the very footsteps of the world. In book making there is a striving for the supremacy. The blessing of the Lord cannot accompany the spirit which for years has been coming in. God says to every soul, "Take heed." The leaven of influence is a powerful thing. Whether good or evil, it gathers all to itself. If the leaven of selfishness, covetousness, and hardheartedness is allowed to enter, it will subdue all the properties of the body to corrupting force. There will be no bowels of mercy, no tender consideration, no fighting against objectionable traits of character, which so quickly develop into giants of evil. Unless this root of bitterness is cast out of the soul, it will continually spring up, and by it many will be defiled. I ask, What are our churches going to do about this matter?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 17

A large sum of money was spent in illustrating The Desire of Ages, but this work will not be repeated. If I had known before what I now know, I would never have consented to the Pacific Press expending so much money on illustrations for The Desire of Ages, or to the Echo Office expending so much on the little book, Christ Our Saviour. Our book making business must be simplified. Trust in God, rather than go down to Egypt to consult idolaters. God is not pleased with the way in which matters have been swayed. Expensive books are not to be brought out so freely as they have been. There are books which are not worthy of the consideration given them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 18

It is not the gilded leaves of a book, not the expensive covers, which testify to its value. It is the truth contained in it. This will make an impression on mind and heart. If the expensive covers, gilt edged leaves, and multitudinous illustrations are dispensed with, the canvassers may not enjoy it. But if they had never had such works to handle at first, the temptation to drop books of high value and take up books which have a better outside appearance, but which are not of so much importance, would not be so great.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 19

There is a large amount of literature to go to the world, and men reason that the more abundant the illustrations, the better and easier the sale of the book. But this reasoning is not always sound. Take The Desire of Ages, for example. If there had not been more than one third of the illustrations in it that there now are, the canvassers would have found in nine cases out of ten that it would have had just as ready a sale as it will have now.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 20

And suppose that there were but a quarter the number of illustrations. The canvassers would have to do more earnest service. They would have to make more painstaking effort to become acquainted with the subjects upon which the book treats. And the saving of the money invested in illustrations would enable the publishers to give better terms to canvassers, who would not then be tempted, in order to make a financial success, to handle books under a confederacy of bribes. But this evil will come in, as it has done already, more or less. 14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 21

Canvassers should be secured to handle the books, Great Controversy, Patriarchs and Prophets, Desire of Ages, Daniel and the Revelation, and other books of like character, who have a sense of the value of the matter these books contain and a realization of the work to be done to interest people in the truth. Special help, which is above all the supposed advantages of illustrations, will be given to such canvassers. The canvassers who are born again by the work of the Holy Spirit will be accompanied by angels, who will go before them to the dwellings of the people, preparing the way for them. 14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 22

Those selected as canvassers should be men and women who feel the burden of service, who do not work merely for wages, who seek to do the very work that needs to be done to enlighten the world. All our service is to be done to the glory of God, to give the light of truth to those who are in darkness. Canvassers need daily to be converted to God, that their words and deeds may be a savor of life unto life, that they may exert a saving influence upon those with whom they come in contact. 14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 23

Let all study the character which God accepts, as represented in the twenty-fifth chapter of Matthew. If this representation does not educate men and women, what can do the work which must be done for the soul? Mark the division made between those represented by the sheep and the goats, and mark the words which decide forever the destiny of the two classes. Listen, you who have ears to hear and intellect to comprehend. Listen to the words of the Master: 14LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 24

“When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory; and before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth the sheep from the goats: and he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left. Then shall the king say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: for I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink, I was a stranger, and ye took me in: naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 25

“Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungered, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink? When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? or when so we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee? And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 26

“Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels: for I was an hungered, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not. Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungered, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee? Then shall he answer them, saying, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me. And these shall go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal.” [Verses 31-46.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 131, 1899, par. 27

Wednesday, September 13, 1899. Last night was a night of great trial to me. I could not sleep until eleven o'clock. I felt oppressed. I felt that I had taken responsibilities which were urged upon me, which I could not resist, yet my heart was troubled. I felt that I had not left the burden upon the brethren present in the council meeting, but had kept it on my soul. Will any one take the position who will press my burdens heavier upon me. As I thought of what I had said, I feared that my words would be misinterpreted and misstated. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 1

In the night season I obtained sleep; then instruction was given to me in reference to the matter of making the medical missionary work all that God designs it shall be. The instruction given me was in this line: The office of chairman of the board is indeed an important position, but has no more power or dignity than the position of business manager. The business manager is to be a faithful steward of the financial interests. His position is not to be a haphazard one. He has a direct line of work. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 2

The question was asked whether the position of business manager was inferior to that of chairman. I said that it was. But explanation came to be in the night season that there was need of a better understanding in regard to these two important offices. Instruction was given me that the position of business manager is equal to that of president. And really, the prosperity of any institution is more dependent upon the faithful stewardship of the business manager than upon the president. Therefore, the business manager is not in any sense to be belittled. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 3

Had this matter been properly considered, so many of our institutions would not now be weighed down with accumulating debts. In this country there is a positive necessity for wise business managers, who will not be readily drawn into expending means without studying the effect of the expenditure upon the prosperity of the institution. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 4

There are things to be set in order. It is certainly a mistake for Brother Morse to be connected as he is with the sanitarium. It is not his work to manage, and never will be. He is not fitted to fill the place he holds in the sanitarium. He does not comprehend what is required. There are men who, because they have carried one line of work, are supposed to be able to fill any place they think they can fill, when they are not able to understand the situation or to be wise and competent stewards in the place. I am not called upon to specify the particulars. But there are places which require more activity, more personal work than others, places where the living responsibilities are not to be thrown upon some other person. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 5

For Brother Morse to suppose that his wife is fitted to bear the responsibilities of matron of the Nurses Home is entirely a mistake. The one who fills that position should be a woman of good health, a woman who is not self-centered. Sister Morse is not the proper one for the place. Her disposition, her make up, is not of such an order as to establish pleasant relations between herself and the nurses. There are many persons who, even if they did their best, would not be fitted for such a place. Their mold of character does not enable them to be wise in supervision. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 6

In so important a place as matron, Sister Morse could not give the right mold to the work. Brother Morse cannot adapt himself to the situation. He should have had wisdom to see that his wife is not qualified to act as matron. She does not possess, as a fixed rule, an accommodating, unselfish disposition. The one who acts as matron over those who are being educated in the sanitarium should be an affectionate, kindly, sunny-tempered woman. She must be a woman who can mold minds, not by being authoritative, but by being kind and thoughtful, and yet as firm as a rock to principle. She must forget herself in her interest for others. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 7

The matron of any institution, who must guide and direct and advise others, must be of an entirely different mold from Sister Morse. Sister Morse has not good health, and her disposition has been strained because she has been placed in positions she was not qualified to fill. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 8

In our Sanitarium we must seek to uplift a high standard. Self must be hid in Christ. The banner of truth must ever be raised. Truth, goodness, and usefulness work for the upbuilding of the sanitarium. In their principles, purposes, and deeds, the workers are to seek to excel in all things high and good. They must educate themselves to be kind and courteous. Let the credentials of heaven appear as the characteristics of the sanitarium. Cheerfulness must circulate through the entire institution, making things pleasant for all. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 9

Those being educated should be taught to cultivate an unselfish interest in the welfare of others. Thus the seeds of kindness are sown. Their affectionate disposition will cause all with whom they associate to have a spirit of love, tenderness, and thoughtfulness for others. Those who wish to win the affections and good will of others must themselves manifest friendship and good will. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 10

Those who wish to be accommodated and assisted must show themselves ready to assist and to manifest self-forgetfulness. The simplicity of heart religion must be seen in those who perform the services required of a matron. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 11

I am not enlightened as to the position Brother Morse should occupy, but he cannot work in the place he supposes he is fitted to fill, without loss to the institution. And never should a young girl or boy be made accountant in such an institution. Even at its earliest stage, when the work is small, the one bearing the responsibilities must be wholly efficient. The manager himself must see that the very best methods to save expense are followed. The outlays made for purchases must be watched. The provisions must be bought in quantity, not in driblets. This work cannot be trusted to Sister

Tuxford, who has not been educated to handle money economically and savingly. There is need of looking carefully after the supplies bought for the institution. The food placed on the table must be wholesome, but not rich. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 12

While Brother Morse spends carefully the money earned by his own [labor], he is not so wise and judicious in purchasing for the institution. But it is sufficient to say that he is not the man for the position he now occupies. Our brethren must look carefully after the outgoes, realizing the knowledge of how to use money is a valuable talent. Dr. Caro is not experienced in the economical use of means. He has ideas which are not exactly true in thinking that the work must have an appearance of popularity. 14LtMs, Ms 132, 1899, par. 13

The Importance of the Law of God

NP

September 20, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in 21MR 408-411. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Before the children of Israel were given into the charge of Joshua, the Lord directed Moses to rehearse to them the incidents of their journeyings since leaving Egypt. Their wandering tent-life was about to cease. They were to take possession of Canaan, after the Lord had manifested His power in their behalf by opening a passage for them through the Red Sea, and levelling the walls of Jericho.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 1

Moses told the people how the Lord had declared to them His holy commandments. After repeating the words of the law, He said, "These words the Lord spake unto all your assembly in the mount out of the midst of the fire, of the cloud, and of the thick darkness, with a great voice; and he added no more. And he wrote them in two tables of stone, and delivered them unto me."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 2

"And it came to pass, when ye heard the voice out of the midst of the darkness, (for the mountain did burn with fire,) that ye came near unto me, even all the heads of your tribes, and your elders, and ye said, Behold the Lord our God hath showed us his glory, and his greatness, and we have heard his voice out of the midst of the fire; we have seen this day that God doth talk with man and he liveth. Now therefore why should we die; for this great fire will consume us; if we hear the voice of the Lord our God any more then we shall die. For who is there of all flesh that hath heard the voice of the living God speaking out of the midst of the fire, as we have, and lived?"<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 3

“Go thou near, and hear all that the Lord our God shall say, and speak thou unto us all that the Lord our God shall speak unto thee, and we will hear it, and do it. And the Lord heard the voice of your words, when ye spoke unto me; and the Lord said unto me, I have heard the voice of the words of this people, which they have spoken unto thee; they have well said all that they have spoken. O that there were such an heart in them, that they would fear me, and keep my commandments always, that it might be well with them and with their children forever! Go, say to them, Get you into your tents again.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 4

“But as for thee, stand thou here by me, and I will speak unto thee all the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which thou shalt teach them, which they shall do in the land which I give them to possess it. Ye shall observe to do therefore as the Lord your God hath commanded you; ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left. Ye shall walk in all the ways which the Lord your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess.” [Deuteronomy 5:22-33.]14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 5

God’s law comes sounding down along the line to our time. If the words of this law were hung up in prominent places, as are the pictures on our walls, would they not have a more powerful influence for good than do these pictures? The words of God’s law could be printed on cards and hung up on the walls of your houses. The attention of some will be arrested as their eyes fall upon the ten commandments. Thus the Lord will impress hearts and minds. The law of the Lord is holy, just, and good, and it is of the greatest importance that men and women read and understand this law, God’s pledged word to all who dwell upon the earth.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 6

The Lord has instructed me that the money expended in photographs might better be used in feeding the poor and clothing the naked. It might better be invested in buying pamphlets and books for those who cannot buy them for themselves. Can we not practice self-denial and self-sacrifice in regard to photographs? Would it not be pleasing to the Lord for us to make a covenant with Him by sacrifice, and cease to fill our what-nots and walls with multitudinous idols, [in] placing the means thus saved where it will help to enlighten souls?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 7

The salvation of men and women depend upon their obedience to every word of God. Then should not His commandments be made prominent? He declares, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me. Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image, or any likeness of anything that is in heaven above, or that is in the earth beneath, or that is in the waters under the earth." [Exodus 20:3, 4.] Do we give these words the consideration they demand? Would it not be safe, wholly safe, for us to bind about our inclinations in regard to photographs, lest by our carelessness in regard to the Lord's instruction we educate our children to desire only the pictures which will be consumed in the fire of the last day? In view of the plain, decided utterances of the Lord, would it not be well for us to bind about our desires?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 8

We see a dearth of means in the Lord's treasury. Our people have grown to be a large number, but this number would have been very much larger if there had been more loyalty, more willingness to obey the words of the Lord. God's people should carefully avoid every species of idolatry. Take from your walls and shelves all that comes under the Lord's instruction regarding images, all that is robbing Him of the honor you should give Him. Invest the money the Lord has given you in that which will abound to His glory.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 9

The Lord said to Israel, "Ye shall observe to do therefore as the Lord your God hath commanded you; ye shall not turn aside to the right hand or to the left. Ye shall walk in all the ways which the Lord your God hath commanded you, that ye may live, and that it may be well with you, and that ye may prolong your days in the land which ye shall possess." [Deuteronomy 5:32, 33.] Are not these words spoken just as surely to us as to the children of Israel? Then let us take heed to the instruction given by Him who purchased the world with His own life.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 10

The sixth chapter of Deuteronomy contains instruction which it is important for all to follow. "These are the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which the Lord your God commanded to teach you, that ye might do them in the land whither ye go to possess it. ... Hear, therefore, O Israel, and observe to do it; that it may be well with thee, and that ye may increase mightily, as the Lord God of your fathers hath promised thee, in the land that floweth with milk and honey.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 11

“Hear O Israel, The Lord our God is one Lord; and thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. And these words which I command thee this day shall be in thine heart; and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thine house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thine hand, and they shall be as frontlets between thine eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the posts of thy house, and on thy gates.” [Verses 1, 3-9.]14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 12

Because the world is disloyal, because it refuses to walk in the way of life, shall those who claim to be the chosen of God become careless and regardless of His Word, turning to the right hand or to the left according to their own pleasure? There is need of a reformation in every church, in every family. We have no time to devote to pleasure-loving, no means to invest in buying the pictures of human faces.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 13

Invest your means in the cause of God. Guard carefully your example. It is of the greatest consequence to every soul to love and fear God, to obey His commands. We all need to become better acquainted with the laws of God’s kingdom, lest we lose our life insurance policy and fail to find entrance into the city of God.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 14

On many the Word of God has lost its impression because of the prevalence of the disregard of His law. As God’s chosen people we are to be in every sense what He desires us to be. We are to render strict obedience to the law spoken by Christ from Sinai. This law is God’s standard of character, and there can be no comparison between it and anything the human mind can frame. It is an unchangeable standard of absolute perfection, set up by the infinite

God. Unaided, the human mind cannot comprehend it. An expression of the character of God, it is as high as heaven and beyond measurement in its power to sanctify.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 15

Love the Fulfilling of the Law

We cannot by searching find out God. But He has revealed Himself in the character of Christ, who is the brightness of the Father glory, and the express image of His person. If we desire a knowledge of God, we must be Christlike. When Philip said to Christ, "Show us the Father, and it sufficeth us," the Saviour answered, "Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? He that hath seen me hath seen the Father, and now sayest thou then, Show us the Father?" [John 14:8, 9.]14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 16

He who does not seek each day to be more like Christ, cannot know the character of God. Living a pure life through faith in Christ as a personal Saviour brings the believer to a clearer, higher conception of God. No man whose character is not noble and Christlike can set forth God in a correct light. He may preach Christ, but he does not show his hearers that Christ is an abiding guest in his heart.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 17

"This do and thou shalt live," Christ said to the lawyer who had answered His question in the words, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." [Luke 10:27, 28.] Eternal life is the reward that will be given to all who obey the two great principles of God's law—love to God and love to man. The first four commandments define and enjoin love to God; the last six, love to our fellow men. Obedience to God's commands is the only evidence man can give that he possesses a genuine, saving knowledge of God. And supreme love for God is demonstrated by love for those for whom Christ has died.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 18

While enshrouded in the pillar of cloud, Christ gave direction regarding this love. Distinctly and clearly He laid down the principles of heaven as rules which His chosen people are to observe in their dealings one with another. These principles Christ lived out in His life of humanity. In His sermon on the mount He presented the motives and obligations which should govern the lives of His followers. “All ye are brethren,” He said. [Matthew 23:8.] “Treat the purchase of my blood as I have given you example.”14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 19

God has manifested the most wondrous love for fallen man. He “so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” [John 3:16.] Those who are partakers of Christ’s love through a reception of the truth will give evidence of this by making earnest, self-sacrificing efforts to give the message of God’s love to those who are in error.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 20

Thus they become laborers together with Christ. Love for God and for one another unites the soul to Christ by the golden links of love. The soul is bound up with Him in sanctified, elevated union. True sanctification unites believers to Christ and to one another in the bonds of tender sympathy. This union causes to flow continually into the heart rich currents of Christlike love, which flows forth again in love for one another.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 21

The qualities which it is essential for all the possess are those which marked the completeness of Christ’s character—His love, His patience, His unselfishness, and His goodness. These attributes are gained by doing kindly actions with a kindly heart. But Christ’s requirements are not met by His people today. A strange deception is upon the people of God. Selfishness prevents the union which should exist. True love for one another is rare in our churches. This lack of love reveals most certainly that the members do not love God as they suppose they do. They give evidence that they need to be sanctified.14LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 22

It is the greatest and most fatal deception to suppose that a man can have faith unto life eternal, without possessing Christlike love for his brethren. He who loves God and his neighbor is filled with light and love. God is in him and all around him. Christians love those around them as precious souls for whom Christ has died. There is no such thing as a loveless Christian, for “God is love,” and “hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 23

“But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected; hereby know we that we are in him. ... A new commandment I give unto you, which thing is true in him and in you, because the darkness is past, and the true light now shineth. He that saith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkness even until now. He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occasion of stumbling in him. But he that hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth, because that darkness hath blinded his eyes.” [1 John 4:8; 2:3-5, 8-11.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 24

Christ declared, “A new commandment I give unto you, that ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one for another.” [John 13:34, 35.] “This is my commandment, That ye love one another as I have loved you.” [John 15:12.] This is the fruit that is to be given back to God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 133, 1899, par. 25

The Unfaithful Husbandmen

NP

September 20, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 2BC 998-999; CTr 133.

The parable of the vineyard clearly sets forth the spiritual condition of the Jewish nation. "There was a certain householder," Christ said, "which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country: and when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it. And the husbandmen took his servants, and killed one, and beat another, and stoned another. Again he sent other servants more than the first: and they did unto them likewise. But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, they will reverence my son. But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir: come, let us kill him, and let us seize on the inheritance." [Matthew 21:33-38.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 1

Christ declared to the teachers in Israel, "Ye are both ignorant of the Scriptures and of the power of God." "Ye teach for doctrine the commandments of men." [Matthew 22:29; 15:9.] The guilt of these rulers was not in the sight of Christ like the guilt of the ordinary sinner. These men stood under the most solemn obligations to God. They had pledged themselves to teach a "Thus saith the Lord," and to bring strict obedience into their practical lives. But instead of doing this, they were perverting the Scriptures. Their religion consisted in a round of ceremonies, and the object of their worship was lost sight of. They did not do the work connected with their sacred office as if they were handling the property given them in trust by God. Their selfishness and covetousness and greed caused them to be despised by all the nations.14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 2

The promises of God had been given to Israel rich and full and free on condition of their obedience to His requirements. When the Jews entered the land of Canaan their responsibilities were enlarged. They digged and planted. They built the tower, the temple of God. And they were hedged about by the laws of God's kingdom. They were to be in the world, but not of the world. They were taught to abhor all phases of idolatry, and were forbidden to intermarry with other nations.14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 3

The kingdom of God was to be established in the earth, and it was for this reason that the children of Israel were brought up from Egypt and placed in possession of the vineyard. In the parable Christ spoke to the priests and teachers who had been so greatly favored. As a chosen generation, a royal nation, they were to show forth the praises of Him who had called them out of darkness into His marvelous light. Not only the priests and rulers, but the whole nation were accountable for the talents with which God had blessed them from the time of their deliverance from Egyptian bondage.14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 4

In the early history of the Hebrew nation, Christ was more decidedly with them, instructing them and preparing their way at every point of difficulty, than at any subsequent period in their national career. Every spiritual advantage had been given to this people. They had a knowledge of the Scripture, and God designed that they should be exalted before every other nation on the earth. If they were obedient, God promised that they should become all that He had proposed they should be. Their worship of the true God, the principles they revealed in their lives, were to be the means of restoring the moral image of God in man.14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 5

The children of Israel were to occupy all the territory God had specified, dispossessing those nations that were confirmed in idolatry. And as their numbers increased, they were to enlarge their borders and occupy still more of the land in the possession of those who were transgressing God's law. Their obedience to the righteous law of God would make them marvels of prosperity before the nations of the world until Christ's kingdom should extend over all the earth. The God who could give them skill and wisdom in all cunning work would be their teacher to ennoble and elevate them through obedience to His laws. The glory of God, His majesty and power was to be seen in all their prosperity. Thus God set them off, His vineyard, to come to the perfection of righteousness. If obedient, they would be preserved from the diseases which afflicted other nations, and be blessed with vigor of intellect. 14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 6

They were to produce fruits altogether different from those of the other nations around them. The habitations of the idolaters were constantly increasing. Degradation was to be seen on every hand. Suffering was multiplying in the earth, and violence and oppression was exercised by man on his fellow man. This was the fruit borne of the corrupt tree, and God designed that the elevating principles of heaven should be revealed in works of righteousness by His chosen people. And He promised to cooperate with His chosen instruments in demonstrating that the commandment-keeping people of God were in every way superior to those people who had not the knowledge of the true God. But the children of Israel became disloyal to the commandments of God. They appropriated all their God-given advantages for their glorification. Counsels, reproofs and warnings were rejected, and instead of yielding good fruit, they became like that class of soil which absorbs everything and yields nothing in return. 14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 7

All the benefits sent them to use in blessing others they used for self-aggrandizement, to follow out, as did the inhabitants of the antediluvian world, every evil imagination. The world was not improved by the instruction they had received. They perverted the purposes of God, and sullied the purity of their religion. They made sacred and holy things appear a farce, saying, The temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord are we. 14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 8

All the advantages that God had given, these husbandmen intercepted, that they might not flow back to God in rich, multiplied productions, to make His name a praise in the earth. They forgot that they had been entrusted with the Lord's vineyard. A desire for glory and power and riches brought them to the place where no message of warning or instruction would cause them to yield to God. They refused obedience, and as a result, their principles were perverted.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 9

Peculiar blessings had been given to the children of Israel that the principles of heaven might appear to men. The Lord promised Moses that an angel should go before them to lead them in the way. That angel was Christ. He it was who spoke to Moses face to face, as a man speaketh with his friend. The light of heaven shone upon Israel in their invisible Leader, who communicated to them His statutes and His laws, which were never to be left to the caprice of the people for amendment of the slightest jot or tittle. The laws of God's kingdom were as unchanging as His throne.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 10

Other nations had not these privileges, these wonderful revealings of God, for they had corrupted their ways so that they could not discern God. But these privileges brought with them corresponding responsibilities. The more the children of Israel received, the more they must return to the Lord. He called for the improvement of every lent talent. The vineyard, the world, must be worked, and they were to be constantly learning better ways and means of glorifying God. In the purity of their characters, in the holiness and sanctification of their lives, they were to show that the law of the Lord is perfect, converting the whole man, heart, mind, strength, and purpose.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 11

In the land of Canaan, God's people were to have one general place of assembly, where three times each year they could all meet to worship God. As they would obey the divine laws, they would receive the divine blessing. God would not blot out the idolatrous nations. He would give them opportunity to become acquainted with Him through His church. The experience of His people during the forty years of their wilderness wandering was to be the study of these nations. God's laws and kingdom were to extend over all the territory of the earth, and His people must be known as the people of the living God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 12

Their service was an imposing one, and testified to the truth of a living God. Their sacrifices pointed to a coming Saviour, who would take the kingdoms under the whole heaven, and possess them forever and ever. Evidence had been given of His power to do this, for as their invisible Leader had He not subdued their enemies and made a way for His church in the wilderness? His people would never know defeat if they would abide under the shadow of the Almighty, for one mightier than angels would fight by their side in every battle. 14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 13

It was this unseen General of armies who revealed Himself to Joshua. He appeared to Joshua as a man [representing] the Lord God of the host of Israel, for had He appeared in His glory the armies of Israel would have been destroyed. After the death of Moses, the reins of government were placed in the hands of Joshua. As the servant of the Lord, he was given a special work to do. His office carried with it great honor and responsibility, and the instruction given to Moses was transferred to him in a marked manner. "Now therefore," the Lord said, "arise, go over this Jordan, thou, and all this people, unto the land which I do give to them, even to the children of Israel. Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said to Moses." [Joshua 1:2, 3.]14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 14

The Philistines, with their mysterious divinations and superstitious practices, were a continual snare to Israel, and the Lord said, "Thou shalt not learn to do after the abominations of those nations." [Deuteronomy 18:9.] Christ was to be their life, their light, their prosperity. God warned Israel that the Philistines would be their stumbling block. "You have no need," He said, "to consult diviners or soothsayers. I will make known my will through my appointed prophets." 14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 15

As Joshua viewed the city of Jericho, and viewed its fortifications, he lifted up his heart in prayer to God, for appearances seemed against him. "And lo there stood a man over against him, with a sword drawn in his hand." This was no vision, but Christ in person, His glory hidden by the garb of humanity. "And Joshua went unto him, and said unto him, Art thou for us, or for our adversaries? And he said, Nay, but as Captain of the host of the Lord am I now come. And Joshua fell on his face to the earth, and said unto him, What saith my Lord unto his servant? And the captain of the Lord's host said unto Joshua, loose thy shoes from off thy feet; for the place whereon thou standest is holy." [Joshua 5:13-15.]14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 16

Had the eyes of Joshua been opened he would have seen the heavenly host present to take down the walls of Jericho and place the city in the hands of God's people. Now with all confidence Joshua could follow the instruction, and leave his burden, so great and perplexing with the Lord! Will Israel ever forget this wonderful manifestation? Will they ever forget that heavenly instrumentalities were employed to place Jericho in their possession?14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 17

The Lord favored His chosen people with prosperity. The psalmist says, "Thou hast brought a vine out of Egypt: thou hast cast out the heathen and planted it. Thou preparedst room before it, and didst cause it to take deep root, and it filled the land. The hills were covered with the shadow of it, and the boughs thereof were like the goodly cedars. She sent out her boughs unto the sea, and her branches unto the river." [Psalms 80:8-11.] God declared this people to be a holy people unto Himself, and He promised that if they would keep their covenant with Him, he would supply them with every necessity for their happiness.14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 18

Very definite was the instruction which Christ gave when He made known to Moses the terms of their prosperity, and their freedom from disease. "The Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself," He said, "above all people that are upon the face of the earth. The Lord did not set his love upon you nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people: for ye were the fewest of all people: but because the Lord loved you, and because he would keep the oath which he swore unto your fathers, hath the Lord brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondmen, from Pharaoh, king of Egypt. Know therefore that the Lord thy God, he is God, the faithful God, which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love him and keep his commandments to a thousand generations." [Deuteronomy 7:6-9.]14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 19

This assurance comes to the people of God through their earthly pilgrimage to the heavenly Canaan, where an abundant inheritance is prepared for all who love God and keep His commandments. “Therefore,” God said, “thou shalt keep the commandments and the statutes and the judgments, which I command thee this day to do them. ... And he will love thee, and bless thee, and multiply thee. ... Thou shalt be blessed above all people: there shall not be male or female barren among you, or among your cattle. And the Lord will take away from thee all sickness, and will put none of the evil diseases of Egypt, which thou knowest, upon thee: but will lay them upon all them that hate thee.” [Verses 11, 14, 15.]14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 20

The eighth chapter of Deuteronomy records the rich blessings God gave to His people. God is speaking to His people of His dealings with them during their wandering in the wilderness: “Thou shalt remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee all these forty years in the wilderness, to humble thee, and to prove thee, to know what was in thine heart, whether thou wouldest keep his commandments or no. And he humbled thee, and suffered thee to hunger, and fed thee with manna, which thou knewest not, neither did thy fathers know: that he might make thee know that man doth not live by bread only, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord doth men live. Thy raiment waxed not old upon thee, neither did thy foot swell, these forty years.”14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 21

“Thou shalt also consider in thine heart, that, as a man chasteneth his son, so the Lord thy God chasteneth thee. Therefore thou shalt keep the commandments of the Lord thy God, to walk in his ways, and to fear him. For the Lord thy God bringeth thee into a good land, a land of brooks of water, of fountains and depths that spring out of the valleys, and hills, a land of wheat and barley, and vines, and fig trees, and pomegranates, a land of oil olive, and honey. A land wherein thou shalt eat bread without scarceness, thou shalt not lack anything in it; a land whose stones are iron, and out of whose hills thou mayest dig brass. When thou hast eaten and art full, then thou shalt bless the Lord thy God for the good land he hath given thee.” [Verses 2-10.]14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 22

“A word spoken in season, how good is it!” [Proverbs 15:23.] If this be true of the words coming from uninspired lips, with what interest should the words of infinite truth be regarded. What more could the congregation of Israel ask than this. If they would keep the commandments of God, and instruct their children diligently, God would give them the finest of the wheat. He would bring them honey out of the rock, and feed them from the tree of life. How wonderful are the words spoken to them by a gracious Saviour. They might rest in His love, and place their dependence in Him.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 23

All the pathway of Israel was cheered by the promises of God. These promises and commandments were to be set to music, and as they travelled through the wilderness they were to educate their children to sing them, lest they should lose them out of their lives. It was their life to obey the law of God. Disobedience would bring the displeasure of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 24

“Beware,” God said, “that thou forget not the Lord thy God, in not keeping his commandments, and his judgments, and his statutes, which I command thee this day; lest when thou hast eaten, and art full, and hast built goodly houses, and dwell therein, and thy flocks and thy herds multiply, and thy silver and thy gold is multiplied, and all that thou hast is multiplied; then thine heart be lifted up, and thou forget the Lord thy God, which brought thee forth out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage; who led thee through that great and terrible wilderness, wherein were fiery serpents, and scorpions and drought, where there was no water; who brought thee forth water out of the rock of flint: who fed thee in the wilderness with manna, which thy fathers knew not, that he might humble thee, and that he might prove thee, to do thee good at the latter end: and thou say in thine heart, my might, and the power of mine arm hath gotten me this wealth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 25

“But thou shalt remember the Lord thy God, for he it is that giveth thee power to get wealth, that he mayest observe his covenant which he sware unto thy fathers, as it is this day. And it shall be if thou do at all forget the Lord thy God, to walk after other gods, and serve them, and worship them, I testify against you this day that ye shall surely perish. As the nations which the Lord destroyeth before your face, so shall ye perish: because ye would not be obedient unto the voice of the Lord your God.” [Deuteronomy 8:11-20.] How could Israel forget this warning, and harden their hearts?14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 26

Here are pointed out the dangers which every child of God must shun—self-appropriation of the Lord’s goods, deception, dishonesty, and self-exaltation. Just as surely as the church forgets God and exalts self, God will withdraw His blessings, and punish them. This work of apostasy began with Satan, in his strife for the pre-eminence. He rejected the divine authority, and became a rebel to the government of God. The hidden principle of all sin is a rejection of the will of God, the refusal [to] acknowledge dependence upon Him. God’s commandments are for the protection of man, and those who render willing obedience to Him will never weary of His service. But when self is allowed to gain the supremacy, then man becomes rebellious and self-exalted. 14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 27

God alone is independent. Every being that He has created, in heaven and in earth is dependent upon Him. God designs that man shall subordinate his will to the divine will; the will of God is to be the will of every human being. When man realizes his dependence upon God, and subjects his will to the divine will, he will grow like Christ in character, who lived in entire conformity to the will of His Father. 14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 28

The words spoken from the pillar of cloud are spoken to every generation, to every church that believes in Christ as a personal Saviour. “The words that I speak unto you,” Christ says, “they are spirit, and they are life.” [John 6:63.]14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 29

How great was the sacrifice made by God to bring man back to his loyalty to heaven. All unrighteousness is sin. John writes, “Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law: for sin is the transgression of the law. And we know that he was manifested to take away our sins, in whom was no sin.” [1 John 3:4, 5.] When we contemplate the remedy God has provided for the sins of the human race, we shall discern what might have been done, but which has not been done because of unbelief. 14LtMs, Ms 134,

1899, par. 30

Who can view the covenant mercy and unbounded love of God and not inquire, "What can I do to show my Lord that I appreciate His love? Recompense Him, I cannot, but I can render to Him my humble, grateful, willing service. Thus I will show Him that I live in grateful dependence upon Him, thankful that I can use the advantages and opportunities He gives me, and render them back to Him again improved by the use. I will first give myself to God, and then use all my entrusted gifts in His service. I will bring returns to Him by winning souls to Christ. The broken and contrite heart He will not despise." 14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 31

"Herein is my Father glorified," Christ said, "that ye bear much fruit; so shall ye be my disciples." [John 15:8.] We are to seek to point souls to the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. Thus we render to God the fruits of His vineyard. 14LtMs, Ms 134, 1899, par. 32

Joshua's Last Words

NP

September 20, 1899 [typed]

For several years the children of Israel had been in possession of the land of Canaan. The wars of conquest ended, Joshua had withdrawn in the peaceful retirement of his home at Timnath-serah. "And it came to pass a long time after that the Lord had given rest unto Israel from all their enemies round about, that Joshua ... called for all Israel, and for their elders, and for their heads, and for their judges, and for their officers." [Joshua 23:1, 2.] The Lord had impressed His faithful servant to do as Moses had done before him—to recapitulate the history of the people, and call to mind the terms which the Lord had made with them when He gave them His vineyard.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 1

Some years had passed since the people had settled in their possessions, and already could be seen cropping out the same evils that had heretofore brought judgments upon Israel. As Joshua felt the infirmities of age stealing upon him, he was filled with anxiety for the future of his people. It was with more than a father's interest that he addressed them, as they gathered once more about him. "Ye have seen," he said, "all that the Lord your God hath done unto all the nations because of you; for the Lord your God is he that hath fought for you." [Verse 3.] Although the Canaanites had been subdued, they still possessed a considerable portion of the land promised to Israel, and Joshua exhorted his people not to settle down at ease, and forget the Lord's commands to utterly dispossess these idolatrous nations.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 2

The people in general were slow to complete the work of driving out the heathen. The tribes had dispersed to their possessions, the army had disbanded, and it was looked upon as a difficult and doubtful undertaking to renew the war. But Joshua declared, “The Lord your God, he shall expel them from before you, and drive them from out your sight; and ye shall possess their land, as the Lord your God hath promised unto you. Be ye therefore very courageous to keep and to do all that is written in the book of the law of Moses, that ye turn not aside to the right hand or to the left.” [Verses 5, 6.]14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 3

Joshua appealed to the people themselves as witnesses that, so far as they had complied with the conditions, God had faithfully fulfilled His promises to them. “Ye know in all your hearts, and in all your souls,” he said, “that not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof.” [Verse 14.] He declared to them that as the Lord had fulfilled His promises, so He would fulfill His threatenings. “It shall come to pass,” he said, “that as all good things are come upon you, which the Lord your God promised you; so shall the Lord bring upon you all evil things. ... When ye have transgressed the covenant of the Lord,” “then shall the anger of the Lord be kindled against you, and ye shall perish quickly from off the good land which he hath given unto you.” [Verses 15, 16.]14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 4

Satan deceives many with the plausible theory that God’s love for His people is so great that He will excuse sin in them; he represents that while the threatenings of God’s Word are to serve a certain purpose in His moral government, they are never to be literally fulfilled. But in His dealings with His creatures, God has maintained the principles of righteousness by revealing sin in its true character—by demonstrating that its sure result is misery and death. The unconditional pardon of sin never has been and never will be. Such pardon would show the abandonment of the principles of righteousness which are the very foundation of the government of God. It would fill the unfallen universe with consternation.14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 5

God has faithfully pointed out the results of sin, and if these warnings were not true, how could we be sure that His promises would be fulfilled? That so-called benevolence, which would set aside justice, is not benevolence, but weakness. God is the Life-giver. From the beginning, His laws were ordained to give life. But sin broke in upon the order that God had established, and discord followed. So long as sin exists, suffering and death are inevitable. It is only because the Redeemer has borne the curse of sin in our behalf that man can hope to escape, in his own person, its dire results. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 6

Once again, before his death, Joshua summoned the people before him. He knew that the infirmities of age were upon him, and that soon he must lay his responsibilities upon the representative men of the nation. Obedient to his summons, the tribes assembled at Shechem. No spot in the land possessed so many sacred associations. It carried their minds back to God's covenant with Abraham and Jacob, and recalled also their own solemn vows upon their entrance to Canaan. Here were the mountains Ebal and Gerizim, the silent witnesses of those vows which now in the presence of their dying leader, they had assembled to renew. On every side were evidences of what God had wrought for them; how he had given them a land for which they did not labor, and cities which they built not, vineyards and oliveyards which they planted not. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 7

By Joshua's direction the ark had been brought from Shiloh. The occasion was one of great solemnity, and this symbol of God's presence would deepen the impression he wished to make upon the people. Earnestly and solemnly Joshua gave his last charge to those who would soon be left without his counsel. He reviewed once more the history of Israel, recounting the wonderful works of God, that all might have a sense of His love and mercy, and might serve Him "in sincerity and in truth." [Joshua 24:14.] Briefly he mentioned the most important points of their history since leaving Egypt, reviving their faith by calling on them to remember that not one of God's promises had failed. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 8

After presenting the goodness of God toward Israel, Joshua called upon the people, in the name of Jehovah, to choose whom they would serve. The worship of idols was still to some extent secretly practiced, and Joshua endeavored now to bring them to a decision that would banish this sin from Israel. “If it seem evil unto you to serve Jehovah,” he said, “choose you this day whom ye will serve.” [Verse 15.] Joshua desired to lead them to serve God, not by compulsion, but willingly. Love to God is the very foundation of religion. To engage in His service merely from hope of reward or fear of punishment, would avail nothing. Open apostasy would not be more offensive to God than hypocrisy and mere formal worship. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 9

The aged leader urged the people to consider, in all its bearings, what he had set before them, and to decide if they really desired to live as did the degraded idolatrous nations around them. If it seemed evil to them to serve Jehovah, the Source of power, the Fountain of blessing, let them that day choose whom they would serve—“the gods which your fathers served,” from whom Abraham was called out, “or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell.” [Verse 15.] These last words were a keen rebuke to Israel. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 10

The gods of the Amorites had not been able to protect their worshippers. Because of their abominable and debasing sins, that wicked nation had been destroyed, and the good land which they once possessed had been given to God’s people. What folly for Israel to choose the deities for whose worship the Amorites had been destroyed! “As for me and my house,” said Joshua, “we will serve Jehovah.” [Verse 15.] The same holy zeal that inspired the leader’s heart was communicated to the people. His appeal called forth the unhesitating response, “God forbid that we should forsake Jehovah, to serve other gods.” [Verse 16.] 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 11

“Ye cannot serve the Lord,” Joshua said, “for he is a holy God; ... he will not forgive your transgressions nor your sins.” [Verse 19.] Before there could be any permanent reformation, the people must be led to feel their utter inability, in themselves, to render obedience to God. They had broken his law; it condemned them as transgressors, and it provided no way of escape. While they trusted in their own strength and righteousness, it was impossible for them to secure the pardon of their sins. They could not meet the claims of God’s perfect law, and it was in vain that they pledged themselves to serve God. It was only by faith in Christ that they could secure pardon of sin and receive strength to obey God's law. They must cease to rely upon their own righteousness, they must turn from idolatry, and trust wholly in the merits of the promised Saviour if they would be accepted by God. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 12

Fragments on the Vineyard

God had planned for the arrangement of His people in the land of Canaan, and had they followed His directions, they would not have crowded into Jerusalem as they did. They would have taken possession of other territory because of the assurance that God was the possessor of all lands. Had they moved out by faith, had they advanced, as God designed they should advance, they would have covered the territory He proposed they should cover. But they did not see the need of spreading themselves abroad; and they began to depart from God by failing to take possession of the vineyard as God designed they should. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 13

The Lord planted His people in Canaan a goodly vine. He spared neither pains nor liberality in their behalf. If they had taken possession of the vineyard in accordance with God's plans, their future history would have been very different from what it was. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 14

The Jewish people enjoyed privileges greater than those enjoyed by any other people. These blessings came to them as the children of God's covenant. In return they were to render to God the fruit of His vineyard. Thus they were to be representatives of God's kingdom. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 15

It was not the leaders and teachers alone who were to return to God His appointed revenue. When the Lord gave to the children of Israel the wonderful gift of the land of Canaan, it was to test their obedience, as Adam and Eve were tested in Eden. They were to cultivate Canaan for the Lord, and if they had complied with the conditions laid down, spiritual and temporal prosperity would have been theirs. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 16

When the Lord levelled the walls of Jericho without the assistance of human power, and gave the city to the Israelites, He desired to impress them that angels under the generalship of Christ were in the camp of Israel. Heaven's army stood ready to take the children of Israel into the land of Canaan. This they would have done long before had Israel been obedient. The people need not have travelled for forty years through the wilderness had they [not] received the evil report of the faithless spies and rebelled against God. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 17

*****

God, the great Householder, sent His messengers to receive the fruit of His vineyard. But those whom He designed should receive this fruit were treated as impostors. The husbandmen took the Lord's servants, "and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another." "Last of all he sent unto them his Son, saying, They will reverence my son." [Matthew 21:35, 37.] Christ came from heaven in the form of humanity to do His Father's work. He came to cultivate His vineyard in such a way as to produce the most fruit. 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 18

Jesus was the Sent of God. "Lo, I come," He said, "to do thy will, O God." [Hebrews 10:9.] But when He came, the husbandmen said, "This is the heir, come, let us kill him, and let us seize on the inheritance." [Matthew 21:38.] "I am come in my Father's name," He said to the scribes and Pharisees, "and ye receive me not; if another shall come in his own name, him ye will receive. How can ye believe, which receive honor one of another, and seek not the honor that cometh from God only? Do not think that I will accuse you to the Father; there is one that accuseth you, even Moses, in whom ye trust. For had ye believed Moses, ye would have believed me. But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words?" [John 5:43-47.] 14LtMs, Ms 135, 1899, par. 19

The True and the False

NP

September 20, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 5BC 1107, 1136; CTr 35. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Education means far more than many teachers, with all their supposed knowledge, understand. If the human family had appreciated the instruction given by the great Teacher to men in all ages and all times, from generation to generation, how different the race would be. Were we privileged to see what would have been had men and women been obedient to God's teaching, a new world would be presented before us, a world bearing the impress of heaven.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 1

Our heavenly Father has made every provision that this should be. Read the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth chapters of John. There we are shown what God desires to do for the human race. If the Holy Spirit could come upon us as it came upon the disciples on the day of Pentecost, eyes now blinded would be opened, for the scales would fall from them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 2

Ever since the fall, men have disobeyed God. The Lord gave Cain and Abel directions regarding the sacrifice they were to bring Him. Abel, a keeper of sheep, obeyed the Lord's command, and brought a lamb as his offering. This lamb, as it was slain, represented the Lamb of God, who was to be slain for the sins of the world. Cain brought as an offering the fruit of the ground, his own produce. He was not willing to be dependent on Abel for an offering. He would not go to him for a lamb. He thought his own works perfect, and these he presented to God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 3 of the firstfruits of his flock, just as God had directed. “But unto Cain and his offering he had not respect. And Cain was very wroth, and his countenance fell. And the Lord said unto Cain, Why art thou wroth? and why is thy countenance fallen? If thou doest well”—in accordance with My directions—“shalt thou not be accepted, and if thou doest not well”—disregarding My word—“sin lieth at the door.” [Genesis 4:4-7.] 14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 4

“And the Lord had respect unto Abel and his offering.” Abel offered

Cain talked with Abel about their sacrifices, and charged God with partiality. Abel interceded with his brother, repeating to him the very words of God’s command to them both regarding the offerings He required. Cain was provoked because his younger brother should presume to teach him. He allowed envy and jealousy to fill his heart. He hated his brother because he was preferred before him. 14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 5

As Cain pondered over the matter, he grew still more angry. He saw his mistake in offering only his own substance before the Lord, without the fitting sacrifice of a lamb, but he determined to vindicate himself and condemn Abel. Satan worked through him, inspiring him with a desire to slay his brother. 14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 6

“And it came to pass while they were in the field, that Cain rose up against Abel his brother, and slew him.” [Verse 8.] There was a Witness to this scene. A heavenly Watcher, He who established the system of sacrifices and offerings, saw the whole transaction. 14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 7

“And the Lord said unto Cain, Where is Abel thy brother? And he said, I know not. Am I my brother’s keeper? And he said, What hast thou done? the voice of thy brother’s blood crieth unto me from the ground. And now thou art cursed from the earth, which hath opened her mouth to receive thy brother’s blood from thy hand.” [Verses 9-11.] Because of Cain’s sin, the earth was cursed a second time. 14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 8

By this history the Lord would teach all men that His Word is to be implicitly obeyed. Cain and Abel represent two classes—the wicked and the righteous, those who follow their own way and those who conscientiously keep the way of the Lord to do justice and judgment. The enemy of God and man tempted both Cain and Abel, but while Abel refused the temptation, Cain accepted it, and acted toward God in a selfish, disobedient, unthankful manner.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 9

Abel did not try to force Cain to obey God's command. It was Cain, inspired by Satan and filled with wrath, who used force. Furious because he could not compel Abel to disobey God, and because God had accepted Abel's offering and refused his, which did not recognize the Saviour, Cain killed his brother.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 10

The two parties represented by Cain and Abel will exist till the close of this earth's history. The well-doer, the obedient man, does not war against the transgressor of God's holy law. But those who do not respect the law of God oppress and persecute their fellow men. They follow their leader, who is an accuser of God and of those who are made perfect through obedience.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 11

"This is the message that ye have heard from the beginning, that ye should love one another. Not as Cain, who was of that wicked one, and slew his brother. And wherefore slew he him? Because his own works were evil and his brother's righteous." [1 John 3:11, 12.] The spirit which leads men to accuse, condemn, imprison, and put to death their fellow men has waxed strong in our world. It is this spirit that always works in the children of disobedience. The transgressors of God's plain commands are inspired by the spirit of Satan to harm their fellow men, whose bodies they have been given no right to injure because of their religious faith.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 12

Those who pass sentence of pain and death upon their fellow men, because they happen to differ from them in religious belief, will have just such sentence passed upon them if they continue to disregard God's law, exalting man-made laws, and trying by their cruel inventions to compel men to blaspheme God as they themselves are doing. By their works they bear testimony that should Christ come the second time as He came the first time, they would reject Him and put Him to death.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 13

Men are today violating a plain "Thus saith the Lord." God has sanctified and blessed the seventh day, requiring all men to keep it sacred as His memorial of creation. But, inspired by the arch-deceiver, man has set up a rival rest day, which God regards as He did the offering of Cain. Like Cain, those who worship this idol, are enraged to think that God's chosen people will not reject the day specified in God's law as holy, to keep a rest day of man's creating.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 14

Men try to force their fellow men to worship this idol. Thus did Nebuchadnezzar, when he set up a golden image representing himself in the plains of Dura, and in his pride and self-exaltation, sought to compel all to bow down to it. As Cain set aside God's holy command, and offered a sacrifice of his own choice, so men have set aside God's holy Sabbath, and have exalted one of their own creation. And as Cain was filled with bitterness against Abel, so they are filled with bitterness against those who by keeping God's Sabbath cast reflections upon the worship of a day which bears no divine sanction or appointment.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 15

Thus it has been, and thus it will be till the end of time. Sin is Satan's attribute, and it is always leagued against good. The spirit of Cain is manifest in all false religions. Transgression always leads men to act as Satan's agents, to carry out his purposes against God and righteousness.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 16

In Nazareth Christ announced that His work was to restore and uplift, to bring peace and happiness. He came to this world to represent the Father, and He revealed His divine power by giving life to the dead, by restoring the sick and suffering to soundness and health. He was in the world as the tree of life.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 17

Satan's work is to condemn and destroy, to take away man's liberty and destroy his life.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 18

In Christ's words to the Pharisees and lawyers, and their conduct toward Him, are presented the distinguishing features of false religion. "And he said, Woe unto you also, ye lawyers; for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourselves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers. Woe unto you! for ye build the sepulchers of the prophets, and your fathers killed them. Truly ye bear witness that ye allow the deeds of your fathers; for they indeed killed them, and ye build their sepulchers.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 19

“Therefore also said the wisdom of God, I will send them prophets and apostles, and some of them they shall slay and persecute; that the blood of all the prophets, which was shed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation; from the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias, which perished between the altar and the temple; verily I say unto you, It shall be required of this generation. ... And as he said these things unto them, the scribes and Pharisees began to urge him vehemently, and to provoke him to speak of many things; laying wait for him, and seeking to catch something out of his mouth, that they might accuse him.” [Luke 11:46-51, 53, 54.]14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 20

On another occasion Jesus said to the Jews, “If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. They answered him, We be Abraham’s seed, and were never in bondage to any man; how sayest thou then, Ye shall be made free? Jesus answered them, Verily, verily, I say unto you, Whoso committeth sin is the servant of sin. And the servant abideth not in the house forever, but the son abideth ever. If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed. I know that ye are Abraham’s seed, but ye seek to kill me, because my word hath no place in you.” [John 8:31-37.]14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 21

What stern truth is here spoken. How many there are who boast that they are not in bondage to any one, when they are bound to the most cruel of all tyrants. They have placed themselves under Satan’s training, and they treat God’s people as he directs them to. How many there are who hear the Word of truth, but hate the message and the messenger, because the truth disturbs them in their deceptive practices!14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 22

“I speak that which I have seen with my Father,” Christ continued, “and ye do that which ye have seen with your father.” [Verse 38.] Two classes are plainly brought to view in these words—the children of light, who obey the truth, and the children of darkness, who reject the truth.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 23

In their bigotry and self-righteousness the Jewish teachers answered Jesus, "Abraham is our father." "If ye were Abraham's children," Christ said, "ye would do the works of Abraham. But now ye seek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham. Ye do the deeds of your father." [Verses 39-41.]14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 24

Urged on by the accusing spirit of him whose advocates they were, the Jews answered, "We be not born of fornication; we have one Father; even God." [Verse 41.] How many there are today who, like these Jews, call God their Father, and yet hate with intense hatred the Word of truth.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 25

Jesus saith unto them, "If God were your Father, ye would love me; for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myself, but he sent me. Why do ye not understand my speech? even because ye cannot hear my word. Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh it of himself; for he is a liar, and the father of it." "Then took they up stones to cast at him; but Jesus hid himself, and went out of the temple, going through the midst of them, and so passed by." [Verses 42-44, 59.]14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 26

The converting, transforming grace of God changes the spirit and attributes of him who accepts the truth. He is imbued with the Spirit of Christ. Satan sees this, and he is filled with hatred against Christ and His servant. But there is no enmity between Satan and the human agent who becomes so deluded that he wars against God and His holy law; for this is the very work in which Satan has been engaged since his fall.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 27

Satan is at war with Christ, the divine Restorer. His agents are leagued against the Saviour's work of elevating and ennobling man. The first death in our world was caused through the working out of Satan's principles, and ever since that time Christ and His followers and Satan and his followers have been two distinct parties. Satan is ever seeking to imbue men with his own spirit and attributes, and those whose hearts are not subdued by the grace of Christ will be guided by the same spirit that decoyed the angels from the heavenly courts. Those who break the law of Jehovah and try to compel their fellow-men to obey man-made laws, are in the service of Satan.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 28

God's people can expect nothing less than persecution, for their Master was persecuted, and He says to them, "The servant is not greater than his lord. If they have persecuted me, they will also persecute you; if they have kept my saying, they will keep yours also." "These things have I spoken unto you, that ye should not be offended. They shall put you out of the synagogues; yea, the time cometh, that whosoever killeth you will think that he doeth God service. And these things will they do unto you, because they have not known the Father, nor me." [John 15:20; 16:1-3.]14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 29

As Christ was being tried, Pilate placed him side by side with Barabbas, saying to the people, "Whom shall I release unto you?" [Matthew 27:17.] There they stood—Christ the Son of God, and Barabbas, the thief and murderer, bearing in his countenance the marks of Satan's attributes.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 30

The priests and rulers persuaded the people to choose Barabbas, and in answer to Pilate's question the hoarse cry was raised, "Release unto us Barabbas." [Luke 23:18.] "What shall I do then with Jesus which is called Christ?" Pilate asked, and again, like the bellowing of wild beasts the cry went forth, "Crucify him, crucify him." [Matthew 27:22; Luke 23:21.] And all heaven heard the cry.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 31

A messenger had been sent to Pilate by his wife, with the warning, "Have thou nothing to do with that just man; for I have suffered many things this day in a dream because of him." [Matthew 27:19.] But Pilate did not heed the heaven-sent message. Instead he used Christ's trial as an occasion of making friends with Herod. A corrupt confederacy was formed between the two rulers at this time.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 32

"And when Pilate saw that he could prevail nothing" against the multitude, he "released Barabbas unto them; and delivered Jesus, when he had scourged him, to be crucified." [Matthew 27:24; Mark

15:15.]14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 33

Be astonished, O heaven, and be everlastingly ashamed, O inhabitants of earth! With sorrow and indignation the angels heard the choice made by the people and the sentence passed upon Christ. But they could not interfere; for in the great controversy between good and evil, Satan must be given every opportunity to develop his true character, that the heavenly universe and the race for whom Christ was giving his life might see the righteousness of God's purposes. Those under the control of the enemy must be allowed to reveal the principles of his government.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 34

Those who see and obey the light of truth will be harassed and oppressed, for enmity will ever exist between Christ and Satan. If God had not interfered with Satan's evil working, men would have leagued against good in an alliance to dethrone God. Satan caused the fall of part of the heavenly angels by rebelling against God's law, and he is the instigator of every injustice done to God's children. He inspires his agents to do all they can to hurt Christ by bruising the bodies of His people. But God is present in every court of justice. He marks how men condemn His servants and silence their voices. He records every act of injustice, every act of oppression. As the blood of Abel cried to Him from the ground, so the prayers of His servants who are imprisoned in dungeons or linked with the vile in chain gangs, rise to Him. The cruelty done to God's servants is recorded as done to Christ in the person of His saints, and the time is coming when God Himself will avenge their wrongs.14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 35

John writes, "I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues. For her sins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities. Reward her even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double according to her works; in the cup which she had filled, fill to her double." [Revelation 18:4-6.] "And I looked, and, lo, a Lamb stood on the mount Zion, and with him an hundred and forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads."14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 36

“And I heard a voice from heaven as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of a great thunder; and I heard the voice of harpers harping with their harps; and they sung as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four beasts, and before the elders; and no man could learn that song but the hundred and forty and four thousand, which were redeemed from the earth. ... These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. These are they which were redeemed from among men, being the first fruits unto God and to the Lamb. And in their mouth was found no guile; for they are without fault before the throne of God.” [Revelation 14:1-5.] 14LtMs, Ms 136, 1899, par. 37

Notes of the Work

September 24, 1899

Previously unpublished.

September 22, 1899, we drove from "Sunnyside," to the mission at Wallsend, Newcastle, in three hours and a half, with a light carriage and Elder Haskell's horse Jasper. Some parts of the road were rough, and Jasper was inclined to be frightened at the logs and stumps. At times he jumped about a good deal, but Sara managed him well. 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 1

I had an appointment to speak at Hamilton on Sabbath and in the park at Wallsend on Sunday. On Sabbath a congregation of nearly one hundred assembled in the hall at Hamilton. I spoke on the subject of the young man who came to Christ, and falling on his knees before Him, asked, "What good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life." [Matthew 19:16.] I had freedom in speaking, and after I had finished, I remained for the testimony meeting which was held. Many good testimonies were borne. 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 2

We took dinner at the mission in Hamilton, and in the afternoon we drove to the place where Brother Hickox is laboring, about three miles off. We had a very profitable interview, and a precious season of prayer. Brother and Sister Hickox have two nice children, a girl of nine and an adopted boy of five. During our praying season, the little girl knelt by her father and the boy by his mother, and everyone, even the little boy, took part in prayer. Just before we left, the little girl came up to me, and, putting her arm about me, said, "I do like to have you here, Sister White, and I am sorry you cannot stay longer." Such words were as music in my ears, for I could not have had a higher compliment given me than to hear such an expression from a child. The light and joy of the Lord was expressed in the face of the nine year old girl. 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 3

We were much pleased with the location of the cottage in which Brother Hickox and his family are living. It is on a hill, overlooking a number of suburbs. The rent is only five shillings a week. 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 4

After sunset we returned to Wallsend. On Sunday the weather was wet, and we knew that it would not do for me to speak in the park. Few people, if any, would be there. The sky looked dark and lowering, and we could see no prospect of its clearing up, so we decided to turn our faces homeward. For a way the road was difficult to get over. It is being repaired. The workmen have cut a steep ascent, down ten feet in some places. The road will be much better when we go over it again. 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 5

When we reached Brother Pocock's place, we learned that Brother Hungerford died that morning at nine o'clock. He was at work till Wednesday, when he said that he had taken cold and would go home for a day or two. No one thought him dangerously ill. Brother Hellier gave him treatment, but he grew no better. Dr. Rand was sent for from Newcastle. He came down Sabbath morning. After examining Brother Hungerford, he said that it would be impossible to save his life; for the lower part of his lungs was double the usual size, and he was only breathing with the upper part. His vitality was very low, for he had burned it up with liquor-drinking; and he could not rally. 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 6

Although Brother Hungerford has relatives in Sydney who are highly esteemed, his life up to the time of his conversion to the truth, about a year ago, was that of a drunkard. His family was very, very poor. He and his wife accepted the truth and were baptized, and he then gave up liquor, tobacco, tea, and coffee, and improved in every respect. All the time that he was able to work, we gave him work. He was an excellent hand with horses, having worked for years at a livery stable. 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 7

Brother Hungerford had a large head and a broad, well-shaped forehead, and had he always let liquor alone, he might have advanced in knowledge. When he began to keep the Sabbath, he gave up everything like intemperance. He was thoroughly converted and said that he hardly knew himself, so different was he from what he used to be. He said that he would say to himself sometimes, "Hungerford, do you know yourself?" 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 8

He leaves a wife and six children in our care. We must get her an acre or two of land and build her a humble dwelling. Then she can almost sustain herself. Our people will all help her, so that she will be well cared for. Brother Halsey and his wife will take the eldest girl, who is fifteen years old, as their own. The eldest child, a boy of seventeen, has a situation in the sanitarium at Summer Hill, and earns five shillings a week. 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 9

The funeral was held on Sunday. Brother Hungerford was only a step-father to three of the children, but he has the name of having been a very kind father to them, and they showed deep sorrow as he was laid away in the grave. 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 10

We have had few deaths in this place. Our cemetery is large, but there are only four graves in it. The first one buried was Brother Tucker, who died of old age. The second was a man from Queensland, who came here to die. The third was Brother Pocock's little boy, a child of five years, who was poisoned before he came here, by eating some meat. The fourth is Brother Hungerford. This is the history of our burying ground. 14LtMs, Ms 137, 1899, par. 11

Parables of the Vineyard

NP

September 27, 1899 [typed]

Previously unpublished.

“What think ye? A certain man had two sons, and he came to the first, and said, Son, go work today in my vineyard. And he answered and said, I will not; but afterward he repented and went. And he came to the second, and said likewise. And he answered and said, I go sir; but went not.” [Matthew 21:28-30.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 1

Christ left His hearers no chance to doubt who He meant by the two sons. He asked them, “Whether of them twain did the will of his Father? They answered, The first.” Then he said, “Verily, verily, I say unto you, That the publicans and the harlots go into the kingdom of God before you. For John came unto you in the way of righteousness, and ye believed him not; but the publicans and the harlots believed him; and ye when ye had seen it, repented not afterward that ye might believe him.” [Verses 31, 32.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 2

The two sons of this parable represent two great moral divisions, two classes of people. One class is composed of open sinners, who at first are bold and determined in their rebellion. They openly refuse the yoke of restraint and obedience which the law of God imposes. Christ comes to them saying, Go work today in my vineyard. They answer, I will not. But afterward they repent, and obey the call. When the call was first made to the publicans and harlots, it was utterly refused. Conviction was to them a strange thing. But they were drawn to Christ, and through repentance and obedience they united with Him, entering His service.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 3

The other class is made up of those who profess great piety, who, when God calls to them, promise to obey. But they obey not. In the instruction given in the seventh chapter of Matthew these pretentious hypocrites are described. Christ declares, “Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name, and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you; depart from me, ye that work iniquity.” [Verses 21-23.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 4

“Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them; for this is the law and the prophets. Enter ye in at the strait gate; for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat. Because strait is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life and few there be that find it. Beware of false prophets, which come to you in sheep’s clothing, but inwardly they are ravening wolves.” [Verses 12-15.] Those who ought to have been working earnestly in Christ’s vineyard, rendering to [Him] the very choicest fruit, were manifesting a spirit which characterized them as ravening wolves.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 5

Of them God declares, “They build up Zion with blood, and Jerusalem with iniquity. The heads thereof judge for reward, and the priests thereof teach for hire.” [Micah 3:10, 11.] This condition of things was bringing in falsehood. “Yet will they lean upon the Lord, and say, Is not the Lord among us? none evil can come upon us.” [Verse 11.] The Jewish people were departing farther and farther away from the Word of the Lord. The principles of righteousness and equity were not permitted to bear sway. “Therefore shall Zion for your sake be plowed as a field,” God declared, “and Jerusalem shall become heaps, and the mountains of the house as the high places of the forest.” [Verse 12.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 6

In these words is portrayed the destruction which was to come upon Jerusalem because the Jewish people, in spite of their profession, did not bear good fruit. They were workers of iniquity, and persisted in continuing in their evil course. God sent His only begotten Son in human flesh to this earth, to win them back, but they would not hear His voice.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 7

The Jewish nation was dependent on God for all the blessings and favors they enjoyed. Light and knowledge from heaven was given them. To them had been committed the oracles of God. For them the Lord had wrought marvelously. In return for their exalted privileges and blessings, they were required to bear fruit to God's glory, showing by their willing service that they realized their dependence and accountability to Him who had granted them such rich opportunities and privileges. They knew the will of their Father, and proudly boasted of their spiritual advantages. In response to the Lord's invitation, they said, "I go, sir." [Matthew 21:30.] But they did not intend to go. When they saw the publicans and harlots, who at first had refused, obeying the call, some repented and entered God's service, but others became as ravening wolves.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 8

By this parable Christ sought to teach His hearers that truth is not to be selfishly hoarded. Those whom God had entrusted with blessings were to render to Him the fruits of His vineyard in their season—pure, holy service, which would illustrate the sanctification which comes through a belief of the truth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 9

The law of which the Israelites boasted so proudly must be carried out in the practical life. Then it can demonstrate its perfection by converting the soul. It proves to be the school master which leads souls to acknowledge Christ as the only remedy for sin. But when in self-righteousness a man is satisfied with his own standard of righteousness, he seeks to escape and evade the yoke of Christ. He does not desire by willing obedience to learn the Saviour's meekness and lowliness. Cold, proud, loveless, the heart feels need of nothing.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 10

The experience of the apostle Paul will be the experience of every repentant sinner. He says, "I was alive without the law once, but when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died. And the commandment, which was ordained to life, I found to be unto death. For sin, taking occasion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it slew me. Wherefore the law is holy, and the commandment holy, just and good. Was then that which is good made death unto me? God forbid. But sin, that it might appear sin, working death in me by that which is good; that sin by the commandment might become exceeding sinful.” [Romans 7:9-13.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 11

“I delight in the law of God after the inward man; but I see another law in my members, warring against the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of sin which is in my members. O wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me from the body of this death? I thank my God through Jesus Christ our Lord. So then with the mind I myself serve the law of God, but with the flesh the law of sin.” [Verses 22-25.] “If ye live after the flesh ye shall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the flesh, ye shall live. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.” [Romans 8:13, 14.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 12

Christ then gave another parable, that of the householder who planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 13

This vineyard represents the Jewish church, and of it God writes, “The vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel, and the men of Judah his pleasant plant.” “In that day sing ye unto her, A vineyard of red wine. I the Lord do keep it; I will water it every moment; lest any hurt it I will keep it day and night. Fury is not in me; who would set the briars and thorns against me in battle? I would go through them, I would burn them altogether. ... He shall cause them that come of Jacob to take root; Israel shall blossom and bud, and fill the face of the world with fruit.” [Isaiah 5:7; 27:2-4, 6.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 14

The vine is very profitable property, yielding rich returns when cared for with painstaking effort; and of the vine which the Lord brought out of Egypt and planted in His vineyard, the Psalmist writes, It filled the whole land. Christ employed every benefit and blessing for the enrichment of the vine which He had planted, that He might receive fruit therefrom. Of His vineyard He says, “Now will I sing to my well-beloved a song of my beloved touching his vineyard.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 15

“My well-beloved hath a vineyard in a very fruitful hill, and he fenced it, and gathered out the stones thereof, and planted it with the choicest vine, and built a tower in the midst of it, and also made a winepress therein; and he looked that it should bring forth grapes, and it brought forth wild grapes. And now, O inhabitants of Jerusalem and men of Judah, judge, I pray you, betwixt me and my vineyard. What more could have been done to my vineyard that I have not done in it? Wherefore, when I looked that it should bring forth grapes, brought it forth wild grapes?” [Isaiah 5:1-4.] “I had planted thee a noble vine, wholly a right seed; how then art thou turned into the degenerate plant of a strange vine unto me?” [Jeremiah 2:21.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 16

In the parable of the vineyard, given by Christ to His disciples just as He was about to be separated from them, He presented the result of abusing privileges and opportunities. The more one receives, the more he is under obligation to return. The Lord gave Israel great theocratic privileges, blessing them graciously from His abundant goodness. He desired to make them a holy people above all nations on the face of the earth. He chose them from among all other people, and made them the children of His covenant. In life and character they were to reveal the principles of His kingdom. The acknowledged people of God, they were to acknowledge the righteousness of God’s ways, rendering to Him willing obedience in return for their rich endowments and spiritual blessings.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 17

The Israelites had been given wonderful manifestations of the grace and power of God. In their behalf the strength and power of heaven had been revealed. Again and again they were charged to call to mind their deliverance from degrading slavery. To accomplish this deliverance, the Lord desolated the land of Egypt. And as the Israelites, fleeing from Egypt, stood by the Red Sea, walled in by the sea on one side, and by rocky, inaccessible mountains on the other, with Pharaoh’s army pursuing them, God showed Himself their Leader and Deliverer. The thought that Pharaoh and his host were in pursuit filled the minds of the Israelites with a terrible dread. The word, “Go forward,” was spoken, but how could they obey, with the Red Sea before them and Pharaoh’s men of war on their track? [Exodus 14:15.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 18

The Lord said to Moses, "Lift up thy rod, and stretch out thy hand over the sea, and divide it, and the children of Israel shall go over on dry ground through the midst of the sea." [Verse 16.] The cloud which hitherto had guided the children of Israel came between them and their foes, its bright side turned to the Israelites and its dark side to the Egyptians. To the people of God it was as a wall of fire, to their foes as a cloud of sackcloth.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 19

The waters of the Red Sea parted, and the whole congregation of Israelites, with their cattle and the strangers who had left Egypt with them, went over in safety. The mighty army of Egypt, following the path of God's providence, was utterly destroyed.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 20

As the children of Israel journeyed through the wilderness, God worked constantly in their behalf. He fed them with bread from heaven and with water from the flinty rock. "They drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them, and that Rock was Christ." [1 Corinthians 10:4.] By His power God brought them into Canaan, and delivered Jericho into their hands. These miracles they were to remember all the days of their life as monuments of God's care and mercy for them.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 21

The Israelites had seen the working of God's power, and had enjoyed advantages and privileges which they knew no one but God could give them. This made their responsibility greater than that of any other people. As they received a knowledge of God's goodness, they were made accountable, as chosen and precious in His sight, to gladly render Him the service which He sought. By living holy lives, by steadfast loyalty, by giving tithes and offerings, by cheerful, devoted service, they were to acknowledge His sovereignty and testify that in spirit, word, and character, they were made better by the favors bestowed on them. These were the fruits the Lord desired His people to render to Him in return for His goodness to them.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 22

God made Zion His holy habitation, the joy of the whole earth. But notwithstanding His goodness to [them], they forgot Him, and wandered into idolatry. Before their dispersion the warning came to them, "Thus speaketh the Lord of hosts, saying, Execute true judgment, and show mercy, and compassion every man to his brother; and oppress not the widow, nor the fatherless, the stranger, nor the poor; and let none of you imagine evil against his brother in your heart.” [Zechariah 7:9, 10.] These words are just as surely spoken to us as to God’s people of that time.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 23

How did the Jews treat God’s message? “They refused to hearken, and pulled away the shoulder, and stopped their ears, that they should not hear. Yea, they made their hearts as an adamant stone, lest they should hear the law, and the words which the Lord of hosts hath sent in his spirit by the former prophets; therefore came a great wrath from the Lord of hosts.” [Verses 11, 12.] If men refuse to receive the admonitions of the Lord, if they persist in walking contrary to His instruction, He cannot deliver them from the sure consequences of their actions.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 24

They place themselves in such opposition to His purposes and heaven’s principles that He permits their enemies to have power over them and to humble them. “Therefore it came to pass that as he cried, and they would not hear, so they cried, and I would not hear, saith the Lord of hosts; but I scattered them with a whirlwind among all the nations whom they knew not. Thus the land was desolate after them, that no man passed through nor returned; for they laid the pleasant land desolate.” [Verses 13, 14.] This was the result of men following their own unsanctified, unsubdued way.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 25

God permitted Israel to be humbled by idolatrous nations. Mark Daniel’s sorrow and humiliation as he searched out when the seventy years of Jerusalem’s desolation were to be accomplished. He declares, “I Daniel understood by books the number of years whereof the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah the prophet, that the Lord would accomplish seventy years in the destruction of Jerusalem. And I set my face unto the Lord, to seek by prayer and supplication, with fasting and sackcloth, and ashes; and I prayed unto the Lord my God, and made my confession, and said, O Lord, the great and dreadful God, keeping the covenant and mercy to them that love him, and to them that keep his commandments: We have sinned, and have committed iniquity, and have done wickedly, and have rebelled, even by departing from thy precepts and from thy judgments. 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 26

“Neither have we hearkened unto thy servants the prophets, which spake in thy name to our kings, our princes, and our fathers, and to all the people of the land. ... Yea, all Israel have transgressed thy law, even by departing, that they might not obey thy voice; therefore thy curse is poured upon us, and the oath that is written in the law of Moses, the servant of God, because we have sinned against him. ... O Lord, according to all thy righteousness, I beseech thee, let thine anger and thy fury be turned away from thy city Jerusalem, thy holy mountain; because for our sins and for the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem and all thy people are become a reproach to all that are about us.” [Daniel 9:2-6, 11, 16.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 27

“O my God, incline thine ear, and hear; open thine eyes, and behold our desolations, and the city which is called by thy name; for we do not present our supplications before thee for our righteousness, but for thy great mercies. O Lord, hear; O Lord, hearken and do; defer not, for thine own sake, O Lord my God; for thy city and thy people are called by thy name.” [Verses 18, 19.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 28

The spirit of intercession was upon Daniel, and he laid hold of the throne of infinite power, praying earnestly for the restoration of Jerusalem. All heaven was interested in his supplication, and before his prayer was finished, a messenger from the heavenly courts was sent to him. He says, “Yea, whiles I was speaking in prayer, even the man Gabriel, whom I had seen in vision at the beginning, being caused to fly swiftly, touched me about the time of the evening oblation. And he informed me, and talked with me, and said, O Daniel, I am now come forth to give thee skill and understanding.” [Verses 21, 22.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 29

“Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people, and upon thy holy city, to finish the transgression, and to make an end of sins, and to make reconciliation for iniquity, and to bring in everlasting righteousness, and to seal up the vision and prophecy, and to anoint the most Holy. Know therefore that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and [to] build Jerusalem, unto the Messiah the Prince shall be seven weeks, and three score and two weeks; the street shall be built again, and the wall, even in troublous times.” [Verses 24, 25.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 30

Daniel pleaded for the honor of God to be preserved. His prayer was heard, and once more the Lord had mercy upon His rebellious people. Once more He took them into favor, and a second temple was built. Jerusalem was given another probation.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 31

We read, “Thus saith the Lord of hosts, I was jealous for Zion with great jealousy; and I was jealous for her with great fury. ... I am returned unto Zion, and will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem; and Jerusalem shall be called a city of truth; and the mountain of the Lord of hosts the holy mountain. ... There shall yet old men and old women dwell in the streets of Jerusalem, and every man with his staff in his hand for very age.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 32

“And the streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof. ... And it shall come to pass that as ye were a curse among the heathen, O house of Judah and the house of Israel, so will I save you, and ye shall be a blessing; fear not, but let your hands be strong. ... As I thought to punish you, when your fathers provoked me to wrath, ... and I repented not, so again have I thought in these days to do well unto Jerusalem,” and I repented not. [Zechariah 8:2-5, 13-15.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 33

Thus Israel has been tested, tried, and cared for by the Lord. But they failed to fulfill His purposes for them. God longed to continue to bless His people, but selfishness took possession of the temple courts. With prophetic eye Daniel looked down the ages and saw how the Jews would refuse to humble themselves.14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 34

When the time of the fruit drew near, God sent his servants, that they might receive the fruit of his vineyard. [See Matthew 21:34.] God’s delegated servants, the prophets, were sent for this fruit. At different periods in the history of Israel, these were sent to the people in the name of Jehovah. Messenger after messenger was sent to them with words of warning, reproof, and entreaty. How were they treated?—"The husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another. Again he sent other servants more than the first; and they did unto them likewise." [Verses 35, 36.] 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 35

"Last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son. But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance. And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him." [Verses 37-39.] Christ came to His own vineyard seeking fruit. He came to tell the people of the love of God, but they rejected His message, and crucified Him. 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 36

As Christ stood upon the mount of Olives and looked upon the doomed city, He could not control His emotion. With weeping He exclaimed, "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" [Matthew 23:37.] Christ's tears on this occasion were shed for the impenitent of all time. His sorrow embraced the world. 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 37

As the Saviour looked down upon Jerusalem, the scene of her destruction passed before Him. He thought of the privileges which had been hers. To the Jewish people God had given heaven's best gift. For three years Christ had been giving them the invitation to the gospel feast. Now, with pale and quivering lips He laments over Israel, the son of His care. With a strong and mighty arm He had brought them out of Egypt, leading them through the vast wilderness; and sorrow filled His heart as He said, "If thou hadst known, even thou at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace!" [Luke 19:42.] 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 38

Then He paused. Must He pronounce the irrevocable sentence? He hesitates. The sun is shining in its evening glory upon Jerusalem, lighting up the beauty of her temple. Christ knew that when that sun should go down behind the hills, Jerusalem's day of mercy and reprieve would be forever ended. And as the last rays of the setting sun were eclipsed by the mountains about the city, the words of doom were spoken, "But now they are hid from thine eyes." [Verse 42.] In refusing to believe in Jesus the Jewish people closed the door of hope against themselves. 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 39

"When therefore the Lord of the vineyard cometh," Christ asked, "What will he do unto those husbandmen?" [Matthew 21:40.] So carried away by the narrative were Christ's hearers that they gave a decided testimony against themselves. "He will utterly destroy those wicked men," they said, "and will let out his vineyard unto other husbandmen, which shall render him the fruits in their season." [Verse 41.] "Jesus saith unto them, Did ye never read in the scripture, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner; this is the Lord's doing, and it is marvelous in our eyes? Therefore I say unto you, The kingdom of God shall be taken from you, and given to a nation bringing forth the fruits thereof." [Verses 42, 43.] 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 40

Christ identified the Jewish people with the unfaithful husbandmen. His application did not apply merely to the teachers and leaders, but to the nation as a whole. To the whole nation had the living oracles of God been committed. To them the will of God had been plainly specified; and they were promised prosperity on condition that they showed their fidelity to God by returning to Him the portion He required. But they failed to keep the law of God. God had filled their cup with unmerited blessings, but in return they treated His messengers with violence and cruelty. God's servants suffered persecution and death at their hands. Thus they broadened their iniquity, and loaded the cloud of retributive justice which was to burst upon them. 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 41

In giving the parable of the two sons and the unfaithful husbandmen, Christ had in mind the whole world. He saw that there would be two parties, one of which would take hold of the truth, and work together with God, while the other would stand in stubborn resistance, reaching at last the place occupied in the parable by the unfaithful husbandmen. "Have ye never read in the scriptures," Christ said, "The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner? ... Whosoever shall fall on this stone shall be broken, but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder." [Verses 42, 44.] 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 42

Today Christ sows good seed in the hearts of men. There is need of sunshine and shower, summer and winter, dew, frost, and wind, that the tender plant may develop and bear fruit. All who receive the word into good and honest hearts will reap if they faint not. The formation of Christian character is brought about by the grace of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 43

The message was given to John the Baptist to proclaim, "The kingdom of heaven is at hand." [Matthew 3:2.] Acknowledged and received, this message would be a powerful manifestation on earth of the heavenly kingdom. Christ was soon to begin His mission as the Sent of God, teaching in the temple and in the highways and hedges, proclaiming the truth by parables, by tears of sympathy, by restoring the sick to health. The Saviour went about doing good, and His practical work was a continual lesson to the disciples. The contrast between His teaching and the teaching of the scribes and Pharisees was great. As the people listened to His words, they testified to the effect of His teaching by saying, "Never man spake like this man." [John 7:46.]14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 44

Christ blended His teaching with physical toil, walking from place to place, and instructing as He walked. He had neither horse, carriage, nor bicycle, which are so much used today. 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 45

The night seasons of prayer, which the Saviour spent in the mountain or in the desert, were essential to prepare Him for the trials He must meet in the days to follow. It was as necessary for Christ to pray as it is for His disciples. He felt the need of the refreshing and invigorating of soul and body, that He might meet the temptations of Satan; and those who are striving to live His life will feel this same need. 14LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 46

Christ has given His disciples assurance that special seasons for devotion are necessary. Strength for the performance of daily duties is derived from worshiping God in the beauty of holiness. Prayer went before and sanctified every act of His life and ministry. He communed with His Father till the close of His life, when there rose from His lips the bitter cry, caused by the agony brought upon Him by the sins of the world, “My God, My God, why hast thou forsaken me?” Then in a voice which has reached to the very ends of the earth He exclaimed, “It is finished,” “Father, into thy hands I commit my spirit.” [John 19:30; Luke 23:46.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 138, 1899, par. 47

A Call for Help

NP

September 25, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in RH 11/14/1899. +<sup>NoteOne</sup> or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

We are God's stewards, and it rests with us to say how much the Lord can trust us with. We have a sacred holy trust. Just as much responsibility will be given us as we can carry intelligently and wholeheartedly. On us has shone the light of present truth, and every man, woman, and child who knows the truth is to seek to be sanctified by the truth. Every spiritual gift, every talent, is to be used to advance the work of God. Selfishness must not be allowed to enter. Then we shall be channels of light.14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 1

The Lord has a message for His stewards of means in Australia, in America, in Africa, and wherever they may be. He calls upon His people to make faithful returns to Him, that there may be meat in His house. He blesses those who faithfully return to Him all that He calls for in tithes and offerings.14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 2

Let us, as stewards, do as Christ would do were He in our place. He did not spend money to please His fancy. From the least to the greatest, we are God's stewards. What are we doing with His goods? A blessing will come to those who use their God-given means to accomplish good, in the place of spending it in self-gratification. Christmas will soon be here—a season of the year when much money is spent in buying presents. Let us practice self-denial and self-sacrifice. Money is greatly needed to place our sanitarium in running order.14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 3

Let us work intelligently and earnestly, and spend in self-gratification nothing that is needed in the work of saving souls. Buy books upon present truth for those who need them. It is not alone ministers who are entrusted with talents and the work of ministering. Every child of God is pledged to do his utmost by self-denial to save the pence, the shillings, and the pounds. Put your means into the Lord's treasury, that it may be invested in special lines of missionary work. We are to serve God with heart and mind and soul and strength. Every capability is to be put into active exercise. Our talents are to be used to please God, not to glorify self.14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 4

When, as a people, our appreciation for the souls for whom Christ died is proportionate to the value of the reward we hope to gain—eternal life—we shall make more earnest efforts to do Christian work. We shall appreciate the sacrifice made by the Son of God to save souls from destruction. Let us teach the truth by practicing it. Let us deny self, that we may have means to give to the Lord's work. The Lord will greatly bless those who work in faith.14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 5

There is altogether too much self-indulgence among us. Money is spent for that which is not bread. Let those who would please the Master listen to His words, "He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." [Mark 8:34.] Let us willingly practice these words, and we shall be blessed. If all that has been invested in self-gratification were counted up, the amount would astonish every church in the land.14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 6

Let those who believe the solemn truth for this time make this Christmas a season of giving to missions. The Lord is not pleased that the work has been so concentrated among those who already know the truth. God's people should be wide awake, earnest in their efforts to enlighten others. But the Lord sees that His people are not ready for His appearing. The work that those in Battle Creek might have done in other places has not been done. Instead of carrying the bread of life to perishing souls, the people in Battle Creek sit under the ministry of the Word, content to be hearers only. Their neighbors need the attentions they might give, but so engrossed are they in the unimportant matters represented in God's word as wood, hay, and stubble, that they have no burden for souls. The experience they ought to gain by helping others to look to Jesus they do not gain, for they do not behold Him themselves. 14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 7

Display is not religion or sanctification. There is nothing more offensive in God's sight than a display of instrumental music when those taking part are not consecrated, are not making melody in their hearts to the Lord. The offering most sweet and acceptable in God's sight is a heart made humble by self-denial, by lifting the cross and following Jesus. 14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 8

We have no time now to spend in seeking those things that only please the senses. Close heart-searching is needed. With tears and heart-broken confession we need to draw nigh to God that He may draw nigh to us. The hearts of God's professed people are so thoroughly selfish and depraved, so passionate and self-indulgent, that He cannot work through them. 14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 9

Those who will obey the words of inspiration, "Go work today in my vineyard" [Matthew 21:28], who will study how they can co-operate with Christ in causing the light of truth to shine to those near and afar off who are in the darkness of error, will receive special aid from God. But this work cannot be done without self-denial and self-sacrifice. Seek to promote the happiness of all with whom you come in contact. Take the truth to the neglected, educating the ignorant, encouraging the despondent, comforting the bereaved, and relieving the needy. Through you God will help the afflicted. This is the fruit God calls upon His people to bear. The members of His church are to be laborers together with Him, and as they work for others, God will impress minds and hearts. Let both men and women engage with their whole hearts in this missionary work, and holiness to God will be the result. All who will train themselves for the Master's service may obtain a rich, golden experience. 14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 10

My brethren and sisters, what shall we do in this matter of self-denial? If in this field we had the facilities you have in America we could enter many new places with the truth. The Lord calls upon His people to arise and shine because His light has come, and His glory has risen upon them. We call upon those in America, in Battle Creek and all our churches, to help us. Under the present circumstances we can advance but slowly. The work of the sanitarium in Summer Hill has been carried on in a private dwelling house, and recently another large house has been rented to accommodate the patients. But these houses are unfit to give treatment in. We need a building of our own, but we cannot erect this till we have funds.14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 11

Count up the sanitariums you have in America. Count up the schools you have; and remember that in this wide harvest field we have not one sanitarium. Our school buildings are not completed, but they must do for the present. The Avondale Health Retreat, a modest building of fifteen rooms, has been erected, but this is not completed. At our last Union Conference our brethren pledged nine hundred pounds for the Sydney Sanitarium. This was a large amount, considering the ability of those present. All our churches will be visited and solicited to swell the amount. But help from abroad will be required. I now appeal to our brethren in America to help us in erecting a sanitarium.14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 12

The Lord has instructed me that the first work of the Battle Creek Sanitarium is to help sister institutions in new missionary fields. I was directed to present the situation to our people in America, and call upon them to help us as years ago I called for help in establishing the work in Battle Creek, and as I called for help to start the work in California. To establish the work in California we made every sacrifice it was possible for us to make, and our efforts were successful. All alone and in feeble health, I left California to attend the camp meetings to be held in the eastern states, that I might lay before the people the needs of the work there; and I expect that now my brethren in California will respond to my call for aid.14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 13

The Lord has given me light that the institutions in America, which are now so liberally furnished with facilities, should cease adding building to building, and help to establish the work in Australasia. A plant should be made here before any money is invested in additional buildings in America. A sanitarium must be erected somewhere in New South Wales, and another in the great city of Melbourne. It costs twice as much to build here as in America, but build we must, and at once; and we call for donations [from] our people in America to come to this new field. 14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 14

I am instructed that there are those who can help us, and that they would be greatly blessed in helping their work here just as the work in America was once helped. I tell you in the name of the Lord that in this field we have need of your assistance. In the work we are doing we are not trying to colonize and leave the Lord's vineyard unworked. We want to do the Lord's work at once, for we know not how soon the work will close up. We want to plant the standard of truth in new places each year. We wish to add new churches to our conference. 14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 15

We have been spreading our strength and energies as far as we could. I have used every penny that I could spare from my royalties to push the work forward and organize churches. We must leave workers to strengthen the things that need strengthening, while we push the triumphs of the cross in new territories. Wherever the truth is introduced, and new companies of Sabbathkeepers raised up, meetinghouses must be built in which they can worship God. This is necessary to spiritual life and prosperity. 14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 16

We have received some help from America. At the General Conference a liberal sum was pledged by those present for the work in Australasia. And about three thousand, five hundred dollars have been sent to us. This has been thankfully received, and used with holy rejoicing to advance the work. The work begun at the General Conference should have been carried forward in all the churches. This was the intention of our brethren at the meeting, and this may still be done. One thousand dollars was sent by Dr. Kellogg, which we will accept as a loan. I did not call upon him personally, but upon the institutions in Battle Creek to help us. 14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 17

The light I now have is that many are losing faith in selling what they have, to help the cause of God in missionary fields, but the Lord would have those in America send us help in our emergency. 14LtMs, Ms 138a, 1899, par. 18

Lessons from the Vineyard

NP

September 27, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in Te 29.

