California pastor who prophesied Kanye West's transformation 4 years ago predicts this about Trump

By Caleb Parke | Fox News

Shawn Bolz, a prominent pastor in Los Angeles who has prophesied about many things from Kanye West to President Trump, told Fox News his number one mission is to make hearing from God normal for everyone.

The 45-year-old Christian author and speaker acknowledged that when most people think of prophecy, or "hearing from God," they picture a subgroup of people like the bad guys in a zombie film, but "we're trying to rebrand and dignify what it is to walk with God."

The founding pastor of Expression 58, who is married and has two daughters, 5 and 6, points to believers in the spotlight -- Vice President Pence, former Gov. Mike Huckabee, artist Justin Bieber and West -- who claim to hear from God on a regular basis.

"We are all, as humanity, wired to hear from God – both people who know Jesus and don't know Jesus," Bolz said, citing the book of Daniel as an example. "A lot of the way we hear him is through symbols, signs, and dreams, but we can hear him in so many different ways."

The host of the "Exploring the Prophetic" podcast, with at least 24 years of experience, said prophecy isn't just God saying he loves you like a Valentine's Day card, but can be very specific and has real-world consequences.

"Prophecy is the ability to connect to the God of the Bible in real-time," he explains. "Actually having an encounter with his heart."

More than 140,000 people attended the 12-hour event at three different stadiums – Brasilia Nacional Stadium, and Morumbi Stadium and Allianz Parque Stadium in Sao Paulo – with 1.7 million watching on the Portuguese west coast and more than 560,000 on the English one.

Andy Byrd and Teo Hayashi, co-organizers of The Send Brazil, told Fox News they took "unparalleled unity" to put together the massive three-stadium event, in which thousands made decisions for Jesus, committed to fasting, Bible reading plans and missions to the nations, colleges and high schools. The Send Brazil was brought together by seven ministries collectively called "The Send," which first launched last year in Orlando.

The outpouring of healing, miracles, signs and wonders was mindblowing, the display of God's power in all three stadiums," Byrd, leader of Youth With a Mission (YWAM), said. "This whole event was about the exultation of Jesus and the empowerment of the 24-year-old, equipping the next generation to change the world."

Brazilian President Jair Bolsonaro, nicknamed the "Trump of the Tropics," asked for prayer at The Send Brazil event, where thousands of evangelical Christians gathered. The conservative leader declared that he is a believer in Jesus and that Brazil belongs to God. (The Send Brazil)

'Historic' Christian event brings together 140,000 youth – and Brazil's president

US Vice President Pence to Pope Francis: you made me a hero

VATICAN CITY - U.S. Vice President Mike Pence told Pope Francis, "You made me a hero" back home by granting him a private audience at the Vatican on Friday.

The pontiff and the vice president had a private hour-long conversation. Pence was beaming when the rest of his delegation was ushered into the papal library after the one-to-one talk.

The hero description apparently referred to Pence's roots in a Catholic family. He later became an evangelical Christian.

Francis gave Pence five bound books of his writings as pope, as well as a copy of the annual peace message.

Pence's visit and audience - at an hour's length, a remarkably long one at the Vatican, especially for one not involving a head of state - comes amid the Senate impeachment trial of Trump.