The parable of the vineyard presents for our consideration the need of solemn waiting combined with earnest, vigilant work in preparing for the second coming of Christ. There is need of earnest labor for the souls that are in darkness. These must be shown the necessity of perfecting a Christian character. And by earnest work, and fervent prayer the churches must be aroused to understand their responsibilities. The day of the Lord is right upon us, and the world must be aroused from its worldliness by plain decided messages. And the husbandmen are to be shown their work in rendering to God the fruits of the vineyard. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 1

“Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord,” is to be the motto of God’s faithful workers. [Romans 12:11.] Arouse the sleeping churches by proclaiming the last message to be given to the world. Do not hover over the established churches in order to hold them to the platform of truth. Ministers grow weak when they do this. God has given to each talents, not that they may enter into a few territories and colonize, but that they may present the truth in a simple way in all parts of the world. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 2

Show church members that they have a work to do. They in turn are to proclaim the message. Their work is represented in the words of the prophet Isaiah: “Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet; and show my people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sins.” [Isaiah 58:1.] Let those who have ears to hear now hear as for their lives, and with lips touched with a live coal from off the altar, echo the great testing truths which are to go to every nation and kindred and tongue and people. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 3

The large churches have had great light and privileges. Let them remember that it is not their large organs, their vocal and instrumental music, which will recommend their worship to God. There must be seen true consecration. The tree must reveal its soundness by yielding a harvest of precious fruit. Love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, meekness, temperance, faith—these are the fruits borne on the Christian tree. “They that are Christ’s have crucified the flesh, with its affections and lusts.” [Galatians 5:24.] The cross of Calvary is our hope, and this hope will abide with us as we draw our inspiration from Christ. “All ye are brethren,” Christ said. [Matthew 23:8.] Brother linked with brother, we are to develop the attributes of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 4

Christ is the householder, travelling into a far country. He has placed husbandmen over His vineyard to act in His stead. They are to keep an account of the Lord’s required portion, and bring it to the treasury in tithes and gifts and offerings. Are we rendering to God the fruits of His vineyard? Close attention should be given to the words of the prophet Malachi: “Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house: and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing that there shall not be room enough to receive it.” [Malachi 3:10.] Every church member is responsible to God for the tithes of all the goods left in His care. God places the whole of it in the hands of man, but the rental must be paid to the Owner, that He may carry on His work. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 5

The world will be called to give an account of its use of the Lord’s money. Wealthy men who are heaping together treasure bring upon themselves the denunciation of God. Direct and positive is the Word of the Lord: “Go to, now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries which shall come upon you. Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth eaten. Your gold and silver is cankered, and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days. Behold the hire of the laborers which have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth: and the cries of them which have reaped have entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth.” [James 5:1-4.] 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 6

“Riches profit not in the day of wrath. ... There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth: and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. The liberal soul shall be made fat: and he that watereth shall be watered also himself. He that withholdeth corn, the people shall curse him: but blessing shall be upon the head of him that selleth it. ... He that trusteth in his riches shall fall: but the righteous shall flourish as a branch.” [Proverbs 11:4, 24-26, 28.]14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 7

These words are spoken not only to church members, but to every soul who has been entrusted with the goods of heaven. Those who have used the fruit of the vine to produce wine and liquor have an account to settle with the Master. God’s gifts have been perverted. Millions of pounds have been spent in stupefying and health destroying drugs. That the fruit of the vine, so nourishing to man as an article of food, should be converted into a snare, a means of robbing man of his senses, is a heinous sin in the sight of God. Satan’s breweries are established in every city to do their work of death, and the work is carried on by the beings to whom God has entrusted His vineyard. They are carrying out the purposes of the enemy, to cause wretchedness and woe and every crime of which man is guilty. The cries of the helpless have reached to the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth, and according to the misery that has resulted from this course of sin, accordingly He will repay.14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 8

The cries of the starving millions in our world would soon be hushed if the money put into the tills of the liquor sellers were spent in alleviating the sufferings of humanity. But the evil is constantly increasing. The youth are being educated to love the vile stuff, and this is ruining them, soul and body. The work they might do in God’s vineyard they refuse to do.14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 9

The Lord is soon to come and take this matter in hand, and He will give to every man according as his works have been. What a scene that will be when the wrath of God shall come upon the guilty world! Then the words will stand before the eyes of men as if written in letters of fire: “Justified by faith, Justified by works.” Their day of trust, with its burden of record is now ended in the day of reckoning. Every man has had the call, “Go, work today in my vineyard”

[Matthew 21:28], and every man will receive according to the opportunities and privileges he has had. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 10

Those who have had the light of truth for this time are highly favored. The Lord has not given the truth in trust to men that it might be confined to one place, and abundantly bestowed there, while other places are left in darkness. God calls upon responsible men to lift up their eyes, and see the great necessities in other fields, and make diligent efforts to use the Lord's goods with equity. When the Lord sends His workmen into new fields, He calls those who have advantages and facilities to share their privileges with these fields. This work must be done, that the workers may be better prepared to battle with the difficulties and prejudices which they will ever have to meet as they unfurl the banner of truth in new fields. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 11

The voice of duty bids the workers in the Lord's vineyard in any line [to] discern the needs of the places afar off. The Lord is speaking to the favored ones, saying, Bind about the expenditures in your own localities, and be as earnest in making the work of the Lord a success in other fields as you have been in working for your own field. If you wish, you may always have wants which you think must be supplied, and thus leave the destitute places unworked. But this is not the law of heaven. God would have the brethren in America use their senses, their sight, their hearing, their reason, and do to others as they would wish to have done to them were they in similar circumstances. Your eyes must see the needs of your fellow human beings. Your ears must hear their cries for help; your hearts must be drawn out in sympathy for their need, and your hands must minister to their necessities. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 12

The medical missionary work is needed in these new fields, for this is the right arm of the body of truth. A miracle working power will go with the medical missionary who will work understandingly. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 13

There must be no evasion of truth in the message given in these last days. Every worker must stand cemented to the right, that the world may have the light of truth. Only those who confess the truth before men, however unpopular they may become in doing so, will Christ confess before the Father and before His angels. Let none be more solicitous for worldly honor and promotion than for the living principles of truth. God and the angels always stand decidedly for the right. The gospel, which is the embodiment of truth and righteousness, must be presented. Inscribe upon your banner, "The commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus." [Revelation 14:12.] In the near future we shall see the necessity of standing loyal and true, for temptations will come to form parties in which principle is sacrificed to policy. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 14

Those who profess the truth should never shrink from keeping the testing message clear and distinct before the world. They should study the truth with respect and reverence, because it is truth. They should cherish a deep, abiding sense of its importance for the present time. Then the truth will ever be their sanctification, their authority, their stronghold. The gospel of Christ is profitable for all things; it carries its credentials with it. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 15

Let those who would be gospel workers remember that our talents are apportioned to us according to our ability to use them. The Lord expects every soul who receives to impart. It is the law of the kingdom of heaven that when one portion of the field has been favored with prosperity, the workers in that portion are to use their abilities to the fullest extent in establishing the work in other territories. When His stewards follow this plan, God is honored before the world. The Lord does not bestow His gifts capriciously. If He gives prosperity to one member of His family of workers, it is that that one may bless other members with the benefits he has received. Thus one instrumentality helps another instrumentality, and the plants grow into trees to be a shadow and protection, not in superiority and pride, but in liberality and helpfulness. Whatever prosperity there is in a man's work, it is all from God. He sets out the plant, and cares for it until it becomes a tree. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 16

As the commandment-keeping people of God, we are to take heed to ourselves that we do not depart, as did ancient Israel, into the paths of covetousness, and selfishness and ambitious pride. God's people are predestinated to be conformed into the image of His Son. God designs that they shall become all that He designed Israel should be when He established them in the land of Canaan a pure and holy people. It is when the dross of selfishness enters the soul that unfair methods are brought in[to] the life practice. Never should there exist the desire to gain the advantage of your brethren in the faith in any business deal. The principles of heaven are to be acted out on the earth by God's professed people.14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 17

The Lord is measuring every act and weighing every motive. He beholds everything that is not in strict conformity with His holy law, and all this supposed gain, He will make as the chaff which the wind drives away. He whose name is Holy will do His pleasure in holiness. He will not fail in His work, if man will not place self where God should be. The bruised reed will He not break, and the smoking flax shall He not quench, till He have brought forth judgment unto victory. The Lord works in His own way. He carries on in hearts a work of keen searching, and humiliating discoveries are made. Then sin must be cleansed from the soul temple, and faith come in and take possession—that faith which works by love, and purifies the soul. The human attributes must be molded after the similitude of God.14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 18

God has not changed. He will not connive at selfishness to carry out His plans. He did not prompt Jacob and Rebecca to deceive Isaac. He was fully able to provide for Jacob after His own methods. Neither will he work with any devising or planning after this example. The spirit of rivalry had better never have seen the light of day. The people who claim to be the commandment keeping people of God need to cleanse from mind and heart their conniving at evil and their underhand dealing in order to obtain the advantage of their brethren, for this unholy work will hurt and finally ruin every soul who engages in it.14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 19

Men may think they gain the advantage by such dealing, but their gain is like the gain which Adam and Eve obtained when they obeyed the voice of Satan. The tempter promised our first parents that they would be wise, as gods, knowing good and evil. The advantage they gained was a knowledge of evil. They lost their purity, and gave over the human race to the dominion of the enemy

so it is with every soul today who stoops to dishonesty and intrigue and bribery. Let every soul cleanse from his heart the first thread of pretense and fraud. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 20

The Lord calls for stewards who have high-souled integrity, heavenly principles. The men connected with God's great firm are on test and trial. Not one thread of selfishness or bribery must be brought into the work; for this evil will enter the soul and corrupt every pure principle. God's workers in every institution are to keep the eye single to the glory of God, working together in faith and love for the perfection of His work. "I will put my laws in their minds," God says, "and write them in their hearts." [Hebrews 10:16.] "Blessed is the man whose transgression is forgiven, whose sin is covered. Blessed is the man unto whom the Lord imputeth not iniquity, and in whose spirit there is no guile." [Psalm 32:1, 2.]14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 21

The psalmist declares, "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart; the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes. The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring for ever: the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are they than gold: yea, than much fine gold, sweeter also than honey and the honey comb. Moreover by them is thy servant warned, and in keeping of them there is great reward. Who can understand his errors? Cleanse thou me from secret faults. Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins, let them not have dominion over him. Then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression. Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer." [Psalm 19:7-14.]14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 22

It would be well if these words could be written out and placed where they would attract general attention. They would be a continual lesson to those who would look upon them. God is by the side of every soul who heeds these admonitory words. When the chastisement of the Lord comes, it is for our purification, not for our destruction. Those who will closely investigate their own principles, who will hold before them God's mirror with a desire to learn of any lack that there might be in themselves, will be brought into conformity to the law of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 23

We need to be instant in prayer. Ministers are in danger of losing their integrity, little by little, until they become as disloyal to God as were the scribes and Pharisees. Men are working to keep correct principles away from their life and practice, and they will succeed in doing this. The managers of institutions who work away from right principles in jots and tittles are disloyal to the laws of heaven, and are becoming just what Christ declared the Jewish nation to be. Let those who claim to have the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus show their faith by their works.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 24

The Son of God gave Himself for us that He might redeem us from all iniquity, that He might purify unto Himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. "Know ye not," the apostle asks, "that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.] These statements are having far less influence on minds and characters than they should have. It is our strength and security to obey this instruction.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 25

Again the apostle says, "If there be any consolation in Christ, if any comfort of love, if any fellowship of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies, fulfill ye my joy that ye be like-minded, having the same joy, being of one accord, of one mind." How much does this appeal impress the mind and affect the actions? "Let nothing be done through strife and vain glory: but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than themselves." [Philippians 2:1-3.] This is the remedy for all dissension. The best missionary work we can do is to follow the instruction here given. By so doing we shall testify to the fact that "the law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes." [Psalms 19:7, 8.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 26

"Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus," the apostle continues. [Philippians 2:5.] Shall self wrestle for and gain the supremacy to the close of natural lives? Is it not time that the law of the Lord was written in our hearts and revealed in our lives? We are to cultivate hope, love, brotherly kindness. Everything that the husbandmen can do they must do to bring their lives into harmony with the mind of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 27

After He arose and ascended on high, Christ fulfilled the promise He had made to send the Holy Spirit to His followers. He takes all the riches of heaven and bestows them upon those who turn to the Lord; and that which He has undertaken He will perform. Then shall we not keep out of the life and character everything that would hinder the Holy Spirit's working? Every would must take himself in hand to educate himself. The term of our education extends throughout our entire lives. Here we can only take the lower grades. Here our characters must be formed so that we can advance to the higher grades in the higher school above. There, with Christ as our Teacher, we shall continually advance in knowledge. 14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 28

The richest promises of the Word of God are ours if we will accept the condition of obedience. Through the prophet Isaiah God declares, "As the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not hither again, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater: so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish the thing which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I send it. For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace: the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree: and it shall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off." [Isaiah 55:10-13.]14LtMs, Ms 139, 1899, par. 29

“What Do Ye More Than Others?”

NP

October 2, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in Ev 46. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The parable of the two sons reveals that there is a work to be done by every soul in cooperating with God. To every man is given a work, some part in the Lord's vineyard. The words addressed to the sons were, “Go, work today in my vineyard.” [Matthew 21:28.] This embraced two commands. First he was to show his obedience by going. Then he was to work, to exercise mind and heart continually in doing the work which needed to be done. This test of sincerity is brought to every soul. Will there be deeds as well as words? Will the one called put to use all the knowledge he has, working faithfully, disinterestedly, for the Owner of the vineyard? 14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 1

May man take measurement of himself, and his measurement not be correct. He may depreciate his ability to do, when if he would place himself as a learner, he would qualify himself for work. He who fixes his eyes on his own imperfections, and refuses to reach up to the Source of all strength, will never increase his ability to work. 14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 2

Again, there is a class of men who place a high estimate upon themselves and their work. The parable presents the case of the man who places his own estimate on his works. But the same value was not placed upon them by the One who reads the motives, who calculates the true worth of every work. The Lord placed no high value on those who said, “I go, sir,” but went not. [Verse 30.] 14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 3

To the scribes and Pharisees Christ on one occasion said, “What do ye more than others?" [Matthew 5:47.] They had been blessed [with] great privileges, but they became self-exalted. While claiming to be the children of Abraham, they refused to do the works of Abraham. The truths brought before the mind must be comprehended, received, and confessed. "If ye know these things," Christ says, "happy are ye if ye do them." [John 13:17.] Our obedience is required. The actions are the index of the character. The tree is valued by the fruit it bears. So those who truly love God will do the things which please Him. 14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 4

Adam, because he believed Satan's misrepresentations of God and disobeyed his Creator, was not permitted to work in the garden of Eden. But through the mercy of Christ the call is made to men, "Go work today in my vineyard." [Matthew 21:28.] You are My purchased heritage. You are called away from the disloyalty of the world to build up a character in obedience to My word. You are accepted as laborers together with God. "Ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] "You hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins; wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience. ... But God, who is rich in mercy, for the great love wherewith he hath loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, (by grace are ye saved,) and hath raised us up together, and hath made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus. 14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 5

"That in the ages to come, he might show the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness to us through Jesus Christ. For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God. Not of works, lest any man should boast. For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them. ... Now therefore we are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens of the saints, and of the household of light; and are built upon the foundations of the apostle and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together, groweth into an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit." [Ephesians 2:1, 2, 4-10, 19-22.]14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 6

“Ye are God’s husbandry, ye are God’s building.” [1 Corinthians 3:9.] Our characters are built up by obedience to the Word of God. The Lord’s plan for character building is to be carried out in the way he has specified. “Grace and peace be multiplied unto you,” He says, “Through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord. According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain to life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue. 14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 7

“Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith, virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience, and to patience, godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.” [2 Peter 1:2-8.] 14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 8

What is the work which the Lord requires of us? The apostle Paul answers this question: “You that were sometime alienated and enemies in your minds by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled in the body of his flesh through death, to present you holy and unblamable and unreprouvable in his sight: if ye continue in the faith grounded and settled, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel, which ye have heard. ... Even the mystery which hath been hid from ages and from generations, but now is made manifest to his saints; to whom God would make known the riches of this glory among the Gentiles; which is Christ in you the hope of glory: whom we preach, warning every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom; that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus.” [Colossians 1:21-23, 26-28.] This work God calls on us to do. 14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 9

“What could have been done more in my vineyard,” Christ asks, “that I have not done in it? wherefore, when I looked that it should bring forth grapes, brought it forth wild grapes? And now go to: I will tell you what I will do to my vineyard: I will take away the hedge thereof, and it shall be eaten up and break down the wall thereof, and it shall be trodden down. And I will lay it waste: it shall not be pruned, nor digged; but there shall come up briars and thorns; I will also command the clouds that they rain no rain upon it. For the vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel, and the men of Judah his pleasant plant: and he looked for judgment, but behold, oppression; for righteousness, but behold a cry.” [Isaiah 5:4-7.]14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 10

Here the prophet describes the expectations of the Lord from His vineyard. He looked that it should bring forth grapes, but it brought forth wild grapes. He looked for the fruits of the Spirit—love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith—but they were wanting. There is a work to be done in the hearts and minds of Christ’s professed followers. Let those who have a knowledge of the Scriptures look carefully and see if they are disappointing the Owner of the vineyard. While it is called today, harden not your hearts. “Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling, for it is God that worketh in you, to will and to do of his good pleasure.” [Philippians 2:12, 13.]14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 11

Those who work in the Lord’s vineyard are to be faithful to one another and to God. Everything that savors of strife is to be cleansed away by the Holy Spirit’s working. The apostle writes, “They that are Christ’s have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts. If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit. Let us not be desirous of vainglory, provoking one another, envying one another.” [Galatians 5:24-26.] Loyalty to the Owner of the vineyard and love for one another is to mark the lives of the workers as they labor disinterestedly to cultivate the soil. Then rich clusters of fruit will testify to the Source from which they draw their supplies.14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 12

The field of labor is to be extended. The Gospel message is to go to all parts of the world. The most unpromising fields must receive earnest determined labor. The sons of God, earnest, true, unselfish, must use all the knowledge they possess in managing this important work. They must make the most of their time, cultivating all their powers to do the highest service. How many are acting as faithful stewards?14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 13

God stands to His people in the position of a Father, and He has a father's right to our faithful service. I ask all who claim to be Christians, Are you living for your own pleasure alone? Christ has given us His life, that we might give Him our lives in faithful service.14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 14

Many who now help to compose the church stand in the position of the second son. They say, "I go, sir," but they bear no burdens in the vineyard. [Matthew 21:30.] They do not cooperate with those who are doing God service. They are idlers, driftwood. They have not an increasing love for God and the truth, and there is more hope for the publican and the sinner than for them. Those who profess to be Christians, but who refuse to wear the yoke of Christ and learn His meekness and lowliness of heart are stumbling blocks in the way of sinners. They have a form of godliness, but they are not fruit-bearing branches of the vine. Their ears may hear the truth, but their perceptive powers have departed. The heart is hardened, the moral perception dimmed, the conscience seared.14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 15

There is no comfort in living a lie, to profess to be sons of God and yet fail to act our part in giving Him diligent faithful whole-souled service. If the Holy Spirit was abiding in the heart as the Comforter, this would be revealed. Said Christ, "I will pray the Father, and he will give you another comforter, that he may abide with you forever: even the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him; but ye know him, for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." [John 14:16, 17.] The world cannot receive this statement, for spiritual things are spiritually discerned. Unconverted church members are registered in the books of heaven as disobedient sons.14LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 16

Those who have taken this solemn covenant upon themselves, have pledged themselves to receive the Word of God and obey it. But they do not do this. They do not place themselves in obedience to the requirements of God. The surrender to God must be complete. "If ye love me," Christ says, "keep my commandments." [Verse 15.] "Take my yoke upon you and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls." [Matthew

11:29.] My yoke is not, as many suppose, a yoke of bondage. It is a yoke of perfect freedom, linking man with God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 17

In the Word is revealed to us the adorning of which Christ approves. It is not the wearing of gold, not the plaiting of the hair, not the wearing of apparel. It is the “hidden man of the heart in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price.” [1 Peter 3:4.] The meek and quiet spirit will testify of itself in good works. This is the fruit which is to distinguish the people of God from the world. In their loving, sympathetic tenderness they reveal that they are wearers of Christ’s yoke, recipients of the gift of the Holy Spirit.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 141, 1899, par. 18

God's Care for His Church

NP

October 3, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 7BC 922, 930-931. See ST 02/14/1900.

The Jewish tabernacle was a type of the Christian church. It was a wonderful structure, made in two parts, the outer and the inner, one open to the ministrations of all the priests, the other to the high priest alone, who represented Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 1

The church on earth, composed of those who are faithful and loyal to God, is the "true tabernacle," whereof the Redeemer is the minister. [Hebrews 8:2.] God and not man pitched this tabernacle on a high, elevated platform. This tabernacle is Christ's body; and from north, south, east, and west, He gathers those who shall help to compose it. 14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 2

Christ is the minister of the true tabernacle, the High Priest of all who believe in Him as a personal Saviour, and His office no other can take. He is the High Priest of the church, and He has a work to do which no other can perform. By His grace He is able to keep every man from transgression. His ambassadors, those who receive Him, are born again and are thus fitted to represent Him. 14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 3

"Such an high priest became us, who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens; who needeth not daily, as those high priests, to offer up sacrifice, first for his own sins, and then for the people's; for this he did once, when he offered up himself. For the law maketh men high priests which have infirmity; but the word of the oath, which was since the law, maketh the Son, who is consecrated forever more." [Hebrews 7:26-28.] 14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 4

Through Christ the true believers are represented as being built together for an habitation of God through the Spirit. Paul writes “God who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us, even when we were dead in sins, hath quickened us together with Christ, ... and hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus: that in the ages to come he might show the exceeding riches of his grace in his kindness toward us through Jesus Christ. For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves, it is the gift of God; not of works, lest any man should boast. 14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 5

“For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them. ... Ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom the whole building fitly framed together, groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord, in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit.” [Ephesians 2:4-10, 19-22.]14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 6

God employed men to rear the Jewish tabernacle, giving them skill and efficiency for their work. We read, “The Lord spake unto Moses, saying, See, I have called by name Bezaleel, the son of Uri, ... and I have filled him with the Spirit of God, in wisdom, and in understanding, and in knowledge, and in all manner of workmanship, to devise cunning works, to work in gold, and in silver, and in brass, and in cutting of stones, to set them, and in carving of timber, to work in all manner of workmanship, ... And in the hearts of all that are wise hearted I have put wisdom, that they may make all that I have commanded thee.” [Exodus 31:1-6.] “Then wrought Bezaleel ... and every wise hearted man, in whom the Lord has put wisdom and understanding.” [Exodus 36:1.] Thus heavenly intelligences co-operated with the workmen whom God Himself selected. Thus the church on earth must unite with the heavenly intelligences in doing God’s work for this time.14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 7

“Thus saith the Lord, Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation.” [Isaiah 28:16.] On this stone, laid by the Lord, there would have arisen no building had not the work of redemption been carried on after the Lord's prescribed plan. And although the plan of salvation was carried forward according to the plan ordained from the foundation of the earth, yet men and women will not be saved unless they themselves exercise faith and build on the true foundation, unless they allow God to re-create them by His Holy Spirit. God works in and through the human agent who co-operates with Him by choosing to help to compose the Lord's building.14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 8

A holy tabernacle is built up of those who receive Christ as their personal Saviour. Of them John writes, "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name, which were born, not of flesh nor of the will of man, but of God." [John 1:12, 13.] By receiving Christ and being conformed to His will, man goes on to perfection. This building up of individual characters which are renewed constitutes a structure more noble than any mortal workmanship. Thus the great work of God goes forward from point to point. Those who desire a place in His church show this by their willingness to be so conformed to the will of God that they can be trusted with grace to impart to others.14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 9

Divine ministration is needed to give power and efficiency to the church in this world. God's family on earth, subject to temptations and trials, is very near to His heart of love. He has ordained that communication be kept up between heavenly intelligences and His children on this earth. Angels from the courts above are sent forth to minister to those who shall be heirs of salvation, those who as faithful warriors are partaking of Christ's suffering. Christ is represented as dwelling in His people. They must be fed with meat in due season. Therefore, a connection has been established between them and the church above. God cares for His human creation as a husbandman cares for a vineyard. Christ declares, "I am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman." [John 15:1.] What a wonderful representation. God is not only the Keeper, but the Owner of the vineyard.14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 10

To the church is given the work of making known to the world: "what is the fellowship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ; to the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be made known by the church the manifold wisdom of God.” [Ephesians 3:9, 10.] 14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 11

“For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ,” Paul continues, “of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named, that he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man; that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height, and to know the love of Christ which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fullness of God. Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, to him be glory in the church by Jesus Christ throughout all ages, world without end.” [Verses 14-21.] This promise is for us. 14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 12

Christ offered His broken body to purchase back God’s heritage, to give man another trial. “Therefore he is able to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for us.” [Hebrews 7:25.] By his spotless life, his obedience, his death on the cross of Calvary, Christ interceded for the lost race. And now not as a mere petitioner does the Captain of our Salvation intercede for us, but as a Conqueror claiming His victory. His offering is complete, and as our Intercessor He executes His self-appointed work, holding before God the censer containing His own spotless merits and the prayers, confessions, and thanksgiving of His people. Perfumed with the fragrance of His righteousness, the incense ascends to God as a sweet savor. The offering is wholly acceptable, and pardon covers all transgression. To the true believer Christ is indeed the minister of the sanctuary, officiating for him in the sanctuary and speaking through God’s appointed agencies. 14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 13

Christ is able to save to the uttermost all who come to Him in faith. He will cleanse them from all defilement if they will let Him. But if they cling to their sins, they cannot possibly be saved; for Christ’s righteousness covers no sin unrepented of. God has declared that those who receive Christ as their Redeemer, accepting Him as the One who takes away all sin, will receive pardon for their transgressions. These are the terms of our election. Man's salvation depends upon his receiving Christ by faith. Those who will not receive Him lose eternal life because they refused to avail themselves of the only means provided by the Father and the Son for the salvation of a perishing world.14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 14

The whole human family is the Lord's property by creation, and doubly so because of the price paid to redeem them. After they had enlisted in the army of the great apostate, God brought them back by the gift of His only begotten Son. But men and women make very poor returns for the wonderful sacrifice Christ has made for them. When the souls of God's people become quickened by His living Word, they will realize more of what they owe to their Redeemer.14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 15

"My little children, these things write I unto you that ye sin not. And if any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous; and he is the propitiation for our sins, and not for ours only, but also for the sins of the whole world. And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected." [1 John 2:1-5.]14LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 16

For the church on earth, those who are obedient to God's Word, keeping His commandments, Christ is performing His office work. Through His appointed instrumentalities He carries forward His work. If we walked in accordance with the light of God's Word, we would understand better the mysteries of redemption. Mysteries, into which angels desire to look, which prophets and kings and righteous men desired to understand, the church will carry in messages from God to the world. The prophets prophesied of these things, and they longed to understand that which they foretold, but to them this privilege was not given. They longed to see what we see and to hear what we hear, but they could not. They will know all when Christ comes the second time, when surrounded by a multitude which no man can number, He explains the deliverance

He worked out by the great sacrifice He made.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 17

Let us try to understand something of the mighty work that Christ did by His incarnation, His life of humiliation, His lessons, His deed of mercy. "For our sakes he became poor, that we through his poverty might be made rich." [2 Corinthians 8:9.] In the strength of that wondrous love, which is unexplainable to humanity, He arose, and laying hold of the world, held it in His grasp. Satan, claiming the world as his rightful territory, sought by every device to wrench it from the Redeemer's grasp, but by His life and death of humiliation Christ held it fast. And when in His dying agony Christ cried out, "It is finished" [John 19:30], He drew the world back into favor with God. Satan knew that his triumph was short.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 18

In dying, Christ proclaimed Satan's death sentence. And this victory was heralded by all the heavenly host. All the angelic family, cherubs and seraphs, sang the praise of the wonderful work which united earth to heaven, and finite man to the infinite God. And when the conflict is over forever, what songs of praise will burst forth from the redeemed host. That will indeed be music. Without a discordant note the rich, full anthem will rise from immortal voices, "Worthy, worthy is the Lamb." [Revelation 5:12.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 142, 1899, par. 19

When the disciples were disputing together as to which should be greatest in the kingdom of heaven, Christ called a little child to him, and set him in the midst of them and said, "Verily I say unto you, Except ye be converted, and become as little children, ye shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven. And whoso shall receive one such little child in my name receiveth me. But whoso shall offend one of these little ones which shall believe in me, it were better that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depths of the sea. Woe unto the world because of offenses, for it must needs be that offenses come; but woe unto that may be whom the offense cometh!" [Matthew 18:2-7].<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 1

It would be well if those occupying positions of trust in our institutions would remember that they are to be representatives of Jesus. True goodness, holiness, love, compassion for tempted souls must be revealed in their lives. Christ gave Himself to the world, that He might save those who would believe in Him. Shall not we, partakers of this great salvation, value the souls for whom He gave His life? Let us labor with a perseverance and energy proportionate to the value Christ places upon His blood-bought heritage. Human souls have cost too much to be trifled with, or treated with harshness or indifference.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 2

A defective life is a dishonor to God. Co-workers with Christ will manifest no harshness, no self-sufficiency. These elements must be purified from the soul, and the gentleness of Christ take possession. Never be unkind to my soul, for by the grace of God that soul may become an heir of God and joint heir with Christ. Do not bruise the hearts of Christ's purchased ones, for in doing this you bruise the heart of Christ. Ever remember that we must all meet again around the great white throne, there to receive the approval or the disapproval of God. A soul hurt is often a soul destroyed. Let those who have light and privileges remember that their very position of trust makes them responsible for soul. They will have to meet again those whom they have driven from Christ, bruised and wounded to death.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 3

The human agent is a savor of life unto life, or he is a savor of death unto death. He either draws with Christ, or he draws away from Christ. Many have interposed their unconverted souls between Christ and the souls who are of value in His sight, and they will have a serious account to settle by and by with the Owner of souls. John writes: "I saw the dead, small and great, stand before God: and the books were opened; and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of these things which were written in the books, according to their works." [Revelation 20:12.] What an account these men will have to settle in the day of final retribution. The unsanctified spirit that prompted their works will be seen in its true character. Their selfish, arbitrary exactions they will see as they appear in the sight of a holy God. Will my brethren and sisters bear in mind that they are dealing with God's heritage, His purchased possession?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 4

We are living in the day of atonement, when all the high-minded, all the self-sufficient, need to afflict their souls before God and repent of their sins, lest they are weighed in the balances and found wanting. Who among those who claim to believe the truth are being sanctified through the truth? Christ is the Truth. Who have put on Christ, and partaken of His love and tenderness and compassion? God gives us the Word, that through it we may be sanctified to His service. "This is the will of God concerning you," the apostle writes, "even your sanctification." [1 Thessalonians 4:3.] The application of the Word to our souls is represented by John as eating the flesh and drinking the blood of the Son of God. And this is eternal life to men. Receiving the truth as it is in Jesus, we become partakers of the divine nature. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 5

“Take heed that ye despise not one of these little ones,” Christ said, “for I say unto you, That in heaven their angels do always behold the face of my Father. ... How think ye? If a man have an hundred sheep, and one of them be gone astray, doth he not leave the ninety and nine, and go into the mountains, and seeketh that which is gone astray? And if so be that he find it, verily I say unto you, He rejoiceth more over that sheep than over the ninety and nine which went not astray. Even so it is not the will of your Father which is in heaven that one of these little ones should perish.” [Matthew 18:10, 12-14.]14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 6

Christ came to this world, all seared and marred with the curse, that He might meet humanity and work for humanity, uplifting the degraded and fallen and outcast. Let us study this eighteenth chapter of Matthew, that we may learn how to practice this lesson of Christ, for it we do not bring it into our practical lives we shall never enter into the kingdom of heaven. It is the masterly spirit to lord it over God’s heritage that is closing the gates of heaven to men. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 7

It is our privilege to see Jesus as He is, full of compassion, amiable, courteous, merciful, forgiving. “In all things it behooved him to be made like unto his brethren, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the sins of the people. For in that he himself hath suffered, being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted.” [Hebrews 2:17, 18.] Beholding Jesus, we shall be changed into the same image. Confidence, faith, hope, and love will spring up in our hearts. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 8

Christ said to the woman of Samaria, “If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink, thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water. ... Whoso drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst, but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life.” [John 4:10, 14.] This water represents the life of Christ, and every soul may partake of it.

When we have a living connection with God, humble confidence becomes an abiding principle in the soul. Unbelieving fears are swept away before loving trusting faith. We can say truthfully, "If our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost, in whom the god of this world hath blinded their eyes of them that believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them." [2 Corinthians 4:3, 4.]14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 9

God speaks to those who stand in the position of leaders, who lord it over God's heritage, and hurt and destroy souls: "Wherefore lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees. And make straight paths for your feet, lest that which is lame"—weak in experience and moral power—"be turned out of the way; but let it rather be healed. Follow peace with all men, and holiness, without which no man shall see the Lord; looking diligently lest any fail of the grace of God; lest any root of bitterness springing up trouble you, and thereby many be defiled." [Hebrews 12:12-15.]14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 10

Let not your unkindness, your coldness of heart turn souls from the path that leads to refuge in Jesus, who will save to the uttermost all that come unto God by Him. There are souls who need your words of encouragement, and they cannot be helped by your unfeeling decisions, your words and looks of contempt. God is on your tract. He marks every word and look and gesture which stirs up the evil attributes and places these souls on Satan's battlefield, for him to complete the work of ruin.14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 11

When God gives men one ray of light, and they refuse to follow it, the next ray of light may make no impression. Let us heed the words of inspiration: "See that ye refuse not him that speaketh. For if they escaped not who refused him that spake on earth, how much more shall we not escape if we turn away from him that speaketh from heaven. ... Wherefore we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace, whereby we may serve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear: for our God is a consuming fire." [Verses 25, 28, 29.] "By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips giving thanks to his name. But to do good and to communicate forget not: for with such sacrifices God is well pleased.” [Hebrews 13:15, 16.]14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 12

Our moral perceptions are not dependent upon riches, earthly wisdom, and learning. The true light is shining into hearts from the throne of God. The Spirit of Christ is drawing all men unto Himself. His invitation reaches to every soul: “Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light.” [Matthew 11:28-30.]14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 13

The knowledge of God and of Jesus Christ whom He has sent is salvation to all who will receive it. Peter writes, “Grace and peace be multiplied unto you, through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.” [2 Peter 1:2-4.] It is the privilege of every soul to seek God and to find Him, and thus escape the corruption that is in the world through lust.14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 14

When the laborer together with God presses home the truth to the heart of the sinner, it is the voice of God speaking through the human instrumentality. Heavenly intelligences co-operate with the consecrated worker. Let us not encourage questioning and doubt, by sowing these baleful seeds. As children of God we are to become diligent learners in the school of Christ, and then reveal His spirit and practice His methods. “Let this mind be in you,” says the apostle, “which was also in Christ Jesus.” [Philippians 2:5.] Doubts will vanish before the workings of the Holy Spirit. This influence operates divinely upon the soul, and power to believe comes direct from God. There is an increased love for Christ, a soul hunger for His righteousness. In contemplating Christ’s character, a transformation takes place in man’s character. He is “changed from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord.” [2 Corinthians 3:18.]14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 15

God the Dependence of His People

After the ascension of Christ, the Lord said, "Ask of me, and I will give thee the heathen for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession." [Psalm 2:8.] God is doing this in His own way. The territories nigh and afar off are His; and although usurpers have come in to take possession of His property, He will work to make a way for the truth, if man will keep his hand off the ark. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 16

In the name of the Lord I say to the unfaithful watchmen, Stand out of the way, and let the Lord's voice be heard. He waits not for your voice to be heard from Battle Creek before He works by His might and power. The message of the third angel will be proclaimed, and those men who have not advanced with it in knowledge and consecration will be left behind. The work will move forward without them, and advance to glorious victory. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 17

Every country has its own peculiarities, and these cannot be changed by the best and wisest men. Their necessities must be met and handled with all wisdom. The workers must be dependent not on Battle Creek, but on God. How precarious would be the condition of man if he were forced to depend on the fitful, changeable nature of finite beings. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 18

O that men would see the necessity of looking to God for their orders! Those who work in far distant lands must look in humble dependence to the Captain of their salvation. The Holy Spirit will descend and take up His abode in the heart of the sincere suppliant as he comes to the footstool of mercy. We are encouraged to come boldly to the throne of grace, believing that that God hears and answers prayer. We have a great High Priest who is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 19

His promise to the children of men is, "I will pray the Father, and he will give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever." [John 14:16.] His dwelling place is in every locality where men are seeking with honest hearts to do His work. "The glory that thou gavest me, I have given them," Christ prayed, "that they may be one, even as we are one. I in them, and thou in me: that they may be made perfect in one, and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them as thou hast loved me.” [John 17:22, 23.] The eternal Father is waiting for us to take our eyes off finite men, and place our dependence in God.14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 20

The sixth chapter of Isaiah has a deep and important lesson for every one of God’s workmen. Study it with humility and earnest prayer. The first and second chapters of Ezekiel should also be carefully studied. The wheels within wheels represented in this symbol was confusion to the finite eye. But a hand of infinite wisdom was revealed amid the wheels. Perfect order is brought out of the confusion. Every wheel works in its right place, in perfect harmony with every other part of the machinery.14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 21

I have been shown that human beings desire too much power. They desire to control, and the Lord God, the mighty Worker is left out of their workings. The workmen feel qualified to hold the highest place. Let no man attempt to manage that work which should be left in the hands of the great I AM, and who is in His own way is planning how the work shall be done. Know that God is the Instructor of His servants, and He will work through whom He will.14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 22

At the taking of Jericho the mighty General of armies planned the battle in such simplicity that no human being could take glory to himself. No human hand must take down the walls of the city, lest man shall take to himself the glory of the victory. So today no human being is to take to himself glory for the work he accomplishes. The Lord alone is to be magnified.14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 23

The Lord will be our Instructor. He has need of every agency that holds the truth in righteousness. The soul that is imbued with the Spirit of Christ becomes one with Christ in His deep unresting love for perishing souls. Christ is formed within the hope of glory, and He works through the human instrument. “As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name.” [John 1:12.] This is the privilege of God’s people in every place. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 24

Those who bear the message of mercy to perishing souls must themselves be under discipline to God. The Lord is waiting to qualify men to carry the message to those who are afar off and to those that are nigh. God speaks to His people, warning them not to corrupt their simplicity and trust in the Lord by sinking their individuality in any living person. The Lord will teach all who will seek Him for wisdom, whatever their calling or profession. “Obey them that have the rule over you,” He says, “and submit yourselves, for they watch for your souls as they that must give an account, that they may do it with joy and not with grief.” [Hebrews 13:17.] Those who give evidence in the fruit they bear that they are chosen of God, will fulfill these specifications. They will watch for souls, not to hurt and bruise and discourage, but as a faithful shepherd watches over his flock. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 25

We want more of the Infinite workings, and far less of the wisdom of man. Our work is to prepare a people to stand in the great day of God. Our message, our argument, our doctrine, our warning to the impenitent, and our encouragement to the believer is “The commandments of God and the faith of Jesus.” [Revelation 14:12.] We are to strike a key note which will vibrate to the believer’s soul and bring joy to the heavenly intelligences. Presenting the cross of Calvary we are to cry, “Behold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world.” [John 1:29.] When men shall cease to trust in man and make God their efficiency, we shall see the earth filled with the glory of the Lord as the waters cover the sea. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 26

The Temple of God must be Holy

If the truth were comprehended and practiced, licentiousness would not be allowed to destroy the physical and mental powers. The apostle Paul writes, “Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers; for what fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel? And what agreement hath the temple of

God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God: as God hath said, I will dwell in them, and walk in them: and I will be their God and they shall be my people.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 27

“Wherefore, come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing: and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.” [2 Corinthians 6:14-18.] “Having therefore these promises, dearly beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God.” [2 Corinthians 7:1.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 28

There is no mystery in these words. If the human agent is a doer of the Word he will be a laborer together with God in keeping his body free from defilement. If he loves God with all his heart and mind and soul strength, he cannot defile his body, which is the temple of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 29

Abuse of the temple of God has brought upon men and women suffering and misery which no human tongue can describe. “The night is far spent, the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light. Let us walk honestly in the day, not in rioting and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and envying. But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof.” [Romans 13:12-14.] Those who will open their understanding to comprehend these things will make wonderful reforms in their lives. The apostle writes, “Ye are God’s husbandry, ye are God’s building.” [1 Corinthians 3:9.] Those who are perfecting Christian characters will make decided changes in their lives, that they may present themselves to God holy and blameless, without spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 30

Words to Parents

Our talents are lent us in trust, to use and increase by their use. O if parents would only realize that the families on earth may be symbols of the family in heaven! If they would realize their accountability to keep their homes free from every taint of moral evil. God designs that we shall have far more of heaven in our families than we now enjoy. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 31

From their earliest years the children are learners, and if pleasant scenes are kept before them in the home, they will become familiar with Christian courtesy, kindness, and love. Their minds are built up by what they see and hear, and parents are sowing the seed which will reap a harvest either for weal or woe. If Parents are Christians in name only, if they are not doers of the Word, they are placing their own superscription on their children, and not the superscription of God. Children long for something to impress the mind. For Christ's sake, parents, give their hungering, thirsting souls something upon which to feed. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 32

Children are naturally active, and if parents do not furnish them with employment, Satan will invent something to keep them busy in an evil work. Therefore, train your children to useful work. You can clothe all work with a dignity which will make it profitable and elevating. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 33

Do not feel it your duty to make the lives of your children unpleasant. The unpleasantness will come fast enough. Bring all the pleasure possible into your exercises as teacher and educator of your children. Encourage them to make a companion of you. Sinful impulses, sinful inclinations, and objectionable habits you will surely find in your children; but if you encourage them to seek your society, you can give a right mold to their tastes and feelings, and banish discontent, repining, and rebellion. Overcome their pride by living before them an example of meekness and lowliness of heart. 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 34

We need to weed out from our conversation everything that is harsh and condemnatory. When we have put on Christ in meekness and lowliness of heart, we shall represent Christ in all our dealings with our children. To all who labor in Christ's lines for the salvation of souls, the Saviour says, "Ye are laborers together with God. Ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [Verse 9.] 14LtMs, Ms 143, 1899, par. 35

Portions of this manuscript are published in 4BC 1143, 1151.
+NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“O Lord, thou art my God; I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things; thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth. For thou hast made of a city an heap; of a defended city a ruin; a palace of strangers to be no city; it shall never be built. Therefore shall the strong people glorify thee, the city of the terrible nations shall fear thee. For thou hast been a strength to the poor, a shadow to the needy in his distress, a refuge from the storm, a shadow from the heat, when the blast of the terrible ones is as a storm against the wall.” [Isaiah 25:1-4.]14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 1

Wherein do we show our gratitude to God? His benefits to us are inexpressibly great. Do we frame His mercies and blessings, and hang them in memory’s hall, where we can see them and be led to offer thanksgiving to God for His goodness and love? There are thousands upon thousands who have no eyes to see, no ears to hear, no hearts to appreciate God’s work in their behalf. They pass by the goodness of the Lord as their’s by right.14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 2

On one occasion Christ cleansed ten lepers. He said to them, “Go, show yourselves to the priests.” “And it came to pass as they went, they were cleansed. And one of them, when he saw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God, and fell down on his face at his feet, giving him thanks; and he was a Samaritan. And Jesus answering said, Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine? There are not found that returned to give God thanks save this stranger.” [Luke 17:14-18.]14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 3

Can we not see the lesson Christ here sought to teach? Many of these who have been given advantages and privileges, and who should appreciate God’s goodness, make only a feeble response to His matchless love. God cannot give them the grace and power He longs to bestow, because if He did, they would glorify self, and mar God’s work by their self-sufficiency.14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 4

The gratitude we are to show to God for His sacred bounties is not left to chance or impulse. We are to do the work Christ did when He was upon this earth. Our obligations to God and to our fellow men are endless. There are many poor and needy among us, and opportunities for helping suffering humanity will continually increase. We are enjoined to do good to all men, but especially those who are of the household of faith.14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 5

In Nazareth Christ announced His mission to the world. He declared, “The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord.” [Luke 4:18, 19.] Those who are in partnership with Christ, who have the Saviour abiding in their hearts, will possess the same attributes that Christ possessed. They will work as Christ worked. Their hearts will ever be touched by human woe.14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 6

How many are there that do this work? Job declared, “The cause that I knew not, I searched out.” [Job 29:16.] But have you relieved the cases brought directly to your notice? You have seen many who love and fear God bearing the galling yoke of poverty, but like the priest and Levite, you have passed by on the other side, making no resolute, determined efforts to help the oppressed. Will you manifest zeal to gather all the means you can for yourself, while Christ in the person of His saints is left to suffer for the necessities of life, to go hungry and naked?14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 7

In the fifth chapter of Jeremiah some grievous sins are specified.

“They overpass the deeds of the wicked,” God declares; “they judge not the cause, the cause of the fatherless, yet they prosper, and the cause of the needy do they not judge. Shall I not visit for these things, saith the Lord; shall not my soul be avenged on such a nation as this. A wonderful and horrible thing is committed in the land; the prophets prophesy falsely, and the priests bear rule by their means; and my people love to have it so; and what will ye do in the end thereof?” [Verses 28-31.]14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 8

Let us seek the Lord. Let all, men in high positions of trust, and men of low estate, avoid the least approach to anything God calls crime. Cut away every root of selfishness; uproot this evil, that it may not bear its poisonous fruit. Put away all hardness of heart, and pray for hearts of flesh; for God has declared that He will punish the least act of injustice and false dealing. No failure to obey the Word of God or to deal justly and mercifully with our fellow men will be overlooked by the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 9

We need to read and study the lessons given in the fifty-eighth chapter of Isaiah: “Cry aloud, spare not, lift up thy voice like a trumpet, and show my people their transgressions, and the house of Jacob their sins. Yet they seek me daily, and delight to know my ways, as a nation that did righteousness, and forsook not the ordinance of their God; they ask of me the ordinance of justice; they take delight in approaching to God. Wherefore have we fasted, say they, and thou seest not? wherefore have we afflicted our soul, and thou takest no knowledge? Behold, in the day of your fast ye find pleasure, and exact all your labors. Behold, ye fast for strife and debate, and to smite with the fist of wickedness; ye shall not fast as ye do this day, to make your voice to be heard in high.” [Verses 1-4.]14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 10

Have not such things been seen among those who claim to have great light? What has been the tenor of the resolutions you have formed in counsel? Have you sought to gain a controlling power? Do your resolutions savor in the least of oppression?14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 11

“Is it such a fast that I have chosen? a day for a man to afflict his soul? Is it to bow down his head as a bulrush, and to spread sackcloth and ashes under him? Wilt thou call this a fast and an acceptable day to the Lord? Is not this the fast that I have chosen? to loose the bands of wickedness, to undo the heavy burdens, and to let the oppressed go free, and that ye break every yoke? Is it not to deal thy bread to the hungry, and that thou bring the poor that are cast out to thy house? when thou seest the naked that thou cover him, and that thou hide not thyself from thine own flesh?" [Verses 5-7.]14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 12

God's cause embraces every needy, suffering saint. We are not selfishly to single out a few relatives and friends and help them, letting our work end here. All the needy who come to our notice are to be helped, but especially those who are suffering for the truth's sake. If we neglect this work, God will hold us accountable. Shall we not, as a people who work righteousness, follow the conditions God has laid down, and be doers of His Word?14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 13

May the Lord let His converting power rest upon men and women. May they realize the importance of working in Christ's lines. When they do this, the promise will be theirs, "Then shall thy light break forth as the morning, and thine health shall spring forth speedily; and thy righteousness shall go before thee; the glory of the Lord shall be thy reward. Then shalt thou call, and the Lord shall answer; thou shalt cry, and he shall say, Here I am. If thou take away from the midst of thee the yoke, the putting forth of the finger and speaking vanity; and if thou draw out thy soul to the hungry, and satisfy the afflicted soul; then shall thy light rise in obscurity, and thy darkness be as the noonday. And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones, and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water whose waters fail not." [Verses 8-11.]14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 14

Let not the representative men in our institutions think that their zeal for some department of the work will excuse them for withholding from Christ in the person of His saints the help God has said should be given them. No one can bless the cause by gifts and offerings who leaves the Lord's suffering children under the yoke of oppression. Let those in positions of trust remember that when God's children in their unrelieved distress cry to Him, He hears their prayers. He tests their brethren and sisters by giving them opportunity to help these needy ones. If they do not obey the command, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself," how can God bless them? [Leviticus 19:18.]14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 15

I have been instructed to say that it is time that practical religion was more deeply respected. Let every church member make close self-examination in regard to this matter. The blindness that is upon human minds seems marvelous. The hardness of heart, the neglect to relieve suffering, almost baffles belief. Earnest work must be done in order to redeem the time, to make confession and restitution. When cases of suffering are brought to our notice, and we do not make immediate efforts to relieve this suffering, our neglect is charged against us as done to Christ.14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 16

That which is given for Christ enriches the giver. Hear what the Lord says in regard to those who care for the poor:14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 17

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor: the Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will preserve him and keep him alive, and he shall be blessed upon the earth; and thou wilt not deliver him into the will of his enemies. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing; thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness." "Trust in the Lord, and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily, thou shalt be fed." [Psalm 41:1-3; 37:3.] "Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase; so shall thy barns be willed with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine." "There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, and it tendeth to poverty. The liberal soul shall be made fat, and he that watereth shall be watered also himself." [Proverbs 3:9, 10; 11:24, 25.]14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 18

"He that hath pity on the poor lendeth unto the Lord; and that which he hath given will he pay him again." [Proverbs 19:17.] "Give and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give unto your bosoms. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again.” [Luke 6:38.] “True religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world.” [James 1:27.] 14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 19

Paul declared, “I have showed you all things, how that so laboring ye ought to support the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, It is more blessed to give than to receive.” [Acts 20:35.] “Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give, not grudgingly, nor of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver. And God is able to make all grace abound toward you, that ye, always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work.” [2 Corinthians 9:7, 8.] “For God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love, which ye have showed toward his name, in that ye have ministered to the saints, and do minister.” [Hebrews 6:10.] 14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 20

God’s people must make no delay if they wish the Lord to fulfill His promises to them. I have been clearly led by the Lord to take up this matter. There are many neglected ones who have cried to the Lord because of the indifference of their brethren. The representative men among us need to feel the converting power of God. I am constrained by the Holy Spirit to tell my brethren in positions of trust to seek the Lord while He may be found. “Call ye upon him while he is near. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts; and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him, and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon. For my thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts.” [Isaiah 55:6-9.] 14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 21

The Spirit of the Lord is grieved, and hindered from coming in power to our churches, because of the hard, iron-like spirit that is cultivated and manifested when brethren fall into decay. The attributes revealed are more like the attributes of Satan than the goodness, mercy, and pitying tenderness of our Saviour. Shall we not change this spirit? Shall we not ask Christ to subdue and soften our hearts, filling them with His love? God grant that this hardness and impenitence may be seen and repented of before it is everlastingly too late. 14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 22

How will those men and women meet God in peace who read appeals for help in fields where the truth has never been presented, and yet close the door of the heart, making no special effort to lift the standard and proclaim the warning, "Prepare to meet thy God"? [Amos 4:12.] Ruin is soon to come upon all who refuse to obey God. The Minister of our salvation declares, "Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, I will liken him unto a wise man, which built his house upon a rock. And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not; for it was founded upon a rock. And everyone that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, which built his house upon the sand. And the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell; and great was the fall of it." [Matthew 7:24-27.]14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 23

The Lord Jesus, in His mission to the world, continually carried the burden of the individual members of the human family. When He saw people afflicted by Satan's power, He was touched by their woe. God permits chastisement to come to His children that they may be drawn from the earthly attractions, which imperil the soul, to look to Him for refuge. But He has an intense longing that each one shall have happiness in this life and gain an immortal inheritance in the kingdom of heaven. He sees men and women passing through life with unholy, impure, defective characters, and He seeks to draw their attention to Himself, that by beholding His representation of God, they may be led to see their own unchristlikeness, and be brought into conformity to His divine will. 14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 24

No one will understand the gospel who fails to see that the cross of Calvary is the source of all life, all elevation. No one can find peace in believing while he is ashamed to bear the cross and follow his Leader. 14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 25

"Follow after peace." [Romans 14:19.] Christ's righteousness always brings peace and joy in the Holy Ghost. Sinning knowingly against God destroys this peace and drives away the Spirit. 14LtMs,

Ms 145, 1899, par. 26

No one can be happy apart from God. Holiness means wholeness to God in life and character. When the heart is emptied of self, the vacuum must be filled with the Holy Spirit. If the soul is emptied, then swept and garnished but not filled with the Spirit, Satan comes with other evil spirits and takes possession of the uninhabited house. And God's Word declares, "The last state of that man shall be worse than the first." [Matthew 12:44, 45.] Christ will not accept a divided heart. There must be a continual watching unto prayer. "Watch and pray," Christ enjoined His disciples, "that ye enter not into temptation." [Matthew 26:41.]14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 27

"Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." [Matthew 5:8.] These have such an intense desire to know God, such an earnest longing to do His will, that there is revealed to them a representation of God in His Word. Those who cultivate purity and simplicity of heart will indeed be rewarded. "Thus saith the high and lofty One, that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy: I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones." [Isaiah 57:15.] The stronghold of faith, which rests on Christ, the living and eternal Foundation, will ever remain secure, a resting place for the wear souls of those who put their trust in God.14LtMs, Ms 145, 1899, par. 28

“What Shall a Man Give in Exchange for His Soul?”

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

October 7, 1899

Previously unpublished. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The question was asked by Christ, “What is a man profited if he gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or, what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?” [Matthew 16:26.]14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 1

Men sells himself cheaply when he spends his life in securing worldly advantages; for in the ambition to secure earthly estate, business occupies the mind, and God is forgotten, and man reaps loss to all eternity. His money and lands cannot pay a ransom for his soul. Better, far better, are shattered hopes and the world’s denunciation with the approval of God than to sit with princes and forfeit heaven. Christ declares, “Ye cannot serve God and mammon.” [Matthew 6:24.]14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 2

Addressing the churches through the disciple John, Christ said, “He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit saith unto the churches. And unto the angel of the church of the Laodiceans write: these things saith the Amen, the faithful and true witness, the beginning of the creation of God. I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot. So then, because thou art lukewarm, and neither cold nor hot, I will spue thee out of my mouth. Because thou sayest, I am rich, and increased with goods, and have need of nothing: and knowest not that thou art wretched and miserable and poor and blind and naked; I counsel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayest be rich; and white raiment, that thou mayest be clothed, that the shame of thy nakedness do not appear; and anoint thine eyes with eyesalve, that thou mayest see.” [Revelation 3:13-18.]14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par.

We are to make diligent work for eternity. Those to whom the Lord has entrusted the talent of means, He expects to return to Him their gifts and offerings. They are to act in behalf of Christ, representing the character of the great Gift which God gave to save a sinful world. In entrusting means to human beings, He designs that they shall be not consumers, but producers. 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par.

Christ bridged the gulf that sin had made, and thus He showed how highly He estimates the human race. He clothes His divinity with humanity that humanity might take hold of divinity and man become a partaker of the divine nature. And having done so much, He did not leave His work unfinished. He was known on earth as the Friend of sinners. He mingled with all classes of society, that all might become acquainted with God manifest in the flesh. He did not shun the social life of His countrymen; at the very opening of His ministry He attended a marriage feast in Cana. Death and hell were conquered by His presence. He healed disease, rebuked injustice and oppression, and preached the gospel to the poor. In the wilderness of temptation He met the enemy and conquered him with a "Thus saith the Lord." "Get thee hence, Satan," He said, "it is written, thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." [Matthew 4:10.] 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 5

How great was this Gift to man, and how like our God to make it. With a liberality that can never be exceeded He gave that He might save the rebellious sons of men and bring them to see His object and discern His love. Will you by your princely offerings show that you think nothing too good to give to Him who "gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life"? [John 3:16.] 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 6

God has honored man in making him a laborer together with Christ. Yet how many are despising the message of mercy coming to them from God? There is nothing in all the world of so great consequence to Christ as His purchased possession, His church, His workers who go forth to scatter the seeds of truth, looking forward to the harvest. None but Christ can measure the solicitude of His servants as they seek to save that which is lost. And He imparts His Spirit as the self-sacrificing worker, with earnest, untiring efforts, labors to win souls from sin to righteousness. A Paul may plant; and Apollos water; for this is his work; but it is God alone who can give the increase. 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 7

When Christ's ambassadors present the gospel in its simplicity, and the hearers respond to the Word presented, nothing is so gratifying to the heart of Infinite Love than for these souls to come to Him confessing their sins and giving expressing to their faith and <to the> truth; for He delights to impart to them His righteousness. When the question comes from the anxious soul, "What shall I do to be saved?" the answer returns, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ as your personal Saviour, and thou shalt be saved." [See Acts 16:30, 31.] 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 8

Angels rejoice to see hearts opened to receive the communication of light and love and pardon. When thanksgiving arises from human hearts because souls are receiving the impress of Christ, heavenly beings take up the song of praise. The prophet Zephaniah writes, "In that day it shall be said to Jerusalem: Fear thou not: and to Zion, Let not thine hand be slack. The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; he will save; he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love; he will joy over thee with singing." [Zephaniah 3:16, 17.] 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 9

And will not the soul redeemed render to the sin-pardoning Saviour his love and homage? Yes, verily. With the psalmist he will sing, "I waited patiently for the Lord, and he inclined unto me, and heard my cry. He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings. And he hath put a new song in my mouth, even praise unto our God: many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord. Blessed is that man that maketh the Lord his trust, and respecteth not the proud, and such as turn aside to lies. Many, O Lord my God, are thy wonderful works that thou hast done, and thy thoughts which are to usward; they cannot be reckoned up in order unto thee: If I would declare and speak of them, they are more than can be numbered." [Psalms 40:1-5.] 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 10

The man who loves God will not only offer Him lip service in praise and thanksgiving, but he will bring to the treasury his gifts and offerings that laborers may be sent forth to sow the precious seed. Will you show by your lives that you are seeking precious pearls? “Ye are God’s husbandry; ye are God’s building.” [1 Corinthians 3:9.] God and man combine their efforts in this work. 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 11

Christ calls His people to unity, to bind themselves together in the bands of Christian fellowship. Let those who have named the name of Christ cease their criticism, and bind up with one another and with Christ. Let them cherish feelings of tenderness and love, and not think it a virtue to differ. God’s workmen will have to guard jealously their own spirit lest they allow Satan to come in and weaken them through disunion. Where there is union, there is strength. Let all your devising tend to bind you together, that you may be complete in Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 12

The Word of God demands that we be one with Christ as He was one with the Father, “that,” says the apostle, “ye may be the children of your Father which is in heaven.” [Matthew 5:45.] The Lord is not pleased with variance and strife, and if His people will work intelligently and harmoniously, God will work with them and through them. But if they spend time and energy in strife for the supremacy, God will leave them in their weakness, for He will never work with unconsecrated elements. God calls for pure-spirited workers. 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 13

“A new commandment I give unto you,” Christ says, “That ye love one another: as I have loved you, that ye also love one another. By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love for one another.” [John 13:34, 35.] “As the Father hath love me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love. If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father’s commandments, and abide in his love. These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full. This is my commandment, That ye love one another, as I have loved you.” [John 15:9-12.] 14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 14

the heart. He will seek to place his mark of division and strife upon God's people. This enemy is to be steadfastly resisted by every individual soul. We inquire of those who claim to be followers of Christ, Will you resist the devil, that he may not weaken and destroy God's heritage, or will you unite with the enemy of righteousness to do his work and dishonor God? "This is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." [1 John 5:4.]14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 15

Christ's prayer for His followers was, "The glory which thou gavest me, I have given them: that they may be one, even as we are one. I in them, and thou in me: that they may be made perfect in one: and that the world may believe that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them as thou hast loved me. Father, I will that they also whom thou hast given me, be with me where I am: That they may behold thy glory which thou hast given me; for thou lovedst me before the foundation of the world. O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee: but I have known thee, and these have known that thou hast sent me. And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it: that the love wherewith thou hast loved me may be in them, and I in them." [John 17:22-26.] When God's people work together harmoniously and intelligently, Christ's request to the Father for them will be fulfilled.14LtMs, Ms 146, 1899, par. 16

The Yoke of Restraint and Obedience

NP

October 9, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 8MR 266-267; 17MR 27. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart; and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.” [Matthew 11:28-30.]14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 1

Christ’s yoke is a yoke of restraint and obedience. We owe full and complete obedience to our Lord, for we are His by creation and by redemption. “God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.” [John 3:16.]14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 2

We are to bear the yoke of Christ, that we may be placed in complete union with Him. “Take my yoke upon you,” He says. [Matthew 11:29.] When God’s requirements are in direct opposition to the will and purposes of the human agent, what is to be done? Hear what God says. “If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.” [Matthew 16:24.] The yoke and the cross are symbols which represent the same thing—the giving up of the will to God. Wearing the yoke unites finite man in companionship with the dearly beloved Son of God. We cannot follow Christ without lifting the cross and bearing it after Him. If our will is not in accordance with the divine requirements, we are to deny our inclinations, give up our darling desires, and step in Christ’s footprints.14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 3

The Lord does not encourage the wisest, most cherished plans of human beings if He sees that they are not for the healthfulness of the spirituality of His cause. Sometimes the Lord's purposes come in direct opposition with plans in which the human agent himself cannot see a flaw. Then it is that the right hand must be sacrificed and the right eye taken out. Purposes which seem in every way desirable must be given up. The Lord sees that for the spiritual health of the human agent and for the future well being of His cause, all self-confidence must be cut away. Human wisdom and self-sufficiency must be broken down. 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 4

The Lord never makes a false estimate concerning His heritage. He measures the men with whom He is working. When they submit to Christ's yoke, when they give up the struggle which has not been profitable for themselves or for the cause of God, they will find peace and rest. Men frame for their own necks yokes which seem light and pleasant to wear, but which will prove galling in the extreme. Men do not see this, but Christ sees it as it is, and He says, "Take My yoke upon you. The yoke you would place on your own neck, thinking it a precise fit, will not fit at all. Take My yoke upon you, and learn of Me the lessons essential for you to learn, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and you shall find rest unto your souls. For My yoke is easy and My burden is light." [Matthew 11:29, 30.] 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 5

"He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." [Mark 8:34.] Lifting this cross cuts away self from the soul, and places the human agent where he can learn how to wear Christ's yoke, how to bear His burdens. When men and women become sensible of their own weakness, their own deficiencies, they will delight to do God's will. They will submit to the yoke of Christ. Then God can work in them, to will and to do of His own good pleasure, which is often entirely contrary to the plans of the human mind. When the heavenly anointing comes to us, we shall learn the lesson of meekness and lowliness, which always brings rest to the soul. 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 6

God brings all into trying positions, to see if they will trust in a power out of and above themselves. He sees not as man sees. He often has to break up human connections and change the order which man has mapped out, which is perfect in his estimation. What man things are for his spiritual and temporal interests may be altogether at variance with the experience he must have in order to be a follower of Christ. His idea of his own value may be far out of the way. 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 7

Tests are placed all along the way from earth to heaven. Unless this was so, the road to heaven would not be called the narrow way. Character must be tested, else there would be many spurious Christians, who would keep up a fair semblance of religion until their inclination, their desire to have their own way, their pride and ambition, was crossed. When by the Lord's permission sharp trials come to them, their lack of genuine religion, of the meekness and lowliness of Christ, shows them to be in need of the work of the Holy Spirit. 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 8

Abraham believed God, and delighted to obey Him. When he was commanded to offer up his only son as a sacrifice, he could not reason out the command. He stopped reasoning and obeyed. No one could have been more severely tested. God desired to give Abraham a lesson that would be for his present and eternal good. Abraham obeyed the command and came off conqueror. God's people today will be tested and tried. The Lord will put His purposes in the place of their devising. This will often be contrary to human desires and inclinations, contrary to the dictates of the flesh. 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 9

Christ's words, "He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me" [verse 34], is the touchstone which discovers the quality of a man's experience. When a man's inclinations or ambitious hopes are crossed, he reveals the spirit which governs him. The Lord permits trials to come to His people; and the only way to do with these trials is to take them all to Jesus. He says, "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me." [Matthew 11:29.] The cross of self-denial and self-sacrifice stands directly in our way. 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 10

If we separate from Christ, we shall rebel because we are called upon to lift this cross. We shall fret and complain, manifesting traits of character which show that there is need of a crucifixion of the will before God can work in us. Christ declares that the only course for men and women to pursue which is for their present and eternal good is to comply with His invitation. He, the Majesty of heaven, disrobed Himself of His glory, and clothes His divinity with humanity, that He might pass through what humanity must pass through. 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 11

Christ invites all to take His yoke and learn His meekness and lowliness. He knows that it is positively necessary for them to do this. But no human being can wear the yoke of submission and obedience who does not learn daily in the school of Christ. Whatever may be a person's supposed amiability, however qualified for usefulness he may appear to be, however righteous he may be apparently, he cannot work for God unless he learns of Christ. Qualification for true service can never be acquired apart from Christ. No one, whatever may be his supposed abilities, can bear the test of trial unless he is a student in the school of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 12

Our Saviour purchased the human race by humiliation of the very severest kind. He submitted to mockery, abuse, scorn, and to a cruel, shameful death to make it possible for man to be saved. He points us to the only path that will lead to the strait gate opening into the narrow way, beyond which lie broad and pleasant pastures. He has marked out every step of the way, and that no one may make a mistake, He tells us just what to do. "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." [Verses 29, 30.] This is the only way in which sinners can be saved. Knowing that no human being can do this in his own strength, Christ tells us not to be worried or afraid, but to remember what He can do if we come to Him, trusting not in our human weakness, but in His strength. He says, If you yoke up with me, your Redeemer, I will be your strength, your efficiency. 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 13

The blessings connected with Christ's invitation can only be realized and enjoyed by those who wear Christ's yoke. Accepting this invitation, you withdraw your sympathy, your affections, from the world, and place them where you can realize the blessing of close fellowship and communion with God. By coming to Christ, your interests are bound up with His. 14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 14

The Lord has determined that every soul who obeys His Word shall have His joy, His peace, His continual keeping power. Such men and women are brought near to Him always, not only when they kneel before Him in prayer, but also when they take up the duties of life. He has prepared for them an abiding dwelling place with Himself, where the life is purified from all grossness, all unloveliness. By this unbroken communion with Him, they are made co-laborers with Him in their daily lifework.14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 15

Christ says, "Without me ye can do nothing." [John 15:5.] As we advance step by step in the path of obedience, we shall know how true is the promise that they who follow on to know the Lord shall know that His going forth is prepared as the morning. Clearer light is ready to shine upon all who follow Him who is the Light of the world.14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 16

Every one who takes upon him the yoke of Christ, with full determination to obey every word of God, will have a healthful, symmetrical experience. He will enjoy the blessings which come to him as a result of his life being hid with Christ in God. In business life he will work out the principles laid down in Christ's sermon on the mount. He will renounce the bag of deceitful weights, and will despise the fraud of tricks in trade. He will earn money, not to hoard it, but to put it in circulation. He has an abiding sense that he is a part of the heavenly firm, and that it is his duty to trade the talents given him by God. He realizes that he is adopted into the family of God, and that he must act toward all as Christ acted when He was upon this earth.14LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 17

What a diligent, constant work is the work of the true Christian. Ever he wears the yoke of Christ. Evil surmisings are not allowed to take root in his heart. He has genuine modesty, and does not talk of his own accomplishments and qualifications. Self-admiration is not a part of his experience. There is much to learn in regard to what comprises true Christian character. It certainly is not self-inflation. The true Christian keeps his eyes fixed on Him who searcheth the heart and trieth the reins, who requires truth in the inward parts. His constant prayer is, Search me, O Lord, and let me know my heart. Try me, and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 18

Compliments are not to be given to sinful, erring men. The glory and majesty of God should ever fill our souls with a holy awe, humbling us in the dust before Him. His condescension, His wide, deep compassion, His tenderness and love, are given us to strengthen our confidence and remove that fear that tendeth unto bondage. The Lord wants us to give Him all there is of us in a steady, evenly balanced Christian life which illustrates the principles of His law.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 19

Let us not endure the thought of being religious dwarfs. Let us press on, receiving the counsel of Jesus Christ, having that faith that works by love and purifies the soul. We must ever be growing unto the full stature of men and women in Christ Jesus, till we are complete in Him. Christ will come and abide with every soul who will say from the heart, "Come in." He loves every soul who has a desire to follow Him. He knows that it is the impatience and fretfulness of the human heart, and the pride that loves not humility, that keeps the soul from good. He invites us, "Come unto me. Take My yoke upon you. I require you to do nothing that I have not done before you. All I ask you to do is to follow My example. Walk in the path I have marked out. Place your feet in My footsteps. Consider Him who endured the contradiction of sinners against Himself, lest ye be weary, and faint by the way."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 20

"Let nothing be done through strife or vainglory; but in lowliness of mind let each esteem other better than himself. Look not every man on his own things, but every man also on the things of others. Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus, who, being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God: but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men." [Philippians 2:3-7.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 147, 1899, par. 21

The Need of Self-Surrender

NP

October 8, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in SW 12/05/1899; BTS 10/1910.

For weeks past I have been very busy, but the Lord has sustained me. I have visited Maitland, driving there in my carriage with W. C. White and his wife. We drove the whole distance, twenty-seven miles, without entering a house. When we reached Maitland, we took a hired carriage and horse, and drove about ten miles, looking for a suitable place for our camp meeting. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 1

Maitland is twenty-seven miles from Cooranbong, and nearly as far from Newcastle. It is a very fine place. The town is divided into two parts, East Maitland and West Maitland. East Maitland is built on high, dry ground. West Maitland is lower, but has a larger population. The Hunter River runs through Maitland, and when the rains are continuous, the lowlands are flooded. East Maitland is three or four miles from West Maitland, and being high, is never flooded. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 2

The rainy season is over, and nothing now stands in the way of our having a camp meeting in West Maitland, in the very midst of the people. Maitland is situated in a farming district. The people are not so largely dependent on trades as in some places, and therefore it would be much easier for them to keep the Sabbath. We have a great desire to commence the work in Maitland right, and carry it forward with a healthy, growing interest. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 3

Next comes Singleton, a town on the line from Maitland to Queensland. The towns all along this line must be worked. Australia is a world in itself. Few comprehend the magnitude of this country. Had it been thoroughly worked when the first missionaries entered it, a far larger territory would now know the truth.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 4

In our work here, every step has had to be made in faith. We have advanced step by step, pressing our way by camp meetings. But our movements are now bound about for want of means.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 5

We have the assurance that in this age of the world the Holy Spirit will work with mighty power, unless by our unbelief we limit our blessings, and thus lose the advantages we might obtain. Much money was in circulation in this country when the truth was first introduced. Bad management on the part of the government brought about a dearth of means, but in spite of this, we are advancing. After one place has been entered, the word comes, Add new territory. Press the triumphs of the truth. Uplift the cross in the regions beyond. The vineyard is the world. Much money has been wasted by colonizing, when the work of annexing new territory should have been going forward, and the Lord's message sent forth as a lamp that burneth.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 6

In times past holy men of old spake as they were moved the Holy Spirit. In ancient times the prophets searched what the Spirit of God which was in them signified. The Spirit was not then given in power because Jesus was not yet glorified. Dating from the day of Pentecost, the Holy Spirit was to be poured forth on sons and daughters, on servants and handmaidens. In every hill country, every lowland, every valley, humble workmen for the Lord are to be raised up.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 7

The divine, sacred influence of the Holy Spirit working in our world is to be as signs and wonders, because God's people are a peculiar people, an holy nation, shining amid moral darkness as living stones in the Lord's building. The weakest and feeblest, if they exercise faith in God and improve their entrusted powers, will be elevated, refined and perfected in character under the Holy Spirit's working. Humble and contrite, they submit to the molding and fashioning of the Spirit, and they will know what His eternal fulness means.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 8

We need an enlarged faith. The Lord desires His will to be done in the hearts of all who believe in Him. But many who might be laborers together with God will never be, because they cling to their imperfections of character. One clings to a cherished fault. Still another enjoys his hereditary and cultivated defects and makes it his life work to build himself up and glorify himself, until at last he is found to be filled, not with the Holy Spirit, but with self.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 9

The great day of the Lord is right upon us, and God calls for messengers who will be worked by the Holy Spirit, who will not want to work the Spirit. Such messengers will be guided by the Spirit, molded, refined, and beautified in righteousness because they are willing to be worked. But those who are satisfied to carry with them a vast amount of selfishness, faultfinding, suspicion, distrust, and strife will be so deceived that they will not know their short measurement. They are filled with their own doings. They have not the least idea of what it means to be crucified with Christ. To humble self is an experience strange to them. Before they can serve God acceptably, self must die. Christ's words, "Ye must be born again," "Except a man be born again, he cannot see the kingdom of God," must come home to them with power. [John 3:7, 3.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 10

Nicodemus, to whom these words were addressed, was a master in Israel, a member of the Sanhedrin, and a learned counsellor; yet when Christ told him of the new birth, he said, "How can these things be?" Christ answered, "Art thou a master of Israel, and knowest not these things? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, We speak that we do know, and testify that we have seen; and ye receive not our witness. If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how shall ye believe if I tell you of heavenly things? And no man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven. And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up; that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have eternal life. For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [Verses 5-16.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 11

Why do we not have more of the faith that works by love and purifies the soul? There is a work to be done in every one of our institutions. Genuine conversion is needed, conversion of heart, mind, soul, and body. Self should die daily. Said the great apostle, "Though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh; (for the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds;) casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ." [2 Corinthians 10:3-5.] Into this work every individual needs to put all the intensity of his entire being. Personal religious experience is needed in every church. Why? Because those who are not under the working of the Holy Spirit will not stand amid the perils of the last days. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 12

Genuine conversion is needed in every one of our institutions. God's Word declares, "He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord. For not he that commendeth himself is approved, but whom the Lord commendeth." [Verse 17.] The success of the ministry of Elias was not due to any inherited qualities he possessed, but to the submission of himself to the Holy Spirit, which was given to him as it will be given to all who exercise living faith in God. In his imperfection man has the privilege of linking himself up with God through Jesus Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 13

Candidly and seriously we are to consider the question, Have we humbled ourselves before God, that the Holy Spirit may work through us with transforming power? As children of God, it is our privilege to be worked by His Spirit. When self is crucified, the Holy Spirit takes the broken-hearted ones, and makes them vessels unto honor. They are in His hands as clay in the hands of the potter. Jesus Christ will make such men and women superior in mental, physical, and moral power. The graces of the Spirit will give solidity to the character. They will exert an influence for good because Christ is abiding in the soul. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 14

Unless this converting power shall go through our churches, unless the revival of the Spirit of God shall come, all their profession will never make the members of the church Christians. There are sinners in Zion who need to repent of sins that have been cherished as precious treasures. Until these sins are seen, and thrust from the soul, until every faulty, unlovely trait of character is transformed by the Spirit's influence, God cannot manifest Himself in power. There is more hope for the open sinner than for the professedly righteous who are not pure, holy, and undefiled. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 15

I am instructed to bear a message to those who minister by holding forth the Word of God to others. You must be converted. This is surely what you need. The spiritual anointing of the Lord will never come to self-sufficient men and women. Many who are in God's service, proclaiming the truth by pen and voice, are not worked by the Holy Spirit. Self has grown to large proportions. Until the soul is emptied of self and the Holy Spirit takes possession, you will be unready for the coming of Christ. You will certainly be weighed in the golden scales of the heavenly sanctuary and be found wanting. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 16

God's promise is to us and to our children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God shall call. We may claim this promise for ourselves, and receive the Holy Spirit in His fulness. Then shall not we who preach the Word be clothed with the power of God? Shall we not be in truth His messengers? 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 17

But let not any in our institutions feel at liberty to make a tirade against the ministers, who ought to be men of God, full of holy zeal. Let those who minister as physicians of the body remember that their words and their works are under the supervision of God. Those connected with our sanitariums heed to walk very softly before God. Unless they are emptied of self, the Holy Spirit can find no place in the soul-temple. With many, the emptying process has not yet begun, but it is indispensable as the work which must be done before the Spirit can find entrance. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 18

Just in proportion as we empty the soul-temple of self-sufficiency, self-dependence, and self-exaltation, will we realize the work that needs to be done to purify soul, body and spirit before we can be filled with all the fulness of God. When this work is done, the power of God will be revealed, and the truth will be a mighty power in enlightening the mind, sanctifying soul and spirit. Then genuine conversions will be made to Bible truth.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 19

Who is willing to take himself in hand? Who is willing to lay his finger upon his cherished idols of sin, and allow Christ to purify the temple by casting out the buyers and sellers? Who is prepared to allow Jesus to enter the soul and cleanse it from everything that tarnishes or corrupts? The standard is, "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect." [Matthew 5:48.] God calls upon men and women to empty their hearts of self. Then His Spirit can find unobstructed entrance. Stop trying to do the work yourself. Ask God to work in and through you until the words of the apostle become yours: "I live! yet not I, but Christ liveth in me." [Galatians 2:20.]14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 20

The whole being must hunger and thirst after righteousness. The soul's desire must be to be drawn to God, to be bent in perfect conformity to His will. Then the cold, hard heart will be melted by the grace and love of God, which will appear in power. God will be glorified through the human instrumentalities. Self is the great hindrance to this work.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 21

Just as soon as the men in positions of trust realize their inability to do God's work, and submit to God's wisdom, the Lord can work with them. He will supply all our necessities if we will empty the soul of self. And when God works, give His name the glory. Do not receive praise from men. When self is abased, the Lord can work. Israel exalted herself, and the Lord abased her.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 22

"From whence comes wars and fightings among you? Come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members? Ye lust, and have not; ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain; ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not. ... Do ye think that the Scripture saith in vain, The Spirit that dwelleth in us lusteth to envy? But he giveth more grace. Wherefore he saith, God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble. Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands ye sinners; and purify your hearts ye doubleminded. Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep; let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to heaviness. Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up.” [James 4:1, 2, 5-10.] 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 23

“If ye have bitter envying and strife in your hearts, glory not, and lie not against the truth. This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish. For where envying and strife is, there is confusion, and every evil work. But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle and easy to be entreated, full of mercy, and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy. And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace.” [James 3:14-18.] These lessons every church member should learn. There is need of close self-examination in the light of the Word of God, that we may do the work essential to be done. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 24

Having complied with the Word of God, do not depend on your feelings for evidence of acceptance with God. “Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.” [Hebrews 11:1.] If you have complied with the conditions, believe God, whether or not you feel any different. Christ declared, “As the Father gave me commandment, even so I do. ... If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father’s commandments, and abide in his love.” [John 14:31; 15:10.] Let all who understand the abiding claims of the law of God yield implicit obedience to every requirement given in the Word. The convictions of the Holy Spirit are warnings which it is dangerous to disregard. 14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 25

Christ declares that those who do His words are like a man who built His house upon a rock. This house the tempest and flood could not sweep away. Those who do not do Christ’s words are like the man who built his house upon the sand. Storm and tempest beat upon that house, and it fell, and great was the fall of it. It was an entire wreck. The result of professing to keep the law of God, yet walking contrary to the principles of that law, is seen in the wrecked house. Those who make a profession while failing to obey cannot stand the storm of temptation. One act of disobedience weakens the power to see the sinfulness of the second act. One little disregard of a “thus saith the Lord” is sufficient to stop the promised blessing of the Holy Spirit. By disobedience the light once so precious becomes obscure. Satan takes charge of mind and soul, and God is greatly dishonored.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 26

“If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land; but if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword.” [Isaiah 1:19, 20.] These words are true. Exact obedience is required, and those who say that it is not possible to live a perfect life throw upon God the imputation of injustice and untruth.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 27

“Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me.” [John 5:39.] A neglect to feed the hunger of the soul leaves it weak and strengthless, unable to do the will of God. The life of such a one is like the barren fig tree, destitute of fruit. Rely upon no human being for words of comfort. Seek the Lord most earnestly, while you read His rich promises and apply them. Then you will not be consumers [but] providers.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 28

The indwelling Saviour is always revealed by the words. The Holy Spirit does not abide in the heart of the man who is peevish if others do not grasp his ideas and plans, which appear to him to be the sum and substance of everything desirable. From the lips of such a man there come scathing remarks, which grieve the Holy Spirit away, and produce attributes which are satanic rather than divine. The Lord would have those connected with His work speak at all times with the meekness of Christ. If you are provoked, do not become impatient. Manifest the gentleness of which Christ has given an example in His precious life. Christ took our nature that He might set us an example, showing those who receive Him the fruit they must bear.14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 29

The Lord requires those who serve Him to show by word and action that they are sons of God. To show by the daily life that we are members of the royal family, children of the heavenly King, is of more value in God’s sight than all learning, all wisdom, all high attainments. Any other course of action is dishonesty to the family of God, and will certainly be divorced from it.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 30

When a man is filled with the Holy Spirit, the more severely he is tested and tried, the more clearly he proves that he is a true representative of Christ in word, in spirit, in action. Christ declares, "He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works that these shall he do; because I go to my Father." [John 14:12.] What is the promise to every true believer? "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." [Acts 1:8.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 31

Might we not better, my brethren and sisters, take ourselves to task for our unlikeness to Christ? He says, "Ye are my witnesses." [Isaiah 43:10.] What kind of witnesses are we for truth and righteousness? Are we striving with all our God-given powers to reach the measure or the stature of men and women in Christ? Are we seeking for His fulness, ever reaching higher and higher, trying to attain to the perfection of His character?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 32

When God's servants reach this point, they will be sealed in their foreheads. The recording angel will declare, "It is done." [Ezekiel 9:11.] They will be complete in Him whose they are by creation and by redemption.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 33

There is nothing in the natural world that has life but what grows and produces fruit. And in the spiritual world there is no life without growth in grace. Spiritual impulse is not growth. Impulse is feeling, and to depend on feeling is to be as changeful as circumstances. The professed Christian who does not draw life from Christ's life is not a doer of the Word. He is a paralyzed member, only connected in name with the body. At times fitful, convulsive movements will be seen, with no permanent activity. Let no one think that the grace of Christ inspires these short-lived, impulsive actions.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 34

Many people are the subjects of impressions which are not reliable. Many have what they think are good impressions, wonderful exaltation of feeling, but the life does not represent an abiding Christ. They do not draw life from the Source of all life. They are not drinking of the living water, which springs up into eternal life. God's grace is the living water of which we must drink. It quickens the whole being into spiritual life, the life of the Son of God.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 35</sup>

Personal religion means perfect conforming to the life of Christ. When we possess this religion, we shall show sound, spiritual growth, because we are partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. Advance, is the watchword. There are no idlers in the Lord's vineyard. We must be laborers together, else we shall fail in the work of overcoming, and our religious influence will cause other souls to fail. No soul is lost that does not draw other souls down with it. Let every one who names the name of Christ depart from all iniquity, that Christ may not be ashamed of us.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 36</sup>

In the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, I appeal to church members to arise and closely criticize themselves. Feel that this work is so important that you cannot engage in criticizing others. Reveal an indwelling Saviour. Then you will understand what it means to be a true missionary. You will bring a Christlike intensity into your work, and many souls will be saved through your earnest prayers and interested labors.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 148, 1899, par. 37</sup>

Ms 149, 1899

“All Ye Are Brethren.”

“Sunnyside,” Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

October 24, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in 18MR 65-69. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

I was instructed in America, and have been instructed since coming to this country, that there would be many things to be adjusted in regard to the settlement of accounts in America and Australia. There are those who are so constituted that they should not be placed where they will have to deal with other minds as one in charge. They have traits of character that would place their brethren in difficult positions. Thus pain and suffering would be caused when there was no need of it. They would exercise an arbitrary authority, and manifest an overbearing spirit, that would imperil the souls of their fellow men. They lack judgment in dealing with their brethren, and a great positiveness takes possession of them. They do not treat their brethren as they would wish to be treated were they in similar circumstances. They forget that Christian courtesy, forbearance, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, pity, and love are to be exercised. “All ye are brethren.” [Matthew 23:8.] There is need of the Spirit of the Master. 14LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 1

I wish to present some matters to those laboring in New Zealand. There is need of a clearer light in regard to dealing with brethren. All minds are not constituted alike, and we may thank God that this is the case. Each person is at liberty to freely state his convictions, and there is to be no lording it over the children of God. No man is to take another man’s mind and mould it over to meet his mind and his ideas; for the molding might be for worse instead of for better. When one of those whom the Lord has chosen shows blindness of mind and makes mistakes, let his brethren remember that they also have made mistakes. Their way has not been perfect before God.

When a man takes control of any other man's conscience, he is entirely out of his place. The Lord has not delegated to any man the work of ruling his brother. There are times when powers pass through strait places. They are depressed. They want to do the will of God, and they long to clasp a friendly hand. Brethren differ in ideas, for their temperaments are unlike. One is more speculative than practical; another thinks his position gives him authority to say what the next man should and must do, without any argument on the point. "All ye are brethren." [Verse 8.] Let each resolve that he will not, under any provocation, show a cheapness and littleness of spirit, that he will speak no words in bitterness.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 3

Under the working of the Spirit, the disciples were made of one heart and one mind. But today different opinions are entertained in regard to the value of the work done. One estimates his work as of the most value. Another supposes his own work to be far more valuable than that of his brother. But men cannot judge one another's work. The Lord alone understands the heart. It is the motive which decides the value of the action. Let all cease to measure the work of other men by their own standard.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 4

Women, as well as men, are needed in the <carrying forward of> the work that must be done. Those women who give themselves to the service of the Lord, who labor for the salvation of others by doing <ministerial> house-to-house work, which is as taxing, and more taxing than standing before a congregation <to speak and preaching a sermon,> should receive payment for their labor <as verily as their brethren or their husbands.> If a man is worthy of his hire, so also is a women. <Here is a matter that God has taken up and reprov'd—that sisters qualified to do good in canvassing or giving Bible readings should be encouraged, and receive remuneration as well as men.><sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 5

God has entrusted talents to His servants, and He expects them to see that mistakes can be readily made. Make no mistake in neglecting to correct the error of giving ministers less than they should receive <for their labor. This has oft been done.> When you see persons in necessity who have been placed in positions of trust, let God move upon your heart to set things right. The tithe should go to those who labor in word and doctrine, be they men or women. <There has been neglect to recognize the time devoted in doing God's work, be it of a character of explaining the Word in private [or] in public in ministerial lines. Their work will generally testify in the saving of souls.>14LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 6

It is not right to leave persons unacknowledged who are doing a good work because they do not work just exactly in accordance with other men's ideas. It is not right for men to fold their hands in quietude, and see injustice done to any in the Lord's work. There is an open field for industry in cultivating the talents lent by God for the accomplishment of His work. Those whom men call strong are not to be allowed to oppress in the least a brother who is thought not to have the merits of the stronger. God says of those who are pushed and crowded, "If they cry unto me in their distress, I will hear their cry, and deliver them." There is no reward for cowardice, no reward for oppression, for partiality in God's service.14LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 7

Some receive credit for that which they have not done. Others are demerited for doing that which is just and right. There is a prudence which is stretched beyond measure, which shuns the work of lifting up and vindicating those who are wronged. But principle is to be maintained. Over and over again the persons misjudged are to be vindicated. Shortsighted ambition requires brick without straw, but God would have His work done with all careful regard for one another's feelings. A false estimate may be placed upon the work of a favored few, who have facilities, conveniences, and influence, but who have not obtained these favors by patient labor, practical self-denial and cross-bearing.14LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 8

God wants men of clear discernment, men whose eyes have been anointed with the golden oil from the golden tubes, which empty themselves, according to the order of God, into the vessels prepared for the reception of the sacred oil. Talent is best developed where it is most needed. At this time in our history God has a place for every worker, and reward will be given to those who have respect for the laws of demand and supply. Every pure, sincere worker sees that there is something better than mere wages. 14LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 9

I cannot at this time say all that might be said on this point. There is to be no criticism upon such things as are mentioned in Brother Mountain's letter. I see nothing at all to condemn in the action of Brother Hickox on the points referred to. Enough of this work of criticism has had a natural growth in New Zealand, and it needs now to be weeded out by the roots. God help us to have an education in the line of thinking no evil and speaking no evil, to watch closely every tendency of the human heart, that it may be softened and subdued, and bear the fruit of kindness, love, patience, and long-suffering. O that we all might look to Jesus, and say, "Thy gentleness hath made me great." [Psalm 18:35.] We want to be above all disposition to carp, to make the service of God disagreeable because of human ideas and suppositions. God is too wise to err, too good to do us harm. 14LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 10

When a man is having a hard time on every side, heaven beholds with pleasure the one who, moved by the Spirit of infinite love, takes hold of him with a firm hand, and lifts him up that his feet may not slide. Workers are few and too much needed to be turned into rebels because of things which are interpreted to be not exactly straight. We may criticize ourselves and humble ourselves and have a humble opinion of our own merits, but God save us from educating ourselves to pass judgment and act out our own ideas in regard to others. 14LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 11

The fields are spread out all around us, and any man who has a desire to do service for Christ need not remain where his efforts are misinterpreted. We need money badly enough, but not enough to hurt souls in order to obtain it; for this God cannot approve. The Macedonian cry is heard from every quarter, "Send us laborers. We want sound men." 14LtMs, Ms 149, 1899, par. 12

The Book of Revelation; The Rich Young Ruler

“The revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him, to show unto his servants things which must shortly come to pass; and he sent and signified it by his angel unto his servant John; who bare record of the word of God, and of the testimony of Jesus Christ, and of all things that he saw. Blessed is he that readeth, and they that hear the words of this prophecy, and keep the those things which are written therein; for the time is at hand.” [Revelation 1:1-3.] 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 1

“John to the seven churches which are in Asia: Grace be unto you, and peace, from him which is, and which was, and which is to come; and from the seven Spirits which are before the throne; and from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful witness and the first begotten of the dead, and the prince of the kings of the earth. Unto him that loved us, and washed us from our sins in his own blood, and hath made us kings and priests unto God and his Father, to him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him: and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him. Even so, Amen. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, saith the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty.” 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 2

“I John,” the apostle writes, “who also am your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ, was in the isle that is called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the testimony of Jesus Christ.” [Verses 4-9.] The same spirit which worked in the children of disobedience in Christ’s day was working against His followers. Notwithstanding the evidence given them, the Jewish people had not repented of their treatment of the Son of God, and now John, the oldest of Christ's first disciples, was exiled for the faith. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 3

The ruling powers at Jerusalem were amazed at John's testimony concerning the One whom they had condemned to death. The life and character of Christ had stood out before the world in sharp contrast with the life and character of the professedly religious rulers of the nation. His life of purity condemned their lives of selfishness and iniquity. And their jealousy and hatred of Him was intense. "The world is gone after him," they declared, and they determined to rid themselves of Him. [John 12:19.] At His condemnation they hired false witnesses to witness against Him, and the representations of these men stirred the lawless mob to a pitch of frenzy. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 4

When Barabbas was placed by the side of Christ, and Pilate asked, "Whom will ye that I release unto you? Barabbas, or Jesus which is called Christ?" they cried, "Barabbas, release unto us Barabbas." [Matthew 27:17; Luke 23:18.] "What shall I do then with Jesus," Pilate asked. And they answered, "Let him be crucified." [Matthew 27:22.] The thief and murderer was released, while the Son of God, who was free from every taint of evil, was condemned to die. Evil angels, under their leader Satan were the unseen agencies in this work. It was they who inspired the priests and rulers with the spirit of rebellion that originated with Satan. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 5

Christ was crucified, but He arose from the dead, appeared to His disciples, and ascended to heaven, escorted by myriads of heavenly beings. At the Father's throne He received the assurance that His sacrifice was accepted, and that the world, divorced from God by sin, was drawn across the gulf and given another trial. Receiving Christ as a sin-pardoning Saviour, man might become an heir of God and a joint-heir with Christ; "for God so love the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.] 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 6

John had been closely associated with the Saviour during His life of ministry. He had heard His wonderful words and had seen His wonderful deeds, and his testimony was given in clear lines. Out of the abundance of a heart overflowing with love for Christ he spoke, and no power could stay his words. If we will study the epistles of John, we will understand why it was that this disciple could not be left in his old age to live in peace among his brethren. "That which was from the beginning," he writes, "which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled, of the word of life; (for the life was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and show unto you that eternal life which was with the Father, and was manifested unto us;) that which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us: and truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son Jesus Christ." [1 John 1:1-3.]14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 7

"I sent unto you all my servants the prophets, rising early and sending them, saying, O, do not this abominable thing that I hate. But they hearkened not, nor inclined their ear to turn from their wickedness. ... Wherefore my fury and mine anger was poured forth, and was kindled in the streets of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem; and they are wasted and desolate as at this day." [Jeremiah 44:4-6.] A wicked ruler thought to silence John's testimony, and John was cast into a cauldron of boiling oil. But his testimony was not silenced. The servant of God was preserved as were the three worthies in the fiery furnace. The Son of God was with him, abiding in his heart by faith.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 8

Like his Master, John patiently submitted to every attempt to put him to death. When his enemies cast him into the cauldron of boiling oil, they thought to hear no more from him. But as the words of satanic origin were spoken, "Thus perish all who believe in that deceiver, Jesus Christ of Nazareth," John declared, "My Master patiently submitted to all that Satan and his angels could devise to humiliate and torture Him. He gave His life to save the world. He died that we might live. I am honored in being permitted to suffer for His sake. I am only a weak, sinful man, but Christ was holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sin and sinners. He did no sin, neither was guile found in His mouth." John's words, while suffering at the hands of his enemies, had an influence, and he was removed from the cauldron by the very ones who had cast him in.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 9

It was after this that John was sent to the isle of Patmos, where, separated from his companions in the faith, his enemies supposed he would die from hardship and neglect. But John made friends and converts even there. They thought that they had at last placed the faithful witness where he could no longer trouble Israel or the wicked rulers of the world. But all the heavenly universe saw the result of the conflict with the aged disciple and his separation from his companions in the faith. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 10

God and Christ and the heavenly host were John's companions on the isle of Patmos. From them he received instruction which he imparted to those separated with him from the world. There he wrote out the visions and revelations he received from God, telling of the things which would take place in the closing period of this earth's history. When his voice would no longer witness for the truth, when he could no longer testify of the One he loved and served, the messages given to him on that rocky, barren coast were to go forth as a lamp that burneth. Every nation, kindred, tongue, and people would learn the sure purpose of the Lord, not concerning the Jewish nation merely, but every nation upon the earth. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 11

"My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts. For as the rain cometh down, and the snow from heaven, and returneth not thither, but watereth the earth, and maketh it bring forth and bud, that it may give seed to the sower, and bread to the eater; so shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it. For ye shall go out with joy, and be led forth with peace: the mountains and the hills shall break forth before you into singing, and all the trees of the field shall clap their hands. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree, and instead of the brier shall come up the myrtle tree: and it shall be to the Lord for a name, for an everlasting sign that shall not be cut off." [Isaiah 55:8-13.] 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 12

The Sabbath that God instituted in Eden was as precious to John on Patmos as when he was with his companions in the cities and towns. The precious promises God had given regarding this day he repeated and claimed as his own. It was the sign to him that God was his, for had not God declared, "Verily, my Sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. ... Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel forever." [Exodus 31:13, 16, 17.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 13

"I was in the spirit on the Lord's day," John writes, "and heard behind me a great voice, saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the first and the last: and, What thou seest, write in a book, and send it unto the seven churches. ... And I turned to see the voice that spake with me, and being turned, I saw seven golden candlesticks; and in the midst of the seven candlesticks one like unto the Son of man, clothes with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the paps with [a] golden girdle. His head and his hair were white like wool, as white as snow, and his eyes were as a flame of fire; and his feet like unto fine brass, as if they burned in a furnace; and his voice as the sound of many waters."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 14

"And he had in his right hand seven stars, and out of his mouth went a sharp, two-edged sword; and his countenance was as the sun shineth in his strength. And when I saw him, I fell at his feet as dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying unto me, Fear not; I am the first and the last: I am he that liveth, and was dead; and behold, I am alive forever more, Amen; and have the keys of hell and of death. Write the things which thou hast seen, and the things which are and the things which shall be hereafter." [Revelation 1:10-19.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 15

The book of Revelation is to be understood because it is a revelation of the things which shall be in the last days. The future is large with importance to all who act a part in the closing scenes of this earth's history, when only two parties will be recognized, the lowly who keep the commandments of God, and the disloyal, who refuse allegiance, and trample on the fourth commandment and every other law that stands in the way of their interests.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 16

True religion is human nature brought to the perfection of the character of Christ. "I have kept my Father's commandments," Christ declared. [John 15:10.] Outward show, expensive churches, a multiplicity of ceremonies and traditions, is not religion. Purity of heart and lowliness of life alone bear the signature of heaven. A certain lawyer came to Christ with the question, "Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?" Christ placed the answering of the question upon the lawyer himself. "What is written in the law?" He asked. "How readest thou? And he answering said, Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." Christ said, "Thou hast answered right; this do, and thou shalt live." But the lawyer, willing to justify himself, said, "And who is my neighbor?" Then by the parable of the good Samaritan Christ showed who is our neighbor. [Luke 10:25-37.]14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 17

The gospel comprehends all that the family of God on earth should believe and practice. The law of God is far-reaching in its demands, and impresses the mind [of the believer] with a continual sense of his obligation to God and his dependence upon Him. Love to God and love to our neighbor are the two great principles underlying it, and these principles are binding upon every member of the human family. Those who refuse to obey God's law place themselves in the ranks of the enemy, as did the angels in the heavenly courts, when they united with the great apostate.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 18

True religion consists of repentance toward God because of transgression, and faith in Christ to save from sin. There is no power in the law to save the transgressor. The law convicts the sinner of sin, but it cannot save. Christ, the Lawgiver, must receive the convicted, repentant sinner, and pardon him. The Son of God gave His life that man might have a second probation. Every advantage which God gave His Son He would give to the members of the human family, that none should perish, but all become law-abiding citizens of His kingdom.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 19

John declares sin to be the transgression of the law, and faith in Christ as the sin-pardoning Saviour is the only way of escape from its penalty. In God's redemptive plan for the restoration of fallen man to himself, Christ was the sacrifice. He bore in His own body the sin of the world, that whosoever would might come and have everlasting life. The prayer of Christ to his father was in behalf of His disciples, and those who through their labors would become His followers. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 20

Jesus “lifted up his eyes to heaven, and said, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee: as thou has given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou has sent.” [John 17:1-3.] Satan is working with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish. Those who choose Christ will believe in Him as a personal Saviour, and these will have a personal experience in the knowledge of the only true God and Jesus Christ whom He has sent. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 21

*****

In the nineteenth chapter of Matthew is recorded the case of the rich young ruler. This man’s desires and tastes were not offensive, but favorable to the growth of spirituality. As he saw Christ blessing the little children, he was convinced that He must be a very good man. He was sure he could live in perfect harmony with Him. Hastening to the Saviour, he knelt before Him, and said, “Good Master, what good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?” “Why callest thou me good?” Christ asked. “There is none good but one; that is, God: but if thou wilt enter into life, keep the commandments. He said unto him, Which?” Jesus answered, “Thou shalt do no murder, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Honor thy father and thy mother, and, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.” [Verses 16-19.]14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 22

“And the young man said unto him, All these things have I kept from my youth up: what lack I yet?” [Verse 20.] He had been flattered for his amiable traits of character. He was willing to do good things, and he flattered himself that by his strict integrity in dealing with his fellow men he was fulfilling the law. The perfection of character which he thought he possessed ranked him in the same state spiritually as was Paul, when, touching the letter of the law, he thought he was blameless. But no human standard can save a soul from death. God's standard must be seen, acknowledged, and followed.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 23

"If thou wilt be perfect," Christ said, "go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shall have treasure in heaven: and come, follow me." [Verse 21.] Jesus needed the co-operation of just such men, whom God has entrusted with His goods. It is God's plan that those to whom He has given money or houses or lands shall act as His faithful almoners, relieving the suffering of their fellow beings, and in this way winning them to the Saviour.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 24

By helping the Saviour to help the needy, suffering ones around him, the young ruler would indeed have been laying up treasure in heaven. The test had come to him. What would the result be? When he heard Christ's words, "he went away sorrowful; for he had great possessions." [Verse 22.]14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 25

Jesus tested the young ruler by a true standard—the law of righteousness, which requires man to love his neighbor as himself; and the ruler proved himself to be destitute of love either for God or man. He thought himself perfect, but he was weighed in the balances of the sanctuary and found wanting. He was alienated from God, for he counted that which God had given him in trust as of far more value than heavenly treasure. He went away sorrowful, because he could not selfishly retain his possessions and at the same time have the pleasure of following Christ.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 26

"Then said Jesus unto his disciples, Verily I say unto you, That a rich man shall hardly enter into the kingdom of heaven. And again I say unto you, It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. And when his disciples heard it, they were exceedingly amazed, saying, Who then can be saved?" [Verses 23-25.] They had expected the young ruler to do as Matthew had done, and because of his refusal they were sorrowful and dejected. Jesus said, "With men this is impossible; but with God all things are possible." [Verse 26.]14LtMs,

Today the Holy Spirit works upon some who are not as self-confident as this young ruler. There are men and women who are truly converted, as was Paul. He says, "What shall we say then? Is the law sin? God forbid. Nay, I had not known sin but by the law: for I had not known lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet. But sin, taking occasion by the commandment, wrought in me all manner of concupiscence; for without the law sin was dead. For I was alive without the law once: but when the commandment came, sin revived, and I died. And the commandment, which was ordained into life, I found to be unto death. For sin, taking occasion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it slew me. Wherefore the law is holy, and the commandment holy and just and good." [Romans 7:7-12.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 28

If the rich young ruler had seen by the light of the commandment that he was sinful, if like Paul he had honored God by obeying the commandments in spirit and in truth, his sinful nature would have been slain by the law, and he would have laid hold of eternal life.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 29

James has a message for the church. He says, "Hearken, my beloved brethren; hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him? But ye have despised the poor. Do not rich men oppress you, and draw you before the judgment seat?" [James 2:5, 6.] Can we say that there is none of this attribute in us? Alas, we cannot. May God call to repentance the men who have imperilled His cause, before it is everlastingly too late. "If ye fulfill the royal law according to the Scripture, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself, ye do well; but if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced of the law as transgressors." [Verses 8, 9.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 30

The rich young ruler represents many in our world today. God has entrusted His goods to them that they may advance His kingdom by planting the standard of truth in places where the message has never been heard. But they do not carry out God's purpose. The words, "Deny thyself, take up thy cross, and follow me," cut directly across their cherished plans, and they refuse to obey. [Matthew 16:24.]14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 31

If rich men keep the commandments of God, they will do the work that needs to be done for those whom Christ has purchased with His blood. In this way only can they follow Christ. In order to save suffering humanity from perishing in sin, He left the royal courts to come to this earth. Laying aside His kingly crown and royal robe, He resigned His high command in the heavenly courts, and for our sakes became poor, that we through His poverty might be made rich. When God entrusts man with riches, it is that he may adorn the doctrine of Christ our Saviour by using his earthly treasure to advance the kingdom of God in our world. He is to represent Christ, and therefore is not to live to please and glorify himself, to receive honor because he is rich.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 32

The world values men according to their possessions, but the Owner of the whole world does not so value men.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 33

God's messages come to His people, but they have not been, and are not yet, willing to receive them. He is testing them as surely as He was testing the young ruler when He said to [him], "If thou wilt be perfect, go and sell that thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven, and come and follow me." [Matthew 19:21.] God calls upon His people to turn from the earthly to the heavenly, to yield up to Him His own. Nothing that they have is theirs; they themselves are not their own, for God's Word declares, "Ye are not your own; for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:19, 20.]14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 34

"Whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all." [James 2:10.] A great work needs to be done in our churches. The members are not prepared for the coming of the Lord. God's law needs to be written in heart and mind. Many, like the rich young ruler, when tested and tried, will refuse to deny self, take up the cross, and follow Christ. When the test comes to a man, and he refuses to obey, he shows that he is unregenerate in heart, whatever may be the outward propriety of his conduct, or whatever belief he may claim to have in the truth. He needs to have the law brought home to his conscience, that he may see the exceeding sinfulness of sin. He must die to self. Until self is crucified, he cannot know what spiritual holiness is.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 35

When the heart is cleansed from sin, Christ is placed on the throne which self-indulgence and love of earthly treasure once occupied. The image of Christ is seen in the expression of the countenance. Sanctification through the Spirit is carried forward in the soul. Self-righteousness is banished. There is seen the putting on of the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness. "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth at the right hand of God." [Colossians 3:1.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 36

The note of warning has been given, "Set your affection on things above, and not on things on the earth. For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ who is your life shall appear, then shall we also appear with him in glory." [Verses 2-4.] God accepts no divided service. Not one jot of the claims of the law can be abated to meet man in his fallen condition. Man must reach the highest standard. He must show a desire for perfection of character proportionate to the value of the object of which he is in pursuit.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 37

"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple. The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes. The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever, the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether. More to be desired are thy than gold, yea, than much fine gold, sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. Moreover by them is thy servant warned, and in keeping of them there is great reward. Who can understand his errors? Cleanse thou me from secret faults. Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me. Then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression. Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer." [Psalms 19:7-14.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150,

The religion of Christ never makes the receiver coarse, rough, or uncourteous. God's law is the transcript of His character, and every jot and tittle of that law was given to men and women for their good, to keep them from moral corruption. It was nonconformity to the law of God that so degraded the inhabitants of the old world that the imaginations of their hearts was evil, and that continually. God's Spirit strove with the men of that time, seeking to bring them back to purity and loyalty. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 39

“God looked upon the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted his way upon the earth. And God said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and, behold, I will destroy them with the earth. Make thee an ark of gopher wood, rooms shalt thou make in the ark, and thou shalt pitch it within and without with pitch. ... And behold, I, even I, do bring a flood of waters upon the earth, to destroy all flesh, wherein is the breath of life, from under heaven; and every thing that is in the earth shalt die.” [Genesis 6:12-14, 17.]14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 40

God said to Noah, “My spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is flesh; yet his days his days shall be an hundred and twenty years.” [Verse 3.] For one hundred and twenty years the people were to hear the warning. Noah was a faithful preacher of righteousness, and day after day his warning voice was heard. Day after day the people saw his faith demonstrated in the building of the ark. And at first some received the message, but the restraint of righteousness was obnoxious to them, and they threw off everything that disturbed their carnal indulgence. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 41

“As the days of Noah were,” Christ declares, “so shall also the coming of the Son of man be. For as in the days that were before the flood, they were eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of man be.” [Matthew 24:37-39.]14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 42

We have reached the time when we are to take heed to the warning given, "Watch therefore, for ye know not what hour your Lord doth come. But know this, That if the good man of the house had known in what watch the thief would come, he would have watched, and would not have suffered his house to be broken up. Therefore be ye also ready: for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh. Who then is a faithful and wise servant, whom his lord hath made ruler over his household, to give them meat in due season?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 43

"Blessed is that servant whom his lord when he cometh shall find so doing. Verily I say unto you, That he shall make him ruler over all his goods. But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming; and shall begin to smite his fellowservants, and to eat and drink with the drunken, the lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of, and shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth." [Verses 42-51.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 44

The very same state of things that existed in Noah's time exists today in our world. From pulpit and from press, by voice and pen, the proclamation goes forth that the law of God is done away. God calls upon those who know the truth to impart the light they have received. Like Noah they are to lift their voice in warning, saying, The end of all things is at hand.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 45

Voice the warning of Christ. Let it be given with intense fervor. Let not any one who believes the truth invest their means in worldly enterprises. Wherever a company of people is raised up, a humble house of worship should be built. We should not seek to make a grand display any where, for this would not advance the work. In all our buildings, churches, sanitariums, and schools, our economy should testify to our principles.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 46

Years ago school building should have been erected in other places besides Battle Creek, not large buildings, but buildings suitable for church schools, in which the children and youth could receive a true education. The lesson books used should be of a character to bring the law of God to the attention. The Bible should be made the foundation of education. In this work the light and strength and power of the truth will be magnified. Youth from the world, whose minds have not been depraved by habits of sensuality, will connect with these schools, and will there be converted. There mouths may indeed be stopped for a while by the false theories entertained by the parents, but in the end truth will triumph. This kind of missionary work, I am instructed, will have a most telling influence in extending the light and knowledge of truth. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 47

Crowding so many interests into Battle Creek has closed doors to cities and towns in which interested efforts should have been made to advance the truth we claim to believe. The number of our churches would be greatly multiplied if the light which had been selfishly hoarded in a few places had been imparted. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 48

In all our work the law of God must be presented, with its far-reaching requirements, to lead men and women and youth to see the need of loyalty to God. The efforts put forth to rescue degraded outcasts will not be of any avail unless the claims of the law of Jehovah are imprinted on mind and heart. God has enjoined nothing that is not necessary to bind up humanity with God. The law calls upon all who claim to believe in Christ to love God supremely and their neighbor as themselves. When love for God is cherished in the heart, love for those Christ has purchased with His own blood will be seen. 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 49

“Verily, my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations, that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you.” [Exodus 31:13.] This is the true sanctification [that] it is essential for all to have. There is no genuine sanctification apart from the sign of loyalty to God, for God says so. “Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the sabbath, to observe the sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel forever.” [Verses 16, 17.] 14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 50

God has given man the Sabbath which He instituted in Eden as a memorial of the work of creation, that as man shall look at the heavens, at the sun, moon, and stars, and at the earth, he may remember that in six days God formed the world, and on the seventh He rested and was refreshed.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 51

“Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets;” Christ said, “I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill. For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled. Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven.” [Matthew 5:17-19.] Not that they will in their transgression ever have a place in the family of God, but whatever their position on this earth may have been, the books of heaven declare them to be wanting. “But whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.” [Verse 19.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 52

The law of God is the principle of true holiness. Abolish one precept of that law, and you are breaking all the commandments. The gospel requires perfect obedience. The law of God is to be written on the heart; then it will be revealed in the character.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 53

Paul declares that the law of God is holy, just, and good. From the least to the greatest command God has given, not one is to be treated indifferently. Not one can be spared. God’s commands are true and righteous altogether. Not one command can we safely ignore, even though [it] may cut across what we suppose to be a chance of making a success in lines of worldly commerce. Christ says, “He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me.” [Mark 8:34.] Better to suffer the loss of earthly advantages, to endure poverty, reproach, imprisonment, and even death itself, for the sake of the cause of truth, than to make shipwreck of the faith by complying with evil practices.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 54

The divine grace which enters a renewed mind is a pervading, active, intense principle, which works like leaven till it has assimilated all to itself. It does not cease its absorbing operations till it has assimilated to itself all with which it comes in contact. It does not correct some evils and leave others untouched. The gospel will not tolerate vice or corruption of any kind. "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul." [Psalm 19:7.]14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 55

Whatever in thought, word, or deed; in temper, affection, habit, or disposition is not in perfect harmony with the law of God, the Holy Spirit instantly detects. It then presents the gospel looking glass, that the sinner may see himself in his sinfulness. Sin and the Holy Spirit cannot dwell in the same heart. As the Spirit works upon the heart, the divine virtues of truth are implanted. There is seen that faith that works by love and purifies the soul. Man accepts the invitation, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest;" and he finds rest because there is perfect conformity between his will and the will of God. [Matthew 11:28, 29.] He is made a partaker of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 56

We are not to look upon God as did the man who made a wrong use of his talent, as a harsh judge, and exacting creditor. The Lord is a rich giver, and by His gifts He places men in positions where they can trade upon His goods, and in this life lay up in store for themselves a good foundation for the time to come.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 57

God's gifts are bestowed in accordance with the ability of the human agent to use the entrusted gifts. The world is a vineyard, let out to husbandmen, who are to return to the Lord the fruit thereof in its season. But God receives very little fruit. Many are like the man with the one talent. This man failed to make any use of his gift. He might have been a provider had he put his gift out to the exchanger, but he was only a consumer. Anxious to benefit himself, he hid his lord's talent in the earth, thinking that if he improved it, he would be called upon to give it all back to the owner.14LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 58

God is a rich provider. He is a fountain of inexpressible love, and He desires all to remember that as His faithful servants they are to use His bountiful provisions to relieve the necessities of suffering human beings whom He has bought with the blood of His only begotten Son. This He did that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 150, 1899, par. 59

A Lesson from Israel's Disobedience

NP

October 30, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 2BC 1017; 4BC 1144, 1146, 1156.

The covenant mercy of God led Him to interpose in behalf of His people Israel after their severe chastisement before their enemies. Israel had chosen to walk in her own wisdom and righteousness in the place of the wisdom and righteousness of God, and as a result her nation was ruined. God permitted them to suffer under a double yoke, that they might be humiliated and repent. But in their dispersion and captivity, the Jews were not left in a hopeless state. Encouragement was given them, for through this humiliation they were to be brought to seek the Lord. God gave to Isaiah a message for this people: "Comfort ye, comfort ye my people, saith your God. Speak ye comfortably unto Jerusalem, and cry unto her that her warfare is accomplished, that her iniquity is pardoned: for she hath received at the Lord's hand double for all her sins." [Isaiah 40:1, 2.]14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 1

When the Jews were dispersed from Jerusalem, there were among them young men and women who were firm as a rock to principle, men and women who had not pursued a course to make the Lord ashamed to call them His people. These were sad at heart for the backsliding which they could not prevent. These innocent ones must suffer with the guilty; but God would give them strength sufficient for their day. It was to them that the message of encouragement was sent. The hope of the nation lay in these young men and maidens who would preserve their integrity. And in their captivity these obedient ones had an influence over their idolatrous companions. Had all who were taken captive held firmly to correct principles, they would have imparted light in every place where they were scattered. But they remained impenitent, and still heavier punishment came upon them. Their calamities were sent for their purification. God would bring them to the place where they would be instructed.14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 2

A future, complete restoration was offered to Israel in Christ, whose coming was to be heralded by one who would go forth in the spirit and power of Elias, saying, "Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make straight in the desert a highway for our God. Every valley shall be exalted, and every mountain and hill shall be made low: and the crooked shall be made straight, and the rough places plain: and the glory of the Lord shall be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together: for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." [Verses 3-5.] It was not the will of God that His people should pursue a course of unrighteousness, and thus bring upon them the contempt of the nations. He designed that they should be the praise of the whole earth. He greatly desired that this people whom He had brought up out of Egypt should show the superiority of those who keep the laws of His government. Obedience to the laws and statutes of His kingdom would exalt the nation, but disobedience would as surely bring about its downfall.14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 3

The first king of Israel proved a failure, because he set his will above the will of God. Through the prophet Samuel the Lord instructed Saul that as king of Israel his course of action must be one of strictest integrity. Then God would bless his government with prosperity. But Saul refused to make obedience to God his first consideration, and the principles of heaven the government of his conduct. He died in dishonor and despair.14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 4

Isaiah saw Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem amid the praises and rejoicing of the people. His prophetic words are eloquent in their simplicity: "O Zion, that bringest good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain; O Jerusalem, that bringest good tidings, lift up thy voice with strength: lift it up: be not afraid: say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God! Behold, the Lord God will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him: behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him. He shall feed his flock like a shepherd: he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom." [Verses 9-11.]14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 5

Inspiration is revealed in this record of Christ's work. These closing chapters of the book of Isaiah should be diligently studied, for they are full of the gospel of Christ. They reveal to us that Israel was fully instructed in regard to the coming Saviour. Again the prophet exclaims, "Behold, my servant, whom I uphold; mine elect, in whom my soul delighteth; I have put my spirit upon him: he shall bring forth judgment to the Gentiles. He shall not cry, nor lift up, nor cause his voice to be heard in the street." [Isaiah 42:1, 2.] He will not be like the teachers of His day. The ostentation and show and parade of piety revealed in the priests and Pharisees are not His way.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 6

"The bruised reed shall he not break, and the smoking flax shall he not quench: he shall bring forth judgment unto truth. He shall not fail nor be discouraged until he have set judgment in the earth: and the isles shall wait for his law." [Verses 3, 4.] Christ saw the work of the priests and rulers. The very ones who needed help, the afflicted, the distressed, were treated with words of censure and rebuke, and He forebore to speak any word that would break the feeble reed. The dimly burning wick of faith and hope He would encourage, and not quench. He would feed His flock like a shepherd; He would gather the lambs with His arms, and carry them in His bosom.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 7

"Thus saith the Lord, He that created the heavens, and stretched them out: he that spread forth the earth, and that which cometh out of it; he that giveth breath unto the people upon it, and spirit to them that walk therein: I the Lord have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant for the people, for the light of the Gentiles; to open the blind eyes, to bring out the prisoners from the prison, and them that [are] in darkness out of the prison house. I am the Lord, that is my name, and my glory will I not give to another, neither my praise to graven images.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 8

"Behold, the former things are come to pass, and new things do I declare; before the spring forth I will tell you of them. Sing unto the Lord a new song, and his praise from the end of the earth, ye that go down to the sea, and all that is therein; the isles, and the inhabitants thereof. Let the wilderness and the cities thereof lift up their voice, the villages that Kedar doth inhabit: let the inhabitants of the rock sing, let them shout from the top of the mountains. Let them give glory unto the Lord, and declare his praise in the islands.” [Verses 5-12.] 14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 9

This work had been given to Israel, but they had neglected their God-appointed work. Had they been faithful in all parts of the Lord’s vineyard, souls would have been converted. The Lord’s praise would have been heard from the ends of the earth. From the wilderness and the cities thereof, and from the tops of the mountains, men would have shouted His praise, and told of His glory. 14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 10

“I will bring the (spiritually) blind by a way that they knew not;” God declared, “I will lead them in paths that they have not known: I will make darkness light before them, and crooked things straight. These things will I do unto them, and not forsake them.” [Verse 16.] A great work is the Lord to do in the earth, and to every man He gives a part. The vineyard is the whole house of Israel. “We are laborers together with God,” the apostle says, “ye are God’s husbandry, ye are God’s building.” [1 Corinthians 3:9.] 14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 11

To the first church God gave a special work. Christ was the Head of the church, the educator of Israel, and the instruction He then gave has come down from generation to generation to our time. To His covenant-keeping people today, God has given the care of His vineyard, and His faithful servants are those who administer His will and judgment in the earth. Those who do His will shall know of the doctrine. Men may be ignorant of a knowledge of God, but when they place themselves in connection with Him, they will know Him by a living experience. These will learn of the doctrine. 14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 12

The issue of the battle does not rest upon the strength of mortal man. “The Lord shall go forth as a mighty man, he shall stir up jealousy like a man of war: he shall cry, yea, roar; he shall prevail against his enemies.” [Isaiah 42:13.] In the power of Him who rides forth conquering and to conquer, weak, finite man may gain the victory. 14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 13

God gives to His people lessons of deep importance, which they should never, never forget. He always has the needed instruction for them, if they have ears to hear and hearts to receive. Never are His people out of the mind of God. He always sends His messengers to warn them of their dangers, and to call them to repentance and conversion, that they may have the favor of God and the ministration of heavenly angels.14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 14

Whenever the set time for Zion's enlargement has come, God has provided men and women to stand in their lot and place. God's work for John the Baptist was to warn the people of God to turn from their sins to righteousness, and remove the obstacles which stood in the way of the Messiah's work. At the appointed time John appeared, to call men to repentance and confession of sin. In his message the invitation was given [that was] represented by Christ in the parable of the two sons. Those who heard the call and obeyed are presented in the son who at first refused to obey but afterward repented and went.14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 15

Had God's chosen people Israel stood in their appointed place, as the repositories of sacred, eternal truth, which was to come to the heathen world, Jerusalem would have stood to this day. But they were a rebellious people. And when God had done all that a God could do, even to the sending of His only begotten Son, they were so ignorant of the Scriptures and the power of God, that they refused the only help that could save them from ruin. "This is the heir," they said, "come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours." [Mark 12:7.]14LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 16

God appointed Israel to be a light to the Gentiles, thus to call them back to their loyalty. But Israel herself became blind to the light, deaf to the messages sent to open her understanding. And Christ declared, "The kingdom of heaven shall be taken from you, and given to the Gentiles." [See Matthew 21:43.] Now the test must come to all the people on the face of the earth. Those who go down to the sea are to have labor bestowed upon them. The salvation of God must be made known in the cities of the wilderness, and the workers today are called to do the work which Israel failed to do. God's glory is to be revealed, His Word established, and Christ's kingdom set up to give deliverance to the world.14LtMs, Ms 151,

“Arise, shine, for thy light is come, and the glory of the Lord is risen upon thee. For behold, the darkness shall cover the earth, and gross darkness the people: but the Lord shall rise upon thee, and his glory shall be soon upon thee. And the Gentiles shall come to thy light, and kings to the brightness of thy rising. ... Whereas thou has been forsaken and hated, so that no man went through thee, I will make thee an eternal excellency, a joy of many generations. ... Violence shall no more be heard in thy land, wasting nor destruction within thy borders: but thou shalt call thy walls Salvation, and thy gates Praise.” [Isaiah 60:1-3, 15, 18.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 151, 1899, par. 18

The Temple of God Must be Holy

NP

October 30, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in TSB 15; 3SM 419; 4MR 380-381, 398.

One about to marry a wife should stop to consider candidly why he takes this step. Is his wife to be his helper, his companion, his equal, or will he pursue toward her such a course that she cannot have an eye single to the glory of God? Will he venture to give loose rein to his passions and see how much care and taxation he can subject his wife to without extinguishing life, or will he study the meaning of the words, "Whatsoever ye do, in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus?" [Colossians 3:17.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 152, 1899, par. 1</sup>

A missionary is selected to go to a foreign country, and he decides that he can have more influence, and do better work, if he is married to some woman who can help him. This is well, but let those who select these missionaries make close investigation and see if they have consecrated themselves body, soul, and spirit to God, to preserve their powers for the work that is suffering to be done. Men and women who have no settled purpose, who are not consecrated to the work, should not be sent at great expense to labor in other fields.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 152, 1899, par. 2</sup>

Those who are planning to be missionaries should consider how great and perplexing are family responsibilities, how much time and energy they consume. Her family cares and household burdens call the mother away from the work, and necessitate the father devoting much of his time to the home life. Ere long we are to be brought into strait and trying places, and the many children brought into the world will in mercy be taken away before the time of trouble comes. Then why entail so much responsibility upon the wife? Souls that are perishing in their sins must be labored for, yet this work we have scarcely touched with the tips of our fingers. Let not men and women go forth as missionaries unless they understand what it means to be a missionary. The true missionary is a laborer together with God, to go where God's spirit leads, to hold himself free from earthly embarrassments to labor for the salvation of souls. 14LtMs, Ms 152, 1899, par. 3

The apostle writes, "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as unto the Lord. For the husband is the head of the wife even as Christ is the head of the church: and he is the saviour of the body. Therefore as the church is subject unto Christ, so let the wives be to their own husbands in everything." [Ephesians 5:22-24.] Men have taken an advantage of this Scripture. Men who do not possess a particle of Christianity, and whose habits and practices are below those of the brute creation, quote this Scripture, that they may gain unlimited control over the bodies of their wives, that they may indulge their animal passions and still justify their incontinence. The body is abused and degraded until the mental powers of both husband and wife are enfeebled. Nature endures the cruel taxation of mind and system, until she can endure no longer the unnatural abuse, and the wife sinks into a premature grave. 14LtMs, Ms 152, 1899, par. 4

The wicked practices carried on [in] the bedchamber are making our world a very Sodom. And women suffer in silence because the Bible says, "Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands." [Verse 22.] But the marriage vow does not sanction the abuse of the body. The wife is the Lord's property, and she should therefore act conscientiously. She should not allow her body to be abused and enfeebled. She is a child of God, purchased by an infinite price, and she is to glorify God in her body and in her spirit, which are God's. 14LtMs, Ms 152, 1899, par. 5

Again the apostle writes, "Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them." "Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ loved the church, and gave himself for it." [Colossians 3:19; Ephesians 5:25.] How can a man love his wife, who subjects her to continual child-bearing? Before her strength is recovered from one trying ordeal, she is subjected to another. There is no real love in this; it is merely the low, sensual gratification of animal passion. How can that man keep the glory of God in view? What does he know of the pure, elevated attribute of love?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 152, 1899, par. 6

Christ loved the church, “and gave himself for it, that he might cleanse it by the washing of water by the word, that he might present it to himself without spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish. So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies. He that loveth his wife loveth himself: for no man ever yet hated his own flesh: but nourisheth it and cherisheth it, even as the Lord the church: for we are members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones. For this cause shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall be joined to his wife: and they twain shall be one flesh.” [Verses 25-31.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 152, 1899, par. 7

Will the man who loves his wife as Christ loved the church imperil her life, and cut her off from all missionary service, by filling her hands and mind with the grave responsibilities which children bring with them into the world? Will he gratify his own passion to the sacrifice of his wife, subjecting her as often as possible to the painful ordeal of maternity? Is this cherishing the wife as Christ nourishes and cherishes the church? In pursuing such a course, is the husband studying the spiritual and physical good of his wife, that he may present her to God without spot and blameless?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 152, 1899, par. 8

That man is not fit to stand as the head of his wife who does not realize his obligations to God to purify himself even as He is pure, and to present his body to God a living sacrifice. If he enervates his system by base earthliness and corrupt practices, how can he present his body a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable to God? The husband who stands as the head of his wife as Christ stands as the head of His church, who loves his wife as he loves his own body, and cherishes and nourishes her as Christ the church, will not act in a way to destroy either his own powers or the powers of his wife.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 152, 1899, par. 9

“Grace be to you,” Paul writes, “and peace from God the Father, and our Lord Jesus Christ, who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from our sins according to the will of God and our Father.” [Galatians 1:3, 4.] “Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith: prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves, how that Jesus Christ is in you, except ye be reprobates? ... Now I pray God that ye do no evil: not that we should appear approved: but that ye should do that which is honest, though we be as reprobates.” [2 Corinthians 13:5, 7.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 152, 1899, par. 10

Victory Over Temptation

NP

October 31, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in Ev 591; 1BC 1105; CTr 200.

“Good and upright is the Lord: therefore will he teach sinners in the way; the meek will he guide in judgment; and the meek will he teach his way. All the paths of the Lord are mercy and truth, unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies. For thy name’s sake, O Lord, pardon mine iniquity; for it is great. What man is he that feareth the Lord? Him shall he teach in the way that he shall choose. His soul shall dwell at ease; and his seed shall inherit the earth. The secret of the Lord is with them that fear him; and he will show them his covenant.” [Psalm 25:8-14.]14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 1

The wilderness temptation which Christ endured was a personal conflict with the wicked one who had shown himself to be the author of sin. Satan was once a covering cherub in the heavenly courts, the angel next in power to Christ Himself. But he lifted himself up against God, and induced some of the angels to join him in rebellion. There was war in heaven, and Satan and his followers were cast out.14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 2

Expelled from heaven, Satan determined to set up a kingdom on this earth, and win man to his side. But Christ pledged His word that if man was overcome by temptation, He, the Son of God, would be his surety.14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 3

Christ came to our world to stand where Adam stood, to endure the temptations which Adam failed to endure. In behalf of the beings He had created, who had through sin become a fallen race, He stepped from the royal throne which He occupied as Prince of heaven, and clothed Himself with the garments of humanity. He was to be tempted on every point on which man would be tried. After His baptism, He went forth to the wilderness, and there He was tempted by the enemy. For forty days and forty nights He fasted; then, when He was an hungered, Satan came to Him as though he were a messenger from the heavenly courts, and tempted Him. In this contest Christ was at a disadvantage, for His strength was reduced by His long fast. The plan of salvation was so arranged that when Adam was tested, temptation was removed as far as possible from him. But nothing was done to remove temptation from Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 4

Satan came to the Saviour with the words, "If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread." As he tempted Adam on the point of appetite, so he tempted Christ. He knew that if he conquered here, he could gain the victory in any temptation he might bring up. Pointing to the stones lying around them, which resembled loaves of bread, he said, "If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread." Christ answered, "It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." [Matthew 4:3, 4.] 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 5

The enemy well knew the power of God's word. He knew that this word had supplied bread for the Israelites in their journeyings through the wilderness, and that the same word could now supply the necessities of Christ. But this was not God's plan. He designed that Christ should be treated as man is treated. He was not to exercise miraculous power in His own behalf; for if He did, Satan would say that His test had not been a fair one, because He had made use of supernatural power; and that He could not require man to keep all His requirements if the effort to keep them would destroy life. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 6

But the Lord does not bring those who live by every word that proceedeth out of His mouth into trying places in order to kill them. He can supply the needful food in a desert place as well as in a fruitful land. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 7

When Adam was tempted, he was not hungry. He had the opportunity of satisfying every want. But when Christ was tempted, He was faint from want of food. He was to qualify Himself for the office of Redeemer by successfully resisting every assault of the enemy. His power of resistance was to be an example for all who would hereafter be placed in trying positions. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 8

Satan had declared to his associate angels that he could overcome Christ on the point of appetite. He hoped to gain a victory over Him in His weakness. But Christ gained a complete victory over this temptation, thus placing men and women on vantage ground, where they can overcome as He overcame. Let those whose mental and moral power has been enfeebled by wrongdoing seek the Lord earnestly, and they will gain the victory, even over long-established appetite. "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.]14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 9

All who put their trust in God will come off more than conquerors. "Commit thy way unto the Lord; trust also in him; and he shall bring it to pass. And he shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and thy judgment as the noon day. ... The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord: and he delighteth in his way. Though he fall, he shall not be utterly cast down; for the Lord upholdeth him in his hand. ... The salvation of the righteous is of the Lord; he is their strength in the time of trouble. And the Lord shall help them, and deliver them; he shall deliver them from the wicked, and save them, because they trust in him." [Psalms 37:5, 6, 23, 24, 39, 40.]14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 10

*****

"Then the devil taketh him up into the holy city, and setteth him on a pinnacle of the temple, and saith unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down; for it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee; and in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone." [Matthew 4:5, 6.]14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 11

Satan desired Christ to make Himself guilty of the sin of presumption by needlessly exposing His life. He did not repeat the whole of the quotation, but left out the words, "In all thy ways," that is, In the path of duty. [Psalms 91:11.] If Christ had presumed on

God's mercy by risking His life to give Satan evidence of His Messiahship, He would not have been in the path of duty.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 12

Satan knows that if he can persuade human beings to venture out of the path of obedience, he can lead them on and still on in his way. He knows that then he can induce them to follow his plans by presenting something to be gained by disobedience.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 13

This temptation also Jesus firmly resisted. "It is written again," He said, "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." [Matthew 4:7.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 14

All should become familiar with God's Word, because Satan perverts and misquotes Scripture, and men follow his example by presenting part of God's Word to those whom they wish to lead in false paths, withholding the part which would spoil their plans. All have the privilege of becoming acquainted with a plain "thus saith the Lord." God's commands and requirements are all calculated to promote industry, economy, temperance, and wisdom. When men yield to the temptation to disregard God's Word, they range themselves under Satan's banner. There are false shepherds who will say and do perverse things. Children should be so instructed that they will be familiar with God's Word, and be able to know when part of a Scripture is read and part left unread in order to make a false impression.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 15

We are guilty of the sin of presumption when we defile our bodies. Paul declares, "If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are." [1 Corinthians 3:17.] Our bodies are a wonderful exhibition of God's incomprehensible skill and unceasing goodness. They are not to be trifled with. With all the power of a sanctified mind and a purified soul they are to be consecrated to God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 16

Parents, warn your children against the sin of presumption. Teach them that it is presumption to educate an appetite for tobacco, liquor, or any hurtful thing. Teach them that their bodies are God's property. They are His by creation and by redemption. They are not their own, for they have been bought with a price. Teach them that the body is the temple of God, and that it is not to be made strengthless and diseased by the indulgence of appetite. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 17

The Lord did not create the disease and imbecility now seen in the bodies and minds of the human race. The enemy desires to enfeeble the body, knowing that it is the only medium through which mind and soul can be developed for the up-building of a symmetrical character. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 18

God calls upon you to do a work which through His grace you can do. How many sound bodies are there that can be presented to God as a sacrifice that He will accept in His service? How many are standing forth in their God-given manhood and womanhood? How many can show a purity of tastes, appetite, and habits that will bear comparison with Daniel's? How many have calm nerves, clear brain, unimpaired judgment? Instead, thousands are today health-destroyers, self-made invalids, because of their disregard for the laws of health. Habits which are contrary to the laws of nature war constantly against the soul. In the Ten Commandments God has laid down the laws of His kingdom. Any violation of the laws of nature is a violation of the law of God. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 19

The Lord has given His holy commandments to be a wall of protection around His created beings, and those who will keep themselves from the defilement of appetite and passion may become partakers of the divine nature. Their perceptions will be clear. They will know how to preserve every faculty in health, so that it may be presented to God in service. The Lord can use them; for they understand the words of the great apostle, "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." [Romans 12:1, 2.] 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 20

*****

“Again the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain and showeth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them, and saith unto him, All these things will I give thee, if thou wilt fall down and worship me.” [Matthew 4:8, 9.]14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 21

Satan’s expulsion from heaven had not reformed him. In this last temptation he touched on the subject of his fall from heaven. Then he became dissatisfied because Christ was preferred before him, and he now declared that if Christ would acknowledge him as supreme, he would relinquish his claim to the world.14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 22

Christ had heard Satan’s taunting words of scorn regarding His claim to be the Son of God. “Thou the Son of God—born in a stable, hurried off to Egypt for fear of being destroyed by Herod, working as a carpenter in an obscure town of Galilee! If at thy baptism a voice from heaven said, ‘This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased’ [Matthew 3:17], why art thou now helpless and starving in this wilderness? Why is the illustrious Son of God wandering, unhonored and unattended, among the wild beasts? Where is thy retinue of angels? Where is thy glory and honor?”14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 23

Now Satan presented to Christ the kingdoms of the world in all their glory. The view was the most extensive upon which the eye could rest, and as they looked upon it, Satan said, “All this power ... is delivered unto me, and to whomsoever I will I give it. If thou therefore wilt worship me, all shall be thine.” [Luke 4:6, 7.]14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 24

In the first temptation Satan had said, “If thou art the Son of God.” [Verse 3.] Evidence was now given him that Jesus was indeed all that He claimed to be. Divinity flashed through humanity as the Saviour said, “Get thee behind me, Satan; for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve.” [Verse 8.] With such power were these words spoken that Satan left the battlefield a conquered foe.14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 25

Christ had gained the victory. Passing over the ground where Adam stumbled and fell, He had not yielded in a single point. The conflict was ended, and He was a conqueror. But the strain had been great, and He lay as one dying. "And, behold, angels came and ministered unto him." [Matthew 4:11.] Not only was food supplied to Him; supernatural restoration came. God sent His approval and commendation to revive His Son. How much the Saviour enjoyed the comfort brought to Him by the angels! His time of victory had come. He could accept the companionship and service of the angels, since they came unbidden by Himself, sent direct from the Father, whom He had honored by enduring the test under circumstances such as no human being will ever pass through. He had been given the chance of taking sides with the apostate foe of God, but He repulsed every temptation with the words, "It is written." [Verses 4, 7, 10.] Well might a voice from heaven declare, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." [Matthew 3:17.]14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 26

The lesson taught by these temptations is for us all. The Captain of our salvation was made perfect through suffering. Today the Lord tried men to see what characters they will develop. He tried the Israelites, that it might be seen what was in their hearts. Paul's character was perfected by trial. God is today trying the faith of every soul who claims to be in His service. When passing through trials, we may know that thus God is striving to lead us to know Him and to place our trust in Him.14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 27

When we choose our own way, our own will, our own pleasure, when we follow the impulses that come to us, we do not live as sons and daughters of God. We do not love God supremely and our neighbor as ourselves. We are robbing God. Our time, our service, our affection, our property, all belong to Him. When God's people meet Him with the willing offering of a faithful tithe, their faithfulness will be rewarded. But many who profess to give God all make a reservation of themselves or of their property. God will accept nothing less than a spiritual priesthood, who can bring Him an offering in righteousness. No selfishness is of Christ. Selfishness lies at the foundation of all sin. The time has come when it is for our present and eternal good to know the will of God for ourselves. The path travelled by Christ is the only safe path for us to follow. The Saviour says, "He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." [Mark 8:34.]14LtMs, Ms 153,

1899, par. 28

The prayer Christ offered to His Father, just before leaving His disciples, to be betrayed, rejected, and condemned, is for His disciples in all time. In this prayer He said, "Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son also may glorify thee; as thou hast given him power over all flesh, that he should give eternal life to as many as thou hast given him. And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent. I have glorified thee on the earth; I have finished the work which thou gavest me to do. And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self with the glory which I had with thee before the world was." [John 17:1-5.]14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 29

It is not enough to have a theory of the truth. The mind must receive enlightenment from the Holy Spirit regarding the will of God. Then by his service man must bear witness to the light, according to his knowledge of God and Christ. The Lord must be honored. His followers must trust in Him, believing that He is working in their behalf to bring them through trying places. In this God consults His own glory and their highest good. He seeks to give them an experience that will be of the greatest value to them.14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 30

Our knowledge of God and of Christ is altogether too meager. True knowledge of God is genuine and practical. Those who have this knowledge will not keep silent. They will communicate to others what they have received. They will make an entire surrender of the will to God, realizing that they are to reach higher and still higher, that they may give others the benefit of their experience as those who have been tried and proved through prayer and patience. We have been given to Christ by the Father, and no man can pluck us out of His hand. Our knowledge of the living God is to steadily increase. Christ says, "Ye are the salt of the earth." [Matthew 5:13.] The leaven of righteousness in the life of believers is revealed by the words, the spirit, the deportment. True virtue is manifested in the daily life. Through Christ we are to be purified, made white, and tried.14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 31

We cannot know God and Jesus Christ until we search the Scriptures, beginning with Genesis. In this Word we find out why it was necessary for Christ to leave His high command in heaven, to separate Himself from the angelic family, laying off His royal robe and kingly crown, and clothe His divinity with humanity. For our sake He became poor, that by His poverty He might make many rich, securing for them eternal riches. That He might work in our behalf, He came to live among fallen humanity, in a world marred by sin and misery. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 32

Adam listened to the temptation of Satan. He believed a lie, and thus greatly dishonored God. He had not a semblance of an excuse for his transgression, and his disobedience changed his relation to God. The law can in no case pardon the transgressor. It can only condemn the guilty. Adam had to meet God over His broken law. His fatal disobedience brings out with clear prominence that of which the apostle writes, "For as by one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous." [Romans 5:19.]14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 33

Man's happiness must always be guarded by the law of God. In obedience only can he find true happiness. The law is the hedge God has placed about His vineyard. By it those who obey are protected from evil. In transgression Adam became a law to himself. By disobedience he was brought under bondage. Thus a discordant element, born of selfishness, entered man's life. Man's will and God's will no longer harmonized. Adam had united with the disloyal forces, and self-will took the field. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 34

By Christ a higher standard is presented. He made it possible for man to be once more united with God. He came to take the sentence of death for the transgressor. Not one precept of the law could be altered to meet man in his fallen condition; therefore Christ gave His life in man's behalf, to suffer in his stead the penalty of disobedience. This was the only way in which man could be saved, the only way in which it could be demonstrated that it is possible for man to keep the law. Christ came to this earth and stood where Adam stood, overcoming where Adam failed to overcome. He is made unto us wisdom and righteousness and sanctification and redemption. When this work was accomplished, there was great joy in the heavenly courts. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 35

But while the death of the Son of God saves all who repent, it speaks death to those who will not receive Christ as a personal Saviour. That which is life to the believer is death to the impenitent transgressor. The new and living way is seen and followed by those who receive Christ as their Redeemer. But upon those who refuse to accept His sacrifice, the sentence of eternal death is passed.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 36

“Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom we have access by faith unto this grace, wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God, ... Wherefore as by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin, and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned; ... even so by the righteousness of one the free gift came upon all men unto justification of life.” [Verses 1, 2, 12, 18.] Adam’s fall in the garden of Eden caused all to sin, but in the garden of Gethsemane Christ drank the bitter cup of suffering and death, that whosoever believes in Him may not perish, but have everlasting life.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 37

Before the foundation of the world Christ pledged His word that He would give His life as a ransom if man turned from his allegiance to God. He revealed His love by humbling Himself, stooping from heaven to work among fallen, disorderly, lawless human beings. Of himself man could not possibly cope with the enemy. Christ offers Himself and all He has, His glory, His character, to the service of those who return to their loyalty and keep the law of God. This is their only hope. He says definitely, “I came not to destroy the law. It is a transcript of God’s character, and I came to carry out its every specification. I came to vindicate it by living it in human nature, giving an example of perfect obedience.”<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 38

As Christ took upon Him this work, He saw all it would bring—His betrayal, because of envy, pride, and love of money, by a professed follower; His trial in the judgment hall; the scouring, the cruel death. He had led the children of Israel from Egyptian bondage into the land of Canaan. He had come now to lead them from spiritual bondage into the City of God. But they rejected Him, and delivered Him up to death. He came to His vineyard to receive the fruit thereof, but those who should have welcomed Him, said, "This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance." [Matthew 21:38.] 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 39

Looking into the future Christ saw the return that would be made for His love. He saw Himself condemned to suffer the punishment only inflicted on those most deeply sunk in crime. He saw Himself in His humiliation hanging on the cross, while priests and rulers looked on with exultation, saying in mockery, "He saved others, himself he cannot save. If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him." [Matthew 27:42.] 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 40

Christ looked down through the ages and saw His humiliation carried into every successive generation. He heard the false testimony that He died to abolish the law. He saw that this error would be more palatable to men and women than the truth. The carnal mind "is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can be." [Romans 8:7.] He saw the enmity of the natural mind, true to its own character, daily enacting afresh the scenes of Calvary, even down to the close of this earth's history. He saw that some would show indifference and contempt to the law of God, while others would go to greater lengths in their hatred of it, tearing down its precepts by their falsehoods and ingenious arguments. He saw that the law would be trampled upon and dishonored until God should arise to punish the inhabitants of the earth. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 41

Knowing all this, Christ bore the penalty of transgression. He was crucified and buried, but He broke the fetters of the tomb, and over the rent sepulcher of Joseph He proclaimed, "I am the resurrection and the life." [John 11:25.] He was in possession of the great gift of eternal life, and He gave gifts unto me. He sent His message of mercy and pardon to all who would receive Him as the world's Redeemer. "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." [John 1:12.] He had paid the price for every son and daughter of Adam, and He is abundantly able to save all who accept Him as the Sin-bearer. 14LtMs, Ms 153, 1899, par. 42

Restitution Due to the Southern Field

NP

November 18, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 3MR 262-263. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

God has established institutions among us as a people to give character to His work. But in these institutions unfaithful men have been placed in positions of trust, and have been given the management of the funds. The warnings of the Lord have been given over and over again in regard to the perversion of right principles, and in regard to the scars and deformity brought upon His work through selfishness and covetousness. Yet men with unclean thoughts and unholy hearts have continued to pervert the truth. The third angel's message is not doing its work. Some who serve as ministers, who should be diligently searching the Scriptures, are entertaining fanciful ideas which have no foundation in the Scriptures, and these they are presenting as truth. Truth is not being woven into the web.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 1

The time is at hand when a fearful confederacy will be formed, a brotherhood inaugurated by Satan. Unholy human agencies will combine with the demon forces, and the whole will be imbued by satanic impulses. Satan has come down with great power, and he is working with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish. He is now marshalling the hosts who will be ready to voice his words, "Who is like unto the beast, and who is able to make war with him?" [Revelation 13:4.] Well may every soul, from now until the close of this earth's history, heed the words of Christ, "Let him take hold of my strength that he may make peace with me, and he shall make peace with me." [Isaiah 27:5.] Let every agency fall into line; let him fall into the hands of the living God; for His mercies are great; let us not fall into the hands of men.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 154, 1899,

par. 2

Our work for this time is to lift the banner on which is inscribed, "Here are they which keep the commandments of God and have the testimony of Jesus Christ." [Revelation 12:17.] But those who have had an experience in the first proclamation of the third angel's message are passing off the stage of action, and the message in its great importance is scarcely recognized by some. Many of those who claim to be preaching the third angel's message have no experience in the message. They present fables, which are to the truth as the chaff is to the wheat. Much is woven into their teaching which has never been inspired by the Holy Spirit.14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 3

I fear that I cannot express myself fully. I have worked so hard lately that I have had several spells of exhaustion. Yet I dare not hold my peace. Every one occupying a position in our institutions needs to walk softly before God. He needs to be careful what influence he exerts, lest he sway the minds of others in such a way that the Lord cannot use them as channels of light. Unless a marked work is done in every heart, an influence will be exerted which will keep eyes blindfolded in regard to the selfishness and covetousness which has robbed destitute fields of the means they should have had. More than once I have asked the question, What has been done with the donations contributed by the churches to the Southern Field? The Review & Herald and the Pacific Press have misapplied, according to their own ideas and plans, the money raised by the people for the work in the South.14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 4

For years testimonies have been given to the men in responsible positions in the work to clear the Lord's highway and make His paths straight. Let the means raised for the colored people be used in that destitute missionary field. To each one who has acted a part in robbing the Southern Field of the means designed for it God says, "I cannot trust you until you do thorough work in repenting and making restitution." He declares that He will not work with those who give evidence that the gifts of the people would not, if sent through them, flow in the channels specified by the donors.14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 5

The Lord in mercy sent a warning to save the Conference from bankruptcy, from a confusion that would have been as complication upon complication. Men had been wronged by those who were stewards of sacred responsibilities. A confederacy was formed time and again to take authors unawares and work with them by deceptive representations. The concession of one or two authors to the terms of this confederacy was presented as an inducement for all others to follow their example. Thus a work was done that heaven did not endorse, and God was dishonored. Then when a movement was made to correct the evil by making restitution, the very men who had created the wrong state of things were on hand, preparing by their covetousness to make capital of the matter. But in His mercy God did not permit this to be. Those who had been wronged were advised to wipe out the claims which they might have made; for by insisting on these claims being met, a great evil would have been created. 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 6

But those who were stewards had no right to treat this matter as they did. Special cases were pointed out as needing to receive restitution, as, for instance, The Gospel Primer. I was permitted to hear the voice of one man, loud and inspired by an evil spirit, as he said concerning the book published to help the Southern Field, "It is bringing in much means, and it should not be." Those who acted a part in the false dealing in regard to The Gospel Primer will one day stand before the throne of God. Then they will see the result of their wrong course of action. Every man will be rewarded according as his works have been. Those who diverted into other channels the means God designed should flow into the Southern Field made the work very hard for the workers in that field. How men standing in positions of sacred trust, claiming to be sons of God, could make the work of their brethren so difficult, the judgment alone will reveal. 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 7

Some claim to believe the testimonies God has given. They speak of them, and appear to appreciate them, but faith without works is dead, being alone. God declares, "Shall I not judge for these things?" [Jeremiah 5:9.] He knows who are faithful and true and who are unfaithful and dishonest; and one day He will cause those who have acted any part in bringing in the principles which He condemns to see the cause and the effect of their selfishness and covetousness. 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 8

A call was made for the poor, distressed colored field: Let those who in this work have acted as unfaithful stewards repent and be converted. God calls for the means sent in response to a special call and for a special purpose, to be restored to the distressed, poverty-stricken field from which it was taken. The work in the South has been greatly hindered, yet I am thankful that by the mercy of God a work has been done amid difficulty and discouragement, and this work God has endorsed. Although the means that would have advanced the work has never been placed in the hands of the workers, yet the Lord has blessed the work. Little sympathy and less means has made the struggle hard, yet the foundation has been laid for an influence that will be as enduring as eternity. But what might have been accomplished if those whose work it was to encourage every jot and tittle of missionary work had done their part! 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 9

Missionary work is a part of the ministry angels are appointed to perform. The work done in the South amid poverty and hardship has not been recorded in the books of heaven as a failure. In the courts above those who have done missionary work under the pressure of adverse circumstances are registered as truly successful. God says not always, "Well done, good and successful servant," but, "Well done, good and faithful servant." [Matthew 25:23.] 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 10

Let us be up and doing our appointed work, for soon the time in which we can work will be past, to be followed by the time of reckoning. 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 11

I ask, Why have not you who profess to believe the testimonies received them? Why have you not heeded the light that has come to you? When I have been asked, "What has been done with the money raised for the Southern Field?" I could have said, "The Review & Herald and the Pacific Press must answer that question." It was these institutions that blocked the way, so that the money raised for the South never reached that field. God designed that the movements made at the last General Conference should be tested and tried. He permitted the Norman case to represent the after work of that conference. Shall this case stand as a sample of the resolutions made at the General Conference? Light has been plainly given that there must be a restitution of the money of which the Southern Field was robbed, and those who knew of this work and did not raise their voice in condemnation, even if they had nothing to do in it, are placed on the list as partakers of the wrongdoing of the men who have dishonored God. Righteousness must rule in God's service. 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 12

The high wage plan should never have seen the light of day. Those in charge of our institutions have no greater burdens to carry than have the faithful workers in other parts of the Lord's vineyard. There will never be an end of the controversy which God has with the men in positions of trust until thorough work is done in cleansing the institutions from the stain which has rested upon them. 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 13

"Blessed is the man that endureth temptation; for when he is tried he shall receive a crown of life, which the Lord the righteous Judge shall give him." [James 1:12.] When there are presented to you wrongs to be righted, why are you so loath to do that which men of principle ought always to be forward to do? These wrongs will have to be righted, for unless the matter is corrected, I shall be obliged to appeal to the people. They have lost confidence in those at the heart of the work, and I have also lost confidence in them. The heart of the work is diseased. 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 14

God will not be trifled with. He says, "I hate robbery for burnt offering." [Isaiah 61:8.] No one in the ranks of Sabbathkeepers has worked more unselfishly than Edson White. He thought he was doing a necessary work in preparing a boat as his home. The Lord showed me that Edson would be in danger if he entered into business management. He is adapted to another work, the work of seeking and saving lost sheep. His knowledge of the principles of truth would make him a living channel of light. But God showed me that if he should give himself up to secular business, he would not be prepared to be impressed by the Holy Spirit to open the living oracles of truth. 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 15

Edson did heed the testimony, as he thought, but by fitting up his boat he incurred debts. This placed him at a great disadvantage and in an embarrassing situation, which the Lord did not want him to occupy. God knew that any mistakes Edson might make would be greatly exaggerated. Those who ought to have shown sympathy would give him no words of encouragement. Whatever good they might see accomplished, they would think evil and talk evil of his work. 14LtMs, Ms 154, 1899, par. 16

Temperance from a Christian Standpoint

NP

November 17, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 1BC 1101; Te 162, 196; CG 391. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

“Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him shall God destroy; for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are.” [1 Corinthians 3:16, 17.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 1</sup>

In the tenth chapter of First Corinthians are pointed out the dangers that were to be met by God’s people in Paul’s day and that will have to be met by God’s people today. Here Paul specifies the reasons why the children of Israel did not enter the promised land when they might have done. “Moreover, brethren,” he says, “I would not that ye should be ignorant, how that all our fathers were under the cloud”—the cloud of God’s protection, in which Christ was enshrouded—“and all passed through the sea.” [Verse 1.] What a wonderful miracle was this! The mighty hand of Christ rolled back the waters of the Red Sea, so that they stood up like a wall. Thus He made a dry passage through the sea, and Israel passed over dryshod. “And were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; and did all eat the same spiritual meat; and did all drink the same spiritual drink; for they drank of that spiritual Rock that followed them, and that Rock was Christ.” [Verses 2-4.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 2</sup>

David recounts the acts of the Lord in behalf of the children of Israel. “He spread a cloud for a covering; and fire to give light in the night.” [Psalms 105:39.] He “rained down manna upon them,” and fed them “with the bread of heaven.” [Psalms 78:24; 105:40.] “Man did eat angels’ food;” “the bread of the mighty.” [Psalms 78:25.]

Margin. But this did not satisfy the children of Israel. “They tempted God in their heart by asking meat for their lust. Yea, they spake against God; they said, Can God furnish a table in the wilderness? Behold, he smote the rock that the waters gushed out, and the streams overflowed; can he give bread also? Can he provide flesh for his people?” [Verses 18-20.]14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 3

It was not because they were hungry that the Israelites murmured thus. In Egypt they had become accustomed to the use of flesh food, for while they had subsisted largely upon it. But God knew that meat-eating would produce disease and shorten life, and in leading them into the wilderness He purposed to educate them in correct habits, that they might be a pure, holy, healthy people. He withheld flesh meat from them, knowing that it is not man’s natural food. He provided for them the very best food, food that would have preserved them in health and lengthened their lives. But they were not pleased with this food. They wept and murmured and complained, saying that God had brought them out of Egypt to let them pine away and die in the wilderness.14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 4

The Lord heard their murmuring, and He was angry. “A fire was kindled against Jacob, and anger also came up against Israel, because they believed not in God, and trusted not in his salvation. ... He caused an east wind to blow in the heaven; and by his power he brought in the south wind. He rained flesh also upon them as dust, and feathered fowl like as the sand of the sea; and he let it fall in the midst of their camp, round about their habitation. So they did eat and were filled; for he gave them their own desire. ... But while their meat was yet in their mouths, the wrath of God came upon them, and slew the fattest of them, and smote down the chosen men of Israel.” [Verses 21, 26-31.]14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 5

Paul writes, “With many of them God was not well pleased; for they were overthrown in the wilderness.” [1 Corinthians 10:5.]14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 6

“Now these things happened unto them for ensamples; and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come. Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall. There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to men, but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are above; but will with the temptation also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.” [Verses 11-13.] 14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 7

Of the children of Israel, we read again in Deuteronomy, “They have corrupted themselves; their spot is not the spot of his children; they are a perverse and crooked generation. ... They provoked him to jealousy with strange gods, with abominations provoked they him to anger. They sacrificed unto devils, not to God; to gods whom they knew not, to new gods that came newly up, whom your fathers feared not. ... And when the Lord saw it he abhorred them, because of the provoking of his sons and of his daughters. And he said, I will hide my face from them, I will see what their end shall be; for they are a very froward generation, children in whom is no faith. 14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 8

“They have moved me to jealousy with that which is not God; they have provoked me to anger with their vanities; and I will move them to jealousy with those which are not a people; I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation. ... They shall be burnt with hunger, and devoured with burning heat, and with bitter destruction: I will also send the teeth of beasts upon them, with the poison of serpents of the dust. ... I said I would scatter them into corners, I would make the remembrance of them to cease from among men: were it not that I feared the wrath of the enemy, lest their adversaries should behave themselves strangely, and lest they should say, Our hand is high, and the Lord hath not done this. 14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 9

“For they are a nation void of counsel, neither is there any understanding in them. O that they were wise, that they understood this, that they would consider their latter end! How should one chase a thousand, and two put ten thousand to flight, except their Rock had sold them, and the Lord had shut them up? For their rock is not as our Rock, even our enemies themselves being judges. For their vine is of the vine of Sodom, and of the fields of Gomorrah; their grapes are grapes of gall, their cluster are bitter. Their wine is the poison of dragons, and the cruel venom of asps. Is not this laid up in store with me, and sealed up among my treasures?”

[Deuteronomy 32:5, 16, 17, 19-21, 24, 26-34.] “For thou numberest my steps; dost thou not watch over my sin? My transgression is sealed up in a bag, and thou sewest up mine iniquity.” [Job 14:16, 17.]14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 10

“To me belongeth vengeance and recompense; their foot shall slide in due time; for the day of their calamity is at hand, and the things that shall come upon them make haste. For the Lord shall judge his people, and shall repent himself for his people, when he seeth that their power is gone, and there is none shut up or left. And he shall say, Where are their gods, their rock in whom they trusted, which did eat the fat of their sacrifices, and drank the wine of their drink offerings? Let them rise up and help you, and be your protection.14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 11

“See now, that I, even I, am he, and there is no god with me; I kill, and I make alive; I wound, and I heal; neither is there any that can deliver out of my hand. For I lift up my hand to heaven, and say, I live forever. If I whet my glittering sword, and mine hand take hold on judgment, I will render vengeance to mine enemies, and will reward them that hate me. ... Rejoice, O ye nations, with his people; for he will avenge the blood of his servants, and will render vengeance to his adversaries, and will be merciful to his land and to his people.” [Deuteronomy 32:35-41, 43.]14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 12

“And Moses came and spake all the words of this song in the ears of the people. ... And he said unto them, Set your hearts unto all the words which I testify among you this day, which ye shall command your children to observe to do, all the words of the law. For it is not a vain thing for you, because it is your life; and through this thing (obedience) ye shall prolong your days in the land whither ye go over Jordan to possess it.” [Verses 44, 46, 47.]14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 13

God’s Word is plain and distinct upon the subject of the fall of ancient Israel. God promised the people health and prosperity if they would obey Him. His commandments are given to prolong life. He knew that the keeping of His law would preserve His people from the evil practices of the nations which had no knowledge of the true God, who were standing in the army and under the guidance of the great rebel against God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 14

Since his expulsion from heaven, Satan's work has been to gather under his banner all those whom he can allure by his temptations. And by tempting people on the point of appetite he causes thousands upon thousands to fall. All love to be well, but all are not willing to act the part assigned them in order to be well. Those who would have good health must properly appreciate their bodies. They must understand this important subject in order to preserve themselves from suffering and disease. They must exercise their God-given capabilities by striving to overcome temptation. Man is to do his utmost to keep every organ of the body, every nerve, muscle, and sinew, in perfect health; for we read in God's Word:<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 15

"Know ye not that your bodies are the members of Christ? shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid. What? Know ye not that he which is joined to an harlot is one body? for two bodies, said he, shall be one flesh. But he that is joined to the Lord is one spirit. ... What? Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's." [1 Corinthians 6:15-17, 19, 20.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 16

Shall we pass this divine instruction by without heeding it? Will those for whom Christ has died disregard the precautions He has declared it necessary for them to observe? Will they take little or no pains to preserve their health and prevent disease because they want to please and gratify self?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 17

God has shown the interest He has in the human family. He "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.] Shall we, then, show no interest in keeping our bodies free from disease, when by thoughtfulness, self-denial, and intelligence we could do this? Wherein lies our strength? In being connected with Christ. He declares, "As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you; continue ye in my love. If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love. These things have I spoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full." [John 15:9-11.] "I am the good shepherd, and know my sheep, and am known of mine. As the Father knoweth me, even so know I the Father, and I lay down my life for the sheep." [John 10:14, 15.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 18

"Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature; old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new. And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ, and hath given to us the ministry of reconciliation; to wit, that God was in Christ, reconciling the world unto himself, not imputing their trespasses unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation. Now then we are ambassadors for Christ, as though God did beseech you by us; we pray you, in Christ's stead, be ye reconciled to God. For he hath made him to be sin for us, who knew no sin; that we might be made the righteousness of God in him." [2 Corinthians 5:17-21.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 19

In spite of all that has been done for them, the people of the world today stand before God as did the inhabitants of the Noachic world. "As it was in the days of Noah," Christ declared, "so shall it be also in the days of the Son of man. They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the day that Noah entered into the ark, and the flood came and destroyed them all. Likewise also as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they sold, they planted, they builded; but the same day that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone, and destroyed them all. Even thus shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed." [Luke 17:26-30.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 20

God has sent His warning message to arouse men and women to their danger and peril. But thousands, yes, millions, are disregarding the Word which points out their danger. They eat food which is ruinous to health. They refuse to see that by eating improper food, and drinking intoxicating liquor, they are binding themselves in slavery. They violate the laws of life and health until appetite holds them in its chains. Afterward, when they try to break these chains, they are as those shorn of power. For years they have been destroying God's temple, and now they have no power to resist Satan. Obedience would have saved them from the penalty of transgression, but they were not willing to obey. 14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 21

No subject which is presented to the inhabitants of our cities should command so large an interest as that which concerns physical health. True temperance calls for total abstinence from strong drink. It calls also for reform in dietetic habits, in dressing, in sleeping. Those who indulge appetite are not pleased to hear that it rests with them to decide whether they will be invalids. They need to wake up and reason from cause to effect. They need to realize that they are disease-producers because of their ignorance upon the subject of proper eating, drinking, and dressing. They need to become diligent students of God's Word, so that they will not bear false witness against Him and His providence. 14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 22

Men and women use drugs of every description to counteract the results of their own misdoings. Then they charge their suffering to the providence of God, and finish the business by calling in a physician, who drugs to death the remaining forces of nature. 14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 23

This is a matter of grave responsibility. God holds men and women accountable to keep themselves in the very best health, physically, mentally, and morally, that they may distinguish between the sacred and the common. The laws which God has established for the well-being of the physical structure are to be treated as divine. To every action done in violation of these laws a penalty is affixed. The transgressor is recorded as having broken the commandments of God. 14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 24

Many seem to think that it is their privilege to treat their bodies as they please. Do such stop to consider that God requires them to obey His physical laws, and that for their violation of these laws they must answer at His bar? 14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 25

Intemperance embraces much. With some it consists of eating too largely of food which, if taken in proper quantities, would not be objectionable. All that is taken into the stomach above the actual need of the system becomes a dangerous element. It decays in the stomach, and causes dyspepsia. Continual over-eating uses up the vital forces, and deprives the brain of power to do its work. 14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 26

Parents often make a mistake by giving their children too much food. Children treated in this way will grow up dyspeptics. Moderation in the use even of good food is essential. Parents, place before your children the amount they should eat. Leave it not with them to eat just as much as they may feel inclined. Two meals a day, and at the most three, are all that are required. Nothing whatever should be eaten between meals. Parents, unless this point is guarded, your children will have dull perceptions. They may attend school, but they will be unable to learn as they ought, for the strength which should go to the brain is used in taking care of the extra food that burdens the stomach. Parents need to be educated to see that too much food given to children makes them feeble instead of robust. 14LtMs, Ms 155, 1899, par. 27

Diary

Maitland, New South Wales, Australia

November 17, 1899

Previously unpublished.

Yesterday, although it had been showering all day, Sara McEnterfer, Miss Peck, and I decided to travel to Maitland with our carriage and horses. We could not leave before three p.m., but the horses were fresh, and without hard driving we reached the camp before the evening meeting commenced. Elder Colcord was to speak to the people, but we did not remain to the meeting. We pressed to the house of Brother Starr, where we could have our horses fed and cared for.14LtMs, Ms 156, 1899, par. 1

We had no rain during our journey except for a short time, when a light mist fell. We learn that on Wednesday the camp experienced a stormy time, with thunder and lightning and rain and large hail. No meeting could be held in the tent on Wednesday evening.14LtMs, Ms 156, 1899, par. 2

I have not yet read over my American letters, which were forwarded to Maitland from Cooranbong, but too late to catch us before we left for home. Therefore I know nothing of the news. In the hurry of leaving home, I left my glasses behind. Last night as soon as we reached Maitland, Sara tried to purchase me a pair; but she did not succeed. I am trying to use Mother Sisley's this morning; but I cannot read without trying my eyes.14LtMs, Ms 156, 1899, par. 3

The light that has been impressed upon me again and again is that individually we are a part of God's great whole. The family in heaven is a sample of what the human family would have been had Adam remained true to his God. Until Satan became disloyal, every member of the royal family was in happy unity with every other member.14LtMs, Ms 156, 1899, par. 4

In the absence of sin, mutual love reigned. Not one being was indifferent to the rest. The work of each was so related to that of every other member that not one could feel that his individuality made him independent of his associate workers. Under the control of God, every angel, from the highest to the least, filled the position assigned him, by loyal service ascribing glory to God as the great Center of the whole. 14LtMs, Ms 156, 1899, par. 5

Truth and righteousness are the attributes of God. Nothing in heaven or in earth can exist without His vitalizing power. God designs that the beings He has created shall stand related to one another as the angels in heaven. The perfection they see in their Creator they are to reach. Every provision has been made, all spiritual efficiency has been supplied to the human family. They may copy the Pattern by beholding Christ, through faith seeing Him who is invisible. Through their unselfish efforts, their unity and love, they may promote the happiness of others; and their own happiness will be genuine, after the similitude of the divine. Christ will become the object of their highest admiration. Beholding Him, they become changed into the same image from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord. 14LtMs, Ms 156, 1899, par. 6

This is character-building after the divine order. Self is no longer seen in everything that is done. Every word uttered every work performed, has an influence that corresponds to the influence of heaven. The character of God appears, and not the character of finite man. Christ abides in humanity, and humanity abides in Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 156, 1899, par. 7

This is the experience all must obtain if they would be laborers together with God. "Ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] All who will be worked by the Holy Spirit will form characters after the similitude of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 156, 1899, par. 8

Men and women are the Lord's instrumentalities, and He desires to work them. God links man with man, employing them as His stewards to advance His cause in our world. He imparts the richest blessings to man, not to be selfishly hoarded, but that he may obey the law of heaven in co-operating with God to bring back the lost world to its loyalty. This work of co-operation draws men from the ranks of Satan, and establishes them on the Rock of Ages Christ Jesus.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 156, 1899, par. 9

A Message to the Battle Creek Church

NP

December 4, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in HP 283; Ev 512.
+NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The work God has given us to do in this country is of the same character that the work of God has ever been. The Lord has shown me that it is similar to the work we have done in America. We are to carry it forward in advanced lines and with increased knowledge. A great and solemn truth, the last message of mercy and warning ever to be given, is to be carried to the world. What is our position in this work? On whose side do we stand?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 1

The church of Christ is to be in the world, but not of the world. In calling His people together in church capacity, God designs that they shall form one Christian family, and daily be fitting for membership [in] the family above. God thus forms the believers in His Word in one body, that their influence may be a blessing to one another and to the world. Each member converted reveals a transformation of character, and he is strengthened and sustained by the courage and faith of the whole. The weakest saint, if he believes in Christ, is a member of Christ's body; and if he lives in humble dependence upon God, he will become strong; for he has a right to all the privileges of a child of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 2

Christ, as the head of the church, calls His people to work together in unity and faith and love. His people dishonor their Maker when they are at variance one with another. The influence for good which we might have on one another has been perverted by sin, making man a power to destroy, rather than to save; but under the reign of Christ an altogether different state of things may exist. Christ uses the unity and co-operation of His people in the salvation of man. They receive Christ's divine power, and impart the same to their fellow men. Then a unity of action is seen. All their capabilities are called into the work of bringing those who have been under Satan's rule back to their loyalty to God. 14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 3

The third chapter of Ephesians is full of instruction. Paul would have us understand his teaching. "How that by revelation," he says, "he made known unto me the mystery; (which I write afore in few words; whereby when ye read, ye may understand my knowledge in the mystery of Christ;) which in other ages was not made known unto the sons of men, as it is now revealed unto his holy prophets and apostles by the Spirit, that the Gentiles should be fellow heirs and of the same body, and partakers of his promise by Christ in the gospel." [Verses 3-6.]14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 4

"Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ; and to make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ: to the intent that now unto all the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be made known by the church the manifold wisdom of God, according to the eternal purpose which he purposed in Christ Jesus our Lord." [Verses 8-11.]14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 5

"For this cause I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, of whom the whole family in heaven and earth are named, that he would grant you, according to the riches of his glory, to be strengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man; that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith, that ye, being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; and to know the love of Christ, which passeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fullness of God. Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all we can ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us, unto him be glory in the church by Jesus Christ throughout all ages world without end." [Verses 14-21.]14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 6

Again Paul writes: "I thank my God through Jesus Christ for you all, that your faith is spoken of throughout the whole world. ... I long to see you that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift, to the end ye may be established. That is, that I may be comforted together with you by the mutual faith both of you and me." "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ: according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy and without blame before him in love: having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ in himself, according to the good pleasure of his will, to the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved." 14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 7

"In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveness of sins according to the riches of his grace, wherein he hath abounded in us all wisdom and prudence; having made known unto us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure, which he hath purposed in himself; that in the dispensation of the fulness of time he might gather in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven, and which are in earth, even in him: in whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will: that we should be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ: in whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that Holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession to the praise of his glory." [Ephesians 1:3-14.] 14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par.

The instruction God gave His apostles, He gave for the benefit of the church in these last days. When professing Christians reach the high standard which it is their privilege to reach, the simplicity of Christ will be maintained in all their worship. Forms and ceremonies and musical accomplishments are not the strength of the church. Yet these things have taken the place that God should have, even as they did in the worship of the Jews. The Lord has revealed to me that when the heart is cleansed and sanctified, and the members of the church are partakers of the divine nature, a power will go forth from the church, <who believe the truth,> that will cause melody in the heart. 14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 9

Men and women will not then depend upon their instrumental music but on the power and grace of God, which will give fulness of joy. There is a work to be done in clearing away the rubbish which has been brought into the church. Let the services of the tabernacle be conducted in humility and repentance. Your adorning, “let it not be that outward adorning of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, and of putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price.” [1 Peter 3:3, 4.]14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 10

This message is not only for the church at Battle Creek, but for every other church that has followed her example. The apostle Peter sets before us the work to be done by every one who claims to be a child of God. Hear what the Lord says through His appointed servant: “Giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue, knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity. For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.” [2 Peter 1:5-8.]14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 11

As we work on the plan of addition, God will work on the plan of multiplication. “Grace and peace be multiplied unto you,” He says, “through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue: whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.” [Verses 2-4.]14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 12

“Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.” [Verses

Professing Christians, will you not see your work, and do it, that you may be Christians not only in name, but in reality? If you do this, your pipe organ and other musical instruments will be placed second and not first. If you would close your instruments of music, and seek the Lord as you have never sought Him before, if you will put away the evil of your doing, the spirit of the Lord will cleanse you from all defilement, and put the melody of heaven in your hearts. Your music does not commend you to God. It is the doing of His Word which He accepts. Holiness is the end of all God's dealings with us. In His work for finite man, He reveals His power by redeeming him from apathy and backsliding and everything that is a reproach to the cause of truth. 14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 14

The truth as it is in Jesus is the Lord's mighty cleaver to separate a people from the quarry of the world. This separation is so complete as to attract the attention of the world. Then God works upon His precious material, hewing, squaring, and polishing, until it is fit for a place in His building. "Wherefore laying aside all malice," the apostle Peter writes, "and all guile, and hypocrisies, and envyings, and all evil speakings, as new born babes, desire the sincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby: if so be that ye have tasted that the Lord is gracious. To whom coming, as unto a living stone, disallowed indeed of men, but chosen of God, and precious, ye also as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God by Jesus Christ." [1 Peter 2:1-5.][14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 15

"The sincere milk of the word." [Verse 2.] This is the pure spiritual truth of the gospel, which will be imbibed by every soul who is truly converted. He eats the flesh and drinks the blood of the Son of God, which is eternal life to all who believe, and the power of the truth is demonstrated in a transformed life and character. 14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 16

"Wherefore also it is contained in the Scriptures, Behold, I lay in Sion a chief corner stone, elect, precious; and he that believeth on him shall not be confounded. Unto you therefore which believe he is precious, but unto them which be disobedient, the stone which the builders disallowed, the same is become the head of the corner, and a stone of stumbling, and a rock of offense, even unto them which stumble at the word, being disobedient: whereunto also they were appointed. But ye are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people: that ye should show forth the praises of him that hath called you out of darkness into his marvelous light.” [Verses 6-9.] 14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 17

“For thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God: the Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth. The Lord did not set his love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people: for ye were the fewest of all people. But because the Lord loved you, and because he would keep the oath which he hath sworn unto your fathers, hath the Lord brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondmen. Know therefore that the Lord thy God, he is God, the faithful God, which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love him and keep his commandments to a thousand generations.” [Deuteronomy 7:6-9.] “Now therefore if ye will obey my voice indeed, and keep my covenant, ye shall be a peculiar treasure unto me above all people: for all the earth is mine. And ye shall be unto me a kingdom of priests and an holy nation.” [Exodus 19:5, 6.] 14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 18

Let the disaffected ones, the grumblers, and those who study how they shall reach the highest place stop and consider. In the name of the Lord, I ask you to cease your bitter complaints, curb your ambitious desires, and show a Godlike faithfulness in dealing with your Lord’s goods. Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling, you who are dissatisfied ones. It is God that worketh in you to will and to do of His good pleasure. The man who stands before the Lord in fear and trembling lest he dishonor His name, God can trust, for such a man will show no self-confidence. He will tremble under a sense of his responsibilities and will move forward in faith and trust in God. He learns that in every experience he must do rational thinking, and have faith in God to give success. He will not fold his hands in idleness, but will work with all the energies God has given him. 14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 19

Have faith in God, my brethren and sisters. Move forward and upward. The cause of God calls for men of self-reliance, men who will stand firm as a rock to principle under every circumstance, men who sense their responsibilities and know the source of their strength. That man who prays and depends upon God will never imperil his own spiritual interests or the work and cause of God. His faculties will not be misapplied. A self-trained, self-disciplined man, his whole character is transformed. His thoughts are educated, his passions are softened, subdued, and sanctified. Jesus Christ is his companion, and he works with Christ. No selfish spirit is manifested in harsh words or unkind actions; for he looks in love and confidence to his Companion and says, "Thy gentleness hath made me great." [Psalm 18:35.] True and worthy motives inspire him, for he is sanctified by the spirit of the Master Worker.14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 20

God has chosen us from eternity, that we might be holy. Christ died for us, that He might cleanse us from all iniquity, and purify unto Himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. He is waiting to pour out His Spirit on the humble, contrite soul who makes God his trust. Will you who claim to know the truth see that you must be doers of the Word of God? Go not forth to the battle without the armor of Christ's righteousness. It is the duty of every soul to make a daily prayerful, careful study of the Word and bring practical godliness into the life.14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 21

Christ has given you His own life in humanity as an example of what your lives must be. Catching the bright rays from the Sun of Righteousness, you will gain power to form your characters aright. The light that has been given you, let it become your efficiency. Then the influence of your holy, cheerful consecrated life will bring glory to God.14LtMs, Ms 157, 1899, par. 22

To allow selfishness to come into any branch of the work of God is an offense to your Creator and a libel on the religion of Christ, which should ever be free from the defilement of sin. Those who have a knowledge of the Scriptures are not merely to believe the Word. They are to be obedient to all of God's commandments, bringing the principles of the law into every business transaction. This God requires of every soul, that the law may stand before the world in its true character, holy, just and good. Thus God's people magnify the law and make it honorable. Let the prayer go forth from unfeigned lips, "Sanctify me through thy truth; thy word is truth."

Diary

Maitland, New South Wales, Australia

November 26, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in 4MR 44.

Today is my birthday. Another year of my life has passed into eternity. Seventy-two years ago today my life in this world commenced. I am still able to labor, to watch unto prayer, to speak to hundreds of people for more than an hour at a time. At such times I am imbued by the Spirit of God to bear my testimony. 14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 1

I have spoken for the last four Sabbath and Sunday afternoons to large congregations, besides speaking several times during the week. Once during the camp meeting I was solicited to speak to the women of the W.C.T.U. in Maitland. They greatly desired to hear me, they said, even though I only spoke for ten minutes. A goodly number of intelligent women were present. After being introduced to the congregation, I spoke for an hour. They the president introduced me personally to the members of the society. Since my talk to them, several of these women have attended our meetings. 14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 2

This camp meeting has been attended by the largest number of intelligent men and women we have ever seen at any of our camp meetings in Australia. There are more of the members of the other churches present than we usually see in our meetings. Among those who have been regular attendants are three brothers by the name of Kerr. They have a large drapery establishment in town. 14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 3

These men are not satisfied with their religious teachers. The eldest of the brothers told me that their minister was receiving a salary of five hundred pounds a year, but he did not give the people the spiritual help they needed. Politics and war were the themes largely dwelt upon, and these have no power to strengthen spirituality. 14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 4

The love of the world, of dress and fashion, is fast making the church a worldly, lifeless body. Mr. Kerr said that if the minister would visit the homes of the people, a change would be seen in the lives of the members of the church; but instead of doing this work, the minister was often met with a bat and ball on his way to the cricket grounds. 14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 5

I sent Mr. Kerr my book Desire of Ages, and he and his wife came to thank me for the present. We had a pleasant talk together. I am going to leave with the two other brothers Great Controversy and Patriarchs and Prophets. They can exchange them, and thus learn the contents of all. This afternoon two of the Kerr brothers, with their wives were, present at the meeting in the tent. I hope that these three brothers will accept the truth. 14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 6

I am giving away many of my books, because I desire the people to have the precious light the Lord has given me. I know of several families who have been converted by reading the books I have given them. 14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 7

I am deeply interested in the people I have met in Maitland. One year ago last October, before I left home for Brisbane, Queensland, I was so exhausted that I feared to venture. No one gave me any encouragement to go. They said that for me to attend the camp meeting in Queensland would be presumption. "Well," I said, "if you feel that way, it may be best for me to rest at home." That night I seemed to be addressing one company after another. The people seemed to be astonished at the words spoken to them. 14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 8

I saw other companies, some nigh and some afar off, who with their hands lifted entreatingly were crying, "We are starving for the Word of the Lord. Will you not come and help us?" Some were searching the Scriptures, and they needed some one to explain the Word to them, even as the Ethiopian eunuch needed Philip. 14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 9

One who has often instructed me said, "God has precious ones in all the churches at all the towns from Cooranbong to Queensland.

They are as sheep having no shepherd. The shepherds feed themselves, but they feed not the flock. Lift the standard in new territories. The people are ignorant of the Scriptures. The fields are white unto the harvest. The Holy Spirit will accompany the presentation of the truth.”14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 10

I immediately decided to attend the Queensland meeting. Brethren Haskell, Daniells, and W. C. White accompanied me. Others united with us in labor, and the Lord gave us large and interested congregations. After camp meeting, a long, strong pull was made by Brother and Sister Haskell and others. Through perseverance and constant vigilance a company of believers was raised up and a church built, a sacred place, where all may worship God in spirit and in truth. For this we have reason to praise the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 11

After the Brisbane meeting I went to Rockhampton. On the way there I was taken very sick, and I thought I should die. But as soon as I stepped off the boat, a brother told me that an appointment was out for me to speak that night in a large hall in Rockhampton. I rode out four miles over a rough road in a stiff spring wagonette, to the place where we were to stay. I was too sick to eat, yet I rode back that night, spoke to the people, and rode home. I was sick all the time I was in Rockhampton, yet that four miles of rough road had to be traversed again and again. I spoke on Sabbath to our own people and on Sunday afternoon with great freedom in a large hall in Rockhampton. Then spoke on Monday night, just before going on board the boat. On the way to Brisbane I was very sick and unable to eat, but the Lord sustained me.14LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 12

We have had an excellent camp meeting in Maitland. Men and women have walked three and four miles to attend the meetings. Last week twenty interested ones came from a town several miles away. On the last Sunday some who came to the early morning meeting remained till the close of the day, which with very little intermission was filled with meetings. These people seem to be the same as those I saw in my dream. Many of them have been church members for many years, some for fourteen years, others for twenty, and others for forty; but they all say that they never heard the Bible explained as it is explained at the tent. Some bought

Bibles on the ground, that they might mark the passages and trace out the subjects presented. Women of excellent appearance say that they have learned more of the Bible since the tent has come to Maitland than in all the former years of their life. "Why have we not heard these things from our own ministers?" they ask.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 13

While our ministers are speaking, the people sit as though astonished, their eyes riveted on the speaker. They leave the tent saying, We never heard anything like this before. We want to hear more.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 14

The Lord has given His servants great freedom. We know that the Holy Spirit was in our meeting. The health talks which have been given here have exerted a large influence. Dr. Caro talks with interest to the people everywhere. The ministry of the Word and medical missionary work must blend. They must be united as the hand is united to the body. Medical missionary work connected with the preaching of the Word for this time, is just the instruction and the power the people need. The Lord's vineyard must be worked equally. New territory is to be added to God's kingdom. We are far behind where we should be. Could we have had the means invested by our people in America in erecting unnecessary buildings, we would have been years ahead of where we are today.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 158, 1899, par. 15

The Privileges and Duties of a Christian Physician

NP

December 13, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 2SM 284; MM 41; CS 66-67; 5MR 133-134. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

Honesty, integrity, justice, mercy, love, compassion, and sympathy are embraced in medical missionary work. In this work the religion of the Bible is to be practiced. The Lord does not want any one to work as His representative who follows the wrong customs and practices of worldly physicians in treating suffering humanity. There are those who follow worldly policy in order to accumulate means, as they say, for God's service. God does not accept such offerings. He says, "I hate robbery for burnt offering. Those who deal unjustly with their fellow men while professing to believe My Word, I will judge for thus misrepresenting Me." Lift Him up, the Man of Calvary, higher and still higher. Act on the principles opened before us in the Word of God. Let everything be done with justice and equity.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 1

God calls for a doing of practical, Christlike work. Those who have accepted the truth are to practice it because it is the truth. The patients who come to our sanitariums are to see carried out the principles laid down in the fifty-eighth chapter of Isaiah. The truth is to be preserved in all its sacred influence in the work of God in our institutions. When the time comes that physicians cannot do this, the Lord would have no more medical institutions established. The medical practitioner should in all places keep his religious principles clear and untarnished. Truth should be paramount in his practice. He is to use his influence as a means of cleansing the soul by the healing beams of the Sun of Righteousness. If Christ abides in his heart, his thoughts will ever be directed to the great Healer of soul and body. He will lead the minds of sufferers to Him who can restore, who when here on earth restored the sick to health, and healed the soul as well as the body, saying, "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee." [Mark 2:5.] 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 2

Every opportunity of working as Christ worked is to be carefully improved. The physician should talk of the works of healing wrought by Christ, of His tenderness and love. He should believe that Jesus is His companion, close by his side. "We are laborers together with God." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] But we lose the most precious opportunities by neglecting to speak a word in season. Too often a precious talent which ought to produce a thousandfold is left unused. If the golden privilege is not watched for, it will pass; something stood in the way of that physician doing his appointed work as a minister of righteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 3

The physician can accomplish a noble work if he is connected with the great Physician of soul and body. To the relatives of the sick, whose hearts are full of sympathy for the sufferer, the physician may find opportunity to speak the words of life. He need not mention his religious beliefs, but he can soothe and uplift the mind of the sufferer, leading him to look to the One who can save to the uttermost all who come to Him for salvation. Thus he is sowing seed which will spring up and bear fruit unto holiness. On the sickbed Christ is often acknowledged and confessed, and this will be done oftener in the future than it has been in the past, for a quick work will the Lord do in our world. Words of wisdom are to be on the lips of the physician, and Christ will make the impression on minds, watering the seed sown, and causing it to bring forth fruit unto eternal life. 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 4

On the sickbed secrets are sometimes disclosed which should be sacredly held by those to whom they are told. They should not be repeated unless it is positively necessary. 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 5

Let me tell you, as one who loves and fears God, that only those physicians who are genuine Bible Christians can discharge aright the high duties of their profession. The physician who understands the responsibilities and accountabilities of his position will feel the necessity of Christ's presence with him in his work for those for whom such a sacrifice was made. He will subordinate everything to the higher interests, which concern the life that may be saved unto life eternal, to live forever with the Lord where there is no sin, no suffering, no pain, no death. He will do all in his power to save the body and the soul. He will try to do the very work Christ would do were He in his place. The physician who loves Christ and the souls for whom Christ died will seek earnestly to bring into the sickroom a leaf of the tree of life. He will try to break the bread of life to the sufferer. Notwithstanding the obstacles and difficulties which may crowd in, this is the solemn, sacred work of the medical missionary.14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 6

True missionary work is that work in which the Saviour's work is best represented, His methods most closely copied, His glory best promoted. Missionary work that falls short of this standard is recorded in heaven as defective; it is weighed in the balances of the sanctuary and found wanting. Never are physicians to neglect to direct the minds of their patients to Christ, the great Physician of soul and body. That which physicians only attempt to do, Christ accomplishes. The human agent strives to prolong life. Christ is life itself.14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 7

He who passed through death to destroy him who had the power of death, is the Source of all vitality, all life. There is balm in Gilead, there is a physician there. Christ endured a most agonizing death under the most humiliating circumstances, that we might have life. He gave up His precious life that He might vanquish death. But He rose from the tomb, and the myriads of angels who came to behold Him take up the life He had lain down heard His words with triumphant joy as He stood above the rent sepulcher of Joseph, proclaiming, "I am the resurrection and the life." [John 11:25.]14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 8

The question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" has been answered. [Job 14:14.] By bearing the penalty of sin, by going down into the grave, Christ has brightened the tomb for all who die in the triumph of faith. God in human form has brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. In dying Christ secured eternal life for all who believe in Him. In dying, He condemned the originator of sin and disloyalty to suffer the penalty of sin—eternal death.14LtMs, Ms

The possessor and giver of eternal life, Christ was the only one who could conquer death. He is our Redeemer; and blessed is every physician who is in a true sense of the word a missionary, a saviour of the souls for whom Christ gave His life. Such a physician learns day by day from the great Physician how to watch and work for the saving of the souls and bodies of men and women. The Saviour is present in the sickroom, in the operating room; and His power for His name's glory accomplishes great things.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 10

The physician who is truly converted will not gather to himself responsibilities which interfere with his work for souls. It is a mistake to lay upon the Christian physician, whom God has appointed to represent Him in his own way, so many responsibilities that he has no time to commune with God by reading His Word and by prayer. Christ declares, "Without me ye can do nothing." [John 15:5.] How then can a medical missionary engage successfully in his important work without earnestly seeking the Lord in prayer? Prayer and a study of the Word brings life and health to the believing worker.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 11

The surgeon most truly successful is he who loves God, who sees God in His created work, and worships Him as he traces His wise arrangement in the human machinery. The most successful physician is he who fears God from his youth, as did Timothy, who feels that Christ is his constant companion, a friend with whom he can always commune. Such a physician would not change his position for the highest office the world could give. He is not anxious to secure the patronage of worldlings or churchmen. He who depends on men for strength and influence leans on a broken reed and dishonors God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 12

Depending on men has been the great weakness of the church. Men have dishonored God by failing to appreciate His sufficiency, by coveting the influence of men. Thus Israel became weak. The people wanted to be like the other nations of the world, and they asked for a king. They desired to be guided by human power which they could see rather than by the divine Theocracy, the invisible power which till then had led and guided them, and given them victory in battle. They made their own choice, and the result was seen in the destruction of Jerusalem and the dispersion of the nation.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 13

The men connected with the institutions of God's appointment are to be careful to acknowledge God in all their ways. They are to show that they owe to Him their intellect and all their capabilities. As did Abraham, they are to pay tithe of all they possess and all they receive. A faithful tithe is the Lord's portion. To withhold it is to rob God. Every man should freely and willingly and gladly bring tithes and offering into the storehouse of the Lord, because in so doing there is a blessing. There is no safety in withholding from God His own portion.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 14

Again, let no man, because he is physician, feel at liberty to do those things which God has said he should not do. He should not travel on the Sabbath because he is a physician unless to relieve suffering humanity. He should plan his work so as to meet God's requirements and obey the truth. God says, "Verily, my sabbaths ye shall keep; for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations." [Exodus 31:13.] When there is real suffering to be alleviated, the Sabbath is not desecrated by physicians travelling upon it; but unimportant cases should be deferred till after the Sabbath. God sanctified and blessed the seventh day, and it is to be kept as His sacred memorial.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 15

God created the world in six days, and rested upon the seventh. "Wherefore," He declared, "the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations for a perpetual covenant." [Verse 16.] We have established sanitariums because He would not be mingled with those who, though they have had the light, are not willing to come out from the world and let all know that they are Seventh-day Adventists. Those who keep God's commandments may claim the promises contained in Exodus 31:12-18.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 16

The instruction given in the fifty-eighth chapter of Isaiah is full and full and decided. Those who refrain from labor on the Sabbath may claim every comfort and consolation. Shall we not believe God?

Shall we not call holy the day which He calls holy? Man is not to be ashamed to own as sacred that which God calls sacred. He is not to be ashamed to do what God has told him to do. Obedience will bring him a knowledge of what constitutes true sanctification. 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 17

There is to be no robbery of God in tithes and offerings, no desecration of God's holy time. Man is not to do his own pleasure on God's day. He has six days in which he may work at his secular business, and God claims the seventh as His own. "In it," He says, "thou shalt not do any work." [Exodus 20:10.] The servant of God will call sacred that which the Lord calls sacred. Thus he will show that he has chosen the Lord as his leader. The Sabbath was made in Eden, when the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy. God has placed it in our charge. Let us keep it pure and holy. 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 18

Subtle, dangerous temptations will come to the physician who believes the truth for these last days. That which would be condemned in a worker of another class is supposed to be admissible for a physician. Thus a multitude of sins are covered up, sins which are registered in the books of heaven as a departure from Bible principles. These temptations the physician may overcome if he understands his peril, and stands fast by his Saviour. If true to the gospel of Christ, we stand under the shield of Omnipotence. We are on the side of Christ, on the side of the loyal, holy angels. Of whom, then, should we be afraid? 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 19

The Lord requires truth in the inward parts. He will give the Holy Spirit to all who ask Him in faith. God calls for men to act as gospel ministers, for men to act as physicians, whom no flattery can cause to swerve from the truth. Ministers and doctors are to be under the rule of God. Familiarity with sickness and death will never harden the heart of the Christian physician, never cause him to become less susceptible to the suffering of humanity. He in whose heart the Spirit of God bears rule will follow the example of Christ. The life, the character, will be so Christlike that he will roll back the unjust reproach from the pure truth of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 20

There are those who cannot appreciate the gospel of Christ sufficiently to practice it in every line of their work. These will criticize. Those who are superficial and selfish do not know God and Jesus Christ by an experimental knowledge, and they are always faithless. In their eyes small obstructions appear as mountains. There is always a lion in the way. 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 21

There are none too many godly physicians to minister in their profession. There is much work to be done, and the Lord has specified that medical missionary work should be connected with the gospel ministry as the arms are connected with the body. Neither part of the work is complete without this union. God designs medical missionary work to be bound up with the gospel ministry, joined closely to it, because it is the gospel in illustration. 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 22

Ministers and doctors are to work in perfect union. Luke is called the beloved physician, and those who do a work similar to that which he did are living out the gospel. The Lord would have wise, intelligent medical men attend our camp meetings, men who respect the ministry of the Word, who are not victims of unbelief. These men are the guardians of the health of the people, and they are to be recognized and respected. They are to fill a position as teachers of the people, presenting the dangers of intemperance. This evil must be more boldly met than it has been in the past. Ministers and doctors should set forth the evils of intemperance. Both should work in the gospel with power to condemn sin. 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 23

As the physician instructs the people in the principles of true temperance, and as a guardian of souls gives advice to those who are sick in mind and body, the medical missionary work, as the right arm of the body, is doing its work. Countless are the opportunities which come to the physician to warn the careless, cheer the disconsolate and hopeless, and wisely prescribe for the health of the suffering. He is to point his patients to the great Physician, who can heal both soul and body. 14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 24

In our camp meeting practical physicians can give instruction line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little. Those ministers or doctors who do not open their lips to make personal appeals to the people are remiss in their duty. They fail to do the work God has appointed them. Ministers and physicians are both to work with earnestness to save the souls who are being bound up in Satan's snare. They are to speak words which point men and women to Jesus, their righteousness, their strength, and the health of their countenance. Continually they are to watch for souls. There are those who are struggling with strong temptations, in danger of being overcome in the fight with satanic agencies. Will you pass these by without offering assistance? If you see a soul in need of help, engage in conversation with him, even though you do not know him. Pray with him. Point him to Jesus.14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 25

This work belongs just as surely to the doctor as to the minister. The Lord designs that the influence of doctors and ministers shall harmonize. By public and private efforts the physician is to seek to win souls to Christ.14LtMs, Ms 159, 1899, par. 26

God's Design in Establishing Sanitariums

At the burning bush Moses received from God the message for the king of Egypt, "Let my people go, that they may serve me." [Exodus 8:1.] By a mighty hand and a stretched out arm God brought out the Hebrew host from the land of bondage. Wonderful was the deliverance He wrought for them, punishing their enemies, who refused to listen to His word, with total destruction. God would take His people apart from the world, and prepare them to receive His Word. From Egypt He led them to mount Sinai, where He revealed to them His glory. Here there was nothing to attract their senses, or divert their minds from God, and as the vast multitude looked at the mountains towering above them, they could realize their own nothingness in the sight of God. 14LtMs, Ms 160, 1899, par. 1

Beside these rocks, immovable except by the power of the divine will, God would communicate with men. And that His Word might ever be clear and distinct in their minds, He proclaimed amid thunder, and lightning and terrible majesty the law which He had given in Eden, and which was the transcript of His character. And the words were written on tables of stone with the finger of God. Thus the mind of the infinite God was revealed to a people whom He designed should make known to every nation and kindred and tongue and people the principles of God's government in heaven and in earth. 14LtMs, Ms 160, 1899, par. 2

In the last days of this earth's history, the voice that spoke from Sinai is still saying to men, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." [Exodus 20:3.] What man, however much he may set his will against the will of God to hush this word of command, can separate himself from the consciousness of his past life? The human mind can never fully comprehend its obligations to the higher power. Profound theories and speculations may be abundant, but God is true. You may set science in opposition to revelation, and try to do away with the law of God, but stronger and still stronger will the Holy Spirit bring before you the command, "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." [Matthew 4:10.] 14LtMs, Ms 160, 1899, par. 3

Look at our world. Can you take in the situation? Men are working against the law of God. The churches throughout our land are taking sides with the great apostate. Do you not see that it means? Our world is becoming a pest house of iniquity. 14LtMs, Ms 160, 1899, par. 4

A great work is to be accomplished, and that this work may be done in correct lines, God has laid plans for the establishment of schools, sanitariums, and institutions where the teachings of the truth can be carried out after the gospel plan. Medical missionary work is to be conducted in such a way as to connect men and women with the truth for this time. Our sanitariums are to be a blessing to high and low, rich and poor. They are not to be made wholly charitable in character. They are to be symbols of God's great working for His people. Men and women of all classes are brought together in these institutions, and they become acquainted with one another. They learn to sympathize with their fellow beings in their sufferings, and thus the partition wall which separates man from his fellow man is broken down. Those who visit the sanitarium are to be taught the power of God in the restoration of the sick. This will leave the impression on human minds that God is in this place. 14LtMs, Ms 160, 1899, par. 5

God's purpose for the human race is to be fulfilled through these institutions. But if the workers take up lines of work which crowd out that which should be done in communicating light to the world, God cannot be glorified in them. When God calls a man to do a certain work in His cause, He does not lay upon him burdens which others can and should bear. The Lord does not want the minds of His responsible men strained to the utmost point of endurance by taking up many lines of work. All these lines may be essential; but God gives to every man his work. 14LtMs, Ms 160, 1899, par. 6

If the worker does not take up his appointed work, and which the Lord knows is the very work he is fitted to do, he neglects his higher duties, which, if properly executed, would result in the promulgation of the truth and would prepare men for the great crisis before them. When men reach out to take upon themselves responsibilities which God has not appointed them to bear, however good the work may be, their minds become confused, and they cannot be successful in it. 14LtMs, Ms 160, 1899, par. 7

The time has come when Satan will show openly on which side of the controversy he stands. Those who act a part in God's great cause are not to follow the example of worldlings. The voice of God is to be heeded. Every talent is a gift from God to be used in blessing others. When men work in Christ's lines, they will be living epistles, known and read of all men. 14LtMs, Ms 160, 1899, par. 8

There must be no failure in God's work. Every thought, every plan, must be in harmony with God's expressed will. He is our Creator, our Redeemer, our Counsellor, the first and last and best in everything. Life in Christ is a power anywhere, for we have made a covenant with God by sacrifice. In obedience to the commandments of God, the soul will receive the best of everything. Every blessing may be enjoyed with the favor of God when heart, mind, and life are consecrated to His service. 14LtMs, Ms 160, 1899, par. 9

If men would accept Christ, and see the binding claims of the law of God, they would not take a neutral position, but would stand out in full confidence and say, The Lord is my Helper. He is the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom He has sent is the supreme and everlasting Good. They would secure to themselves the grand promise of God. This is an individual work. "No man liveth unto himself." [Romans 14:7.] Every worker in God's cause should strive to become more and more efficient. There must be no careless disregard of God's expressed will. The laborer together with God must live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. Let us individually draw nigh to the mount, that we may understand what the Lord means, and then obey. 14LtMs, Ms 160, 1899, par. 10

Notes of the Work

NP

December 17, 1899 [typed]

Previously unpublished.

We have reason to thank God that the work is going forward in Maitland. The camp meeting was an excellent one. There were interruptions which no human wisdom could see or prevent, but no murmuring or complaining was heard. The Lord has His way in the storm as well as in the calm. 14LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 1

I have spoken to the people in Maitland every Sabbath and Sunday afternoon for five weeks, and hundreds, yes, thousands, of people, not only in Maitland, but in the adjacent towns, have had an opportunity to hear the message of truth. 14LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 2

During the meetings the word was presented with earnestness and power. The prophecies were brought out in clear, strong lines, and the teachings of Christ in both the Old and New Testaments were explained in their order. The people were astonished at the Scriptures. On the last Sunday of the camp, a company of men and women walked from another town several miles away to attend the evening meeting. Other interested ones have attended the meetings regularly, and many of them expressed themselves as did the Jews in the days of Christ when He presented to them the truths of the Old Testament Scriptures. We did not know that such wonderful things were in the Bible, they declared. After attending meetings all day and in the evening, they were loath to leave the ground. 14LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 3

At the present time, Brethren Colcord and Hickox are carrying forward the work, with the help of the workers who visit from house to house. Notwithstanding the heat, they visit among the homes of the people, often walking three and six miles to their place of labor. We thought this too much for some of the sisters; but they have a burden for the work, and persevere in it, notwithstanding the difficulties. The people receive them kindly, studying the Scriptures and praying with them. Several persons, after severe struggles, have obtained the victory and are now keeping the Sabbath. Others are still in perplexity in regard to the seventh day. 14LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 4

We find none so blind as those who stand in positions of responsibility in the churches. Like the rulers in Christ's day, those who are blessed with every spiritual advantage, and who claim to be teachers of the people, are the least able to interpret the Scriptures correctly. They know not what is truth for this time. To the Jewish leaders, who were exciting the prejudices of the people against Him, Christ said, "Ye teach for doctrine the commandments of men." "Ye are both ignorant of the Scriptures and the power of God." [Matthew 15:9; 22:29.] His words apply to the religious teachers of today who refuse to sit down with the servants of God and study the messages He sends. O if these ministers would only take the stand of the noble Bereans, and search the Scriptures, to see if these things are so! They would be safe in coming to the Word of God. If they would lay aside their prejudice, and unite in prayer and searching of the Word, the Holy Spirit would give them understanding. 14LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 5

The spirit which in Christ's day led the priests and rulers to forbid the recognition of Christ as the Sent of God is alive today, and is forbidding men to accept the Word of God just as it reads. Prophets and holy men of old, who spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost, foretold the advent of the Messiah. But when the prophecy was fulfilled, and Christ came, the Jews knew Him not. In their pride and bitter enmity they unconsciously fulfilled the Word of prophecy. The One to whom all their sacrifices pointed, the One in whom their hopes of eternal life were centered, they forced out of their synagogues, and would have thrust Him over a precipice outside the gates of the city had not angels, unseen by them, come to His rescue. His disciples also they turned out of their synagogues, imprisoning some and stoning others. The Christ they would receive must be one who would intensify their hatred for the Romans and exalt the Jewish nation. 14LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 6

Peter speaking of this says, "Ye men of Israel, hear these words: Jesus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and signs, which God did by him in the midst of you, as ye yourselves also know. Him, being delivered by the determinate counsel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and slain: whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death: because it was not possible that he should be holden of it." [Acts 2:22-24.] This history of the Jews is a warning to men who live in these times, for it is the future history of the religious world. 14LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 7

The prophets did not all at once understand the mission and work of Christ, His humiliation in accepting humanity, and the treatment He would receive at the hands of His chosen people. Of this salvation "the prophets inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you; searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ and the glory that should follow. Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things which are now reported unto you by them that have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven; which things the angels desire to look into." [1 Peter 1:10-12.] 14LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 8

"Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be sober, and hope to the end for the grace that is to be brought unto you at the revelation of Jesus Christ." [Verse 13.] If these things are of such consequence that they engage the attention of prophets and apostles and angels, Gird up the loins of your mind. Search the Scriptures, and understand that God requires obedience to every precept of His law. Stand fast in the faith, and practice the Word which will be your righteousness and redemption in that day when every man will receive according as his works have been. 14LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 9

Increased light comes to the people of God in every age. If this were not so, the world would not have heard of God and of Jesus Christ whom He has sent. In the year 1899, there are good men who have not received the light of truth, and these are righteous before God. Men may be in possession of the Scriptures, and yet not understand their meaning. God judges human beings by the light they have, not by the light they have not.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 10

Even the angels in heaven long to understand the mysteries of God. This should lead professing Christians to regard with interest every event of history, that they may not walk blindfold, and thus lose the precious instruction they need. Men need to change their ideas in regard to the true standard of Christian character. Their ideas of right may be hoary with age, as old as the first lie framed in Eden, but this will not make error truth or truth error. Men must learn to obey a "Thus saith the Lord" if they would have eternal life.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 161, 1899, par. 11

“This Do, and Thou Shalt Live.”

“And, behold, a certain lawyer stood up, and tempted him, saying, Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?” [Luke 10:25.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 1</sup>

This is a question of the greatest importance to us all. It concerns our eternal interests. We cannot afford to remain in ignorance on this subject, for it relates to the salvation of the soul. To every heart is this question to come home, “What shall I do to inherit eternal life?” [Verse 25.] Not, What shall my neighbor do? or, What shall the community round me do? but, What shall I do? Your eternal welfare depends on the answer; therefore be sure to heed it and carry it in your heart.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 2</sup>

The Pharisees had prompted the lawyer to ask this question. With murder in their hearts they followed Christ where He went, hoping to hear Him say something by which they might accuse Him. Jesus understood their purpose. He knew that whatever answer He might make to the lawyer would be misconstrued and presented to the people as meaning something else. He let the lawyer answer his own question, disappointing the priests, who were listening for some word whereby they might accuse Him. Turning to the lawyer, Christ asked, “What is written in the law? how readest thou?” [Verse 26.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 3</sup>

The lawyer answered, “Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself.” [Verse 27.] This includes the whole man. Obedience to God means entire self-surrender, entire devotion to God’s service. To love God supremely and his neighbor as himself comprises the whole duty of man. Those who in their lives carry out these two great principles will not reveal the attributes of Satan, and God will judge them worthy to inherit eternal life.14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 4

To the lawyer's reply Christ said, "Thou hast answered right; this do, and thou shalt live." [Verse 28.] In these words there are no ifs or ands, no twisting or turning of the Scriptures. We may ask the question, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life," to our profit, if we will heed the answer. The terms laid down cannot be evaded. If we desire to win heaven, to gain a life that measures with the life of God, we must obey the conditions. "Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself. ... This do, and thou shalt live." [Verses 25, 27, 28.]14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 5

Christ stated plainly that the Jewish teachers made void the law of God by their traditions. They taught for doctrine the commandments of men. They mingled human sayings with the precepts of heaven, presenting them to the people as divine truth. The sayings of the rabbis were handed down from century to century, and were given to the people as a "Thus saith the Lord," when they were really the invention of human minds, the fruit of the tree of evil.14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 6

Christ's lessons were impressive and straightforward, direct and positive. He spoke without any uncertainty, and His hearers never wearied of listening to Him. His teaching was as great a contrast to their teaching as His practical obedience was to their daily transgression.14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 7

The scribes and Pharisees cherished in their hearts murderous feelings against Christ, because He did not extol them as competent to teach the Word of God. His pure, spotless life, His obedience to His Father's commands, roused their passions and prejudices, and they determined at all hazards to put Him to death.14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 8

By bringing in their own traditions the Jewish teachers made the Word of God of none effect. This the religious teachers of the world are doing today. Ministers teach for doctrine theories invented by men. By their assertions and misrepresentations they mislead the people. They advance false doctrines, enforcing them upon the people. But they cannot bring forward one syllable from the Bible to sustain their theories. Shall we follow their example? Shall we in our experience travel over the same road? Shall we lay aside the plain Word of God?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 9

Christ showed no respect for human traditions and maxims, and neither should we. We cannot afford to. Bible truth is the only safe platform upon which to stand. "The words that I speak unto you," Christ said, "they are spirit and they are life." [John 6:63.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 10

"What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" [Luke 10:25.] No man with his suppositions and assertions is able to answer this question for you or for me. Eternal life means everything to us. Shall we by believing human theories lose the life which Jesus died to purchase for us? Can we afford to run so great a risk? God's Word is true. In Him is no variableness, neither shadow of turning. He commands, and His children must obey His voice. Only thus can they escape the moral pollution that is in our world.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 11

Sin originated with Satan, the prince of evil, who in the heavenly courts became an apostate. Why he did this, God does not say, neither does Christ. Had there been any reasonable cause for his rebellion, transgression would not be transgression. But his conduct is an unexplainable problem.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 12

Adam and Eve listened to the flattery of Satan, and allowed him to persuade them to do the very thing God told them not to do. Satan tempted Eve by misrepresenting God's character. This work he is still doing. He can only lead the religious world captive by striving to tear down God's holy law, the standard of righteousness. He has lost none of his tact or experience during the thousands of years he has been tempting the human race. By throwing his hellish shadow between man and God, he strives to eclipse the rich loveliness of a character untainted by the curse of transgression. He has taken the world captive. He has chained men and women in bondage. They are the slaves of his will. Through those who obey his suggestions, he wins others to his side.14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 13

The forces of evil are leagued against the law of God. Satan is trampling God's commands under his feet, and he is helped by every man, woman, and child who knowingly transgresses the law. Evil angels with their leader are engaged in the warfare against good. They conspire with wicked men to destroy souls. On whose side are we?14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 14

As soon as man sinned, Christ took up the work of redemption. This He did to save the human race from eternal ruin. He took man's guilt upon Himself. He became our substitute and surety, giving us another trial, another probation. In this probation we are now living. Every son and daughter of Adam is being tested and tried. Thus God will prove whether men and women will return to their allegiance to Him.14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 15

Christ declared, "I have kept my Father's commandments." [John 15:10.] "Think not that I am come to destroy the law or the prophets. I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil. For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled." [Matthew 5:17, 18.]14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 16

"Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the law; for sin is the transgression of the law. And ye know that he was manifested to take away our sins, and in him is no sin." [1 John 3:4, 5.] Christ never violated the smallest precept of the law; therefore in Him there is no sin. For this reason He could become the Sin-bearer of the race. He was not overcome by the temptations of the enemy. He discerned the true character of Satan and stripped from him his disguise of an angel of light. He denounced every abominable practice in the land. It was this that awakened against Him the hatred of the whole synagogue of Satan.14LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 17

Satan had asserted that human beings could not keep the law of God. Christ's untainted purity and perfect obedience proved this assertion to be a lie. He showed that it was possible for every son and daughter of Adam who will accept Him as their Saviour and become partakers of the divine nature to keep the law. He bore the penalty of sin, bringing in everlasting righteousness, and giving man another opportunity to leave the black banner of rebellion for the bloodstained banner of Prince Emmanuel. But God never forces men to obey. They are left to choose for themselves.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 18

We are God's property, by creation and by redemption. Those who believe in Christ as a personal Saviour will take up the cross and follow Him. Christ's whole life on earth was a doing of the law of God. In humanity, before the heavenly universe and the fallen world, He testified that those who will lay hold upon the strength of Him who is mighty, and then engage in conflict with the foe, will be victorious. Christ has conquered the enemy on every point. He is able to take away the sins of all who believe and repent. He can impute to them His own righteousness. Through the merits of a crucified and risen Saviour, who proclaimed over the rent sepulcher of Joseph, "I am the resurrection and the life" [John 11:25], every man and woman may keep the law of God. "As many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name, which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." [John 1:12, 13.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 162, 1899, par. 19

Our Need of Faith

NP

December 18, 1899 [typed]

Previously unpublished. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

I am pained when I see so little faith in those who claim to be Christians. A large stock of unbelief is carried about by those who profess to be children of God, and this is displayed on every possible occasion. They do not believe except they can see. The reason why God can do so little for His people is that they do not have faith in His power. When obstacles arise, they do not go to Him and ask Him to work. They look at the discouraging features of the work, and lose heart. 14LtMs, Ms 163, 1899, par. 1

God would work by His power if men would humble their hearts before Him. "I will be honored in them that come before me," He says. [Leviticus 10:3.] We turn away many blessings from us because we are so ready to exalt self. When we bend up closely with Jesus Christ, we shall have His meekness. Hateful criticism will die. We will leave unspoken the words of importance, and humble ourselves under the hand of God. We will be kind and true and tenderhearted, and will love one another as Christ has loved us. Then we shall live the truth in the daily life. 14LtMs, Ms 163, 1899, par. 2

Being justified by faith, we shall have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ; "by whom also we have access by faith into this grace, wherein we stand and rejoice in hope of the glory of God. And not only so, but we glory in tribulation also, knowing that tribulation worketh patience, and patience experience, and experience hope. And hope maketh not ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us." [Romans 5:1-5.] 14LtMs, Ms 163, 1899, par. 3

Why do we not comprehend the fulness of the blessings we have in Christ? Why do we by our unbelief separate ourselves from God, so that our trials, in the place of working in us patience, experience and hope, cultivate faultfinding, censuring, and accusing of the brethren? Christianity does not consist in making good resolutions, in a fitful spasmodic experience. God must have control of all our powers—even our thoughts must be brought into captivity to Christ. There must be a steady, persevering cultivation of correct habits, correct thoughts. We are to wrestle against evil by wrestling with God in prayer. Then when the enemy comes in like a flood, the Spirit of the Lord will lift up a standard for us against the enemy.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 163, 1899, par. 4

Faithful or Unfaithful Stewards?

NP

December 26, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in 2SM 183-185. +<sup>NoteOne</sup> or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

In the twenty-first chapter of Matthew is recorded the parable of the unfaithful husbandmen. "There was a certain householder," Christ said, "which planted a vineyard, and hedged it round about, and digged a winepress in it, and built a tower, and let it out to husbandmen, and went into a far country: and when the time of the fruit drew near, he sent his servants to the husbandmen, that they might receive the fruits of it. And the husbandmen took his servants, and beat one, and killed another, and stoned another. Again, he sent other servants, more than the first, and they did unto them likewise. But last of all he sent unto them his son, saying, They will reverence my son. But when the husbandmen saw the son, they said among themselves, This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and let us seize on his inheritance. And they caught him, and cast him out of the vineyard, and slew him." [Verses 33-39.]14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 1

Every temporal and spiritual advantage had been given to the Jewish nation, the Lord's vineyard. God Himself had guided His people, taking them out of bondage and giving them an inheritance in the land of Canaan. He gave them His law, as a wall of protection around them, and told them that as His chosen people they were to show to the nations of the earth that the law of God's kingdom is holy and just and good. Obedience to this law would be for their highest interests, for it would bring them under the control of their Creator and Redeemer, and make of them a pure, wise people, whose joy it would be to deal justly, to love mercy, and to walk humbly with their God.14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 2

Faithful stewardship was to mark the lives of this people. Their advantages and possessions they were ever to regard as the Lord's lent treasure, to be used to advance the glory of His name. No unrighteous act must be considered praiseworthy by them. No unfair advantage must be taken of a fellow worker. Such deeds must not be treated as worthy of commendation. No man must act a selfish, independent part, for each was a part of God's great whole. His stewards must not selfishly look out for their own interests. Each must regard his neighbor's rights in the light of the command, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." [Leviticus 19:18.] Thus the principles of God's law were to be preserved. This merciful kindness would bind heart to heart. The principles of justice and equity and truth would be a reacting influence on the lives of men. 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 3

To the Jewish nation was committed the oracles of God, and they were commanded to live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. Never were they to depart from the instruction given them by Christ from the pillar of cloud. God declared that if this people would live by the pure unselfish principles given them, and thus fulfil His purpose for them, He would honor them before all the world. 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 4

"Observe and hear all these words that I command thee," He said, "that it may go well with thee, and with thy children after thee forever, when thou doest that which is right in the sight of the Lord thy God. When the Lord thy God shall cut off the nations from before thee, whither thou goest to possess them, and thou succeedest them, and dwellest in their land, take heed to thyself that thou be not snared into following after them, after that they be destroyed from before thee, and that thou inquire not after their gods, saying, How did these nations serve their gods? ... for even their sons and their daughters have they burnt in the fire to their gods. 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 5

"Whatsoever things I command, observe to do it; thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it." "Ye shall therefore keep all my statutes and all my judgments, and do them, that the land whither I bring you to dwell therein, spue you not out. And ye shall not walk in the manners of the nations, which I cast out before you; for they committed all these things, therefore I abhorred them. But I have said unto you, Ye shall inherit their land, and I will give it unto you to possess it, a land that floweth with milk and honey; I am the Lord your God, which have separated you from other people.” [Deuteronomy 12:28-32; Leviticus 20:22-24.]14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 6

But the people who should have been a moral light amid the darkness of the world disregarded the Word of the Lord. They lived for themselves, and neglected to do the very work God had appointed them, and which would have constituted them laborers together with God. The prophet Zechariah writes, “Then came the word of the Lord of hosts unto me, saying, Speak unto all the people of the land, and unto the priests, saying, When ye fasted and mourned in the fifth and seventh month, even in all these seventy years, did ye at all fast unto me, even unto me? And when ye did eat, and when ye did drink, did ye not eat for yourselves, and drink for yourselves? Shall ye not hear the word of the Lord which the Lord hath cried by the mouth of his former prophets, when Jerusalem was inhabited and in prosperity, and the cities thereof round about her, when men inhabited the south and the plain?” [Zechariah 7:4-7.]14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 7

“And the word of the Lord came unto Zechariah, saying, Thus speaketh the Lord of hosts, saying, Execute true judgment, and show mercy and compassion, every man to his brother. And oppress not the widow nor the fatherless, the stranger, nor the poor; and let none of you imagine evil against his brother in your heart.” [Verses 8-10.]14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 8

This teaching was the opposite to the course of action which the people had been pursuing, and they were displeased with it. They wanted to follow their own wisdom. In the tenth verse of the seventh chapter, the prophet is represented as addressing the men whose course of action was as evil leaven among the people, his hand placed upon their shoulder in earnest entreaty. “But they refused to hearken, and pulled away the shoulder, and stopped their ears, that they should not hear. Yea, they made their hearts as an adamant stone, lest they should hear the law, and the word which the Lord of hosts had sent in his Spirit by the former prophets.” [Verses 11,

And what was the result? “Therefore a great wrath came from the Lord of hosts. Therefore it came to pass, that as he cried, and they would not hear, so they cried, and I would not hear, saith the Lord of hosts. But I scattered them as a whirlwind among all the nations whom they knew not.” [Verses 12-14.]14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 10

The prophet Nehemiah presents the evildoings of the Jewish nation as the cause of their calamities. After detailing the Lord’s dealing with them, and their oft rebellion, the prophet says, “So the children went in and possessed the land, and thou subduest before them the inhabitants of the land, the Canaanites, and gavest them into their hand, with their kings, and the people of the land, that they might do with them as they would. And they took strong cities, and a fat land, and possessed houses full of all goods, wells digged, vineyards and oliveyards, and fruit trees in abundance; so they did eat, and were filled, and became fat, and delighted themselves in thy great goodness.”14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 11

“Nevertheless they were disobedient, and rebelled against thee, and cast thy law behind their backs, and slew thy prophets which testified against them to turn them to thee, and they wrought great provocations. Therefore thou deliveredst them into the hand of their enemies, who vexed them; and in the time of their trouble, when thy cried unto thee: thou heardest them from heaven, and according to thy manifold mercies thou gavest them saviours, who saved them out of the hand of their enemies. But after they had rest, they did evil again before thee; therefore leftest thou them in the hands of their enemies, so that they had the dominion over them.” [Nehemiah 9:24-28.]14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 12

These husbandmen lived, not to please God and to do His will, but to please themselves. Had thy heeded the word of the Lord, had they respected His warnings, they would have been saved from the sorrows and disasters which came upon them.14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 13

Christ was not recognized in the world by the people whom He had led and taught in the wilderness for forty years. The mighty General of armies came to our world in the garb of humanity, teaching the same truths which He gave from the pillar of cloud, but they did not recognize the heaven-sent Teacher. 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 14

The teachings which Christ had given to Israel in the pillar of cloud He carried into His life of self-denial and self-sacrifice. His teachings and example are before us. They are for every teacher of the truth to practice. The truth can only be made effectual when those in responsible positions, as pastors and managers of the interests of the church and cause of God, cease to seek their own interests, and to secure to themselves the best advantages. The Lord sees this spirit of selfishness. He marks the neglect to help sustain those who are trying to do His work in hard fields. He hears His workers as they lay before Him in prayer their necessities, and He will work in their behalf. He cannot and will not encourage anything that savors of indifference and hardness of heart. Kindness, truth, and righteousness are to be carried into the life; for these graces are needed if we would represent Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 15

Our God is exalted above all human conceptions of glory, and He would have His people praise and magnify His holy name. He would have men worship Him in spirit and truth, and in the beauty of holiness. "For thus saith the High and lofty One, that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy; I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble and to revive the heart of the contrite ones. ... For the iniquity of his covetousness was I wroth, and he went on frowardly in the way of his heart." [Isaiah 57:15, 17.] 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 16

No outward advantages can secure to man the spiritual blessings of God's covenant with Abraham. So also no outward appearance or disadvantage can prevent men from enjoying these blessings if he is obedient to the law of God. In all ages of the world it has been evidenced that God, who reads the hearts, knows the works of the children of men; and he that feareth God and worketh righteousness is accepted of Him. All the riches of the world will not raise the value of a soul in the sight of God. "I will declare thy righteousness, and thy works," He declares, "for it shall not profit thee." [Verse 12.] It is not the lofty structures, the great Babylons that are built, that bring to men the favor of God. It is faithful stewardship. The husbandman who returns to the Lord the fruits of the vineyard is the one whom God approves. Who in our world today of those who have been entrusted with the Lord's goods, have been faithful in returning to the Lord His own? 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 17

God requires fruit from His people. The husbandmen have received a trust from God, and this is to be used as God has specified. They are to return to the Lord His own in tithes and offerings, that those who know not God may be benefitted. In the goodness, the mercy, the justice and the love of God revealed in the church, the world is to have a representation of the character of their Creator. When men thus live the law of God, the world will have a living, high, exalted memorial of the superiority of those who love and fear and serve God above every other people on the face of the earth. The fruit of obedience God will make to appear in the union of Jews and Gentiles. Then the covenant made with Abraham will be fulfilled, "In thee shall all the nations of the earth be blessed." [Genesis 18:18; Galatians 3:8.]14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 18

The time in which we live calls for faithfulness. This grace is far more essential now than it has been at any other period of this earth's history; for Satan has come down with great power, and he is working with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish. Every soul must now stand watching and waiting, listening for the word of warning that God shall send. Every soul has a work to do in self-denial and close watching, lest Satan come in and be received as an honored guest. 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 19

At this time the grace of humility will be a safeguard to our churches. This must be our shield as we use and improve our talents, lest we become exalted as did the king of Babylon. The best of men could not endure the wrath of God for one moment. How carefully and conscientiously then should we work to carry out the will of God. 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 20

Any advantage that is gained by fraud, prevarication, or deception is a transgression of God's law and a dishonor to God. It is the worst kind of transgression to weave selfishness and sharp dealing into the management of the institutions that have been erected for the honor of God; for this misrepresents the name of Christ and strengthens the evil that is already prevalent in our world. In every transaction God's name is to be glorified. The man who is unfaithful in small matters, will be unfaithful also in larger matters. When men in high positions of [trust] bring these principles into their practice, God is misrepresented and the glory of His name is diminished. Corruption is seen in His places. There is to be a subjection of our desires to the revealed will of God. Obedience to God's commandments in the way He has specified will ever bring blessings to men. It will promote their lasting good by establishing in them principles of undeviating integrity. It will bring blessing to the whole house of Israel, and God's name will be glorified.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 21

Let there be more equality among us. There is too much eager grasping for recompense. Selfish estimates of the labor done are being made. Let no man receive so large a salary because he supposes he has adaptability to do a certain work, thus placing the work done for God and for the advancement of His cause on a mercenary basis. To whom much is given, of him much will be required. Let those who argue that they should receive large salaries because of their abilities and peculiar gifts inquire of themselves, "Whose are the talents I am trading upon? Have I used these talents in such a way as to bring the greatest glory to God? Have I doubled the talents lent me?" A consecrated use of these talents would bring a revenue to the cause of God. All our talents belong to God, and both principal and interest are one day to be handed back to Him. Those who demand large pay for the use of the talents entrusted to them are not returning to God that which He requires.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 22

If those who have been connected with the work of God for many years would study carefully how much injury they have done the Lord's vineyard by unwise moves, by departing from right principles, by diverting means from the cause of God, by using their position of influence to lead others into crooked paths, instead of grasping for higher wages, they would humble themselves before God with a repentance that needeth not to be repented of. They need to ask themselves the question, "How much owest thou unto my Lord?"

[Luke 16:5.] What account shall I render for the talent misused, for following my own unsanctified imagination? What can I do to blot out the evil results of my unwise moves which have so limited the resources of the cause? Had every man occupied his position of trust with faithfulness, there would be no dearth of means today in the Lord's treasury. 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 23

Our relation to the work of God is not to be placed on a mercenary foundation—according to the estimate of man, so much work, so much pay. It is a great mistake for men to suppose their services are invaluable. Let God be true to His Word, and there will be a great change in the estimate of work done for the Master. 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 24

O there are many things to be corrected in the men who are ready to grasp so much! How inappropriate are the selfish graspings for reward. This craving for high wages has expelled the love of God from many hearts. Pride of position is a deep-seated evil which has ruined thousands. Yes, tens of thousands, full of ambition for distinction and display have been ruined because they have lost sight of principle. They have measured themselves among themselves, and compared themselves with themselves. Their eager grasping for credit and reward has resulted in diminished spirituality. This is a lesson all should study carefully, that they may be warned against selfishness and avarice, against pride which destroys love for God and corrodes the soul. 14LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 25

When any man connected with the work of God refuses to work for the wages he is receiving when he is receiving a reasonable sum for his services, he may obtain what he asks for, but it will often be at the loss of the grace of God from his heart, which is of more value than gold and silver and precious stones. The apostle Peter writes, "As he which hath called you is holy, so be ye holy, in all manner of conversation; because it is written, Be ye holy; for I am holy. And if ye call on the Father, who without respect of persons judgeth according to every man's work, pass the time of your sojourning here in fear: forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, such as silver and gold, from your vain conversation, received by tradition from your fathers, but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot.” [1 Peter 1:15-19.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 26

Our God weighs the actions of men. Paul says, “God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love, which ye have showed toward his name.” [Hebrews 6:10.] The Lord rewards fruitfulness and spiritual growth. “He that hath, to him shall be given.” [Mark 4:25.] He will not fail to reward the act of faith and love. The grace of Christ cherished in the heart is always progressive, leading to an increase of knowledge, an ability to acquire a larger, deeper conception of divine things, until the words are traced in the books of heaven, Ye are complete in Him. Then in the place of the curse pronounced upon the barren fig tree, there is commendation and blessing. “And we desire of you that every one of you show the same diligence, to the full assurance of hope unto the end, that ye be not slothful, but followers of those who through faith and patience inherit the promises.” [Hebrews 6:11, 12.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 27

Those who labor earnestly and wholeheartedly as husbandmen in the Lord’s vineyard, after having done to the utmost of their ability, often feel that they have done comparatively nothing. Instead of swelling with pride and importance, and measuring every hour of work with exactitude, they tremble and fear lest they will lose their reward. They compare their labors with the labors of Christ for poor sinners, and account themselves unprofitable servants. Christ gave no stinted service. Through weary days He toiled, and through long nights He bent in prayer for grace and endurance that He might do a larger work. With strong crying and tears He sent His petition to heaven, that His human nature might be strengthened to embrace the world. O if His people would know the things that make for their peace! But this is an experience which they do not have. They are ignorant of what fellowship with Christ means. They know comparatively nothing of consecrated human service.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 28

I wish I could impress these words upon the minds of those who read them. We should never forget them, for they mean all that they imply. Christ calls us to become one with Him in genuine service. In every line of work it is our privilege to serve God with willingness, faithfulness, and gladness of heart. Shall we not do this? In the field, walking beside the plough, in the home life, in the missionary fields, we can serve Him. And when we lay off our rough garments, and engage in other lines of duty, we can still work with His glory in view. We need lose no opportunity of accomplishing good. And as we improve every opportunity of laboring for God, we shall have a sweet sense of peace and joy. And in the day when we shall sit down at the table of the Lord, Christ Himself will serve us as His loyal, royal children. Then those who now estimate themselves as first shall be last, and the last shall be first.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 164, 1899, par. 29

Words of Counsel to Ministers and Physicians

December 26, 1899 [typed]

Portions of this manuscript are published in TMK 304, 1BC 1113; 6BC 1084-1085, 1087; 7ABC 461, 476; 1MR 223-224; 5MR 114, 134-135. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. “And there were certain Greeks among them, that came up to worship at the feast; the same came therefore to Philip, ... and desired him, saying, Sir, we would see Jesus. Philip cometh and telleth Andrew, and again Andrew telleth Jesus.” [John 12:20-22.]14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 1

When the Saviour heard these words, His countenance lighted up. Divinity flashed through humanity. He saw in anticipation His death on the cross and the glorious victory resulting therefrom. His heart swelled with love for the human race. He answered, “The hour is come that the Son of man should be glorified. Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone; but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit. He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal.”14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 2

“If any man serve me, let him follow me, and where I am, there shall also my servant be: if any man serve me, him will my Father honor. Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour. Father, glorify thy name. Then there came a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again. The people, therefore, that stood by, and heard it, said that it thundered; others said, An angel spake to him. Jesus answered and said, This voice came not because of me, but for your sakes. Now is the judgment of this world; now shall the prince of this world be cast out. And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me.” [Verses 23-32.] 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 3

Soon was to be offered the great Sacrifice to which all the Jewish offerings pointed. When with the cross before Him, the Saviour uttered the sublime prediction, “Now shall the prince of this world be cast out. And I, if I be lifted up, shall draw all men unto me.” [Verses 31, 32.] He saw that the great apostate, who had been expelled from heaven, was the central power in the earth. Looking for Satan’s throne, He found it set up where God’s throne should have been. He saw all men worshiping the apostate, who inspired them with rebellion. The inhabitants of this world had prostrated themselves at Satan’s feet. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 4

Christ declared, “Where stands Satan’s throne, there shall stand My cross, the instrument of humiliation and suffering. No single principle of human nature will I violate. Clothing My divinity with humanity, I will endure every temptation wherewith man is beset. I will call to My aid the powers of heaven, that men and women, imbued with My Spirit, may overcome as I overcame. As evil agencies have arrayed themselves in opposition to God, so human influences united with divine agencies will work to oppose Satan and bring in righteousness. My benevolence and grace will find employment for human instrumentalities. The work out of My purposes in behalf of degraded humanity require that divine and human forces be combined. This will be necessary in order to successfully resist the power that would eclipse every ray of light from heaven. All My faithful, believing ones are needed to cooperate with Me. Clothed in the whole armor of righteousness, men are to stand in the power of My might.” 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 5

In the councils of heaven the cross was ordained as the means of atonement. This was to be God’s means of winning men to Him. Christ came to this earth to show that in humanity He could keep the holy law of God. “I have kept my Father’s commandments,” He declared. [John 15:10.] The Saviour proposed to reestablish the principles of human dependence upon God and co-operation between God and man. He purposed to unite God and man by the golden chain of love. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 6

Christ's identity with man will ever be the power of His influence. He became bone of our bone and flesh of our flesh. "The Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth." [John 1:14.] Adam's sin plunged the race into hopeless misery. Christ, by His human relationship to men, drew them close to God. He might have cut Himself loose from fallen beings. He might have treated them as sinners deserve to be treated. But instead, He came still nearer to them. He clothed His divine nature with the garb of humanity, and demonstrated before the heavenly universe, before the unfallen worlds, and before the fallen world how much God loves the human race. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 7

"Surely he hath borne our griefs and carried our sorrows; ... he was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; the chastisement of our peace was upon him, and with his stripes we are healed." [Isaiah 53:4, 5.] He was made "sin for us, who knew no sin, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him." [2 Corinthians 5:21.] If we inquire, "Why art thou red in thine apparel, and thy garments like him that treadeth the winefat?" He can answer, "I have trodden the winepress alone, and of the people there was none with me." [Isaiah 63:2, 3.] 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 8

Christ could not have done this work had He not been personally spotless. Only One who was Himself perfection could be at once the Sin-bearer and the Sin-pardoner. He stands before the congregation of His redeemed as their sin-burdened, sin-stained Surety, but it is their sins He is bearing. All through His life of humiliation and suffering, from the time that He was born an infant in Bethlehem till He hung on the cross of Calvary, and cried in a voice that shook the universe, "It is finished," the Saviour was pure and spotless. [John 19:30.] At any time in His life He could offer His enemies the challenge, "Which of you convinceth me of sin?" [John 8:46.] He offered Himself without spot to God. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 9

Jesus turned His whole being into a sacrifice. There is nothing that can be compared with the vastness of His plan for the salvation of man. And those who are truly imbued with the rich grace of God will be filled with the spirit of self-sacrifice. Those who have an experimental knowledge of the love of God will not only desire the success and enlargement of the work under their supervision; they will do their utmost to lift the standard in destitute regions. The message must be given. If the Lord's money is invested in enterprises in one country only, if men do not strive to set in operation in other fields the work they deem so necessary in their own little world, how can the Lord bless them?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 10

Brethren, do not, I beg of you, build up the work only in the places where you are presiding. Plan your work with reference to the field as a whole. If you wish to advance the glory of God, you must not allow one thread of selfishness to appear in your calculations. Christ expects every one of us to remember that He died for the world. He died not merely for one or two or three cities, but for the whole world. His self-sacrificing love brought Him from the heights of heaven to the depths of humiliation.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 11

To save perishing human beings, the Son of the infinite God turned His whole life into a sacrifice. He knew that divine power would come upon men, that the Holy Spirit would make His servants mouthpieces for God. Men and women are Christ's ordained agencies. He makes them the channel through which to communicate His grace. The ministry of the Word [is] God's appointed plan for the spread of the gospel. He has promised to give the Holy Spirit to those who preach the Word. But unless ministers are controlled by this Spirit, they speak not of God but of themselves.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 12

Let every one remember the words, "We are laborers together with God; ye are God's husbandry; ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] God works upon mind and heart, and this work produces character. "Ye are God's building." You are representatives of the great Master-Worker. God forbid that we should neglect to learn the trade of character building. The course to be pursued in this work is not according to the ideas of the world; the fashioning is not similar to the fashioning of the world. Those who enter the work of God without hiding self in Christ will soon disconnect themselves from the Master's building. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 13

Paul writes, "Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who hath blessed us with all spiritual blessings in heavenly places in Christ; according as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we should be holy, and without blame before him in love; having predestinated us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ to himself, according to the good pleasure of his will, to the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the beloved. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 14

"In whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace; wherein he hath abounded toward us in all wisdom and prudence; having made known unto us the mystery of his will, according to his good pleasure, which he hath purposed in himself, that in the dispensation of the fullness of times, he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven and which are in earth; even in him." [Ephesians 1:3-10.]14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 15

Notice the beginning of Paul's letter to the Galatians: "Paul, an apostle, (not of men, neither by men, but by Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised him from the dead;) and all the brethren which are with me, unto the churches of Galatia: Grace be unto you and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ." These high, holy, mighty powers stand at the head of the great firm. "Who gave himself for our sins, that he might deliver us from this present evil world, according to the will of God and our Father, to whom be glory both now and for ever." [Galatians 1:1-5.]14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 16

How wise [of] Paul to present the paternal character of God. He appreciated, as few now appreciate it, the meaning of the words, "Our Father." He was so filled with the Spirit of Christ that he understood God's relation to human beings. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 17

False principles and false doctrines were entering the church at Galatia, just as they are entering the churches today, and the apostle's heart was hurt and bruised. "I marvel," he writes, "that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ unto another gospel.” [Verse 6.] God had called Paul to do advance work, but he had the same difficulties to meet that will be met by all those who labor for God in 1899. “There be some that trouble you, and would pervert the gospel of Christ,” he continues. [Verse 7.] Middle men, claiming to believe the truth, were bringing in heresies, mingling Jewish traditions with the teaching of the gospel, saying, “Except ye be circumcised after the manner of the Jews, ye cannot be saved.” [Acts 15:1.] 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 18

Paul saw that this was turning some away from the truth, and he said, “As I said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. For do I now persuade men, or God? or do I seek to please men? for if I yet pleased men, I should not be the servant of Christ. But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after men. For I neither received it of men, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ.” [Galatians 1:9-12.] 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 19

The Lord has a work for His people to do. They are to make known the truth in its purity. The work of preaching Christ and Him crucified is to be the highest, grandest, and most important work ever done in our world. We have need of deep, earnest faith, faith which believes in God’s Word, faith which binds the soul in close union with the perfect, divine-human heart of Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 20

The work given to ministers is to preach the truth. Unless they are guarded, they will surely muffle the truth by human ornamentations. Let no minister suppose that by flowery discourses he can convert souls. Let him be renewed by the grace of Christ. This means that he must yoke up with Christ and learn His meekness and lowliness. Pride is death to spirituality. Every worker should feel that for all his success he is indebted to the great Worker. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 21

The Lord has a special work to be done. This work is not to be done in accordance with man’s planning. Medical missionary work is to be closely connected with the ministry of the Word, bound up with the third angel's message, the last message of mercy and warning to be given to the guilty world. The work of health reform, is to be bound up with the gospel. These cannot be separated, for God has united them. When these parts of the work are carried forward on correct lines, the third angel's message will be given in accordance with God's purpose. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 22

God has connected with work of the physician with the work of the minister. Both are needed. Each is to strengthen and give influence to the other. Physicians and ministers are engaged in one and the same great work, a work which embraces truths of infinite importance. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 23

The work of advocating the principles of health reform is not to be a haphazard work; it is a work which is deep and broad and high, and essential work, the credentials of which are its practical workings. Because we are health reformers, we are not to make a raid upon people's habits and practices. This is striking too directly at the gods they worship. Instead, we are to offer them something better. Why have we established health reform institutions? That we may give people a practical demonstration of the principles we advocate. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 24

We cannot ask religionists to give up their beliefs unless we offer them something better. The church members of today attend fairs and sociables. Gluttony and drunkenness is seen. They serve the gods of this world, offering them time and money. The Lord's lent treasures are misapplied and abused. His husbandry and building are destroyed. Some are intelligent in regard to the result of this course of action. Others are ignorant, they do not know, nor do they care, for appetite has bound them in chains. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 25

The heavenly angels are intensely interested in those who are fighting the good fight of faith. Our Saviour is watching earnestly the warfare between good and evil agencies. Satan is working constantly to bring in interests that will so absorb men's minds that they will lose eternity out of their reckoning. Those in high places are so deeply taken up with that which concerns common, worldly enterprises that they have no sense of their spiritual needs. For this reason the Lord has directed the establishment of institutions upon a plan entirely different from that followed by the world. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 26

It is God's will that sanitariums shall be erected. These institutions are to be conducted on gospel principles. The gospel is to give character to every sanitarium that shall be established among Seventh-day Adventists. The first sanitarium erected in this new world is to be founded and conducted on right principles. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 27

Every sanitarium established among Seventh-day Adventists should be made a Bethel. Those who are connected with this branch of the work should be consecrated to God. Those who minister to the sick, who perform delicate, grave operations, should remember that one slip of the knife, one nervous tremble, and a soul may be launched into eternity. Physicians should not be allowed to take so many responsibilities that they have no time for special seasons of prayer. Those in the sanitarium should be prayed with. By earnest prayer physicians should show their dependence upon God. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 28

The light upon health reform must be given to the world. Educate, educate, educate, in the sanitarium and out of it. Lead all with whom you come in contact to think of Jesus, the Way, the Truth, and the Life. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 29

For all our institutions, and especially for our sanitariums, the very best helpers should be selected. Much depends on physicians. There is serious danger that if a physician receives from the Lord ability and tact, he will think that the glory should be given to him. Only by giving all the honor to God, who by His Holy Spirit has given us all we have, can our sanitariums properly represent the truth. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 30

I would say to our physicians, Ask men and women to accept as their Saviour the One whom the Word declares can accomplish all things. Tell them that you believe the Word of God and His promises, that you would not dare to undertake critical operations without first making them special subjects of prayer. Invite them to come to Jesus with all their sins, and let Him take them away. As a people we have a truth which is distinct from all other professions of faith. But if our physicians have no more faith than other physicians, how can they be witnesses for God? There is need, great need, for us to live the pure, grand doctrines we hold. We need to show our faith by our works. Those who claim to believe the Bible just as it reads need to show by word and action that the mind is filled with a knowledge of present truth, that this truth exercises a positive influence upon the life, sanctifying the soul.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 31

Our physicians need to reform in the matter of making high charges for critical operations as is the custom of the worldly physician. A change will have to be made in this matter, for the Lord does not approve of robbery. In the past physicians have acted as though the law did not apply to them in regard to their charges. But because they are physicians they are not beyond the domain of God's law. It is not just or righteous for our physicians to follow a worldly standard in their charges.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 32

Neither are ministers of the gospel to set the highest price on their work in behalf of the souls for whom Christ made a voluntary offering. Freely and willingly He died on the cross that He might save all who come unto Him. Christ is our Pattern, and unless men are willing to learn in His school how to reveal His meekness and lowliness, they will not be successful in their work for Him. Neither will they be successful in winning eternal life. It is those who honor the Lord who are honored by Him.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 33

Those who are partakers of the divine nature pray earnestly, and asking, they receive. They seek diligently to understand the commandments of God, that they may make no mistake. They delight to do the will of God, that they may be distinguished as loyal members of the Lord's great firm. They love their brethren and are bound up with them by the cords of Christian fellowship. They are humble men, as singular for their humility as was Moses.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 34

Moses was the greatest man who ever stood as leader of the people of God. He was greatly honored by God, not for the experience which he had gained in the Egyptian court, but because he was the meekest of men. God talked with him face to face, as a man talks with a friend. If men desire to be honored by God, let them be humble. These who carry forward God's work should be distinguished from all others by their humility. Of the man who is noted for his meekness, Christ says, "He can be trusted. Through him I can reveal myself to the world. He will not weave into the web any threads of selfishness. I will manifest myself to him as I do not to the world." 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 35

When Jesus talked with the Samaritan woman, He did not reprove her for coming to draw from Jacob's well, but He presented something of far greater value. In comparison with Jacob's well, He showed her the fountain of living water. "If thou knewest the gift of God," He said, "and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink, thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water ... Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again, but whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water, springing up into everlasting life." [John 4:10, 13, 14.]14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 36

The living water is the Holy Spirit. This is a constant satisfaction to the thirsty soul. It is the absence of this Spirit that creates in men a desire to dishonor the spiritual fountain with which they are connected. He who is truly united with Jesus Christ receives a constant supply of living water. Depending on this supply of rich of rich grace, which brings great and still greater blessing, God's servants are not worried or anxious about their future standing. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 37

There are some physicians who think it necessary to have the favor and influence of the world. All that our physicians gain in this line will be to them great loss. He who is the author and finisher of our faith has never given us any encouragement to think that the world and the popular churches will be in accord with the truth which is as a sharp, two-edged sword, cutting to the very heart of worldly practices and human selfishness. When a physician feels that he must do something to gain the favor of the world, when he chooses to separate from the work of God and connect with the world, flattering himself that thus he will obtain widespread influences, he divorces himself from God and goes on a warfare at his own charges.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 38

In time, his motives are read even by worldly men, and he loses all by his selfishness. God will not serve with any man who links himself with worldlings or church members to secure influence. Influence must come in God's way, or it is not of the least value. The wisdom of the wise is foolishness with God. "The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wise that they are vain; therefore let no man glory in men. For all things are yours, ... and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's." [1 Corinthians 3:20, 21, 23.] Please read the second chapter of First Corinthians.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 39

Those who are not daily taught by the Lord, in answer in their earnest petitions, are ignorant of divine grace. They walk contrary to God, even though they may have had many advantages. There are many physicians who have no conception of the truths revealed by searching the Word, because their minds are preoccupied by a variety of things which disqualify them to meet God and answer to Him for their relationship to Him. There are those who love darkness rather than light.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 40

Shall the physicians who are a part of God's great firm expect such men to sustain them and give them wisdom and influences? Are they not as broken reeds? Will the Lord be pleased to have His servants solicit their sustenance and influence? God has not marked out any such course for His workers. The less we depend upon human policy or inventions to make our work a success before the churches [or] the world, the more success we shall have. Men will feel that there is nothing to be alarmed about in seeing ministers moving from place to place with their cotton meetinghouse, if they desire to be under the influence worldly elements can give them.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 41

The Holy Spirit is fully acquainted with every barrier created against the truth, and is able to communicate light and the knowledge of God's Word to us as Christ's representatives. The divine power is at our command. We may rely upon God as all-sufficient. We need not exchange the wisdom of God for the wisdom of men. The Holy Spirit taught the writers of the Bible what truths it was necessary to communicate to the human race, and gave them language in which to clothe the ideas given them by God. The Bible is our textbook, our Counsellor. In it are to be found the very leaves of the tree of life. It is an expression of the will and character of God, and is a perfect rule of faith and practice. Let us not go to men in the darkness of unbelief, who know not the work we have done and are doing, to be sustained and upheld by their influence. We could not give God greater offense than to do this. They are without spiritual discernment, without a knowledge of the history of God's people. We cannot expect them to comfort and support those who are called to do a work which they know nothing of.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 42

Our physicians surely do not realize that by their actions which they suppose recommend them, they are making their influence of none effect. If they cannot advance in faith, if they cannot stand on vantage ground in regard to truth and its various lines, the work may as well stop where it is. The Holy Spirit is the power which must attend the proclamation of divine truth. Physicians and ministers give themselves away when they go through a program of being introduced to a congregation after they have in the same place spoken to hundreds and thousands.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 43

Men who know not the truth look up to the man who seems to them to have had divine enlightenment. They are convinced that this man is imbued with a Spirit that comes from God, that he is under the teaching of the Holy Spirit. But when a teacher, be he physician or minister, turns for patronage and influence to those who have listened to him with astonishment, and marveled at the gracious words spoken, the conviction is swept away. The worldly policy appears, and this weakness makes of none effect the work of the teacher. The solemn, serious impressions made by the Holy Spirit are effaced. The people thought the teacher was holy, set apart by the Lord to do a special work; but now they are inclined to believe that his work was a scheme connected to deceive them and get their money.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 44

In Newcastle, in Maitland, the sound of the truth has gone forth, the trump of the Word of God has been heard. The work of health reform in these places must not take the form of a private enterprise. This will kill the influence of the ministry of the Word and medical missionary work. The people will say, We have all we can attend to among ourselves. We do not approve of this private, personal drawing for means. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 45

Tell your wants to God in prayer; but for Christ's sake, for the truth's sake, do not pursue a course which will belittle the sacred, elevated work we have to do. We bear the most solemn message ever given to our world, and physicians and ministers, with all other workers, are to draw together. They are not to pull apart. The physician is not to think that he will be more popular if he stands out separate from the gospel ministry. Doctors and ministers must draw together. Dr. Caro's movement in hiring a hall and striking out in his own lines to do as he thought best, without counselling with his brethren, shows a want to sound judgment. If he had any influence, this influence was needed by the workers just at the time that the tent was being moved. This was the time in which he should have used his influence to draw people to the meetings which were to bind off the work of the camp meeting. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 46

Such a lack of perception is calculated to do great harm. If Dr. Caro withdraws his part of the work at the time it is most needed, if at the time when the battle goes the hardest he establishes interests of his own, he certainly is not the man to be [connected] with the sanitarium. If when the interest seems to decline we leave it, we give an impression that is detrimental to the work which has cost so much money and so much hard effort. Unless we renounce dependence on worldly wisdom, unless in faith we rely on divine guidance, and bind our interests firmly together, we shall be weak rather than strong. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 47

It will take double work to remove the impressions made on the people of Maitland by the wrong moves that have been made. From some minds these impressions can never be effaced. My brother, you have certainly shown poor tact in fighting the powerful spiritual foes which have set themselves to oppose the Lord's work. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 48

As Daniel was praying, an angel came to him, saying, "Fear not,

Daniel, for from the first day that thou didst set thine heart to understand, and to chasten thyself before thy God, thy words were heard, and I am come for thy words. But the prince of the kingdom of Persia withstood me one and twenty days; but, lo, Michael, one of the chief princes, came to help me; and I remained with the kings of Persia. Now I am come to make thee understand what shall befall thy people in the latter days; for yet the vision is for many days.” [Daniel 10:12-14.] 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 49

We have certainly been hindered by Dr. Caro drawing apart from the gospel ministry, and going out to work on his own responsibility. In his shortsighted discernment, Dr. Caro has greatly retarded a work which God purposed should be done. We pray that the work may recover from the result of a division of forces. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 50

The wisdom of this world, of which worldly men are proud, in which they glory, brings no honor to God. Let not any man deceive himself by thinking that he has superior wisdom. Paul declares, “If any man among you seemeth to be wise,” ... if he thinks that alone he is able to do an important work—“let him become a fool that he may be wise.” [1 Corinthians 3:18.] His only hope is to renounce dependence on human wisdom, and realize his need of divine guidance at every step. He is to seek every day for the Holy Spirit’s power which God gives to all who are humble and trustful. He is to stand on vantage ground before the world, before angels, and before men, for he is seeking for light. He depends on God to show him the way. He does not rush on in self-confidence. 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 51

Let those who have been blessed by a knowledge of the Word of God remember the words of Paul, “Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but ministers by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man? I have planted, Apollos watered, but God giveth the increase. ... Now he that planteth and he that watereth are one; and every man shall receive his own reward according to his own labor. For we are laborers together with God; ye are God’s husbandry; ye are God’s building.” [Verses 5, 6, 8, 9.] 14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 52

All should understand that their efficiency comes from God. When we have spiritual discernment, we shall know that we are dependent on the Lord and not on man, and when we know this, the Lord will not have to withdraw Himself from us to bring us to our senses. We shall feel that God alone is to be honored. The men who make God their trust, who are true to the power of the Holy Spirit, will be made effectual in the salvation of men.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 53

Those who try to carry forward in right lines the work of health reform will meet with opposition; for the world calls for the broad road of self-indulgence, while Christ says, "Enter ye in at the strait gate; for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction, and many there be which go in thereat; because strait is the gate, and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it." [Matthew 7:13, 14.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 54

A strait gate means a gate difficult to enter. By this illustration Christ showed how hard it is for men and women to leave the world and the attractions it holds, and heartily and lovingly obey the commandments of God. The wide gate is easy to enter. Entrance through it does not call for the restrictions which are painful to the human heart. Self-denial and self-sacrifice are not seen in the broad way. There depraved appetite and natural inclinations find abundant room. There may be seen self-indulgence, pride, envy, evil surmisings, love of money, self-exaltation. Those who enter at the wide gate can be selfish and greedy. They can plunder their fellow men and rob God of that which belongs to Him.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 55

The doctrine we believe speaks for itself in our deeds and words. "Ye shall know them by their fruits," Christ said. "A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit." [Verses 16, 18.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 56

Our work for this time is not to be done by enticing words of man's wisdom, such as were used by heathen orators to gain applause. Speak in the demonstration of the Spirit, and with the power which God alone can impart. The testing truths for this time are to be proclaimed by men whose lips have been touched with a live coal from off God's altar. Such preaching will be a decided contrast to the preaching usually heard. Faithful, God-sent messengers are a spectacle to the world, to angels, and to men, not because they place themselves in high positions, but because they show that they are strengthened and helped by the Spirit.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 57

The movements which have been made in America, and which have been begun here to separate the medical missionary work from the ministry, are not of God's devising. Those who do medical missionary work must go forward on their own responsibility. The gospel and medical missionary work must go forward hand in hand, as God has appointed. The work is to be bound together. How can God's purpose be fulfilled if it is all arms, without a head to devise wise plans and movements?14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 58

In the ministry of the Word it is not only the words of the minister that are needed. Reading of the Scriptures, prayer, [and] singing, are essential. All these help to make the work a complete whole. So the varied gifts and talents entrusted to God's people are to be united in one body, under one acknowledged head—Jesus Christ, who has redeemed us by His own blood. Thus we testify to the world that we do not stand under human guidance, but under a heavenly Leader.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 59

Christ was sent by God to redeem men. As faithful soldiers, we are to act in His name and under His authority. He is the Captain of our salvation, and we are to obey His orders. The unity in the Lord's family on earth must be perfect. The ministers and physicians who are under the training and guidance of the Lord Jesus will work intelligently, not to attract men to themselves, not to exalt themselves, but to win souls to Christ. As servants of God we are to do this work faithfully. As laborers with the great Husbandman, we are to work together. The success of the work is due to Him alone, and to Him is to be ascribed all the glory.14LtMs, Ms 165, 1899, par. 60

God's Design in Establishing Sanitariums

NP

December 22, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in KC 12-14.

It is God's design to manifest through His people the principles of His kingdom. That in life and character they may reveal these principles, He desires to separate them from the customs, habits, and practices of the world. He seeks to bring them near to Himself, that He may make known to them His will.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 1

This was His purpose in the deliverance of Israel from Egypt. At the burning bush Moses received from God the message for the king of Egypt, "Let my people go, that they may serve me."<sup>Exodus 7:16</sup>. With a mighty hand and an outstretched arm God brought out the Hebrew host from the land of bondage. Wonderful was the deliverance He wrought for them, punishing their enemies who refused to listen to His word, with total destruction. God desired to take His people apart from the world, and prepare them to receive His word. From Egypt He led them to Mount Sinai, where He revealed to them His glory. Here there was nothing to attract their senses or divert their minds from God. As the vast multitude looked at the lofty mountains towering above them, they could realize their own nothingness in the sight of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 2

Beside these rocks, immovable except by the power of the divine will, God communicated with men. And that His word might ever be clear and distinct in their minds, He proclaimed amid thunder and lightning and with terrible majesty the law which He had given in Eden, and which was the transcript of His character. And the words were written on tables of stone by the finger of God. Thus the will of the infinite God was revealed to a people who were called to make known to every nation, kindred, and tongue the principles of His government in heaven and in earth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 3

To the same work He has called His people in this generation. To them He has revealed His will, and of them He requires obedience. In the last days of this earth's history the voice that spoke from Sinai is still saying to men, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me." Exodus 20:3. Man has set his will against the will of God, but he cannot silence this word of command. The human mind can never full comprehend its obligation to the higher power, but it cannot evade the obligation. Profound theories and speculations may abound, men may try to set science in opposition to revelation, and thus do away with the law of God; but stronger and still stronger will the Holy Spirit bring before them the command, "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." Matthew 4:10.14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 4

How is the world treating the law of God? Everywhere men are working against the divine precepts. Even the churches are taking sides with the great apostate. Men in their blindness boast of wonderful progress and enlightenment, but the heavenly watchers see the earth filled with corruption and violence. Because of sin the atmosphere of our world has become as the atmosphere of a pesthouse. 14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 5

A great work is to be accomplished in setting before men the saving truths of the gospel. This is the means ordained by God to stem the tide of moral corruption. This is His means of restoring His moral image in man. It is His remedy for universal disorganization. It is the power that draws men together in unity. 14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 6

To present these truths in the work of the third angel's message. The Lord designs that the presentation of this message shall be the highest, greatest work carried on in our world at this time. That this work may be carried forward on correct lines, He has directed the establishment of schools, sanitariums, publishing houses, and other institutions. In these institutions the attributes of God are to be unfolded, and the glory and excellence of the truth is to be made to appear more vivid. 14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 7

The Lord years ago gave me special light in regard to the establishment of a health institution where the sick could be treated on altogether different lines from those followed in any institution in our world. It was to be founded and conducted on Bible principles, as the Lord's instrumentality. Those who had any connection with this institution were to be educated in health restoring principles. 14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 8

The human family is suffering because of the transgression of the laws of God. Satan is constantly urging men to accept His principles, and thus he is seeking to counterwork the work of God. He is constantly representing the chosen people of God as a deluded people. He is an accuser of the brethren, and his accusing power he is constantly using against those who work righteousness. The Lord desires through His people to answer Satan's charges by showing the result of obedience to right principles. 14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 9

He desires our health institutions to stand as witnesses for the truth. They are to give character to the work which must be carried forward in these last days in restoring man through a reformation of the habits, appetites, and passions. Seventh-day Adventists are to be represented to the world by the advance principles of health reform which God has given us. 14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 10

Still greater truths are unfolding for this people as we draw near the close of time, and God designs that we shall everywhere establish institutions where those who are in darkness in regard to the needs of the human organism may be educated, that they in their turn may lead others into the light of health reform. The blind leaders of the blind must learn the truth in regard to healthful living as taught in the Scriptures. 14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 11

"God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3:16. Our health institutions must be conducted on life saving principles. Those who are suffering because of transgression of physical laws are to be taught that transgression of the laws of nature is transgression of the laws of God. "If thou wilt enter into life," Christ says, "keep the commandments." Matthew 19:17. Live out My law "as the apple of thine eye." Proverbs 7:2. 14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 12

And in our medical institutions the people are to be brought in contact with the special truths for this time. God says, "There shall be institutions established under the supervision of men who have been healed through a belief in God's Word, and who have overcome their defects of character." In the world all kinds of provision have been made for the relief of suffering humanity, but the truth in its simplicity is to be brought to these suffering ones through the agency of men and women who are loyal to the commandments of God. Sanitariums are to be established all through our world, and managed by a people who are in harmony with God's laws, a people who will cooperate with God in advocating the truth that determines the case of every soul for whom Christ died.14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 13

The truth is to be lived out by every one who has any connection with the work of God in our sanitariums. Physicians, nurses, and helpers are to work in harmony, to heal not merely the maladies of the body, but the disorders of the soul. When this is done, a power from God will go with the workers. Physicians, managers, and nurses will be living channels of light. The Lord will work with the people who will honor Him.14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 14

All the light of the past, which shines unto the present, and reaches forth into the future, as revealed in the Word of God, is for every soul who comes to our health institutions. The Lord designs that the sanitariums established among Seventh-day Adventists shall be symbols of what can be done for the world. Types of the saving power of the truths of the gospel, they are to be agencies in the fulfillment of God's great purposes for the human race.14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 15

To God's people and His institutions in this generation, as well as to ancient Israel, belong the words written by Moses through the Spirit of inspiration:14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 16

"Thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God; the Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself above all people that are upon the face of the earth." Deuteronomy 7:6.14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 17

"Behold, I have taught you statutes and judgments, even as the Lord my God commanded me. ... Keep therefore and do them; for this is your wisdom and your understanding in the sight of the nations, which shall hear all these statutes, and say, Surely, this great nation is a wise and understanding people. For what nation is there so great, who hath God so nigh unto them, as the Lord our God is in all things that we call upon him for? And what nation is there so great, that hath statutes and judgments so righteous as all this law, which I set before you this day?" Deuteronomy 4:5-8.14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 18

Even these words fail of reaching the greatness and the glory of God's purpose to be accomplished through His people. Not to this world only, but to the universe are we to make manifest the principles of His kingdom. The apostle Paul, writing by the Holy Spirit, says, "Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, is this grace given, that I should preach among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ; and to make all men see what is the fellowship of the mystery, which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jesus Christ; to the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be (made) (R.V.) known by the church the manifold wisdom of God." Ephesians 3:8-10.14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 19

Brethren, "we are made a spectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men." 1 Corinthians 4:9. "What manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness, looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God?" (2 Peter 3:11, 12, margin). 14LtMs, Ms 166, 1899, par. 20

The Medical Missionary Work and the Gospel Ministry

NP

December 22, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in KC 15-18.

As the medical missionary work becomes more extended, there will be a temptation to make it independent of our conferences. But it has been presented to me that this plan is not right. The different lines of our work are but parts of one great whole. They have one center. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 1

In Colossians we read, "The body is of Christ. Let no man beguile you of your reward in a voluntary humility and a worshipping of angels, intruding into those things which he hath not seen, vainly puffed up by his fleshly mind, and not holding the Head, from which all the body by joints and bands having nourishment ministered, and knit together, increaseth with the increase of God." Colossians 2:17-19. Our work in all its lines is to demonstrate the influence of the cross. The work of God in the plan of salvation is not to be done in any disjointed way. It is not to operate at random. The plan that provided the influence of the cross provided also the methods of its diffusion. This method is simple in its principles and comprehensive in its plain, distinct lines. Part is connected with part in perfect order and relation. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 2

God has brought His people together in church capacity in order that they may reveal to the world the wisdom of Him who formed this organization. God knew what plans to outline for the efficiency and success of His people. Adherence to these plans will enable them to testify of the divine authorship of God's great plan for the restoration of the world. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 3

Those who take part in God's work are to be led and guided by God. Every human ambition is to be submerged in Jesus Christ, who is head over all the institutions that God has established. He knows how to set in operation and keep in operation His own agencies. He knows that the cross must occupy the central place, because it is the means of man's atonement, and because of the influence it exerts on every part of the divine government. The Lord Jesus, who has been through all the history of our world, understands the methods that should be invested with power over human minds. He knows the importance of every agency, and understands how the varied agencies should be related to one another. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 4

"None of us liveth to himself." Romans 14:7. This is a law of God in heaven and on earth. God is the great Center. From Him all life proceeds. To Him all service, homage, and allegiance belongs. For all created beings there is the same great principles of life—dependence upon and cooperation with God. The relationship existing in the pure family of God in heaven was to exist in the family of God on earth. Under God, Adam was to stand at the head of the earthly family, to maintain the principles of the heavenly family. This would have brought peace and happiness. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 5

But the law that none liveth to himself Satan was determined to oppose. He desired to live for self. He sought to make himself a center of influence. It was this that brought rebellion in heaven, and it was man's acceptance of this principle that brought sin on earth. When Adam sinned, man broke away from the heaven-ordained center. A demon became the central power in the world. Where God's throne should have been, Satan had placed his throne. The world laid its homage, as a willing offering, at the feet of the enemy. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 6

Who could bring in the principles ordained by God in His rule and government to counterwork the plans of Satan, to bring the world back to its loyalty? God said, I will send My Son. God "so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John 3:16. This is the remedy for sin. Christ says, "Where Satan has set his throne, there shall stand My cross. Satan shall be cast out, and I will be lifted up to draw all men unto Me. I will become the center of the redeemed world. The Lord God shall be exalted. Those who are now controlled by human ambition, human passions, shall become workers for Me.14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 7

“Evil influences have conspired to counterwork all good. They have confederated to make men think it righteous to oppose the law of Jehovah. But My army shall meet in conflict with the satanic force. My Spirit shall combine with every heavenly agency to oppose them. I will engage every sanctified human agency in the universe. None of my agencies are to be absent. I work for all who love Me. I have employment for every soul who will work under My direction. The activity of Satan’s army, the danger that surrounds the human soul, call for the energies of every worker. But no compulsion shall be exercised. Man’s depravity is to be met by the love, the patience, the long-suffering of God. My work shall be to save those who are under Satan’s rule.”14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 8

Through Christ, God works to bring man back to his first relation to his Creator, and to correct the disorganizing influences brought in by Satan. Christ alone stood unpolluted in a world of selfishness, where men would destroy a friend or a brother in order to accomplish a scheme put into their minds by Satan. Christ came to our world, clothing His divinity with humanity, that humanity might touch humanity, and divinity grasp divinity. Amid the din of selfishness He could say to men, Return to your center, God. He Himself made it possible for man to do this by carrying out in this world the principles of heaven. In humanity He lived the law of God. To men in every nation, every country, every clime, He will impart heaven’s choicest gifts if they will accept God as their Creator and Christ as their Redeemer.14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 9

Christ alone can do this. His gospel, in the hearts and hands of His followers, is the power which is to accomplish this great work. “O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God!” Romans 11:33. Christ made it possible for the work of redemption to be accomplished, by Himself becoming subjects to Satan’s misrepresentations. Thus was Satan to show himself to be the cause of disloyalty in God’s universe. Thus was to be forever settled the great controversy between Christ and Satan.14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 10

Satan strengthens the destructive tendencies of man’s nature. He brings in envy, jealousy, selfishness, covetousness, emulation, and strife for the highest place. Evil agencies act their part through the devising of Satan. Thus the enemy's plans, with their destructive tendencies, have been brought into the church. Christ comes with His own redeeming influence, proposing through the agency of His Spirit to impart His efficiency to men, and to employ them as His instrumentalities, laborers together with Him in seeking to draw the world back to its loyalty. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 11

Men are bound in fellowship, in dependence, to one another. By the golden links of the chain of love they are to be bound fast to the throne of God. This can be done only by Christ's imparting to finite men the attributes which man would ever have possessed had he remained loyal and true to God. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 12

Those who, through an intelligent understanding of the Scriptures, view the cross aright, those who truly believe in Jesus, have a sure foundation for their faith. They have that faith which works by love and purifies the soul from all its hereditary and cultivated imperfections. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 13

God has united believers in church capacity in order that one may strengthen another in good and righteous endeavor. The church on earth would indeed be a symbol of the church in heaven if the members were of one mind and one faith. It is those who are not worked by the Holy Spirit that mar God's plan. Another spirit takes possession of them, and they help to strengthen the forces of darkness. Those who are sanctified by the precious blood of Christ will not become the means of counterworking the great plan which God Himself has devised. They will not bring human depravity into things small or great. They will not do anything to perpetuate division in the church. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 14

It is true there are tares among the wheat; in the body of Sabbathkeepers evils are seen; but because of this shall they disparage the church? Shall not the managers of every institution, the leaders of every church, take up the work of purification in such a way that the transformation in the church shall make it a bright light in a dark place? 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 15

What may not even one believer be in the exercise of pure, heavenly principles, if he refuses to be contaminated, if he will stand as firm as a rock to a “Thus saith the Lord”? Angels of God will come to his help, preparing the way before him.14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 16

Paul writes to the Romans, “I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God.” Romans 12:1, 2. This entire chapter is a lesson which I entreat all who claim to be members of the body of Christ to study.14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 17

Again, Paul writes, “If the firstfruit be holy, the lump is also holy; and if the root be holy, so are the branches. And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, wert grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree; boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee. Thou wilt say then, The branches were broken off, that I might be grafted in. Well; because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not highminded, but fear; for if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee. Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God, on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness; otherwise thou also shalt be cut off.” Romans 11:16-22. Very plainly these words show that there is to be no disparaging of the agencies which God has placed in the church.14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 18

Sanctified ministry calls for self-denial. The cross must be uplifted, and its place in the gospel work show. Human influence is to draw its efficacy from the One who is able to save and to keep saved all who recognize their dependence upon Him. By the union of church members with Christ and with one another, the transforming power of the gospel is to be diffused throughout the world.14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 19

In the work of the gospel the Lord uses different instrumentalities, and nothing is to be allowed to separate these instrumentalities.

Never should a sanitarium be established as an enterprise independent of the church. Our physicians are to unite with the work of the ministry of the gospel. Through their labors, souls are to be saved, that the name of God may be magnified. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 20

Medical missionary work is in no case to be divorced from the gospel ministry. The Lord has specified that the two shall be as closely connected as the arm is connected with the body. Without this union, neither part of the work is complete. The medical missionary work is the gospel in illustration. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 21

But God did not design that the medical missionary work should eclipse the work of the third angel's message. The arm is not to become the body. The third angel's message is the gospel message for these last days. In no case is it to be overshadowed by other interests and made to appear an unessential consideration. When in our institutions anything is placed above the third angel's message, the gospel is not there the great leading power. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 22

The cross is the center of all religious institutions. These institutions are to be under the control of the Spirit of God; in no institution is any one man to be the sole head. The divine mind has men for every place. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 23

Through the power of the Holy Spirit, every work of God's appointment is to be elevated and ennobled, and made to witness for the Lord. Man must place himself under the control of the eternal mind, whose dictates he is to obey in every particular. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 24

Let us seek to understand our privilege of walking and working with God. The gospel, though it contain's God's expressed will, is of no value to men, high or low, rich or poor, unless they place themselves in subjection to God. He who bears to his fellow men the remedy for sin, must first be worked himself by the Spirit of God. He must not ply the oars unless he is under divine direction. He cannot work effectually, he cannot carry out the will of God in harmony with the divine mind, unless he finds out, not from human sources, but from Infinite wisdom, that God is pleased with his plans. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 25

God's benevolent design embraces every branch of His work. The law of reciprocal dependence and influence is to be recognized and obeyed. "None of us liveth to himself." [Romans 14:7.] The enemy has used the chain of dependence to draw men together. They have united to destroy God's image in man, to counterwork the gospel by perverting its principles. They are represented in God's Word as being bound up in bundles to be burned. Satan is uniting his forces for perdition. The unity of God's chosen people has been terribly shaken. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 26

God presents a remedy. This remedy is not one influence among many influences, and on the same level with them; it is an influence above all influences upon the face of the earth, corrective, uplifting, and ennobling. Those who work in the gospel should be elevated and sanctified, for they are dealing with God's great principles. Yoked up with Christ, they are laborers together with God. Thus the Lord would bind His followers together, that they may be a power for good, each acting his part, yet all cherishing the sacred principle of dependence on the great Head. 14LtMs, Ms 167, 1899, par. 27

The Physician's Work a Cure of Souls

NP

December 22, 1899

This manuscript is published in entirety in KC 49-53. See 6T 229-234.

Every medical practitioner may through faith in Christ have in his possession a cure of the highest value—a remedy for the sin-sick soul. The physician who is converted and sanctified through the truth is registered in heaven as a laborer together with God, a follower of Jesus Christ. Through the sanctification of the truth, God gives to physicians and nurses wisdom and skill in treating the sick, and this work is opening the fast-closed door to many hearts. Men and women are led to understand the truth which is needed to save the soul as well as the body. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 1

This is an element that gives character to the work for this time. The medical missionary work is as the right arm to the third angel's message which must be proclaimed to a fallen world, and physicians, managers, and workers in any line, in acting faithfully their part, are doing the work of the message. From them the sound of the truth will go forth to every nation and kindred and tongue and people. In this work the heavenly angels bear a part. They awaken spiritual joy and melody in the hearts of those who have been freed from suffering, and thanksgiving to God arises from the lips of many who have received the precious truth. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 2

Every physician in our ranks should be a Christian. Only those physicians who are genuine Bible Christians can discharge aright the high duties of their profession. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 3

The physician who understands the responsibilities and accountability of his position will feel the necessity of Christ's presence with him in his work for those for whom such a sacrifice has been made. He will subordinate everything to the higher interests which concern the life that may be saved unto life eternal.

He will do all in his power to save both the body and the soul. He will try to do the very work that Christ would do were He in his place. The physician who loves Christ and the souls for whom Christ died will seek earnestly to bring into the sickroom a leaf from the tree of life. He will try to break the bread of life to the sufferer. Notwithstanding the obstacles and difficulties to be met, this is the solemn, sacred work of the medical profession. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 4

True missionary work is that in which the Saviour's work is best represented, His methods most closely copied, His glory best promoted. Missionary work that falls short of this standard is recorded in heaven as defective. It is weighed in the balances of the sanctuary and found wanting. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 5

Physicians should seek to direct the minds of their patients to Christ, the great Physician of soul and body. That which physicians can only attempt to do, Christ accomplishes. The human agent strives to prolong life. Christ is life itself. He who passed through death to destroy him that had the power of death is the source of all vitality. There is a balm in Gilead, and a physician there. Christ endured an agonizing death under the most humiliating circumstances that we might have life. He gave up His precious life that He might vanquish death. But He rose from the tomb, and the myriads of angels who came to behold Him take up the life He had laid down heard His words of triumphant joy as He stood above the rent sepulcher of Joseph proclaiming, "I am the resurrection and the life." [John 11:25.] 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 6

The question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" (Job 14:14) has been answered. By bearing the penalty of sin, by going down into the grave, Christ has brightened the tomb for all who die in faith. God in human form has brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. In dying Christ secured eternal life for all who believe in Him. In dying He condemned the originator of sin and disloyalty to suffer the penalty of sin—eternal death. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 7

The possessor and giver of eternal life, Christ was the only One who could conquer death. He is our Redeemer; and blessed is every physician who is in a true sense of the word of missionary, a saviour of the souls for whom Christ gave His life. Such a physician learns day by day from the great Physician how to watch and work for the saving of the souls and bodies of men and women. The Saviour is present in the sickroom, in the operating room; and His power for His name's glory accomplishes great things.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 8

The physician can do a noble work if he is connected with the great Physician. To the relatives of the sick, whose hearts are full of sympathy for the sufferer, he may find opportunity to speak the words of life. And he can soothe and uplift the mind of the sufferer, by leading him to look to the One who can save to the uttermost all who come to Him for salvation.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 9

When the Spirit of God works on the mind of the afflicted one, leading him to inquire for truth, let the physician work for the precious soul as Christ would work for it. Do not urge upon him any special doctrine, but point him to Jesus as the sin-pardoning Saviour. Angels of God will make impressions on the mind. Some will refuse to be illuminated by the light which God would let shine into the chambers of the mind and into the soul temple; but many will respond to the light, and from these minds deception and error in their various forms will be swept away.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 10

Every opportunity of working as Christ worked should be carefully improved. The physician should talk of the works of healing wrought by Christ, of His tenderness and love. He should believe that Jesus is his companion, close by his side. "We are laborers together with God." 1 Corinthians 3:9. Never should the physician neglect to direct the minds of his patients to Christ. If he has the Saviour abiding in his own heart, his thoughts will ever be directed to the great Healer of soul and body. He will lead the minds of sufferers to Him who can restore, who when on earth restored the sick to health, and healed the soul as well as the body, saying, "Son, thy sins be forgiven thee." Mark 2:5.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 11

Never should familiarity with suffering cause the physician [to] become careless or unsympathetic. In cases of dangerous illness, the afflicted one feels that he is at the mercy of the physician. He looks to that physician as his only hope, and the physician should ever point the trembling soul to One who is greater than himself, even the Son of God, who gave His life to save him from death, who pities the sufferer, and who by His divine power will give skill and wisdom to all who ask Him. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 12

When the patient knows not how his case will turn is the time for the physician to impress the mind. He should not do this with a desire to distinguish himself, but that he may point the soul to Christ as a personal Saviour. If the life is spared, there is a soul for that physician to watch for. The patient feels that the physician is the very life of his life. And to what purpose should all this weight of confidence be employed? Always to win a soul to Christ and magnify the power of God. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 13

When the crisis has passed, and success is apparent, be the patient a believer or an unbeliever, let a few moments be spent with him in prayer. Give expression to your thankfulness for the life that has been spared. The physician who follows such a course carries his patient to the One upon whom he is dependent for life. Words of gratitude may flow from the patient to the physician, for through God he has bound this life up with his own; but let the praise and thanksgiving be given to God, as to One who is present, though invisible. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 14

On the sickbed Christ is often accepted and confessed, and this will be done oftener in the future than it has been in the past, for a quick work will the Lord do in our world. Words of wisdom are to be on the lips of the physician, and Christ will water the seed sown, causing it to bring forth fruit unto eternal life. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 15

Our sanitariums are to be a blessing to high and low, rich and poor. Men and women of all classes are brought together in these institutions, and they become acquainted with one another. They learn to sympathize with their fellow beings in their suffering, and thus the partition wall between man and his fellow man is broken down. Those who visit the sanitarium are to be taught the power of God in the restoration of the sick. This will make an impression on the mind that God is in the place. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 16

It is God's purpose that those who visit our health institutions shall become acquainted with the third angel's message. Though doctrinal subjects are not to be urged upon the sick, yet if these truths are lived out, the Spirit of God will bring conviction to hearts, and the faithful guardian of souls will understand when the opportunity has come to present the special truths for this time. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 17

We lose the most precious opportunities by neglecting to speak a word in season. Too often a precious talent that ought to produce a thousandfold is left unused. If the golden privilege is not watched for, it will pass. Something was allowed to prevent the physician from doing his appointed work as a minister of righteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 18

There are none too many godly physicians to minister in their profession. There is much work to be done, and ministers and doctors are to work in perfect union. Luke, the writer of the gospel that bears his name, is called the beloved physician, and those who do a work similar to that which he did are living out the gospel. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 19

Our camp meetings should have the labors of medical men. These should be men of wisdom and sound judgment, men who respect the ministry of the Word, and who are not victims of unbelief. These men are the guardians of the health of the people, and they are to be recognized and respected. They should give instruction to the people in regard to the dangers of intemperance. This evil must be more boldly met in the future than it has been in the past. Ministers and doctors should set forth the evils of intemperance. Both should work in the gospel in perfect harmony with power to condemn sin and exalt righteousness. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 20

Countless are the opportunities of the physician for warning the impenitent, cheering the disconsolate and hopeless, and wisely prescribing for the health of mind and body. As he thus instructs the people in the principles of true temperance, and as a guardian of souls gives advice to those who are mentally and physically diseased, the physician is acting his part in the great work of making ready a people prepared for the Lord. This is what medical missionary work is to accomplish in its relation to the third angel's message. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 21

At our camp meeting practical physicians can give instruction line upon line, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little. Those ministers or doctors who do not open their lips to make personal appeals to the people are remiss in their duty. They fail of doing the work which God has appointed them. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 22

Ministers and physicians are both to work with earnestness to save the souls that are being bound up in Satan's snare. They are to point men and women to Jesus, their righteousness, their strength, and the health of their countenance. Continually they are to watch for souls. There are those who are struggling with strong temptations, in danger of being overcome in the fight with satanic agencies. Will you pass these by without offering them assistance? If you see a soul in need of help, engage in conversation with him, even thou you do not know him. Pray with him. Point him to Jesus. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 23

This work belongs just as surely to the doctor as to the minister. By public and private effort the physician should seek to win souls to Christ. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 24

In all our enterprises and in all our institutions God is to be acknowledged as the great Master-Worker. The physicians are to stand as His representatives. The medical fraternity has made many reforms, and they should rise still higher. Those who hold the lives of human beings in their hands should be educated, refined, sanctified. Then will the Lord work through them in mighty power to glorify His name. He will reveal Himself as the Healer of the body and the soul. 14LtMs, Ms 168, 1899, par. 25

Dangers and Duties of the Physician and the Medical Missionary

NP

December 22, 1899 [typed]

This manuscript is published in entirety in KC 53-61.

The fourth chapter of the epistle to the Ephesians contains lessons given us by God. In this chapter one speaks under the inspiration of God, one to whom in holy vision God had given instruction. He describes the distribution of God's gifts to His workers, saying: 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 1

"He gave some, apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers; for the perfecting of the saints, for the work of the ministry, for the edifying of the body of Christ; till we all come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." Verses 11-13. Here we are shown that God gives to every man his work, and in doing this work man is fulfilling his part of God's great plan. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 2

This lesson should be carefully considered by our physicians and medical missionaries. God establishes His instrumentalities among a people who recognize the laws of the divine government. The sick are to be healed through the combined effort of the human and the divine. Every gift, every power, that Christ promised His disciples, He bestows upon those who will serve Him faithfully. And He who gives mental capabilities, and who entrusts his talents to the men and women who are His by creation and by redemption, expects that these talents and these capabilities shall be increased by use. Every talent must be employed in blessing others, and thus bringing honor to God. But physicians have been led to suppose that their capabilities were their own individual property; the powers given them for God's work they have used in branching out into lines of work to which God has not appointed them. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 3

Satan works every moment to find an opportunity for stealing in. He tells the physician that his talents are too valuable to be bound up among Seventh-day Adventists, that if he were free, he could do a very large work. The physician is tempted to feel that he has methods which he can carry independent of the people for whom God has wrought that He might place them above every other people on the face of the earth. But let not the physician feel that his influence would increase if he should separate himself from this work. Should he attempt to carry out his plans, he would not meet with success. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 4

Selfishness introduced in any degree into ministerial or medical work is an infraction of the law of God. When men glory in their capabilities, and cause the praise of men to flow to finite beings, they dishonor God, and He will remove that in which they glory. The physicians connected with our sanitariums and medical missionary work have by God's providence been bound to this people, whom He has commanded to be a light in the world. Their work is to give all that the Lord has given them—to give, not as one influence among many, but as the influence through God to make effective the truth for this time. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 5

God has committed to us a special work, a work that no other people can do. He has promised us the aid of His Holy Spirit. The heavenly current is flowing earthward for the accomplishment of the very work appointed us; but this heavenly current is turned aside by our many diversions from the straightforward path marked out by Christ. Man's disregard of the Lord's instruction robs us of the strength He longs to impart. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 6

Physicians are not to suppose that they can compass the world by their plans and efforts. God has not set them to embrace so much with their own labors merely. The man who invests his powers in many lines of work cannot take in hand the management of a sanitarium and do it justice. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 7

If the Lord's workers take up lines of work which crowd out that which should be done by them in communicating light to the world, God does not receive through their labors the glory that should accrue to His holy name. When God calls a man to do a certain work in His cause, He does not also lay upon him burdens that other men can and should bear. The Lord does not want the minds of His responsible men strained to the utmost point of endurance by taking up many lines of work. All these lines may be essential; but God apportions to every man his duty according to his own wisdom. If the worker does not take up his appointed work, that which the Lord sees is the very thing he is fitted to do, he is neglecting duties which, if properly executed, would result in the promulgation of the truth, and would prepare men for the great crisis before us. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 8

God cannot give in greatest measure either physical or mental power to those who gather to themselves burdens which He has not appointed. When men take upon themselves such responsibilities, however good the work may be, their physical strength is overtaxed, their minds become confused, and they cannot attain the highest success. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 9

Physicians in our institutions should not engage in numerous enterprises, and thus allow the work, which should stand upon right principles and exert a worldwide influence, to flag. God has not set His co-laborers to embrace so many things, to make such large plans, that they fail in their allotted place of accomplishing the great good He expects them to do in diffusing light to the world, in drawing men and women to where He is leading by His supreme wisdom. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 10

The enemy has determined to counterwork the designs of God to benefit humanity in revealing to them what constitutes true medical missionary work. So many interests have been brought in that the workers cannot do all things according to the pattern shown in the mount. I have been instructed that the work appointed to physicians is enough for them to do, and what the Lord required of them was to link up closely with the gospel missionaries and do their work with faithfulness. He has not asked our physicians to embrace so large and varied a work as some have undertaken. He has not made it the special work of our physicians to go into the worst dens of iniquity in our large cities. The Lord does not require impossibilities of men. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 11

The work which He gave to our physicians was to symbolize to the world the ministry of the gospel in medical missionary work. The Lord does not lay upon His people all the burden of laboring for a class so hardened by sin that many of them will neither be benefited themselves nor benefit others. If there are men who can take up the work of laboring for the most degraded, if God lays upon them a burden to labor for the masses in various ways, let these go forth and gather from the world the means required for doing this work. Let them not depend on the means which God intends shall sustain the work of the third angel's message.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 12

Our sanitariums need the power of brain and heart of which they are being robbed by another line of work. Everything that Satan can do he will do to multiply the responsibilities of our physicians, for he knows that this means weakness instead of strength to the institutions with which they are connected.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 13

Great consideration must be exercised in the work which we undertake. We are not to take large burdens in the care of infant children. This work is being done by others. We have a special work in caring for and educating the children more advanced in years. Let families who can do so, adopt the little ones, and they will receive a blessing in so doing. But there is a higher and more important work to engage the attention of our physicians in educating those who have grown up with deformed characters. The principles of health reform must be brought before parents. They must be converted, that they may work as missionaries in their own homes. This work our physicians have done and can still do if they will not sacrifice themselves by carrying such large responsibilities.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 14

The head physician in any institution holds a difficult position, and he should keep himself free from minor responsibilities, for these will give him no time for rest. He should have sufficient reliable help, for he has trying work to perform. He must bow in prayer with the suffering ones, and lead his patients to the great Physician. If as a humble suppliant he seeks God for wisdom to deal with each case, his strength and influence will be greatly increased.14LtMs, Ms 169,

Of himself, what can man accomplish in the great work set forth by the infinite God? Christ says, "Without me ye can do nothing." John 15:5. He came to our world to show men how to do the work given them by God, and He says to us, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." Matthew 11:28-30. Why is Christ's yoke easy and His burden light? Because He bore the weight of it upon the cross of Calvary. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 16

Personal religion is essential for every physician if he would be successful in his work for the sick. He needs a power greater than his own intuition and skill. God desires physicians to link up with Him, and know that every soul is precious in His sight. He who depends upon God, realizing that He alone who made man knows how to direct, will not fail in his appointed work as a healer of bodily infirmities, or as a physician of the souls for whom Christ has given His life. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 17

One who bears the heavy responsibilities of the physician needs the prayers of the gospel minister, and he should be linked, soul, mind, and body with the truth of God. Then he can speak a word in season to the afflicted. He can watch for souls as one who must give an account. He can present Christ as the Way, the Truth, and the Life. The Scriptures come clearly to his mind, and he speaks as one who knows the value of the souls with whom he is dealing. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 18

Conforming to the World

The Lord Jesus has said, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." Luke 9:23. Christ's words made an impression on the minds of His hearers. Many of them, though not clearly comprehending His instruction, were moved by deep conviction to say decidedly, "Never man spake like this man." John 7:46. The disciples did not always understand the lessons Christ wished to convey by parables, and when the multitude had gone away, they would ask Him to explain His words. He was ever ready to lead them to a perfect understanding of His word and His will; for from them, in clear, distinct lines, truth was to go forth to the world. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 19

At times Christ's reproached His disciples with the slowness of their comprehension. He placed in their possession truths for which they little suspected the value. He had been with them a long time, giving them lessons in clear lines, but their previous religious education, the erroneous interpretations which they had heard the Jewish teachers place on the Scriptures, kept their minds clouded. Christ promised them that He would send them His Spirit, who would recall His words to their minds as forgotten truths. "He shall teach you all things," Christ said, "and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you." John 14:26. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 20

The way in which the Jewish teachers explained the Scriptures, their endless repetition of maxims and fiction, called forth from Christ the words, "This people draweth nigh unto me with their mouth, and honoreth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me." [Matthew 15:8.] They performed in the temple courts their round of service. They offered sacrifices typifying the great Sacrifice, saying by their ceremonies, "Come, my Saviour," yet Christ, the One whom all these ceremonies represented, was among them, and they would not recognize or receive Him. The Saviour declared, "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." Matthew 15:9. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 21

Christ is saying to His servants today as He said to His disciples, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me." [Luke 9:23.] But men are as slow now to learn the lesson as in Christ's day. God has given His people warning after warning, but the customs, habits, and practices of the world have had so great power on the minds of His professed people that His warnings have been disregarded. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 22

Those who act a part in God's great cause are not to follow the example of worldlings. The voice of God is to be heeded. He who depends on men for strength and influence leans on a broken reed.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 23

Depending on men has been the great weakness of the church. Men have dishonored God by failing to appreciate His sufficiency, by coveting the influence of men. Thus Israel became weak. The people wanted to be like the other nations of the world, and they asked for a king. They desired to be guided by human power which they could see, rather than by the divine, invisible Power that till then had led and guided them, and had given them victory in battle. They made their own choice, and the result was seen in the destruction of Jerusalem and the dispersion of the nation.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 24

We cannot put confidence in any man, however learned, however elevated he may be, unless he holds the beginning of his confidence in God firm unto the end. What must have been the power of the enemy upon Solomon, a man whom Inspiration has thrice called the beloved of God, and to whom was committed the great work of building the temple! In that very work Solomon made an alliance with idolatrous nations. And through his marriages he bound himself up with heathen women. Through their influence he, in his later years, forsook the temple of God to prepare groves for their idols.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 25

So now, men set God aside as not sufficient for them. They resort to worldly men for recognition, and think that by means of the influence gained from the world they can do some great thing. But they mistake. By leaning on the arm of the world instead of the arm of God, they turn aside the work which God desires to accomplish through His chosen people.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 26

When brought in contact with the higher classes of society, let not the physician feel that he must conceal the peculiar characteristics which sanctification through the truth gives him. The physicians who unite with the work of God are to cooperate with God as His appointed instrumentalities. They are to give all their power and efficiency to magnifying the work of God's commandment-keeping people. Those who in their human wisdom try to conceal the peculiar characteristics that distinguish God's people from the world will lose their spiritual life, and will no longer be upheld by His power.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 27

Never let the idea be entertained that it is essential to make an appearance of being wealthy. There will be a strong temptation to do this, with the thought that it will give influence. But I am instructed to say that it will have just the opposite effect.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 28

All who seek to uplift themselves by conforming to the world set an example that is misleading. God recognizes as His those only who practice the self-denial and sacrifice which He has enjoined. Physicians are to understand that their power lies in their meekness and lowliness of heart. God will honor those who make Him their dependence.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 29

The style of a physician's dress, his equipage, his furniture, weigh not one jot with God. He cannot work by His Holy Spirit with those who try to compete with the world in dress and display. He who follows Christ must deny himself and take up the cross.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 30

The physician who loves and fears God will not need to make any outward display in order to distinguish himself; for the Sun of Righteousness is shining in his heart and is revealed in his life, and this distinguishes him. When men work in Christ's lines, they will be living epistles, known and read of all men. Through their example and influence men of wealth and talent will be turned from the cheapness of material things to lay hold on eternal realities. The greatest respect will ever be shown to the physician who reveals that he receives his directions from God. Nothing will work so powerfully for the advancement of God's instrumentality as for those connected with it to stand steadfast as His faithful servants.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 31

It is God's plan that even worldly people who come to our sanitariums shall have a sense of security while there, because they are in a place where prayer is offered up to God. They are to see that there is in the world a people who possess talent and knowledge, yet who are not vain and self-exalted.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 32

The physician will find that it is for his present and eternal good to follow the Lord's way of working for suffering humanity. The mind that God has made He can mold without the power of man, but He honors men by asking them to cooperate with Him in this great work.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 33

Many regard their own wisdom as sufficient, and they arrange things according to their judgment, thinking to bring about wonderful results. But if they would depend on God and not on themselves, they would receive heavenly wisdom. Those who are so engrossed with their work that they cannot find time to press their way to the throne of grace and obtain counsel from God will surely turn the work into wrong channels. Our strength lies in our union with God through His only begotten Son and in our union with one another.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 34

The surgeon most truly successful is he who loves God, who sees God in His created work, and worships Him as he traces His wise arrangement in the human organism. The most successful physician is he who fears God from his youth as did Timothy, who feels that Christ is his constant companion, a friend with whom he can always commune. Such a physician would not change his position for the highest office the world could give. He is more anxious to honor God and secure His approval than to secure patronage and honor from the great men of the world.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 35

Prayer

Every sanitarium established among Seventh-day Adventists should be made a Bethel. All who are connected with this branch of the work should be consecrated to God. Those who minister to the sick, who perform delicate, grave operations should remember that one slip of the knife, one nervous tremor, and a soul may be launched into eternity. They should not be allowed to take so many responsibilities that they have no time for special seasons of prayer. By earnest prayer they should acknowledge their dependence upon

God. Only through a sense of God's pure truth in the mind and heart, only through the calmness and strength that He alone can impart, are they qualified to perform those critical operations which mean life or death to the afflicted ones. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 36

The physician who is truly converted will not gather to himself responsibilities that interfere with his work for souls. Since without Christ, "ye can do nothing" (John 15:5), how can a physician or a medical missionary engage successfully in his important work without earnestly seeking the Lord in prayer? Prayer and a study of the Word bring life and health to the soul. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 37

The Lord will do wondrous things for the truth's sake, and that His name may be glorified. But He requires that the people who engage in His service shall keep their minds ever directed to Him. Every day they should have time for reading the Word of God and for prayer. Every officer and every soldier under the command of the God of Israel needs time in which to consult with God and seek His blessing. If the worker allows himself to be drawn away from this, he will lose his spiritual power. Individually we are to walk and talk with God; then the sacred influence of the gospel of Christ will appear in all its preciousness. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 38

A work of reformation is to be carried on in our institutions. Physicians, workers, [and] nurses, are to realize that they are on probation, on trial for their present life, and for that life which measures with the life of God. We are to put to the stretch every faculty, every nerve and muscle, in order to bring saving truths to the attention of suffering human beings. This work must be carried on in connection with the work of saving the sick. Then the work will stand forth before the world in the strength which God designs it shall have. Through the influence of sanctified workers the truth will be magnified. It will go forth as a lamp that burneth. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 39

Exorbitant Fees

Honesty, integrity, justice, mercy, love, compassion, and sympathy are embraced in medical missionary work. In all this work the religion of the Bible is to be practiced. The Lord does not want any one to labor as His representative who follows the wrong customs and practices of worldly physicians in treating suffering humanity. Our physicians need to reform in the matter of making high charges for critical operations. And the reform should extend farther than this. Often an exorbitant sum is charged for even small services, because physicians are supposed to be governed in their charges by the practices of worldly physicians. There are those who follow worldly policy in order to accumulate means, as they say, for God's service. But God does not accept such offerings. He says, "I hate robbery for burnt offering." Isaiah 61:8. "Those who deal unjustly with their fellow men while professing to believe My Word, I will judge for thus misrepresenting Me." 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 40

As these things were presented before me, my Teacher said, The institutions that depend upon God and receive His cooperation must ever work according to the principles of the law of God. To charge a large sum for a few moment's work is not just and right. Physicians who are under the discipline of the greatest Physician the world ever knew must let the principles of the gospel regulate every fee. Let mercy and the love of God be written on every dollar received. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 41

When our sanitariums are conducted as they should be, a large medical missionary work will be done. Every worker will do his work in such a way and with such a spirit that he will shine as a light in the world. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 42

God calls for the doing of practical, Christlike work. The patients who come to our sanitariums are to see carried out the principles laid down in the fifty-eighth chapter of Isaiah. Those who have accepted the truth are to practice it because it is the truth. In the work of God in our institutions the truth is to be preserved in all its sacred influence. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 43

The medical practitioner should in all places keep his religious principles clear and untarnished. Truth should be paramount in his practice. He is to use his influence as a means of cleansing the soul by the healing beams of the Sun of Righteousness. When a time comes that physicians cannot do this, the Lord would have no more medical institutions established among Seventh-day Adventists. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 44

The Tithe

The men connected with the institutions of God's appointment are to be careful to acknowledge God in all their ways. They are to show that to Him they owe their intellect and all their capabilities. As did Abraham, they are to pay tithe of all they possess and all they receive. A faithful tithe is the Lord's portion. To withhold it is to rob God. Every man should freely, willingly, and gladly bring tithes and offerings into the storehouse of the Lord. In so doing he will receive a blessing. There is no safety in withholding from God His own portion. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 45

The Lord says, "Will a man rob God? Yet ye have robbed me. But ye say, Wherein have we robbed thee? In tithes and offerings. Ye are cursed with a curse; for ye have robbed me, even this whole nation. Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it. And I will rebuke the devourer for your sakes, and he shall not destroy the fruits of your ground; neither shall your vine cast her fruit before the time in the field, saith the Lord of hosts. And all nations shall call you blessed; for ye shall be a delightsome land, saith the Lord of hosts." Malachi 3:8-12. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 46

Observance of the Sabbath

Let no man, because he is a physician, feel at liberty to do those things which God has forbidden. He should not, because he is a physician, travel on the Sabbath unless this is a necessity in order to relieve suffering. He should plan his work so as to obey God's requirements. The Lord says, "Verily, my Sabbaths ye shall keep; for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations." Exodus 31:13. When there is real suffering to be alleviated, it is not a desecration of the Sabbath for physicians to travel upon it; but unimportant cases should be deferred. God sanctified and blessed the seventh day, and it is to be kept as His sacred memorial. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 47

God created the world in six days, and rested upon the seventh "Wherefore," He declares, "the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant." Exodus 31:16. Those who keep God's commandments may claim the promises contained in Isaiah 58:11-14. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 48

The instruction given in this chapter is full and decided. Those who refrain from labor on the Sabbath may claim divine comfort and consolation. Shall we not believe God? Shall we not call holy the day which He calls holy? Man should not be ashamed to acknowledge as sacred that which God calls sacred. He should not be ashamed to acknowledge as sacred that which God calls sacred. He should not be ashamed to do that which God has commanded. Obedience will bring him a knowledge of what constitutes true sanctification. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 49

Let there be no robbery of God in tithes and offerings, no desecration of God's holy time. Man is not to do his own pleasure on God's day. He has six days in which to work at secular business, and God claims the seventh as His own. "In it," He says, "thou shalt not do any work." Exodus 20:10. The servant of God will call sacred that which the Lord calls sacred. Thus he will show that he has chosen the Lord as his Leader. The Sabbath was made in Eden, when the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy. God has placed it in our charge. Let us keep it pure and holy. 14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 50

The Important of Obedience

Subtle, dangerous temptations will come to the physician who believes the truth for these last days. That which would be condemned in a worker of another class is supposed to be admissible in a physician. Thus a multitude of sins are covered up, sins which are registered in the books of heaven as a departure from Bible principles. These temptations the physician may resist if he understands his peril and stands fast by his Saviour. If true to the Word of God, we are on the side of Christ, on the side of the loyal, holy angels; we stand under the shield of Omnipotence. Of whom, then should we be afraid?14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 51

There are those who cannot appreciate the gospel of Christ sufficiently to practice it in every line of their work. These will criticize. Those who are superficial and selfish do not know God or Jesus Christ by an experimental knowledge, and they are always faithless. In their eyes small obstructions appear as mountains. There is always a lion in the way.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 52

The Lord requires truth in the inward parts. He will give the Holy Spirit to all who ask Him in faith. He calls for men to act as gospel ministers, to act as physicians, whom no flattery can cause to swerve from the truth. Ministers and doctors are to be under the rule of God. He in whose heart the Spirit of God bears rule will follow the example of Christ. The life, the character, will be so Christlike that it will roll back the unjust reproach from the pure truth of Christ.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 53

There must be no failure in God's work. Every thought, every plan, must be in harmony with God's expressed will. He is our Creator, our Redeemer, our Counsellor. He is to be the first, the last, and best in everything.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 54

In obedience to the commandments of God the soul will receive the best of everything. Every blessing may be enjoyed with the favor of God when heart, mind, and life are consecrated to His service. If men would accept Christ, and see the binding claims of the law of God, they would not take a neutral position, but would stand out in full confidence, and say, The Lord is my helper. He is the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom He has sent is the supreme and everlasting Good. Thus they would secure for themselves the grand promise of God.14LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 55

This is an individual work. Every worker in God's cause should strive to become more and more efficient. There must be no careless disregard of God's expressed will. The laborer together with God must live by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God. Let us individually draw nigh to the mount, that we may understand what the Lord commands, and then obey.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 169, 1899, par. 56

Exorbitant Fees

NP

1899 and 1900

Compiled from letters and manuscripts in 1899 and 1900. Portions of this manuscript are published in MM 125-127, 169-171.

Honesty, integrity, justice, mercy, love, compassion, and sympathy are embraced in medical missionary work. In all this work the religion of the Bible is to be presented. The Lord does not want any one to labor as His representative who follows the wrong customs and practices of worldly physicians in treating suffering humanity. Our physicians need to reform in the matter of making high charges for critical operations; and the reform should extend farther than this. Often an exorbitant sum is charged for even small services, because physicians are supposed to be governed in their charges by the practices of worldly physicians. Some follow worldly policy in order to accumulate means, as they say, for God's service. But God does not accept such offerings. He says, "I hate robbery for burnt offering." Isaiah 61:8. Those who deal unjustly with their fellow men while professing to believe My words, I will judge for thus misrepresenting Me.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 1

As these things were presented before me, my teacher said, "The institutions that depend upon God and receive His cooperation must ever work according to the principles of His law." To charge a large sum for a few moments' work is not just. Physicians who are under the discipline of the greatest Physician the world ever knew must let the principles of the gospel regulate every fee. Let mercy and the love of God be written on every dollar received.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 2

When our sanitariums are conducted as they should be, a large medical missionary work will be done. Every one will do his work in such a way and with such a spirit that he will shine as a light in the world.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 3

God calls for practical, Christlike work. The patients who come to our sanitariums are to see carried out the principles laid down in the 58th chapter of Isaiah. Those who have accepted the truth are to practice it because it is the truth. In the work of God in our institutions the truth is to be preserved in all its sacred influences. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 4

The medical practitioner should in all places keep his religious principles clear and untarnished. Truth should be paramount in his practice. He is to use his influence as a means of cleansing the soul by the healing beams of the Sun of Righteousness. When a time comes that physicians cannot do this, the Lord would have no more medical institutions established among Seventh-day Adventists. High prices are current in the world; but correct principles are to be brought into our work. The Bible standard is to be maintained. The way of the Lord, justice, mercy, and truth, is to be followed. No exorbitant bills are to be sent in for slight operations. The charges made are to be proportionate to the work done. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 5

The work done in our medical institutions is to be true to the name, "Medical Missionary Work." We do not want the Lord to think ill of us because we misrepresent the work of Christ. God has not given us permission to do a work which will not bear the investigation of the judgment. He does not want any institution established by His people to bear a reputation similar to that borne by Ananias and Sapphira. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 6

Desiring to gain a reputation for self-sacrifice, liberality, and devotion to the Christian faith. Ananias and Sapphira sold their property, and laid part of the proceeds at the feet of the apostles, pretending they had given it all. They had no been urged to give all they had to the cause. God would have accepted part. But they desired it to be thought that they had given all. Thus they thought to gain the reputation they coveted, and at the same time keep back part of their money. They thought they had been successful in their scheme; but they were cheating the Lord, and He dealt summarily with this, the first case of deception and falsehood in the newly formed church. He slew them both, as a warning to all of the danger of sacrificing truth to gain favor. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 7

We are not to misrepresent what we profess to believe in order to gain favor. God despises misrepresentation and prevarication. He will not tolerate the man who says, and does not. The best and noblest work is done by fair, honest dealing. A lawyer came to Christ with the question, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" "What is written in the law? how readest thou?" Christ asked. The lawyer answered, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbor as thyself." "Thou hast answered right," Christ said; "this do, and thou shalt live." [Luke 10:25-28.] Upon these two great arms hang all the law and the prophets. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 8

We all need a far higher, purer, holier trust in God. Every physician should be true and honest. He is not in any case to defraud his patients. If he performs a simple operation, he is to charge a simple price. The charges made by other physicians are not to be his criterion. The diseased bodies over which he works are God's property. He has said, "Ye are not your own; for ye are bought with a price; therefore glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's." 1 Corinthians 6:19, 20. The exorbitant price often charged by physicians when called upon to attend suffering humanity is robbery, fraud. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 9

God gives physicians their wisdom and skill. It is not man who saves life; it is the Great Restorer. But poor men are often charged for services they never receive. Many physicians merely speak a few words to the suffering fellow being they are called to visit, doing nothing to relieve him, and they charge a large fee. This is dishonesty before God. They should go vigorously to work, as did the good Samaritan. God is not glorified as a Restorer when physicians demand such large sums for their services. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 10

In our sanitariums provision must be made for all classes. The Lord does not call upon our people to establish institutions where all who come, can receive food and lodging free, and where the peculiar points of our faith must not be introduced. The Lord has not laid this work upon any Seventh-day Adventist. To do this would be a misuse of time and means. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 11

The accommodation and treatment must be such that patients of the higher class will be attracted. Rooms must be fitted up for the use of those who are willing to pay a liberal price. But physicians are not to place too high an estimate on wealthy patients who can afford to pay high prices; neither is there to be an extravagant outlay of means with a view of gaining patronage. The charges for treatment and accommodations must not be so high that there will be a reluctance to keep to the simple, wholesome food that is essential to health. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 12

Ask a reasonable price for the treatment given. This course will recommend itself to all reasonable minds. To set your price above what is true and honest may be in accordance with the customs of worldly physicians, but it will not redound to the glory of God. It is not His plan, and will not gain His approval. It will have an unfavorable influence upon the world. The charging of such high prices will bring a rebound, and will have an influence altogether different from what is expected. Exorbitant prices should never be charged. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 13

I am commissioned to speak to all who are engaged as physicians in our institutions. A reformation is required in regard to the management of these institutions. They are not to be conducted as the world would conduct them. While many who cannot afford to pay, are treated free, others are charged exorbitant prices for operations which take but little time. The charges of worldly physicians are not to rule in our institutions. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 14

Many complaints have come to me regarding the high charges made for operations. Such charges greatly injure the medical missionary work. They bring it into disrepute so that it is bandied about and ridiculed as a scheme to get gain. This has been against us as a people, and has been a great burden upon my soul. 14LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 15

Warnings and cautions have been given on these points from the Lord. He will not bless fraud in any phase of business transaction. The medical profession in general carries a heavy stock of unjust exactions, but shall we copy their sin? We are reformers. We are supposed to be pursuing a course that will represent the character of perfect humanity, the pure, elevated character of Christ. When this is true of us, a well-established purpose of strict integrity in things that are least will be carried by us into the larger responsibilities. Sanctified hearts will always reveal sanctified principles.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 169a, 1899, par. 16

The Avondale School Farm

NP

July 22, 1899

Drawn from Ms 115, 1898. This manuscript is published in entirety in AUCR 07/31/1899.

Sabbath Afternoon, July 22, 1899

Read by Ellen G. White at the Avondale Church

I have words of counsel for our brethren regarding the disposition and use of the lands near our school and church. I have been learning of the great Teacher. Many particulars regarding the work at Cooranbong have not been opened before me until recently, and not until now have I felt at liberty to speak of them. And even now I do not feel free to reveal all things because our people are not yet prepared to understand all that will be developed at Avondale in the providence of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 1

At the beginning of the Sabbath I fell asleep, and some things were clearly presented before me. There were persons selecting allotments of land on which they proposed to build houses and establish their homes. But One stood in our midst who said, "You are making a great mistake, which you will have cause to regret. This land is not to be occupied with buildings except to provide the facilities essential for the teachers and students of the school. This land about the school is to be reserved as the school farm. It is to become a living parable to the students. The students are not to regard the school land as a common thing, but are to look upon it as a lessonbook which the Lord would have them study. Its lessons will impart knowledge in the spiritual culture of the soul."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 2

"If you should settle this land near the school with private houses, and then be driven to select for cultivation other land at a distance from the school, it would be a great mistake, and one always to be regretted. All the land near the building is to be considered the school farm, where the youth can be educated under well-qualified superintendents. The youth that shall attend our school need all the land near by. They are to plant it with ornamental trees and fruit trees, and to cultivate garden produce. The school farm is to be regarded as a lessonbook in nature from which the teachers may draw their object lessons. Our students are to be taught that Christ, who created the world and all things that are therein, is the life and light of every living thing. The life of every child and youth who is willing to grasp the opportunities for receiving a proper education will be made thankful and happy while at school by the things which his eyes shall rest upon.”14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 3

The Work Before Us

We need more teachers and more talent to educate the students in various lines, that there may go forth from this place many persons willing and able to carry the knowledge which they have received to many others. Orphan boys and girls are to find a home here. Buildings should be erected for a hospital; boats should be provided to accommodate the school; and we should have wise, energetic, and active men to act as superintendents of the several enterprises, men who will use their whole and undivided talents in teaching the students how to work. A competent farm manager should be employed, that before the winter school shall open again, the grounds around our school buildings may become a school farm.14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 4

Lads are to come in from different localities, and nearly all will take the industrial course. This course should include the keeping of accounts, carpenter’s work, and everything that is comprehended in farming. Preparation should also be made for the teaching of blacksmithing, painting, shoemaking, cooking, baking, washing, mending, typewriting, and printing. Every power at our command is to be brought into this training work, that students may go forth equipped for the duties of practical life.14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 5

Cottages and buildings essential to the school work are to be erected by the students themselves. These buildings should not be crowded close together, nor located near the school buildings proper. In the management of this work small companies should be formed who should be taught to carry a full sense of their responsibility. All these things cannot be accomplished at once, but we are to begin to work in faith. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 6

The Land to be Reserved

The Lord would have the grounds about the school dedicated to Him as His own schoolroom. We are located where there is plenty of land, and the grounds near the church should not be occupied with private houses. Those who believe the truth for this time are not all transformed in character. They are not all proper object lessons, for they do not represent the character of Christ. There are many who would be pleased to get close to the church and the school who will not be helps, but hindrances. They feel that they should be helped and favored. They do not appreciate the character and the situation of the work in which we are engaged. They do not understand that all which has been done at Avondale has been accomplished with the hardest labor and the use of money given with sacrifice or which must be paid back again to those from whom it was borrowed. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 7

Among those who will desire to settle at Avondale there will be some who are filled with importance and anxiety about their own reputations. They are sensitive and cautious. These need to be converted, for they are far from standing where they can receive the blessing of the Lord. Satan tempts them to ask favors which will only injure them if granted, and thus they bring anxiety to their brethren. The living principles of the Word of God need to be brought into the lives of many who now find no room for these principles. Those who are learning in the school of Christ will count every favor from God as too good for them. They will realize that they do not deserve all the good things which they receive, and they will count themselves happy. Their faces will express peace and rest in the Lord, for they have the word of God that He cares for them. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 8

“Thus saith the Lord, The heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool; where is the house that ye build unto me? and where is the place of my rest? for all those things hath mine hand made, and all those things have been, saith the Lord: but to this man will I look, even to him that is of a poor and a contrite spirit, and that trembleth at my word.” [Isaiah 66:1, 2.] During the last days of 1898 we had many experiences to teach us what these words mean. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 9

My heart was greatly burdened, and matters were opened before me then in regard to the evils to arise from disposing of the land near the school to be occupied with dwelling houses. We seemed to be in a council meeting, and there stood One in our midst who was expected to help us out of our difficulties. The words which He spoke were plain and decided: 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 10

“This land, by the appointment of God, is for the benefit of the school. You have had evidences of the working of human nature and what it will reveal under temptation. The more families that you settle around the school buildings, the more difficulties you throw in the way of teachers and students. The natural selfishness of the children of men is ready to spring into life if everything is not convenient for them. This land about the school is to be the school farm, and this farm is to occupy much more space than we have thought it would. Work in connection with study is to be done here according to the counsels given. Avondale is to be a philanthropic center. God’s people in Australasia are to be moved upon by the Spirit of the Lord to give sympathy and means to support and encourage many charitable and benevolent enterprises, which shall teach the poor, the helpless, and the ignorant how to help themselves.” 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 11

A Panorama

On several occasions the light has come to me that Avondale is to be used as the Lord’s farm. In a special sense there is to be connected with this farm land that shall be highly cultivated. Spread out before me there was land planted with every kind of fruit tree that will bear fruit in this locality, also vegetable gardens, where seeds were sown and cultivated. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 12

If the managers of this farm, and the teachers in the school will receive the Holy Spirit to work with them, they will have wisdom in their management, and God will bless their labors. The planting and the sowing, the gathering of the harvest, and the care of the trees, are to be wonderful lessons for all the students. The invisible links which connect the sowing and the reaping are to be studied, and the goodness of God is to be pointed out and appreciated. It is the Lord that gives the virtue and the power to the soil and to the seed. Were it not for His divine agency, combined with human tact and ability, the seed sown would be useless. There is an unseen power constantly at work as man's servant to feed and to clothe him. The parable of the seed as studied in the daily experience of teacher and student is to reveal that God is at work in nature, and it is to make plain the things of the kingdom of heaven.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 13

God and Nature

Next to the Bible, nature is to be our great lessonbook. But there is no virtue in deifying nature, for this is exalting the thing made [above] the great Master Artist who designed the work, and who keeps it every hour operating according to His appointment. As we plant the seed and cultivate the plant, we are to remember that God created the seed, and He gives it to the earth. By His divine power He cares for that seed. It is by His appointment that the seed in dying gives its life to the blade, which contains in itself other seeds to be treasured and again put into the earth to yield their harvest. We may also study how the cooperation of man acts a part. The human agent has his part to act, his work to do. This is one of the lessons which nature teaches, and we shall see in it a solemn, a beautiful work.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 14

There is much talk about the Lord in nature, as if God were bound by the laws of nature to be nature's servant. In this men do not know what they are talking about. Do they suppose that nature has a self-existing power without the continual agency of Jehovah? Many theories would lead minds to suppose that nature was a self-sustaining agency apart from Deity, having its own inherent power with which to work. The Lord does not exert His laws to supersede the laws of nature. He does His work through the laws and the properties of His instruments, and nature obeys a "Thus saith the

Lord.”14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 15

The God of nature is perpetually at work. His infinite power works unseen, but manifestations appear in the effects which the work produces. The same God who guides the planets works in the fruit orchard and in the vegetable garden. He never made a thorn, a thistle, or a tare. These are Satan’s work, the result of degeneration, introduced by him among the precious things. It is through God’s immediate agency that every bud bursts into blossom. When He was in the world in the form of humanity, Christ said, “My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.” [John 5:17.] So when the students employ their time and strength in agricultural work, in heaven it is said of them, “Ye are laborers together with God.” [1 Corinthians 3:9.]14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 16

Let the lands near the school and the church be retained. Those who come to settle in Cooranbong can, if they choose, find for themselves homes near by, or on portions of, the Avondale Estate. But the light given to me is that all that section of land from the school orchard to the Maitland road, and extending on both sides of the road from the meetinghouse to the school, should become a farm and a park, beautified with fragrant flowers and ornamental trees. There should be fruit orchards and every kind of produce cultivated that is adapted to this soil, that this place may become an object lesson to those living close by and afar off.14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 17

Then let everything not essential to the work of the school be kept at a distance, and thus prevent any disturbance of the sacredness of the place through the proximity of families and buildings. Let the school stand alone. There must not be this one and that one claiming personal property near it. It will be better for private families, however devoted they may be in the service of the Lord, to be located at some distance from the school buildings. The school is the Lord’s property, and the grounds about it are His farm, where the great Sower can make His garden a lessonbook. The results of the labors will be seen, “first the blade, then the ear, then the full corn in the ear.” [Mark 4:28.] The land will yield its treasures, bringing the joyousness of an abundant harvest, and the produce gathered through the blessing of God is to be used as nature’s lessonbook, from which spiritual lessons can be made plain and applied to the necessities of the soul. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 18

An Object Lesson

There are great things before us which we see must be done, and as fast as we obtain the means with which to work we shall go forward. There needs to be patient, painstaking effort made for the encouragement and uplifting of the surrounding communities, and for their education in industrial and sanitary lines. The school and everything connected with it should be object lessons, teaching the ways of improvement, and appealing to the people for reform, so that taste, industry, and refinement may take the place of coarseness, uncleanness, disorder, ignorance, and sin. Even the poorest can improve their surroundings by early rising and putting forth diligent, painstaking effort. By our lives and example we can help others to discern that which is repulsive in their characters or about their premises, and with Christian courtesy we may encourage improvement. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 19

The question will often arise, What can be done where poverty prevails and is to be contended with at every step? Under these circumstances how can we impress minds with correct ideas of improvement? Certainly the work is difficult; and unless the teachers, the thinking men, and the men who have means will exercise their talents, and will lift just as Christ would lift were He in their places, an important work will be left undone. The necessary reformation will never be made unless men and women are helped by a power outside of themselves. Those who have entrusted talents and capabilities must use these gifts to bless their fellow men, laboring to place them upon a footing where they can help themselves. It is thus that the education gained at our schools must be put to the very best use. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 20

God's entrusted talents are not to be hid under a bed or under a bushel. "Ye are the light of the world," Christ said. [Matthew 5:14.] As you see families living in hovels, with scant furniture and clothing, without tools, without books or anything indicative of refinement about their homes, will you become interested in them, and endeavor to teach them how to put to the very best use their vital forces, that there may be improvement, and that their work may move forward? It is by diligent labor, by putting to the wisest use every capability, by learning to waste no time, that they will become successful in improving their premises and cultivating their land.14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 21

Physical effort, moral power, and intellectual achievements are to be united in our effort to regenerate and reform. We are to seek to gain knowledge both in temporal and spiritual lines, that we may diffuse it to others. We are to seek to live out the gospel in all its bearings, that its temporal and spiritual blessings may be felt all around us.14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 22

Missionary Effort the Highest Training

The Lord will surely bless all who seek to bless others. The school is to be so conducted that teachers and students will be continually increasing in power through the faithful use of the talents given them. By faithfully putting to a practical use that which they have learned, they will constantly increase in wisdom and knowledge. We are to learn from the Book of books the principles upon which we are to live and labor. By consecrating all our God-given abilities to Him who has the first right to them, we may make precious everything that is worthy of our attention.14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 23

When entered upon with this spirit, the missionary work becomes an elevating and uplifting work, both to the laborer and to the person helped. Let everyone who claims to be a child of the heavenly King seek constantly to represent the principles of the kingdom of God. Let each remember that in word, in spirit, and in works he is to be loyal and true to all the precepts and commandments of the Lord. We are to be faithful, trustworthy subjects of the kingdom of Christ, that those who are worldly wise may have a true representation of the riches, the goodness, the mercy, the tenderness, and the courtesy of the manners of the citizens of the kingdom of God.14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 24

The students who will get the most good out of life are those who will live the Word of God in their connections and dealings with their fellow men. Those who receive to give will feel the greatest satisfaction in this life. The members of the human family who live for themselves are always in want, for they are never satisfied. There is no Christianity in shutting up our sympathies to our own selfish hearts. We are to bring the brightness and the blessing into the lives of others, thus doing a good and holy work. The Lord has ordained channels through which He lets flow His goodness, mercy, and truth; and we are to be co-workers with Jesus Christ in communicating to others practical wisdom and benevolence. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 25

If the Avondale school becomes what the Lord is seeking to make it, the missionary effort of teachers and students will bear fruit. Both in the school and outside, there will be willing subjects brought to allegiance to God. The rebellion which took place in heaven under the power of a lie, and the deception which led Adam and Eve to disobey, opened the floodgates of woe upon our world; [but] all who believe in Christ may become sons and daughters of God, and laborers together with Him, that restoration may take place through the truth. The truth, peculiar in its working power, is adapted to the minds and hearts of the wandering sheep. Through its influence they may be brought back to the fold. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 26

Whatever may be the position or possessions of any individual who has the knowledge of the truth, the Word of God teaches him that all that he has he holds in trust. It is lent him to test his character. His worldly business in all its lines, his talents, his income, his opportunities, are all to be accounted for to Him to whom he belongs by creation and by redemption. When he uses every precious talent in carrying forward God's great work of education, when he strives to obtain the very best knowledge of how to be useful, how to labor for the salvation of souls ready to perish, God's blessing will surely attend his efforts. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 27

God bestows His gifts upon us that we may minister to others, and thus become like Him. Those who receive His gifts that they may impart to others, become like Jesus Christ. It is in helping and uplifting others that we become ennobled and purified. This is the work that causes glory to flow back to God. We must become intelligent upon these points. Our souls must be purified of selfishness, for God desires to use His people as representatives of the heavenly kingdom. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 28

Our school must be conducted under the supervision of God. There is a work to be done for young men and young women that is not yet accomplished. There are much larger numbers of young people who need to have the advantages of our school. They need the manual training course, that will teach them how to lead an active, energetic life. All kinds of labor must be connected with our school. Under wise, judicious, God-fearing directors, the students are to be taught. Every branch of the work is to be conducted on the most thorough and systematic lines that long experience and wisdom can plan and execute. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 29

Let the teachers in our school wake up and impart knowledge they have in agricultural lines, and in the industries that it is essential for the students to understand. Seek in every line of labor to reach the very best results. Let the science of the Word of God be brought into the work, that the students may understand correct principles and may reach the highest possible standard. Exert your God-given abilities and bring all your energies into the development of the Lord's farm. Study and labor, that the best results and the greatest returns may come from the seed sowing, that there may be an abundant supply of food both temporal and spiritual, for the larger number of students that shall be gathered in to attend the school. 14LtMs, Ms 170, 1899, par. 30

Portions of this manuscript are published in MM 159-161, 166-167; CD 75; 7BC 982, 985. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

I have slept until half past two, and I arise and prepare for my writing. I commit my ways to the Lord, for I am wholly dependent upon His mercy and grace to aid me in glorifying His name with pen and voice.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 1

Warnings have been given me with reference to Dr. Caro. He is in danger of thinking that if he separated from Seventh-day Adventists, and walked with the world, he would receive more honor. He thinks that if he could follow his own plans, he would have greater influence. But if he gathers to himself the many responsibilities that he desires, he will certainly make a mistake; for he has not sufficient physical, mental, moral, or spiritual power to carry them. Why have I labored so hard to have Brother John Wessels come from Africa to unite with the sanitarium in Sydney? Because I know that he and the members of his family were in great peril through hereditary and cultivated tendencies, and that some would make shipwreck of the faith. And because we need the very best ability we can obtain in that institution.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 2

Brother John Wessels has good capabilities. If he consecrates himself entirely to God, surrendering his will to Him, God will work with him. If he loves and fears God, he will be used to God's glory. He is not to be entirely bound up in sanitarium work; for he cannot endure a sameness of work, but is to take part in the conference work also, with advisers of judgment and experience. This will enable him to understand the situation. He must have the presence of Christ with him in his work. Without this he can do nothing to win the approval of God. Christ said, "Without me ye can do nothing." [John 15:5.]14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 3

In the management of the sanitarium, we must guard against employing persons who are constantly watching for opportunities to serve themselves. No one must be given a position when this would be against the good of the institution. Those who are connected with the institution must be tried and proved. Those who are led by the Lord Jesus will bear this proving, and will be a blessing to the institution, for they will not betray God's work into the hands of the enemy. Everything cannot be adjusted just now, but let us seek the Lord, and as we advance, circumstances which will call for careful consideration will arise. Thus the qualifications and value of the worker will be developed.14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 4

One thing I shall not do. I shall not encourage Brother Morse to have any special connection with the interests of the sanitarium. His opinion of his own capabilities is altogether too high. He is not the man for the place. He needs greater humility, that every moment he may feel his need of God.14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 5

Brother Sharp has business experience. With his abilities he can serve the cause of God in the sanitarium. If he is a man who will be firm to principle, who will follow the principles God has revealed in His Word, who will not be swayed from the right, he is the man for the place. But in mercy to himself, he must not be given so many responsibilities. He is in danger of brain difficulty. I feel fearful that unless he is relieved, he will fail in brain power. He is inclined to gather too much to himself. Wherever he may work, he needs careful watchcare, that he may not become a mental wreck. He is not to be a leader, but is to bear responsibilities in connection with others. To every man God has given his work.14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 6

There is danger of Dr. Caro seeking to meet the standard of the world in his ideas and practice. He needs to seek the Lord at every step. He should keep in view, not his own glory, but the glory of the Lord. He is altogether too much inclined to keep Dr. Kellogg before his mind as his pattern, to try to do the things Dr. Kellogg has done, when he has not the experience to warrant the doing of these things. He cannot carry responsibilities like those which Dr. Kellogg carries. And he is in danger of setting the medical missionary work first, making it the body instead of the arm. He will not succeed in this, and he must not attempt that which he cannot accomplish. He will be ambitious to do great things by separating the medical missionary work from the gospel ministry. But the Lord does not lead His physicians to separate the medical missionary work for the gospel ministry. 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 7

Truth, present truth for this time, is to be believed and acted upon in connection with the principles of health reform. The sanitariums which are established are to be closely and inseparably bound up with the gospel. The Lord has given instruction that the gospel is to be carried forward, and the gospel includes health reform in all its phases. Our work is to enlighten the world, for it is blind to the movements which are taking place, preparing the way for the plagues which God will permit to come upon the world. God's faithful watchmen must give the warning. 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 8

Dr. Caro has a desire to do large things. He is in danger of spending his energies outside the sanitarium, instead of devoting all his powers to making the institution a power in connection with the gospel message and the Sabbath reform. Dr. Caro needs to place himself where he will understand the truth for this time. This is his only safety as a physician. He needs to have his feet shod with the preparation of the gospel. 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 9

He is in danger of becoming confused and of failing to see the elevated, holy influence which the Sabbath question is to exert on the work for this time. He will consider it necessary to do on the Sabbath many things which should not be done on that day. If he seeks to embrace so many responsibilities, he will come to pay very little regard to the Sabbath. Such an influence will be a curse to the institution. Those who are connected with our sanitariums are to be taught to regard the Sabbath question as the great test for this time. God desires His people to bind medical missionary work up with the work of the third angel's message. This is the work that will restore the moral image of God in man. 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 10

If Dr. Caro walks and works under the supervision of God, he will realize that sanitariums have been established at great cost in order to show men and women the reformatory work that is to be done in order to prepare a people to receive the truth. Sanctification through the truth gives men grace and power, enabling them to be gospel workers. Such workers look up to Christ as the greatest physician the world has ever known. 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 11

Dr. Caro is not to study how he can best meet the requirements of the world. He is not to pattern after the world in his appearance and equipage, flattering himself that this is the way to meet the higher classes. The gospel forbids the cherishing of worldly ideas. You may ask, Where? I point you to the life of Christ. Think of what He was before He came to our world—Commander of all the heavenly intelligences. How did He come to this earth? We know Him as a poor man, who to the very close of His earthly history maintained His humility. 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 12

The idea that outward show gives influence to a man or his position is one of Satan's lies. Let no man climb above the methods and example of our Lord. There is no higher standard than the life of Christ. As a people we are to shun the pretense of the world, which has made men and women what they are today. We are not to copy the customs and practices of worldly-wise men in order to gain favor or influence. Christlikeness is true Christianity. In the truth there is a power which no outward appearance of display can give, which no worldly suppositions or opinions can change or alter. 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 13

(Isaiah 41:17-20): "When the poor and needy seek water, and there is none, and their tongue faileth for thirst, I the Lord will hear them, I the God of Israel will not forsake them. I will open rivers in high places, and fountains in the midst of the valleys: I will make the wilderness a pool of water, and the dry land springs of water. I will plant in the wilderness the cedar, the shitta tree, and the myrtle, and the oil tree; I will set in the desert the fir tree, and the pine, and the box tree together. That they may see, and know, and consider, and understand together, that the hand of the Lord hath done this, and the Holy One of Israel hath created it." [Verses 17-20.] 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 14

Our physicians are to show Christlike simplicity in every line of their work. If they are clothed with the panoply of heaven—Christlike meekness and lowliness—they will be truly successful. But conformity to the world, to gain its favor and recognition, will bring weakness. No such concession is to be made. Our hope and strength do not depend on outside appearances. Those who are influenced against the truth by a lack of extravagance in house, in furniture, in dress, in equipage, show that they are incapable of understanding the merit of truth. They are not capable of appreciating the gospel of Christ. God is dishonored when those connected with the work, which is to prepare a people to stand the test of the time of trouble before us, forsake Him to follow the fashions of the world.14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 15

My Instructor said, “The great work of reformation is to be carried forward by the people whom the Lord has chosen. These are not to show their conformity to the world, but their separation from the world. They are to be a people who in the daily life represent Christ.”14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 16

“O Zion, that bringest good tidings, get thee up into the high mountain; O Jerusalem, that bringest good tidings, lift up thy voice with strength; lift it up, be not afraid; say unto the cities of Judah, Behold your God! Behold, the Lord God will come with strong hand, and his arm shall rule for him: behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him. He shall feed his flock like a shepherd, he shall gather the lambs with his arm, and carry them in his bosom, and shall gently lead those that are with young.” [Isaiah 40:9-11.]14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 17

Our joy is in our Redeemer. He covers us with His righteousness. We are distinguished from the world because God has placed His seal upon us. “Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, ... and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you, and will be a Father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.” [2 Corinthians 6:17, 18.] The Lord requires all who connect with Him to set a right example before unbelievers. “God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us." [2 Corinthians 4:6, 7.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 18

Behold the churches claiming to be Christian! They have need of a thorough reformation. Plain, distinct and decided, the message must go forth: "Babylon is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul spirit, and the cage of every unclean and [hate]ful bird." [Revelation 18:2.] Said the Lord's messenger, "You are not to seek that popularity which has led far away from the simplicity of Christ. God is to be your Leader. Those who are Christians will stand in the strength of God. They will show in their lives the superiority which God gives to obedient subjects, those who are loyal to His commandments. This is to be the peculiarity of the workers connected with the sanitarium. Those who believe the truth will never be ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ. The principles of truth are to pervade our medical institutions. And then, as those who have followed the customs and fashions of the world shall in their suffering come to these institutions, they will see a simplicity that will charm their senses. They will feel the unseen presence of heavenly angels."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 19

The furniture in our sanitariums is to be neat and tasteful, but not costly. Let nothing be purchased to represent the fashions of the world. The people of God, as His representatives, are to avoid giving the slightest impression that they think a certain kind of hat or coat, a costly house, or an elegant equipage necessary to success.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 20

They are to remember that they wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places, and that they are to take unto themselves the whole armor of God, that they may be able to stand in the evil day. The gospel message has been given to us to proclaim to a world dead in trespasses and sins. In practice, we are to separate from the popular churches and from the world. We are to stand face to face with the foe, remembering that our God-given inspiration of truth is as much more powerful than worldly customs as the heavens are higher than the earth.14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 21

Just as surely as our physicians conform to the worldly customs of those who do not honor God by keeping His commandments, so surely will they dishonor God. They must reap the harvest of the seed they have sown by such a course of action. Workers who love and fear God, who are not in anyway inclined to worldliness, are to be connected with our medical institutions. The managers, who have a powerful influence over those with whom they are connected, are to strive constantly to reach the highest standard. There is a world to be saved, and those who accept the truth are to hold fast to its principles. As they represent the high, noble dignity of the truth, they will win the approval of God.14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 22

Why should we, though sorely pressed for means, work so hard to establish sanitariums? It is that men and women may be brought to a knowledge of the truth, that every influence may be brought to bear to advance the gospel. Sanitariums are established that they may stand as memorials of the gospel, that in men and women may be restored the divine image.14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 23

Let the workers in our health reform institutions exert every particle of their influence to make these institutions all that their name signifies. Let everything in our sanitariums be useful and comfortable. Let those connected with them find the chief physician one who makes God his efficiency, one who believes the truth and speaks with fervency of the blessings of the truth. The nurses are to learn daily that Christ is to be their Pattern.14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 24

Health reform is to stand out more prominently in the proclamation of the third angel's message. The principles of health reform are found in the Word of God. The gospel of health is to be firmly linked with the ministry of the Word. It is the Lord's design that the restoring influence of health reform shall be a part of the last great effort to proclaim the gospel message. Our physicians are to be God's workers. They are to be men whose powers have been sanctified and transformed by the grace of Christ. Their influence is to be knit up with the truth that is to be given to the world. In perfect and complete unity with the gospel ministry the work of health reform will reveal its God-given power. Under the influence of the gospel, great reforms will be made by medical missionary work. But separate medical missionary work from the gospel, and the work will be crippled. 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 25

The message in regard to the fall of Babylon must be given. God's people are to understand in regard to the angel who is to lighten the whole world with his glory, while he cries mightily, with a loud voice, "Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen." [Verse 2.] The solemn events which are now taking place belong to a series of events in the chain of history, the first link of which is connected with Eden. Let the people of God prepare for what is coming upon the earth. Extravagance in the use of means, selfishness, heresies, have taken the world captive. For centuries satanic agencies have been at work. Will they now give up without a struggle? 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 26

There are only two parties in our world, those who are loyal to God, and those who stand under the banner of the prince of darkness. Satan and his angels will come down with power and signs and lying wonders to deceive those who dwell on the earth, and if possible, the very elect. The crisis is right upon us. Is this to paralyze the energies of those who have a knowledge of the truth? Is the influence of the powers of deception so far-reaching that the influence of the truth will be overpowered? 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 27

The battle of Armageddon is soon to be fought. He on whose vesture is written the name, King of kings and Lord of lords, leads forth the armies of heaven on white horses, clothed in fine linen, clean and white. 14LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 28

John writes, "I saw heaven opened, and behold a white horse; and he that sat upon him was called Faithful and True, and in righteousness he doth judge and make war. His eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns; and he had a name written, that no man knew, but he himself. And he was clothed with a vesture dipped in blood; and his name is called The Word of God. And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And out of his mouth goeth a sharp sword, that with it he should smite the nations: and he shall rule them with a rod of iron: and he treadeth the winepress of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God. And he hath on his vesture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 29

“And I saw an angel standing in the sun; and he cried with a loud voice, saying to all the fowls that fly in the midst of heaven, Come, and gather yourselves together unto the supper of the great God; that ye may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of captains, and the flesh of mighty men, and the flesh of horses, and of them that sit on them, and the flesh of all men, both free and bond, both small and great. And I saw the beast, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war against him that sat on the horse, and against his army. And the beast was taken, and with him the false prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beast, and them that worshiped his image. These both were cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone. And the remnant were slain with the sword of him that sat upon the horse.” [Revelation 19:11-21.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 172, 1899, par. 30

Diary/"Thoughts on Daniel and the Revelation."

Sunnyside, Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

This manuscript is published in entirety in 1MR 60-65.

The canvassing work is one of the Lord's appointed agencies for extending the knowledge of the truth for this time. Canvassers have an important work to do. The Lord can and will work through them if they will earnestly prepare themselves to do what they can. The effort made to circulate Christ's Object Lessons is demonstrating what can be done in the canvassing field. To those who are working with this book, I would say, After the immediate necessity is met, do not lose your zeal, feeling that there is no further need for special effort. Sell the book wherever you can, and bring our larger books to the notice of the people.14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 1

Especially should the book Daniel and the Revelation be brought before people as the very book for this time. This book contains the message which all need to read and understand. Translated into many different languages, it will be a power to enlighten the world. This book has had a large sale in Australia and New Zealand. By reading it many souls have come to a knowledge of the truth. I have received many letters expressing appreciation of this book.14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 2

Let our canvassers urge this book upon the attention of all. The Lord has shown me that this book will do a good work in enlightening those who become interested in the truth for this time. Those who embrace the truth now, who have not shared in the experiences of those who entered the work in the early history of the message, should study the instruction given in Daniel and the Revelation, becoming familiar with the truth it presents.14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 3

Those who are preparing to enter the ministry, who desire to become successful students of the prophecies, will find Daniel and the Revelation an invaluable help. They need to understand this book. It speaks of past, present, and future, laying out the path so plainly that none need err therein. Those who will diligently study this book will have no relish for the cheap sentiments presented by those who have a burning desire to get out something new and strange to present to the flock of God. The rebuke of God is upon all such teachers. They need that one teach them what is meant by godliness and truth. The great, essential questions which God would have presented to the people are found in Daniel and the Revelation. There is found solid, eternal truth for this time. Everyone needs the light and information it contains.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 4

Those who are destroying the earth have had a long probation. For six thousand years God has borne with the ignorance and wickedness of men. In every possible way He has tested and tried them, seeking to lead them to return to their loyalty and be saved. But they refuse to listen to His entreaties. War and bloodshed have been, are still, and will continue to be. War is popular. To kill and destroy is in the sight of the world to be brave, worthy of a reward.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 5

The time is near when Jesus will take the kingdom and possess the kingdom under the whole heavens. He will judge among the nations and rebuke among many people. Wars shall cease unto the ends of the earth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 6

Can we not see the corrupt condition of our world? Is not the terrible wickedness, which is continually increasing, sufficient to lead us to use every Christian activity in presenting to the world those books which contain the most beneficial instruction? God, the great moral Governor of the universe, desires His people to arouse and use their influence to lead others to understand what is coming upon our world. The Lord calls for workers to enter the canvassing field. He desires the books upon health reform to be circulated. Much depends upon the question of health reform. Unless our churches occupy a higher platform upon this subject, they will not be able to appreciate the truth for this time.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 7

God desires the light found in the books of Daniel and Revelation to be presented in clear lines. It is painful to think of the many cheap theories picked up and presented to the people by ignorant, unprepared teachers. Those who present their human tests, and the nonsensical ideas they have concocted in their own minds, show the character of the goods in their treasure house. They have laid in store shoddy material. Their great desire is to make a sensation. 14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 8

The truth for this time has been brought out in many books. Let those who have been dealing in cheap sentiments and foolish tests, cease this work and study Daniel and the Revelation. They will then have something to talk about that will help the mind. As they receive the knowledge contained in this book, they will have in the treasure house of the mind a store from which they can continually draw as they communicate to others the great, essential truths of God's Word. 14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 9

The interest in Daniel and the Revelation is to continue as long as probationary time shall last. God used the author of this book as a channel through which to communicate light to direct minds to the truth. Shall we not appreciate this light, which points us to the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, our King? 14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 10

Speaking of this great event Paul says, "I give thee charge in the sight of God, who quickeneth all things, and before Jesus Christ, who before Pontius Pilate witnessed a good confession: that thou keep this commandment with spot, unrebukable, until the appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, which in his times he shall show, who is the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings and Lord of lords; who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto, whom no man hath seen nor can see; to whom be glory and power everlasting." [1 Timothy 6:13-16.] 14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 11

Young men, take up the work of canvassing for Daniel and the Revelation. Do all you possibly can to sell this book. Enter upon the work with as much earnestness as if it were a new book. And remember that as you canvass for it, you are to become familiar with the truths it contains. As you ponder these truths, you will receive ideas that will enable you not only to receive light, but to let light shine forth to others in clear, bright rays. 14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 12

Now is come the time of the revelation of the grace of God. Now is the gospel of Jesus Christ to be proclaimed. Satan will seek to divert the minds of those who should be established, strengthened, and settled in the truths of the first, second, and third angels' messages. The students in our schools should carefully study Daniel and the Revelation, so that they shall not be left in darkness, and the day of Christ overtake them as a thief in the night. I speak of this book because it is a means of educating those who need to understand the truth of the Word. This book should be highly appreciated. It covers much of the ground we have been over in our experience. If the youth will study this book and learn for themselves what is truth, they will be saved from many perils. 14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 13

We read in Peter, "There were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction. And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of." [2 Peter 2:1, 2.] 14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 14

Many of these teachers who bring in heresies, and thus undermine the faith of some, are regarded as men of God, who walk in the light, and are seeking to deliver the church from wrong practices. But they are the servants of sin. 14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 15

We need intelligent canvassers, who are also evangelists, canvassers who will do all the good they possibly can as they visit from house to house. Canvassers may do a good work for God. The Lord has given great light to the world in the books Great Controversy, Patriarchs and Prophets, and Desire of Ages. These books should be pressed in everywhere. Those who handle these books should educate themselves for the work. As canvassers dwell upon the precious truths contained in these books, seeking to get the light before as many as possible, they are letting the light shine into many minds, and they may say, “We then, as workers together with him, beseech you that ye receive not the grace of God in vain. (For he said, I have heard thee in a time accepted, and in the day of salvation have I succored thee: behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation.)”14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 16

“Giving no offence in anything, that the ministry be not blamed; but in all things approving ourselves as the ministers of God, in much patience, in afflictions, in necessities, in distresses, in stripes, in imprisonments, in tumults, in labors, in watchings, in fastings; by pureness, by knowledge, by long-suffering, by the Holy Ghost, ... by the armor of righteousness on the right hand and on the left. By honor and dishonor, by evil report and good report; as deceivers, and yet true; as unknown, and yet well known; as dying, and, behold, we live; as chastened, and not killed; as sorrowful, yet always rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich; as having nothing, and yet possessing all things.” [2 Corinthians 6:1-10.]14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 17

Many who are serving as gospel ministers need to study the Word. Revelation means something revealed, which all are to understand. Dig deep for the truth. Plead with the Lord for an understanding of His Word. Those who feel their need of special help of God will ask Him who is the Source of all wisdom to supply their necessities. Ask Him to enlighten your understanding, that you may know how to give light to others. Put your mind to the tax.14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 18

Never rest satisfied with a partial knowledge of the truth, pieced out with some weak suppositions. “Hearken to me, ye that follow after righteousness, ye that seek the Lord; look unto the rock whence ye are hewn, and to the hole of the pit whence ye are digged. ... For the Lord shall comfort Zion; he will comfort all her waste places; and he will make her wilderness like Eden, and her desert like the garden of the Lord; joy and gladness shall be found therein, thanksgiving and the voice of melody.” [Isaiah 51:1, 3.]14LtMs, Ms 174, 1899, par. 19

Diary

Summer Hill, Sydney, New South Wales, Australia

1899

See also Ms 28, 1902. This manuscript is published in entirety in 19MR 157-161. +Note One or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

(This contains something about signing agreements.)<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 1

I attended the morning service at Stanmore. There were a goodly number present. The Lord gave me freedom in speaking on the soon coming of our Saviour, and the preparation we must make in order to meet our record with joy and not with grief. Each one has a work to do for himself. "I beseech you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present yourselves a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. And be not conformed to this world; but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God." Romans 12:1, 2. This entire chapter is an inspired outline of what constitutes true godliness. It calls for unreserved surrender to God. All unholy appetites and passions are to be cut away from the life. As a living sacrifice, holy and acceptable, the body is to be offered to God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 2

He who accepts Christ is to conform to the mind and will of Christ. By a changed life he is to show that the truth has changed his heart and mind. He is not to try to meet the his own standard nor the standard of the world, but the standard of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 3

The gospel is to go to all nations, kindreds, tongues, and peoples. The Lord has a work for every one to do. The gospel message is to make its way in the earth. Medical missions are to be established, and are to act as God's helping hand. But the medical missionary work is not to be made the body. This will surely be done unless there is constant watchfulness. 14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 4

Christ did not copy any human model. He says to His servants, Break every yoke that men seek to bind upon you, and accept My yoke. Do not accept any yoke that will bind or hamper your movements in any way, now or in the future. To accept such a yoke would prove a snare to you. Stand free. Take Christ's yoke. When you are yoked up with Him, the truth will make its impress on your character. 14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 5

The medical missionary work is to be recognized and carried forward, but always in connection with other lines of gospel work. Those who have opposed the medical missionary work do not know what they are doing. They need to come to their right mind. 14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 6

Genuine medical missionary work is to be accepted, but every line of this work is to be carefully guarded from all wrong principles, that it may bear the searching test of God. The work done is to correspond with the name. If our physicians are going to charge worldly prices for the work they do, then let them drop the word missionary from the name they bear, that people may not be misled. Those who desire to unite with the great Medical Missionary, Jesus Christ, must change their manner of working, or they will meet reproach from the people of the world. 14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 7

Plans that Dr. Kellogg has formulated for our people will need to be carefully and thoroughly examined. No threads of human devising are to be drawn into the web. We are to watch and pray and work diligently, else the enemy will come in and spoil the pattern. Dr. Kellogg's ambition leads him to embrace too much in his plans and arrangements. 14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 8

No human being is to interpose between his fellow men and God. Dr. Kellogg is not infallible. He has made mistakes, and he will continue to make mistakes unless he humbles his heart daily before God. Not all his work bears the signature of heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 9

All cannot see the outcome of the propositions made. Seventh-day Adventists must not, by pen or voice, bind themselves to all the agreements proposed; for if they do this, they will be bound about in carrying [out] the work to be done in these last days. I am instructed to say, Move cautiously. 14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 10

Sunday. I have written much today. May the Lord help me to trace words that are right to the point. 14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 11

When the power of the truth is felt in the heart, when the truth is brought into the daily life, there will be a great movement of reform in the Battle Creek church. Then will be fulfilled the words, "I will turn and overturn." We know not now just when this will be accomplished, but the time will come when there will be a scattering from Battle Creek. Those who moved to Battle Creek with no call from the Lord will move away. Those who came to Battle Creek when they had a work to do in the church that they left lost their missionary spirit and their spiritual discernment in coming to Battle Creek. There they came in contact with a Pharisaism, a self-righteousness, that is always a snare. It is the form of godliness without the power thereof. 14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 12

*****

Does Christ say, "He that will come after me, let him eat and drink and drink with the drunken. Let him practice the principles that are followed by Satan's agents"? No; no! The words of the Saviour are, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me." [Matthew 16:24.] Satan's agents have not been sparing of the blood of the saints. Christ's true followers are kind, tender, pitiful. They will realize the meaning of the work of the angel of Revelation eighteen, who is to lighten the whole earth with his glory, while he cries with a loud voice, "Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen." [Verse 2.] Many will heed this call. 14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 13

We need to study the pouring out of the seventh vial. The powers of evil will not yield up the conflict without a struggle. But Providence has a part to act in the battle of Armageddon. When the earth is lighted with the glory of the angel of Revelation eighteen, the religious elements, good and evil, will awake from slumber, and the armies of the living God will take the field.14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 14

*****

Last night I had a time of great suffering. My flesh seemed as cold as marble. I slept for a while without dreaming; then scenes in the work in America passed before me. Methods and plans were being formed into agreements to be presented to our people. In these agreements there were terms and conditions which must not be subscribed to by our people. Early next morning I warned Dr. Caro and Brother Sharp to be on their guard, because a letter would soon come to them containing certain propositions, and requiring their signature to these propositions before they should receive means to help them in their work.14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 15

Dr. Kellogg, and those united with him, framed these propositions, but God did not inspire them. And on no account must our brethren bind themselves to carry out these propositions. I was instructed that we know little of what is before us, and that God has forbidden us to bind ourselves by contract in order to secure means.14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 16

Thus saith the Lord: I have a work for Dr. Kellogg to do, but he is not to go beyond the work given him. The Lord loves him, and will save him if he will walk humbly with Him. But no yokes are to be framed by him or by any other man for God's people. Tell My servants, Brethren Sharp and Caro, that they must not give their signatures to the terms made. The future is in God's hands. He does not encourage any binding about of His workmen. Let man fear to place himself where God should be. Let him keep his hands off his fellow workmen. Strange things will take place. The Lord will turn and overturn. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof.14LtMs, Ms 175, 1899, par. 17

Diary

Rockhampton, Queensland, Australia

November 4, 1898

This manuscript is published in entirety in 21MR 402-407.

I thank the Lord for His great mercy and goodness to me. When I look at myself, I have not much courage, for I am compassed with infirmities; but I am trusting in a power out of an above myself. I do not doubt but that the Lord will help me. As my day is, so shall my strength be. The Lord is a strong tower, into which the righteous run and are safe. My present state of feebleness makes me feel the necessity of making the Lord my dependence, saying over and over again, In Thee will I trust. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 1

There is not the least excuse for the church to be dwarfed and crippled. Our religious experience needs to be of a higher order, that we may see the greatness of the hope presented to us in the gospel. Christ offered Himself as a willing sacrifice in our behalf. He stooped from His high command in heaven to rescue man from the slavery of sin. The Son of God gave up His honor and glory and tasted the bitterness of death, that man might be a partaker of the divine nature. He died that everyone might have a second probation, another chance to choose God as their Leader. He has made every provision that men and women may have an experimental knowledge of the character and work of their Redeemer. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 2

“When the fullness of the time was come, God sent forth His Son, made of a women, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons.” [Galatians 4:4, 5.] The star of hope rose upon our world, and its brightness increased as our Saviour increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 3

In the wilderness Satan came to Christ as an angel of light and assailed Him with his specious temptations. But Christ failed not. He saw a world perishing in sin, and steadfastly and firmly He moved forward in the path of resistance. He had a world to rescue. He had come to seek and to save that which was lost.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 4

Christ passed over the ground where Adam fell, overcoming in our behalf. He endured every test that man will ever be called upon to endure. He met all the temptations which man will meet in his life-experience. Christ has Himself travelled over the path in which He calls upon us to walk. He says, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me. As I endured the test and trial, so you may endure it." [See Luke 9:23.] He who is at last crowned conqueror, must depend, as Christ did, upon Deity. Every step Christ took was taken in full, entire dependence upon God. Had Christ transgressed the law of God in one particular, He would have been a sinner, and His offering would have been a failure, but not upon a single point did the enemy overcome Him. He declares, "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." [John 16:33.] "He that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father on his throne." [Revelation 3:21.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 5

God's Word is immutable. Jesus has proclaimed over the rent sepulcher of Joseph, "I am the resurrection and the life." [John 11:25.] Today He stands in the heavenly courts as our High Priest and Advocate. By faith we may grasp the promise that His mediation secures for us all things. When God gave Jesus to our world He gave all heaven. This gift has secured for us our adoption into God's family. God's promise is Yea and Amen in Christ Jesus. Never will He falsify. Never will He alter the thing that has gone out of His mouth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 6

The clouds of uncertainty and unbelief were rolled back as the Saviour cried with a loud voice, "It is finished." [John 19:30.] No longer had the enemy any power to tempt and annoy Him. Holiness and justice united in the completion of the great work of redemption. On the cross mercy and truth met together, righteousness and peace kissed each other. Jesus had testified that God is true. Faith demands no more. The doubting soul need not ask, Hath God forgotten to be gracious? Hath He in anger shut up His tender mercies? The answer comes clear and strong, "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." [John 3:16.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 7</sup>

Human love is weak and changeable, but God's love is full and deep and unchangeable. Why then are our souls not aglow as we contemplate this love? Why do we close our eyes to it? God, who command the light to shine out of darkness, will shine into the hearts of all who believe, to give the light of the knowledge of His glory in the face of Jesus Christ. "Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that He loved us, and sent His Son to be the propitiation for our sins." [1 John 4:10.] O, what amazing love. Language cannot measure it. It is without a parallel. "He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?" [Romans 8:32.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 8</sup>

Christ's work did not bring Him any worldly glory. Through the prophet Isaiah He declares, "I am sought of them that asked not for me; I am found of them that sought me not; I said, Behold me, behold me, unto a nation that was not called by my name. I have spread out my hands all the day unto a rebellious people, which walketh in a way which was not good, after their own thoughts; a people that provoketh me to anger continually to my face." [Isaiah 65:1-3.] Today the Lord Jesus employs every channel through which He can work. But many, by their self-exaltation and self-sufficiency, make it apparent that they are not controlled by the Holy Spirit. Instead, they magnify self into such large proportions that God is not revealed, God is not honored.<sup>14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 9</sup>

The church needs men today who, like Enoch, walk with God, revealing Christ to the world. Church members need to reach a higher standard. Heavenly messengers are waiting to communicate with men who have sunk self out of sight, whose lives are a fulfilling of the words, "I live, yet not I; but Christ liveth in me; and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me." [Galatians 2:20.] Of such men and women must the church be composed before her light can shine forth to the world in clear, distinct rays. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 10

Our views of the Sun of Righteousness are clouded by self-seeking. Christ is crucified afresh and put to open shame by many who have had a wide experience and upon whom have rested important responsibilities. Through self-indulgence Satan gains control over heart, mind, soul, and strength. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 11

To those who handle sacred things comes the solemn injunction, "Be ye clean, that bear the vessels of the Lord." [Isaiah 52:11.] The church needs men of devotion to bear to the world the message of salvation, pointing men to the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sin of the world, men who by their works of righteousness and their pure, true words can lift their fellow men out of the pit of degradation. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 12

If Jesus were made the sum and substance of every discourse, sinners would be convicted. By the message borne they would know what they must do to be saved. Lift Him up, the Man of Calvary, higher and still higher. Who can declare the glory of the incarnate God? What language can describe it? It is not the men learned in this world's wisdom who have true eloquence. True eloquence is possessed only by those who have tasted of the love of Christ. The life renewed by divine grace and hidden with Christ in God is eloquent in its simplicity. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 13

The orations and speeches made by apparently learned men are in God's estimation as a sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal in comparison with the words which come direct from a heart refined by belief in Christ as a personal Saviour. Those who are eloquent in God's sight are willing to walk in lowly paths. They are unappreciated by those who are constantly striving for the supremacy, who have no sense of what it means to walk in humble subjection to God's will and way; but God declares, "To this man will I look, even to this man that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and trembleth at my word." [Isaiah 66:2.] 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 14

"Learn of me," says the great Teacher, "for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light.” [Matthew 11:29, 30.] The time is coming when those who have wanted their own way, who have refused to wear the yoke of Christ, will see that they have failed to find the rest that Christ gives; but it will then be too late. He who wears Christ’s yoke sees constantly new beauty and loveliness in the Saviour. He counts self as nothing; for he keeps his eyes fixed on Jesus. He thinks of Jesus and speaks of Jesus. His soul is constantly reaching forward and upward for more distinct views of the One in whom all his hopes of eternal life are centered. Nothing is permitted to eclipse this view. Beholding as in a glass the glory of the Lord, he is changed into the same likeness from glory to glory, from character to character, even as by the Spirit of the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 15

Church members cannot honor God till they arise and shine, because the glory of the Lord has risen upon them. I appeal to every church member to inquire, “Is my name written in the books of heaven?” There are those who, unless they are thoroughly converted, will crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh and put Him to open shame. This age is one of peculiar temptation, especially to the self-sufficient ones, who feel no special need of guarding the avenues of the soul. Unless they heed the warnings God has given, they will most surely be drawn away from the principles of the truth. They will stand among those who dishonor the faith and give heed to seducing spirits. They plead for indulgence of appetite. They enjoy those things which animalize the nature. They do not know what it means to be meek and lowly in heart. They take no delight in contemplating the character of the Saviour. The rebuke of Christ is upon them, because in thought and action they are corrupt.14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 16

Truth held in unrighteousness is the greatest curse that can come to our world. But the truth as it is in Jesus is a savor of life unto life. It is worth possessing, worth practicing, worth defending. Christ calls upon us to enter the pathway of self-denial, where every step means a denial of appetite and unholy lust. He calls upon us to stand upon the platform of eternal truth, and contend, yes, contend earnestly, for the faith once delivered to the saints. Paul wrote to Timothy, “Fight the good fight of faith, whereunto thou art also called, and hast professed a good profession before many witnesses.” “Hold fast the form of sound words ... in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus.” [1 Timothy 6:12; 2 Timothy 1:13.]14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 17

There is need of a higher grade of spirituality in the church. There is need of heart-purification. God calls His people to their posts of duty. He calls upon them to purge themselves from that which has been revealed as the bane of the church—an exalting of the men placed in positions of trust. There is earnest work to be done. Upon their knees men are to seek God in faith; and then go forth to speak the Word with power sent down from on high. Such men come before the people direct from the audience chamber of the Most High, and their words and example promote spirituality. Their work in families is elevating and corrective. When they come in contact with wrong principles they plant their feet firmly upon the word, “It is written.”14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 18

He who draws nigh to Christ need not try to shine. As he beholds the Saviour, he catches the divine rays of light from the Sun of Righteousness, and he cannot help shining. The light that is in him shines forth in clear, bright rays, in words and works of righteousness. Christ’s grace dwells in him richly, and heaven’s light shines through him. He honors Christ by complete obedience. He is stimulated to more vigorous action in the cause of God as he imparts that which the Lord gives him. He is a light bearer to the world, shedding light on those who are in the darkness of error.14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 19

He does not walk away from Christ, but keeps close by His side, conversing with Him, gathering divine principles from His Word. He goes about doing good, comforting the downcast, guiding wandering footsteps into the narrow way, sweetening the cup of bitterness which many drink as a result of their own course of action. There are those who need the guidance of a firm, steady hand to lead them to the feet of the Master. Those who are truly successful in the work of overcoming will help others to fight manfully the battles of the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 20

Man has nothing in himself wherein to glory. Tell it in clear strong language. All he has, his talent of reason, affection, speech, spiritual discernment, come to him through the mercy of the Son of the Infinite God. These are to be surrendered to God again. Self-annihilation is a hard process, for self struggles for existence and dies hard. But prayer and faith place the weakest sinner on vantage ground, where the hand of faith can grasp firmly the hand of the Saviour. In and through Christ we may come off more than conquerors. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 21

God has given us instruction that every child of His has a work to do. To every one is given talents according to their several ability. To minister for Christ, it is not necessary for a man to be a preacher. There are many who, though they do not feel that they have been set apart for the special work of preaching, are, nevertheless, ministering for Christ. The Sun of Righteousness shines upon them, and they reveal that they are one with Christ. The Word of God is the man of their counsel. As they study the Scriptures they are enabled to understand what they read. They work in unity with one another. There will be no discordant opinions among those who are taught by God. True saints are one in Spirit and action. The Holy Spirit binds them together, and all the power of satanic agencies cannot break this union. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 22

“The pure in heart shall see God.” [Matthew 5:8.] The impure cannot see Him. All upon which they look is tarnished for them by their impurity. Those who search the Scriptures with a heart which hungers and thirsts to know God and Jesus Christ will be rewarded. They will understand the words spoken to Daniel, that man of prayer. To Daniel many wonderful things were presented in vision. “I heard, but I understood not,” he said; “then said I, O my lord, what shall be the end of these things?” The angel answered, “Go thy way, Daniel; for the words are closed up and sealed till the time of the end. ... Shut up the words, and seal the book, even to the time of the end; many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased. ... Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly, and none of the wicked shall understand. ... Go thou thy way till the end be; for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days.” [Daniel 12:8, 9, 4, 10, 13.] 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 23

The time has come for Daniel to stand in his lot. The time has come for the light given him to go to the world as never before. If those for whom the Lord has done so much will walk in the light, their knowledge of Christ and the prophecies relating to Him will be greatly increased as they near the close of this earth's history. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 24

Those who commune with God walk in the light of the Sun of Righteousness. They do not dishonor their Redeemer by corrupting their way before God. Heavenly light shines upon them. They are of infinite worth in God's sight; for they are one with Christ. To them the Word of God is of surpassing beauty and loveliness. They see its importance. Truth is unfolded to them. The doctrine of the incarnation is invested with a soft radiance. They see that the Scripture is the key which unlocks all mysteries and solves all difficulties. Those who have been unwilling to receive the light and walk in the light will not be able to understand the mystery of godliness, but those who have not hesitated to take up the cross and follow Jesus will see light in God's light. 14LtMs, Ms 176, 1899, par. 25

The Medical Missionary Work

NP

May 10, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in WM 253-254; Ev 523; 4MR 412; 9MR 129; MR311 47. +NoteOne or more typed copies of this document contain additional Ellen White handwritten interlineations which may be viewed at the main office of the Ellen G. White Estate.

The people of God are to act a prominent part in connection with angelic agencies who flood the earth with their glory. In establishing His church in the world, God designed that this agency, united with the heavenly, should accomplish the work He would have done. But the people did not keep up with the advanced light. They were not awake to their opportunities and privileges. He gave them light in medical missionary lines. This branch of the work was to be to the ministry of the Word what the right hand is to the body. 14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 1

But the right hand became the whole body and could no longer rightly represent the gospel ministry. Then there came a warning, cautioning men not to make this line of work an all-absorbing power, not to bind up the Lord's means in sanitariums and school buildings, so that foreign fields could not have the message which God designed should go to them. The message He sent was to be proclaimed to the world, not cut off from it by creating large interesting and exacting costly buildings in one portion of the field. 14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 2

My soul is troubled, exceedingly troubled. I must continue to write on that which impresses my mind. A deep sadness hangs over me. I see trouble, perplexity, and threatened bankruptcy before the work in America. And why? Because of the unfaithful stewardship of past years. God has sent warning after warning in regard to not adding building to building. He has given instruction that plants should be made in different fields, that the standard should be planted in towns and cities which have not heard the truth.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 3

I have light from the Lord that Dr. Kellogg needs to be guarded. He is leaving a wrong impression on minds. He has made a mistake in supposing that the medical missionary work has an importance above every other work. Medical missionary work has its place; but it has been made disproportionately important. Had Dr. Kellogg's brethren stood with him in the first of his experience in connection with health reform, the present condition of things would not now exist. Dr. Kellogg has carried a very heavy burden in addition to his legitimate work. I now appeal to him to unload. While this class of work is magnified as it is now being magnified, and glowing descriptions which are not true are given of it, the counsel given to restrain it will be regarded as a resistance of the Spirit of God.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 4

In the night season I seemed to be in a meeting, where precise lines of work, which all were to follow, were being laid down. One stood among us and spoke words of solemn import. He said, In thus making a definite program, you are making a mistake. There is no need of all these preliminaries. What is needed is the Spirit of God. Let this Spirit have free course and be glorified. Do not try to work the Holy Spirit. The time spent in arranging a definite program might better be used in seeking the Lord with humility and contrition. It is God's way we should follow, not our own. Give the chance for the Lord to work upon whom He will.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 5

Precautions must be taken in this last work that mortals shall undertake. There is danger of so working upon the imagery of the mind that persons who are wholly unfitted to engage in the sacred work of God will consider themselves appointed by heaven to work for the outcast and fallen. If all the experiences, pleasant and unpleasant, were depicted, there would not be so many drawn to this class of work. Many enter the work because they love that which is sensational and exciting. But unless they throw all their energies into this grand, soul-saving work, they reveal that they have not the true missionary spirit.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 6

The medical missionary work is an eventual work, and to those who engage in it many doors of temptation are opened. The worker knows that it will please the doctor to hear of great things being done, and in relating his experiences, he will often bring in a large stock of the marvelous. Some items of truth he may have with which to frame his statements, and on these he enlarges until his story grows to fabulous dimensions. A few young men and women will endure the trying of their faith in this respect, but in many cases this temptation will break down every barrier. I give the note of warning. Let every soul understand himself, and before he begins to labor be assured that he has been called by God to this work. The Lord will give His grace to those who keep the faith once delivered to the saints, who will not exchange the truth for erroneous theories, or presumptuously venture on the enemy's ground when God has not called them there. 14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 7

The worker who rushes on in self-confidence, scorning all warnings and that which he terms cowardly precaution, will never become a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. He may not intend to lose his virtue, or succumb to intemperance or any other evil habit, but he is in peril because he feels that he can walk securely through every scene of temptation unaided from above. Men and women placed under the best of influences have to struggle continually against evil, and yet this self-confident one, who is daily exposed to the iniquity found in the lowest dens of vice, feels secure in his own strength. He will not receive the warnings sent, but rushes heedlessly along the edge of the precipice, where one false step might plunge him into an abyss of woe. 14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 8

But a change comes. Gradually he loses his modesty, and in its place an unholy boldness comes to him. His self-control, self-restraint, and discernment become like threads of silk, on which he can place no dependence. He is adrift, and what power can be brought to bear upon him to save him? With bitter, unavailing remorse he remembers how he has disregarded God's appointed agencies. Over and over again his experience is repeated. Repenting of his wrongs, he seeks in his own strength to reform, only to sink to still lower depths of degradation. Then he loses confidence in God's instrumentalities, and comes to regard them as deceptive as his own course of action. He judges those who have never been guilty of the sins he has committed as putting on a cloak of piety. What power can save such a man? He can have no true elevation of character or morals until in the strength of Christ he refuses to yield to temptation, and makes God his dependence.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 9

In every effort to keep the soul with all diligence, man needs the keeping power of God. There is danger, constant danger of contamination in the work among the fallen and degraded. Why, then, do men and women place themselves in contact with this danger who are unprepared to resist temptation, and who have not sufficient strength of character for the work?14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 10

Upon the mind of many a young man engaged in the so-called medical missionary work an altogether different effect is produced than the doctor or any of his associates imagine. He is not careful to watch the designs of Satan toward him in his new and exposed career, and gradually he separates from the homelife and healthful influences. Before every such youth the danger signal needs to be uplifted. In every place where men and women are working for the degraded, some one must bear grave responsibilities or the workers will become cheap in their attitude, their words, and their principles.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 11

Many will unite in this work, thinking that by so doing they will be helped from their life of sin, and when occasion arises, these will think it right to prevaricate, to be dishonest, or to commit any of the sins of which they have been guilty in the past. Beholding this, the workers who are not living in close connection with God will be changed, not from good to a greater good, but from defective to a still more defective character. They will take up with the ways and manners of the open sinner. They will join the evildoers in magnifying every evil report, and in time will lose all love of refinement of speech or manners. Their fear of God and love of righteousness becomes mingled with a kind of religious fever, which is not acceptable in the sight of God.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 12

The youth need to take heed to themselves, or the wrong ideas with which they come in contact will be engrafted in their minds, and it will be difficult for them to form pure, noble characters. Those who engage in this work even for a short time need to be young men and young women of prayer, wise with the wisdom which God alone can give. They need to have characters which have a measure of precaution. And as they arm themselves for the battle, they need to pledge themselves before God to resist every temptation to evil, and to keep their morals pure. The insidious approaches of the enemy who would lead them to disregard their solemn vows must be steadfastly resisted.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 13

We have all a right to know all that it is possible for us to know regarding the relation of the so-called medical missionary work to the gospel ministry. Is it something to discourage and take the place of the proclamation of the truth for these last days? No; its only solidity is in being the right hand of the ministry. Good cannot result from it unless it is bound up with the work of the gospel. God has instructed me that the work of caring for the outcast is not to take the place of the ministry of the Word.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 14

Medical missionary work is not to take the place of the ministry of the Word. It is not to absorb the means which should be used to sustain the Lord's work in foreign fields. From wheresoever the money in the treasury shall come, it is the Lord's, and it is not to be used so largely in erecting buildings in America. The donations of the people are not to be sunk in lines of work which show little results. The truth is to be proclaimed, that the way of the Lord may be prepared. The trumpet must give no uncertain sound.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 15

Jesus was the Sent of God. Through all the cities and towns of Palestine He went preaching the gospel of the kingdom. Before He left His disciples to return to His heavenly home, He commissioned His disciples to go forth and preach repentance and remission of sins among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem. "All power is given unto me, in heaven and in earth," He said. [Matthew 28:18.] "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, and he that believeth not shall be damned." "And these signs shall follow them that believe. In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents, and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.” [Mark 16:15-18.]14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 16

From the light which the Lord has been pleased to give me, I know that the work in America is not being carried forward in a way that will bring the greatest honor to God or give the best experience to the workers. There is to be no disparaging of the sacred work of the ministry, which calls for separation from the world. Let no one speak lightly or slighly of those whom God has called to open the sacred oracles to the people. The world will speak lightly of God’s people, because the truth they advance does not suit their ideas. Let not those who claim to believe the truth do this work, for in so doing they disparage Christ in the person of His saints. Slightings enough will be offered to the servants of God without being offered by those in our ranks. Those who love Jesus will respect the ministry of His Word. Those who truly cast in their lot with Him will strive to bring all they can into the kingdom of Christ.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 17

Medical missionary work must leave room for the ministry of the Word. Contempt is never to be expressed in regard to the promulgation of God’s Word. The third angel’s message must not be smothered to death. Do not encourage those who have fallen so low in degradation, and who have been rescued, to exalt themselves. Let them understand that the Lord has not given them the work of disparaging the ministers, whom He has used and will continue to use. The Lord will not long sustain those who criticize and slight His servants. Let God reprove the erring. Let not human voice be heard criticizing and accusing.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 18

The words of those who do not respect the work of the ministry are of no value, for God is not with them. I have heard words spoken against our ministers which God never prompted. In heaven these words are registered as spoken against Jesus Christ. There are many who in the day of judgment will not be able to vindicate or justify their actions. Some who have not a ray of light on the subject of self-denial and self-sacrifice have hurt the ministry by their unguarded words. They have acted in this matter the same as those belonging to other denominations. Never allow inexperienced men—in the past a blot on God’s fair creation—who have been rescued by medical missionary work, to make a tirade in their speeches against those who are ministering in word and doctrine. This has been done, and it will be done again, unless more solid, intelligent moves are made in the work. Let the men rescued from the depths of degradation understand that God says to them, “Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.” [Matthew 11:29, 30.] Every truly converted man will find Christ’s yoke easy, and His burden light.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 19

Those who claim to believe the truth, and yet spend their time in making political speeches, are changing leaders. They cannot claim the privilege of being subjects of the heavenly kingdom. May those who are so ready to speechify be led to take Christ’s yoke upon them, and learn His meekness and lowliness of heart. Only thus can they find rest. God requires His subjects to stand under the true colors. They are to behave as citizens of heaven, identifying themselves with Christ. Never are they to disgrace their divine citizenship. Never are they to fail to render to God the honor that is due to Him. When the blessing of the Lord comes upon His people, the work of fitting laborers for the various mission fields will be taken up. We all need the heavenly endowment. God’s ways are not the ways of men. Less speechifying and more humbling of the soul before God will bring His blessing.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 20

Truly converted men will respect the ministry of the Word. There are those who are ignorant of experimental godliness. They are not well-balanced. They carry too much sail. The Lord calls for men like those specified in the sixth chapter of Acts, “Men of honest report, full of the Holy Ghost and of wisdom.” [Verse 3.] The truth as it is in Jesus will reveal the line of demarcation between him that serveth God and him that serveth Him not. The Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of life, is sharper than any two-edged sword. In spirit and action we must separate from the world. This does not mean that we are to exclude ourselves from the world. Nor need we wear a badge to signify that we are set apart for sacred service. At all times and in all places we are to show that we are striving to make ourselves worthy of the blessings of heaven. With hearts imbued with heavenly love, we are to go forth to give food in due season to the flock of God.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 21

I have laid out the matter as it has been presented to me. The third angel's message, in the place of swelling into a loud cry, is being smothered. Discouragements have come in. But the work is not to stop thus. It is to increase in the power of the Spirit of God. The time has come when the whole earth is to be lightened with the glory of the angel which came down from heaven. A decided work is to be done in presenting the truth for this time, the truth that will sanctify the soul, for we are in that age of the world's history which Christ declared should be as the days of Noah were. Two great armies are engaged in warfare. Satan with his great army is in conflict with Christ and God and the heavenly host.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 22

Satan has come down with great power, for he knows that his time is short, and he is working with all deceivableness of unrighteousness in them that perish. Then let the people who believe present truth understand that there is a work to be done in our world. If we are laborers together with God, we have many fellow laborers with whom we should unite with heart and mind and strength. Our success depends upon our unity. Our efficiency and the power of our influence depends upon our wise and unreserved cooperation with one another and with God. We are to advance the work in new territories, sustaining pure principle at every step. We are to cooperate with the angel that is flying in the midst of heaven, who also is in harmony with the two former angels in forwarding the solemn event of the second appearing of Christ in the clouds of heaven with power and great glory.14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 23

In the sixth chapter of John the Saviour teaches us how important are the truths of His Word. "I am the living bread," He says, "which came down from heaven; if any man eat of this bread he shall live forever; and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I shall give for the life of the world. ... Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except ye eat the flesh, and drink the blood of the Son of God, ye have no life in you. Whoso eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day. For my flesh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed. He that eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me and I in him. As the living Father hath sent me, and I live by the Father, so he that eateth me, even he shall live by me." [Verses 51, 53-57.] Eating the flesh and drinking the blood of the Son of God, we become one with Him. Unity of purpose and harmony of action marks our work. This mutual love and confidence constitutes a moral force which is a convicting power to the world. When absolute homage is paid to the Word of God in matters of doctrine and principle, there will be no easy fellowship with the world. There will be no slipshod religion. When the Bible and the Bible alone is the rule of our faith and practice, the influence of our lives will have a telling power on the world. 14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 24

It is time we kept in step with our Leader. Light is sown for the righteous, and truth for the upright in heart. Let ministers of God stand in their lot and place. They are His chosen men, and therefore let all respect and honor them. Let no words of bitterness be spoken against those who love and serve God. Unity must prevail in the work of God. "Love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous." [1 Peter 3:8.] Heart must be bound with heart. Every one must let his light shine forth. It is not two or three only who are to be bound up in the work of the Lord. God will reckon with His servants individually. In the great, grand review the reward given to each will be proportionate to the use made of the talents. 14LtMs, Ms 177, 1899, par. 25

The Needs of the Work

Maitland, New South Wales, Australia

November 11, 1899

Portions of this manuscript are published in TSA 56-57.

I may soon be called to lay off my armor, and I wish to say some things that I think some would hardly bear to hear now. Why should the funds from the Wessels family have been transferred to America, where our work has already so large a representation in churches, sanitariums, school buildings, and publishing houses? This was the question presented before a body of people by One who is commissioned of God to take cognizance of all that transpires in our world. Were there not in other lands fields to be worked, fields that have not yet received the last message of warning?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 1

There was a time when in America the cause of God was in distressing need of help to work the new fields. The work struggled against difficulties and opposition of every type. Wherever it was received, the entrance of truth was a blessing. The truth elevated the debased, reformed the wrongdoer, educated the ignorant, comforted the mourner, restrained the tyranny of slavery, and liberated those that were bound. It introduced reforms in varied lines. The truth presented as it is in Jesus won a place in the world's confidence, and it should have gone forward, attaining victory after victory.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 2

The present truth for the time made its way by teaching men to search the Scriptures. It attracted the attention of scientific inquirers, of seekers for truth in all lines. Physical reforms, intellectual and moral advantages, were presented in rays of divine light.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 3

Wherever the light of truth has penetrated from America to other countries, and souls have been converted to the truth, the same results have been seen. The evidence will follow the entrance of truth into new territories. The truth makes its way against human prejudice and the hostility of the clergy and rulers whose course of action needs to be regulated, purified, cleansed, as when Christ cleansed the temple at His first advent. Those only who improve the light which they have already received are prepared to receive with unprejudiced mind the message from heaven, "Prepare to meet thy God." [Amos 4:12.] In every place where the truth is introduced there will be men raised up who will be converted and will advance the truth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 4

This is the work to be carried forward in new territory. The means, which in the providence of God was in the possession of some who in foreign lands received the truth, was not to be transferred to America. It was to be used in working new territory, in annexing new fields to be enlightened. And when enlightened, the converts of these fields were also to engage in the same grand work. They were to aid in carrying the message of truth to the regions beyond.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 5

In all these fields the medical missionary work was to be connected with the gospel ministry. In new portions of the Lord's vineyard, the foreign countries where prejudice is strong and the habits of the people have become stereotyped, the truth could not at first be presented in all its decided points. The medical missionary work must prepare the way for the truth to find entrance. Then the Bible truth should be presented by judicious men, men who are fitted to carry the work because they themselves are worked by the Holy Spirit. Then reforms would be seen. The working of truth will be manifest in elevating the debased, restraining tyranny, liberating the bond men, and reforming public administrations.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 6

Had the work in Africa been carried forward as it should have been, the present war would not have been as it now is. The presentation of Bible truth, accompanied by the medical missionary work, would have found favor with the people, who if properly treated are not treacherous and cruel. The truth received by them would have worked changes more decided than have been revealed in a so-called Christian nation that have had the gospel preached to them. The treachery of the enlightened nations has been after the satanic order. Their slave dealing and their treatment of the natives in Africa have caused the African people to abhor the white man. 14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 7

Far more than America, Africa had a claim on the means of the believers of that country. And the needs of Australia also should have been considered. Australia was as a new world, and the truth was to find a place in hearts that would feel the burden of the necessities in far distant lands. Thus the work would be carried and centers of interest created at different points. 14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 8

Australia presents a large field, and means is needed for establishing schools not after the habits and fashions of any other schools in the world. There must be a new class of people to be worked. Great changes are to be made. The Word of God is to stand as the first, the last, the best in everything. Men are needed who can devise and plan under the divine enlightenment. 14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 9

God abhors all selfishness. He will not sanction it in the use of His means in carrying forward even a good work. He has given light showing that it is our duty constantly to advance, adding territory to territory. This has been but feebly done. In America certain enterprises have been worked as if they were all important, when they constituted only one of the lines of work to be carried in connection with the special truth for this time. The last message of mercy is to be the great leading interest. The work of presenting this message must go forward until it shall belt the world. This was the plan given by Lord Jesus Christ just before His ascension to heaven. But if men's supposed wisdom is allowed to control, the so-called medical missionary work will demand such an outlay of means as to cut away the very foundation of the gospel plan. 14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 10

The ministry has not been regarded as God designed it should be. It has been treated as of secondary importance. God designed that it should hold the very first place among the human agencies in His work. The minds of men must be called to the Scriptures as the most effective agency in the salvation of souls. 14LtMs, Ms 178,

The ministry of the Word is the great educational force; by its aid men are to be prepared to act wisely in the lines of work connected with it. Those who disparage the ministry and try to conduct the medical missionary work independently are trying to separate the arms from the body. What would be the result should they succeed? We should see hands and arms, flying arms, dispensing means without the direction of the head. The work would become unbalanced, disproportionate. It would unsettle minds and bring confusion. Many portions of the Lord's vineyard would be left unworked. That which God designed should be the hand and arm would take the place of the whole body. The ministry would find no standing room. 14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 12

Every word spoken to discourage the ministry has grieved the heart of Christ and has greatly pleased the adversary. The medical missionary work, disconnected from the ministry, would soon become a strange medley of disorganized atoms. It would consume, but not produce. Instead of proving [to be] the entering wedge for the truth of God, it would sap all the life and force from the ministry. Against men ordained by the will of God and doing the work of God, tirades have been made which these persons no more deserve than did the one who censured them. Methods have been adopted and work has been done that bears not the signature of the divine. The medical missionary work conducted independently will not only consume means needed in other lines; but in the very work of helpless, apart from the ministry of the Word, it will place men where they will scoff at Bible truth. 14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 13

The truth for this time embraces the whole gospel. Rightly presented, it will work in man the very changes that will make evident the power of God's grace upon the heart. 14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 14

Men need not feel that they must devote several years to the study of Greek, Latin, or Hebrew before they can preach the gospel. Many whom God calls to preach His message will never understand these languages. But if they are learning of the great Teacher, they will be wide awake, earnest, effective workers, able to fill their place either in the pulpit or with the pen. And they can speak in regard to the needs of the physical structure, presenting the matter in plain, simple terms. Thus the ones who most need instruction will not be shut out by the use of a language which they cannot understand.14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 15

Physicians in their advice and prescriptions often use terms that are not understood by the common people. Is this a necessity? Not at all. Their meaning can be expressed in plain, simple words. If the education for medical missionary [work] leads men, in their dealing with the common people, to use terms that only an educated physician can understand, then the first duty of our educators in this line is to study the simplicity of Christ.14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 16

Christ was the greatest Physician, as well as the greatest Teacher, the world has ever known. He was in Himself a divine college. He expressed truth in the most simple words in order that the poor people might know just what to do. I advise all who are engaged in medical missionary work to take a full term, which is a life time, in learning lessons in the simplicity of Christ. Then their teaching would benefit the common people.14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 17

Physicians above all others need to cultivate simplicity of speech. In giving instruction to the people, they should not employ the professional vocabulary which they themselves have learned, for but few will pass through the drill or have opportunity even to consult a dictionary in order to learn the meaning of strange words.14LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 18

I am writing that which has been presented to me by the Lord. Let not our young men think it an evidence of deep knowledge to use words that need to be interpreted. Bear in mind that Christ was the Majesty of heaven, the King of glory, and in His teaching He could have used the language familiar to Himself, even the language of heaven. But at all times He kept a restraint upon Himself, that the people whom He addressed might not misunderstand even one word that proceeded from the mouth of God. By His words He was scattering the heavenly grain of His doctrine, which it requires skillful and patient labor to gather up. He was sowing the seed of truth which concerns both the present and the future life.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 19

This seed, planted in other minds, was to be cultivated, that its fruit might be continually imparted. Through the ministry of the apostles and their successors, the work was to be carried forward. They were to be continually sowing the seed which would yield an abundant harvest unto eternal life. The Lord in His teaching in both the Old and the New Testaments desired to put the world in possession of every essential truth. These truths are to be searched out. Precious developments are yet in reserve to reward the diligent seeker.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 178, 1899, par. 20

1898 has passed into eternity. Sabbath and Sunday have been interesting days to us. We have never seen the interest among the people on this wise before. Sabbath morning I spoke in the early morning meeting; also on Sunday morning the Lord gave me something to say to our people in regard to harmony and unity among believers if we expected to see the salvation of God. This period of time was of large importance to ever one of us. We need the deep moving of the Spirit of God. We need now to have a living connection with God. We need to clear all the rubbish away from the door of the heart and open the door to invite the heavenly Guest to abide with us. We know that the angels of God are upon this encampment. We have never seen larger congregations assembled upon any campground in any location.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 182, 1899, par. 1

There was a large number on Sabbath afternoon and the Lord was truly in our midst. I spoke from (Luke 10), the question of the lawyer, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?" And the answer Christ threw back upon the lawyer, "What is written in the law? how readest thou?" The lawyer said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy soul, and with all thy strength, and with all thy mind, and thy neighbor as thyself." Christ said, "Thou hast answered right: this do, and thou shalt live." [Verses 25-28.] It is not the mere assent to the evidence of truth, but it is the carrying out of every principle God requires.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 182, 1899, par. 2

The people listened with intense interest. Then we had a social meeting and the whole congregation was invited to be free and unite with us in testimony meeting. There were many testimonies borne, good and spirited, by those who had attended the meetings. This was indeed a spiritual meeting. The Lord Jesus was in our midst indeed and in truth. After the meeting closed Dr. Caro spoke well on the health question. 14LtMs, Ms 182, 1899, par. 3

Sunday afternoon there were about twelve hundred people out to hear. There was most perfect order on the ground and in the tent. There was no strolling about. All were interested to hear, and they did hear. In the afternoon I spoke to the people. In the evening there were about two thousand people out to hear. 14LtMs, Ms 182, 1899, par. 4

In the afternoon, as I was leaning on the arm of my son, about to enter my hired room, a man came hurrying up saying, "I must speak with Mrs. White. I have wanted to say to her it was her writings in Patriarchs and Prophets and Great Controversy that saved my life. She was very sick and knew she must die. She could obtain no help from physicians or ministers, but she searched your books I had purchased from canvassers and she found out what she must do to be saved. She is now dead, but it was in these books she found just what she needed. The Lord gave her peace and happiness; and now I am searching them just as she did, and I shall be helped as she was." And he repeated again, "It was those books that made everything so plain to my wife. She seemed to understand how to believe, how to take God at His Word. She had great peace and comfort and joy in her sickness and died in hope, rejoicing in Christ." 14LtMs, Ms 182, 1899, par. 5

I met quite a number of ministers—those men who composed the board. After a praying season I read important matter in regard to harmonious action, and a deep impression was made upon all present. Then we talked in reference to many plans for carrying forward the work. All the forenoon was thus occupied. Then we had an interview with Dr. Caro, he setting forth their situation as a sanitarium. Then Brother Salisbury had some talk with me in reference to Brother Palmer leaving Melbourne, which Brother

Palmer was anxious to do if another man could be found to stand in his place in Melbourne. He seems to feel that they will be left without suitable help if Brother Palmer leaves.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 182, 1899, par. 6

Brother Nichols called to see me in reference to his duty to give himself to the work. Brother Goodheart and his sister and mother called upon me to say good-bye before leaving for Adelaide. Brother and Sister Tenney had an interview with me with reference to their making their home in Melbourne. We rode out in the evening and met many, many carriages full of people. It is the last day of the holidays, and certainly it has been the most successful camp meeting we have ever held.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 182, 1899, par. 7

I slept well last night. I was up at quarter past two o'clock. I have every reason to be thankful to our heavenly Father for the precious meetings we have had on these grounds. The attendance of the people has been remarkable. I spoke this afternoon and we hope some good was accomplished. I tried to present in clear lines the duties of mothers in training their children. Here is the great neglect.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 182, 1899, par. 8

Spoke to mothers. Proverbs 2:1-9.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 182, 1899, par. 9

I spoke this afternoon to one hundred and fifty people, mostly women, in regard to the training of children. And it seemed after I have talked one hour that I had talked but twenty minutes upon the education and training of children. "Ye are laborers together with God." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] Mothers and fathers have a great work to do. The Lord will work with our efforts to accomplish a work for ourselves, that in meeting the divine requirements we can accomplish a work for others. If parents could only see that which God sees in the human agents, and would treat the children as younger members of the Lord's family, they would feel their great responsibility of teaching them to be true and faithful to God who gave His life for them. 14LtMs, Ms 182, 1899, par. 10

Ms 183, 1899

Diary, February 1899

Cooranbong, New South Wales, Australia

February 13-28, 1899

Previously unpublished.

Monday, February 13, 1899

Sunnyside, Cooranbong

I awoke at one o'clock and thought of the letters I ought to write. Rose and I dressed and, committing myself to God, began my work. Wrote six pages letter paper to Sister Henry; two pages to my sister Mary P. Foss, West Minot, Maine; three pages to Edson White. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 1

Sara took Brother and Sister Hare to Morisset station in my phaeton, which would make it comfortable for Sister Hare. Sister Nellie Starr and I went in another carriage to Dora Creek for Brother Starr. We met the constable riding horseback, coming to our place, stating he had a draft for use of Mr. Rucker's estate. We drove on and left him to see W. C. White. This made it a little late. We met Brother Starr in a carriage with Brother Robb's son. He changed to our carriage so that we could converse in regard to interest at Newcastle. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 2

Brother Starr related some interesting circumstances concerning the meetings. Several more have taken their stand to obey the next Sabbath and the interest continues unabated. The Sabbath question is now being presented. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 3

Vancouver mail brought me one hundred dollars—a letter order from a young lady in America for the building of the hospital. Thank the Lord for this. I can see we can advance and will advance to build up the work here in this new field. We see souls eager, hungering and thirsting for the Bread of Life. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 4

Tuesday, February 14, 1899

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

Tuesday I was up at two o'clock, and prepared for writing.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 5

The proposition has been made that W. C. White, his family, Brother and Sister Starr, Sister Graham, and Sara and I go to Mount Vincent. The weather promised showers, but we went nevertheless, leaving our home about nine o'clock. There have been pleasant showers. There is no dust; this is favorable. The road is up, up steep mountains and hills. We passed several forsaken huts. Families have once lived here but for some reason left. Surely the land is good, and if cultivated would make nice fruit farms. Why it is forsaken remains a mystery. The hills are steep; the roads are not bad. After travelling twelve miles we came to a little cottage and here lives Brother Heaton's mother and sister and her little lad, twelve years old. The mother is sixty-eight years old.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 6

Friday, February 17, 1899

Sunnyside, Cooranbong, New South Wales

I arose this morning at three o'clock. I found a paper under my door. It proved to be a telegram from Battle Creek. "Will raise five thousand dollars in sixty days." Signed, Kellogg.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 7

I thank the Lord for this. I praise His holy name. Our work will not stop now. We will advance as fast as possible, but we need more than twenty thousand dollars to invest in a sanitarium in some favorable location. We pray the Lord to be favorable to us and to work in our behalf.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 8

We now have in Newcastle a branch sanitarium—a plant we may call it. There are two offices in the best location—one for giving baths and another for examinations and helping in different health lines. There is a branch to be opened in Sydney at once, and we must make a plant in Brisbane. Thirty are organized into a church there, and twelve more are prepared for baptism. A meetinghouse is going up and the work is advancing. The interest does not diminish but is still increasing. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 9

Friday, February 24, 1899

Sunnyside, Cooranbong

I awoke at two o'clock. Tried hard to sleep, but at half past two I dressed, committed the keeping of my soul to God, and commenced writing for American mail, which must leave for office in Cooranbong at nine o'clock a.m. I have one hundred and five pages for the mail. I am so brain weary I scarcely know what to do with myself, but I do feel grateful to my heavenly Father for restoration from my illness. I have not laid aside my pen one day amid it all. I have written some pages during my illness every day. Important matter has been sent to Africa and large mails to America. May these communications be accompanied by the Spirit of the Lord to do His work upon human hearts and minds is my prayer. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 10

I have presented before them at Battle Creek again and again the will of the Lord that there should have been plants made in all the cities in America. Had there been wise generalship there would now be a special work of soul saving in running order in every city. The leaven of truth has been introduced into the meal, and its work of absorbing the meal would have been seen decidedly. When one plant is set up and doing its work, strength is brought into the general cause and work. Stronger beams of light will be shining through the surrounding darkness and shedding their light afar off. As a result, other lights will be kindled in many places. There will be the working of the Holy Spirit upon human minds. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 11

There has been and still is a great and serious neglect. It is displeasing to God that so many interests have been centered in Battle Creek, leaving other portions of God's moral vineyard unworked. God will scatter. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 12

Brother Tenney just called. I had an interview with him. He is on his way to Brisbane to help Elder Haskell. We had a profitable interview. Elder Daniells left for Sydney, hoping to be able to get means to advance the work that is suffering to be done on the school grounds, and for the working of Newcastle; and to see if anything can be done for the better equipping of the sanitarium—The Health Home—and to advance the work in different lines.14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 13

I must not for a moment lose sight of the Lord Jesus. He must be inquired of to do these things for us. Is not this His field? Are not the people His people? Is not the work His work? Is not the gold and silver the Lord's? Are we not laborers together with God? We will keep on doing our best.14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 14

Sunnyside, Cooranbong

After Sabbath. I awoke early and thanked the Lord I am improving in health. I begin to feel more natural. I thank God for His love and His goodness. I rested this day, Sabbath. The chapel was full of students that have come in, and continue to come in, until we know not where to place them. It appears now we may have to enlarge our chapel. Elder Colcord spoke to the people.14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 15

Brother Lords was here from Newcastle. We learn the interest there has not abated. Thirty have taken their stand and many, many are convicted and know not what they shall do when they lose their position because of obeying the truth. We pray that the Lord will open the way, for most have large families and are dependent on their daily labor.14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 16

We have meetings now at Dora Creek, two miles and half from Cooranbong. About forty and fifty usually assemble there. We must buy land and arise and build a small house of worship. There was not a Sabbathkeeper at Dora Creek or Cooranbong when we came to this place. The father of one family, now converted to the truth, was a fisherman, smoking and drinking. He has good natural abilities, but uncultivated. The fishing business is now very poor and uncertain, and few can sustain their families. This brother went out in the bush, after selling his boat, and commenced to clear land. He was a boat builder, and yet he could not support his family. He is at work and has raised vegetables enough to keep them. He has raised melons and other things. Things in the bread line he has to buy, also clothing, but they are doing as well as could be expected. He is trying to win souls to the truth.14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 17

I hear a whole family at Ingleburg are now about to keep the truth. They are an interesting family and will be a light to shine to others. Ingleburg is six miles from Cooranbong. Awaba is eight miles from Cooranbong. There is one family who are intelligent, excellent people. I have spoken in their little church once. Brother Pallant speaks there today. So there are little stations where the truth is shining. We shall free that little church from debt.14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 18

Hamilton, Newcastle, New South Wales

Sunday I went in my carriage to Dora Creek. Waited a short time for cars to take us to Newcastle. Took dinner in my room, set apart for me. At three o'clock, accompanied by Sister McEnterfer, I went only a short distance to the tent, and there we were pleased to see an intelligent congregation which I addressed for one hour.14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 19

I crowded in the most important Bible truth in confirmation of the seventh-day Sabbath that I could get in. The Lord helped me to speak. I was obliged to leave the tent directly. It was a very warm day and my clothing was wet with perspiration. Returned to the mission home, took sponge bath, changed my hot garments for dry, rode a short distance to the cars, and was soon passing rapidly to Dora Creek.14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 20

At Awaba there were Brethren Constandt and Redwood, who with several others had met with a little company to help them. Two men only in the place are Sabbathkeepers, but they report a good meeting. Brother Pallant spoke to those assembled. We hope to so present the light that the truth will be accepted by this little company. Brother and Sister Heaton and Brother Wood have received the truth and are seeking to teach others also the way to life and salvation. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 21

We want to find entrance to every station on the railroad from Newcastle to Morisset and from Morisset to Queensland. A great work is opened before us, which must be done. There is no drawing back, brethren. Put on the armor and do justice to the work. The workers have been in Newcastle since the camp meeting, earnestly at work. Thirty souls have embraced the truth; many more are convicted and afraid they shall have to accept the Sabbath. May the Lord make such impressions upon minds and hearts that they cannot resist the truth. We hope and pray for the power of the Holy Spirit that many may be converted from transgression of God's law to righteousness and to the obedience God requires. In the evening I met Sister Tuxford, from Wellington, New Zealand, whom I had not seen for seven years. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 22

I could not sleep after one o'clock a.m. I arose and commenced to use my pen. I could not sleep much last night. The excitement of the day, the confusion of passengers getting upon the cars at the station, the speaking above one hour, the getting to the station, and then at Dora Creek we found Sister Peck waiting the arrival of the train, with Jessie and a phaeton to take us three miles to our home. All these changes in one afternoon are not favorable to sleep. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 23

I thank the Lord for the good work being done at Newcastle. A church will have to be built very soon, and I was so much pleased to see the people before me listening interestedly, with tears in their eyes, as I tried to impress upon them the necessity of obeying the "Thus saith the Lord" in Exodus 31:12-16. "Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations." Verse 13. 14LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 24

Sister Wilson—the widow of our dear Brother Wilson who has died recently—came [to Cooranbong], and another Sister Wilson who has come from Queensland with her son to see the school and to leave him at the school. She reports she is pleased with the sight of her eyes and she feels that which many have expressed—as though this was a sacred place. She is going to see if she cannot leave her home, rent her house, and come to Cooranbong to live. She is a lady fully in the truth and in good circumstances.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 25

We also had Sister Tuxford and Sister Graham come to our home. We have an open house, to allow brethren and sisters who choose to do so to come. This is as it should be in every place. There should be no discrimination in entertaining our brethren and sisters, and we should be willing to be put to inconvenience for the sake of friendly intercourse in love for Christ and His people. I rode with Sister Tuxford from New Zealand and Sister Graham, with our horse and phaeton, to post office and to the convent to notify Brother Colcord to remain to have council meeting in evening. Went with Sister Tuxford to Dora Creek. Brother Hare and Willie rode with us to the station to take cars for Newcastle to make out deed for land just purchased.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 26

We went again with two teams—one from the school and my conveyance, horses and phaeton. Brother Daniells took two of the men, and Sister May White, W. C. White, and the two little boys rode back with us.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 183, 1899, par. 27

I slept until half past one. I sought the Lord in prayer. Oh, that the Lord would increase my faith and let light shine into my mind and soul. I wrote some things and I am trying to say those things that the Lord would have me say to our people. W. C. White came in very early with Dr. Caro. We had some important things to say in reference to the work in Sydney and in reference to the favor that is being obtained in Sydney. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 2

Doctor related most interesting cases he has treated. Last Friday he treated a case which was considered perfectly hopeless. She had gone to the most experienced physicians and they told her she could not live six hours. She must have help. Doctors were called in and did not attempt to do anything. Said they would call another physician. She said, "No; take me to the sanitarium at Summer Hill. I can but die." It took some time, so precious to her, but when Dr. Caro examined her he told her she could not live two hours, but he would try and do this best. She could but die. Dr. Caro asked God to help him and commenced the dangerous operation. It was successful. This was one week ago last Friday. This is marvelous in the eyes of the physicians. She is doing well and is full of gratitude to God that she survived the process essential.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 3

This is marvelous in the eyes of the most exalted men, and this will give worldly physicians confidence in the men who are Seventh-day Adventists. God's covenant is with His people. He will bless those who have cultivated faith and love for truth. Those who have cultivated all the powers God has given them will have increase of powers, holding them as a sacred trust to do service for God. We have the assurance that the Lord will help us as we move forward in faith.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 4

Sister Starr conducted a cooking class of two hundred women, and that successfully. This is one of the moral forces that is to be put in exercise to instruct the people till prejudice will be removed and we may win souls to Christ. Dr. Caro was much pleased.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 5

I thank the Lord I have rested well during the night. It is two o'clock. I can sleep no more. I arise and dress and, seeking the Lord in prayer, I commit our case to Him who is too wise to err and too good to do us harm.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 6

We see more and more the necessity of calling upon the Lord for special help. He owns the whole world and why should we not call upon Him for means to do His work? He says, Ask and ye shall receive; seek and ye shall find. We want means to carry forward the work of God in our world. We feel in deep earnest to make a success, if we can do anything to open the eyes of those who are in the darkness of error.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 7

Dr. Caro called upon us, returning from Newcastle. Dr. Caro addressed the people who came to hear, filling the tent full. He said he had profound attention. The doctor feels and teaches that life is for wise purposes and earnest action.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 8

We—Elder Daniells, Dr. Caro, W. C. White, Brother James, Sara, and I—rode over the school ground and selected a place to build a hospital. We shall call for nineteen acres of land. We shall clear the land at once for there must be no delay. This will be a branch hospital called Health Retreat. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 9

I could not sleep after one o'clock a.m. I am thankful to the Lord I can write, although my left eye continues to trouble me. That gnat must have left something of itself in my eye. After writing until four o'clock I lay down and slept about thirty minutes. W. C. White touched me on the shoulder and I was awake in a moment. He said he wished me to go with him and Sara and meet parties on the ground where the hospital is to be. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 11

We made our preparations and were off, and met a party on the grounds—Elder Daniells, Brother Palmer, Brother Thomson, Brother Hare, and others. A proposition was made that we locate the hospital nearer the school buildings. Many supposed advantages were laid before me, showing why it would be best, but I could not understand; I was then unable to take it all in. But we looked the ground over carefully and I told our brethren I saw fewer advantages than in the place we had already selected, but if I was the only one of the party who thought thus I would not urge the matter of the first location, although I saw no reason to change my mind. I then found there was not one of the party who looked with favor upon the proposition. They thought our first selection, not far from the church, the best. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 12

That matter decided, it was also decided that the land on the side of the road to the meetinghouse and school buildings could not be given in exchange for Brother Worsnop's place. His location must be on the opposite side of the road and he should have fifteen acres for five of his land. After taking refreshments we went to view the land beyond Brother Thomson's. We found excellent land and thought the exchange could be made to satisfy Brother Worsnop. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 13

In the afternoon there was a board meeting. Brother Pocock came to work in painting the buildings. By conversing with him we found the situation of his family and advised him to return at once and bring his wife and five children to Cooranbong. His wife's father and mother will come after he finds a place, for they would suffer where they are. We were made acquainted with their situation through Brother and Sister Starr. It is not right to allow one of the Lord's children to remain in that place any longer. Our brother has felt too delicate to make known his necessities. When we searched into the matter we knew our duty was to go ahead and take the matter right in hand. We had no money, but we were fortunate to borrow three pounds and place in his hands to pay the fare of himself and family and freightage on their goods. The work where was so that Brother Pocock could be spared to go and move his family. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 14

Tuesday, March 28, 1899

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

I could not sleep this morning past thirty minutes after two. Brother Pocock returns to his place for his family on this morning's train. If Providence favors, he will return next Sunday. Ten years ago, I think it was, he selected him a place which would cost very little money. It was right amid the rocks. He was obliged to build or make land on the rocks in which to plant a little passion fruit and a few other fruit trees. His home he built himself. He ascends the steep hill, right up a rocky mountain. He carried all his lumber on his back, and has injured his back by so doing. I shall get particulars and write them, for I would have our people know how some poor people live. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 15

This man is a gentleman in appearance. We first became acquainted with him when our houses were being built. Someone told me of a Brother Pocock, an excellent man, very poor and in need of work, which he failed to find. We employed him for some months. He was a coachmaker and a builder and we thought him one of the excellent among the children of God. When he left our place he asked if I would give him some of our books that he could read and help his neighbors to get up a Sabbath school. The nearest neighbor was about three miles away. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 16

I gave him a large amount of reading matter. Gave him Great Controversy, Patriarchs and Prophets, and several of my writings. He did not lisp a word of his home, and I thought he had a little farm he had taken up, but while he had to pay for that little spot of earth he had carried up a mountain and put on the rocks, he building his own home himself, he paid two pounds per year for this rocky spot and last year made only three pounds from the land. We sent him, from our family clothing, a box every year and this has kept his family in clothing. He has a wife—an excellent woman—and they have five pretty children. The oldest is ten years, I think. When I learned the particulars, I felt so sorry that I could not have been informed before. They have lived on almost a starvation diet. He is a gentlemanly-appearing man, has a noble forehead and is refined in manners; he is one of God's precious jewels. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 17

After we had taken them three miles to the station, Sara McEnterfer and I on the way tried to secure an old shanty for the family, but the owner asked three shillings per week. We knew that was exorbitant. There was only battens and boards, no finishing. There were cracks that you could put your hand through—and winter is coming on. We continued to search. Mr. Hughes at Cooranbong had just built him a home and he generously let him have a two-roomed cottage free. It was comfortable although small. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 18

Wednesday, March 29, 1899

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

I arose at three o'clock and commenced writing. I earnestly beseech the Lord to give us wisdom and grace and His salvation. We cannot trust in our own judgment or our own wisdom. We must have help from God. We must know that God is our Counsellor, and our whole dependence must be upon God. I prepared manuscript for my workers. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 19

There is much planning to be done and we wish to move understandingly. There is the case of Brother Worsnop. We wish him to have another piece of land. We will pay him in triple acres if he will be satisfied to move on the other side of the road. This he has not been willing to do, but the advantage for him is great, although he does not now see it to be thus. The Lord will help him. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 20

We can see a spot of land, joining the piece selected for Brother Worsnop, that will serve Brother Pocock, and this is, as my son said, the very best thing we can do with the land. One farmer wished to purchase thirty acres of this land but we did not feel free to dispose of the land to a farmer who already had a farm and was doing well. We must have this land, not to make money from its sale, but to be held in reserve for just such occasions as will arise. Here is Brother Lord with his large family. We must furnish him a chance to build a sort of a house for himself and family. The man has lost his situation because of the Sabbath. Here is Brother Pocock. He must have him a place. This land is just such as will serve these families nicely. They can plant fruit trees, and then the lower portion is excellent for raising vegetables. Oh, I thank the Lord for this land to be apportioned out to those who are turned adrift! 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 21

We now feel deeply the dearth of means. May the Lord help us is my daily prayer, then as I pray there comes light in my mind—from America we shall see of the salvation of God. But our poor must be helped. Those having good trades are thrown out of work and we must utilize these men. I feel deeply for every soul taking his stand for the truth, and we must have something to help them to help themselves. God will help us and that right early. 14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 22

We must have means to build our hospital. I know they can help us in America. We do the very work that should have been done when we first came to this new world. The Lord calls for means. The Lord calls for workers established in the truth who will not hoard their means but keep it in circulation to help.14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 23

This morning I slept until nearly day. Wonderful for me! Word came that I was expected to take Dr. Caro with my team to see a sick man, Mr. Barnes, who has been very near death with typhoid fever. Rode six miles and a half—W. C. White, Dr. Caro, and I. We improved this opportunity to visit and had important conversation in regard to the medical missionary work and especially in reference to the Health Home—the work to be done, and who shall represent the medical missionary work in its several lines in Melbourne, and in Adelaide. We need men of clear minds, who can reason from cause to effect, who will not move impulsively but solidly and in faith and firm trust in God.14LtMs, Ms 184, 1899, par. 24

I could not sleep past one o'clock. I thank the Lord that I am much improved in health. My mind is clear and I have freedom in writing. Elders Daniells and Starr attended the meeting and took the services. I was much pleased to have them do this. There was meeting in the morning or at eleven o'clock—preaching—and in the evening. In the afternoon there were the ordinances of feet washing and of sacrament. The meetings were interesting and profitable. We had conversation with Elder Daniells in regard to the necessities of special work being done in Melbourne and in Adelaide.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 1

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

We met Brother Pocock and his family at the station. It is a very hot day. His little son, four years old, is sick, and he was taken in hand at once by Sara McEnterfer. The child walked in the heat three miles, and it is feared he had a sunstroke. He seemed much better and we moved them into the little two-room cottage, hoping they would now do well. But in the night at twelve o'clock a messenger came for Sara McEnterfer to come and see what could be done for the child. He was very, very sick. She found the child a great sufferer, in very much pain, and she thought the appearance manifested was of acute poisoning. The discharges were dark green. He has not been able to eat. Can retain nothing in his stomach; throws it up. A telegram was sent for Dr. Rand.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 2

This day I walked out with W. C. White and Brother James, my farmer, to see a piece of land which it is for our interest to secure, and which has been offered by the woman who owns it—one hundred acres for one hundred pounds. If it can be secured we shall have a place to build houses as close as possible to the school lands, but reserve the land all around the school buildings free from cottages. The land is not the best, but will be good for orchard. We set on foot inquiries in regard to this piece of land.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 3

It has been raining this day, very gently, but it is gratefully received. We feared we should have to empty our underground cistern to accommodate the school, for there is a dearth of water. Oh, how thankful we ought to be to our heavenly Father for this rain. It helps every family. The tanks were all empty but our own. We are very careful in such a time to have no water wasted.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 4

We took two long sheets of iron roofing to Brother Lord to put on his house, or shanty, he now occupies. Two sections have been taken off.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 5

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

It has been raining today. All day the rain has been falling, in gentle showers at first, but soon it was a downpour and our men, Brethren Constandt and James, have been very busy. Brother Lord received telegram to meet the Parliamentary emissaries and our team had to take him to the station. The team was going through the heavy rain and it had increased to a tempest, blowing down trees and flooding all our lower garden land many feet deep.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 6

The perilous condition of the child kept us all in commotion. We feared it would not live until Dr. Rand should come. It makes a wonderful trouble in this country if a doctor is not present to give his deposition and sign a certificate.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 7

But they can keep their liquor houses doling out the liquid poison to all who shall pay them the money for liquor, selling their reason and meeting with accidents—being thrown from carts, run into by trains, and every conceivable accident. But the sale of the liquor goes on just the same. Oh, consistency, thou art a jewel!<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 8

Evening. What a strange day this has been. Nearly all the time some members of my family have been hurrying, driving out in the rain. How furiously the wind has been blowing! I pity those who are on the high seas at such a time as this.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 9

The sick boy is relieved but is in a most critical condition. It is something we cannot solve. The appearance is that the boy is poisoned; but how, we cannot imagined. Sara was called to the sick home and Sister Peck accompanied her. Sister Robb is solicited to take the children for the night. Sara has had scarcely any rest or sleep. This beautiful little lad must be saved if possible. We are doing all that human skill can do. I have given up Sara and Sister Peck to do all they possibly can to save the child. There is no letting up. The child seems to be poisoned, and how, we can not understand.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 10

He is my wisdom, my sanctification, and my righteousness.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 12

I awoke very early and my soul was weighed down with a burden of perplexity. We obtain no relief in the financial question, but we seem to be full of anxiety and sorrow for the family of Brother Pocock. It will be a miracle if the child recovers. If we only knew what he had been eating; but we cannot know this. I asked the mother to find out from the oldest children in regard to the matter.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 13

At noon received an American mail—not many letters, but I am greatly relieved by the encouragement given of sending us financial help. Letters came from Dr. Kellogg, which relieve my mind greatly.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 14

I thank the Lord I am better than I was yesterday. I shall attend the meeting. Elder Colcord is sick; is recovering, but not well.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 16

We took Sara down to the afflicted family. We learned that the little lad died a few moments before. His funeral would be next day at three o'clock. He had no struggle. He just breathed his life away. It was a painful ordeal for the father and the mother, but they knew everything that human care and skill could do had been done. We knew also that we had done all that we could do. We could only say, The will of the Lord be done. "The Lord gave, the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." Job 1:21.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 17

We had an important meeting. We brought up Brother Colcord and his wife and baby in our carriage to the meeting. The house of God was well filled. Brother Palmer led out in the meeting, giving some of the experiences of the last few months—our financial embarrassment, and no way out of the difficulty. Could get no help from the banks. They would not lend us money. Then he related how Elder Daniells had to disconnect from his work in the school—his teaching in Bible lines—and go to Melbourne, visit Ballarat and Adelaide, and see if he could not arrange to obtain some means so essential for us at this time. The last night before he left, he was out in the bush all night in prayer, and assurance and comfort and the peace of Christ came into his heart, and he went on his way of good courage with assurance that help would come.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 18

And when we were all tied up on every side, every avenue closed, still we prayed on and believed, and the Lord had help for us on the way. Before the Sabbath the Bulletin gave the relief and encouragement we needed. Our honor was at stake, and when we knew not what to do the word came, “Go forward.” [Exodus 14:15.] We had come apparently to the Red Sea, and then the waters opened before us. He then read the circumstances of that meeting of the General Conference in South Lancaster, Massachusetts, and the donations made.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 19

One captain not of our faith was present at this meeting in a providential way, and pledged five thousand dollars. This revealed the hand of the Lord. I spoke to the people on the same line in the meeting in the afternoon.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 20

Sunday, April 9, 1899

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

I was able to sleep until three o'clock a.m. This day will be quite filled up with responsibilities. The afflicted Pocock family are to lay their darling little boy, four years old, in the grave, and everything is to be prepared for suitable clothing for the mother and children. I wish I could describe the way the dear little child was simply but so nicely cared for in his last sleep, in his little bed. Everything was simply prepared. A box was made in which to lay the little body. The rough boards were covered with material that was not costly but everything was tasty and very neat and nice, and I should think no more could have been done than was done to make this severe affliction as light as possible, by giving the greatest attention and devoted care to alleviate the sufferings of the dear child and to save his life. Sister Robb and Sara McEnterfer watched and worked and rested not until the breath left the body, and then the body had to be cared for properly. Appropriate remarks were made at the funeral by Brother Hughes. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 21

W. C. White and I were obliged to fill an appointment three miles away at Dora Creek. We had an open-air meeting. There were about ninety present. I had freedom in speaking to those assembled. The fishermen grouped together at a little distance, while the congregation grouped together—some sitting on the grass, some standing. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 22

The Lord gave me words for the occasion. W. C. White also was very free in speaking to those assembled. Had we understood the child would die and the funeral be at the same hour, we would have arranged our appointments so that I could have been at the funeral. There was quite a congregation in the chapel at the funeral services. The school children, the younger class, sang the favorite hymns of the little lad, and everything was appropriate. These two meetings held at the same time were important occasions and with the blessing of God will certainly make a right impression upon the minds of all present. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 23

Sunnyside, Cooranbong

I awoke about two o'clock a.m. and prepared my letters to send to Africa and America. While I was busily writing Brother Lord came to see me. There is a great desire that his wife shall be made comfortable before he shall undertake the canvassing work. His son and his son's wife are now attending the funeral of his son's wife's mother—the woman who a few weeks since, when her daughter was baptized, tried to prevent her from going forward in baptism. The constable had to interfere and tell her to desist. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 24

The mother and sister disown her, and called down all the judgments of God upon Mrs. Lord, the mother of the son who married the daughter. Then the mother of the daughter and her own brother tried to force her that she should not go forward in the ordinance of baptism, charging her with disgracing the family. Finally the mother cursed her daughter and cursed Mrs. Lord, her [daughter's] mother-in-law, charging her with being the one who had influenced her daughter. Then she knelt down and offered a blasphemous prayer that her daughter and her mother-in-law should be sick and never get well and die. These curses, so blasphemous, recoiled on her own head. Only a few weeks had passed when she was taken suddenly ill, and her daughter, with her child and with her husband, attended the funeral of the mother.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 25

But the judgment of God did not soften the hearts of the other members of the family. When the one who had been baptized was seated at the table to partake of food, her brother and wife would not eat with her but declared they would not sit at the table with her and would not sleep in the house where she and her family were. They left the wicked, exasperated family to find accommodations with Brother and Sister Starr. What a history is this—in the year 1899, religious animosity against those who follow the convictions of their own conscience!<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 26

I had an interview with our brethren. What could we do with Brother Lord and his family? I could not bear the responsibilities that came upon me. I had done all for them I could. I had hired three of the boys, boarded them, paid them—some earn one pound per week—and all would not accomplish as much as one able-bodied man—but this is their only resource and we must do this.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 27

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

I slept until half past two o'clock a.m. American mails goes today before daylight. I have written six pages of letter paper. Call up my copyists and they send this letter off.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 28

And now the preparations are to be made to feed those who have been invited to donate their work on the land. Sara and my farmer, Brother James, have been soliciting donations—workers to clear the land for the hospital. For two days there has been this work of inviting help.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 29

Brethren Belden and James and Lord went to look at a place that Hardy had been occupying, but there is no show for them there. The place they have is unfit to be occupied and something must be done, for this large family must not become discouraged. This is our work, to try to save them.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 30

We had dinner on the grounds near the chapel, then as it was misting strongly, went into the chapel and several speeches were made. Over one hour was occupied, and then as the mist and gently falling rain had lightened, something more was done in taking out the trees. There has been quite a work done in taking out the trees. A proposition was made to donate more than fifteen acres to the hospital. This would mean more land to clear, but would give a chance for those who were brought to the hospital to have light work to do on the land. We see this hospital must go up at once, for it is greatly needed.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 31

Wednesday, April 12, 1899

I awoke at two o'clock a.m. This day is to be the preparation day to clean the building. Tomorrow the dedication of the largest school building takes place.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 32

Thursday, April 13, 1899

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

Thursday at six o'clock the first meeting was held in the main school building. This early hour was chosen as appropriate to accommodate those who had worked with decided interest on the building.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 33

There was assembled the entire company of students and principal, preceptor, and teachers. W. C. White, and Brethren Palmer and Hughes spoke. I then spoke to the students and all present thirty minutes. At the close of the exercises there was the dedicatory prayer. The Lord gave freedom as we invited His presence to preside over the entire school through the term just now commencing. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 34

Friday, April 14, 1899

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

This is preparation day for the Sabbath. I wrote a letter of several pages to Elder Haskell and Elder Tenney, who are engaged in the work at Brisbane. We thank the Lord that a chapel has been erected and dedicated free from debt one week ago last Sunday. The last letter from Elder Haskell reports fifty souls converted to the truth, and now they are at work in another locality where there has been a deep interest, five miles from where the church building has been erected. They are now contemplating engaging in the medical missionary work and the food manufacturing business if they can obtain money to do this work. Our hospital is not yet advanced in the building. The land is being cleared preparatory to building. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 35

We need a hospital so much. Sara McEnterfer was called Thursday to see if she could do anything for Brother Palmer's little son, eighteen months old. For several days he has had painful swelling on the knee, supposed to be from the bite of some poisonous animal. Pulverized charcoal, mingled with flaxseed, was placed upon the swelling. This poultice gave relief at once. The little lad had screamed with pain all night. This gave relief and the child slept. Today she attended to the afflicted little one, visiting him twice, and seeing the condition of the knee, she opened the swelling in two places. A very large amount of yellow matter and blood discharged freely and the child was relieved of its great suffering. Thank the Lord that we may become intelligent in using the simplest things within our reach to alleviate pain and successfully remove the cause of the pain. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 36

Sister McEnterfer had been at home only a short time from the medical missionary work when a Mr. Johnson, living miles away, came in great distress of mind for his three suffering children to receive treatment. He had sent for a doctor but he gave them some mixture of magnesia and water, which gave no relief. He was unable to restrain himself in his great anxiety while Sara was getting her treatment facilities ready to be used. He said the children had eaten green, unripe fruit and he thought they would die before he could bring them help. He had come in a boat on Dora Creek. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 37

Sabbath, April 15, 1899

Sunnyside, Cooranbong

Sabbath was a very solemn and interesting day to those who love and fear the Lord. We have many fears that many who have had the light of truth and do not practice the truth will gradually lose all knowledge of the truth. Their light will go out in darkness. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 38

Sunday, April 16, 1899

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

We attended a meeting in the open air. I had special freedom in speaking from John 3:1-4. There were sixty people—more than we expected. We are trying to draw these people. We have as good singing as we can obtain without an instrument, and we think it is quite as interesting. The effort had been made to obtain seats. They arranged them in a half circle and my voice was clear and all could hear. Some women and children were seated upon the ground upon our laprobes. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 39

We feel well pleased with the perfect order. Some in their carriages were stationed close by the fence that enclosed the paddock. We are sure that some seed fell upon good ground. There is Mr. Pringle and Mr. Conley who are about ready to decide to obey the truth. They listened with great attention. Some of the number were Catholics and would not have entered one of our churches. We thank the Lord [that] for the first time we had the opportunity of speaking to Martinsville. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 40

We shall be obliged to speak in the open air at Morisset station, for there is no house that could contain the people. We feel deeply for this people. We are on missionary soil.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 41

We wish to have all who can cultivate their voice for speaking and for singing. There is altogether too little interest taken in voice culture, and the voice is a sacred gift of God. All the conditions and circumstances of life are very solemn and bring us under obligation to God to use every talent to the glory of God. All our powers are for use—not for waste, but to be educated and trained for the glory of God. We are to do Him service in every season of worship. There is to be the cultivation of the [voice], overcoming all harshness, all strange accents. Speech is a great talent. We advise every student in our school who has an ear for music to make the most of every opportunity of learning how to improve the voice, both in music and in singing. The Lord expects every one to do his best.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 42

Wednesday, April 19, 1899

Wednesday has been a very busy day with us.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 43

Thursday, April 20, 1899

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

We awakened at half past two o'clock. Oh, how we long for the Holy Spirit of God to be with us on all occasions, but especially at this time when means is being raised to carry forward the work of God. We long to see it moving and extended more than it now is.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 44

There are many places that need work done in them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 45

We met at the school building to consider the plan drawn by our builder, Brother Thomson. We worked with all our ingenuity to diminish the outlay of means, but there then comes to mind several things that have been outlined before me that makes me feel we will make a mistake if we attempt to curtail the expense by cutting out four feet of the plan, which diminished in both stories amounts to eight feet of room. There come to my mind things that have been deeply impressed upon me in the necessity for much better facilities in the bathrooms—conveniences in room, a massage table, and a cot on which to give packs. There is where the impressions will be made upon all minds. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 46

All these things make their impression. Conversation will sometimes arise. Words will be spoken that will open a flood of light to the patient as to methods of caring for the body, the temple of God. There must be the greatest care to preserve decency and strict purity in conversation and in every action. A small, crowded bathroom leaves impressions on the mind of cheapness and commonness, which should not be. Everything that pertains to the human structure should be spoken of, if at all, as God's property. He made it and He will care for the body. "Ye are the temple of the living God." 2 Corinthians 6:16. You are not your own. "Ye are bought with a price;" therefore the solemn injunction is given, "Glorify God in your body, and in your spirit, which are God's." 1 Corinthians 6:20. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 47

In no case should women nurses give treatment or massage and packs to men, or men to women. Let everything in the bathroom be done decently and in order. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 48

The Lord would have Seventh-day Adventists ever consider that they bear the badge of loyalty to God in the observance of the Sabbath. He has sanctified and blessed and hallowed it. "And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between men and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you." Exodus 31:12, 13. The Sabbath was to be Israel's sign, stamped with the government mark. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 49

We left Cooranbong accompanied by Maggie Hare and Sara McEnterfer for Newcastle. We went directly to Newcastle. Waited for a train. Brother Connell was waiting for us and he carried our luggage to the train. I wrote a number of pages of letter paper. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 50

Saturday, April 22, 1899

Spoke in forenoon to a goodly number of people. The Lord gave me a message for them. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 51

Sunday, April 23, 1899

Sunday at three p.m. I had an appointment at Wallsend. I spoke to a goodly number assembled in the hall. The people seemed interested, and they need labor. We rode in train ten miles, then rode after the meeting three miles to Cockle Creek. Took the cars for Dora Creek—only two passengers, Sara and myself. We had a severe shaking up. We found teams waiting for us at the station and were glad to be at home again. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 52

Monday, April 24, 1899

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

Awoke at two o'clock, and commenced my writing at three. I have important matter which I wish to give to the doctors in our institutions. I hear Dr. Caro and Brother Morse are to be here early this morning before breakfast to hear what I have to say to them. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 53

I spoke to them about one hour upon the principles which should be brought into our institution, and they felt the Lord had given me the message to them. We then conveyed them to the Morisset station with our horses and carriage, and after we came back we took Brother Rand to the station at Dora Creek. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 54

We have many perplexities to meet. We see everything pressing in upon us, and we have no money to handle these things. Dr. Kellogg sent us two hundred fifty pounds, but this had to go at once to pay workmen on the school building. We did suppose our statement of our necessities would have brought immediate relief, as the money was raised when the Bulletin came to us. But the matter has gone into the papers so that it is considered a sure matter that we are well supplied with funds. We are supplied with anticipations, and that is all, with the exception of the draft from Dr. Kellogg.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 55

I was saying, "W. C. White, You must take hold of my writings. I can delay no longer. It is supposed you are helping me, but you are not doing this. Now I need your help and must have it."14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 56

He gravely told me he must go to Sydney at once. There was only one hour for him to get to Morisset station to see if Elder Daniells, just [back] from Melbourne, had not means for the school which will let us out of this pressure. Oh, how we are hampered! Every one [is] congratulating us, and we are pressed under the load of financial embarrassment which our brethren in America seem not to comprehend! I am left with a very great burden on me, and I must have help. Brother Colcord is not well and he cannot help me. W. C. White is constantly trying to keep things going that they shall not quite stop.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 57

I wish to say the light given is that the stations from Morisset to Sydney must be worked, and from Cooranbong to Newcastle, Maitland, and Singleton where there is a decided interest to hear, and on to Queensland and on to West Australia. The word comes, Who shall go for us, and whom shall we send? We have no light who shall and can do this work. But it must be done.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 58

Tuesday, April 25, 1899

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

It is clear and cold this morning.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 59

I awakened at half past three. We see many perplexities, but if we trust in the Lord He will work in our behalf. We will not look at the things which are seen but at the things that are unseen, for the things which are seen are temporal but the things which are unseen are eternal.14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 60

It is supposed by the people in Australia and America, because of the things that have been published in the Bulletins and Review and Herald, which have a large circulation, that the Lord will go before us to continue to work the new fields and to open before us new fields that have never yet been worked. But we are in just as great perplexity and real want and close pressure as ever we have been. The workmen, seeing these facts published, now come with importunate solicitations for us to pay them for their work, and we have not a pound to do it with. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 61

We keep three young men, unused to labor, and give them half a crown each per day. They do as well as boys unused to physical labor can be expected to do. We could better hire one able-bodied man, but here is a large family of seven hearty children and they need food. What can they do if we stop paying them? It is cutting off every source of supply for that family. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 62

Why did not our brethren in America be as zealous to send the means they had raised as to publish the fact and we be in no wise helped? The president of the California Conference publishes he had sent Sister White fourteen hundred dollars, as though it were a gift. It was my own money, that fourteen hundred dollars, invested to save the Healdsburg school, through Mrs. Scott. I agreed to settle the indebtedness of Mrs. Scott to me by taking shares in the Healdsburg College, with assurance that they would help me to take other shares off my hands. Then comes a notice from the Pacific Press that they had ordered one thousand dollars sent. But we have not seen the one thousand dollars. I wish we had it. If our brethren in America could have had any idea of our situation, a portion of that money that has been raised would come into our hands, for we are in a great strait—tied up fast for want of money. Why did not our brethren send the means and not keep us bound about? How long this stress will last we cannot tell, but God forbid His name should be dishonored. 14LtMs, Ms 185, 1899, par. 63

[Sunnyside, Cooranbong]

The Sabbath, the day which the Lord has sanctified and blessed, has come. We thank the Lord with heart and soul. As we welcome the Sabbath all our family assemble in our little parlor and read and pray. We feel indeed that we have the Lord Jesus in our midst saying, "Peace be unto you." [Luke 24:36.] As we all unite in prayer we realize more decidedly that we have the presence of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 1

"And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my Sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you." Exodus 31:12, 13. It is the privilege of every soul who keeps the Sabbath to have this assurance of the sign that God accepts us and sanctifies us to Himself to do Him service. What is true sanctification? Obedience to the law of God. He who claims to be sanctified and is not receiving the sign of perfect obedience is not sanctified. He cannot possibly know that which the Lord invites him to know—true sanctification as distinguished from the spurious, so-called sanctification.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 2

I spoke in the chapel, reading from (Exodus 31:12-18) and the entire chapter of (Isaiah 58), explaining some in regard to the Sabbath. Then, after making some earnest appeals, I read important writing of testimony upon home religion and practical godliness. I then invited all those who wished to commence the service of God, and to leave their life of sin, to commence now to become Christians and engage in the warfare against the enemy in the place of warring against righteousness and truth, for they could not know what they were about. I then asked them to come to the front seats and thus show their purpose to turn from all their sinful pranks and no longer consent to be sport for the enemy. Twenty-five came forward. We had a season of heartfelt seeking of the Lord. We could not have dismissed the congregation, for it had been pouring down rain. The Lord gave me the spirit of intercession. 14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 3

Friday, May 19, 1899

Sara McEnterfer accompanied me to Newcastle. We took the train for Hamilton and this left us very near the mission home of Brother Starr. He himself was in Sydney. We partook of refreshments and then took the train for Wallsend. 14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 4

We found Brother and Sister Haskell, Sister Wilson, and Sister Walker in a large establishment, once a clothing store, rented now for only ten shillings per week. There were abundant rooms to accommodate a large business. These rooms had not been used for years and needed repairing very much. This was being done, and we thought it in the providence of God that this could be converted into a dwelling and the large salesroom into a hall for meetings, all for ten shillings. 14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 5

We attended meeting Sabbath at Hamilton under the tent, which was still our meetinghouse. There was a good representation of Sabbathkeepers. The Lord gave me freedom in speaking to the people. 14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 6

Brother Haskell spoke to the congregation in the forenoon and my appointment was at three p.m. We had a social meeting. Many took part and the presence of the Lord was with us. I read to them the thirty-first chapter of Exodus, dwelling especially upon the words spoken by Christ enshrouded in the billowy cloud, (verse 12), to the close of the chapter. 14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 7

Elder Haskell spoke to an interested audience in the evening. This was wearisome but he enjoyed the presentation of the truth. 14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 8

In the afternoon, Sunday, I had again much freedom in speaking and I knew the Lord Jesus was in our midst to set home the words spoken. We see a large work to be done in Sydney. May the Lord open the way. The suburb of Wallsend is now to be worked. Elder Haskell is located in the most favorable position in that suburb. The Week of Prayer is an important period for the churches. May the Lord indite the petitions offered. 14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 9

Friday, May 26, 1899

Summer Hill, New South Wales

Sara McEnterfer accompanied me to Sydney. Elder Haskell was on the train. He came from Newcastle. We had an opportunity to just speak with him. He was going on to Sydney, while we stopped off at Summer Hill and were guests at Sister Tuxford's. 14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 10

In the evening, by invitation, I spoke to the nurses and helpers and those carrying the burdens of the institution. The Lord helped me to pray and to give them a short talk; then I think all bore their testimony. It was a profitable meeting. I felt indeed that the Lord was hearing prayer coming up to Him, for we were in great need of wisdom and the rich current of grace from the Source of all power. Oh, that the Lord will come and teach and lead and guide us by His Holy Spirit. 14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 11

Dr. Caro is doing a good work. Brother Richie and his wife are doing all they can. May the Lord bless them. I am burdened as a cart beneath sheaves to see and have to sense the great lack of facilities to carry forward the work. We are waiting for help from America. We have used every extra dollar to put into the work somewhere in the aggressive warfare going on in Sydney and in Newcastle, but especially we have been forced to work in the Avondale tract of land to prepare school buildings to accommodate the teachers and the students who now number one hundred and twenty-five. The workers employed to do this work have to be accommodated with homes to stay in, and preparations for boarding while erecting these buildings. The Lord is good, the Lord is gracious. He sees what we are doing and He can work out His will and His purpose according to His own mind.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 12

The encouragement of donations from America we anxiously wait to receive. It does not seem to me to be a reality, and I think I feel more severely the results to our own commandment-keeping people than if it had not have been. Something urges itself upon me. Put not your dependence in man or the son of men, for they will disappoint your expectations. Can it be that there is to be selfishness in the appropriation of this means which will make it a curse to the cause? Will our people in America settle down and do nothing themselves?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 13

Summer Hill, Sydney, New South Wales

I find myself comfortably resting in Sister Tuxford's pleasant room, but it pains me to see every space filled with little knickknacks and pictures of faces. Oh, I wish it were not so. I wish it were otherwise. We had our season of prayer in the parlor and the Lord was very nigh unto us. Elder Haskell spoke to the people at Summer Hill in the forenoon. A horse and carriage was hired for us, that we could attend the meeting one mile and a half from Summer Hill without my being under the necessity of riding in the train. I was surprised to see the house full at Summer Hill, and the Lord helped me to speak. I read (Ephesians 1) and portions of the second chapter and the Lord gave me words to speak to the interested listeners. I am thankful, so thankful, that the Lord manifests His power and His grace unto His commandment-keeping people. Many testimonies were borne and the Spirit of the Lord was in the meeting. A solemn sense of the presence of God was in the meeting.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 14

Spoke in the church in _____. Sunday was raining, but there were more out to the service than I expected to see. After speaking most earnestly upon practical godliness and the preparation essential for the coming of the Son of man in the clouds of heaven, I was much burdened because there was not that living out the faith in practicing the truth.14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 15

I invited all who had been feeling their great need through the Week of Prayer to come forward, and we would ask the Lord to pardon our transgressions and forgive our sins and impute unto us His righteousness. Quite a number came forward, and we united with them in earnest prayer. The blessing of the Lord rested upon us. I felt the assurance of the Spirit of the Lord that He did accept our prayers offered up in faith.14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 16

Several of us rode out to Stratford and visited a location upon a side street—a beautiful location upon a hill. We saw only the desirability in the location, but the money donated, which we hoped soon to receive, must not be invested in any such grand buildings or expensive lands. The premier lived in this location, but as I beheld the grandeur I said we could not expend means in any such buildings.14LtMs, Ms 186, 1899, par. 17

I thank the Lord for a good night's rest. I slept until half past two o'clock a.m. It was a cold morning but I did not build a fire. After three o'clock I took my pen in hand and employed it earnestly until quarter to seven.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 187, 1899, par. 1

Dr. Caro called upon me soliciting an interview. We conversed together in regard to the future prospects of the sanitarium. The General Conference Bulletin gave us great encouragement that something would be done, but at the present time we can only say our disappointment is great and we only trust in God. He can and will work for us. I feel the most severely over the disappointment of our faithful workers in the sanitarium, who are working under great inconvenience. We are telling the whole story to the Lord. Although He knows all about the matter, yet it is our duty to ask counsel of the Lord and not to be in any way discouraged.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 187, 1899, par. 2

I devoted some time to conversation with Doctor Caro, but the future seems cloudy. May our Lord be gracious and help us to do Him service acceptably. The sanitarium in this country, in New South Wales, will, if we can establish it, be a means of bringing light to many souls who are now in darkness and know not the truth as it is revealed in the Word.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 187, 1899, par. 3

We see in every church there must be a true line of education in all points. The trumpet must give a certain sound, proclaiming the gospel message for this time. The ministry of the Word is essential. As the truth takes hold of the heart and character, it beautifies and elevates and ennobles individuality of character; and yet, like the branches of the true vine, the creative wisdom of God has a marked variety in nature and there will be a variety in the work the church is designed to accomplish. Diversity of talent will be seen because the Word of God speaks, instructing in every age but no less so in 1899. The great and important work is the missionary work to be done in building up the structure of the human habitations, and the restoration will go forward in the divine lines and by diversity of instrumentalities. There are sharp, strong messages to be borne. There are to be sons of consolation, but the message of the third angel must be carried, the banner of truth uplifted, for conversion is in it. The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul. Isaiah chapters 59, 60.14LtMs, Ms 187, 1899, par. 4

We arose early, half past two. We must consider the case of Brother and Sister Paap. They are searching for a place in which to locate. We found them in Brother Palmer's house. Brother Palmer was going to Morisset to see Mr. Healer, the owner of land. They desired to purchase twenty acres, and on this land build houses to rent. We took Sister Paap to Dora station. Her husband would meet her there. It seemed to be best, they thought, to locate in Maitland. In thus doing there would be a plant in that beautiful place. Camp meeting will be in that place the coming season, and we hope to see a good work done in Maitland. 14LtMs, Ms 187, 1899, par. 5

Wednesday, June 28, 1899

I was blessed with sleep last night, for which I am very thankful. My heart was drawn out to God in earnest prayer for the Lord to visit us and teach us how to advise and how to give wise counsel. We need wisdom from God. "Let not then your good be evil spoken of: for the kingdom of God is not meat and drink." Oh, that every family might consider this, and hunger and thirst for "righteousness and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost. For he that in these serveth Christ is acceptable to God, and approved of men. Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify one another." Romans 14:16-19.14LtMs, Ms 187, 1899, par. 6

Thursday, June 29, 1899

I praise the Lord for His goodness and mercy to me, that my mind is clear. There are many things I wish to do while my life lasts. O Lord, I pray Thee to help me, to strengthen me, and give me wisdom this day. My soul longs after God, the knowledge of the living God, and Jesus Christ whom He hath sent. 14LtMs, Ms 187, 1899, par. 7

Sara and I rode in our carriage to the school to see Brother Palmer and give him the letter sent me from Sister Check in reference to her son. The principal was compelled to send him home to his mother. He did not dare go home until he had seen his mother. She was very sorry he had come back and wished him to return to the school. She wrote us a good, sensible letter, but we have not the least hope of benefiting the poor lad. He is not converted as his mother supposed. He had no respect for the principal or the managers in the school. He is a spoiled child. May the Lord pity the mother and the poor, foolish boy. We returned from the school building and from the disagreeable errand. 14LtMs, Ms 187, 1899, par. 8

Friday, June 30, 1899

I slept until three o'clock, then commenced my writing and also reading of Testimonies written in 1894, which are just the subject needed for the present emergency in planning how the school shall be run in America. Their plans are to have the several teachers take classes, each teacher carry through the class assigned him wholly, and not one teacher educate in one line of study and then another teacher take the same class and educate in another line of study. One teacher is to take the charge of the whole education in all lessons. My advice is, This is not wisdom. The plea is, Christ taught upon every subject and we are to teach as Christ taught. But there is something to be thought of in this important plea. 14LtMs, Ms 187, 1899, par. 9

Christ was the perfection of wisdom, and while we may all learn in the school of Christ we have not all, or any one of us, perfection of wisdom. We fall far short, and we need constantly to be learning of Christ how we can grow up to full stature in Christ Jesus. We are in constant danger of being one-sided in character. All cannot be teachers in every line of study and be perfection as was Christ in every respect. We can, through the Holy Spirit's power, become complete in Christ Jesus, but there is not one we can lay our hand upon and say he can teach as Christ taught. He may make it his earnest effort to teach the truth as it is in Jesus, and through watchfulness and prayer advance—for the Christian life is a life of progress, looking unto Jesus who is the author and finisher of our faith. Each step forward is a step in advance heavenward.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 187, 1899, par. 10

I am surprised I slept well through the night. I praise the Lord for His mercy and His blessing. Elder Haskell spoke in the forenoon. I spoke in the afternoon, reading from a testimony things which the Lord had revealed to me in reference to the Avondale farm. There was a large congregation. 14LtMs, Ms 188, 1899, par. 9

Had an interview with Brother Salisbury, then a long interview with John Wessels. In afternoon attended meeting by request of the people, who desired me to speak. I spoke one hour upon faith, then the exercises changed and the crowd came in. Extra seats were brought in all through the evening. There was a very interesting social meeting after I had occupied the time, and many testimonies were borne. Then, after the change in the program, remarks were made in reference to the separation of Brother Haskell and wife from New South Wales Conference to go to America by special request of Elder Irwin. We shall miss Elder Haskell sorely, and we shall again rejoice that in America they may have his valuable service. Diary, August 1899

Saturday, August 12, 1899

Very rainy. I did not attend meetings. Many things are upon my mind which I cannot lay by. My mind is sorely troubled. I see not how I am to get this work done that needs so much to be done.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 1

There have been many things that needed to be done, which could not be delayed, and while in an assembly we were taking up the question of church school, there were cautions given in regard to dangers before us in engaging in too many plans, such as they have entered into in America. We must not gather responsibilities that will involve large time and large means, and large care and perplexities to keep in running order.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 2

There was then presented the many unfinished things which called for much wisdom to finish up and get in working order. There were several things enumerated which were at loose ends, needing to be bound off. But to divert the minds now to create new responsibilities would be working unwisely and would accumulate more care and perplexity. This gathering upon the workers more things to plan for would be unwise. Let the Lord lead the way, and let the Lord lay out the work that should be done.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 3

The sanitarium should now be entered upon. A site should be selected, the building plan made, and the cost of such a plan be estimated. When everything is prepared that men can do, trust the Lord fully that He will lead the way and provide the means, after we have done to the uttermost of our capabilities. But one thing must not be rushed upon another without some clearly defined plan and estimating the cost of the work, lest confusion should be the result.

This must be avoided.14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 4

The statement has been made that “God is never in a hurry.” But if the human agent will step in to be the Lord’s minute man, to be His helping hand, then the work will move promptly without rushing and friction. We need to walk calmly in a perfect way, yet be diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 5

Tuesday, August 15, 1899

Unable to sleep past one o’clock. I am trying to cast all my burdens upon the Lord. This is the last day to prepare our letters for mail. Some cannot be written to as I desire. W. C. White has not given me help for some time. The long meetings in succession here, and then the meetings following the Avondale Union Conference, have taken my time and W. C. White’s time, and everything is left unfinished. There are letters to get ready for the mail. Important letters are coming from America. They need to be carefully read and prayerfully considered and wisely answered.14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 6

We feel so sorry that Willie was held so long in Sydney. Then he was urged to go to Melbourne. Brother Daniells felt he must have his help, but he said, “No, mother needs me. I must attend to the writings.” Here is my constant perplexity—how to keep W. C. White [with me,] to help me by selection of the most essential things to come before the people in print. It is a constant battle, and it is a strain upon me to be constantly urging and being unable to succeed in having W. C. White to lift the load from me.14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 7

For years resolutions have been passed to give up W. C. White to help me in my writings, but the resolutions amounted to nothing, as they sent for him and relied upon him, and he thought he must comply with their requests. Just now [we have had] only a day or two to examine and adjust important matters. I have not time to explain my own writings and cannot do this. Often many things must be left undone, and I am wearied out with contemplating the many important things. I lose my courage and my strength and cannot call to mind the very things I ought to say and many things I ought to write. I have a letter—two, yes, three—written for Dr. Kellogg, but I am so afraid of being misunderstood that I dare not send them. I feel intensely, and want to help his mind in many things but how can I do it? My words are misapplied and misunderstood, and sometimes appear to be so misunderstood by humans that they do more harm than good. This has been the case with Dr. Kellogg. 14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 8

I have just had to lay down my pen and do nothing, for I feel quite sick and very much discouraged. The Lord help me and strengthen and bless me is my prayer day and night. Oh, what could I do without the thought, Thou, O Lord, knowest it all. 14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 9

Wednesday, August 16, 1899

This morning I rose at half past three o'clock. I wrote a letter to Elder Haskell and A. T. Jones. It was copied and prepared for mail, and I must say some things to my son W. C. White. After talking with me and knowing my mind from light given me of the Lord, he worked this matter out and placed it in plain, clear lines; and after reading three letters, I was pleased with the statement so definitely expressed in the wording of them. 14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 10

The mail went this morning. There are the letters to Dr. Kellogg, uncopied, unsent. Perhaps it is well. I do not think we see things alike, and he feels sure his work has been under the leading of the Lord. I see his dangers, which he does not see. The Lord has presented his case before me and the result must, I fear, come upon him. He is carrying the responsibilities he has been accumulating for years. If he falls under the load he has piled upon himself, he will leave the impression it is because he was left without the cooperation of those who ought to have helped him. May the Lord have compassion upon Dr. Kellogg is my prayer. May the Lord help him to see he is accumulating too many responsibilities in the medical missionary work. I cannot but speak to him the truth, and therefore I have spoken and it has not harmonized with his mind and has not had a good effect upon the doctor. He does not style me his friend. 14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par.

Wednesday night I came upon a letter which was written in 1893. Here lie the letters written to him more recently, unsent. I must, if I speak, tell him the truth—which he says is not truth. There is not a word I can take back, and I will leave matters just as they are for the Lord to heal the wounds that my testimony to him has made. 14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 12

The Boulder Sanitarium should never have been created at the time it was, by drawing heavy sums from the General Conference when he knew that if these draughts are continually made there will be no funds in the treasury to carry on the work of God in missionary lines in foreign fields. Men cannot see afar off. These things worry me. 14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 13

Thursday, August 17, 1899

This morning I could not sleep past twelve o'clock. I am drawn out in prayer to God in behalf of my infirmities. My left cheek bone was injured three years ago and at times threatens me. My left eye is also weak. I have men praying most earnestly to the Lord, who is the mighty Healer, to remove the difficulty. I do believe I receive the things I ask of the Lord in and through the name of Jesus. I have always found great comfort and relief in telling Him all my difficulties. He has promised in (John 14), "Whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do." [Verse 13.] Ask in My name, and I will do it. Oh, how precious is this promise! We will not dishonor God by doubting its truth. Christ our Redeemer hath said it. 14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 14

The Lord help me to offer this prayer in simplicity and unfaltering confidence. I cast my helpless soul upon Thee. Thou wilt answer my prayer although I feel unworthy to receive these precious evidences of good. The Lord will restore the sight to enable me to write. God will work in my behalf. I rest my whole case on the promise, and it will be fulfilled. I am truly needful of this blessing. In His goodness and mercy and liberality He will deal with His child that loves Him. 14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 15

"If ye shall ask anything in my name, I will do it." [Verse 14.] I believe I receive the things I ask for. Then saith my Saviour, "If ye love me, keep my commandments." [Verse 15.] This is the way we are to show our love—by obedience. This obedience is not pretension, but it is practice. “He that hath” the knowledge of “my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me.” [Verse 21.] This is the true test. To do His specified commandments is the genuine evidence that we love God. Obedience is the fruit of true love. “If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.” John 14:23.14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 16

After the Sabbath. The Lord gave me rest in sleep last night. I awoke about twelve o'clock, but I prayed the Lord to give me more sleep. For several nights my mind has been burdened. After lying awake until the clock struck two, I fell asleep and did not wake up until past four o'clock. I feel very thankful for this precious sleep.14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 17

My mind was burdened. Some warning is given me in regard to not taking many more things which must be created and will necessarily tax the minds of those who have been already overtaxed.14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 18

I did not attend meeting today. It has been rainy and very unpleasant. We have had rain most of the month of July, and thus far in August there has not been much sunshine. I have not seen it thus rainy any winter in Australia. I am praying for sunshine. We are all well, as a family. My heart is longing for the fullness of God. I do greatly desire that all of our people shall pray for the Lord to work in our behalf.14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 19

We are trying to build a meetinghouse at Hamilton. The tent will now be taken down, for a hall is hired. The tent must get dry before it is taken down. It has been the meetinghouse in Newcastle since the camp meeting there was closed. We need means, in this locality as well as in Hamilton, for the building of this house. I am seeking the Lord in prayer and I think many are praying. The Lord has said, “Ask, and ye shall receive,” (John 16:24), and “whatsoever ye ask in prayer, believing ye shall receive.” Matthew 21:22. I shall hold fast the promise.14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 20

We want to build this house of worship, that it shall lift up the standard. The seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God. Oh, the people ought to know what we believe! Many are demanding instruction in the special line: Why do you keep the Sabbath? We want the students to fit up to be teachers in church schools. We have not means and workers. I do wish I had both, and could urge our way onward. 14LtMs, Ms 189, 1899, par. 21

Friday, September 29, 1899

Hamilton, Newcastle, New South Wales

I thank the Lord He has given me strength to come to this place. I arose in the morning feeling relieved. Was quite weak after taking my bath in the evening. My heart labored heavily and painfully and I could not find any position in which I could lie to find relief, but I was very glad that I fell asleep. Awoke several times, but fell asleep again and did not leave my bed until four o'clock.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 190, 1899, par. 1

I was trying to think of a few things that I could place in my satchel, for I was to go to Newcastle on the noon train. Some things were introduced to me in the line of explanation. All at once a severe pain took me in my heart, and then such exhaustion I could not eat my breakfast. I felt for a time I was losing my hold on life. The pain, sharp and keen, was in my heart and then beneath my right shoulder blade and on the upper line of the shoulder. It cut me down so very quickly.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 190, 1899, par. 2

I thought, This decides the matter. I cannot now fill my appointment on Sabbath and Sunday at Newcastle. I was appointed to give the first talk in dedication of the church. W. C. White was to offer the dedicatory prayer. If I remained at home W. C. White would also remain. He came in to see me the second time and I said, "W. C. White, I cannot venture to Newcastle." "Well, Mother," he said, "just you quietly rest in God and do not worry at all. I will remain at home with you." We had a season of prayer over the matter and I felt while praying that hope and faith came into my heart, and I said to Willie, "I dare not remain at home. I will do as I have done many times, go forward trusting in the Lord.” W. C. White, my son, said, “I think, Mother, we must go, for I feel all clear in the matter and I will go with you and stand by you.”14LtMs, Ms 190, 1899, par. 3

I was very weak. We could get no room in the second-class cars. All were full. We stepped into the first-class car and I had good rest and endured the journey well. I slept very well that night.14LtMs, Ms 190, 1899, par. 4

During the day we looked into the new church. Every one was at work closing up for the Sabbath. I rejoice to say the home is plain but neat and tasty. It is a model of economy. Brother Hare has done nobly. He has completed the building in five weeks. Every worker has done his best, and believers and unbelievers were all engaged cheerfully to make every stroke tell. All were paid off and heartily thanked before the Sabbath. Some got through two hours or more before the Sabbath, others had about three quarters of an hour, and all felt they had been working zealously for the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 190, 1899, par. 5

Sabbath, September 30, 1899

Hamilton, Newcastle

It is a beautiful day. I was considerably weary and did not go down to prayers in the evening. Attended prayers in the morning. We feel thankful to God we have the promise that He will meet with us this day.14LtMs, Ms 190, 1899, par. 6

I was so glad to enter into the church and see the seats all well filled. It was difficult for all to find a seat. The singing was good. We have a new musician at the organ. She is the wife of a sea captain who has recently embraced the truth. Her sister and brother are just on the point of deciding.14LtMs, Ms 190, 1899, par. 7

W. C. White opened the meeting with prayer. Surely the Spirit of the Lord was upon him. He poured out his petition with great fervor, making his supplications unto God to receive this humble home of worship from His people, who had done what they could to aid in building it with money and work. Surely the Lord did manifest Himself to us and His blessing came upon us in rich currents of love. I spoke to the people from Ephesians. The Lord gave me freedom.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 190, 1899, par. 8

In the afternoon a goodly number assembled to bear their testimony. Brethren Starr, Hickox, and W. C. White all bore excellent testimonies. Then the church members bore their testimonies. There were several who had just begun to keep the Sabbath. There are many who are convinced, but have not the courage to decide fully to be on the Lord's side. We are sure this meetinghouse being finished, and the meeting held in the church for the first time, will have their influence on many minds.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 190, 1899, par. 9

All expressed themselves that this was the very best meeting they ever enjoyed. Everything was without one bit of censure, but all was commendation and thankfulness. Thus this gift of God to us has been passed back again with thanksgiving, dedicating it to Him to take it from our hands as a gift to God which He alone could make us able to return to Him. It was His own.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 190, 1899, par. 10

Brother Starr secured an excellent carriage and faithful horse from a man interested in the truth, but who has not taken his position. He is convinced of the truth, but his wife keeps him back. We hope he may be converted to the truth. He was our coachman. He knew just where to take us, and showed us the better portions of Newcastle. 14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 1

No one would ever suppose that Newcastle and Maitland were such important places. The suburbs are locations of different degrees of importance. Labors are now going on in Lambton and Adamstown and Wallsend. The giving of Bible readings extends a long distance. The seed is being sown and the Lord alone can give the increase. 14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 2

There is one suburb where the more wealthy reside, and in this suburb are the residences of Arnott and his sons, the great biscuit manufacturer. He has, with his sons, become rich in this business. They are dwelling in good, wholesome, excellent houses. Their surroundings are attractive indeed. But I thought as I looked at the fine buildings, All this will pass away. We are pilgrims and strangers on the earth, seeking a better country, even an heavenly. Arnott sends his son to the school at Avondale. 14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par.

I spoke to the people in afternoon. We had an excellent class of people, and we have our souls drawn out after this part of the Lord's moral vineyard. We are trying to accomplish the work with a great dearth of means. We will keep trusting and praying and believing, and the Lord will send us means to carry forward His own work. He will not leave us to plan and devise and be unable to finish.14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 4

I expect Sara to leave that night for Cooranbong, but the Lord helped me to speak to the people one hour. In the evening Elder Daniells spoke with great clearness and power. The chapel was full as it could hold.14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 5

These meetings have been, I know, a blessing to the people. One who had embraced the truth seemed to be losing his faith, but he is attending the meeting. Brother Miller has never been in the habit of giving. He was converted to the truth and took his position after the camp meeting. Brother Miller is helped. He paid his long back tithe Sunday. Thank the Lord for this.14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 6

Hamilton, Newcastle, New South Wales

It is very cold this morning. The arrangements were made last evening that we should take the first train to Sydney and devote the day to viewing the place that was thought might be the chosen spot for a sanitarium. W. C. White came in and conversed with me in my room. A meeting was to be held for counsel in the early morning. We repaired to the chapel meeting. Brethren Hickox, Daniells, Starr, Caswell, and Hare, and Brother London and his wife [were present]. It was quite cold. Some had rugs; others had none and tried to warm their hands by the sun's rays coming in at the window.14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 7

We talked in reference to the carrying on of the work while the meeting was going forward in Toowoomba. It was thought that the work should be zealously carried forward in the suburbs—Wallsend and Lambstown and Adamstown—all places being worked at the same time. After the Toowoomba meeting shall close, in about ten days, Maitland will be worked. A camp meeting will be held in that place. We decided, after important questions were discussed, that to satisfy Brother Starr, W. C. White would first spend a day with him in the interest of the Avondale school, appointing the work for a number of the students during vacation. 14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 8

All day Monday was fully occupied in real work. American mail was received, and all were deeply interested in its contents. This gives us work to do; we must write several letters for next mail. In one week and two days we must be on our journey to Toowoomba, Queensland. 14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 9

We read our interesting letters from Brethren Haskell and Irwin and Sister Haskell. They are doing all in their power to secure means for us to work here in Australia. Brother Irwin sent six hundred dollars. This is good, very good. Brother Haskell had money raised but thought he would wait until he reached Battle Creek, for he could not obtain a draft before the mail went, so next mail I shall expect more means. These men feel the situation we are in, and are laboring with all their powers to relieve the situation and bring in means to relieve the pressure. 14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 10

Dr. Caro sent a letter for W. C. White and myself to be at Hornsby station by Monday morning train, and his trap would be there to meet us, to see the land they had been looking at ten miles from Sydney in a suburb they think the best in which to locate the sanitarium. 14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 11

I cannot sleep after half past one o'clock. The African mail closes this morning. I have much upon my mind concerning my friends in Africa. I take a number of pages to be added to the pages already prepared for Tuesday morning's mail. I have written under great

I spoke in afternoon. About one hundred persons were present. Spoke from John 14:1-4. The Lord gave me freedom to represent the ascension of Christ, and His announcing that His going away was to prepare mansions for them, and He would come again and receive them unto Himself, that where He is there they may be also. We are to expect the soon coming of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ the Lord.14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 14

This afternoon there were about two hundred present. We were glad to see quite a large number of hearers on the outside of the tent. There was no confusion or noise. I followed on the same line as on Saturday. The love of God which passes knowledge. I read verses from John 14.14LtMs, Ms 191, 1899, par. 15

Maitland, New South Wales

We left Sunnyside, Cooranbong, at half past five in the morning. It was cloudy and threatening to rain. It sprinkled a few drops and then there was a soft little shower. The sun did not come out all day and this made it pleasant for us—Sara and myself.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 1

The road for the first part of the way was very hilly, until we had ascended the highest mountain range. Workmen were blasting the rocky mountain to get through this deepest mountain. Sara went on ahead and inquired in regard to blasting. One blast was made and they told us to hurry up before the next blast. We made quick work of getting through the pass above where the blasting was going on. This steepest ascent Sara and I both walked, but it was too heavy a tax on me. It seemed to hurt my heart. We had a very pleasant trip, and it did not commence raining in earnest until we entered East Maitland. Then the rain came down steadily all day.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 2

We were taken to a house of six rooms, but only one room that was at all proper for me. The homes at West Maitland are built in the very earth—no elevation. Then the yard is full and trees are close up to the house, making the premises sunless and damp and unhealthful.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 3

Sabbath, November 4, 1899

Maitland, New South Wales

Sabbath was cloudy and showers came. There was a smaller company because of the threatening of rain. I spoke from (John 14:1-3), from (Acts 1:4, 11), and Acts 2:1-7. Those present listened with earnest interest. There were a goodly number not of our faith. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 4

I tried to present before them the necessity of preparation in this time of probation which the Lord had graciously granted and could obtain for them only at the expense of His own life. Then how important that the very best of knowledge shall be obtained as to how to reach the mansions which Christ has gone to prepare for those who love Him. They are to keep His commandments. They are to exemplify the life of Christ in their individual life, and be His witnesses that Christ Jesus was the Son of God, saying this from an experimental knowledge of God. The Lord would have them faithful and true in Him, that He can through them make known His divine manifestations and the power and majesty of heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 5

The Lord will reveal Himself to His people who believe on and fear His name. He would have the transforming energies of the Holy Spirit be a living testimony to the world. "We are laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." 1 Corinthians 3:9. The Lord works for the building up of characters that shall be symmetrical, after the divine Pattern. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 6

Christ is knocking at the door of your hearts, saying, If any man hear My voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and make My abode with him. Then open the heart to receive the heavenly Guest. We must have practical, experimental godliness, for this is the spiritual strength of the church. Let the shepherd of the flock, whose work it is to feed the sheep, first talk with the Lord Jesus in prayer—in secret prayer and in the pulpit. Let all trust in Jesus Christ as their efficiency. God cooperating with the human agency can give success. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 7

Sunday, November 5, 1899

Maitland, New South Wales

I attended the six o'clock morning meeting. There was but a small company out. Several prayed, but so low we could not hear them. I presented my petition to the Lord and He did hear. His Holy Spirit brought peace and comfort to my heart. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 8

Our brethren desired me to speak, and I did speak words of faith and tried to make all feel that we must not look on the dark side, but on the bright side. We must talk faith and encourage faith if we would have our faith confirmed. We must have that faith that works by love and purifies the soul. The transforming energies of the Holy Spirit will not come to persons who present the form of prayer—lip service—but do not take God at His word. We had a precious season. Several bore testimony and seemed to be strong for transformation of character. The inward working of the Spirit of God will be revealed in outward evidence. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 9

In the afternoon at three o'clock the large tent was crowded, and there was a large company standing on the outside, as it was not possible to accommodate the people. A separate meeting was held daily in the tent appropriated for the children's meetings. When the crowd of children was gone, the vacant seats were immediately filled. Chairs were brought from the tents, and then the discourse which had been interrupted was continued. I spoke from 1 John 3:1-5. I had perfect liberty, and I knew the Holy Spirit of God was sustaining me. For one week before coming to the meeting I had been enfeebled with exhaustion and debility. The inability to sleep was wearying me, nevertheless Sara McEnterfer and I came with my own horse and carriage, twenty-seven miles. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 10

The weather is cloudy and it is raining some, yet the appointments are the same. I have very much to be thankful for. The Lord gave me special strength, and the very best interest was manifested. I had not a moment's doubt but that the angel of the Lord stood by my side and gave me the words I should speak. I was imbued with the Spirit of God. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 11

Tuesday, November 7, 1899

Maitland, New South Wales

There is much to be done in this place. We have come just where there are members of the church who are wanting light. This work being done here is of the Lord. It is carried on without excitement, but upon a great gospel plan of salvation. This the community recognizes. It is not after the noise and parade of the Salvation Army, but it is after the special working of the Holy Spirit of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 12

Sara McEnterfer and I were riding out to see May Lacey White. We took her in the carriage to ride with us. The boys also were to go with us. We were some time waiting for May to do some shopping, when the clouds which had been threatening seemed to be very portentous, as if a heavy storm was coming. We deposited May and her boys at the cottage they were occupying and hastened toward the cottage we were occupying. We had some way to go. We knew it was a question whether Jasper would out travel the gathering, traveling clouds. The large drops began to fall as we drove into the gate.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 13

I was out of the phaeton with my wraps as fast as possible, and in the house. Sara and Maggie were unharnessing the horse. Elder Starr and Maggie got the phaeton under the shed, and then a cyclone struck and the rain and hail and wind, which was as a roaring tempest. I was alone in my room. Sara was with the horse in the stable. The hail pelting down on the iron roof, the thunder rolling, the lightning flashing, made such a scene as I had not witnessed in this country before. Sara had to remain under the shelter with the horse in the stable. Brother Starr and Maggie were with the carriage under the shelter of the carriage house. But in the minds of us all was, What has it done to the camp? The rain has poured in through a window partly open in the very top of the room. None of us can reach it. We can only look to God and trust in preserving care. The Lord will be our Preserver.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 14

After the storm, word came that the people were in a sad condition at the camp. Tents were torn down, some old tents riddled to ribbons, and the big tent badly torn. The books in the book tent were somewhat damaged, and the typewriter smashed to pieces. It was a pitiful looking scene. Now was the opportunity for the true friends to be revealed. Doors were thrown open and invitations came from merchants and tradesmen. All cordially acted the good Samaritan, and took the drowned-out people in and cared for them free. Thank the Lord for friends in time of need!<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 15

I thank the Lord for His great goodness and loving kindness to me. I close up the American mail this morning. May the blessing of the Lord attend the words written is my prayer. My heart panteth after the living God. The mail off my hands, and now I must rest my brain.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 16

I see a great work to be done in Maitland. This field seems to open before us as the most favorable of any field we have entered in Australia. There are many churches of all orders, but the spiritual life and health seems to have departed from them. The ministers entertain their people with the African war. This people was presented to me as a people hungry for that spiritual food they did not receive. One year ago companies were presented before me. There were large companies and small companies, and some of these companies seemed to be the most intelligent and earnest people, and I was informed by my teacher that the Lord loved all of these souls. Of some He said, "They shall be witnesses of the truth. They will receive light to impart light." I was shown small settlements and a poorer class of people, humble laborers, and they must have help. Some were trying to search the Scriptures, but were perplexed and could not understand, and they were saying, "Come over and help us." [Acts 16:9.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 17

Thursday, November 9, 1899

Maitland, New South Wales

I spoke in the morning to a little company upon faith, from the 15th chapter of John. Meeting was at six o'clock. I see we all must have the baptism of the Holy Spirit. The heavy slumber is upon the church members. There needs to be an awakening. The Lord helped me to bear my testimony to encourage all our people to pray in faith. The promise of the Holy Spirit is not really sought after, and is deemed to be a matter to be neglected, for consideration at a more favorable opportunity. This impartation of the Holy Spirit is for the church who have had light, and if sought after—cutting away every other needless thing that hinders—it will flow in rich currents to the soul and will bring all other blessings in its train. Many good testimonies were borne. But, oh, how evident it is we are not receiving the falling of the Spirit of God it is our privilege to have! In the afternoon I had words to speak to the people.14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 18

Sunday, November 12, 1899

Maitland, New South Wales

There was a large attendance on Sunday. The tent was crowded to its uttermost capacity. All extra seats were brought in, and two good-sized tents were in use for the kindergarten children and the children from ten years old and upward to fifteen. These meetings are made very interesting for the children and youth. I spoke one hour to a deeply interested audience. There was a wall of people outside the tent and there was some confusion, but not enough to deserve attention. My subject was temperance. My soul was drawn out intensely to those who are in need of Christ and who are walking on in blindness. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 21

Monday, November 13, 1899

Maitland, New South Wales

I am not feeling as well as usual. My head troubles me. This is a rare thing. I was sick through the night. I do not get proper food to strengthen me. It seemed through the night that my life forces would give way. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 22

Sunday I had a lengthened conversation in regard to the laborers in the field. How should they be distributed? Where were the fields most appropriate for our brethren ministers? This drew upon me tremendously, because many things upon this question had been laid out before me, and I felt the burden of the matter much—as I cannot express. Words are tame to give expression to the feelings. My heart and soul had felt with intensity the weakness of our dear brethren in some things. Hereditary and cultivated objectionable traits of character, woven into the work, were doing harm to their influence and the precious cause of God. Self was not under discipline to God. I felt intensely that the sanctification of the Holy Spirit of God through the truth was essential, else the precious cause of truth would surely suffer from the defects of the workers. 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 23

This was more wearing to me than all my public labor. I must speak things which cut me to the very soul. The dinner taken that day was not digested, and I was very sick Sunday night—so sick that through Monday I could do nothing. I was weak and trembling all day. Yet I must give counsel upon important matters in regard to adjusting the laborers to their burden of work in the interests of the school, and again, after the lengthy conversation with Brother Palmer, the talk with Brother Hickox in regard to important movements. Where should he locate? There was Lambton [and] Wallsend that must be worked, and Hamilton and surrounding suburbs. What shall we do with all these interests? 14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 24

Maitland, New South Wales

We are deciding to go to our home at Cooranbong today. We cannot get an early start. I wish to say some things to Brother Starr. I have thought it would be advisable to work East Maitland in our effort with West Maitland, but my mind is changed. Divide the forces, and there will be weakness. All the combined forces are needed to work in the one line in West Maitland to complete the work, that it shall not be weak. All need to learn as well as teach before they can carry through in Lambton and Wallsend. We all want knowledge of the Scriptures, and of how to impart that knowledge in a clear connected manner.14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 25

The words I have for my pen are, Labor to show yourselves approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. In order to do this, there must be a close application of the mind. There must be no haphazard work in presenting the truth to the people. There is in West Maitland a strong Catholic element. It is in one sense where Satan's seat is, and the words in (Ephesians 6:10-13) seem strong and applicable.14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 26

We left in our carriage about nine o'clock, but I was requested to speak to the ministers and workers before going to Cooranbong. This took one hour of precious time, and we went home in the heat of the day, yet we bore it all nicely, and I arrived home safely. My burden was the unity of the workers. Our success depends upon this.14LtMs, Ms 192, 1899, par. 27

Helping Needy Families at Cooranbong

... in Prospect with several children. He came to Cooranbong with the three eldest children, the third son a cripple. His knee was very much enlarged and he walked with a crutch. I took him into my family nearly one year ago and Sara gave him treatment. The story is [this]: He was at school, and while running for a ball he fell, and six boys after him fell on top of him. His knee soon began to pain him, and physicians said it might have to be amputated. For eleven months he was confined to his bed; then he was allowed to sit up a short time and he walked about with a crutch. Then he suffered considerably and was again in bed for six weeks. He said he was oh, so tired of having to keep still.14LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 2

He came to Cooranbong with his two elder brothers and his father. We let them live in a small house with three rooms, the house where the twins were born. This was granted them free of rent while the mother and children were in Prospect, held there until some way would open for them. I then commenced my missionary work. I selected a piece of land, seventeen acres, and loaned him thirty-five pounds to make payment on it. The two oldest boys helped the father, and Roy, our boy now, did the cooking for the four of them, walking on his crutch. We helped them, of course, as you know I would, in the eating line.14LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 3

Sarah saw she must take charge of the boy, and he improved. The swelling began to decrease. I knew this would have the best influence in binding the family to us and perhaps saving the soul of the mother who had given up the truth. They are all here now, living on a place of their own—father, mother, and nine of the children. One girl is in Parramatta at work. They managed to live in a home just composed of iron roofing and bark from the trees and a tent and a rude barn. A more grateful woman I have never seen. She has had a hard time throughout her life.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 4

We furnished the father and boys beds, bedclothing, and furniture for nearly one year. We saw that the crippled boy was losing all he had gained. There was no mother on the premises, for she had to care for five children in Prospect. We took the boy into our home and gave him treatment. We took him with us to the camp meeting, and there he was treated all through the meeting. A swelling came under his knee. Sara poulticed it and worked with charcoal compresses and finally opened the swelling and matter and pieces of bone were discharged. We have kept him as a member of our family since. We feed and clothe him. The knee had some difficulty for some weeks. Sara kept at work faithfully over it, for it was a question whether the limb could be saved; but the bits of bone kept working out. Now the limb is all well, as sound, apparently, as the other. The family feel so grateful, and well they may.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 5

We dared not have him roistering around with the family or school children, so we took him as our boy. He has learned to take copies of my writings on typewriter and to use the press, putting articles in copy book. Thus we are educating him. We clothe him and board him and for a few weeks back we have thought best to give him the advantage of attending school.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 6

This kind interest shown for the family has been appreciated. The mother says the boy may always feel thankful that Miss McEnterfer has saved his leg. The doctors said they could do nothing for him, probably he must lose his leg. This is medical missionary work, and only one instance, for there have been feet and limbs she seemed more as a miracle wrought. Thank God for this. This boy is a promising lad, bright and as neat and tidy as any child we have ever seen.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 7

In doing what we have, we have bound ourselves with the entire family. They now have a good piece of land of their own, several acres cleared and set out to fruit trees, and Sister Thomson says she never experienced such kindness and thoughtfulness as we have shown them. The two eldest boys work with their father, who is a master workman. They will soon have a good home of their own, and this mother, who has never had a home of her own, is a thoroughly active, earnest worker, making everything go the longest way, keeping the children tidy. Her energies and tact and ingenuity to keep their children clothed have been no small matter, her husband getting work only occasionally. There is plenty for them all to do here on their place, and with their father at their trade, they can now make a living and will be, with their talent, a help to the business that must be carried on in Cooranbong.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 8

Brother Pocock is a fine-appearing gentleman in every sense of the word. He was a coach builder, a wheelwright, and a house builder, but he had settled on a rocky piece of land which would yield them only about three pounds a year and two pounds must be paid for the use of that rocky spot. The was thrown out of work when the banks failed.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 9

He embraced the truth, and the Sabbath was a hindrance. I employed him to paint my home. Thus I became acquainted with him. We learned something of their situation and our family sent them a box, and sometimes two boxes of clothing each year. We saw that he must have help, and we worked to remove him to Cooranbong. He has had to be helped to get him a piece of land for which he will pay so much per week from his wages.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 10

I have pitched my family camp meeting tent in my enclosure nearly opposite the land he has purchased. Here his family will live for a time until a cheap wooden building can be erected by himself and with the donation of help from others of his carpenter brethren. This family is now provided for. He lost a most beautiful boy soon after coming here. He ate of a bird that was cooked by their neighbors, thinking it would be a treat for the little fellow, but it poisoned him, and although everything was done for him he had not strength to rally; he died. The bird was a parakeet, poison at some seasons of the year. That flesh meat dinner cost the little fellow his life. They have four more children living. We are helping this family to help themselves and be in comfortable circumstances.14LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 11

We are keeping this land for just such purposes. It is the school tract. Persons have wanted to purchase farms of this land of thirty acres. We say, No, decidedly. We shall keep it and do God service by selling it to worthy poor people. This is missionary work we have been engaged in ever since we have been in Cooranbong. There are two more families that are waiting for allotments of land. All these have large families of children, but we can help them who never owned a home to secure one now, and this is as God would have it.14LtMs, Ms 193, 1899, par. 12

We have a deep interest that all our people in Australia, and those not of our people, shall understand that we have a live interest in our new building which we have named Health Retreat. We would not have it misnamed hospital, because this would be misunderstood. We have this building erected to accommodate the necessities of the circumstances that shall arise.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 194, 1899, par. 1

We have as yet had no place where our weary overworked ministers could find a few days' or weeks' resting-place unless they felt themselves to be in the way. Our schoolrooms are not the place for them, even if there was abundant room; but as everything is full they know if they stay even a few days someone must give up their rooms and crowd into rooms where there is no place for them.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 194, 1899, par. 2

There is a very excellent atmosphere here in Cooranbong. There is health in the air we breathe and this is thought to be the very best place for our tired, overworked ministers and missionary workers. Here, they are away from the noise of street-cars and trains and the constant rolling of carriages. It is a quiet, restful place here.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 194, 1899, par. 3

Royalties and Robbery Toward God

As the light was given to me from the Lord in regard to the royalties on books, there was presented to me a development of the spirit that was controlling hearts. There was the leaven of selfishness that has been introduced, and the result was presented before me. Now the attempt to settle this matter would not be to the salvation of the souls of any. As many persons are not worked by the Holy Spirit, a state of things would be developed of a character that many do not dream of. 14LtMs, Ms 195, 1899, par. 1

Captain Eldridge would come in with claims that are after his blind estimate and unlawful judgment of the value of his labors. When others were doing the work accredited to him, he was receiving more than he ever earned, and more has been drawn from the treasury than was just or right. It is robbery of God's treasury. Others would also make their claims when they were the very men who received much more than they should have had after the high wages order was introduced. And having acted their part in involving the office in the greatest embarrassment by their own devising and planning, they were the very ones who had restitution to make, and thus it stands on the books of heaven. But the very men, who had figured largely and with secret methods to rob the ones who should have had altogether a different treatment, will selfishly take advantage of circumstances to make some things appear that are altogether out of the way to advantage themselves. 14LtMs, Ms 195, 1899, par. 2

The Lord God of Israel will judge for these things. One subject was clearly revealed, that every penny of money raised in behalf of the Southern Field should not have been transferred to any other object. Both principal and interest are now to come to that field from the ones who appropriated that money, for if there had been faithful stewardship of this means, a much greater advancement would have been seen in the work. The work has moved very hard and the workers have not had the encouragement they ... [Remainder missing.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 195, 1899, par. 3

Christ, the Light of Life

1899

Formerly Undated Ms 63. Previously unpublished.

[First two pages missing.]14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 1

As the head of humanity, Christ is our example in all things. He, the divine Son of God, has said, "Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light." [Matthew 11:29, 30.]14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 2

We have our Bibles; we have had great light; and yet men in responsible positions have not been as anxious to keep the way of the Lord as they have to receive wages which they did not earn by faithful stewardship. Things have been swinging far away from Bible principles, and this has led men into darkness. Perverted ideas have led to a large outlay of means in Battle Creek and Union College, and also large expenditures in Walla Walla, Washington.14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 3

Much money has been invested that might have been saved to establish buildings in places where we have no means at all of presenting the truth. Thus Detroit and other large cities that I will not name are robbed of the means required to lift the standard of truth. And in the "regions beyond" [2 Corinthians 10:16] the work has not, and cannot, be represented, because the treasury is empty. There have been wrong advisers, wrong schemes and plans laid, that have eaten up the means that should be in the treasury to carry the truth to countries that have not heard the last note of warning that is to be given to the world.14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 4

God is no respecter of persons. He would have the light of the third angel's message carried into all parts of the world. But in order for men to be faithful in the stewardship they have accepted, they must be men who are much with God in prayer. They must take Him as their Counselor, for Satan is on the ground to oppose every advance of light. All are to bear in mind that the work is to be carried forward without partiality and without hypocrisy. 14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 5

“Ye,” says Christ, “are the salt of the earth.” To whom does He refer? It is to those who know the truth, to those who are handling the Word of God. “But if the salt have lost its savor,” He continues, “wherewith shall it be salted?” [Matthew 5:13.] It cannot and will not have any saving property in it. How then shall the world have a representation of the truth as it is in Jesus? That religion which has not power to propagatate itself, to enlighten and save perishing souls, is thenceforth good for nothing but to be cast out, and to be trodden under foot of men. We cannot trust aught but pure and undefiled religion for our own salvation. The sooner we cast away every system of religion that is powerless to convict and convert souls, the better it will be for us, for such religion is spurious. We must have truth, the living truth, abiding in the soul. 14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 6

Every true Christian is a soldier of Jesus Christ. He is the Captain of our salvation: He is our Leader. We must wear His armor, and fight under His banner. We must do just as He bids us, for our strength lies in obedience to His Word. Thus we may have a power that is not of ourselves. 14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 7

Christ is the light of the world. We are to walk in His light, for He is “that true Light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.” [John 1:9.] “Every one,” said He, “that is of the truth, heareth my words.” [John 18:37.] “He that will come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross daily, and follow me.” [Luke 9:23.] It is through disregard of this command that backsliding has come into our ranks. Men have been placed where God should be, and their example has been followed. Christ spoke no mere sentiments, notions, or opinions, but pure, clean, holy, eternal truth. He set forth principles, both in precept and example, from His own personal knowledge. He saw what men in their selfish blindness and self-indulgence failed to see—that whatever deviates or leads away from the eternal principles He has set forth, however plausible or deeply revered in the minds of men, is a delusion and a falsehood, unable to sanctify or save the soul.14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 8

Christ had stood in the councils of God, He had dwelt in the innermost recesses of the heavenly sanctuary, and truths, unadulterated and original, were familiar to Him. He taught that which He knew, and testified that which He had seen. He was the Truth, the Word of God, the Light of Life, and He unfolded truth of the higher order. He was the Word, the wisdom of God, and He spoke the truth as One having authority. His word was with power, because from His knowledge He was unfolding truth that can never perish—the words of eternal life.14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 9

It is astonishing to all the universe of heaven that men will depart from the “Thus saith the Lord” in precept and example, and teach for doctrine the commandments of men. All who will follow the light of God’s Word will not walk, as in the past, in the sparks of the fire of their own kindling.14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 10

Jesus is the world’s Redeemer. He contemplated our race, and has given a revelation in every way adapted to our human necessities, and essential for every soul who would have eternal life. He looked upon the human race as fallen, standing under the sentence of God’s transgressed law. They were helpless, degraded, ignorant, hopeless, and ready to perish. He understood their peril, and left the royal courts of heaven, clothed His divinity with humanity, and brought to them a message and way of deliverance.14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 11

There is knowledge with the Most High with which the discoveries of man can bear no comparison. The Lord Jesus Christ is the fountain of all knowledge. His hallowed life taught living and eternal principles. He who dwelt in the presence of God, who was one with the Father, never mingled in His instructions the topics of human science. He was the God of all genuine science. He is the Science of salvation.14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 12

There is a lower knowledge that may be acquired by ordinary means, according to the capabilities that God has entrusted to man. Its value can be estimated, and is not essential for the recovery of man. But the way of life and immortality could only be made known through Jesus Christ. And this knowledge is salvation to all who accept it. It is the science of salvation, and all must have this knowledge, or perish.14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 13

"I am the light of the world." [John 8:12.] Christ has ascended the firmament of truth, as the sun ascends in the heavens, to lighten the world with His glory. He shines with the consciousness that were he to withdraw his beams from the world, there would be eternal darkness. He shines forth today to lighten every man that will walk in His light. If they will walk in the light as He is in the light, they will not stumble.14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 14

Let all who have a knowledge of the Way, the Truth, and the Life, bear in mind that Christ pleased not Himself. His whole life was an example of pure, disinterested benevolence. And He declared, "This gospel shall be preached for a witness to all nations." [Matthew 24:14.]14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 15

Satan is to be met on every side with his specious temptations. He has a keen perception of what he has lost. When his principles were not received in the heavenly courts, and he was cast out of heaven, he made a vow to use his knowledge and his powers to war against God, taking from Him the beings He had created, and bringing them under his own standard. In accordance with this vow, he has worked, and will continue to work, to instill his sentiments in the minds of the children of men. His own devising he will make to appear as truth to many minds, to be received as truth. This it has been with the Sabbath of the fourth commandment. His specious presentation of the Sabbath of the Lord has led the world to discard the genuine Sabbath and accept the spurious.14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 16

The arch deceiver often comes in person as a man of pleasing address. He converses with human beings, and lays before them singular temptations. He works in every way to overcome them, for he knows what heaven would be to every human agent. He knows that that which Christ has undertaken will be accomplished, that the Scriptures will be fulfilled, and that there will be a host which no man can number encircling the throne where he has stood so often as chorister, to sing the songs of adoration and praise to God in the courts of heaven. 14LtMs, Ms 196, 1899, par. 17

Comments on Luke 8-10 and an Appeal to Dr. Kellogg

circa 1899

Previously unpublished.

Read Luke chapter 8. Read this whole chapter. This chapter is important. Read especially the parable of the sower, [beginning with] verse 4. All these words are important to us.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 1

Here is brought to view, [Luke] chapter 9, the fact that there were evil spirits at work to confuse the minds—even devils—turned out of heaven to counterwork. But the Lord Jesus is the superior. “Then he called his twelve disciples together, and gave them power and authority over all devils, and to cure diseases.” [Verse 1.] There were fallen angels working to confuse and make the minds of the people darkened with Satan's counterworking power. But Christ appointed His disciples notwithstanding Satan's working.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 2

Satan was the fallen angel [along with] his rebellious company. And now Jesus sent His chosen few to preach the kingdom of God and to heal the sick. Now a work is given to His disciples: “And he said unto them, Take nothing for your journey, neither staves, nor scrip, neither bread, neither money; neither have two coats apiece. And whatsoever house ye enter into, there abide, and thence depart. And whosoever will not receive you, when ye go out of that city, shake off the very dust from your feet for a testimony against them. And they departed, and went through the towns, preaching” (Luke 9:3-6). Read this whole chapter. Here is where Christ makes His work counter to satanic agencies. This chapter brings to us assurance of the heavenly agencies working with Christ against satanic agencies. Here is the supremacy of the divine over the satanic. Read this revelation of the divine working of the heavenly. This whole chapter distinctly opens to us the agencies that are at work—one to save souls and [the other] the fallen order that were turned out of heaven. Read and be wise.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 3

Luke 10, verse 21. Nothing rejoices the heart of the Lord Jesus so much as the progress of the Gospel and adding souls to the church of such as shall be saved. Conversion of souls from sin to holiness is Christ's joy—a full joy in [the converting] of even one soul. He rejoiced in spirit, “I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes: even so, Father; for so it seemed good in thy sight. All things are delivered to me of my Father: and no man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father; and who the Father is, but the Son, and he to whom the Son will reveal him. And he turned him unto his disciples, and said privately, Blessed are the eyes which see the things that ye see: for I tell you, that many prophets and kings have desired to see those things which ye see, and have not seen them; and to hear those things which ye hear, and have not heard them.” Luke 10:21-24.14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 4

The Lord would have our people in Battle Creek take into their labors those who have not heard the message of warning which is for their soul's salvation to know. Plants have to be made in many places. Battle Creek is becoming congested. All who carry responsibilities and, in this perilous period of time, will bind themselves up with those who have had great light yet refused to accept it—where is their wisdom? When the terrible conflict shall come and the strength of Israel is gone, God inquires, What will you do, unfaithful shepherds, with the flock committed to your charge to protect and save from the ruin you have brought upon them because they have dishonored My name? What have you done with My flock, My beautiful flock? Where wilt thou take them for shelter? How can they escape the bewildering snares? You have bound them up with unbelievers. What deception will come upon leaders, educators, especially upon physicians! The Lord has given them warning but they heeded not His voice: “Thou hast brought men, transgressors of My law, to be captains and become heads.”<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 5

thereby to come and plunder his boasted possessions. Those who betray sacred trusts in alliance with unbelievers, and confide in them, make rods for themselves, having lost the favor of God in whom they should have trusted. They have brought a weakness of Christian example to other souls because they have not made straight paths for their feet, "because thou hast not trusted in Me, your God, fully, nor in the power of truth in perfect, full obedience to all My commandments." Unfaithful stewards, your reward will be according to your works. 14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 6

There is contention and strife marked in all your assemblies, and God is dishonored. There are voices that are unreasonable, judging one another, and then there is retaliation. The Lord is not pleased with physicians who are working in Chicago, who are spending money lavishly amid the lower classes and berating the ministers that will not do the very same work they are doing. This work is consuming and not producing. Very few [of those who] have all their lives been educated in sin will be saved to become true laborers to win souls to the truth. Labor is to be done for the poor as well as for the rich, but the means and talents of our ministers are not to be used to make a Salvation Army record. Let them attend to their work that God has given them to do, but the Lord has another class of work to be done at this period of this earth's history. 14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 7

The voice was speaking, instructing Dr. Kellogg clearly in warning. Dr. K, you are carrying on this work heavily while fields are suffering for spiritual light. Come into line; [let] all come into line; ministers and physicians are to harmonize. You are making sad work, Dr. K. You are getting your arms about a class that will not be in any way wise leaders who can be trusted. Ministers are set aside. Because they are not prepared to leave their church work to follow your example, you have instituted a war against them. 14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 8

You and your associates are making a mistake, a mistake. The work is being swayed in a way where much money will be consumed, but there will be very little, if any, producing. Your movements are not in the Lord's order and their [method of] carrying the work in America is not in right lines. You did start the work and should have an interest in it, but it has been made all and in all. The money you would draw to be expended is leaving the work in the churches without means to pay their ministers, and the very work God would have done is not done. The besotted drunkards, supposed to be reformed, listen to the words of Dr. K and his pressing down upon the Lord's ministers because they do not unite with him is out of place. This kind of irreverence for God's ministers is not inspired of God. It is something that God condemns. It is a lack of respect for the ministers that you, Dr. K, have no more right to [exhibit] than they have to do the same thing to you, as they see what lengths you are carrying your ideas to work in the slums. 14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 9

God has not placed any such burden upon you to magnify that which you suppose to be failure in the ministers when working on the same plan. They see you carrying things to great extremes, and your masterful spirit is exercised without showing the proper respect to the Lord's chosen men to preach the gospel. You would gather means from every source possible to expend in a work the Lord has not appointed you or them to do, because the work in the highways will reach many more souls that have not ruined soul, body, and spirit, disqualifying them to have wisdom and judgment under your training. There is danger, great danger, in your appointing the medical students to do this work. 14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 10

We have a work to do—house to house labor. We ask our people to save their means which now is so very scarce to support our camp meetings. We have all classes that come to these meetings, and there are appointed ones to look after high and low to see that the poor are fed and assisted, then instructed, and the papers and publications placed in their hands are received. This is our plan to work: to call them to our meetings, holding [the meetings] in localities near the cities and within reach of the cities. This is the way that is outlined before me that we should work. 14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 11

God calls for the means being used so lavishly on the outcasts of our cities to come to us to be able to work these new fields that have never been worked, never heard the truth. O my brethren and sisters in America, why are things being swayed as they are with so little accomplished with the means that is being saved? You may suppose that you are being led by the Lord, but you have turned out of the way while you give so much time and money. There will be found men of splendid genius but lost in the quicksand of ungovernable passions and imbruted habits, detestable vices.14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 12

The Lord has instructed me to instruct you, Dr. K, that you are not appointed of God to carry things as you are doing. I must raise my voice against this. There is a great, ennobling work to be done to reach the higher classes. Men will be converted to become true laborers together with God. There will be conscientious workers. Your Gospel Wagon enterprise is a mistake. Well organized [labor] is needed in every place where the truth is brought to the people in our cities. I have seen the work of the Lord in this country, but there is so little means to do [it] with. Were my husband alive, I could speak to him and we [could] consult together in regard to the work and how it shall be carried.14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 13

Bro. John Kellogg, I speak to you. There are schemes you are devising to make your name a praise in all the earth, but you are in a position that God cannot work with you. You have in various ways worked out of God's lines, arm in arm with unbelieving ministers. Your works were greatly magnified, and their results. And then they put articles in the papers, and it was just as you told them, and you denied them to me when presented to you. But I did not say unto you all the truth in these matters. It was getting out of your line that is spoiling your experience, and it may be because of your pride of heart you will never see clear light again. We are calling and pleading for means that you handle so lavishly, and why do you not respond?14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 14

Your lessons are being learned in a school that is not of a character that will qualify you for the high and noble work worthy of God that would stand the test of the judgment. Men who are working with an eye single to the glory of God are men of humble prayer. You have done much with means to exalt JHK. There is an infidelity that is taking possession of your soul that you would, could you see all the outcome of your plans, despise yourself. I will leave much unsaid. I have diaries which make more definite statements.14LtMs, Ms 197,

I see you becoming an untruthful man. This bears down my soul with grief inexpressible. What can I say to help you? You are devising, you are planning, that Battle Creek shall bear the name of JHK as a remarkable man, but the curtain has been lifted. You are represented to me as seated at the marriage supper without the true significance of your state, and the Lord Jesus came in and said, "Friend, how comest thou in hither without the wedding garment?" [Matthew 22:12.] I do not want you to continue this kind of labor until our work shall be lowered into the dust. God has a most sacred work to be done and you are moulding minds not after the order of our Lord.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 16

There was work to be done in all our cities in evangelistic labor, but [not] to sink the grand and holy work of God which is to stand before nations [by] the denominated people of God [who are] appointed to do a sacred work before the highest authority in temperance. Bringing converts to accept the work, to see saloons closed and one of the greatest evils no longer dealing out poisoned liquor that create madness and bloodshed, this kind of work can be handled at our camp meetings in a wise way. The truth as it is in Jesus, in all its bearings, to be proclaimed as represented in Isaiah 58, is all after God's order, but Dr. Kellogg began a warfare and encouraged students that they must have an education in the slum work of Chicago. While some good may be done, what amount of means is expended for so very little returns?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 17

This has not been the Lord's way, while our camp meetings will reach all classes. God has not laid this burden upon Seventh-day Adventists to do this certain work, for then the means and time are spent that should be given to the cities to get access to the people, planning and working to reach the higher classes especially upon the subject of temperance. While the whole world is to be reached with the message of the law of God on the Sabbath question, means are being absorbed in various experiments that are consuming but not producing. The Lord looks upon the cities in America that are not having well-planned methods made [in their behalf]. Give the warnings to the world. I am instructed that the means that are consumed in this one place, Chicago, would carry the truth to thousands, and this ought not to be. But the withholding [of means] is because a variety of manufacturing is engaged in that the Lord has not ordained.14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 18

There needs to be altogether a different understanding in regard to the ministers and the physicians. This management is not altogether on one side, but if there was a true converting power of God circulating like the healthful current of blood in the body, great changes would take place. Ministers are not respectful to Dr. Kellogg in the matter of health reform. There is a position taken that creates disunion, and this is displeasing to God. This matter is an entering wedge, but Dr. K knows the light that has been given decidedly against tea, Java coffee, and flesh meats, and then he has felt altogether too much injured and he has despised the course of some of the ministers. The course of some has been decidedly against the light God has given, but Dr. K has felt too strongly. I have given my decided testimony against these indulgences; it was an injury to the ministers and worked up division, but Dr. K has borne down on the ministers as a body in an unjustifiable manner.14LtMs, Ms 197, 1899, par. 19

[Christ] testifies unswervingly by His character that no sin practiced by humanity can bear the commendation of the pure and holy God, and that He came to condemn sin in the flesh. Hear the words of Christ, all you who would practice your own unbelief and defects of character as virtues: What saith the Lord Jesus in the year 1899, Granville, New South Wales? "He that will come after Me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow Me." [Mark 8:34.]14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 1

The teachings and words of Christ are to be received and practiced as the virtues essential for this life. Every man who will receive the truth taught by Christ will in charity practice the virtues of Christ, and Christ takes him into His close relationship to Himself. He is our example in all things. He is the sample for the human family that they can live a life holy and undefiled. Souls must have the peculiar sanctification of the truth as it is in Jesus in their heart to refine and purify them from their selfish course of action.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 2

I must constantly keep repeating these things before you, lest you become deceived by unruly tongues who do wrong and justify their errors. May the Lord so convict your minds that on your bended knees you will confess your defects of character and be converted. We have no time to lose. We are all individually a spectacle unto the world, to angels, and to men. Many claim to be Christians but they are not Christians.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 3

Paul gloried in tribulation. He was susceptible to pain and disappointment. He came to those who had the light but did not walk in the light. When some suffered with Paul, his voice was heard in clear distinct tones: "I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us.” [Romans 8:18.] Let then every soul consider that he is to [show] to the world a joy even in suffering humiliation and abuse, for Christ suffered in our behalf and He was the Son of the infinite God. When it seemed at times that believers in Christ could endure no more, Christ's voice was heard, “There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man.” [1 Corinthians 10:13.]14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 4

The chief tempter is he who rebelled in the heavenly courts. It was a long, severe chapter of deception and satanic wiles. He had been carrying on his work day by day until his wiles could be tolerated no more because he was misinterpreting God, Christ, and the true and loyal angels by his satanic inventions. “And there was war in heaven” and Christ and his loyal angels fought until every soul that was liable to act on Satan's side was expelled for the safety of the loyal angels. [Revelation 12:7, 8.]14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 5

*****

“Ye Are Laborers Together With God”14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 6

This means that the Lord's workers in His vineyard are cooperating with Him to put forth personal labor for the souls that are perishing in their sins. They know not how to come to Christ, and they need to be hunted up and brought to the Saviour. Some do have a decided reverence for Christ. Lead these souls along, and step by step bring them to the Saviour where they can see Him. And by beholding Him by faith they will fall in love with Him who gave His own life that they should not eternally perish. Some souls have a wavering impression that Christ's love is the very thing that they want. Temptations meet them on the right hand and temptations on the left. The open door must be kept before these souls.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 7

We see intemperance on every hand. Thirty-five years ago there was presented before me a part of the Lord's vineyard that was yet unworked. There was the greatest number absorbed in amusement that I had ever beheld, except in the picture of the inhabitants before the flood. There was every conceivable devising of Satan to lead and control the minds of men, women, and children.

Intemperance in eating and drinking was destroying the life forces until the mind and the wonderful talent of speech were [rendered] cheap and full of corruption.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 8

Let us eat, drink, and be merry was the order of the days that are solemn with their burden of results. There was horse racing, lives were lost in the very actions of their passion to excel—in what? What is it, under the sun, all to bring the actors nothing but shame? Their [use of] God-given powers to think, to speak, to improve in every way in this time of probation which is deciding for them their fitness for the future life—is it to have heaven? Is it to be the sons of God because they have received Him who gave His life for them? If so, they come off more than conquerors through Him that has loved them. They have accepted Christ, believed in Christ, and are one with Christ. When Christ who is their life shall appear, then they shall appear with Him in glory. They were united with Christ as co-laborers to seek and save perishing souls. They find their harvest of souls on the very verge of surrender, only waiting to know “What shall I do to have eternal life?” God wants workers with eyes to see and hearts to feel and a power to draw these precious souls.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 9

While there are many who will not give their hearts to Jesus Christ, who is waiting with open arms to receive every penitent soul who comes to Him for light and life, there are many who are forming characters for to be refused an entrance into the kingdom of God. They have no respect for those whom the Lord loves and whom He has related to Himself as His instrumentalities, as channels through whom to communicate. They despise them for their words and appeals that make them uneasy, and yet they become defiant in their rebellion. They are forming characters under the working of Satan's deceptions. The little sins (so-called) are sin and, if persisted in and unrepented of, will through repetition harden the heart to resist all light, all the drawings of Christ, all the appeals to save them—the purchase of His blood—from eternal ruin. The Lord Jesus understands what they need, but they will not heed His voice of correction.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 10

heaven is unlike any comparison except the life of Christ, which is a standard of absolute completeness. It is required of every soul who is saved to buy gold, silver, and precious stones that represent the works of Christ, which is continual growth into the full stature of a perfect man in Christ Jesus. There will be new and increased knowledge as he seeks communion with God, and through surrender of his own will and inclination he becomes moulded and fashioned after the divine similitude.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 11

“For thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy; I dwell in the high and holy place, with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite ones. ... For the iniquity of his covetousness was I wroth, and smote him: I hid me, and was wroth, and he went on frowardly in the way of his heart. I have seen his ways, and will heal him: I will lead him also, and restore comforts unto him”—while he is nursing rebellion? No; when he is repentant, contrite, and sorry for working at cross purposes with God. “I create the fruit of the lips; Peace, peace to him that is far off, and to him that is near, saith the Lord; and I will heal him. But the wicked are like the troubled sea, when it cannot rest, whose waters cast up mire and dirt. There is no peace, saith my God, to the wicked.” [Isaiah 57:15, 17-21.] “Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts: and let him return unto the Lord, and he will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he will abundantly pardon.” [Isaiah 55:7.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 12

We bear our testimony to the impenitent: Beloved, the Lord's hand is not shortened that it cannot save, nor his ear heavy that it cannot hear. The Lord now tells us that which interposes between the souls that are impenitent and Himself. “But your iniquities have separated between you and your God, and your sins have hid his face from you that he will not hear.” [Isaiah 59:2.] Is it not best now, just now, to seek the Lord and purify from your heart and character every sin that defileth? Thank the Lord, thank the Lord, all who are oppressed under a sense of your sins, for there is hope for you in God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 13

The kindness and love of our Saviour toward men has been demonstrated. The covenant of the grace of Christ commenced before the world was made. It existed from eternity and it is named the everlasting covenant. As there never was a period of time when God was not, so never was there a moment when His grace to man was not the determinate counsel of the object of delight of the eternal mind—the salvation of the human race formed in His image. Let no one suppose the plan of redemption was not conceived of before Adam and Eve fell under the temptation of Satan and that this was a method thought of to remedy the terrible work of the destroyer. “Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world.” [Acts 15:18.] Everything was done for our first parents to make them pure and keep them pure.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 14

The Lord has wrought out His own will in a mystery which all will fully comprehend in the higher school above. The person of Christ is to be greatly exalted. The mystery of grace is so large and deep and full that it cannot be divined by human minds. But the display of the Lord Jesus Christ before all human intelligences, before the universe of heaven, and before the world's unfallen, the glories of His divinity put to the severe test of His taking humanity—and this the only means devised to redeem humanity—no tongue can tell it, no voice or talent of the most educated could describe it. The Lord Jesus was to display the attributes of His love that is without a parallel. The cross of Calvary stands to bear its unmistakable testimony that the law of God's kingdom is as immutable as His divine character.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 15

The cross of Calvary speaks the everlasting destruction of every impenitent, disloyal subject of His kingdom. His death magnified the law and made it honorable, removing every obstacle on the part of God to a perfect reconciliation through His only begotten Son. So that cross makes possible the bestowal of every gift treasured in heaven to all who receive Christ as their personal Saviour by laying on Him their sins and no longer continuing in sin, for He made a propitiation for the sins of the whole world. He tasted death for every man. Who can comprehend this amazing love—that Christ, equal with God, should give a ransom by giving His own life for the sinner, that whosoever believeth Him should not perish but have life everlasting? Every soul saved must have a personal interest in this great work.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 16

The Lord can receive every repentant soul and pardon every transgression, for this was arranged in the great plan in the counsel of His love. What scenes will be opened before us if we shall indeed be overcomers! And it is possible for us to be more than conquerors through Him who gave His life for us.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 17

It is not understood or appreciated what honors we may each give back to Jesus Christ in our life here in this world if we watch every action of our own, that it shall not cast one reflection detrimental to the Christian experience we ought to have, and may have, if we will take hold of every advantage God has provided for us. “Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.” [2 Peter 1:4.]14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 18

There must be a beholding of the true standard of character. Then every soul having a high conception set before them in the character of Christ [may], by honest endeavor, seek to obtain self-mastery by constant prayer and faith. If you fail, be not discouraged, but ask the Lord to forgive your failure and try again, looking unto Jesus who is the Author and Finisher of your faith. You will gain progress in the strife, for it is by beholding Christ by faith that we become changed into His image in character. To reach the height of Christian excellence in character is to read the Scriptures attentively, get the full meaning of the Scriptures, and then be doers—carrying out the “It is Written.” There is no limit to spiritual attainments in and through being partakers of the divine nature. This is the greatest, the highest inducement ever offered to man. His identity is hid with Christ in God. He has that mind that was in Christ Jesus, and he has high, pure, and elevated thoughts, for he has grown into the likeness of Christ.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 19

No one can be in Christ without being a new creature. All hopes and aspirations are to do good and only good. Bring the peace and joy and fragrance of Christ into the daily thoughts and His practical life into your practical life, and you will never fall. You cannot, for you earnestly, sincerely committed the keeping of your soul unto God. The heart, the purpose, and the will are bound up with Christ.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 20

Thoughts on Romans 12

Paul the great apostle is writing to his brethren in Rome. In view of his teachings in the previous chapters of this epistle, he presents a comprehensive duty. "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." [Verse 1.] In the previous instruction he has given them, [he] presents the Lord Jesus Christ as the Channel. 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 21

1 Peter 2:3: "If so be ye have tasted that the Lord is gracious. To whom coming, as unto a living stone, disallowed indeed of men, but chosen of God, and precious. Ye also, as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, an holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable unto God by Jesus Christ." [Verses 3-5.] 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 22

The body must have special purification and sanctification. The Lord requires the whole mind, soul, and strength of the entire being. Therefore, it is the Lord's requirement that everyone who would have the restoring, healing influence of Christ upon his human tabernacle must have a knowledge of his physical structure. Physiology and hygiene are positively essential for proper education. Neither Greek, Latin—the dead languages, nor any other study is able to take the place of the highest education each student [should be] striving for. 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 23

Every human being must know and have increased intelligence of the home he lives in. The laws governing the human machinery must be sacredly and respectfully regarded. The instruction [has been] given upon guarding every part of the human machinery. In our educational system we must make the Word of God the foundation of all education. "Ye are God's husbandry, ye are God's building." [1 Corinthians 3:9.] 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 24

“Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey; his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness? But God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you.” Romans 6:16, 17.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 25

The Lord of life and glory has a special work for each one of His subjects to perform. Our world-wide message is: “Repent ye, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.” [Matthew 3:2.] Who are the subjects of kingdom of the God? “Therefore being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ.” Then we will not vindicate ourselves and justify ourselves, for this will not be of the slightest value to us. “By whom also we have access by faith into this grace wherein we stand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God. And not only so, but we glory in tribulations also: knowing that the tribulation worketh patience; and patience, experience; and experience, hope: and hope maketh not ashamed; because the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghost which is given unto us. For when we were yet without strength, in due time Christ died for the ungodly. For scarcely for a righteous man will one die: yet peradventure for a good man some would even dare to die. But God commendeth his love toward us, in that, while we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. Much more then, being now justified by his blood, we shall be saved from wrath through him.” Romans 5:1-9. [Read also] verses 10, 11.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 26

“He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not. He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name.” John 1:10-12. [Read also] verse 14. This grace and this truth it is our duty to make known to the world, because we have a living experience. We are living epistles in the latter days, the very time when Christ predicted the inhabitants would be as were the inhabitants in the days of Noah. The message God had given Noah in warnings, he gave to the world before the flood, but they would not believe. They were eating and drinking and planting and building, and marrying and giving in marriage, until the flood came upon the unrepenting inhabitants and took them all away. Hear the words of Christ: "So shall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed." [Luke 17:30.] 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 27

"My kingdom," Christ declared, "is not of this world." [John 18:36.] It is not established by force or by warfare or any one man's wisdom. Human power will not accomplish this warfare. "Not by might, nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord of hosts." [Zechariah 4:6.] He addresses every element opposing the work for which He gave His life, suffering reproach and rejection by His own people whose moral taste was in accordance with their choice. "Away with the Lord Jesus Christ; release Barabbas, a thief, a murderer," was their choice. [See Luke 23:18.] With thieves and murderers will they have their portion—with all those of like choice. 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 28

"Moreover the word of the Lord came unto me, saying, Who art thou, O great mountain? before Zerubbabel thou shalt become a plain: and he shall bring forth the headstone thereof with shoutings, crying, Grace, grace unto it." [Zechariah 4:8, 7.] The Lord Jesus Christ came to our world in the form of humanity. He stepped down from His throne as Sovereign of heaven. He laid aside His royal robe, His bright crown, and clothed His divinity with humanity that made it possible for Him to die for the human race, to make atonement for sin and transgression. To every soul that is perishing in their sins He reaches out a hand that has been pierced, that He may grasp the hand of fallen humanity and say, "Come unto me, all ye that are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you," of restraint and obedience, "and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." [Matthew 11:28-30.] What an invitation is this! He places great honor upon men and women and youth in giving everyone the privilege of yoking up with Christ. Whosoever shall heed the invitation are partakers with Christ in His humiliation and sufferings, and will be partakers with Him of His glory. 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 29

In Daniel we read, "But the saints of the most High God shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom forever." "Many shall be purified, and made white, and tried; but the wicked shall do wickedly: and none of the wicked shall understand; but the wise shall understand.” [Daniel 7:18; 12:10.] We are not, as a people, to take part in politics. “Come out from among them and be ye separate and touch not the unclean and I will receive you. I will be a Father unto you and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty.” [2 Corinthians 6:17, 18.]14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 30

“Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God; and are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; in whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord: in whom ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit.” [Ephesians 2:19-22.] No one is to hold himself as an authority, but physicians connected in sanitariums are to blend. No one is to be placed in a position that he is to be the supreme authority, but “builded together [they] groweth an holy temple unto the Lord.” [Verse 21.]14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 31

[Read what] saith One who hath the seven stars in His right hand, who walketh in the midst of the seven golden candlesticks. [See] Revelation 2:1-7. Ministers and physicians are to blend. Not one man is to take the jurisdiction, for that one man should not accept a position so as to confine the running of an institution, or the management of a church or sanitarium, as one of supreme authority. This is not to be. There is One represented as the chief in authority. All must look and inquire and do the way of that One who has charge of the seven churches; One who walketh amid the seven golden candlesticks. All difficulties are not to be brought to one man to make decisions. This is the great evil in Battle Creek; everything is to come under one man's supervision. Consult together.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 32

All who bear responsibilities must act each from his own individual mind, seeking all the time for the divine wisdom that cometh from God. There must be a prayerful study of the Word of God. Christ is to be the One character in which all superiority is invested. One human mind is not to be considered a supreme whole. If that human instrument considers he is a perfect whole, by no means is this to be; talk and preference will not make him thus. I would advise that the work be carried in our schools and in our sanitariums by united wise counselors. [You are not] to suppose one man's judgment and experience is to be exalted as supreme. This is to be avoided. The ministers of Christ, the physicians of our sanitariums, are not to rely on their own perfection of wisdom in managing. Counsel together. Leave not your first love out of your councils. 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 33

*****

“And the Lord spake unto Moses, saying, Speak thou also unto the children of Israel, saying, Verily my Sabbaths ye shall keep: for it is a sign between me and you throughout your generations; that ye may know that I am the Lord that doth sanctify you. Ye shall keep the Sabbath therefore; for it is holy unto you: everyone that defileth it shall surely be put to death: for whosoever doeth any work therein, that soul shall be cut off from among his people. Six days may work be done; but in the seventh is the Sabbath of rest, holy to the Lord: whosoever doeth any work in the Sabbath day, he shall surely be put to death. Wherefore the children of Israel shall keep the Sabbath, to observe the Sabbath throughout their generations, for a perpetual covenant. It is a sign between me and the children of Israel forever; for in six days the Lord made heaven and earth, and on the seventh day he rested, and was refreshed.” [Exodus 31:12-17.]14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 34

It was the Lord Jesus Christ, enshrouded in the pillar of cloud, who spoke these words. It was His voice which ordained that the Sabbath should be observed as a sacred day of rest. Till the end of time it was to be a sign between God and His people. Those who observe the first day of the week, and try to compel others to observe it, call that day the Christian Sabbath. But Christ does not own it. The seventh day is the Christian Sabbath. When the morning stars sang together, and all the sons of God shouted for joy, this day was blessed by Jehovah and set apart as the day of His rest. 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 35

The law proclaimed from Sinai by the voice of Christ declares, “Thou shalt have no other gods before me;” “Thou shalt not make unto thee any graven image;” “Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord thy God in vain;” “Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy.” [Exodus 20:3, 4, 7, 8.] The command concerning the day which God sanctified and blessed, setting it apart as a memorial of creation, is placed in the bosom of the Decalogue. The first four commandments, which define man's duty to God, and the last six, which define man's duty to his fellow-men, are joined by a golden link. 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 36

Faithful in That Which is Least.

June 29, 1899

Character-building is a great and important work. Christ gave His life to carry out the plan whereby fallen human beings may be raised from their degradation to the nobility of heaven. In view of this, what can we do better than to behold each day the beauty and attractiveness of the character of Christ? Why should we not speak of His goodness and tell of His power? Why should we not grow in grace, depending on the grace that comes from Christ for nobility of character? 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 37

Said Christ to the Samaritan woman, “If thou knewest the gift of God, and who it is that saith to thee, Give me to drink, thou wouldest have asked of him, and he would have given thee living water. ... Whosoever drinketh of this water shall thirst again: but whoso drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up unto everlasting life.” [John 4:10, 13, 14.] 14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 38

We are not living up to our privileges unless we expect much, receive much, and impart much. It is only under the influence and guidance of the Holy Spirit that we can do this. The Lord is dishonored when those who call themselves by His name give him only a half-hearted service. Christians are to grow in grace. It is our privilege to develop characters that will endure through all eternity. Those who strive, in Christ's name and strength, for full Christian development of character, will accomplish much. They will be enabled to hold the beginning of their confidence firm unto the end. It is our privilege so to live that each day the record in the books of heaven will declare, “Ye are complete in Him.” [Colossians

Shall we not increase the talents entrusted to us by trading wisely upon them? Shall we be envious of the talents entrusted by the Lord to another? God gives to every man according to his several ability. In the parable, the one to whom five talents were given, went away, and by trading wisely upon them, gained other five. To another, two talents were given, and he also, by trading, gained two more. These servants were highly commended, and he who had gained two talents was as highly commended as he who had gained five. Why? Because he had done his best.14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 40

To another was given one talent. By wise use of that talent, he could have doubled it, as the others had done with theirs. But he was ungrateful, and wrapping his talent in a napkin, he hid it in the earth. When his lord came to reckon with him, and found what he had done, he said, "Thou wicked and slothful servant, thou knewest that I reap where I sowed not, and gathered where I have not strawed: thou oughtest therefore to have put my money to the exchangers, and then at my coming I should have received mine own with usury. Take therefore the talent from him, and give it unto him which hath ten talents. For unto everyone that hath shall be given, and he shall have abundance: but from him that hath not shall be taken away even that which he hath." [Matthew 25:26-29.]14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 41

In his great mercy God gives to all according to their ability to use and improve the gifts bestowed. If the man capable of improving only one talent had been given five or two, the responsibility would have been greater than he could bear. But if he had wisely improved the one talent, and brought the returns to his Lord, he would have received the same commendation that was given to the one who brought back ten talents. He would have been happy in his work. His heart would have been filled with rejoicing; for he would have realized that he was trading upon something set apart by the Lord for his special use. His talent would have increased in his hands. He would have regarded it as a sacred trust, to be used to the glory of God. Wisdom from above would have been given him, and the one talent would have been doubled.14LtMs, Ms 198,

“Thou art an holy people unto the Lord thy God: the Lord thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth. The Lord did not set his love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people; for ye were the fewest of all people: but because the Lord loved you, and because he would keep the oath that he had sworn unto your fathers, hath the Lord brought you out with a mighty hand, and redeemed you out of the house of bondmen, from the hand of Pharaoh king of Egypt. Know therefore that the Lord thy God, he is God, the faithful God, which keepeth covenant and mercy with them that love him and keep his commandments, to a thousand generations; and repayeth them that hate him to their face, to destroy them; he will not be slack to him that hateth him, he will repay him to his face. Thou shalt therefore keep the commandments, and the statutes, and the judgments, which I command thee this day, to do them.” [Deuteronomy 7:6-11.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 43</sup>

These words point out the possibilities and probabilities before the people of God. We are to be laborers together with God. Every Christian should give close attention to the reading and hearing of the Word. Every Christian is to be an earnest, practical worker. Constantly we are to obey the word, “Labor not for the meat which perisheth, but for that meat which endureth unto eternal life.” [John 6:27.]<sup>14LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 44</sup>

The man who has been entrusted with one talent is to make the most of it, because it is God's gift. By faithfulness in its use, he may become a practical, trustworthy worker, able to stand in his lot and place, and ready to go whenever and wherever duty calls. Constantly he moved upward, toward a richer, holier life in the service of Christ. His example encourages others to make a wise use of their gifts, to do their best. He has no desires to disparage another's gift. He holds his own as a sacred trust. By a faithful performance of the minor duties, he gained an inspiration to grasp higher realities. The one faithful in that which is least becomes faithful in much. The weak becomes strong. The soul, through its connection with God, lays its hand firmly on truth itself, and appropriates the purest, most noble sentiments.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 45

Such a man, because he has consented to live in the valley of humiliation, is highly exalted by God. Christ says, Friend, come up higher. The meekness and lowliness of Christ characterize his daily life, and he feels himself at home when learning of God. He is taught of God. He identifies with the truth, loving God supremely and his neighbor as himself.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 198, 1899, par. 46

Diary/Warnings to Dr. Kellogg

Circa 1899

Previously unpublished.

When running short of funds for different devisings, most stirring speeches are made at our camp meetings of a most magnified representation of the work which should have been most thoroughly investigated with prayer for discernment to understand. What means this class of labor? What means all this employment and consumption of means? Is it [increasing] how many are being added to the church of such as shall be saved? And what has been added to the strength of the Lord's work to keep it in its various branches in a healthful condition? Was this robbery of the Lord's vineyard being carried in God's order, or [was it] a plan of the devil to use up all available means that should be employed to carry forward the work of God solidly—that the cause of God should stand throughout the world in poverty and a languishing condition, that the wily foe should use the poverty in fields that might and should have been worked as he interpreted the fast of Christ in a desolate wilderness as an evidence that He was not the Son of God?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 1

The denominational churches of today are pointing with a sneer to the few Seventh-day Adventists, poor and cheap in their appearance before the world, to make them a byword and a hissing. And who has this sin to answer for in America? Who has gathered in donations from every source available, absorbing means? The true revealing, the true state of matters in the result of the work done, is largely exaggerated—far from the representations that have been made.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 2

That which grieves me to the heart [is that] the testimonies of the Spirit of the Lord have been misinterpreted and misapplied to sustain the work that God never meant it should strengthen. This is the work of the wily foe, to turn away means from the cause of God where it should go, to sustain the work where God's servants were trying to make headway under pressure for that very means. The Lord's money should have been entrusted with those whom God has led in America and whom God has guided to establish the work in California. Never has God directed such a work for Seventh-day Adventists to do as has been done to erect memorials of Dr. Kellogg's ample means. This presentation was similar to that of Hezekiah, after God had raised him up from sickness and added fifteen years to his life. [See] 2 Kings 20; Isaiah 39.14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 3

“Howbeit in the business of the ambassadors of the princes of Babylon, who sent unto him to inquire of the wonder that was done of the land, God left him, to try him, that he might know all that was in his heart.” 2 Chronicles 32:31. “All the commandments which I command thee this day shall ye observe to do, that ye may live, and multiply, and go in and possess the land which the LORD sware unto your fathers. And thou shalt remember all the way which the Lord thy God led thee these forty years in the wilderness, to humble thee, and to prove thee, to know what was in thine heart, whether thou wouldest keep his commandments, or no.” Deuteronomy 8:1, 2.14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 4

The Lord has not led thee any more than He led Hezekiah in [your] showing strangers the riches of the Lord's Sanitarium. Those testimonies published in the New York Observer are an exhibition of being left of God, to prove thee, and to try thee, to see what is in thy heart. Men are exalted, but the Lord God of Israel is left out of the question. Just as surely as the Lord tried Hezekiah, so he has tried Dr. Kellogg. He was weighed in the balance and found wanting. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 5

You have measured your good works and have pronounced yourself unselfish, and have said the things I have written you were not true. They are verity and truth, and only a small portion of the truth was stated in so mild a way that you should not take offense. Exaltation and pride in yourself and your achievements had been marked of the Lord; He left you, removing from you your wisdom, that the indulgence of self-will has led to strange actions. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 6

The question was asked, What right have you to invest the proceeds of the Sanitarium in the work you had devised? It was not faithful stewardship, and for this reason letters have been written to you of warnings in regards to your demeriting of ministers and setting your judgment above God's servants. Why did you not respond to the calls of necessities in other places, to create facilities where there was nothing? Why have you poured [means] into one place among a class that could be in no way a class to represent the work given the Lord's people to do? You are not to act in connection with the work of God as owner of the whole concern. You have no moral right to disperse the means profusely as you have done in a work that will not advance the cause of God or elevate and enlarge and ennoble a people to stand in the Lord's truth. [Instead of] setting in operation facilities that will be under God's blessing, tributaries to advance the work which you know will increase more and more, you linked up with A. R. Henry and set in operation a Sanitarium which was a draining of funds that leaves that institution heavily in debt. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 7

[You] link up with unbelievers or men who have evidence having no connection with God, obtaining through pressure the assent to erect a building in Boulder that could not be paid for, and yet you continue to run the work in Chicago which God has never advised you to do. Then there are censures and condemnation poured out upon the board because they do not help you in draining the endless load that you have attached to yourself. But the Lord does not look upon the ministers in the light J. H. Kellogg looks at them. How is the world to receive the gospel message [when] you place ministers in public meetings in a most depreciative condition? Christ says, "It was Me that was humiliated." [See Matthew 25:40.] God has been looking and has been insulted in the persons of His saints. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 8

I have written letters upon letters as matters have been presented to me of the Lord, which no one is any of the wiser for. I have held them until the Holy Spirit of God shall subdue and soften your heart and make your heart new. It needs converting and for you to become as a little child, else the Lord will leave you to yourself as one who will not receive counsel or reproof. Is it not time you received the operation of the Holy Spirit? You must have the implanting of a new nature. The influences of grace are so much needed on your own heart and on your mind, whereby your heart is purified and daily strengthened and renewed in righteousness and true holiness. You need the counsel of men who will not hold their peace if they see you moving or acting unwisely. When you rebuff what they say with a sharp retort they become discouraged and let you state what you will. As silence gives consent, they have done you a serious wrong and are accountable for all the injury [along with] yourself because of their unfaithfulness.14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 9

Bear in mind [that the] doctrines held by Seventh-day Adventists are the gospel that Christ said must go to all people, tongues, and nations. Righteousness through a crucified and risen Saviour, the third angel's message, and the faith of Jesus are broad outlines of eternal truth. You have been trailing your banner in the dust of the earth. It is no honor to God that you have created objects to eat up the revenue which should be appropriated to plant the standard of truth—a testing message which will decide every case for life or death. These important testing truths are not detached doctrines, no loose, unconnected units and sentiments. The truth, the Word of the living God, is the bread of life. The truths form one string of varied precious gems. The person and work of Christ is a complete system of truths. Christ being its living center, they are linked in one grand, practical, essential, whole—the salvation of the soul by faith in Christ Jesus. That faith in Jesus sinks self into the small dust of the balance.14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 10

You need that faith that works by love and purifies the soul, because you are in a responsible position. You need holiness of character and entire obedience to the commandments of God. There is no truth like this. God does not call for you to expend labor and money on those cases which will prove the least in development of character while that same money [could have been] expended economically in many cities and places where they have no opportunity to be enlightened, yet are praying and entreating the Lord for light. Thus it has been represented to me. Schools and meetinghouses of worship I have seen have been built, whole neighborhoods converted and the truth going forth to other places as a lamp that burneth. There is a church raised up, tithes are being paid, the poor are looked after and helped, and souls are converted through the mission efforts put forth. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 11

Eternity will reveal the correct way of doing missionary work and the incorrect way. I want you to think before you go any further how the work you have entered upon is to be sustained. The Lord has opened to me that there is a wise way to do missionary work and an unwise way. There is a way that will make the receiver dependent for their food but in no way contributing to the general funds. Now I beseech of you, for Christ's sake, to stop and consider the fall of man by nature and the just condemnation of a holy God. If those you administer unto make little show of true conversion, something is out of the way. The Lord has pointed out to me so distinctly that your methods were not after the gospel order of Jesus Christ. Means and large labor have been expended which, if properly and wisely used, would have revealed memorials in a large number of cities and communities and built up the work of God, not in a beggarly fashion, but in a way to properly represent our faith to do honor to God and give character to His work and remove the reproach from His people. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 12

The best means is through camp meetings. God has surely blessed every one of these meetings that are followed up with thorough after-work. From seventy-five to one hundred have been converted. A few came from the churches, but most, by their testimony borne, stated they had not entered a church for years. They could obtain no [spiritual] food. Young men and young women, people of promise, are added to the church of such as shall be saved, if they continue steadfast in the faith. Oh, I am so thankful to see talent coming into the church through God's appointed agencies. Our great want has been more workers and money to carry forward the work in establishing memorials of the true Sabbath of the Lord our God in new fields. I give my books to those, rich or poor, who are battling with the powers of opposition from the clergy. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 13

You want to stand under the yoke of Christ. You want to work after Christ's order and not work out plans of your own. You have not had God to plan with you. You have supposed your capabilities were capable of any stretch or strain, but if you fall—as you may be assured—it is not because you have walked and worked in God's appointed way, after His will. You [must] then move intelligently and not be afraid. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 14

Men must not now hover over the churches, for every soul must learn to do their work for other souls. Preparation of the heart and the answer of the tongue is from the Lord. Why, if men would only first talk with God, [even] if they can do no more than pray the Lord's Prayer when walking the streets or when working with their hands! The Lord taught these words to His disciples, to ascend to the throne of God. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 15

There need not be large display in building our meetinghouses, but everything should be done firmly and solidly, for it is an object lesson on the building of character. The thorough conversion of the soul is to be kept before the people. When there is a genuine forgetfulness of self, depending by faith on Jesus Christ, everything may be done to His name's glory. In presenting the living oracles, the divine theme thoroughly takes possession of the speaker—the heart, the mind, the speech. His faith in the Word, the message of truth, he presents in fervency of the Spirit. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 16

There is One who hath said, "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world." [Matthew 28:19, 20.] This work has been neglected in a large measure and the result is that the much labor and many plans to keep the church alive have proved to weaken them in the place of benefitting them. Now how shall the state of things be broken up? [Read] Mark 16:15-18. "So then after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God. And they went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, confirming the word with signs following." [Verses 19, 20.] When the Holy Spirit bears the confirmation of the truth at the time of the ministration of the Word, working under the supervision of God, the work will be accompanied with results. The Word of God is then quick and powerful and sharper than any two-edged sword. The promise of God is sure. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899,

par. 17

[Two pages missing.]

Why did you not stop and consider before you built your towers, whether you would be able to finish them? There was your Orphan's Home and Old People's Home, and the Sanitarium—were these not enough? Certainly [these were] all you should have had to care for. You have taken on you a work which God did not set you to do. There are boundaries and limits to everything. One line of work is connected with another line of work, which draws big responsibilities upon somebody, and that somebody God would have using their powers and their monies in other lines of work. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 18

That article in the New York Observer explains why the Sanitarium is in debt, as you have stated to me. One hundred thousand dollars was donated to the work of your creation in Chicago, and that paper states that such a work you were to create in cities everywhere. Could you not be sensible and sit down and count the cost of this work? You have lost the spirit of the gospel in your distracted efforts to keep the work going that you, J. H. Kellogg, have taken upon yourself irrespective of the real gospel work that was to be carried to all parts of the world. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 19

Sinners of every stripe and type may come to the Lord Jesus and believe, but there are a class to work for that must be producers as well as consumers, else our work will be left in poverty and disgrace. How much revenue comes to the Lord's treasury in these experiments? You were represented to me from time to time as creating things that would ruin you financially, and worse, you would just as surely make shipwreck of your faith. You are offended if any words or hands are outstretched to bar your way. You load yourself down as a cart beneath sheaves and it is not with work God has given you, grasping burdens God has not laid upon you. Some good will come out of this work, but that means employed in the very work that was needed to be done that would fertilize the barren fields to plant the standard of truth, would have produced an hundredfold and presented to the world a showing that God's truth will become a triumph. The stone cut out of the mountain without hands will fill the whole earth.14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 20

That means is invested, as your reporter gives it, to a work created that consumes thousands of dollars per month. Who laid this upon you? Not the Lord. If you fail and lose your life, it is not Sister White that is the reason of it. It is the creation of a work that blocks the way so that God's money will be invested by you in places where it will bring very little glory to God, when that same means expended in the gospel ministry—serving the bread of life to souls that are starving for the truth—would raise memorials in many places that would bring the knowledge of the truth to many dark corners of the earth. The people that sat in darkness and in the shadow of death will see a great light and will receive the truth gladly. Plants will be made all over the earth.14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 21

I have had respect for you and love for you because the Lord was working with you in the work He has appointed you—the Sanitarium in Battle Creek. In your dealing with the sick God was with you, right by your side. But when you load yourself down with responsibilities God has not laid upon you, then it wears and tears the brain power and you wrench yourself one way and the other way to relieve yourself of the sin of this accumulation of continually sapping the means you have created yourself, smarting under the load alone.14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 22

The ministers of God's appointment are more in the line of their God-given work than yourself and those you place on the stand at our large gatherings—men who will begin a tirade of the ministers—[men] who are undisciplined, uncouth, and unconverted. They are from the sloughs of Chicago and say after their drunken sprees, “I am saved.”14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 23

I may expect anything after you read this letter, but when you gave yourself up to such extravagant grief because Sister White had left you, my dear brother, Sister White has not left you, but you have determined not to heed her words and to do as you please. Well, in doing as you please, the result will surely come and you will be one and alone. If you would have counseled with your ministering brethren in all these enterprises, you would have followed the rule marked out by our Lord. When you take yourself in your own hands, you have a tyrannical master and he will lead you into a warfare you little dream of. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 24

Those who have come to this field have begun just in the way they have been educated. I have watched them right and left. When we had no sturdy ground, when we were pressured on every side, right and left, Dr. Caro considered it was a part of his work to institute a home for babies, and whenever I go into Sydney, there is a paper passed to me to contribute to the Orphanage Home. And there is a home for abandoned women, yet we have no standing, no means. I talked with him very seriously and had to tell him that the Lord was not leading him in the line of work he had taken up. He had given him his appointed work and it needed all the calm, religious element to be cultivated to do the work in the Sanitarium, to be sharp, clear, and discerning, to take advantage of circumstances, to train and educate the helpers, and to win souls to Jesus Christ. That is what our Sanitarium is for. Then the truth will do its work in restoring, and the reputation of the Sanitarium will be preserved. But today it is far from being what it should be and doing the work it should do. You have instituted so many things, dividing the work between Chicago and Battle Creek institutions, that the legitimate work God has appointed you to do, you cannot do because you have taken up work that has not been appointed to you to do. Now you come here with misconceived ideas and attempt to run things on the same principles. It is the same pattern that God has opened before me, that was not God's way of working. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 25

These things are cropping out and I will not permit it. I stand in God opposed to a work the world can and will do if it is not taken out of their hands. The devil would be pleased to close every avenue left us here in this hard field, where a class of people shall be reached and brought to the platform of eternal truth, to give character and influence on the Lord's side, in the place of centering so much money in a class that will scarcely—any of them—be an honor to the cause of God, but must be watched always. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 26

There is [much] work to be done to establish something. Whenever this is mentioned, you rush off on a tangent against the gospel ministers and show very little Christian courtesy and respect. When you have done this, you get worked up and you say things that make the angels of God ashamed of you. When the Lord has done so much for you to give you influence, it becomes you to cooperate with God and seek by Christian courtesy to maintain that influence with your brethren that will recommend to them your work in the Sanitariums. In our large gatherings, these men are looking for you to do and act in accordance with the light God has given you. When the Lord counsels and reproves you, you act like an unsubdued, fractious child. Then how can you maintain your influence and the confidence of your brethren? You declare the things spoken by Sister White are not the truth.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 27

The Lord has another work for you; you have lost your bearings. Dr. Caro thought he should be the president of the mission. I could see it would be appropriate in order to be recognized among the people to whom he should come to give his lectures. Then the question arose in our council meeting in regard to our manager. Should the president's position be front, and should it not be first and highest? I said I thought it would, but that night I was enlightened that the manager's position was equal to the president and was even more responsible. The next day I related the light given me. I said to Brother Caro, "My brother, your judgment is not always reliable. Your standing in the highest authority will, I fear, be an injudicious movement, for you need guarding on many points. You cannot follow in this place the things that have been done and are being done in Battle Creek or Chicago. You must counsel with your brethren at every step."<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 28

One man's mind is not to sway things according to his ideas or notions. Ideas and plans at every step need investigation and looking into. We cannot afford [unwise] expenditures; if we had as much money to handle as they have had at Battle Creek be assured it would be just as severely [mismanaged] as the misapplication of means have been in Battle Creek. We have a work to do and that work must be done intelligently. There must be openness and everything laid out before those in responsible positions for their inspection, reproof, or condemnation. The Lord would not have one man's mind swaying the work as if he was God. There are men who have keen perception and all matters must be managed as open as the day. There is to be no course of action among the people of God in any city or in any place that shall invest means so much larger in proportion to that which is carried out in other parts of the Lord's vineyard, for the Lord's ways are equal.14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 29

Our Lord will never encourage in any man—whatever his responsible position may be—the appropriation of large means, [resulting in] only consuming and no producing. In every city in our world there is a class of men who would live on food provided for them free, without money and without price, which would make that enterprise non-producing. The [institutions] are not to encourage laziness and intemperate practices by having men spend all their earnings to gratify their intemperate appetites and then be fed and clothed and [given] sleeping quarters free. The Lord would never encourage dependence upon others, and the course that has been pursued in Chicago, is not to be repeated in this country or any country in our world, because it is a wrong precedent. There is not to be, in the use of God's money, a mercy for the shiftless class that would make mercy and compassion foolishness.14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 30

Again, there is not to be placed before any sanitarium [worker] the inducement of giving to the poor by not eating a meal themselves. This is carrying matters too far altogether, when means is lavishly spent in lines which God has not called them to work. Let the reform and self-denial begin at the right place and reformation be wrought that will be sensible and will bring about results. There are conscientious souls who use plain, simple food, and who need the strength that food affords to accomplish their work. Let them eat their two or three meals with singleness of heart to the glory of God. I know that there is such a thing as carrying matters to extremes, and extremes in the outlay of means—when it is not carefully considered and demanded—will lead to extremes in requirements of self-denial where poor souls will injure and have injured their health, “To save something to give to the poor.”14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 31

Then again, in the Sanitarium are those who work hard and should not be deprived of their wages to fill up the vacuum of means that has been abundantly invested in various enterprises, all called benevolent, self-denying work. Every man and woman should have their regular wages and then have something in their hand to help the very cares that will come before them that they may be filled with compassion and give when they shall see the poor saints need and not withhold from them to give to the somebody needy poor who may not be worthy of one penny and would not be in any way helped in the way of charity if ever so much was given to them. Give to every man and woman their due, and give to everyone their wages proportionate to their work. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 32

God wants true, intelligent, discerning stewardship. There is a passing by of our duty to help those who are sinning against God and that continually. All wisdom—hath I left the world, selfishly creating necessities for many that will leave barren the unworked fields where the gospel should go forth decidedly? What necessity [was there] to invest thousands of dollars in that building in Boulder, when with proper economical planning, one-third would have accomplished that which was essential? God's means misappropriated there has been monies [needed] to establish the work in Australia. I had a right to call for it and to have it. I was the Lord's commissioned messenger to come to this place where there was nothing except in a few places in Melbourne. But something was done and selfish, covetous hearts wanted to make a place for everything in America and would not permit means to come to this place where we are working with all self-denial and with "might and main," to get some memorials established here in this destitute country. The word comes, "You have means thus and so." Yes, we have some of the Lord's money from His treasury and ought to have all that means that were so abundant that things were created that God did not inspire. God will just as surely bring our people in America where there will be a dearth of means. Look at Europe, London. Had the means that went into that Sanitarium in Boulder been properly used, London would have been in a different condition than it is now. 14LtMs, Ms 199, 1899, par. 33

Diary Materials — Faithful Stewardship

Circa 1899

Previously unpublished.

All the property and talents of means in our world is the Lord's. They are a test fund to determine by the use [persons] make of the trust funds, their fitness to be entrusted with heavenly positions of responsibility. It is really only theirs in trust funds. The property holder is bound under the most sacred obligation to [act] with fidelity as a steward. "All the gold and silver is Mine," saith the Lord, "and the cattle upon a thousand hills. All lands are mine, all the rivers, and all the productions of the earth are Mine." [See Haggai 2:8; Psalms 50:10-12.] When any of this earthly treasure shall come within the control of human agents to use, let them consider this is not my property to invest and use as my judgment shall dictate. I am not to use even donations as I shall desire, but in connection with the whole vineyard. Because means have come into my hands, I must not suppose that I have a moral right to use this means to please my own inclination. This means must be carefully and strictly used—every dollar—in the very places where suffering humanity will be the most benefitted in understanding the truth, the proclamation of the third angel's message, and where there can be memorials raised to glorify not the name of any man that lives.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 1

It is a very easy matter for any man to be exalted, because thousands of dollars have been invested to create a train of circumstances that affect the whole vineyard of the Lord, either for good or evil, to broaden and deepen and add new territories to the Lord's kingdom. To be wisely used means these thousands of entrusted money are to go just where the Lord's faithful stewards should apportion the same, as a wise master-builder of the work, to produce symmetry in the workmanship of God. The test comes to all and every result is faithfully chronicled with every thread drawn into the fabric and its material, [including the results of] the workmen who are just as earnest and determined to advance the work but they have nothing themselves to make even a beginning. In all these things wise stewardship is called for. There can be [no] guesswork and uncertainty in these lines without results which will tell through time and eternity for good or evil. God requires that His workmen shall not be their own planners as to what investments shall be made. More than one man's brain and one man's mind is required. Men of capability may lack in some important and essential qualification of character, carrying things so heavily and disproportionately that a harmonious and proper presentation before angels and men cannot be revealed. Large means is not to be invested in one place where the selfishness of man shall come in and mix with the appropriation of monies, binding it away from God's missions in foreign fields that are suffering hunger, weariness, famine, and distress. God will hold every board accountable which has not taken in the situation of suffering missions. One-sided men should not be on any board unless they have a burden of the work of missions, to learn how they are being carried. When men get means under their control and are selfish, near-sighted, and cannot see how their fellow-workers are struggling and toiling and lacking of the comforts of life, their minds become confused. They will work on wrong principles and spoil this missionary work.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 2

What do all these things mean? What misery and distress has come to flow out of the idea that because one can use means that he will use it unwisely and so absorb means that God's wrath is kindled against them? Christ is suffering hunger in the persons of His saints. I could say more that would not be wise at this time. There are nations and individuals who are suffering today because of the wrong use of means and property which has come under the control of unsanctified managers. Money has been handled to enrich some places largely, when the places that needed this money the most receive nothing of it. Some who have done this have not known what they were doing. They supposed that all that came into their hands should be used just as they disposed. As God looks upon His suffering missionaries, He says decidedly, "Ye have done it unto Me. I was hungry but ye fed Me not; thirsty, but ye gave Me no drink; naked, and ye clothed Me not; sick and in prison, and ye visited Me not." [Matthew 25:42-45.] The sight which has been presented to me a few months since is terrible, terrible. My heart aches for Africa. What might the sums of money spent in Gospel Wagons and to abundantly supply the lowest class of people have done for those who never have had the privilege of hearing the gospel? They are in foreign countries. I have the word of the Lord. What a shameful neglect has been in our missionary board in being members of that board and refusing to do as the necessities were made known to them. The money spent in that Colorado institution was not a necessity, but there was necessity—deep and full—in foreign missions. Who at the heart of the work has carried that burden for Africa or India, instituting measures to create relief for these destitute regions? The sight is before God, and the test upon men who have not relieved the necessities.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 3

*****

“As It Was in the Days of Noah.”<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 4

It is a dangerous presentation to John that the church has much that is commendable (see Revelation 2:2, 3), “Nevertheless I have somewhat against thee, because thou hast left thy first love” (v. 4). No outward service should be considered sufficient if the first love is left. It is genuine heart service that Christ requires. Man has left Christ out of this service. This means man is depending largely upon his own capabilities.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 5

“Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the first works.” Devote yourselves earnestly, heartily, to My service as I have instructed you, “else I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candlestick out of his place, except thou repent” (v. 5). There is a serious reflection to come in here with the church generally, and those who acted a part in the proclamation of the everlasting gospel (see Revelation 14:6, 7). The attention is called to God, and the sincerity of His worship. Here is a saying that is to be proclaimed with a loud voice, “Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters.”<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 6

Here is our danger, that in every institution established the fear of God and the love of God shall become so enfeebled in this time when the hour of His judgment is come, and the calamities [are seen] that He permits to come upon the earth and the sea. Before the great fire of God's vengeance shall [bring] the final destruction of all things, it shall be as it was in the days of Noah.14LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 7

Notwithstanding the [opposition to the] preaching of Noah, some were awakened and employed as carpenters to build the ark during the one hundred and twenty years of probation. [But] they did not perfect the reformation of character that would have prepared them to fear and worship God, coming out as believers of the message, showing that they were witnesses for the truth of the message Noah had brought to them. They made changes but half and half, uniting with those who were righteous, but sinning all the time until they apostatized, and many of the believers in the message died. Noah and his family were all that were left called righteous. If the carpenters who worked on the ark under the supervision of God had feared God and loved God, they would have distinguished themselves as did Abraham and his family, but in the passion to become distinguished as men possessing great ability they glorified themselves and dishonored God. Indeed, all might have been truly great and marked men in seeking to advance the knowledge of God, in representing the attributes of God. Selfish gratification and the love of being distinguished eclipsed the knowledge of God and His ways so that they brought in their own plans and devisings in building the ark. [But this] could not be. All the building of this important boat and every particular must be according to the divine instruction.14LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 8

[After the flood] some decided it would be a wise thing to build a tower reaching unto heaven. Certainly there was wonderful talent displayed in the devising, but the Lord brought confusion of tongues to quench their ambitious project and let them understand they gain nothing in such movements but confusion. They decided they would not trust to any boat like that which had been built, but would prepare a tower to reach unto heaven.14LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 9

Had all heeded the warning they would have been saved. To walk with God is the highest duty, the greatest honor, and will bring the greatest rewards. Although Noah proclaimed the message God had given and tried to bring men to repentance that they might be saved, those even that were Noah's carpenters were talking their unbelief, and that it was simply an impossibility that the world would be destroyed by water. By rejecting the light the inhabitants were fastening themselves in deception. 14LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 10

There were good men alive during that one hundred and twenty years and all had an understanding of the case of Enoch who ascended to heaven without seeing death, giving assurance that the righteous would be saved and enter heaven. All the works of God were to reform the inhabitants of the old world. Enoch walked with God three hundred years. In fearing to offend God he studied His will in all his work that he might show his love and highest reverence for God. He did not see his highest and most dignified Friend by his side, only with the eye of faith. He walked with God in reconciled companionship. He had faith in the message [that would later be] given by Noah and worked in harmonious spiritual action with [the warnings that would be given by] Noah. Noah, in harmony with Enoch, was righteous, and in all his works he feared God. Enoch and Noah were representative men among a wicked and degenerate nation. 14LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 11

“By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead yet speaketh” (Hebrews 11:4). All who have a knowledge of God and of Jesus Christ, the Son of God, may have just as pure a faith as had Abel. There is a true experience, a safe knowledge of God, and of Jesus Christ which is unto salvation. God testifies to His gifts and His servants. Is not this of more value than any of us seeking our own advantage and to glorify self? Not one of us needs to be careless, slack, and half serious in the service of God. By being neither wholly for God nor wholly of the Devil, they are of no use in God's service, for they are only misleading. The God-given talent entrusted to be used to His glory is perverted to selfish purposes to aggrandize himself, to be recognized as a superior man. Enoch was a man perfect with God. All these cases will condemn in the judgment those who have great light and evidence and yet are far from being a perfect man in Christ Jesus. They all having a defective character, and when God has favored them with great trusts and lent talents they should be as righteous as Enoch in his day. He perfected such a character that the world took knowledge of him. They had a correct sample in Enoch of what a man could be in a Christlike character, for Christ often manifested Himself unto Enoch. The statement is, Enoch walked with God at a period of time when it was no more favorable for the perfection of Christlikeness than it is in our day. The world was so wicked in Enoch's day that the Lord said, "My spirit shall not always strive with man, for that he also is flesh: yet his days shall be a hundred and twenty years." "And God saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continuously." "But Noah found grace in the eyes of the Lord. ... Noah was a just man and perfect in his generations, and Noah walked with God." Genesis 6:3, 5, 8, 9. To walk with God is the highest duty, the greatest honor, blessedness, and excellence of man. Many men were at first receivers of the message that faithful preacher of righteousness bore. Noah's carpenters were receiving instruction from his lips and they could not be in the companionship of such a man without receiving in large measure an influence by his words. But there were mockers in those days and everything serious was mocked and derided by a certain class whose minds and works were evil and that continually.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 12

The sons of God were thus called because they were the visible worshippers. The openly wicked were descendants of Cain. Enoch did not take up his abiding place among them because the sight of the eyes and the hearing of the ears were dangerous to his family. He lived away in country places, retired, and at set times he visited the wicked inhabitants to bear his testimony in harmony with [the message that would be borne by] Noah and other sons of God. So the work of warning was constantly going on. But what of Noah's carpenters? Some died, some returned to their own sinful practices, notwithstanding the warnings and enunciations of God was upon them. They strengthened themselves in their unbelief. Thus it is in our day as Christ has predicted: As it was in the days of Noah, so shall it be when the Son of Man is revealed. Parents who feared God worked continually to keep their children in a pure atmosphere. This is the precaution all parents should take if they wish to save their children for life eternal, and in this life to become the children of God, being governed by the will of God and the Spirit of God.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 200, 1899, par. 13

We need to study carefully the Lord's way, the Lord's will, the Lord's work, and how to serve Him intelligently. The conversions of souls is the great work before us. The enemy, I was shown, was ready to allure and deceive by quoting Scripture. He thought he could weave in his sophistry and accomplish his work at the very time when it was essential that it should stand highest among the unbelieving world. 14LtMs, Ms 201, 1899, par. 1

Ministers and workers and physicians have their place of appointment. To every man God has given his work to be done. Dr. Kellogg has his lot and appointment, and the enemy comes through human agencies and voices the enemy's suggestions to present a diversion from his work God has appointed. He says, "Why do you not take hold of this class of people who are the worst in our cities and reform them. If your work is of God, you will be doing this [class of work]." "If," "If"—there is the dare to Christ of slimy Satan and his synagogue that He can even throw Himself from the dizzy height and thus tempt Christ violate the very terms made in the counsels of heaven. He says, "It is written, I will give my angels charge over thee, and in their hands, shall he bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone." [Luke 4:10, 11.] But the enemy of Christ knew just as well the part he left out was essential. "I will give mine angels charge over thee and keep thee in all thy ways, lest thou dash thy food against a stone." [Psalms 91:11, 12.] 14LtMs, Ms 201, 1899, par. 2

What a work is resting individually upon all souls, righteous and unrighteous! He crowneth the year with His goodness. Harvest blessings have always been associated with spiritual blessings. The heathen associate all their blessings of success in having their blessing from nature. It was credited to their gods. What a reproach it is upon all who claim to be Christians if they, having their Bibles and the most wonderful knowledge of the Scriptures, did not connect all their good things with the bountiful Giver and Creator of all the heavens and the earth. Jesus, the living Saviour, hath bought us from the hand of the enemy, and in a most tender manner has united all who receive Him and believe in Him with Himself. In a full sense, He has come near to us, so much nearer. How terrible is the future harvest to those who are dependent on their harvest but never themselves sow! "The husbandman waiteth for the precious fruits of the earth ... until he received the early and latter rain."

Never, never turn your eyes away from Christ. Where is the source of true happiness? It is not found in ourselves. We are to contemplate Christ in the Word, who told us, "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye have eternal life." [John 5:39.]14LtMs, Ms 201, 1899, par. 4

Christ and the Disciples

“When Jesus came into the coasts of Caesarea-Philippi, he asked his disciples, saying, Whom do men say that I the Son of man am? And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist; some Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets.” [Matthew 16:13, 14.] Centuries before, Isaiah had written, “Listen, O isles, unto me; and hearken, ye people, from far: The Lord hath called me from the womb; from the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name, and he hath made my mouth like a sharp sword; in the shadow of his hand hath he hid me, and made me a polished shaft; in his quiver hath he hid me; and said unto me, Thou art my servant, O Israel, in whom I will be glorified.” [Isaiah 49:1-3.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 1

Christ came to elevate his people, to make them co-workers with him, that they might be a light to the Gentiles. He sought to draw them to him, working miracles before them, raising the dead, and healing all manner of disease. He presented truth that led them to say, “Never man spake like this man.” [John 7:46.] But they rejected him, and despised his love. His language regarding his labor for Israel was, “I have labored in vain, I have spent my strength for nought, and in vain; yet surely my judgment is with the Lord, and my work with my God. ... Though Israel be not gathered, yet shall I be glorious in the eyes of the Lord, and my God shall be my strength. ... Thus saith the Lord, In an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I helped thee; and I will preserve thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, to establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages; that thou mayest say to the prisoners, Go forth; to them that are in darkness, Show yourselves. They shall feed in the ways, and their pastures shall be in all high places. They shall not hunger nor thirst; neither shall the heat nor sun smite them; for he that hath mercy on them shall lead them, even by the springs of water shall he guide them. And I will make all my mountains a way, and my highways shall be exalted. Behold, these shall come from far; and lo, these from the north and from the west; and these from the land of Sinim.” [Isaiah 49:4, 5, 8-12.] 14LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 2

“But whom say ye that I am?” Christ asked the disciples. And Simon Peter answered, “Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.” [Matthew 16:15, 16.] Peter did not speak these words in an ordinary tone, but with inspired fervor, as if he indeed beheld the glory of Christ. He expressed the sentiments of the other disciples, but he was the only one who was at this time inspired to put his faith into words. Peter might have said, The learned teachers, the scribes and Pharisees, the ruler of the people, are perplexed over this subject, and shall we, unlettered fishermen, venture to decide the question? But Peter felt the glory of God shining into his soul. His heart burned with him. He could not keep silent, and in language of adoration said, “Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God.” It was as though the veil were removed, and God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, was shining into the hearts of the disciples, to give them the light of his knowledge. 14LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 3

“And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee; but my Father which is in heaven. And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock, (the Son of the living God) I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it.” [Verses 17, 18.] The church was not built upon Peter; for the gates of hell did prevail against him. He denied his Lord with cursing and swearing. It is built upon One against whom the gates of hell cannot prevail. 14LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 4

“And I will give unto thee the keys of the kingdom of heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt bind in earth shall be bound in heaven; and whatsoever thou shalt loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. Then charged he his disciples that they should tell no man that he was Jesus the Christ.” [Verses 19, 20.] This charge was given because of the determined opposition of the scribes and Pharisees. 14LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 5

“From that time forth began Jesus to show unto his disciples how that he must go unto Jerusalem, and suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and scribes, and be killed, and be raised again the third day. Then Peter took him, and began to rebuke him, saying, Be it far from thee, Lord; this shall not be unto thee.” [Verses 21, 22.] Peter had just been told that his acknowledgment of Jesus as the Son of God was inspired from above, and it was a great shock to him to be told of Christ’s approaching suffering and death. The Son of God to be thus treated? Peter was filled with opposition. His whole being rose up against the thought. “Be it far from thee, Lord,” he said vehemently; “this shall not be unto thee.” 14LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 6

The words of commendation spoken to Peter were quickly followed by a stern rebuke. Christ turned to him saying, “Get thee behind me, Satan; for thou savorest not the things that be of God, but the things that be of men.” [Mark 8:33.] Peter’s first words had been inspired by God; but in denying that Christ would suffer and die, he was giving voice to Satan’s suggestions; and Christ’s rebuke was addressed to Satan, who was tempting Peter to contradict. 14LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 7

After this reproof, no more was said on the subject. All were silent. A dense cloud seemed to gather over the souls of the disciples. Jesus saw that he must give them evidence of his relationship with God. He saw the effect that his words had had on them, and he looked forward to the time when these words should be fulfilled, when the disciples should forsake him. He was indeed alone in the world; for even his chosen companions could not understand his words. He must gain a fresh hold on Omnipotence; for only thus could he contemplate the future. This help had been promised him; but he must receive it by faith. 14LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 8

Christ had asked the disciples what the people thought of him, not because he did not know their thoughts, but that the disciples might have an opportunity of confessing him, and thus be strengthened for the coming trial. How he longed that the faith they then expressed might remain firm through his suffering, humiliation, abuse, and as his persecutors thought, degradation. But no human power could degrade Christ; for his Godlikeness would appear in every scene of humiliation, and would flash conviction even into the hearts of priests and rulers. Never, never would the memory of these scenes be effaced from their minds.<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 9

Christ began to tell his disciples what was coming upon him, that they might be prepared for the future. But they were so pained by his words that he could go no farther. Their Master to be formally rejected, to be tried for his life? Their divine Teacher to be crucified, made to suffer the most painful death that human beings can suffer—a death inflicted only on those most deeply dyed with crime?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 10

Christ is now far out of the reach of Herod and Caiaphas, the disciples reasoned. He has nothing to fear from the hatred of the Jews or from the power of the Romans. Why need he to go to Jerusalem, and give himself up to death? To the disciples this was indeed a mystery. They did not realize that this sacrifice was appointed from the foundation of the earth, and that it must be offered, else no son or daughter of Adam could be saved. But what made Christ's words concerning his death still more mysterious to them was the fact that they were spoken immediately after his assurance that he was the Son of the living God. If he was to die, how was it that his kingdom was to be established so firmly that the gates of hell should not prevail against it? He had commended Peter for his belief in his divinity, and had assured him that God had led him to make this acknowledgment. He had accepted the title of Son of God, and now he declares that he must go to Jerusalem, to be insulted by the scribes and Pharisees, and tormented to death on the shameful cross. How could this be?<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 202, 1899, par. 11

The lack of faith shown by the disciples grieved the Saviour. Could they bear the crisis, the terrible test? He desired to lead them to see that his death was necessary for his own glory for the glory of the Father. It was necessary also in order that the human race might be partakers with him in that glory. Christ saw that he must give his disciples a symbol of his kingdom. His mission would then be more clearly understood. Letting them pass on before him, he knelt before God in prayer, soliciting special help, that he might withstand the temptations that were continually urging themselves upon him. But his greatest care was for his disciples, who even while he was praying were reasoning together over what he had told them of the future. Why need the Master put himself in danger? they were asking. Why need he go to Jerusalem, where were his bitterest enemies? Why not work here, at a distance from the Pharisees? The course that Christ was about to follow looked to them like presumption. Christ knew their grief and perplexity, and he prayed that God would give them a visible token of his divinity, that they might be strengthened to believe that he was all he claimed to be. “He Was Transfigured Before Them.”

NP

After spending a short time in prayer, Christ joined his disciples, and his first words were a warning of what they might expect. “If any man will come after me,” he said, “let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. For whosoever will save his life shall lose it, and whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it. For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with his angels; and then he shall reward every man according to his works.” [Matthew 16:24-27.] “Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation, of him also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.” [Mark 8:38.] “Verily I say unto you, There be some standing here, which shall not taste of death, till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom.” [Matthew 16:28.] Christ here referred to the transfiguration scene, the representation of his kingdom, soon to be presented before the disciples. 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 1

Christ did not hide from the disciples the fact that they must follow in his footsteps by taking up his cross and practicing his self-denial. If they would be partakers of his glory, they must also be partakers of his reproach. His suffering must be completed in all those who believe in him. His experience must be the experience of Christians through all time. 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 2

Christ has not left his followers in darkness as to the right course to pursue. No pure, noble characters have been formed without disappointment and self-denial. God’s children must not count it a strange thing if they are tempted by him who is the enemy of their Master, and therefore the enemy of all who believe in him. Christ has told his followers plainly that they will have tribulation; for this is part of their moral discipline, and is necessary to an all-round spiritual education. 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 3

The word of inspiration declares, "We glory in tribulations also, knowing that tribulation worketh patience; and patience, experience; and experience, hope." [Romans 5:3, 4.] "Blessed be God," writes Paul, "even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort; who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God. For as the sufferings of Christ abound in us, so our consolation also aboundeth by Christ. And whether we be afflicted, it is for your consolation and salvation, which is effectual in the enduring of the same sufferings which we also suffer: for whether we be comforted, it is for your consolation and salvation. And our hope of you is steadfast; knowing, that as ye are partakers of the sufferings, so shall ye be also of the consolation." [2 Corinthians 1:3-7.]14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 4

When we accept Christ as our Saviour, we must not flatter ourselves with the false hope that all the briars and thorns will be removed from our pathway. O Jesus, thou self-denying Son of God, how infinite is thy tenderness! We should all have perished had it not been for thy forbearance and love. Thou seest our weakness; thou knowest our defects of character; thou art acquainted with every temptation and its strength. It is because of thine infinite mercy that we are not consumed. Thou knowest our weakness, yet thou dost not cast us off, but bearest long with us. Having loved his own, Christ loved them unto the end. Shall we then refuse to be partakers with him in suffering?14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 5

"And after six days, Jesus taketh Peter, James, and John, his brother, and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart." [Matthew 17:1.] These six days had been days of sadness and perplexity to the disciples, as they journeyed along the shores of the Sea of Galilee toward the city where all their hopes were to be crushed. They dared not remonstrate with Christ, but in low, sorrowful tones they talked with one another in regard to what the future would be. They did not give up all hope that Christ would yet prove to his enemies that he was the Son of God; for daily he was giving evidence of his divinity. 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 6

It is drawing toward evening as the Master calls to him the three disciples most to be depended on in test and trial, who are to communicate the light given them to the disciples left at the foot of the hill, and makes his way across the open field to the steep ascent of a mountain. Christ and his disciples have spent the day in travelling and teaching, and the mountain climb adds to their weariness. Christ has that day lifted many burdens from the minds and bodies of many sufferers. He has sent the thrill of life through enfeebled frames. But he also is compassed with humanity, and with his disciples he is wearied by the ascent. 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 7

The light of the setting sun still lingers on the mountaintop, and gilds with its fading glory the rugged path they are traveling. But soon the light dies out from hill as well as valley, the sun disappears behind the western horizon, and the solitary travelers are wrapped in the darkness of night. The gloom of their surroundings seems in harmony with their sorrowful lives, around which the clouds are gathering and thickening. 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 8

The disciples do not venture to ask Christ whither he is going, or for what purpose. He has often spent entire nights in the mountain in prayer. He whose hand formed mountain and valley is at home with nature, and enjoys its quietude. The disciples follow where Christ leads the way, yet their thoughts are not the most pleasant. Why should their Master lead them up to this toilsome ascent when they are weary, and when he too is in need of rest? 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 9

Presently Christ tells them that they are now to go no farther. Stepping a little aside from them, the Man of sorrows pours out his supplications with strong crying and many tears. He prays for his disciples, and at first they unite their prayers with his in sincere devotion. But though the spirit is willing, the flesh is weak. Overcome with physical weariness, they fall asleep. The midnight watch is past, and partially aroused, the disciples hear the sound of earnest prayer. Then they fall asleep again. Christ continues to pray, not only for his disciples, but for himself, that he may be given strength for the terrible conflict. He knows the nature of the coming trial, and the burden of his prayer is that he may be given a manifestation of the glory he had with the Father before the world was, that his kingdom may be revealed to human eyes, and that his disciples may be strengthened to behold it. He pleads that they may witness a manifestation of his divinity, that will comfort them in the hour of his supreme agony with the knowledge that he is of a surety the Son of God, and that his shameful death is a part of the plan of redemption. 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 10

“And as he prayed, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment was white and glistening.” [Luke 9:29.] Divinity from within flashes through humanity, and meets the glory coming from above. The pearly gates of the city of God are thrown open, and the splendor of the eternal throne enshrouds the suppliant. Christ is irradiated. He rises from his prostrate position, and stands in Godlike majesty. 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 11

The disciples awake, and see their Master, no longer prostrate but enthroned amid the glories of heaven. His countenance shines with heavenly light, and a flood of glory covers the mount. Standing beside Christ are two glorious beings whom the disciples recognize as Moses and Elijah. Moses, holding the tables of stone in his hand, stands at Christ’s right, and Elijah at his left. Moses, who had talked with God face to face in the thick darkness of Sinai, and Elijah, who was translated to heaven without seeing death, talking with the glorified Saviour in regard to the suffering he is going to Jerusalem to endure, and the completion of his mission; and Christ talks with them as he talked before he assumed humanity. The hope of the world, the salvation of every human being, was the burden of their interview. 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 12

Alarmed, the disciples gaze at their Master and his resplendent visitors. They hear words spoken that assure them that all heaven knows of the sin of the Jewish nation in rejecting Christ, and saying, “This is the heir; come, let us kill him, and the inheritance will be ours.” [Mark 12:7.] By rejecting Christ the Jews decided their own destiny. But Christ’s approaching death was the glory of his whole work. The salvation of all nations was involved in the sacrifice he was about to make. 14LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 13

“And it came to pass, as they departed from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here; and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias; not knowing what he said.” [Luke 9:33.] That Peter was still troubled in regard to Christ’s future is shown by these words. He proposed that Jesus remain at a safe distance from any earthly tribunal, thus escaping the death on the cross. He thinks that on this mountain, where they have been in such close communion with heaven, no earthly power can disturb them. But his words were scarcely uttered when a cloud of glory overshadowed them, “and there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son, hear him.” [Verse 35.] “And when the disciples heard it, they fell on their face, and were sore afraid. And Jesus came and touched them, and said, Arise, and be not afraid. And when they had lifted up their eyes, they saw no man, save Jesus only. And as they came down from the mountain, Jesus charged them, saying, Tell the vision to no man until the Son of man be risen again from the dead.” [Matthew 17:6-9.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 14

From this experience the disciples received great light. They were given a clearer insight into the work of the Redeemer. They saw with their eyes and heard with their ears things that are beyond the comprehension of man. They realized that Jesus was indeed the Messiah, to whom patriarchs and prophets had witnessed, and that he was recognized as such by the heavenly universe; and years after, Peter wrote concerning Christ and his work, “Of which salvation the prophets have inquired and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you, searching what or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did signify, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glory that should follow. Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things which are now reported unto you by them which have preached the gospel unto you with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven; which things the angels desire to look into.” [1 Peter 1:10-12.]<sup>14</sup>LtMs, Ms 203, 1899, par. 15

The Ascension

NP

October 18, 1899 [typed]

Previously unpublished.

The hour of Christ's apparent defeat was the hour of his victory. The great plan, devised before the foundations of the earth were laid, was successfully carried out in the death of Christ. Ere the Sabbath began, Christ was at rest in the tomb. The furious storm of opposition had raged about him; the torrent of Satanic hatred had revealed itself against him; but his great sacrificial work was completed. He had offered himself to God as a lamb without blemish and without spot, and in the tomb of Joseph he rested. Here his hands were folded in peace. A great stone was rolled before the door of the sepulcher, that no one might disturb the body. 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 1

After their work of creation, the Father and the Son rested. When the heavens and the earth were finished, and all the host of them, and God had ended his work which he had made, he rested on the seventh day. "And God blessed the seventh day, and sanctified it; because that in it he had rested." [Genesis 2:3.] The death of Christ was designed to be at the very time when it took place. It was in God's plan that the work which Christ had engaged to do should be completed on the sixth day of the week, and that on the Sabbath he should rest, even as the Father and the Son had rested after completing the work of creation. 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 2

The day following Christ's burial, the chief priests and Pharisees came to Pilate, saying, "Sir, we remember that that deceiver said, After three days I will rise again. Command therefore that the sepulcher be made sure until the third day, lest his disciples come by night and steal him away, and say unto the people, He is risen from the dead; so the last error shall be worse than the first. Pilate said unto them, Ye have a watch: go your way, make it as sure as ye can. So they went, and made the sepulcher sure, sealing the stone, and setting a watch.” [Matthew 27:63-66.]14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 3

The Roman guard was not the only army stationed at the grave of the Saviour. Evil angels were also there, triumphing that the Son of God was laid low in the grave. And a host of heavenly angels were watching the sepulcher which held the body of their loved Commander.14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 4

While the Roman soldiers were keeping their weary watch, a mighty angel was commissioned to come down and roll away the stone from the door of the sepulcher. Clothed with the panoply of heaven, the angel parted the darkness from his track, and came to the grave of Christ. Their stone, placed at the mouth of the cave, had been sealed with the Roman seal. But the angel rolled it away as though it were a pebble. Then he took his seat upon it. Other angels, who had been guarding the resting place of Christ, now came to the grave, and when the Son of God came forth from his prison house a triumphant conqueror, they bowed in adoration before him. 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 5

At the mighty earthquake which shook the earth when Christ on the cross cried out, “It is finished,” many of the graves of the sleeping saints were opened. Now when the Conqueror comes forth from the tomb, these saints arise with him. 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 6

When the glorious light of the angels came upon the Roman guard, they fell as dead men to the earth. They had not the power to stand, but they were permitted to see Jesus come forth from the tomb. As soon as they could gather strength, they hastened from the garden to relate to the Roman authorities all that had taken place. The chief priests and rulers, hearing of their intentions, requested that the men be first brought to them. The soldiers related all that they had seen and heard; and the rulers, when they had counselled together, “gave large money unto the soldiers, saying, Say ye, His disciples came by night, and stole him away while we slept. And if this come to the governor’s ear we will persuade him and secure you. So they took the money, and did as they were taught.” [Matthew 28:12-15.] But did the evil work triumph? No; the multitude of captives, who rose from the dead with Christ, went into the city, and appeared to many, testifying to many that Christ was risen from the dead, and that they had been called from the grave by his power. 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 7

When Christ ascended on high, he led captivity captive. For forty days he was in the world in his risen body. Then he ascended to heaven, escorted by a myriad of angels. 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 8

As Christ and the multitude of captives draw near to the heavenly city, the cry is raised, "Lift up your heads, O ye gates; and be ye lift up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in." The sentinel angels at the gate of the city ask, "Who is this King of glory?" and the answer comes, "The Lord strong and mighty, the Lord mighty in battle. Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up, ye everlasting doors; and the King of glory shall come in." 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 9

Again the sentinel angels enquire, "Who is the King of glory?" and again the reply is given, "The Lord of hosts. He is the King of glory." [Psalm 24:7-10.] 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 10

Then the pearly gates are thrown open, and the train passes into the city. As Christ enters, angels rank on every side to worship him; but he waves them back. He must first hear from the lips of his Father that his sacrifice is accepted. And he has a request to prefer. He presents himself before the Father, "I will that they also whom thou hast given me be with me where I am." [John 17:24.] The Father accepts the sacrifice, and grants the request. "Let all the angels of God worship him," He says. [Hebrews 1:6.] Then the angels bow in adoration before the King of glory, and their songs of triumph make heaven's arches ring. "Glory, majesty, and power," they sing, "be unto him that sitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever." [Revelation 5:13.] 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 11

Christ ascended to heaven a conqueror. He had finished the work which from the foundation of the world he had covenanted to do. By his death and resurrection he had broken the spell of the destroyer. He had opened the prison house, and set the captives free. He carried with him to heaven his human nature, thus making man partaker in his triumph. No other truth could give humanity such assurance as this. 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 12

“We have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities.” [Hebrews 4:15.] As the Son of man he ascended to heaven. As man’s advocate, he pleads before the Father in behalf of those whom he has left upon the earth. “Father,” he says, “I will that they also whom thou hast given me be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory which thou hast given me; for thou lovedst me before the world.” [John 17:24.] It is court week with us. A risen and ascended Saviour pleads our case before the Father. The Intercessor, the Son of man, holds in his hands the censor of his own merits; and gathering the prayers and praises of his people, he presents them to the Father as a sweet savor well pleasing to him. 14LtMs, Ms 204, 1899, par. 13

Calvary

“He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth. He is brought as a lamb to the slaughter, and as a sheep before her shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth.” [Isaiah 53:7.] 14LtMs, Ms 205, 1899, par. 1

Christ bore himself as one who was making a voluntary sacrifice. After the betrayal in the garden of Gethsemane he was led from mockery to mockery, from insult to renewed insult; but he failed not. Through the disgraceful farce of a trial he bore himself with dignity, speaking no word but that tended to glorify God. And now, thronged by an immense crowd of bitter enemies and unfeeling spectators, the Son of God is led away to the crucifixion. 14LtMs, Ms 205, 1899, par. 2

Since the Passover supper with his disciples, neither food nor drink had been given Jesus. Since then he had agonized in the garden of Gethsemane in conflict with Satanic agencies, the struggle so severe that great drops of blood came from the pores of his skin. From the garden he had been taken to Annas, then to Caiaphas. From Caiaphas he had been taken to Pilate, and from Pilate to Herod. He had borne with fortitude the cruel scourging and the crown of thorns. But when the cross was placed upon his shoulders, human nature could bear no more, and he fell fainting beneath the burden. The priests and rulers, seeing that Christ was unable to carry the burden, laid hold of “one Simon a Cyrenian, coming out of the country,” and on him [was] placed the cross, that he might bear it after Jesus. [Luke 23:26.] 14LtMs, Ms 205, 1899, par. 3

While the mob, led on by the priests and rulers, raise the rude shout and laughter, a mournful lament reaches the ear of Christ. It comes from those whose sick Christ has healed, from those who have been restored to health by his divine power, from the once blind upon whose darkened pathway he has shed light, and those who have once lifted up their voice in the pathetic cry, Unclean, unclean. Jesus had not appeared to hear the rude jest and mockery, but at this sympathetic cry he turns, and in pitying tones says, "Weep not for me." Before his eye arises the picture of Jerusalem besieged and famine-stricken, its inhabitants dying amid the horrors of war; and forgetful of his own sufferings he says, "Weep for yourselves, and for your children." [Verse 28.] 14LtMs, Ms 205, 1899, par. 4

The sorrowing disciples follow Christ at a distance behind the murderous throng. When they come to Calvary, and see their loved Teacher nailed to the cross, their hearts almost burst with anguish that he should suffer thus. Around the cross stand the blind, bigoted faithless priests and elders, taunting, mocking, jeering. "Thou that destroyest the temple, and buildest it again in three days, save thyself. If thou be the Son of God, come down from the cross. Likewise also the chief priests, mocking him, with the scribes and elders, said, If he be the King of Israel, let him now come down from the cross, and we will believe him. He trusted in God, let him deliver him now; if he will have him; for he said, I am the Son of God." [Matthew 27:40-43.] But a word does Jesus answer to all this. While the nails are being driven into his hands, and the sweat drops of agony are forced from his brow, from the pale lips of the innocent Sufferer a prayer of pardoning love is breathed for his murderers. "Father, forgive them," he prays; "for they know not what they do." [Luke 23:34.] 14LtMs, Ms 205, 1899, par. 5

Around the cross stand a company of spectators, some of whom question in wonder, What evil has this man done? But no one can answer; for there is nothing to tell. Some are weeping; for their hearts are full of sympathy. Mary Magdalene is there supporting the mother of Jesus, who has fainted under her grief. As Simeon predicted, the sword has pierced her soul. In the last agony of failing nature, Jesus looked upon the anguished face of his mother, and in a feeble voiced addresses his disciple John, "Son, behold thy mother." Then to his mother he said, "Behold thy son." [John 19:26, 27.] This filial duty accomplished, the Saviour summons his energies for the last conflict. He has borne mockery and abuse at the hands of men, but now he is to feel a greater woe, a more terrible agony. He must feel his Father's frown because of sin. It was this that broke his heart, and wrenched from his lips the bitter cry, "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" [Matthew 27:46.] 14LtMs, Ms 205, 1899, par. 6

The keenest human discernment cannot understand the length and breadth and depth and height of the plan which reaches from everlasting to everlasting—a depth which reaches to the lowest state of human degradation and misery, a height that reaches to the throne of Jehovah. Those who looked upon the pallid face of the Son of God could have no just conceptions of his sufferings. As every divine and human aid failed, and the noble Sufferer stood alone, the terror of darkness and despair gathered about his soul. When Christ cried out, "My God, my God why hast thou forsaken me?" his divinity did not come to his aid to help him see that his case was perfectly free. Not a ray of brightness illuminated that dying struggle. Not a pang of the death sentence was spared the Son of God. The word of the Lord was, "The soul that sinneth, it shall die." [Ezekiel 18:4.] The sentence of death which God had pronounced against every transgressor of his law, must be executed against the Son of God. 14LtMs, Ms 205, 1899, par. 7

The Saviour could not see through the portals of the tomb. Bright hope did not present to him his coming forth a conqueror. The sin of the world was felt to the utmost by the Son of God. The displeasure of the Father for sin, and the penalty, which is death, were all that he could realize through this amazing darkness. He was tempted to fear that sin was so offensive to the Father that he could never again be reconciled to his Son. Faith and hope trembled in the expiring agonies of Christ; for God had removed the assurance he had heretofore given his Son of his approbation and acceptance. Then the Saviour relied upon the evidences that had hitherto been given him that his Father accepted his labors and was pleased with his work. As he yields up his precious life, he has by faith alone to trust in Him whom it has ever been his joy to serve. Denied even bright hope and confidence in the triumph which will be his in the future, he still cries with a loud voice, "Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit." [Luke 23:46.] He is acquainted with the character of his Father, with his justice his mercy, and his great love, and in submission he drops into his hands. Christ had wrapped his life in the life of God. He clung in faith to his Father, and this faith sustained him. 14LtMs, Ms 205, 1899, par. 8

With his departing breath, the Saviour exclaimed, "It is finished." [John 19:30.] Satan was defeated, and knew that his kingdom was lost; for the great plan of redemption, which was dependent upon the death of Christ, was carried out. And there was joy in heaven that the sons of Adam could, through a life of obedience, be finally exalted to the throne of God. 14LtMs, Ms 205, 1899, par. 9

When we more fully comprehend the magnitude of the sacrifice made by the Majesty of heaven, then will the plan of salvation be magnified, and reflections of Calvary will awaken tender, sacred emotions in the Christian's heart. Praises to God and the Lamb will be in our hearts and on our lips. The languages of the apostle Paul is, "I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ and him crucified." [1 Corinthians 2:2.] We also may look toward Calvary and exclaim, "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world." [Galatians 6:14.]14LtMs, Ms 205, 1899, par. 10
